That whereas upon a former Endeavour of his to eſcape, which was prevented, the Duke by his Letter to the Houſes acknowledged his Errors, and promiſed not to attempt the like for the future, they declared that they conceived the Earl of Northumberland not to be farther accountable for the Duke.

The Commons ordered the Allowance to the Duke of York to be taken off, and an Increaſe of Allowance to the Duke of Glouceſter; and that the Earl of Northumberland may remove him and his Siſter to Sion Houſe, or Hampton Court.

An Information concerning two Gentlemen relating to Everard's Buſineſs, referred to the ſame Committee.

The General and his Officers kept a Faſt-day at Windſor, and the next day, a Captain and others had their Trials begun by a Council of War.

Colonel Poyer fell upon a Party of the Parliament's Forces under Colonel Fleming, routed them, and killed and took moſt of them.

May, 1648.

May 1. Debate touching the Buſineſs of the Church.

Blaſphemy The Ordinance againſt Blaſphemy and Hereſy, in ſome Caſes the Puniſhment being Death, in other Caſes Abjuration, &c. paſſed both Houſes, but not without much Oppoſition.

I ſpoke againſt much of this Ordinance.

Order of both Houſes for Ely Houſe to be for the Sick and Wounded Soldiers.

Ordinance tranſmitted for placing of a Miniſter in Bath.

Order for the Members of every County to preſent to the Commiſſioners of the Great Seal, fit Perſons to be Juſtices of the Peace. 23 Car.

Letters from Briſtol of ſome there privately liſting for the King; and the Forces there are cold in ſuppreſſing them.

Order for the Committee at Derby Houſe to conſult with the General about it.

Letters of the South-Welſh riſing in ſeveral Places againſt the Parliament's Forces, and driving away their Cattle, and carrying away their Corn and Goods, where the Parliament's Forces come, not a Horſe-ſhoe nor Smith to be found there.

Lieutenant General Cromwell ordered by the General to go into South-Wales with two Regiments of Horſe and three Regiments of Foot.

Letters from Scotland, that the Parliament there paſſed a Declaration, thirty one proteſting againſt it, and the Clergy diſſenting, That two hundred and ten Barons and Lords met to perſuade the Countries to riſe in defence of Religion, the King, and Church.

2. Vote for five thouſand Pounds for Repair of the Works of Newcaſtle and Tinmouth, the like for Hull, Scarborough, and other Northern Garriſons, and ſix thouſand Pounds for Briſtol.

Letters that Berwick was ſurprized by Sir Marmaduke Langdale, Sir Charles Lucas, and other Engliſh with a Party of a hundred Horſe, pretending a Commiſſion from Prince Charles; That the Mayor endeavoured to get Strength to oppoſe them, but could not, referred to the Committee of Derby Houſe, and the General. Langdale.

Letters from the General that he had ordered the Regiments at Whitehall and the Meuſe, and other Forces near London to remove further off, unleſs the Houſes ſhould give Order to the contrary.

The Houſe ordered a Letter to the General to ſtay the Removal of thoſe Regiments till farther Order; and a Committee to treat with the City, what Guards they will provide for the Houſes, if thoſe Regiments be removed.

The General likewiſe acquainted the Houſes with his ſending Lieutenant General Cromwell into Wales, and with the not Payment of Aſſeſſments, whereby the Soldiers would be enforced to take free Quarter; the Houſe paſſed Inſtructions to the Committee of the Army and Officers to rectify it.

Teh Common-Council returned Thanks to the Parliament for their Confidence in the City, and aſſured them, that when the Forces of the Army ſhould be removed, the City would ſtand by the Parliament for their Security. City.

The City allowed ſix hundred Pounds per Annum to Major General Skippon.

Petitions to the City's Common-Council, That the impeached Aldermen may not be tried by the Lords, but by their Equals. Petition.

3. Letters from the Lord Chancellor of Scotland by Command of the Parliament there, with their Demands to the Parliament of England to this purpoſe: Scotland. Demands.

1. That the King may come to ſome of his Courts near London, to abide with Safety, Honour, and Freedom.

2. That

Anno 1648.

2. That a perſonal Treaty may be had with his Majeſty.

3. That the Independent Schiſmatick Army may be disbanded, and none put into Garriſons, but ſuch as will take the Covenant, and both Kingdoms may confide in.

4. That all Anabaptiſts, Separatiſts, and Independents may be ſuppreſſed, and no Toleration allowed for any of them.

5. That all abſent Members may be ſent for to perform their Duties in Parliament.

6. That the Covenant may be enforced upon all Men.

7. That the Presbyterian Government may be effectually ſettled.

Theſe Demands were thought by ſome to be very ſtrange; a Day was ſet for the Debate of them.

Information of Tumults by the Malignants in Colcheſter.

Order for Letters to be ſent to ſome Forces of the Army in that County to quiet them, and the Committee at Derby Houſe to take care thereof.

The Houſe ſent for the Commiſſioners of the Great Seal: We acquainted them how great the Buſineſs was in the Chancery, and humbly deſired their Leave that we might continue to ſit, but the Houſe would not permit it.

At Weſtminſter College were many Lords and Commons of the Committee at Dinner, being the Election Day.

A Petition from many Thouſands, Knights, Gentlemen and Freeholders in Eſſex, expreſſing the Reaſons of their Deſires, which were, For a Perſonal Treaty with his Majeſty; that a Courſe be taken for Satisfaction of the Arrears of the Army, with a diſbanding of the ſame.

Eſſex Petition.

Anſwer. The Lords gave Thanks to the County of Eſſex for their good Affections, and let them know that they would take their Petition into a ſerious and ſpeedy Conſideration, and not be wanting to contribute their Endeavours for the Eaſe of the Country's Burdens, and ſettling of a good Peace.

The Commons gave this Anſwer to the Petition.

That they take notice of the great Service and good Affections of that County to the Parliament, and are confident they will ſo continue; and as to their Petition, the Houſe is now in Debate concerning the ſpeedy Settlement of the Kingdom, and do not doubt, but what they ſhall conclude thereupon, will give Satisfaction to that County, and to all well affected People.

It was earneſtly preſſed to have the Words Thanks of the Houſe expreſſed in this Anſwer, but it was carried in the Negative.

5. Debate of the Letters from Scotland.

Declaration. The Houſes declared, That they are reſolved to maintain the Covenant and Treaties between the two Kingdoms, and that they will be ready to join with Scotland in the Propoſitions preſented to the King at Hampton Court.

Order for Forces for the Northern Parts, and to put thoſe Countries in a Poſture of Defence, and referred to the Committee at Derby Houſe.

Scotland. Inſtructions paſs'd for the Parliament's Commiſſioners in Scotland, to acquaint the Parliament there with the Surpriſal of Berwick, by Enemies to both Kingdoms, who had lain long in Scotland, and were demanded by the Engliſh Commiſſioners.

Colonel Horton publiſhed a Declaration to ſatisfy the Welch of the Parliament's Proceedings in order to disband the Forces of Major General Langherne, and to eaſe the Country of free Quarter, and to ſettle Peace generally, and of the Revolt and Oppoſition of Colonel Poyer, the Trouble, Charge, and Danger to the Countries thereby. 24. Car.

But this perſuaded little among them, the common People few of them underſtanding Engliſh, and the Gentry being generally againſt the Parliament, and riſing in moſt Parts of South-Wales, as ſoon as the Parliament Forces were gone from them. Wales.

6. The Commiſſioners of the Cuſtoms advanced twenty thouſand Pounds for the Navy.

The Votes ſent up to the Lords concerning a new Addreſs to the King, &c.

Orders to ſell the Duke of York's Houſes, and two hundred Pounds of the Money for lame Soldiers.

8. Debate about the Buſineſs of the Church. Berwick.

Letters from the North, That ſince the Surpriſal of Berwick, Sir Thomas Glemham, and Sir Philip Muſgrave have taken Carliſle, that Langdale promiſed much to Captain Batten, if he would keep Holy Iſland for the King, but he refuſed. Carliſle.

That Sir Arthur Hazlerigge ſent Forces to ſecure ſome other Places; that Langdale gives out that he is General of the five Northern Counties by Commiſſion from Prince Charles, and perſuades them to arm for the King.

Thus a new War was begun, and new Perplexities upon the Parliament, but it turned only to the uniting of their Party again.

Major General Lambert ſent Forces to ſecure Appleby, Raby, and other Places.

The Parliament's Friends in thoſe Parts fled to Newcaſtle.

The Parliament's Commiſſioners in Scotland delivered in Papers to the Parliament of Scotland, touching the taking of Berwick and Carliſle, but had no Anſwer to them; they went on earneſtly with their Preparations for War in that Parliament.

9. A Petition from the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council of London to the Houſe.

That they are willing to undertake the guarding of the Houſes, the Militia being ſettled, and they authorized. London Petition.

That their Nomination of the Lieutenant of the Tower being ſuſpended, and Importation of Bullion hindred, and Merchandizing diverted; Trade is much decayed.

They pray that the Committee of the Militia may be nominated by the Common-Council, to be approved by both Houſes of Parliament, and the like for the Lieutenant of the Tower, and the Soldiers now there removed, and that Merchants may be invited to bring in Bullion.

The Houſe paſſed ſeveral Votes according to the Deſires of the Petitioners, and acquainted them therewith, and told them, The Houſe doubted not but that their Confidence in the City and Affection to them, would be anſwered with Love, Truſt, and Obedience from them to the Parliament. Anſwer.

Letters from Sir Arthur Hazlerigge of the Condition of the North, and of Captain Batten's Refuſal to revolt to the King; for which the Houſe ordered Thanks to be ſent to him, and continued his Government.

Letters

Anno 1648. Letters from the Speaker to the Committees of every County, to meet and to obſerve the Motions and Practices of diſaffected Perſons, and ſuch as they find active to endanger the Peace of their Country, to ſecure them, and to provide for the Safety, and for ſecuring of Places of Strength, that the Parliament may without Diſturbance intend the Settlement of the Peace of the Kingdom.

Vote. Vote that the General be deſired to advance in Perſon into the North with ſuch Forces as he ſhall think fit, to reduce thoſe Places that are poſſeſſed by the Enemy, and to prevent any Danger in thoſe Parts, and that a Committee acquaint the General with the Grounds of theſe Votes.

Order for a Letter of Thanks to Sir Hardreſs Waller, his Officers and Soldiers for their good Service in ſuppreſſing the Inſurrection in Cornwall.

Kent.

Letters from Kent that the Rioters increaſed there to a great Strength, and committed many Plunderings and Inſolencies; the Houſe left the Buſineſs of reducing them wholly to the Management of the General, with Power for him to give Pardons, and Indemnity to any, but only to ſuch as had been formerly in Arms againſt the Parliament; in purſuance hereof the General had a Rendezvous upon Black Heath of ſeven Regiments of Horſe, and Foot; and marched towards Rocheſter.

Letters of Cromwell's Succeſs in Wales.

Letters from Scotland, That the Levies of Soldiers there are oppoſed in ſome Counties.

The North.

From Newcaſtle, That Langdale left five hundred Foot, and a Troop of Horſe at Berwick, That the Number of the Cavaliers in thoſe Parts were about eight thouſand.

That Major General Lambert was come with about nine hundred Horſe to Bernard Caſtle.

The three Bills to be ſent to the King in order to a Treaty, tranſmitted to the Lords.

Some Members added to the Committee of Derby Houſe, ſix Lords and twelve Commoners.

Referred to Major General Skippon to take care of the Ordnance at Whitehall, and of ſending Beds to Windſor.

Ordinances paſſed the Commons, giving Power to the Militia of London to ſend Guards to the Parliament, and for ſix thouſand Pounds for ſatisfying the Engagement of Colonel Welden to the Inhabitants of Plymouth.

Kentiſh Rioters.

The Kentiſh Men grew numerous under Eſq; Hales their General, and Sir Thomas Peiton their Lieutenant-General, who ſent a Meſſage by a Trumpet to the Lord General for a Paſs for their Commiſſioners to come and treat with him; but the General refuſed it, anſwering, That he knew no Authority they had to appoint Commiſſioners for ſuch a Purpoſe. But finding them and their Countrymen gathered together in Arms, and doing many Acts of Hoſtility and Damage to their Neighbours, in diſturbance of the Peace, and without any Authority from the Parliament, he cannot admit of a Treaty with them, whilſt they are thus in Arms.

Fairfax.

But if they ſhall forthwith lay down their Arms, and depart to their Homes, he doubts not but the Mercy of the Parliament will be extended to the Eſtates and Lives of thoſe who have been deluded into this Rebellion, and their Juſtice only againſt ſome of the moſt eminent Fomenters of it.

24 Car.

Some Skirmiſhes were between Parties of the Army and the Kentiſh Men, ſome few of them ſlain, and about a hundred Priſoners taken; they fought ſtoutly.

31. The Monthly Faſt, they had three Sermons in the Houſe.

The Kentiſh Men ſent a reſolute Reply to the General's Letter, juſtifying themſelves and their Cauſe.

June, 1648.

June 1. Debate of an Ordinance touching the Arrears of many Officers and Soldiers who have ſerved the Parliament.

Petition.

A Petition from the Lord-Mayor and Common Council of London, to acquaint the Houſes with a Petition preſented to the Common-Council, which they deſired to tender to the Houſes, and to leave to their Conſideration.

It was,

1. To return Thanks to the Common-Council for their Endeavours for a Perſonal Treaty.
2. That the Militia of London, Eſſex, Hertford, Bucks, Kent, Suſſex and Surrey might be aſſociated.
3. That Captain Batten might be reſtored to the Place of Vice-Admiral.
4. That the Diſtempers in Kent might be appeaſed.
5. That the Aldermen under Reſtraint might be diſcharged.

The Anſwer of both Houſes to the Petition was,

Anſwer.

That they perceived the Wiſdom and Moderation of the Common-Council in this Buſineſs, and thereby their good Affections to the Parliament for which they gave them Thanks, and deſired that a Common-Council might be called this Afternoon, to which the Houſes reſolved to ſend ſome of their Members to acquaint them with the Senſe of the Houſes upon ſuch Petitions.

Intelligence that the General with four Regiments of Horſe and three of Foot, and ſome Companies of Colonel Ingoldsbie's Regiment, marched to Eltham, and lay in the Fields all Night. May 31. they had a Rendezvous at Crauford Heath, and from thence marched through Dartford, and the General having Intelligence that a Party of the Kentiſh had fortified and barricadoed a Bridge which led to Graveſend,

A commanded Party was ſent forth under Major Husbands of three hundred Horſe, who took up an Anno 1648. an hundred Foot behind them: When they drew towards the Bridge the Enemy fired thick upon them, but they notwithſtanding fell on, and the Horſe ſwam through the Water and ſo got over.

The Kentiſh Men ſeeing their danger, fled, Major Childe who commanded them, hardly eſcaped, having his Horſe ſhot, and his Son was ſhot, and taken. About twenty of the Kentiſh were ſlain on the Place, divers wounded, and thirty Priſoners taken, moſt of the Party routed were Countrymen, Sea-men, and Apprentices of London.

Major Husbands marched on two or three Miles beyond Graveſend, and had Orders to retreat to Maulin, where the Army quartered.

The General publiſhed a Proclamation forbidding his Soldiers to plunder, or commit any Outrage in their March, and to reſtore any thing that had been ſo taken. Many Knights and Gentlemen of Quality, and Cavaliers were with the Kentiſh Men, and their Numbers were increaſed to above ten thouſand.

Major Gibbon went with a Party to relieve Dover Caſtle, and forced Sir Richard Hardreſſe who had beſieged it, to retreat.

London. 2. A Report from the Committee who were ſent to the Common-Council, That they did return their humble Thanks to the Parliament for ſending the Committee to acquaint them with the Overtures of Favour the Parliament have made to the Petitioners of Kent. The Common-Council acknowledge the great Patience and low Condeſcenſion of the Parliament towards the Kentiſh Men, and are fully ſatisfied in what hath been delivered to them from the Committee in relation to the Clemency of the Parliament.

The Commons ſeeing the City a little ſtaggering and inclining to favour, if not to aſſiſt the Kentiſh Men, and knowing the great Danger thereof, held it the moſt prudent Courſe to ſeek to win them by fair and courteous and condeſcending means to the Parliament, rather than to adventure a Ruffle with them.

Their Committee carry'd it with much Diſcretion and Moderation this way, and the Iſſue proved effectual. The Houſe order'd theſe Proceedings with the Common-Council to be printed, that the Kingdom may take notice of the good Underſtanding between the Parliament and City; and how far both are ſenſible of the Deſigns of the Common Enemy to bring a ſecond War upon the Kingdom.

Scotland. Order to ſend the three Bills to the Commiſſioners in Scotland, to be by them communicated to the Parliament there, that both Kingdoms may proceed in a brotherly Union againſt the Common Enemy, and in proſecution of the Covenant, according to the Example of the Kirk of Scotland.

Kent. Letters from Kent, That after the Paſs gained by Major Husbands, which was kept by ſixteen hundred of the Kentiſh Men, they fled; and although they were ſix thouſand Foot and one thouſand Horſe, equal in number to the Parliament's Army, yet they would not ſtand a Fight.

Maidſtone. That the General advanced towards Maidſtone ſooner than he was expected, and had Intimation that two hundred of the Enemy were quartered there; a commanded Party was drawn out to force Entrance into the Town, the Enemy prepared for a Defence, and had a thouſand Horſe and Foot brought in for their Aſſiſtance. About ſeven a Clock in the Evening Orders were given out for ſtorming the Town, at which the Soldiers ſhouted, and fell on with much Violence; but contrary to Expectation, found as reſolute Oppoſition: Yet after a ſmall Diſpute, forced their Entrance into the Town, and then thought the Difficulty of the Service had been over. 24 Car.

But the Enemy had drawn in eight hundred more to their Aſſiſtance, which made them up compleat two thouſand, and had ſo lined the Streets, in the ſeveral Houſes, and placed ſo much Caſe-ſhot in every Street, that the Buſineſs became very diſputable till almoſt twelve a Clock at night, and every Street in the Town was got by Inches.

The Number of the Slain of the Kentiſh Men, were above two hundred; of the Parliament's Forces not above forty, of them Captain Price was one. The Priſoners taken by the Parliament were four hundred and upwards, with four hundred Horſe, and two thouſand Arms: of this ſelect Brigade of the Enemy, few were Countrymen, but many of the King's Party, and Men of Quality, ſome Sea-men, and the reſt Apprentices, and Water-men, who came from London and thereabouts.

That the Enemy drew out of Rocheſter in a main Body within two Miles of Maidſtone, and the General to anſwer them, drew out three Regiments of Horſe, and one of Foot, the better to ſecure thoſe that ſtormed; and they ſtay'd at that diſtance till the whole Buſineſs was diſputed.

Fairfax. The General though much diſabled by Indiſpoſition of Health, and having a great Fit of the Gout then upon him, yet could not be prevailed with to remain with the Body in the Field, but with his Foot wrapped up he mounted on Horſeback, led on his Men in the greateſt Danger, and was one of the firſt in all this Action.

Both ſides did their part with much Valour and Reſolution, and there was ſcarce any Action in the former War more deſperate and hazardous, and better perform'd than this was.

This Day the Box Money in Chancery came to twenty ſeven Pounds.

3. Letters from the General of the Defeat of the Kentiſh Men at Maidſtone, and that they had ſince quitted Rocheſter, and the General was poſſeſſed of it, and that the Women of the Town were ſo much enraged againſt the Cavaliers, for leading their Husbands into ruin, that they were ready to have beaten them out of the Town.

Goring. That ſince the quitting of Rocheſter, the Countrymen leave the Field apace, and return home, that ſome Thouſands of their Forces, Horſe and Foot, with Goring in the Head of them, took their March towards London, thinking a great part of the City would join with them, that the General ſent five hundred Horſe to purſue them.

Order for Thankſgiving to God for this Victory, and the Meſſengers that brought the News from the General had good Gratuities given them.

London. Letters came from the Kentiſh Men to the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council of London, deſiring Aſſiſtance and Aſſociation with them, but the City would do nothing thereupon, but acquainted the Parliament with the Letters.

Thereupon the Houſe order'd, That they ſhould have Thanks for communicating theſe Letters, and for not doing any thing in anſwer or ſatisfaction thereof.

11 Members, &c. diſcharg'd. Then the Houſe being in a good Humour, it was moved, That they ſhould conſider of the Eleven Members, and the Aldermen of the City now Priſoners in the Tower, and the Houſe voted the Diſcharge of all of them, the impeached Lords Willoughby, Anno 1648. loughby, &c. the Eleven Members, Hollis, &c. and the three Aldermen.

Order for a Letter of Thanks to the General and his Officers and Soldiers, for their great Service at Maidſtone. Whilſt the Chancery Court was ſitting, there was a Tumult and drawing of Swords in Weſtminſter-hall, which ſome feared had been a new Riſing, but it proved only upon the Arreſt of a Soldier.

Kent. 4. Intelligence came that the Lord Goring and his Company were at Black-Heath, but, ſeeing none of the City came forth to join with them, and the Countrymen divided, and not willing to engage farther, or that Goring ſhould be their General, and a ſmall Party of the Parliament's Horſe coming within ſight of them, the Kentiſh Men were ſtruck with Fear and moſt of them fled, the Parliament's Horſe came on, and took Goring. many Priſoners and much Pillage. Goring with about five hundred of the chief of them, haſted to Greenwich, and thence ferry'd over in Lighters and Boats to Eſſex ſide, and making great haſte, ſome of them did ſwim, and many were drowned. The Sea-men and Water-men that had before joined with them, now ſet upon them, and took many Priſoners and good Pillage.

5. Letters from the General of a full Account of the whole Buſineſs of Kent, and recommending to the Houſe the Widow of Captain Price ſlain in that Service, the Houſe ordered his Arrears to be audited, and allowed two hundred Pounds more to his Widow and Children.

Order for Thanks to the General for his great Service, and that his Letter be printed, that the People may ſee how they are deluded by the malignant Party.

The Ordinance paſſed for ſettling the Militia of Cornwall and Devon.

Vote. The Houſe voted the Lord Goring to be a Rebel for raiſing Forces in Kent and in Eſſex againſt the Parliament, and referred to the Committee of the North to continue ſuch Garriſons as they think fit. Goring prevailed with a Party in Eſſex to join with him; they quartered at Bowe, and Colonel Whaley with a Party of the Parliament's Horſe, at Mile-end, ſome Skirmiſhes were between their Scouts. The Houſes paſſed an Act of Indemnity for all of them (except Goring, and ſome few others) if they forthwith lay down Arms, and the Act was ſent down to them.

Indemnity.

Scotland. Letters from Scotland of great Diſtractions among them, and Difficulties to raiſe their Army; which the Clergy oppoſed, and Mr. Gilleſpie preached to be againſt the Covenant.

Letters from Newcaſtle of the Preparations in Scotland (if their Differences hinder not) for an Army's coming into England, that Berwick and Carliſle are ſupply'd with Arms, and other things from thence, that the Scots in Ireland are expected, and Money ſent to fetch them, that Langdale's Forces were about eight thouſand, and no Relief from the Parliament of England to their Party.

6. About twenty of the King's Party came with Corn, and Frocks over their Cloths, pretending to ſupply Pontefract Caſtle, and having Arms under their Frocks, they ſeized upon the main Guard, part of whom they had corrupted, and another Party of the King's lying in Ambuſcado near hand, entred and ſurprized the Caſtle. The Houſe referred it to the Committee of Derby Houſe to conſider of the ſpeedy ſending ſome of the Forces in Wales to the Northern Parts.

Pontefract Caſtle ſurprized.

Spaniſh Ambaſſador. Upon Information from the Militia of London, that the Spaniſh Ambaſſador here, by reaſon of ſome Victories lately obtained in Spain, had appointed Bonfires to be made, which would occaſion great Confluence of Malignants and Tumults, the Houſe ſent to deſire the Ambaſſador to forbear the ſame in theſe tumultuous Times, till the Peace of the Kingdom ſhould be better ſettled. 24 Car.

Order for the Garriſon of Liverpool to be taken into Pay.

The Lords concurred in the Diſcharge of the ſeven impeached Lords, the eleven Members, and the three Aldermen in London.

An Ordinance committed for the ſequeſtring the Eſtates of Powell, Langherne and Poyer, and proceeding againſt them as Delinquents. The General ſent Colonel Rich to raiſe the Siege at Dover.

Letters from Wales, that Overton's Regiment and part of Sir W. Conſtable's Regiment commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Reade, ſtormed the Suburbs of Tenby, took twenty Horſe, and killed ſome; that about a Week after that, the Town and Caſtle were ſurrendred upon Mercy to the Parliament.

That the Townſmen ſeeing nothing but ruin, brought the deſperate Officers and Country Gentlemen to a Compliance, although they had ſufficient Proviſion, three hundred Soldiers, thirty five Guns mounted, and twelve Barrels of Powder.

That Pembroke Town and Caſtle was beſieged by Lieutenant General Cromwell, that Poyer had in the Caſtle three hundred Horſe, and many Foot.

That the Lion, a Ship of the Parliament's, riding in Milford Haven, ſent to Cromwell two Drakes, two Demy Culverins, and two whole Culverins, that when two of them were planted, and ſhot off againſt the Caſtle, at the ſame time the Parliament's Soldiers ſtormed a Village under the South Gate of the Town, of great Advantage to the Beſiegers.

Which Poyer perceiving, pulled in his red Flag. That the Horſe in the Town made deſperate Sallies, but were beaten back with Loſs on both ſides, they deſired to come out, but it would not be granted but upon Mercy, that they had no Graſs for their Horſes, but pulled off the Thatch from the Houſes for them; they gave no Quarter to the Parliament's Dragoons, nor the Dragoons to them.

7. The Aſſembly of Divines preſented to the Houſe a congratulatory Letter, from the Aſſembly here to the Aſſembly in Scotland, to ſtrengthen the Amity and Union of both Kingdoms, which the Houſe approved. Aſſembly of Divines.

Order to forbid the making of Reading a Garriſon, or any other Town in Barkſhire without leave from the Parliament.

A Paſs from both Houſes to Prince Philip to return with twelve Horſes beyond Seas.

Upon a Petition of the Inhabitants of Weſtminſter, Mr. Glyn who ſerved for them was readmitted a Member of the Houſe.

Order for ſecuring Newport-Pagnel.

Intelligence, that the Malignants were up in Lincolnſhire under Colonel Dr. Hudſon, and Colonel Stiles.

Letters that Colonel Rich had relieved Dover Caſtle, and that Sir Richard Hardreſſe who beſieged it with two thouſand Men, and had taken the Block Houſes, Ordnance, and Ammunition, fled upon the Approach of Colonel Rich and Sir Miles Liveſy, who were poſſeſſed of the Town, Block-Houſes, and all their Quarters and Ordnance, and Colonel Rich in purſuit of Sir Richard Hardreſs. Dover Caſtle.

Anno 1648. Goring.

Letters from Eſſex, that the Parliament's Commiſſioners having publiſhed the Indemnity at Bowe, Sir William Hickes, and divers other Gentlemen ſubmitted, and the Lord Goring retreated, but Sir Charles Lucas perſuaded them not to lay down Arms, but to continue in a Body; and that they had ſeized upon Sir William Hickes, and other Gentlemen, and plundered ſome, to the diſcontent of the Inhabitans.

The General ſent ſome additional Forces to Colonel Whaley, by direction of the Houſe, and that he ſhould preſently fall on the Eſſex Men. And the Members of Norfolk and Suffolk had Inſtructions from the Committee of Derby Houſe, for preſervation of the Peace of thoſe Counties.

Jerſey. Letters from Jerſey of cruel Oppreſſions and Tyranny by Cartwright the Governor there, and ſolliciting for relief.

C. Waite. 8. Letters from Colonel Waite, that he had fallen upon thoſe who made an Inſurrection at Stamford, had killed their Commander Dr. Hudſon, and others, and taken many of them Priſoners, but diſcharged the Countrymen.

The Houſe approved what he had done, and ordered him Thanks for it, and that the General ſhould ſend him a Commiſſion of Marſhal Law to try the Priſoners.

Referred to a Committee to take order for tranſporting beyond Sea ſome of the Priſoners taken in Kent and Eſſex, except ſuch as had formerly ſerved the Parliament, and revolted from them, and thoſe to be tried by Marſhal Law.

Referred to the Maſter and Wardens of the Watermen, to find out and disfranchiſe ſuch Watermen as had joined with the Rebels in Kent and Eſſex, and the like for the London Apprentices.

Order for the Militia to put in execution the Ordinance for putting Papiſts, and Delinquents out of the Lines.

Letters from the Navy that the Ships at Portſmouth ſubmitted to the Earl of Warwick, and reſolved to be for the Parliament.

9. Intelligence that the Lord Capell was very active in Hertfordſhire to raiſe a Body for the King, referred to the Committee of Derby Houſe to take ſpeedy Order to ſuppreſs them.

A Petition from the County of Suſſex, anſwered with Courteſy.

Wales. 10. Letters from North-Wales, that Colonel Garter, and Lieutenant Colonel Twiſſelden with the aſſiſtance of thirty Horſe and ſeventy Foot from Cheſter, intending to join with Colonel Maſon, and Colonel Mitton, who were in Caernarvon Caſtle, marched towards them; but Sir Jo. Owen, to prevent their joining, drew off from his Siege of Caernarvon with an hundred and fifty Horſe, and an hundred and twenty Foot, and met Colonel Carter upon his March.

The Forlorns of both Parties encountred, and the Parliament's Horſe were forced to a diſorderly Retreat, the Enemy purſued with their whole Body, upon the Reſerve of the Parliament's, who received their Charge, and after a hot Diſpute routed them.

Captain Taylor ſingly encountring Sir John Owen, after he had broken his Sword upon his Head, cloſed with him, diſmounted him, and took him Priſoner, and his Party immediatly fled.

There were killed of them thirty, and Sir John Owen with divers others of Quality, and ſixty private Soldiers taken Priſoners, four of the Parliament's Soldiers were ſlain and divers wounded, and many Horſes killed on each ſide.

Order for two hundred Pounds for Captain Taylor, and Gratuities for divers others; and for diſpoſing of the Priſoners. 24 Car.

Letters of an Agreement betwixt the General and the Kentiſhmen, and that the five revolted Ships are willing to ſubmit, upon an Act of Indemnity, which the General hath promiſed them.

Goring. That Sir Thomas Peyton was taken Priſoner at St. Edmonds Bury, the Lord Goring, Sir Charles Lucas, and the Lord Capell coming to them, increaſed in numbers in Eſſex; whereupon the Lord General Fairfax advanced to Graveſend, intending to paſs over his Men there into Eſſex.

12. Order upon Letters from the Governor of Newcaſtle for fifteen hundred Pounds for that Garriſon, and that no free Quarter ſhould be taken, but only of ſuch as refuſe to pay their Aſſeſſments, and Letters thereof to be written to the Committees.

Duke of Glouceſter. Order for thoſe Gentlemen who formerly attended the Duke of York to attend the Duke of Glouceſter, and four more added to them, and two thouſand five hundred Pounds per Annum, for maintenance of his Family.

Letters from Colonel Sir Hardreſſe Waller of his diſarming ſome in Exeter. Major General Lambert advanced to Langdale, who retreated expecting Aſſiſtance from Scotland.

A Soldier of Hemſley Caſtle was offered a hundred Pounds in hand, and five hundred Pounds more, and to be knighted, if he would betray the Caſtle to the King's Forces; but he diſcovered the Plot, and the Agents were apprehended.

Pontefract Caſtle was beſieged by eight hundred Horſe and Foot, but at a diſtance; the King's Party there being two hundred and fifty Horſe and four hundred Foot.

Lancaſhire. The Committee of Lancaſhire ordered four Regiments of Foot, and two of Horſe to join with Major General Lambert, laid an Aſſeſſment of three thouſand Pounds to advance them, and kept a Day of Faſt to pray to God for his Bleſſing upon them.

13. The Houſe approved of the Articles of Canterbury, and what the General had done in reducing of Kent.

A Day of Thankſgiving appointed, for the good Succeſs in Kent, and a Narrative thereof to be read in Churches.

Orders touching Compoſitions of Delinquents.

A Report made of a Deſign to ſurprize Nottingham Caſtle, but the Governor Captain Poulton ſurprized and took Priſoners the Complotters.

Letters from the head Quarters, that Ireton, Rich and Hewſon's Regiments had reduced Canterbury (wherein were three thouſand Arms, good Horſe, and twenty four Colours) and the other Caſtles.

Revolted Ships. The General ſent by Letter an Offer of Indemnity to ſome revolted Ships at Deal, but a Boſon told the Trumpeter that brought the Letter, that they did not owe the Parliament ſo much Service, as to write Anſwer to any that came from them, and ſo the Ships ſet ſail and went away.

Eſſex. That the General put over his Forces with much trouble at Graveſend into Eſſex, where Colonel Whaley, and Sir Thomas Honywood with two thouſand Horſe and Foot of the Country, joined with him, who kept many from going to the King's Party.

Among others, fourſcore Horſe out of London, moſt or all Gentlemen (intending to be as a Guard to the Prince of Wales, when he came) in their March were met with ſome of Whaley's Horſe, many Anno 1648. many of them killed and taken, the reſt diſperſed; among them were four Brothers, three of whom were killed or mortally wounded, and the Countrymen took many Priſoners.

That Goring marcheth about four thouſand, whereof ſix hundred Horſe, and about two thouſand five hundred are well armed, that he touched at Lee's, and took Horſes, Guns and Arms of the Earl of Warwick's, and marched from thence toward Colcheſter.

That many of Eſſex came in to the General, who wrote to Suffolk to pull up Bridges, and cut down Trees in the way, to hinder the March of the Enemy.

I reported to the Houſe the appointment of the Judges for the next Summer Circuit.

14. Order for the Trial of Sir John Owen, and the reſt of the chief Actors in his Buſineſs.

An Ordinance paſt for forty two thouſand Pounds, for Arrears of disbanded Officers and Soldiers.

Order renewed, That ſuch as ſhall take up Arms without the Authority of Parliament ſhall die without Mercy.

Revolted Ships. A Letter ordered to the States of Holland for apprehending three revolted Ships gone for Holland, and an Order for Payment of part of their Arrears to others of the revolted Ships that were come in again upon the Act of Indemnity.

A Committee appointed to draw up a Declaration touching the Buſineſs of Kent.

15. Ordered, That the Committee of Goldſmiths-Hall do print all their Receipts for Compoſitions, and how the Monies have been disburſed, That the Aſperſion upon the Parliament may be cleared, of their receiving many Millions by Compoſitions, for which they could give no Account. And that the Order ſhould be printed, that none ſhall pay their fifth, and twentieth part, but Delinquents.

Aſperſion on the Parliament.

An additional Ordinance committed for putting Papiſts and Delinquents out of the Lines of Communication.

An Ordinance tranſmitted to the Lords, for putting the County of Radnor into a poſture of Defence.

A Committee appointed to take order for twenty Perſons of the King's Party to be apprehended, and ſent down to the General to be kept in like harſh uſage, as Sir William Maſham, and others ſent down by the Parliament are kept in, by the Lord Goring, until they be exchanged.

Goring.

Orders concerning Saltpetre.

16. Ordinance paſt for putting Papiſts and Delinquents out of the Lines of Communication, and twenty Miles from London, and four Days time given them to depart the Town; and that Delinquents who have not preſented their Compoſitions, and ſequeſtred Miniſters ſhall be taken to be within this Ordinance.

An Affront to Sir Henry Mildmay by a Footman of the Duke's referred to a Committee to be examined.

Colcheſter Letters from Colcheſter, That the great ones had a purpoſe to eſcape, had ſhipped their Goods, but were prevented by the Parliament's Horſe and Dragoons, who took in Marſey Iſland and Fort, by which they intended to eſcape, and by Land their Body cannot ſtir.

That many of the Townſmen came away to the General, whoſe Soldiers are enraged againſt thoſe of Colcheſter, for the loſs of their Commanders. That the General hath five hundred Priſoners, moſt of them taken from the Gates of the City, that Sir William Maſham and the reſt of the Committee are detained Priſoners by Goring.

That the Enemy buried ſixty of their ſlain Men in one Churchyard, beſides thoſe killed in the other part of the Town, and many of them wounded; that Sir William Campion, Colonel Cooke, two Majors, and other Officers were ſlain, many of Quality wounded, and many of the Trained Bands, whom the General releaſed. 24 Car.

They ſay that Colonel Farre Lieutenant Colonel to the Earl of Warwick, led them out into the Field, and into Mr. Grimſton's Houſe, and when he and the Men fled, being galled by the Parliament's Muſquetiers, he got to the Gate, and cauſed it to be ſhut, and left his Men to be cut in Pieces by the Parliament Soldiers, if they had not been more merciful.

That the General cloſely beleaguers the Town, his Train being come up to him, but intends, if poſſible, to preſerve the Town from Fire and Plunder. That Sir Bernard Scudamore, Colonel Stewart and Colonel Thorneton, were taken at Newmarket raiſing Forces for the King.

That the Trumpet ſent by the General into the Town, to ſee in what condition Sir William Maſham, and the other Gentlemen Priſoners there were, returned that they were in a reaſonable good Condition.

That Captain Zanchy, who took in Marſey Fort and Iſland, found there two Culverins, two Sacres, and one Drake: and that Captain Peacock, and the Commander of the Ships at Harwich offered their aſſiſtance to the General.

Order for raiſing two Troops of Horſe in Northamptonſhire, and for Money for the Army.

Order about ſettling Miniſters in particular Pariſhes, and for reviving the Committee of Examinations, with Power to ſuppreſs ſcandalous and unlicenſed Pamphlets.

17. Debate that every Officer, before he had his Commiſſion, ſhould take the Covenant, laid aſide.

A Commiſſion to Colonel Herbert to raiſe Forces for the Iſle of Ely.

Vote for a ſtrong Summer's Fleet, for Defence of the Kingdom, and to reduce the revolted Ships, and a Gratuity to be given to the Officers and Mariners of the Fleet.

Orders about levying the Aſſeſſments for the Army.

Letters of the General, ſummoning Colcheſter to render to the Parliament; and that the Lord Goring asked the Trumpet who brought the Summons, how his General did, and bid him tell his General that he heard he was ill of the Gout, but that Goring would cure him of all Diſeaſes: That the Soldiers were highly enraged at this ſcoff to their General. Goring.

It is a miſchief to jeſt and droll in Matters of great and ſerious Conſequence, and at Perſons of Power, to which this Lord Goring was too much addicted, and this little Jeſt upon the General was thought by ſome, to coſt the Lives of many of his Party, and perhaps to have been a fartherance of his own Period.

Jeſts without bitterneſs are pleaſant in familiar friendly Converſation. Upon ſerious and great Matters or Perſons, they are unſeaſonable and often pernicious to the Venter of them.

The Lord Goring, Lord Capel, and Sir Charles Lucas ſent to the General for a Liſt of the Priſoners he had taken of their Party, and the General ſent it to them.

19. Order for Sir Hardreſs Waller to permit no new Forces to be raiſed in Devonſhire and Cornwall, but to make uſe of the Trained Bands there, if there ſhall be occaſion.

Debate

That Lieutenant General Cromwell hath planted his Cannon, and intended the next Day to begin his Battery.

Langdale. Lambert. Letters from the North, that Langdale marching towards Carliſle, Lambert fell upon his Rear, into the Quarters of a Regiment newly raiſed, which he totally diſperſed and brake, that the Officers fled after Langdale, and the Soldiers threw down their Arms, and ran home, ſeeming glad of the Opportunity.

That Lambert's Men purſued another Party of Langdale's, and took ſome Priſoners, that Carliſle was unwilling to receive Langdale's Forces, ſaying they would rather loſe their Lives, than be forced to eat Horſe Fleſh, as they had been before.

Scotland. Letters from Scotland, that an Army will be forthwith raiſed there, that Duke Hamilton goes along General, and hath already ſix thouſand Horſe, Foot, and Dragoons, that Middleton is Major General of the Foot, and the Earl of Kalender Lieutenant General of the Horſe.

That their Parliament have adjourned for two Years, and left a great Power to the Committee who act vigorouſly for the War, ſo that the Chancellor the Lord Wareſton, and others have left them, and are gone to the Earl of Argyle.

That an Act is paſſed for puniſhing all ſuch as preach, or write, or ſpeak, againſt any thing done by the Parliament, or by any Authority derived from them, that Holborne is gone with a thouſand Horſe to fetch in the Earl of Argyle and his Party.

Votes. 20. Both Houſes reciting former Votes paſſed 20 Maii 1642, viz.

1. That it appears, that the King (ſeduced by wicked Counſel) intends to make War againſt the Parliament, who in all their Conſultations and Actions have propoſed no other end to themſelves, but the care of the Kingdoms, and the performance of all Duty and Loyalty to his Perſon.

2. That whenſoever the King maketh War upon the Parliament, it is a Breach of the Truſt repoſed in him by his People, contrary to his Oath, and tending to the diſſolution of this Government.

3. That whoſoever ſhall ſerve and aſſiſt him in ſuch Wars are Traitors by the fundamental Laws of this Kingdom, and have been ſo adjudged by two Acts of Parliament, and ought to ſuffer as Traitors. 24 Car. II. 1 Hen. IV.

The Lords and Commons now Declare, that it appears that divers who have aſſiſted the King in the late War againſt the Parliament, and divers others endeavour to levy a new War againſt the Parliament.

That all ſuch are Traitors, by the fundamental Laws of this Kingdom, and have been ſo adjudged by the ſaid two Acts of Parliament.

And they ordered, that theſe Votes be printed and publiſhed by the Sheriffs in every Market Town, and by the Judges in their Circuits.

Reference to the Committee of Derby Houſe, to take care for the Safety of the Iſle of Wight both by Land and Sea.

23. Debate touching the Settlement of the Peace of the Kingdom, and a Committee appointed to conſider, how far the Parliament have gone, and what Offers have been made by the King in order thereunto, and what is fit farther to be offered to him, and of the Place, Manner, and Circumſtances relating to this Buſineſs.

A Queſtion was propoſed but not paſſed, whether the King ſhould be removed from Carisbrook Caſtle to Windſor Caſtle, in order to a perſonal Treaty with both Kingdoms.

Order for printing a Letter of Colonel Hamond's, and a Charge by one Osborn againſt him, and Captain Rolfe.

Order for the Houſe to adjourn from every Friday till Tueſday after.

Colcheſter Letters from the Leaguer before Colcheſter, that thirty Horſe and forty Foot ſallied out of the Town to diſcover the new Work that the General was making, and were beaten back by fourteen of the Parliament's Muſquetiers, and that ſix Foot Soldiers went over the River, and brought away ſix Cows within Piſtol-ſhot of the main Work of the Town, that ſome Men were killed by the Cannon on both Sides.

That the Suffolk Forces not being come up to the Leaguer, the Enemy had free Paſſage to Sir Harbottle Grimſton's Houſe at Bradfield Hall, where they placed two hundred Muſquetiers, and two Troops of Horſe, and they ſent a Summons to the Suffolk Forces at Cattaway Bridge. 24 Car.

That by Command of Sir Charles Lucas Commander in chief of his Majeſty's Forces in Eſſex, they deſire to know the poſitive Anſwer of the Suffolk Men, Whether they will declare themſelves Enemies or not to thoſe in Colcheſter, who are come to preſerve the Hundred from plunder, and not to act any thing againſt thoſe of Suffolk, if they declare either to be Friends or Neuters, and their Intention to be only to ſecure their own County.

The General publiſhed a Proclamation, that whereas he had offered Liberty to all private Soldiers laying down their Arms, and leaving the Party in Colcheſter, to depart to their private Homes, and to be free from any Violence of the Soldiers; with Conditions to Perſons of other Quality: He commands all his Officers and Soldiers to permit them ſo to do.

Some were full of Fears of Tumults, to-morrow being Midſummer-day.

24. Letters from Colcheſter Leaguer, that the Weather being extreme wet, ſome began to ſally out of the Town; but the Parliament's Soldiers, and thoſe of the Trained Bands notwithſtanding the wet, ſtood to their Arms, with ſo much readineſs and cheerfulneſs, that the Cavaliers went in again.

That the Suffolk Forces made ſome ſcruple of marching out of their own County, that the Party in Sir Harbottle Grimſton's Houſe plundered it, and turned out his Lady.

That the Suffolk Forces were come up to the Leaguer before Colcheſter, two thouſand Foot and five Troops of Horſe, and had intrenched themſelves before the Eaſt-gate, and left a competent Force to ſecure Cattaway Bridge and other Bridges behind them.

This Midſummer-day was quieter than was expected.

26. Both Houſes agreed upon a Committee to conſider of the Manner, and Place of Treaty with his Majeſty for ſettling the Peace of the Kingdom.

Vote that the Election of Mr. Mildmay was void, and Sir John Clotworthy to be re-admitted a Member of the Houſe.

A Note was ſent to Dr. Burges in his Pulpit, deſiring him to give thanks to God, for preſerving his Majeſty from poiſoning, and to pray for the Forces under the Earl of Norwich, the Lord Capel, and Sir Marmaduke Langdale. Pulpit.

Order that the Militia of London do ſend for the Parties whoſe Names were ſubſcribed to this Note; and that Biſhop Wren, and Mr. Capel the Lord Capel's Son be added to thoſe, who are to be ſent Priſoners to his Excellency, and to be exchanged for, or uſed as the Committee of Eſſex in reſtraint with the Lord Goring are.

Northern Letters, that Major General Lambert hath retaken Appleby Caſtle, and Greyſtock Caſtle, and ſome Arms and Ammunition, that the Lancaſhire Forces one Regiment of good Horſe, and two Regiments of Foot are joined with him, that they advanced eight thouſand Horſe and Foot againſt Langdale who retreated to Carliſle, and avoided fighting, but ſent eight Troops of Horſe, whereof two were Gentlemen excellently mounted, towards Berwick, and their Motions were attended by Colonel George Fenwick, and Mr. Sanderſon.

That

Anno 1648.

Scotland.

That the Scots are daily expected. by Langdale, but many of the contrary Party both Scots and Engliſh fly into England, and affirm, that the Prince is expected in Scotland, that great Violence is uſed towards all that will not adhere to the new War. Some Miniſters executed, more impriſoned, all to be ſecured and their Goods confiſcated who oppoſe this War, that there are great Diſtractions, and Feuds among them.

Colcheſter.

A Petition from the Inhabitants of Colcheſter; and a Letter from the Lord Goring in their behalf was brought to the General, that Liberty might be granted to the Bay and Say-makers, in that Town, to have a free Trade with London during the Siege.

Fairfax.

The General anſwered, That they ſhould have conſidered this, and divers other Inconveniences of War before they had admitted the Forces now in their Town. He recites the former ſubduing of the Parliament's Enemies, and the quiet and free Trade thereby enjoyed by that Town, and all the Kingdom, till this new War.

That the preſent Interruption of their Trade is brought upon them not by his Default, but by thoſe whom the Town hath harboured, and the Townſmen, and that to grant Liberty of Trade to Perſons beſieged, ſo much Advantage to them, and Prejudice to the Beſiegers, is ſuch a Motion as was never yet granted.

That their hopefulleſt Way to a free Trade will be to attend to a Reſtitution of the Town and County, to the condition they were in before theſe Forces were among them, and as in order thereto, he offer'd fair Conditions in a Letter to the Lord Goring, Lord Capell and Sir Charles Lucas (though perhaps concealed from the Town) though they be rejected by them, yet that he ſhall be ready to make good the ſame to all that ſhall timely embrace them, except thoſe three Perſons themſelves.

That in the mean time, there are with him ſundry Gentlemen of Quality, and Townſmen of good Eſtates, and eminent in Trade, who offer to buy all the Bayes and Sayes in the Town at the uſual Prices, and to pay for them within a fortnight after the Town ſhall be rendred, or quitted to him.

And that though it be without Example to a beſieged Town, yet he will give leave for their Commodities to be brought to a Heath near the Town, to be bargained, or returned back as there ſhall be occaſion.

A Trumpet came from the Lord Capell to deſire the General that an Agent of the Bay and Say-makers of the Town might come and treat with his Excellency about their free Trade.

The Lord Capell's Trumpeter, and Colonel Peyton's Trumpeter and divers Soldiers came from the Enemy to the General, according to his Proclamation.

The Lord Goring to keep up the Spirits of his Party, when they asked, What the General's Trumpet came ſo often about to them, he anſwered, that it was for a Treaty, and that the General offered fifty thouſand Pounds to the Lord Goring to permit him quietly to draw off with his Army.

We had a very great Seal, and ſat from eight a Clock in the Morning till eight a Clock in the Evening, before we could hear all the Motions; only we reſted an Hour at Noon.

27. A Petition from the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council of London to both Houſes of Parliament.

London Petition.

That a perſonal Treaty may be had between his Majeſty and both Houſes of Parliament, in London, or ſome other convenient Place, to which Treaty our Brethren of Scotland may be invited, that ſo according to our Allegiance, and the Covenant, his Majeſty's Royal Perſon, Honour, and Eſtate may be preſerved, the Power and Privilege of Parliament maintained, the juſt Rights and Liberties of the Subject reſtored, Religion, and Church Government in Purity eſtabliſhed, all Differences compoſed, and a firm and laſting Peace concluded. 24 Car.

The Lords gave the Petitioners Thanks for the Continuance of their good Affections, and Inclinations to Peace. Anſwer.

The Houſe of Commons related to them what they had done, and the Committee they had appointed in order to ſettlement of the Peace of the Kingdom, and gave them Thanks for their good Affections.

Additional Ordinances paſſed for the Militias of Weſtminſter, and for York.

Colcheſter.

Some of the Forces in Colcheſter were drawn out into the Orchards and Cloſes under their Works, the Parliament's Foot went preſently into the Field, beat the Enemy into their Guards, and made thoſe run that kept the Guard, took their Hour-glaſs, ſet their Guard-houſe on fire, killed two, and brought one Cook of Greenwich away Priſoner.

The Enemy quitted Sir Harbottle Grimſton's Houſe, and retreated to the Lord Banning's Houſe.

The Tower Regiment marched over the new Bridge, and intrenched themſelves about the North-gate.

Colonel Whaly with ſome Horſe fired the Enemy's Wind-mills.

28. The monthly Faſt-day.

Letters from Colcheſter Leaguer, that the Suffolk Forces fell upon the Enemy, killed two, and took twenty Priſoners, whereof eight Kentiſh Men, and two London Apprentices, who had chewed Bullets rolled in Sand in their Pockets, contrary to the Law of Arms, that Colonel Needham was ſlain with ſuch a Shot.

That the ſame Day, thirty of the Parliaments Horſe fell upon two Troops of the Enemy, killed two, and wounded many, that the Enemy ſuſpecting a Battery, ſallied out in the Night, with a hundred Horſe in a full Career, thinking to ſurprize ſome of the Beſiegers, but failing, they advanced in a ſwift March to the Horſe-guards, came within the Centries, and charged Piſtols.

That the main Guard beat them back to the Hedges, which they had lined with Muſquetiers, but little hurt was done on either ſide.

Intelligence came, that the Enemy from Pontfract had poſſeſſed themſelves of Axcombe Iſland near Trent.

Petitions.

29. A Petition from the younger Brothers of Trinity Houſe, another from the Commanders, Maſters, and Mariners of the Shipping belonging to the River of Thames, and a third Petition from the Maſter, Warden, and Fellows of Trinity Houſe, all for the perſonal Treaty with the King, were preſented to the Houſe, and a Committee appointed to draw up an Anſwer to them.

Order for a Month's Pay, for the Lancaſhire Forces, and for the Thanks of the Houſe to Colonel Aſhton their Commander.

Upon Information of an Inſurrection in Suſſex, referred to the Committee of Derby Houſe to take courſe for the ſubduing of them.

Upon Letters from the General, ordered, that the Committee of the Army take care ſpeedily to ſend down to the Army, Proviſions, and other Neceſſaries which they want.

An Ordinance to impower the Committee of Eſſex to raiſe Money for Payment of the Forces in their County now raiſed.

Order for Security of their Arrears, to thoſe Officers and Soldiers who came off from the Army, for the Service of Ireland.

Anno 1648. Order for ſix hundred Pounds for victualling the Fort and Caſtle of Cheſter, and that the late Actors in a Deſign there be tried by Marſhal Law.

Letters from Colcheſter Leaguer, that the Enemy is debarred from all manner of Proviſions, that a Party of the Suffolk Forces from Cattaway Bridge, took ten Troopers of the Enemy plundering, and afterwards went to Sir Harbottle Grimſton's Houſe, which they found miſerably ruined, and all the Goods taken away and torn.

30. Upon a Report from the Committee for the Buſineſs of the perſonal Treaty the Lords agreed to theſe Votes.

Votes. 1. That the Vote of January 3, 1647, forbidding any Addreſſes to be made to, or received from his Majeſty, ſhould be made null.

2. That the three Propoſitions ſent into Scotland and to be preſented to his Majeſty before a perſonal Treaty be had, ſhould not be inſiſted upon, and that his Majeſty be removed to ſome of his Houſes within ten Miles of London, to which the Lords deſired the Commons Concurrence.

Petition. The Lords recommended to the Commons the Petition of the Lady Capell, that ſhe may have her eldeſt Son again, who is one of thoſe ſent down to the General to be uſed in the ſame manner as the Committee are, under reſtraint by the Lord Goring.

Lady Capell. The Houſe ordered a Letter to be ſent to the General with the Lady Capell's Petition incloſed, and that the General be deſired to do therein as may ſtand with the Juſtice and Honour of the Parliament.

Mr. Dowſett upon a Meſſage from the Lords, was ordered to attend that Houſe, in the Buſineſs of Mr. Rolfe who was committed.

Order for the Committees of Suſſex, and of Worceſterſhire, to raiſe Forces, for ſuppreſſing Inſurrections, and preſerving the Peace of thoſe Counties.

The Ordinance paſſed for Payment of the Forces of Eſſex, and another for ten thouſand Pounds for Briſtol.

Debate upon the Ordinance touching Religion.

Colcheſter. Letters from Colcheſter Leaguer, that the Enemy plaid with their great Guns, but did no hurt, by reaſon of the deepneſs of the Trenches: then they fell to annoy the Beſiegers with ſmall Shot out of Mr. Grimſton's Houſe, but the General's great Cannon ſhooting through and through the Houſe, cutting off the Legs and Arms of many of them, they fled into the Town, and ſet that, and other Houſes with it, on fire.

That the Enemy ſallied out on the other ſide towards Suffolk, which the Parliament's Horſe diſcovering they lined the Hedges with Dragoons, and went on with a Party of Horſe as if they had meant to charge, and then faced about as running away from the Enemy, who purſued them to the Place where the Dragoons were, who did ſo gall them with Shot that they retreated, leaving ſome ſlain, and others deſperately wounded.

That the next Morning they ſallied out again with three Troops of Horſe, five hundred Foot, and a Drake, but the Parliament's Foot coming up too late to them they brought away ſome Cattle, and killed Mr. Sandford, tho' their Friend, the owner of them. This is an experimental Argument of the Miſery of Civil War. The barbarous common Soldier will know no diſtinction between Friends and Foes, either's Goods come alike to their Rapine, and upon an haſty Word they no more regard the Blood of a Friend than of an Enemy; and ſo it was with Mr. Sandford.

A Captain taken Priſoner near Harwich.

Captain Brown came from the North to the General with Intelligence that the Enemy had quitted the Iſle of Axholme. 24 Car.

July, 1648.

July 1. Debate upon the Report, That the three Bills ſent into Scotland ſhould not be inſiſted upon, &c. ordered to be reſumed to morrow, and all the Members to attend.

Vote to approve what the Lord Grey of Groby, and Captain Temple had done, in raiſing a conſiderable Body of Forces in Leiceſterſhire, and commanding them.

Order for Committees to go down into the ſeveral Counties to take care for raiſing Monies for the Forces before Colcheſter, and in Eſſex.

The like Ordinance paſſed for Suſſex.

Letters from Colcheſter Leaguer, that thoſe in the Town are ſo block'd up, that they cannot get Proviſions, that the Works are near finiſhed, and that the Beſiegers Perdu's lie ſo near the Enemy, that they can hear them diſcourſe, drink Healths, &c. Colcheſter.

The General ſent to offer an Exchange of the Lord Capell's Son, for Sir William Maſham, and two Affidavits that by the Earl of Norwich's, and the Officers Directions, their Soldiers had chewed Bullets, and caſt in Sand, delivered to them out of their Stores, which being contrary to the Law of Arms, the General required that the ſame might be forborn for the future.

Concerning the Lord Capell's Son, the Lord Goring returned Anſwer, That he conceived it inhumane, and that if all the Committee had been offered for him, he would have diſdained the Motion, and that he joyed to ſee any of his (if no other way) yet by their Sufferings, to pay the Duty they owe to the King and known Laws. Goring.

To that concerning Bullets all the three Generals denied any ſuch Command or Practice, but for rough caſt Slugs they were the beſt they could ſend on the ſudden.

3. A long Debate, whether the three Bills, viz.

1. For ſettling the Presbyterian Government for three Years. The three Bills.

2. For recalling Declarations, and Proclamations againſt the Parliament.

3. For ſettling the Militia in the Parliament, ſhall be ſent as Propoſitions, to which his Majeſty is to give his Approbation by ſubſcribing his hand, before a Treaty, and to give Aſſurance to paſs them into Acts, ſo ſoon as he ſhall come to London, and ſit in Parliament. It was carried by Vote in the Affirmative.

Upon Information, that the King's Party were liſting of Men in London, and ſome of them who were apprehended for it, were reſcued, the Houſe for the better guarding and ſecuring themſelves and the City, ordered five thouſand Pounds for raiſing a new Regiment of Horſe, to be under the Command of Major General Skippon, and declared it an acceptable Service in ſuch as would ſend in Horſe or Arms for that purpoſe.

An Ordinance paſt for raiſing fourteen thouſand Pounds, out of the Eſtates of Delinquents, in Kent and Eſſex.

Letters from the North, That the King's Party from Pontefract came to Lincoln, where, and in their March, they plundered the Parliament's Friends, took Captain Bret, Captain Fines, and Mr. Ellis Priſoners, and killed Mr. Smith an Officer of the Sequeſtrations. Pontefract

4. The Houſe voted, That before a Treaty be concluded, all juſt Debts to ſuch as have adhered to the Parliament be paid or ſecured. Vote.

Referred

Anno 1648. Referred to the Committee of Derby Houſe to make Farnham Caſtle indefenſible; and to ſecure Sterborough Caſtle, Rygate, Martin Abby, and all other Places of ſtrength in Surrey.

Colonel Lilburne. Letters from Lancaſhire, that Colonel Lilburne with a Party of ſix hundred Horſe, engaged againſt Sir Richard Tempeſt with a thouſand Horſe, and after a hot diſpute, ſix hundred of the Enemy's Horſe were taken, and three hundred Priſoners, of whom many Knights and Gentlemen.

Letters from the Navy, that Sir George Aiſcough came in with the Parliament's Ship, the Lion, declaring againſt the revolted Ships.

Pembroke Letters from Pembroke Leaguer, That a hundred and twenty in the Town laid down their Arms, and Poyer and Langherne told them, that if Relief came not within five Days they ſhould hang them, that they have only Rain Water, and a little Bisket left, that Cromwell ſhot Stones into the Town with Morter Pieces, which killed divers.

Letters from Colonel Jones, that he had received fifty thouſand Pounds which was deſigned for Munſter, three thouſand three hundred ninety two Pounds from London, ſix thouſand Suits, and of all ſorts of Grain, ſix thouſand five hundred ſeventy one Barrels: That the Scots ſeek to entice away his Soldiers.

Colcheſter. Letters from Colcheſter Leaguer, that their great Guns and Carriages were come to the Beſiegers, that many deſert the Enemy, that divers of their Wives came out of the Town, but were turned back again, that the Wives of the Parliament's Friends were not ſuffer'd to come forth.

That when ſome of the Town complained for want of Victuals, the Lord Goring told them, They muſt not complain till Horſe-fleſh were at ten Shillings a Pound; that they have twenty Pieces of Ordnance, and two hundred Barrels of Powder, but want great Shot.

London Petition. 5. A Petition from the Common-Council of London, with another from the common Officers of the Trained Bands praying,

1. THat the Militia of London, and of the adjacent Parts, may be ſettled in one Committee, and if any Perſons be added to the Committee, that they may be ſuch as have no Places of Profit, which depend upon the War, or have ſhewed themſelves diſaffected to the Ends of the Covenant.

2. That the King may be brought to London, with Freedom, Honour, and Safety to treat with his Parliament for ſettling a ſafe and well grounded Peace.

3. That the Militia may have Power, if need be, to raiſe Horſe for the defence of the King, Parliament and City.

Anſwer. The Lords granted the Deſires of the Petitioners in confidence that the City will be careful to make good that great Engagement now made for ſecuring his Majeſty's Perſon, and the Parliament from Tumults, Mutinies, and Diſorders; and that they will adhere to live and die in defence of the King and Parliament, according to the Covenant.

The Houſe of Commons told the Petitioners, that they had agreed to the joining of the Militias.

A Petition from eighty Seamen, Maſters of Ships, &c. offering their Service for the reducing of the revolted Ships; the Petitioners had Thanks, and the Petition referred to a Committee.

Haſelrigge Letters from Sir Arthur Haſelrigge confirming the Victory obtained by Colonel Lilburne, Colonel Fenwick, and Mr. Sanderſon againſt Sir Richard Tempeſt, without the loſs of one Man. The Liſt of the Commanders, and Gentlemen of Quality taken Priſoners, was ſent up to the Parliament. 24 Car.

A publick Thankſgiving ordered for this Victory.

Intelligence came of about five hundred Horſe got together near Kingſton, for the King, the Earl of Holland, the Duke of Buckingham, and the Lord Francis his Brother, in the head of them; that the Earl of Peterborough came in to them, that they ſummoned the Country, expecting great numbers to join with them, and plundered ſome Friends of the Parliament. Duke of Buckingham.

The Commons paſſed ſome Inſtructions for the Security of Whitehall and Lambeth Houſe from the danger of this Party, and appointed Guards on the Thames, at the Ferries and Watering-places, to ſtop all ſuſpicious Perſons which might paſs that way.

The Committee of Derby Houſe made Report of this Buſineſs, and their Opinion, for Subſcriptions of Horſes to be made by the Members of Parliament for ten Days, for defence of the Parliament and City, which the Houſe approved of, and ſubſcribed very freely, ſome two, ſome three, and ſome of them four Horſes.

Order for thoſe Horſe to be put under the command of Colonel Butler, and Quarter-Maſter General Fincher, and they to have a hundred Pounds apiece for a Gratuity, and it was declared an acceptable Service for all who ſhall liſt any Horſes for this Service.

This ſudden, and unexpected, if not raſh Action of the Earl of Holland, and the reſt with him, brought to my Remembrance ſome Diſcourſe which his Lordſhip had with me not long before, when he was pleaſed much to inveigh againſt ſome Proceedings of the Parliament, eſpecially in their backwardneſs to a perſonal Treaty; upon which he ſaid, and truly, That generally Peoples Hearts were ſet, and that he did believe, if a conſiderable Party ſhould ſhew themſelves in Arms for it, that they would ſoon riſe to a great Body, and be able to bring the Parliament to reaſon. Earl of Holland.

I differed from him, and told him, that the Parliament's Army was in a framed Body of old Soldiers, proſperous in their Actions, and well provided of all things neceſſary; and that it would be a raſh and deſperate Attempt for any to imagine to make a head againſt them, and to raiſe a new Body.

That there was no Truſt to be given to Peoples Minds or Promiſes in ſuch Deſigns, who would not ſtir, except they ſaw the Tide turning, and ſome precedent Succeſs, which could not be in this caſe; but thoſe who ſhould adventure upon ſuch a Buſineſs, would certainly be loſt in it.

He argued earneſtly to the contrary, and how honourable, juſt and pious a thing it would be, to reſcue our Country from the Miſery and Slavery they were now under, eſpecially if it were done by thoſe who in the beginning had perhaps too much hand in the bringing of thoſe Straits upon us.

I replied, that it would be worſe in thoſe Men than in any others, for that it would be looked upon in them, as Breach of Faith and Treachery to thoſe who had before intruſted them.

After a long Diſcourſe and Debate on this Point, wherein I expreſſed my ſelf with more than ordinary Diſlike and Earneſtneſs againſt any ſuch Action, his Lordſhip parted from me: Some of his intimate Friends afterwards informed me from the Earl himſelf, that his coming to me at that time was on purpoſe to ſound me, and to try whether I would be perſuaded to join with him, and the reſt of his Complices in this Deſign: That if

Anno 1648. if he had found me approving of it, or inclinable to it, that then he would in plain Terms have broke the Buſineſs to me, and have deſired my Council and Aſſiſtance in it; but finding me averſe to any ſuch thing, in our general Diſcourſes, and my quick Expreſſions againſt thoſe Deſigns, he did then forbear to acquaint me with his farther Intentions.

Order for Forces for Northamptonſhire.

Letters from Colcheſter Leaguer of the great Flood there, which hinders any from eſcaping, and that they are in great want of Victuals in the Town.

A Porter in Soldier's Habit from London got into Colcheſter, and brought them Intelligence that a great Force was coming from London to their Relief.

6. Major General Browne continued one of the Sheriffs of London.

Divers well affected Perſons having raiſed Forces in ſeveral Counties for the Defence thereof, without Authority of Parliament, the Houſe declared the ſame an acceptable Service.

To the end the Kingdom may be ſatisfied of the Endeavours of the Parliament to preſerve the brotherly Love and Union with Scotland, ordered, That all the Tranſactions, Papers and Letters between the Engliſh Commiſſioners and the Parliament of Scotland ſhall be printed.

Ordered that the Horſe lifted under Colonel Butler, and Quarter-Maſter General Fincher, be quartered in the Meuſe.

Colcheſter. Letters from Colcheſter Leaguer, that July the fifth about eight in the Morning the Enemy ſallied out with a thouſand Horſe and three hundred Foot, fell ſuddenly upon the Parliament's Guards, and ſurprized ſome of them, being Country-men, that the reſt retreated from the main Guard.

That Colonel Whaley perceiving the Enemy's Advantage, got with his Horſe between them and home, whilſt the Tower Regiment advanced towards the Front, and routed both Horſe and Foot together, and took about a hundred Priſoners, moſt of them miſerably wounded, the Parliament's Soldiers being the more fierce becauſe of the poiſoned Bullets. That about twenty of the Enemy were ſlain on the Place, moſt of them Gentlemen, as appeared by their Cloths, and their white Skins.

Poiſoned Bullets. That Lieutenant Colonel Weſton, Son to Sir Richard Weſton, and two Captains were taken Priſoners, and the Parliament's Forces regained two Drakes from the Enemy; that Lieutenant Colonel Shambrooke was ſhot in the Body, and the Bullet ſince taken out, appeared to be poiſoned, boiled in Copperas, which much enraged the Parliament's Soldiers.

That Captain Moody who commanded a Troop of the Suffolk Horſe engaging boldly, was taken Priſoner. One Soldier had his Leg ſhot off with a great Bullet, and ſome were wounded.

7. Debate upon the City's Anſwer to the Parliament's Propoſals, what Security the City would give for the Security of his Majeſty's Perſon, and of the Parliament during their Treaty at London, if it ſhould be agreed upon.

The City acquainted the Houſe with a Letter they received laſt night from the Earl of Holland, Duke of Bucks, and Earl of Peterborough, declaring their Intentions to join with the Forces of Suſſex, Surrey and Middleſex, to releaſe and preſerve his Majeſty's Perſon, to bring him to his Parliament, to ſettle Peace in the Kingdom, and to preſerve the known Laws, inviting the City to join with them herein, at leaſt not to be active againſt them. 24 Car.

Upon Debate of this Letter the Houſe voted that the Earl of Holland, Duke of Bucks, and Earl of Peterborough, had levied War againſt the Parliament and Kingdom, and in ſo doing were Traitors, and ought to be proceeded againſt as Traitors, and that the Eſtates of thoſe Lords, and of all that join with them, be ſequeſtred. Vote.

An Ordinance paſſed for fifteen hundred Pounds a Month for Forces in Lincolnſhire.

Letters from Colcheſter Leaguer of the late Victory by the Parliament's Forces there, that the Lord Goring, and Lord Capell, carrying things very high, but Sir Charles Lucas more moderate; that Butter and Cheeſe was at five Shillings a Pound, and that the Soldiers ſeized upon the Meal and Bread, and began to be much diſtaſted by the Towns-men, eſpecially the Women, who began to be in want of Victuals for themſelves and Children. Colcheſter.

8. A Conference of both Houſes about not inſiſting upon the three Bills to be ſent to his Majeſty. Three Bills.

Order for Money for Major General Browne.

A Petition of old Officers and Soldiers of the North commited.

Letters from Colonel Roſſiter, that he met with the Pontefract Forces, upon their Return, after their plundering Voyage, and engaged them at a Place called Willoughby Field, routed their whole Party conſiſting of about a thouſand Horſe, took both Horſe, and their Riders, the Commander in chief, and all his Officers, all their Bag and Baggage, the reſt routed, but not many ſlain, Colonel Roſſiter wounded in the Thigh. Ponte-fract.

The Houſe gave a hundred Pounds to Captain Norwood, who brought the Letters from Colonel Roſſiter.

Letters that the Earl of Holland and his Party marched from Darking with their whole Force to poſſeſs Rygate, but their Deſign was diſappointed by Major Gibbons, and two Troops of Colonel Riche's Horſe entring the Town before. Earl of Holland.

That upon this, the Earl of Holland, and his Party, marched the next way to Kingſton, and were purſued by the Parliament's Horſe, who took ſome Men and Horſe near Nonſuch.

That in the way betwixt Nonſuch and Kingſtone the Earl of Holland drew up and faced Sir Michael Leveſey, and Gibbons, and ſome Parties on both ſides skirmiſhed.

That the Earl of Holland ſent his Foot before to Kingſton, to make good his Retreat thither, that the Forelorns on both ſides fought gallantly, that the Earl was followed violently by Gibbons, and a Cornet of Colonel Riche's Regiment, with their Diviſions, to Kingſton, and routed, but the Foot ſent before, made good their Turn-pike, and the Parliament's Forces did not think fit to enter the Town with them.

That the Parliament's Forces intending a farther Attempt upon the Earl's Men, but they not anſwering the Alarm, the Horſe-guard advanced into the Town, and found it quit of the Enemy, who left near a hundred Horſe in the Town, with their Carriages; and themſelves fled over the Bridge to Harrow on the Hill, whither the Parliament's Forces were in purſuit of them.

That in this Service were about twenty ſlain, the Lord Francis dangerouſly wounded, if not dead, the Earl of Holland ſaid to be ſhot in the Shoulder, Colonel Howard and ſome others of note hurt, about a hundred Priſoners and two hundred Horſe taken, the Earl with about three hundred gone towards St. Albans, purſued by the Parlia-

Anno 1648. Parliament's Forces, with whom Colonel Scroope is coming to join.

Letters from Colcheſter Leaguer, that the Enemy ſhot much from the top of a Church, till the General with his Cannon beat down part of the Church, and then they ceaſed, that the Officers tell their Men, and ſcatter Papers among the Parliament Soldiers, that London appeared for them, that a thouſand Horſe were coming to raiſe the Siege, that the Parliament was broken, and many of the Members cut in pieces.

That in ſome Priſoners Pockets they found ten Slugs done with Sand, and a Trumpet was ſent to the Lord Goring to let him know what his Soldiers muſt expect. That according to a Letter from the Houſe of Lords, the General returned the Lord Capel's Son, that Colonel Scroop is gone with Sir Michael Loveſey againſt the Earl of Holland and his Party.

9. Some Priſoners being brought to Town from the Army, divers Apprentices got together and endeavoured by a Tumult to reſcue them, but it was prevented.

Three Bills. 10. At a Conference the Lords deliver'd Reaſons to the Commons why the three Propoſitions ſhould not be inſiſted on before a Treaty with his Majeſty.

1. That there may be no Delay, a ſpeedy perſonal Treaty being ſo much deſired and petitioned for.

2. Becauſe it is the Deſire of the Parliament of Scotland.

3. The Agreement upon the Treaty will be the more authentick.

4. It's probable having no Army the King will condeſcend to that which at Uxbridge and Oxford he refuſed.

5. It is not the way of Treaties to confirm any before all is agreed, eſpecially what is of greateſt Concernment, and will be chiefly inſiſted upon.

Vote for Mr. Aſhburnham to be offered in exchange for Sir William Maſham.

A Petition in behalf of Mr. Rolfe.

Letters from Wales of a Deſign to betray Denbigh Caſtle prevented.

An Ordinance paſſed for a Troop of Horſe to be raiſed in Surrey, another for Hampſhire, and a third for Caernarvon.

The Vindication of Major General Skippon againſt a ſcandalous Libel, ordered to be poſted up in London.

An Ordinance for the adjacent Parts to be added to the Militia of London, and a Petition againſt it referred to a Committee.

Colonel Roſſiter. Letters of the Victory gained by Colonel Roſſiter, before mentioned, a Liſt of the Priſoners, Officers, and Gentlemen of Quality, about five hundred Priſoners taken, eight Carriages with Arms and Ammunition, Colonel Pocklington and Colonel Cholmley ſlain, with many Officers and Soldiers to the number of about two hundred, all their Bag and Baggage taken.

Letters from Major General Lambert's Quarters, that his Men took near to Carliſle a hundred Priſoners Horſe and Foot, and forty Horſe, that this Alarm in the Night cauſed all the Enemies Forces thereabouts to flie into Carliſle, ſaying they would not fight till the Scots were come in to join with them.

11. A Letter from Colonel Hammond, deſiring that Osborne's Charge againſt Mr. Rolfe, may come to a ſpeedy Hearing, it reflecting ſo highly upon the Army, and upon him, and being an horrid Scandal, whereof he clears his own Innocency and the Officers of the Army, and Mr. Rolfe; and if the Houſes have any Suſpicion of him, if they pleaſe to ſend down another to be in his Place he ſhall willingly reſign. 24 Car.

An Ordinance paſſed both Houſes for continuing the Exciſe two Years longer.

Debate of an Ordinance of Indemnity for the revolted Seamen, that ſhall come in by a Day, the reſt to be out of Mercy, and Inſtructions for Encouragement of Seamen referred to a Committee.

An Ordinance paſſed both Houſes for Money for the Lincolnſhire Forces. Another tranſmitted to the Lords to pay off poor Soldiers and Widows.

A Deſign of the Malignants in Worceſter prevented, and Mr. Harcourt and others apprehended for it.

Order for the Garriſoning Worceſter by Colonel Dingly and Hartlebury.

Order for Accommodations for Mr. Rolfe, and for a Letter of Thanks to Colonel Hammond for his good Services.

The Committee of both Houſes and the Committee of the Common-Council of London had ſeveral Meetings and Treaties about their Engagement for the Safety of the King and Parliament during the intended Treaty at London.

The Common-Council explained their meaning upon ſeveral Particulars of their former Petitions.

London Explanations.

1. They will engage that the King and Parliament may meet and treat, free from Force and Violence, this they mean by the Word Safely.

2. By the Word, Defend, they mean that during the Treaty they will defend the King and Parliament (ſo much as in them lies) free from all Force and Violence.

3. That if the Treaty be in London, the City will for the preſent defray the Charge of the Guards during the Treaty, and afterward refer themſelves to the King and Parliament for the Satisfaction thereof.

4. That in caſe the intended Treaty ſhall be in London, and his Majeſty and the Parliament ſhall not agree, then the City conceive themſelves bound to ſubmit to the Wiſdom of both Houſes, touching the Diſpoſal of the King's Perſon.

5. That the Common-Council and Officers Military, do declare that they are ready according to their Engagement, as much as in them lies, by the Trained Bands to guard and defend the King and Parliament againſt all Force and Violence.

And they deſire to have the Militias united, and to be enabled to raiſe Forces, and that during the Treaty no Forces may come within thirty Miles of London without their Conſents.

That thoſe who ſhall make any Tumult or Diſturbance during the Treaty, may be puniſhed with Death, that none who have born Arms againſt the Parliament or contributed thereunto, ſhall during the Treaty come within thirty Miles of London, without leave of Parliament.

That the Treaty may be with all Expedition, for preventing of further Inconveniencies, and that if the Treaty be in London, the Common-Council will endeavour to find out a convenient Place for it, and Accommodations. They alſo ordered that the Common Council-men within their ſeveral Precincts ſhould endeavour to get the Subſcriptions of the Citizens to this Engagement, which was done accordingly.

Letters

Anno 1647.

Letters from Colcheſter Leaguer, that the Beſieged are in great Want of Victuals and Horſe-meat, that their Guard who were to ſecure thoſe that came out to get Horſe-meat, were beaten, divers of them killed and ſome taken.

Colcheſter.

Earl of Holland.

Letters from St. Need's, that Colonel Scroop with his Party from Colcheſter Leaguer (ſent after the Earl of Holland and his Party) came to Hertford, and with skilful Guides from thence were brought to St. Need's before the Lords could ſhift away, yet had got into ſome Bodies with their Party in the Town.

That the Parliament's Forlorn being entred, charged and routed the Earl's Party before the Body came up, and when they came the Earl's Party fled ſeveral ways, yet many of them fell, as Colonel Dalbier, who was ſlain in the Inn; Sir Kenelm Digby's Son, another Colonel and divers others were ſlain.

The Earl of Holland craved Quarter in his Chamber and had it; with him were taken Priſoners Sir Gilbert Gerrard, Colonel Skeimiſter, Major Holland, Major Stepkin, Lieutenant Colonel Goodwin, and a hundred Priſoners beſides; that the Parliament's Soldiers had above a hundred gallant Horſes, ſtore of Gold and Silver and rich Cloths; they had but two Men ſlain, and Colonel Scroop's Captain Lieutenant wounded, they were ſo tired with their long March, that they could not purſue the Enemy.

That the Duke of Bucks was fled with about forty Horſe towards Lincolnſhire.

Intelligence that the Lord Andover going to the Prince was taken and put into Dover Caſtle.

12. A Declaration tranſmitted to the Lords giving twenty Days to the revolted Ships to come in, or elſe to be taken as Traitors, and their Goods to be confiſcated, and this to be ſent to them by the Lord Admiral.

Langdale. Letters that after the Defeat given to Langdale's Forces by Colonel Lilburne, he having Intelligence that nine thouſand Scots were entring England to join with Langdale, drew towards Lambert to join with him.

Hamilton. That Duke Hamilton ſent a Compliment to Major General Lambert, that he was upon Advance with an Army towards England, for that the Parliament of England had given no Satisfaction to the Deſires of the Parliament of Scotland, and could not avoid the Northern Parts of England.

Lambert. He aſſures Major General Lambert, that he intends no Hurt to him or to the Kingdom, which his future Carriage would demonſtrate.

The Major General returned Anſwer, that as to not Satisfaction with this Parliament he had nothing to ſay, but as to his coming in hoſtile way into England, he would oppoſe him to the utmoſt, and fight him and his Army as Traitors and Enemies to the Kingdom.

That this great Breach of the Covenant and large Treaty between the two Nations he doubted not but would be revenged upon them to their utter Ruin; and was aſſured of Aſſiſtance herein by all true Engliſhmen, and right Covenanters of the two Nations.

Letters from France that Prince Charles was ſailed from Calais to Holland.

13. Order to prevent Tumults, that no more Priſoners of Quality ſhall be brought up to London, but be diſpoſed of to other Places of Strength. The Earl of Holland was ſent Priſoner to Warwick Caſtle.

Order for a thouſand Foot and five hundred Horſe to be raiſed and maintained in Eſſex, out of the Eſtates of thoſe who engaged with the Lord Goring. 24 Car.

The Houſe approved Articles made by Colonel Rich, upon the Surrender of ſome Caſtles in Kent, and that a Letter of Thanks be ſent to him, and Ammunition for his Regiment.

Order that the Eſtates of the Duke of Bucks, of the Lord Francis's Brother, and Sir Francis Ratcliff in the North, ſhall go towards the Maintenance of the Forces of Major General Lambert.

14. Letters from Major General Lambert, that Duke Hamilton was advanced into this Kingdom with an Army of ten thouſand Men, with whom Sir Marmaduke Langdale is joined, and that their Army is about Carliſle. Hamilton.

The Houſe declared that the Forces now come out of Scotland into England in an hoſtile Manner, being without the Authority of the Parliament of England, are Enemies to England, and that all ſuch Engliſh or Iriſh that ſhall adhere to, or aſſiſt them are Rebels and Traitors to England, and ſhall be proceeded againſt, and their Eſtates confiſcated as Traitors and Rebels.

Order for twenty thouſand Pounds for the Forces in the North, and that all the Revenues of the King, Queen, and Prince in the North, ſhall be paid by the Receiver of Yorkſhire to the Commander in chief of the Northern Forces for their Maintenance, and referred to the Committee of Derby Houſe to conſider of ſending more Forces down to Major General Lambert.

Here you may take notice of a ſtrange Turn in the Affairs of this Parliament to which all human Affairs are ſubject, but in theſe times much more than ordinary.

You have read the great Endeavours formerly to bring them in as Friends to aſſiſt the Parliament, and remember the Story of their Actions and Return home again; now the other Faction in Scotland prevailing, the Scots are turned Enemies to England, and invade them with a conſiderable Army; before, they joined with the Parliament againſt the King, now they join with the King's Forces againſt the Parliament.

How like the Sea the People of the World are, ebbing or flowing, always in an uncertain Motion, and conſtant in nothing but Inconſtancy!

Debate upon the Citizens Offer of Security to the King, and both Houſes of Parliament during the Treaty, if it be at London.

15. Letters from Lieutenant General Cromwell to the General and to the Committee of Derby Houſe, that the eleventh of July laſt, the Town and Caſtle of Pembroke were ſurrendered to him upon Articles. Pembroke Caſtle ſurrendred.

That Langherne, Poyer, and four more Officers ſurrendred to the Mercy of the Parliament, Sir Charles Kemiſh, Sir Henry Stradling, and about ten more Officers and Gentlemen, were to depart the Kingdom within ſix Weeks, and not to return in two Years, and all the reſt to have Liberty to go to their Homes, and not to be plundered.

The ſick and wounded Men to be taken care of, the Townſmen not to be plundered, but to enjoy their Liberty as heretofore.

The Town, Caſtle, Arms, Ammunition and Proviſions to be delivered up to Lieutenant General Cromwell for the Uſe of the Parliament; that Cromwell prepared to advance towards Lambert, to join with him againſt the Scots.

The Houſe declared to adhere to their former Vote, That the three Propoſitions ſhall be ſigned by his Majeſty before a Perſonal Treaty be The three Bills.

had

Anno 1648. had with him, and a Committee was appointed to draw Reaſons to ſatisfy the Lords concerning the ſame.

Iſle of Wight. Letters from the Iſle of Wight, That the King declared to divers of his Party, and wiſhed them to declare it to others, that the Governor, Colonel Hammond, was a Man of Honour and Truſt, and had carried himſelf civilly and reſpectfully to his Majeſty.

That Osborne had unjuſtly and ungratefully aſperſed the Governor, and as touching the Preſervation of his Perſon from Poiſon, or any ſuch horrid Deſign, the King ſaid he was ſo confident of the Honeſty and Faithfulneſs of the Governor, that he thought himſelf as ſafe in his Hands, as if he were in the Cuſtody of his own Son.

Colcheſter Letters from Colcheſter Leaguer, That the Enemy were all drawn up into the high Street, but were beaten in with Loſs upon their Sally forth; That Captain Jailler got out of the Town and came to the General, and told him that many of the Soldiers in the Town would come to his Excellency if they knew his Conditions; That the General had made a Breach in the Wall and beat the Enemy from their Guards; That Colonel Whaley with ſome of the Suffolk Foot fell upon a Church which the Enemy had fortified, who preſently cried for Quarter, and that there were taken about eighty Priſoners, moſt Kentiſh Men.

Intelligence that the Duke of Bucks's Party was wholly routed near Oundleby; Captain Butler and the Duke, with Sir Thomas Bludder and about a hundred more, got away privately towards London.

From Colcheſter Leaguer, That the General had taken Sir John Lucas's Houſe and the Gate-Houſe, which was hotly diſputed, till a Hand Grenado was by Cromwell's Men thrown among them, which lighting upon their Magazine of Powder, about forty of them were blown up, about ſixty taken Priſoners, the reſt of a hundred and forty were deſtroyed and killed.

This ſo enraged them that being confined within the Walls, they fired all the Suburbs round about, a very ſad Spectacle, the Houſes for above a Mile together being all of a Flame, one of the Companions of War.

The three Propoſitions. 17. Voted that after the three Propoſitions ſigned, the King be deſired to name three Places within ten Miles of Weſtminſter, of which the Parliament to chooſe one, where the Treaty with his Majeſty ſhall be had.

The Commons confirmed what was done by the Governor of Newcaſtle, in laying the Tax on Coals and Salt there.

They gave twenty Pounds to the Meſſenger of the Surrender of Pembroke Caſtle.

Voted a Pardon to divers that were in the Inſurrection in Kent, and to all that came in upon the Indempnity offered, and to ſuch as can make it appear that they were forced.

Perſonal Treaty. A Petition from the Tower-Hamlets, and from Southwark, &c. That the perſonal Treaty may be haſtened, and thoſe Militias united to the City.

They had Thanks for their good Affections, and were told that the Houſe had already voted the uniting of the Militias.

Colcheſter Letters from Colcheſter Leaguer, That the Enemy attempted to eſcape by a Ford, but the Parliament's Scouts firing at them they retreated in again.

That the General to prevent ſhedding of more Blood, and the Ruin of the Town, ſent another Summons to the Earl of Norwich, the Lord Capel, and Sir Charles Lucas, to ſurrender the Town to the Service of the Parliament, to which they returned a ſcornful Anſwer, That if any more Letters of that Kind were ſent to them, they would hang up the Meſſenger. 24. Car.

That preſently after the Return of the General's Trumpet, the Enemy ſet fire on another Street of the Town.

That before any Attempt upon the Town, the General intends to ſend for all Women and Children to come out.

Letters from the North, that Duke Hamilton was come in perſon into Carliſle, where he was received with ſhooting of Ordnance, and ringing of Bells, that he marched himſelf in the Van of his Army, his Trumpets in rich Liveries, and his Lifeguard with Standards and Equipage Prince-like, with his Carriages, but little Artillery, that being expected by them at Carliſle, and Sir Marmaduke Langdale with three thouſand Engliſh to join with the Duke. Hamilton.

The Duke ſent a Letter to Major General Lambert, to the Effect before mentioned; and that he was commanded by the Committee of the Eſtates of Scotland, to proſecute their Deſires here againſt the Sectaries, to liberate the King from his baſe Impriſonment, and the two Houſes of Parliament from Conſtraint, and for the disbanding of all the Armies, whereby the Subject may be free from Taxes and Quarter, and for ſettling Peace and a firm Union.

That being the Intentions and Deſires of the Kingdom of Scotland, he expects Lambert will not oppoſe their juſt, pious, and loyal Undertakings, but rather join in proſecution of theſe Ends, and deſires his preſent and poſitive Anſwer.

To this Letter Lambert returned Anſwer, That as to the Tranſactions of the Parliament, he could give no Anſwer, ſeeing they are laid open to the View of the World and known to his Excellency; That as to the Engliſh Forces being drawn upon the Borders of Scotland, he can the better give anſwer to that, having the Conduct of thoſe Forces by Commiſſion from the Lord General Fairfax, and his poſitive Command, to be moſt tender in acting any thing that might give any ſeeming Occaſion of Offence to our Brethren of Scotland, which he hath punctually obſerved. Lambert.

That he believes it never entred into the Thoughts of the Parliament or his Excellency, the Lord General Fairfax, to act any thing prejudicial to the Kingdom of Scotland.

That the Occaſion of their drawing Forces near the Borders is notoriouſly known to be for ſuppreſſing of Sir Marmaduke Langdale and his Adherents, many of them Papiſts, and grand Delinquents, Oppoſers to the Ends of the Covenant, and who are riſen in Rebellion againſt the Parliament.

That he wonders at the Suggeſtions of the Parliament of Scotland, that the Parliament of England is under Force, when all Engliſhmen (except Sir Marmaduke Langdale and his Adherents) do act only by the immediate Authority of the Parliament, who ſit and command all freely.

Then he vindicates the Parliament's Proceedings for Peace and to free the People from Taxes and Quarter, he concludes that the Reſolutions of the Committee of Eſtates are wholly grounded upon Miſtakes, and deſires the Duke to conſider if they be not contrary to the Covenant.

He ſaith that he muſt (in proſecution of the Truſt repoſed in him) to the utmoſt of his Power, oppoſe all Forces raiſed, or brought into this Kingdom, except thoſe by Authority of the Parliament of Anno 1648. England, in which he hopes the Duke will not oppoſe, but rather aſſiſt him, if the Parliament of England ſhall deſire it.

18. A Declaration tranſmitted to the Lords, of the Victories God had given to the Parliament's Forces within a few late Months.

Scots. Letters from Major General Lambert, that the Scots Army was joined with Sir Marmaduke Langdale, that they were in all about twelve thouſand Horſe and Foot; he deſired Supplies of Money and Men, and it was referred to the Committee of Derby Houſe to take care of it.

London Petition. A Petition from the Common-Council of London to the Houſe of Commons, that no Tax or Impoſition may be laid upon Newcaſtle Coals, and that the Houſe would conſider of diſpoſing the Profits of all Places and Employments enjoyed contrary to the Self-denying Ordinance, and the Votes of Parliament Junii 10, 1647, and of Cuſtomers, Exciſe-men, Committee-men, &c. for the publick Occaſions of the Kingdom.

Another Petition was to both Houſes for adding fifteen Perſons named by the Common-Council to be of the Militia of London.

Another Petition not from the Common-Council, but with ten thouſand Hands to it, that the Militias may continue diſtinct, that the Parliament would keep the Power in their own Hands, and call what Forces they pleaſe to their Aſſiſtance.

Theſe and other Petitions from Southwark, Weſtminſter, &c. for joining the Militias together and ſome againſt it, were referred to a Committee to hear all Parties and their Claims, and report their Opinions to the Houſe.

A Petition from the Water-men upon the Thames, for a perſonal Treaty and Settlement of Peace; the Petitioners had Thanks for making their Addreſſes by a few of their Company, and were told that they were Witneſſes of the Parliament's Endeavours for Peace, who had now the ſame things under Conſideration for which they petitioned, and would do therein what they judged beſt for the Kingdom.

Order for a Day of Thankſgiving for the great Victories obtained by the Parliament's Forces.

Colcheſter Letters from Colcheſter Leaguer, that thoſe within the Town made ſeveral Attempts to eſcape away, but were beaten back again, ſome of them killed and divers wounded; that they refuſed another Summons of the General to ſurrender the Town.

Declaration. 19. Intercepted Letters from one in Carliſle that they expect the Prince of Wales there, that he ſent a Declaration to Sir Marmaduke Langdale to publiſh to the Army and Country, that the King his Father being kept Priſoner by the Parliament, he is reſolved to uſe all poſſible Means to free him and re-enthrone him, and deſires all Men to join with him therein.

And he engages, and deſires Langdale and his Friends to engage in the Prince's Name, that all who have formerly acted for the Parliament and ſhall now come in and join with him, ſhall not only have their Pardon and Indemnity, but all their Arrears ſatisfied.

Inſurrection. 20. Letters from the Committee of Surrey of a late Inſurrection at Horſham but ſuppreſſed; and that Mr. Middleton a Member of the Houſe of Commons was a Party in it, and impriſoned by that Committee which the Houſe approved, and ſent for Mr. Middleton up to be examined.

Debate upon the Scots Declaration of the Grounds of their Army's coming into England.

The Lords deſired the Concurrence of the Commons to Indemnify the Duke of Buckingham for his late Engagement, if he came in within fourteen Days. 24. Car.

Scots Letters intercepted by Major General Lambert, communicated to the Lords, and a Vote paſſed, that all who have invited the Scots Army into England, or ſhall aſſiſt them are Traitors, and recalled their Commiſſioners from Scotland, they having proclaimed War againſt England. Votes.

21. A Vote that all who have ſerved the Parliament, and afterwards revolted to the Enemy, ſhall be tried for their Lives (being Priſoners) by a Council of War; and that the General do give Commiſſions to Perſons in the ſeveral Counties, for Trial of ſuch revolted Perſons by Martial Law.

Captain Yarrington informed the Houſe of a Deſign of Sir Henry Lingen and other Delinquents to ſurprize Doily Caſtle, Hereford, and other Places, which the Captain by his Endeavours prevented; and the Houſe ordered him five hundred Pounds out of Lingen's Eſtate, and the reſt.

Inſtructions tranſmitted to the Lords for Mr. Bence and Mr. Strickland, to go to the Lord Admiral and to adviſe him, and be Aſſiſtant to him upon all Occaſions.

22. Upon a Petition from the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council of London, concerning the liſting of Soldiers under Major General Skippon, the Houſe inſiſted upon their former Ordinances touching this Buſineſs, and approved what was done therein.

Referred to the Militia of the Out-parts, and of the ſeveral Counties, to receive all Complaints touching Miſcarriages in liſting of Soldiers without Authority of Parliament.

Letters from Colcheſter Leaguer, that thoſe in the Town have begun to eat Horſe-fleſh, and have provided ſtore of Pitch and Tar to fire and throw upon the Beſiegers, and Sithes to cut them off in caſe they attempt a Storm. Colcheſter

24. Power given to the Lord Admiral to grant Indemnity to ſuch revolted Mariners as ſhall come in.

An Ordinance paſs'd the Commons for forty thouſand Pounds for the Northern Forces, out of the Exciſe, and another for the Revenues of the King, Queen, and Prince in thoſe Parts for thoſe Force's, and an Order for a Train of Artillery for Major General Lambert's Army.

Captain Clerk's Action approved in hindring the tranſporting of ſome Scots out of Ireland into England, and ordered that thoſe Scots who ſhall refuſe to be ſo tranſported, and ſhall not deſert the Parliament's Service, ſhall be equally provided for with the reſt of the Engliſh Soldiers of that Kingdom.

Debate upon the large Catechiſm.

Letters from the North, that upon the Advance of the Enemy with their whole Body, the Parliament's Forces by Directions from their Council of War did retreat; being fewer in Number, and expecting additional Forces, and being not forward to engage before they underſtood the Pleaſure of the Parliament concerning the Scots Army coming into England. Hamilton's Army.

That the Enemy followed them, but Colonel Harriſon gave ſome Check to them, and was wounded, and Captain Cromwell ſlain; that the Enemy attempted to enter Appleby where the Parliament's Foot were, who repulſed them, and Colonel Hatfield charged a great Body of the Enemy and forced them to retreat; that about forty Anno 1648. forty of them were ſlain, and not above three or four of the Parliament's Forces.

25. At a Conference the Commons gave Reaſons to the Lords, why the three Propoſitions ſhould be ſent to the King to paſs before the Treaty.

Reaſons for the three Propoſitions.

1. Becauſe the diſaffected Party in, and near London, where the Treaty is likely to be, is ſuch, that if the King grant not the Militia before he comes, there will be no ſafety, nor likelihood of the Treaty to proceed, for many will endeavour to bring in the King without any Agreement, and to the deſtruction of the Parliament.

2. If the Presbyterian Government be not ſettled, all things in the Church will be in great Confuſion, and the Miniſters great Sufferers, and in high diſtaſte with the Parliament.

3. If the Declarations be not recalled, the Parliament is not in a Capacity to treat, having been declared Rebels and Traitors, and no Parliament but a pretended one, which was never done by any of the King's Predeceſſors.

Lords Anſwer. The Lords anſwered, that they could not imagine, nor was it probable that the Parts about London who had petitioned for a Treaty, would put it on for the diſadvantage of the Parliament.

2. They did not apprehend any prejudice to the Parliament's Party during the Treaty.

3. His Majeſty had declared he would conſent to all together, and not to any before all was agreed, and that in caſe there were no Agreement, they were all in ſtate as before, and that theſe Particulars would require Debate.

Commons Reply. To theſe the Commons replied, that his Majeſty was not ignorant of the full demand of thoſe Particulars having been often preſented to him, and to the two firſt he had declared a willingneſs, and was not obliged to paſs them as Bills, unleſs all other things were agreed upon, and if no Agreement, he being at Liberty, a new War was like to enſue.

That there was no doubt, but thoſe about London, who had petitioned for a Treaty, would put it on, to the diſadvantage of the Parliament, being ſuch who have not only petitioned the reeſtabliſhment of his Majeſty without Conditions, but have taken up Arms and were now in Arms, to cudgel the Parliament (as thoſe of Colcheſter ſaid) into a Treaty.

That if theſe three Propoſitions be not paſt before the Treaty (which is ſuppoſed will be in or near London) nothing will be determined, how his Majeſty ſhall be, who ſhall be with him, or how the diſaffected to the Parliament ſhall be ordered, and things not ſettled by Law may be revived, Epiſcopacy may be ſet on foot again, Miniſters put out, Ordinances for Money be denied, and his Majeſty and the Parliament be in War again as formerly.

Intercepted Letters from the Scots referred to a Committee to find out the Key of the Characters, with Power to ſend for and ſecure Perſons concerned.

Lambert. Letters from Major General Lambert of his Retreat, and referred to the Committee of Derby Houſe to command Forces from Glouceſter, or any other Garriſons to join with Lambert in the North.

Order for the Ships at Munſter to join with Captain Clerk to hinder the Tranſport of Scots out of Ireland into England.

Orders for Money for Hurſt Caſtle and for Carisbrook Caſtle, and for two thouſand Pounds out of the Eſtates of the Duke of Bucks, and Earl of Holland, for Pay of a Troop of Horſe in the Iſle of Wight. And for five hundred Pounds for another Garriſon not named.

26. The monthly Faſt-day.

Sir John Owen was ſent to Windſor Caſtle, upon a Charge of High Treaſon and Murder againſt him, for the Buſineſs of North Wales.

Letters from Colcheſter Leaguer, that an Exchange was offered of Mr. Aſhburnham, for Sir William Maſham. Colcheſter

That the Lord General had cauſed the Pipes of Water to the Town to be cut off, whereby the beſieged had no Water but what was muddy, or annoyed with dead Horſes, and the Beſiegers got a great ſtore of Lead. That the common Soldiers in the Town had lived upon Horſe-fleſh five Days together, and at a Court of Guard, they roaſted a whole Horſe, at which the Foot were merry, but the Troopers diſcontented.

That the General ſent in Papers upon the heads of Arrows, into the Town, by that means diſperſed among the common Soldiers in the Town, that if they would deliver up the Lord Goring, Lord Louborough, Lord Capel, and ſome others of their Chief-men, that the reſt ſhould have Paſſes, and Quarter, and go to their Homes.

The Prince and Duke of York came to Yarmouth with nineteen Ships, in which were ſuppoſed to be two thouſand Men, ſome of them landing near the Town were ſet upon by a Party of the Parliament's Horſe, who took ſeven of them Priſoners; but a Party of Townſmen iſſuing out reſcued the Priſoners, and the reſt of the Princes Men got into the Town.

The General ſent Colonel Scroop with eight Troops of Horſe and Dragoons towards Yarmouth, and a thouſand of the Norfolk Foot were ordered to join with him to hinder the landing of the Prince and his Forces there.

Letters from Major General Lambert, that the Scots and his Forces are near one another, and have had ſeveral Skirmiſhes, but few loſt on either ſide, that the Yorkſhire Horſe and a thouſand of Lieutenant General Cromwell's Foot are joined with him. Lambert.

27. Both Houſes made the Earl of Pembroke, Conſtable of Windſor Caſtle, and Keeper of the great Park and Foreſt. And his Lordſhip a little time after made me his Lieutenant of the Caſtle and Foreſt. This cauſed me to look into the nature of that Place and Office.

Sergeant Glanville made his Compoſition, and was releaſed from Impriſonment, in which I did him ſome Service.

I was informed of the Favour of the Houſe to me in my Abſence in the Country, that they being moved to make the Earl of Suffolk Steward of Greenwich, they refuſed to do it unleſs I ſhould conſent to it, I being in that Place before.

Order for forty thouſand Pounds for furniſhing the Stores of the Kingdom, and for eight thouſand for the Fort of Tilbury, and Colonel Willoughby's Accompts for it to be ſtated.

Letters from the Lord Willoughby excuſing to his Friends his going out of England without their Advice. Lord Willoughby.

Anno 1648. He was in the beginning of the Troubles very hearty and ſtrong for the Parliament, and manifeſted great perſonal Courage, Honour, and Military, as well as Civil, Abilities; as appears by his Actions, and Letters, whilſt he was in the Service of the Parliament. In whoſe Favour and Eſteem he was ſo high, that they voted him to be General of the Horſe, under the Earl of Eſſex, and afterwards to be an Earl. But having taken a diſguſt at the Parliament's declining of a perſonal Treaty with the King, and being jealous that Monarchy, and conſequently Degrees and Titles of Honour, were in danger to be wholly aboliſhed, he was too forward in countenancing and aſſiſting the late Tumults in the City, when the Members of Parliament were driven away from Weſtminſter to the Army. Upon the Return of the Members he was with other Lords impeached of High Treaſon for that Action; and rather than appear, and ſtand to a Trial for it, he left his Country, and revolted to the King, and was now with the Prince in his Navy, for which the Commons voted his Eſtate to be ſecured.

3 Propoſitions. 28. After many Hours Debate in the Houſe of Commons it was carried upon the Queſtion, not to adhere to their firſt Vote that the King ſhould ſign the three Propoſitions before the Treaty. And it was after that reſolved upon the Queſtion, that his Majeſty in perſon ſhould be treated with by Commiſſioners of both Houſes of Parliament in the Iſle of Wight, upon the whole matter of the Propoſitions at Hampton-Court for ſettling the Peace of this Kingdom.

Iſle of Wight.

Upon a Letter from Lieutenant General Cromwell, advanced Northwards with his Forces as far as Glouceſter, the Houſe ordered three thouſand pair of Shoes to be provided for his Foot, to be ready for them, as they ſhould march through Northamptonſhire.

Letters from Colcheſter Leaguer, That two Expreſſes from Yarmouth came to the General, one from the Town, ſhowing how much they were laboured by the Prince, for his admittance into the Town, which they modeſtly excuſed, and that the Prince put to Sea again towards Harwich, or the Downs.

Yarmouth. The other Expreſs was from the Forces in Loving-Land, under Major Jarmy, informing how confidently the Ships attempted to land a Trumpeter to ſummon Yarmouth. That Major Jarmy took ſome of thoſe who came with the Trumpeter, whoſe Examinations declared, that aboard the Admiral, was the Prince, Prince Rupert, the Lord Willoughby, Willmot, Hopton, Culpepper, and Gerard, Sir Henry Palmer, and many more Perſons of Quality.

That they reſolved by a Council of War, to ſink Ships in the Harbour, becauſe they had not admittance in the Town, but did not put their Reſolution into execution. That Major Jarmy was put to great ſtraits to ſecure both ſides of the Town, and being denied the Ferry Boat, or any other Boat, was forced to ſwim over a Troop of Horſe.

That Captain Johnſon endeavoured to raiſe a Tumult, and make head againſt the Parliament, the Multitude throwing up their Caps, and crying for Prince Charles, and Captain Johnſon; but the Bayliffs, and other Magiſtrates did appeaſe the Tumult, and a Preſent of Proviſions was ſent aboard the Prince.

That the Heads of a Declaration were taken from ſome that came from aboard the Prince, to be pubiſhed in his Name, to this Effect, ſhowing the Grounds and Reaſons of his Highneſs appearing in the Fleet upon the Coaſt to be. 24 Car.

The Princes Declaration.

1. The eſtabliſhing of Religion according to the Agreement of his Majeſty with the Scots Commiſſioners, 26 December laſt.

2. The mutual performance of that Agreement and purſuance of all Conceſſions therein on his Majeſty's part.

3. The reſtoring of his Majeſty to his Liberty and juſt Rights, in order to a perſonal Treaty with his Majeſty, with Honour, Freedom, and Safety.

4. The maintenance of the Freedom and juſt Privileges of Parliament.

5. The defence of the Liberty and Property of the Subject, againſt all Violence and Oppreſſion, and therein the abolition of Exciſe, Contribution, free Quarter, and other illegal Taxes.

6. The obtaining an Act of Oblivion and Indemnity.

7. The disbanding of all Armies, and ſettling a well grounded and happy Peace.

8. For the defence of his Majeſty's juſt Rights in the Narrow Seas, the protection and ſecuring the Trade of his Majeſty's Subjects, and the ſupport of his Navy, and all the Officers and Mariners of the ſame.

The Lords Willoughby, Hopton, and Culpeper, together with his Highneſs's Secretary, or any two of them are appointed to digeſt theſe Heads into a Declaration, and to preſent it to his Highneſs in Council.

Charles P.

A Petition from the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council of London, expreſſing how much the City was unſatisfied, and jealous of the liſting of Horſe and Foot under Major General Skippon, and praying that no more may be liſted, unleſs by him and the Militia of London, and that thoſe already liſted under him may be disbanded. London Petition.

The Houſe ordered a Committee to confer with the Common Council about this Matter, and the grounds and reaſons of this Jealouſy to be reported to the Houſe; the Lords gave great ſatisfaction to the Petitioners, adding in their Anſwer, that they would live and die with the Petitioners. Anſwer.

Letters from Lambert, with Intelligence that ſome additional Forces were coming to the Scots, and deſiring more Forces to be haſtened to him; the Houſe ſent the Letters to Lieutenant General Cromwell with Orders for him to expedite his March Northwards.

News that Scarborough Caſtle was revolted, and that the Prince was in the Downs, and had not yet landed any Men, and that one of the Prince's Frigats was taken near Margate, by ſome of Sir Michael Liveſey's Troops, with the aſſiſtance of a Boat and two Seamen.

31. Votes for Pay of Arrears to the Northern Officers disbanded, upon diſcovery of concealed Money due to the State.

An Ordinance committed for the better regulating of the Eſtates of Papiſts and Delinquents. Petition.

Upon a Petition from the Out-parts, not to be joined with the Militia of London, the Houſe thanked them for their conſtant Affections and good Service, and referred them to attend the Committee in this Buſineſs.

Referred to the ſame Committee to conſider of the great Abuſes, mentioned in their Petition for joining of the Militias.

An Ordinance paſt the Commons for Money for Arms and Ammunition.

Another

Anno 1648. Another for a Troop of Horſe to be raiſed for the Iſle of Ely, and for ſeventy Pounds a Week to be raiſed in that Iſland to maintain the Troop.

8. A Let-

Anno 1648. Letter from the Prince.

8. A Letter came from the Prince to the Speaker of the Houſe of Peers without any mention to be communicated to the Commons, in which Letter the Prince takes notice of the Progreſs made as to a perſonal Treaty, and deſires,

1. That the Treaty be in ſuch a place and manner, as may conſiſt with the Honour, Freedom, and Safety of his Majeſty his Father, ſo that the Agreement may not be blemiſhed with any face of reſtraint.

2. That the Treaty be between the King and his two Kingdoms of England and Scotland, that things may go on fairly to all Perſons concerned therein.

3. That during the Treaty, there be a general Ceſſation of Arms, that the Affection of the People of this, and the other Kingdom, be not leſſened by Acts of Hoſtility.

4. An ordinary moderate Subſiſtence, during the Treaty, may be agreed upon, for all Forces on Foot, and which in no ſort muſt go unmentioned, for the Scots Army now in England, and ſo as may be with leaſt Preſſure to the Northern Parts.

And if the two Houſes will agree to theſe things, he will endeavour to his utmoſt Power, with his Father for a good Agreement.

He concludes with a Deſire, that a Courſe may be taken to content him, and his Ships now in the Downs, with Money and Proviſion, that ſo, he nor they, may not hinder the City Trade, and diſcharge the Ships he hath now in hold.

Fleet. One of thoſe Ships taken by the Lord Willoughby, who was Vice-Admiral of the Prince's Fleet, had in her near twenty thouſand Pounds in Gold, which ſhe brought from Guinea, moſt of it belonging to Mr. Rowland Wilſon, the Father, and Son, and their Partners.

Lord Willoughby. The Lord Willoughby did affirm, that when the Earl of Warwick with his Fleet, came near to the Prince his Navy, the Lord Willoughby and ſome others were earneſt to have fought the Parliament's Fleet, and had ſome Aſſurances given them, that ſeveral of the Earl of Warwick's Ships would have revolted to the Prince.

But that others about the Prince diſſuaded him from fighting, pretending the danger to his Highneſs's Perſon, and carried it, by that Argument, againſt Fighting; whereas in probability, and as the Seamens Affections then ſtood, if they had fought, the Parliament's Fleet had been endangered.

London Petition. A Petition was preſented to both Houſes from the Common-Council of London, deſiring,

1. That the King may be free from his Reſtraint.

2. Invited to a Treaty.

3. That all Acts of Hoſtility by Sea and Land, may by command of King and Parliament ceaſe.

4. That the Government of the Church may be ſettled according to the Covenant.

5. That diſtreſſed Ireland may be relieved.

6. The People of England, by diſbanding all Armies, eaſed.

7. The Liberty of the ſubject reſtored.

8. The Laws of the Land eſtabliſhed.

9. The Members of both Houſes enjoined to attend.

10. That the Self-denying Ordinance may be effectually obſerved.

11. That ſpeedy Conſideration be had of ſuch Merchants, whoſe Ships and Goods are ſtaid, by thoſe with the Prince in the revolted Ships, and that ſome expedient may be thought of for diſcharge of all Ships, that Trade be not deſtroyed.

Anſwer. The Lords gave thanks to the Common-Council; the Commons appointed a Committee to draw up their Anſwer.

A Petition to the Commons from the reduced Officers, That there may be a ſpeedy Settlement of Religion, the King, Parliament, and Kingdom in a Parliamentary way, by a free and perſonal Treaty, according to the late Deſire of the City of London, and that all Officers and Soldiers without exception, whoſe Accounts are not ſtated, may have them audited. 23 Car. Petition Officers.

Order for Payment of the Petitioners Arrears, out of their Diſcoveries, and for a Committee to give them farther Satisfaction, and to make Payment to the Non-commiſſion'd Officers of Sir Robert Pye's Regiment of their Arrears.

Order for Mr. Halyburton who brought Letters to the King from the Committee of Eſtates in Scotland, to ſtay here for a Month for the King's Anſwer.

Major Huntington made Oath in the Lords Houſe, That the Narrative given in by him was true, and would be atteſted.

Letters from Colcheſter Leaguer, that twenty, or thirty a Day run from the Enemy, and the laſt Day a whole Guard together came from them, that their Wine and Raiſins are near ſpent, ſo that the common Soldiers get none. Colcheſter

That they killed thirty Horſes to powder them up, and have the Bloody-flux much among them, that they have drawn off their Guns from the Wall, ſome ſay they will carry the Parliament Committee with them into the Caſtle, and cut their Throats if they may not have Conditions for themſelves.

The General ſent a Letter by a Drummer to the Lord Norwich, Lord Capel, and Sir Charles Lucas about Exchange of Priſoners.

9. The grand Committee ſat long about the Ordinance for the Militia.

Debate upon the Self-denying Ordinance.

The Anſwer to the City's laſt Petition was ſent to them to this Effect, Shewing how far they have proceeded to a Treaty with the King, the Votes thereof, their Expectation of the King's Anſwer, and Hopes that he will treat. Anſwer to City Petition.

That the Scots are declared Rebels for invading the Kingdom, and they hope the City will join in the ſubduing of them. That they offered the revolted Ships Indemnity, but they refuſed to come in; the Votes for reducing them, and the Reference to a Committee to treat with the King for a way for free Trade.

A Collection ordered on the Faſt-day for the poor People that are come out of Colcheſter.

Mr. Thomas Cook's Compoſition paſſed.

The Keeper of the Priſon in Canterbury put out.

Letters from the Commiſſioners with the King, That his Majeſty is willing to have the Treaty, and likes the Terms of Honour, Freedom, and Safety, and though he have no Secretary, yet he will give them his Anſwer in their time. From the King.

Order that none ſpeak with Mr. Halyburton but in the Preſence of his Keeper.

10. The Faſt-day.

Letters from Holland, that the Merchants there do highly reſent the Prince of Wales's being in the Downs, as a great Hindrance of Traffick. The Prince.

That there is tampering to borrow ſome Regiments to attempt ſomething in England, adviſeth to look to Poole, Lyme, and Weymouth.

That the Letters and Declaration of the Prince of Wales, were printed there in Dutch and French.

11. Debate upon the Ordinance for ſettling Church Government, and the Title to it agreed.

The Ordinance for ſettling the Militia of Wiltſhire, tranſmitted to the Lords.

Letters

Anno 1646. Letters from the Iſle of Wight, that the Earl of Middleſex with the reſt of the Parliament's Commiſſioners, attended the King at Carisbrook Caſtle, where the Earl read the Votes to his Majeſty for the Treaty, who received them with much Chearfulneſs, and ſaid, That no Man deſired Peace ſo much as he, in his ſeveral Relations, as a King, a Husband, a Father, a Maſter, and that he would give ear to any Motion or Overture, which might conduce to a good Accommodation, and that whoſoever gained by theſe Troubles he muſt needs be a loſer, and that he would diſpatch them within the time limited.

Earl of Middleſex.

Commiſſioners with the King.

12. The Grand Committee ſat about the Ordinance for the Militia.

Conference At a Conference with the Lords about Mr. Rolph, and Mr. Halyburton, the Commons alledged, that Mr. Rolph was committed by their Lordſhips without any Cauſe in the Warrant, and they found reaſon to clear him; and that Halyburton was imployed by the Scots, Enemies to this Kingdom, and therefore not be protected here.

The Lords deſire the Commons Concurrence to an Ordinance to diſable Major General Skippon from liſting any more Forces in the City.

Order for the Exchange of the reſt of the Committee of Eſſex under reſtraint in Colcheſter.

Perſonal Treaty. Sir Peter Killegrew returned with Letters from the Iſle of Wight, that the King had agreed to a perſonal Treaty at Newport, in that Iſland, and deſired that Scotland might treat alſo, but left that to the two Houſes.

Yarmouth Letters from the Bailiffs of Yarmouth to the General, that they had received a Letter from Prince Charles in the Downs, with a Declaration by a Fiſher-man, going to ſell his Fiſh in France, which was taken from him by the Admiral, and this Declaration (which is in print) and the Letter (which now they ſent to the General) was ſent by the Fiſher-man to Yarmouth.

That the Town made Anſwer, They would ſtand to their firſt Engagement to the Parliament, and oppoſe all hoſtile Attempts againſt them and the Kingdom.

His Excellency took this ſo well from them, that he ſent them word he would not put any Forces into the Town, unleſs they and neceſſity ſhould require it.

Prince's Letter. The Prince's Letter to the Town was, that he had ſent to them his Declaration, as he had done to London, and other Places, and expected their concurrence for his Majeſty upon the Grounds, and for the Ends expreſſed in the Declaration.

And that they would with Courage join with him, and the Engliſh and Scots Forces already appearing, for the obtaining of a happy and well grounded Peace in ſpight of all Oppoſition, and for the freeing of all his Majeſty's Subjects from Tyranny, Oppreſſion, and all illegal Taxes, &c.

The King's Letter. 14. The Commiſſioners returned from the King, reported their Reception, and Paſſages in that Buſineſs with his Majeſty, and his Letter to both Houſes, wherein he expreſſeth his ſad Condition for ſeven Months laſt paſt, likes well of the Treaty, and deſires,

1. That the Parliament would recall all ſuch Votes and Orders by which People are frighted from coming, writing or ſpeaking freely to him.

2. That ſuch Men of all Profeſſions whom he ſhall ſend for, as of neceſſary uſe to him in this Treaty, may be admitted to wait upon him, that he may be in the ſame ſtate of Freedom he was in, when he was laſt at Hampton-Court.

3. That the Scots may be invited to ſend their Commiſſioners to join in this Treaty.

4. He names Newport in the Iſle of Wight for the Place of Treaty, but thinks it would be much more conducing to a good and ſpeedy Iſſue, to have the Treaty in ſome Place in or near London. 24 Car.

The Lords deſired the Commons Concurrence, that Dr. Shelden and Dr. Hammond might attend the King.

Letters from Sir Arthur Haſelrigge, That Lieutenant Colonel Henry Lilburne Governor of Tinmouth Caſtle, commanded moſt of his Officers and Soldiers, out of the Caſtle, upon Service, and reſerved a few, (moſt of them he knew to be of his own Mind) with him in the Caſtle. Col. Henry Lilburne.

Then he diſcharged the Priſoners, and calling all the Soldiers together, he declared for himſelf and King Charles, and that ſuch as did not yield hereunto, were dead Men; whereupon many of the honeſt Soldiers got over the Wall, but a Corporal refuſing to conſent hereunto, was preſently run through by the Lieutenant Colonel, who then ſent to the Shields, and Town, deſiring ſuch as loved King Charles, to join with him, which many did accordingly.

That this News being preſently brought to Newcaſtle, Sir Arthur Haſelrigge drew out a conſiderable Body of Foot, and one hundred Dragoons, with Orders to ſtorm the Caſtle, which they attempted, but the Ladders were too ſhort, yet they forced in at the Port-holes, and notwithſtanding the Cannon playing upon them, after a ſhort Diſpute, they became Poſſeſſors of the Caſtle. Haſelrigge

The Soldiers had Quarter, many within were ſlain, among whom the Governor; of the Parliament's Soldiers three were wounded, and not one ſlain.

That the Scots play at ſweep-ſtake, take all, Moveables, Cows, Sheep, and all Houſe hold-ſtuff to the very Pot-hooks, that they take Children, and make their Parents pay Ranſoms for them, and force Women before their Friends Faces; that Lieutenant General Cromwell was come up to them with Lambert, and had taken about four of the Scots. Scots.

That Colonel Stephkin, who had formerly betrayed Stafford to the Parliament, had now a Deſign to betray it back again to the King, but was prevented by the Care of Captain Stone, the preſent Governor, and was ſlain.

15. A verbal Meſſage from the Common-Council of London, deſiring the Houſe of Commons to conſider of their Votes, in order to their Security, that the Militia of the Out-parts may be joined, that Major General Skippon may not liſt without them, with a Repreſentation of the Officers of the City, that they would be as faithful to the Parliament as ever. London.

The Houſe ordered Thanks to the Gentlemen, and an Ordinance to be brought in, for tranſmitting the Power of raiſing and liſting Forces to the Militia, that the Committee for joining the Militias ſhould be revived, and the other Committee added to them. Sir John Hippeſly, and Mr. Bulkley, who were Commiſſioners to the Iſle of Wight, had the Thanks of the Houſe.

Letters from Colonel Rich, that the Prince landed five hundred Soldiers, about three hundred Mariners, and one hundred Officers and Reformadoes, with Orders to fall upon Colonel Rich, and Colonel Hewſon in their Trenches, they marched by Upper Deal in good Order, and being diſcovered, three hundred Muſquetiers were drawn off (all they could get) under Hewſon Lieutenant Colonel, and Major Husbands with one hundred Horſe. Col. Rich.

The Prince's Forces marched up with great Reſolution, and to prevent the Parliament's Horſe from Anno 1648. from annoying them, had Marſh-ground for their Action and Retreat, which put the Horſe upon a loſs, not knowing how to engage, but Major Husbands wheeled about in a way of Retreat.

This occaſioned the Prince's Men to advance to firmer Ground in confidence of Victory, which the Parliament's Horſe took advantage of, flanked the Prince's Men, and were almoſt in the Rear of them.

The three hundred Muſqueteers at the ſame time charged the Prince's Men, and put them in diſorder; and the Parliament's Men fell to execution: About two hundred of the Prince's Men were ſlain on the Place and in the Purſuit, of whom many were of Quality, one hundred Priſoners and three hundred Arms were taken.

Many of them were wounded, and not above one hundred ſerviceable Men thought to return to the Ships, ſome fled to the Caſtle from whence Forces came out to fetch them in, but were beaten back, and left Arms behind them.

Of the Parliament's Forces, Colonel Rich's Quarter-Maſter was ſlain, Major Husbands's Lieutenant wounded, three Horſe-men and four Foot-men killed.

Order for a Letter of Thanks to Colonel Rich, and that Major Husbands who brought the News, and loſt divers Horſes in the Fight, ſhould have one hundred and fifty Pounds to buy him more Horſes, and that Colonel Hewſon ſhould have one hundred and fifty Pounds to buy him Horſes.

The Grand Committee ſat for the Militia in the Afternoon.

Concurrence. 16. The Lords deſired the Commons Concurrence to theſe Votes.

1. That the Treaty be according to theſe Votes.

2. That the Votes againſt farther Addreſſes to the King, be recalled.

3. That ſuch Perſons as his Majeſty ſhall ſend for in the Treaty, be admitted to wait on him, and that he be in the ſame Freedom as he was at Hampton-Court.

4. That ſuch Servants as he ſhall appoint, may wait upon him.

5. That the Place for the Treaty be in Newport in the Iſle of Wight.

6. That the Scots be invited to treat upon the Propoſitions preſented at Hampton-Court.

7. That his Majeſty be admitted to invite the Scots to treat upon thoſe Propoſitions.

8. That the Inſtructions to Colonel Hammond be recalled.

9. That five Lords and ten Commoners be choſen to treat with the King.

10. That it be referred to the Committee of Lords and Commons for Peace, to prepare all things in readineſs for ſpeeding of the Treaty.

The Commons ordered theſe Votes to be conſidered de die in diem, till they be finiſhed, and nothing to intervene.

Col. Martin. Upon Information that Colonel Martin a Member of the Houſe, and Colonel Ayres, and Mr. Walrond, were raiſing of Horſe in Berks, and took Horſes from the Inhabitants againſt their Wills, and had no Authority from the Parliament for it.

The Houſe ordered Colonel Martin to attend them, and Colonel Ayres, and Mr. Walrond to be ſent for in ſafe Cuſtody for this Action.

Scots Letter. The Committee of Eſtates of Scotland ſent a Letter to the Prince, wherein next to his Father's Reſtraint, they bewail his Highneſs's long Abſence from that Kingdom, his Right by deſcent, and now that their Forces are again in England, they humbly beg his Highneſs's Preſence, to countenance their Endeavours for Religion, and his Father's re-eſtabliſhment. And if he will intruſt his Perſon among them, they engage the Publick Faith of that Kingdom for his Highneſs being in Honour, Freedom, and Safety, whilſt he ſhall be with them in Scotland, or in their Army in England, with Liberty to return when he ſhall pleaſe, and this was ſent to him by the Earl of Lauderdale. 24 Car. Earl of Lauderdale.

Sir Humphry Forſter was plundered by Colonel Martin's new raiſed Troopers, who were a kind of Free-booters and Levellers, and abuſed all that were not of their own Perſuaſions, and they uncivilly treated this Gentleman.

18. Both Houſes paſſed a Manifeſto, that whereas they had not been able to afford to the Proteſtants in Ireland, ſuch Supplies and Relief as was neceſſary for them, and therefore had employed Mr. Derrick Hoaſt, Mr. Corſeilles, Mr. Maurice Thomſon, and Mr. Laurence, their Commiſſioners to the States of the United Provinces, to ſollicite Contribution and Relief from thence for Ireland, who had there collected by voluntary Contribution thirty one thouſand two hundred and eighteen Pounds twelve Shillings and five Pence, and was diſpoſed of for Victuals. Manifeſto.

The Lords and Commons take notice of the great Affection of the People of the United Provinces herein, and acknowledge their pious and charitable Senſe of the miſerable Condition of their diſtreſſed Brethren in Ireland, and their Benevolence for Relief of thoſe Proteſtants, and do give their moſt hearty Thanks to the Commiſſioners, and to the Treaſurers there named, and to all others who have (without any Salary) aſſiſted in that Work.

After long debate whether the Commons ſhould concur with the Lords in the Vote to invite the Scots to the Treaty, it was carried in the Negative. Debate.

The Commiſſioners of the Seal had a Meeting with the Judges about their riding of this Summer's Circuit, and they reſolved to know the Pleaſure of the Houſes therein.

19. Vote, that if his Majeſty ſhall think fit to ſend for any of the Scotiſh Nation to adviſe with him, concerning the Affairs of the Kingdom of Scotland only, the Houſes will give them a ſafe Conduct. Vote.

Vote for ten of the Houſe of Commons to join with five Lords, as Commiſſioners, to treat with the King.

Order that the Judges be deſired to go their ſeveral Circuits as formerly appointed, except ſome Counties, where the King's Forces were, and that they may avoid going to any Place, where they ſhall apprehend to be any danger.

Order that the Chief Juſtice of Cheſter ſhall go down.

Letters from Colcheſter Leaguer, that five came out of the Town and ſaid, that the Cries of Women and Children, and the poorer ſort in the Town are very great, and that they are like to ſtarve; that Goring will permit none who are well affected to the Parliament, to come out of the Town, unleſs ſome of his Party may come with them. Colcheſter

That a Woman and five Children (one ſucking at her Breaſt) came out of the Town, and fell on her Knees before the Parliament's Guards, begging leave to paſs the Line, but they were forced to turn her back again, leſt Hundreds more ſhould follow her, to the Prejudice of the Service.

That thoſe who come out of the Town, affirm, that all the Dogs and Cats, and moſt of the Horſes there, are already eaten.

That a Trumpeter came from the Enemy in Colcheſter, deſiring leave to ſend to know whether they may have Relief or not, and if they ſee no hopes Anno 1648. hopes of any within twenty days, then to treat, but the Lord General denied this Deſire.

That they in the Town refuſed to exchange the Earl of Cleveland for one of the Committee, that the Women and Children were at the Lord Goring's Lodging for Bread, who told them, they muſt eat their Children, if they wanted; the Women replied, that they would put out his Lordſhip's Eyes, and highly reviled him.

The Prince's Letter. The Prince ſent a Letter to the Lord General Fairfax for Moderation to be uſed towards Major General Langhorn, Colonel Powel, Colonel Poyer, and others who acted by Commiſſion from him, otherwiſe he ſhould be neceſſitated to proceed contrary to his Intentions againſt ſuch as ſhould fall into his Hands.

Subſcribed,

Your Loving Friend,

Charles P.

Anſwer. The General returned anſwer, that he had acquainted the Houſes with his Highneſs's Letter, it not being in his power to act farther, the Parliament having ordered the way in which the Priſoners ſhould be proceeded againſt, not ſo much for Hoſtility, as for Breach of the Truſt they repoſed in them, to the engaging the Nation again in War and Blood.

Subſcribed,

Your Highneſs's moſt

humble Servant,

Fairfax.

Letters from the North, that as yet there was no Engagement with the Scots.

Treaty. 21. The Commons concurred with the Votes touching the Treaty, and referred it to the Committee of both Houſes for Peace, to prepare things needful for the Treaty.

They thought fit again to ſend to his Majeſty, to let him know how far they had proceeded as to treat and to have his Approbation.

A Letter from the General, that he had received an Order from the Lords to deliver the Earl of Holland, from Warwick Caſtle, to be confined to his Houſe at Kenſington.

Paſſes. A Letter from the Lord Admiral, that upon the Lord's Paſſes for ſome to go beyond Seas, they had gone to the Prince, as Mr. Halyburton the Scots Agent, the Lord Andover and others.

The Commons deſired a Conference with the Lords about it, and that a Letter be ſent to the Lord Admiral and to the Lord General to make Stay of all ſuch Perſons, notwithſtanding their Order.

Suburbs. Upon Petition of Thouſands of the Suburbs
Skippon. that had joined with Major General Skippon, he was order'd to grant them Commiſſions, and the Committee for ſuppreſſing of Tumults, to furniſh them with Arms.

C. Harley. Letters from Salop, that Sir Henry Lingen with a Party of Horſe, took ſixty of Colonel Harley's Men; and about two days after a Party of Colonel Harley's and Colonel Horton's Men met with Sir Henry Lingeny's Men about Radnor, regained all their Horſe and Priſoners, took Sir Henry Lingen, and Colonel Crofts, and many other of the King's Commanders Priſoners, ſlew divers of the Party, and routed the reſt.

Colcheſter Letters from Colcheſter Leaguer, that the Approaches were ſo near, that the Beſiegers and the Enemy laid aſide their Muskets, and inſtead of Shooting, caſt Stones at one another. Some Petitions incloſed in a Letter from the Lord Norwich, and the reſt were ſent to the General, expreſſing, that at the deſire of the Inhabitants, they had thought fit to ſend them. 24 Car.

And that they ſhould be conſtrained for the better Accommodation of the Soldiery, to turn out the Towns People, whereby their Houſes and Goods would be left liable to Spoil and Ruin, for prevention whereof, they had thought fit to treat with his Lordſhip for the Surrender of the Town, if he pleaſed; to which purpoſe they would ſend ſix Officers, if his Lordſhip would appoint the like number. Letter to Fairfax.

With this, came another Letter offering an exchange of Captain Gray, for Mr. Weſton and Mr. Rowling; the General accepted of the exchange, but as to the Treaty, ſaid, he would ſend Anſwer by a Meſſenger of his own.

The General was in ſome danger by a Shot from the Town, that one who was exchanged, told the Lord Norwich, he heard the Parliament Soldiers diſcourſing ſharply againſt thoſe in Colcheſter, and one of them bid him tell Goring, that they would bore a Hole through his Noſe, and draw him with a Rope through Cheapſide, crying, Here is the great Bull of Colcheſter.

The incloſed Petitions were, one to the Earl of Norwich, the Lord Capel, and Sir Charles Lucas, from the Inhabitants of Colcheſter. Petition.

That having received their Commands to depart the Town, for better Supply of the Soldiers, they might petition the Lord Fairfax for Liberty to paſs into the Country, to prevent the danger of their Lives without his leave.

They prayed their Honours to give way for their Petition to be preſented to the Lord Fairfax; and till they had his Anſwer, that they might not be enforced from their Habitations.

The Petition of the Inhabitants of Colcheſter to the Lord Fairfax was, to inform his Lordſhip that the Commanders in Chief in the Garriſon had ordered all the Inhabitants to provide with Expedition to depart the Town, or otherwiſe by Power they ſhould be forced thereto, for that whatever became of the Townſmen, the Soldiery who maintained the King's Cauſe, muſt and ſhall be provided for. Petition to Fairfax.

That being driven to this Exigency, they have no other means but to fly to his Chriſtian Charity and Clemency, and humbly to pray that he would give them leave to paſs into the Country, for the Preſervation of their Lives.

Subſcribed by the Mayor, and four Aldermen, in the name of all the Petitioners.

To the Letter the General returned this Anſwer. Fairfax his Anſwer to the Letter.

He was willing to believe, that the preſſing Neceſſities of the miſerable Inhabitans of Colcheſter had wrung from them the Petition incloſed in their Letter.

That he ſhould not only clear himſelf to all the World from the Occaſion of their Sufferings, but ſo far contribute to their Relief, as to allow all the Inhabitants of the Town (the Lords firſt engaging not to reſtrain any who ſhall be willing to come out) to enjoy the Liberty in their Petition deſired.

Provided, the Committee of the County of Eſſex, then Priſoners with the Lords in the Town, be ſent out with the firſt; only he ſhall not permit the Wives and Children of any Towns-men, or others, who ſhall abide with the Lords in Arms, to have the Benefit above-mentioned.

Concerning the Rendition of the Town, he offers, That all ſuch Officers and Soldiers under the Degree of a Captain (excepting all ſuch who being Members of his Army have ſince the 10*th of* May laſt deſerted their Anno 1648. their Colours) they engaging themſelves never hereafter to bear Arms againſt the Parliament, ſhall have paſſes without Injury offered them, to return to their reſpective Homes.

And all Captains, and other ſuperior Officers, with the Lords and Gentlemen to ſubmit to Mercy.

Subſcribed,

Your Lordſhip's Servant,

Tho. Fairfax.

Cromwell. An Expreſs came from Lieutenant General Cromwell in the general of his defeating the Scots Army under Duke Hamilton.

Inſtructions for C. Hammond. New Inſtructions for Colonel Hammond.

1. That the King be removed to Newport in the Iſle of Wight, the Place of the Treaty.

2. That he be in the ſame Condition and Freedom there, as he was at Hampton Court.

3. That no Perſon in the firſt Exception out of Mercy, nor under Reſtraint of the Parliament, nor of late actually in Arms againſt the Parliament, be admitted to the King.

4. That no Perſon that hath been in Arms againſt the Parliament or aiding or aſſiſting to them, or of whom there is juſt cauſe of Suſpicion, be admitted into any Fort or Tower in the Iſle of Wight.

5. That no Perſon of any foreign Nation be admitted to come into the ſame Iſle, without leave from both Houſes of Parliament.

6. That if the Kingdom of Scotland ſend any to treat with his Majeſty, they ſhall have a Paſs from both Houſes.

7. That his Majeſty paſs his Royal Word not to go out of the Iſland during the Treaty, nor twenty eight days after, without the Advice of both Houſes of Parliament.

Additional Power of Martial Law to the Lord Admiral.

An Ordinance tranſmitted to the Lords for raiſing three thouſand Pounds out of the Eſtate of the late Lord Keeper Coventry towards Reparation of Lieutenant Colonel John Lilburne, for two Star-Chamber. Sentences againſt him in the Star-Chamber.

Order for the Committee of the Revenue to ſtate to the Houſe what Offices and Places are enjoyed by Duke Hamilton.

Order for Money for Holy Iſland, and the Governor to have Thanks, and Sir Arthur Haſelrigge to make up the Men there an hundred.

Letters from the Lord Admiral for Money.

Colcheſter. Letters from Colcheſter Leaguer, that they ſent five hundred Women out of the Town, who came confidently towards Colonel Rainesborough's Quarters, he commanded a Cannon to be ſhot off, but ſo as not to hurt them, they came notwithſtanding he ordered the firing of ſome Muskets at them with Powder only, ſtill they came on; then he ſent out ſome Soldiers with Orders to ſtrip the Women, which made them run, but none of them were ſtript.

The Town refuſe to let theſe poor Women in again, they ſtood between the Town and the Army, the General ſent to thoſe in the Town, to receive their Women in again, tells them of their Cruelty, and that the Blood of thoſe miſerable Creatures muſt be anſwered for by them, but they regarded it not.

One of the Horſe of the Parliament's Centries being killed, many of the Town came forth to fetch in the dead Horſe, and divers of them were killed, yet got not the Horſe; the next day they came again, and ventured their Lives to cut off Pieces of the ſtinking dead Horſe to ſatisfy their Hunger. 24 Car.

This may inform us of the Cruelty of ſome Mens Natures, and their Hard-heartedneſs to force theſe Extremities and Miſeries upon others rather than not to have their own Will.

We may likewiſe take notice of, and pity the ſad Calamities which many good People did groan under, and were compelled unto by our Civil War to adventure their Lives for a piece of ſtinking Carrion.

Let theſe Paſſages retain us from all Occaſions which may tend to the fomenting of any ſuch Troubles hereafter; and may this Nation never feel the like again.

Debate upon the Ordinance of the Militia of London.

23. Letters from Lieutenant General Cromwell, Cromwell. that after the Conjunction of his Forces with thoſe in the North, upon Advertiſement that the Enemy intended Southward, and for London it ſelf, and that the Iriſh Forces under Monroe, twelve hundred Horſe and fifteen hundred Foot, were on their March towards Lancaſter to join with them.

That it was thought by the Council of War, Preſton Fight. that to engage the Enemy was their Buſineſs, and to that end, the Army was quartered all night in the Fields, and the next Morning they marched towards Preſton in Lancaſhire.

That having Intelligence that the Enemy was drawing together thereabouts from all his Out Quarters, Cromwell drew out a Forlorn of two hundred Horſe and four hundred Foot, who gallantly engaged the Enemy's Scouts and Guards, till Cromwell got Opportunity during this Skirmiſh to bring up his whole Army.

That ſo ſoon as Cromwell's Horſe and Foot were come up, they advanced with their Forlorns, and put the reſt of the Army into as good a Poſture as they could, the Ground for the Horſe being inconvenient, miry, and incloſures, they preſſed upon the Enemy through a Lane, forced them from their Ground, after four Hours diſpute, until they came to the Town.

Into which four Troops of Cromwell's Regiment firſt entred, being well ſeconded by Colonel Harriſon's Regiment; they charged the Duke's Men in the Town, and cleared the Streets; at the laſt the Enemy was put into Diſorder, many were ſlain, and many Priſoners taken.

The Duke with moſt of the Scots Horſe and Foot retreated over the Bridge, and the Parliament's Horſe and Foot following them, after a hot Diſpute betwixt the Lancaſhire Regiments, part of the General's and they being at Puſh of Pike, they were beaten from the Bridge.

That the Parliament's Horſe and Foot purſuing them, killed many, and took divers Priſoners, and poſſeſſed the Bridge over Derwent, and a few Houſes there; that the Enemy being drawn up within Musket-ſhot of them, where they lay that night, they were not able to attempt further upon the Enemy, the Night preventing them.

That in this Poſture they and the Enemy lay moſt part of that Night, that upon their entring of the Town, many of the Enemy's Horſe fled towards Lancaſter, and were purſued near ten Miles with Execution done upon them, about five hundred of their Horſe taken, and many Priſoners.

That in the Fight, they took from the Enemy four or five hundred Arms, the number of the ſlain was about one thouſand, the Priſoners about four thouſand.

That in the Night the Duke marched away about eight thouſand Foot and four thouſand Horſe, Cromwell followed him with about three thouſand Foot, and two thouſand five hundred Horſe and Dragoons, and that in this Purſuit Colonel Thornhaugh preſſing too boldly, was ſlain, being run into the Body, Thigh, and Head, by the Enemy's Lances.

That Cromwell's Horſe ſtill proſecuted the Enemy, killing and taking divers in the way, but by that time his Army was come up, the Duke recover'd Wiggan before they could attempt any thing upon them; they lay all that Night in the Field dirty and weary, where they had ſome Skirmiſhing with the Enemy, where they took Major General Van Drusk, Colonel Hurrey, and Lieutenant Colonel Innis Priſoners.

That the next Morning the Enemy marched towards Warrington, made a Stand at a Paſs, which was diſputed with great Reſolution on both ſides for many Hours, at length Cromwell beat them from their Standing, killed about one thouſand of them, and took about two thouſand Priſoners.

That Cromwell purſued them home to Warrington Town, where they poſſeſſed the Bridge; Cromwell coming thither received a Letter from Lieutenant General Bayly, deſiring ſome Capitulation, to which Cromwell yielded, and gave Bayly theſe Terms.

That he ſhould ſurrender himſelf and all his Officers and Soldiers Priſoners of War, with all his Arms, Ammunition, and Horſes upon Quarter for Life, which accordingly was done, and here were taken four thouſand compleat Arms, and as many Priſoners, and the Duke's Infantry ruined.

That the Duke marched with his remaining Horſe, being about three thouſand, towards Nantwich, where the Gentlemen of the Country took about five hundred of them, and the Country killed divers of their Men.

That Cromwell ſent Poſt to the Lord Grey, Sir Henry Cholmly, and Sir Ed. Roade, to gather all together with ſpeed, for the Purſuit of the Enemy. That Monroe is about Cumberland with the Horſe that ran away, and the Iriſh Horſe and Foot, and a Strength was left to make Reſiſtance againſt them.

That the Scots Army were twelve thouſand Foot well armed, and five thouſand Horſe; Langdale had two thouſand five hundred Foot and one thouſand five hundred Horſe, in all twenty one thouſand, and in the Parliament's Army, in all, about eight thouſand ſix hundred; and of the Enemy, about two thouſand were ſlain, and about nine thouſand Priſoners taken, beſides what are lurking in Hedges, and private places, which the Country daily bring in or deſtroy.

A day of Thankſgiving ordered for this great Victory.

Order for Proviſion of Shoes and Stockings for the Soldiers.

Mr. Sexby who brought up two Letters had one hundred Pounds given him, and two hundred Pounds ordered to Mr. Berry for this Service.

Order for Commiſſions to iſſue in ſeveral Counties, to enquire what Loſs is ſuſtained by particular Perſons, by the Invaſion of the Scots, that Satisfaction may be given therein.

24. An Ordinance for ſettling Delinquents Eſtates for maintaining a Troop of Horſe in Surrey.

A Committee made to examine a Plot in the City, and the Houſe approved of their Committing Major Rivers, and others, to Windſor Caſtle. 24 Car.

25. Order for the Judges to go the Northern Circuit, if they pleaſe. Cromwell

A ſecond Letter from Lieutenant General Cromwell, confirming the total routing of the Scots Army, with a Liſt of the Priſoners, and a hundred Colours taken, ſent up to the Houſe, who gave a hundred Pounds to Captain Pilſon that brought the Letters, and referr'd them to the Committee of the Army, as to providing Neceſſaries for the Army.

Both Houſes paſſed the Letter to his Majeſty with the Votes incloſed in relation to a Treaty, and Sir Peter Killegrew diſpatched away with it to the King.

The forty thouſand Pounds charged in Goldſmiths-Hall for the Scots as part of their two hundred thouſand Pounds, was now order'd for the Service of the Navy.

Letters from Colcheſter Leaguer, That the Lord Norwich, Lord Capel, and Sir Charles Lucas, ſent a Letter to the General. Colcheſter Leaguer.

That the Officers adviſing upon his former Letters (demanding the Perſons of all the Officers with them, above the Quality of a Lieutenant, to render themſelves to Mercy) it was unanimouſly reſolved by them, not to yield to the Mercy of any other, but that of God alone.

That to avoid Effuſion of Blood, they ſent now the loweſt Conditions, which in Honour they can receive, conceiving the like have never been refuſed to any lower reduced than they; they offer to ſend one Gentleman or more, to clear any Scruples in Words; in the Letters the Articles propoſed by them were incloſed.

To this the General returned Anſwer.

That when he looked upon their Condition to be far better than now it is, he then offered ſuch Terms as were thought ſuitable to their Conditions, but now they being in a worſe Poſture, both in relation to themſelves within, and to any Expectation of Relief from without, it is not to be expected from him, that their Conditions ſhould be better; therefore he was ſtill reſolved not to grant any ſuch Terms, as were demanded by them. Fairfax's Anſwer.

26. Referred to the Committee at Derby Houſe, to diſpoſe of the Noblemen, and other Priſoners, taken at the Fight at Preſton, unto ſuch Caſtles and Places as they ſhall think fit.

An Ordinance paſſed for taking away Obſtructions in the Sale of Biſhops Lands.

Letters from Colonel Rich of the Surrender of Deal Caſtle upon Articles, which the Houſe approved, and ordered Colonel Rich to be Governor there; and gave one hundred Pounds to Lieutenant Axtel, who brought the News to them. Deal Caſtle.

Referred to the Committee of the Army to take care to repair Deal and Warmer.

Mr. Halyburton ſtaid at Tilbury in his going to the Prince, was ordered to be delivered to the Lord Admiral, to be tranſported into Scotland.

Debate about the Militia.

Intelligence that Langdale with about ten Gentlemen more diſguiſed, were taken about Nottingham, and were now Priſoners there; and that Duke Hamilton was forced by the Country (who had eaſed him of one thouſand of his Horſe) to fly to Uxeter in Staffordſhire, and was there blocked up, and that Lieutenant General Cromwell was gone farther againſt Monroe. D. Hamilton.

Letters from Colcheſter Leaguer, that the Enemy ſent out a Drum with Mr. Barnadiſton, one Colcheſter

Anno 1648. of the Committee, and Colonel Tuke one of their Party to desire to treat upon what was formerly offered by the General.

And by a full Council of War it was resolved, that in regard the inferior Officers and Soldiers in the Town, had slipt their Opportunity, that now, they should only have fair Quarter.

And provided that the Committee under Restraint be forthwith released, that a Treaty be admitted upon Circumstances, necessary for the clearing, and orderly Performance of the fair Quarter now offered, and to treat, as to securing the Town from Plunder, and the Lords, General Officers, Captains, &c. to be rendred up to Mercy.

That the private Soldiers on both sides held Treaties among themselves, which caused the Enemy to send out so hastily, to treat upon Terms of Mercy, fearing that their private Soldiers among themselves had agreed to deliver them up.

That the Officers in the Town gave the Soldiers Sack, burnt Claret, Raisins, and good Words, to join with them to break through the Parliament's Army, and prepared Poles and Boards to break over North Bridge, which way they intended to escape.

When they were all drawn out into the Town, the Soldiers agreed among themselves not to consent to their going out, knowing that then they would break through themselves, and leave the Soldiers to the Mercy of the Parliament's Army.

And some of their Soldiers got to the Gates, and said they would kill their Officers if they offered to stir out, and so continued in an high Mutiny.

This is the Disposition of Soldiers, and indeed when Life is at stake, who knows or submits to Discipline.

28. Debate about Compositions.

An Ordinance for sequestring all Scots that engaged in the late Action, and had any Estates or Places here.

Letters from Colchester concerning the Surrender of the Town.

Duke Hamilton. Colonel Wayte a Member of the House, reported the taking of Duke Hamilton, and above three thousand Horse and Men at Uxeter, all Prisoners at Mercy, but had Quarter given them by the Lord Grey, and the Duke was sent to Ashby de la Zouch. The House gave one hundred Pounds to Major General Smithson, and one hundred Pounds to Major Evans, and ordered Thanks to the Counties for their Assistance.

Order to sequester Sir H. Gibbe's Estate.

A Committee to examine Duke Hamilton and others, who say they were invited to come into England, by ten for one more now than they were before.

The Prince. Intelligence from the Downs, that the Prince had a Design to go to the Scots Army, but the Sailers would not agree to it, but consented to go against the Earl of Warwick, and in the mean time, hearing of the Defeat of the Scots Army, they altered their Course, that the Earl of Warwick went out to fight with them.

Colchester Letters from Colchester, that the Articles were signed, and Colonel Rainsborough's Regiment, and another entred the Town, and saw a sad sight of so many fair Houses burnt, and so many Inhabitants sick and weak, with living upon Horses and Dogs, and eating the very Draught and Grains for Preservation of their Lives.

29. Sir Peter Killegrew returned with the King's Answer to the Votes touching the Treaty.

That he did accept the Treaty, and desired the Commissioners might be speedily sent, fully authorized and instructed, not doubting but what is now wanting, will upon debate be fully supplied, not only to the furtherance of the Treaty, but to the consummating of a safe and well-grounded Peace. 24 Car. Treaty.

He desired a Pass for one to go from him into Scotland, and inclosed in his Letter a List of such as he desired to be sent to him.

A Committee appointed to consider how every County may maintain a proportionable number of the Scots Prisoners, and to treat with Merchants about transporting them to foreign Service. Scots.

Order for the Lord Grey to dispose of Duke Hamilton into safe Custody, till the House take further Order; and to keep in strong Custody all the Officers then Prisoners, in such Places and Castles as he should think fit.

Letters from Colchester, that the Town was surrendred according to Articles, all Prisoners at Mercy, the Town preserv'd from Plunder, paying fourteen thousand Pounds. That by the Resolution of a Council of War, Sir Charles Lucas, Sir George L'Isle, and Sir Marmaduke Gascoigne a Papist, were to be shot to death. Colchester surrendred.

That the two first were executed, and the third respited. That Sir Charles Lucas urged this was to be without Precedent, but a Parliament Soldier standing by, told him, that he had put to death with his own Hand some of the Parliament's Soldiers in cold Blood; at which he was dismaid, but took better Courage afterwards before he died. Lucas.

That Sir George L'Isle kissed his dead Friend, and then after much Expostulation and Discourse, first with the General his Chaplain, then (by his own Desire) with one of the Lord Norwich's Chaplains, and some private Prayers with him; Sir George died, both he and Sir Charles Lucas with very much Courage.

30. The publick Fast-Day.

The House passed an Ordinance for the Discipline of the English in New England.

31. Votes for several Persons named by the King, to have Leave to attend his Majesty, during the Treaty, only Mr. Dowcet, and Mr. Legge disapproved of.

Order for Instructions to be prepared for the Commissioners who are to treat, and for Money for their Charges.

Order that Colonel Farre Lieutenant Colonel to the Earl of Warwick (who engaged one thousand Men of the Train'd-Bands of Essex to join with the Enemy) should be left to the Lord Fairfax to be executed as Sir Charles Lucas was.

A Committee appointed to confer with Mr. Mobbot, about suppressing of scandalous Pamphlets, and to bring in an Ordinance for that purpose.

Letter from the General of the Particulars of the Surrender of Colchester, and a Copy of the Articles, with the Explanations upon them. Colchester Particulars.

That for some Satisfaction to Military Justice, and in Part of Avenge for the innocent Blood they had caused to be spilt, and the Trouble, Damage, and Mischiefs they had brought upon that Town, that County and Kingdom.

He had with the Advice of a Council of War, of the chief Officers both of the County Forces and the Army, caused two of them who were rendred to Mercy, Sir Charles Lucas, and Sir George L'Isle to be shot to Death, before any of them had Quarter assured them, and hopes the Parliament will not find Cause in the Military Execution of these two Persons, to think their own Honour or Justice prejudiced.

That

Anno. 1648. That as for the Lord Goring, Lord Capel, and the reſt of the Perſons rendred to Mercy, and now aſſured of Quarter, whoſe Names he ſent in a Liſt, he did render to the Parliament's Judgment for publick Juſtice and Mercy, to be uſed as they ſhould ſee Cauſe; he deſires that God may have the Glory of his multiplied Mercies.

In the Liſt of the Priſoners, were the Earl of Norwich, Lord Capel, Lord Loughborough, eleven Knights, nine Colonels, eight Lieutenant Colonels, nine Majors, thirty Captains, general Officers Servants of the Lords and Gentlemen, ſixty five, Lieutenants ſeventy two, Enſigns and Cornets ſixty nine, Sergeants one hundred and eighty three, private Soldiers three thouſand and ſixty ſeven.

5. That none be forced or preſſed to ſerve in War.

6. To have made both Kings, Queens, Princes, Dukes, Earls, Lords, and all Perſons alike liable to every Law of the Land.

7. That all Commoners be freed from the Juriſdiction of the Lords, in all Caſes, and all Trials to be of twelve ſworn Men, and no Conviction but upon two or more ſufficient known Witneſſes.

8. That none be examined againſt themſelves, nor puniſhed for doing that againſt which no Law is provided.

9. That the Proceedings in Law be abbreviated, mitigated, and made certain the Charge thereof in all Particulars.

10. That all Trade be made free from all monopolizing, and engroſſing by Companies or otherwiſe.

11. That the Exciſe and all kind of Taxes, except Subſidies, be taken off.

12. To have laid open all late Encloſures of Fens, and other Commons, or to have them encloſed, only or chiefly for the Benefit of the Poor.

13. To

Anno 1648.

13. To have conſidered many thouſands that are ruined by perpetual Impriſonment for Debt, and provided for their Enlargement.

14. To have ordered ſome effectual Courſe, to keep People from begging and Beggery in ſo fruitful a Nation, as by God's Bleſſing this is.

15. To have proportioned Puniſhments more equal to Offences, that ſo Mens Lives and Eſtates might not be forfeited upon trivial and ſlight Occaſions.

16. To have removed the tedious Burden of Tithes, ſatisfying all Impropriators, and providing a more equal Way of Maintenance for poor Miniſters.

17. To have raiſed a Stock of Money out of confiſcated Eſtates, for Payment of thoſe who contributed voluntarily above their Abilities, before thoſe that diſburſed out of their Superfluities.

18. To have bound themſelves and all future Parliaments from aboliſhing Propriety, levelling Mens Eſtates, or making all things common.

19. To have declared what the Duty or Buſineſs of the Kingly Office is, and what not; and have aſcertained the Revenue, paſt Increaſe or Diminution, that there be no more Quarrels about it.

20. To have rectified the Election of publick Officers for London, reſtoring the Commonalty thereof to their juſt Rights.

21. To have made Reparation to all oppreſſed by Sentences in High Commiſſion, Star-Chamber, and Council-Board, or by any Monopolies or Projects; and that out of the Eſtates of thoſe that were Authors, Actors, and Promoters of thoſe Miſchiefs; and that without much Attendance.

22. To have aboliſhed all Committees, and have conveyed all Buſineſſes into the true Method of the uſual Trials of the Commonwealth.

23. Not to have followed the Example of former tyrannous and ſuperſtitious Parliaments, in making Orders, Ordinances, or Laws, or in appointing Puniſhments concerning Opinions, or things ſupernatural, ſtiling ſome Blaſphemies, others Hereſies.

24. To have declared what the Buſineſs of the Lords is, and aſcertained their Condition, not derogating from the Liberties of other Men, that ſo there might be an end of ſtriving about the ſame.

25. To have done Juſtice upon the Capital Authors and Promoters of the former or late Wars.

26. To have provided conſtant Pay for the Army, and to have given Rules to all Judges and other Officers for their Indemnity, and ſaving harmleſs all that have aſſiſted them.

27. To have laid to Heart the Abundance of innocent Blood that hath been ſpilt, and the infinite Spoil and Havock that hath been made of peaceable, harmleſs People, by expreſs Commiſſion from the King, and to have ſeriouſly conſidered, whether the Juſtice of God be likely to be ſatisfied, or his yet remaining Wrath to be appeaſed by an Act of Oblivion.

Anſwer. The Houſe gave Thanks to the Petitioners for their great Pains, and Care to the publick good of the Kingdom, and ſaid they would ſpeedily take their Deſires into Conſideration.

I have the more largely inſerted this Petition becauſe it was framed by the principal Men of that Perſuaſion, and contains the Opinions of a great Party in this time, and hath ſome deſirable things in it.

Petition. Another Petition was from well affected Maſters and Commanders of Ships, Shewing that the Parliament had done contrary to their Declarations, and Trade deſtroyed, and they petition for Convoys of their Ships in trading Outwards and Inwards, according to the Order of the Hollanders.

And that all Monopolies and Reſtraint of Trade may be removed, and ſome way taken, to prevent the Shipping of Goods in foreign Bottoms.

Intelligence from the revolted Ships, that ſome of them are mending in Holland, that the Sailers are inſolent in their Carriage towards the Prince. 24 Car. Revolted Ships.

Letters from the Iſle of Wight, that the King was removed to the Place of Treaty, and had his Liberty to ride about the Iſland.

Letters from Cheſter, that by a Council of War there, two were condemned and executed for a Plot to betray that City to the King's Forces.

Letters from the North, that a hundred Scots were brought in Priſoners by the Country, that Cromwell was in Purſuit of the Enemy, and Lambert in the Rear of him, that the Enemy are about ſix thouſand ſtrong. North.

That Colonel Bethel and Colonel Laſſels are ſent to enforce the Siege at Scarborough, where three hundred Walloons are landed by Command of the Prince; that the Soldiers run away from Pontefract Caſtle to the Parliament's Party.

12. The Day of publick Humiliation for a Bleſſing upon the Treaty.

Letters from Newcaſtle, that Lieutenant General Cromwell was about Durham purſuing the Enemy, who in the Biſhoprick had exceedingly plundered and terrified the People, wounding divers, taking away the Children of others to get Money for the Redemption of them, and beſides Quarters they took of ſome three Pounds a Houſe. Cromwell

That thoſe who cried up Duke Hamilton's Party for the great Reformers, having been thus uſed by them, and with Civility by the Parliament's Party, their Opinions are now altered.

That Monroe held a Council of War, and reſolved to march back to the Coal-pits, and fire them all, but two Poſts came ſpeeding to him, to have him return preſently back to Scotland, for that the Presbyterian Miniſters had got hold of the Civil Sword, made the Marquiſs of Argyle General, who was four thouſand ſtrong, and too hard for the new levied Forces of the Lord Lanerick, Brother to Duke Hamilton. Scots.

That theſe Meſſengers came from Crauford and Lanerick; that the Scots Miniſters had decreed among other things, that in regard of the great Defection to the Covenant throughout Scotland, they will not adminiſter the Sacrament of the Supper for one Year to come.

That this ſaved the Coal-pits, and ſent the Scots the neareſt way over Tweed in ſuch haſte, that they had almoſt left their Plunder behind them, had they not preferred it before Life; and they left their Confederate Engliſh to ſhift for themſelves.

That ſome of Lieutenant General Cromwell's Forces were gone over Tine, and Major General Lambert marched by the way of Carliſle, and many Countrymen went with them to ſeek their Goods and Cattle, carried away into Scotland.

13. The Grand Committee ſat upon the Ordinance for Sale of Deans and Chapters Lands, and voted that a hundred Pounds per Annum ſhould be the leaſt that ſhould be allowed to any Miniſter for his Benefice.

Orders for Money for Plymouth Garriſon, and for Herefordſhire.

14. The Houſes ſat not, but the Committee of Derby Houſe and other Committees ſat, and Letters came, that the Lords and others ſent for by the King, were come to him, and from the North, that fifteen hundred old Soldiers were joining to march with David Leſley to the Marquiſs of Argyle.

That Monroe was diſpatching a Guard to Edinburgh; that Cromwell alarmed the Engliſh Cavaliers near to Berwick, and that the Inhabitants of Carliſle petitioned the Governor to let in no more Soldiers neither Scots nor Engliſh.

Ipſwich. That the General was gallantly entertained by the Town of Ipſwich, where Mr. Edgar made Fairfax. a Speech to his Excellency, who removed from thence to Yarmouth, who ſent out three Aldermen to meet him, and gave him great Entertainment; they agreed to admit three Troops of Horſe, and a Company of his Foot to quarter there.

15. Letters that the General went from Yarmouth to St. Edmonds-Bury, thence to Malden, where he viewed the remaining Reliques of the Roman Induſtry.

That he viewed the Fort of Mercy Iſland, and gave Orders at Harwich for keeping the Guards, and manning of the Works there.

That he viewed Langarfort, a Place of great Strength and Concernment, and there and at Harwich, and other Places, had a great Number of Ordnance diſcharged to ſalute him.

He ordered Colonel Desborough to command the Forces in Yarmouth; and took care not to prejudice the fiſhing Trade there, by the Soldiers.

That he was highly entertained at Sir John Wentworth's in Lovingland, and at Norwich the High Sheriff of Norfolk and the Mayor, Aldermen, and Sheriffs of the City in their Scarlet Gowns, with the Train'd-Bands of Horſe and Foot came out of the Town, and accompanied the General in thither, and highly treated him.

16. The Houſe ſat not.

Treaty. Iſle of Wight. Letters from the Iſle of Wight, that the Commiſſioners of the Parliament for the Treaty were come to Newport, where the King was with thoſe whom he had ſent for to attend him; and that there was a very fair Correſpondence betwixt them, and the Parliament's Commiſſioners.

Some noted the Aſtrological Predictions of Mr. Lilly, to fall out very ſtrangely according to what he had predicted, particularly concerning the Danger of the King's Perſon by a Fall from his Horſe.

18. The Houſes ſat not.

Cromwell Letters came from Lieutenant General Cromwell, that he ſent Major General Lambert with a Summons to Berwick, that Sir Thomas Tildeſley with about fifteen hundred lay on this ſide Berwick, but were not ſuffered to come in. 24. Car.

That Monroe marched through with three thouſand, and was joined with Lanerick, who had five thouſand more; that Argyle lay twelve Miles from Edinburgh with about ten thouſand Men, and both Parties were upon a Treaty; that they found no Bread in that Country but Biskets, which they brought from Newcaſtle. Scots.

That Colonel Aſhton with the Lancaſhire Foot is marched towards Carliſle.

Letters from Lambert's Quarters of their March towards the Borders, and that David Leſley, with old Leven and Argyle, are in the Head of eight thouſand Horſe and Foot about Edinburgh, and have made the Committee of Eſtates to fly; that Leſley the Governor of Berwick hath kept out of that Town all both Engliſh and Scots Cavaliers, and reports, that he keeps it for the Parliament of England, and will deliver it up to them.

That the Engliſh Cavaliers in the North ſwear they are bewitched, and will fight no more, and daily depart from their Colours; that the Parliament's Army are diſcontented for want of Pay, and many of them ſlain and wounded, and divers Horſe loſt.

Letters came to the General from good Hands, and others from France, of a Deſign of the Cavaliers to ſtab him.

October, 1648.

Letter from the King. 2. A Letter from his Majeſty by Captain Titus, That he will conſent to confirm by Act of Parliament the ſitting of the Aſſembly of Divines, and the Directory of Worſhip for three Years, and the form of Church Government, provided that the King and thoſe of his Judgment, who cannot ſubmit to it, be not obliged to comply.

That a free Conſultation and Debate with the Aſſembly be had in the mean time, twenty of his Majeſty's Nomination being added to them, whereby it may be determined, how Church Government, and the Form of publick Worſhip ſhall be after that time, and how Religion may be ſettled, and the Articles determined, and care taken for the eaſe of tender Conſciences.

Concerning the Biſhops Lands and Revenues his Majeſty will conſent to Acts of Parliament, whereby legal Eſtates for Lives, or for ninety nine Years ſhall be made of thoſe Lands towards ſatisfaction of Purchaſers or others to whom they are engaged, or his Majeſty will order ſome other way for their farther ſatisfaction, providing that the Propriety and Inheritance of thoſe Lands may ſtill remain to the Church.

That his Majeſty will conſent to Acts for the better Obſervation of the Lords-day, for ſuppreſſing Innovations in God's Worſhip, and for the advancing of Preaching.

And to Acts againſt Pluralties, and Non-reſidencies, for regulating the Univerſities and Colleges, for the better diſcovery and conviction of Popiſh Recuſants, and Education of their Children in the Proteſtant Religion, for levying of Penalties againſt Papiſts and their Practices againſt the State, and for putting the Laws in Execution, and for a ſtricter courſe to prevent hearing and ſaying of Maſs.

As to the Covenant, his Majeſty was not then ſatisfied, that he could ſign or ſwear it, or conſent to impoſe it on the Conſciences of others, nor did he conceive it proper or uſeful at that time, to be inſiſted upon.

As to the Militia his Majeſty will conſent to an Act, to have it in the Hands of the Parliament for ten Years.

Touching Ireland, after advice with his two Houſes, his Majeſty will leave it to their determination.

Touching publick Debts, he will conſent to raiſing Monies by equal Taxes.

Laſtly he propoſeth to have Liberty to come forthwith to Weſtminſter, and be reſtored to a condition of Freedom and Safety, and to the Poſſeſſion of his Lands and Revenues; and that an Act of Oblivion and Indemnity may paſs, to extend to all Perſons for all Matters relating to the late unhappy Differences; which being agreed by his two Houſes, his Majeſty will be ready to make theſe his Conceſſions binding, by giving them the Force of Laws by his Royal Aſſent. 24 Car.

More than this could not be obtained from his Majeſty, though moſt earneſtly begged of him by ſome of the Commiſſioners (great Perſons) with Tears, and on their Knees; particularly as to the Propoſition touching Religion. But the prelatical Party about him for their particular Intereſt and Power to perſecute others, prevail'd with him rather to hazard his Crown and Life, than to diminiſh their Greatneſs and Power.

Wherein the Church Government and publick Worſhip, and chiefly the Revenues of the Church, ſwayed more with the King's Chaplains Chaplains. then about him, and they more with his Majeſty (continually whiſpering matter of Conſcience to him) than the Parliament, and all their Commiſſioners could prevail with him for an Agreement, though poſſibly his own Judgment (which was above all theirs) might not be ſo fully convinced by his eager Divines about him.

After a long Debate upon this Meſſage, the Houſe voted it unſatisfactory; and a Letter of Vote. Thanks to be written to the Commiſſioners, approving what they had done, and requiring them to proceed according to their Inſtructions.

Letters from Colonel Monk of his late Succeſs in Ireland; the Houſe ordered Major General Monroe to be committed to the Fleet, for joining Monroe. with the Enemy in Scotland, and perfidiouſly breaking the Truſt repoſed in him.

A Petition from Leiceſterſhire to the ſame effect, Petition. with the large Petition of London and that from Oxfordſhire, againſt the Treaty.

Letters from Cromwell's Quarters in Scotland, Cromwell. near Edinburgh, that he and his Officers, are careful that the Soldiers give no offence to the Inhabitants by Plunder, or any Incivility; that Cromwell cauſed Horſes taken from the Scots by ſome of his Soldiers, to be reſtored, and the Plunderers to be caſhiered.

A Lieutenant who connived at the Plunder, was committed to the Marſhal; and the Colonel himſelf taken from the head of his Regiment, and ſuſpended the execution of his Place till he were tried by a Council of War, and the Regiment ſent back again; and this impartial Juſtice pleaſed the Scots.

That Argyle and his Party, endeavoured to perſuade the Surrender of Berwick to Cromwell, to whoſe Quarters they ſent their Commiſſioners to this end. That Leven certified Argyle, that both his Army, and that under Lanerick were likely to agree.

Letters from Cockermouth, that it was ſtill beſieged by five hundred Countrymen, that they mined near the Wall, and the Governor, Lieutenant Bird, ſallied out, killed and took all that were at Work, brought away their Tools, and burnt the Barn that ſheltered them; that Cromwell had ordered Forces to relieve the Caſtle.

Argyle took at Leith a Ship with ten thouſand Arms from Denmark, deſigned for Duke Hamilton.

Cromwell ſent ſome Horſe and Dragoons to purſue ſome of Duke Hamilton's Officers, who were got together in the Cheviot Hills.

3. All the Day was ſpent upon the Buſineſs of the Militia, for ſettling it, and upon the Queſtion, it was carried in the Affirmative for it.

4. Letters from the General, that he received many Complaints of the inſupportable Burden People

Anno 1648. People lie under, by his Soldiers taking of free Quarter upon them, though they pay their Aſſeſſments, and have been always well affected to the Parliament.

He deſires a ſpeedy Courſe may be taken for Payment of the Army, that thereby his Soldiers may be enabled to pay their Quarters, and the People may not be oppreſſed by free Quarter any more.

Free Quarter. Order, that four Members of the Houſe do go down to the General to take notice of his good Service, to congratulate his good Succeſs, to return him the Thanks of the Houſe, and to acquaint him with what they had done upon his Letter for bringing in of Monies for the Army, that free Quarter might be taken off.

They preſently ſent a Meſſage to the Lords, deſiring them to paſs the Ordinance, which had many Days remained with them, for bringing in the Aſſeſſments for the Army; their not paſſing whereof, occaſioned the taking of free Quarter.

Order, that the General be deſired ſo to quarter the Army as may be leaſt burdenſome to the ſeveral Counties, eſpecially to ſuch as have paid their Aſſeſſments.

Scotland. Letters from the North, that all things were agreed between the ſeveral Parties in Scotland, all are to lay down Arms, Berwick and Carliſle to be ſurrendred to Lieutenant General Cromwell, a Parliament to be called in Scotland, and none to be of it, that were in the Engagement againſt England.

Monk. The Lords concurred with the Commons, for five hundred Pounds to be given to Colonel Monk, and to make him Governor of Carickfergus, and for two hundred Pounds to Major Brough, who brought Major General Monroe to London.

The Lord Inchequin's Son, ſent into Ireland to be exchanged.

Order for a thouſand Pounds for Coals, for the Poor of London and Southwark, according to a Grant of King James.

Order for the Commiſſioners of the Seal to bring in a Liſt of Names for Judges to fill all the Benches.

Referred to the Committee at Derby Houſe, to conſider of the ſupernumerary Soldiers.

5. Debate touching the Navy, and for a Winter Guard, for which they ordered two thouſand ſeven hundred eighty five Men, and the Committee of the Navy to provide Victuals, &c. and fifty thouſand Pounds ordered for them.

Several Orders for raiſing Monies for the uſe of the Navy.

Goring. Capel. 6. Letters from the Lord Goring and Lord Capel, that they took notice of an Order of the Houſe of Commons for impeaching them of High Treaſon, and inform that Quarter was given them by the General who had writ to the Houſe to that purpoſe; Order, That the General explain his Letter as to this Point.

Order for ſix hundred Pounds for disbanding the new raiſed Forces in Dorſetſhire.

Petition. Upon a Petition of the Clothiers of Kent, referred to a Committee to conſider of the decay of Trade in general, and to propound Remedies.

Debate about the Ordinance for Sale of Deans and Chapters Lands.

7. Report of the Arrears of the Aſſeſſment to the Army to be three hundred fourteen thouſand three hundred and fifty one Pounds, of which fifty thouſand Pounds were in arrear in London.

Order that the Collectors who had not brought in the Arrears ſhould be taken into Cuſtody; and that the Members of the Houſe write to the Committees of the ſeveral Counties.

Letters from Lieutenant General Cromwell of the Surrender of Berwick and Carliſle to him. The Houſe approved what he had done, and ordered the Pay of the Forces there, a hundred Pounds given to the Meſſenger. 24 Car. Berwick and Carliſle.

Letters from the Iſle of Wight, that the King gave a Paper of Reaſons to the Parliament's Commiſſioners, why he could not condeſcend to take away Biſhops and Government by Biſhops, which he conceived to be of Apoſtolical Inſtitution, and alledged ſeveral Scriptures to that purpoſe. Iſle of Wight.

He alſo propounded ſome Queries concerning Presbyterian Government, wherein he deſired to be ſatisfied; the Commiſſioners referred it to Mr. Marſhall, Mr. Vines, Mr. Caryll, and Mr. Seaman who were with them, to draw up an Anſwer for ſatisfaction of his Majeſty.

9. Debate of an Ordinance for a hundred thouſand Pounds for paying the Arrears of reduced Officers and Soldiers: And,

Upon Information, that they were coming to London from all Parts of the Kingdom, Order for a Declaration to give them notice that the Houſe is paſſing an Ordinance for Satisfaction of their Arrears, and that their coming up to London will hinder the great Buſineſs of the Kingdom, and to forbid their coming up upon that or any other Pretence whatſoever. Reduced Officers.

Order to admit Colonel Butler to his Compoſition upon Pembroke's Articles.

The Lords Houſe being called there were about thirty Lords with them.

Letters from the Iſle of Wight, that his Majeſty gave in to the Commiſſioners his Objections touching the Alteration of Church Government; and the Miniſters then with the Parliament's Commiſſioners gave in a Paper for Anſwer and Satisfaction to the King's Scruples; and as to the Objection that the Sale of Biſhops Lands was Sacrilege, the Commiſſioners ſaid, it lay ſo much in the Laws of the Land, that the Miniſters could not judge of it. Iſle of Wight. Sacrilege.

That in their Debate touching the Liturgy, the King asked what fault they found in the Common Prayer Book; to which was replied that the Liturgy was taken out of the Maſs-Book, only ſpoiled in the Tranſlation; and that King James had ſo conſidered it. The King ſaid, That if it were good in it ſelf that did not not make it ill. That his Majeſty offered a limited Epiſcopacy. Liturgy.

Letters from Lieutenant General Cromwell, of the Particulars of the rendring of Berwick and Carliſle to the Parliament; and deſiring that Sir Arthur Haſelrigge may ſupply Berwick being ſo conſiderable a Place, with Guns and Ammunition from Newcaſtle.

That both Parties in Scotland were agreed to disband all Forces, except fifteen hundred Horſe and Foot under General Leven to be kept to ſee all remaining Forces disbanded; that he had ſome things to deſire from the Committee of Eſtates in Scotland, for the Service of the Parliament of England, for which Purpoſe he was himſelf going to them. Scotland.

The Chancellor of Scotland by command of the Committee of Eſtates of Scotland, writ a Letter to Lieutenant General Cromwell, giving him Thanks for the many Civilities, and kind Reſpect he had ſhewed to that Kingdom, and that they had ſent Commiſſioners to him, to acquaint him with the Agreement betwixt them in Arms in Scotland, wherein they had been careful to avoid any thing that might give Offence to the Parliament of England.

They acknowledge Advantage hath come to them by the near Diſtance of the Engliſh Forces, in preventing Anno 1648 preventing new Troubles, whereof they ſhall be always mindful, and endeavour to preſerve the Union, and a good Correſpondence betwixt the two Kingdoms.

Petitions. 10. A Petition from Newcaſtle, deſiring that before the Treaty be ended, impartial and ſpeedy Juſtice may be executed, upon the Incendiaries, Fomenters, and Actors in the firſt and ſecond War.

Another from York and from Hull, that the treacherous and implacable Enemies may be deſtroyed, and exemplary Juſtice done upon them, without Partiality or Delay, and their Eſtates to go towards diſcharging Arrears and publick Debts.

Another Petition to the ſame purpoſe but all laid aſide by the Houſe.

Iſle of Wight. 11. Letters from the Commiſſioners in the Iſle of Wight, that his Majeſty had conſented to the ſettling of the Militia by Sea and Land as in the Propoſition, and that he will conſent to an Act of Parliament to confirm for three Years, the Form of Church Government, and Directory for Worſhip preſented to him.

But that he is not ſatisfied in his Conſcience, or can be content to the utter aboliſhing of Epiſcopacy, the Subſtance whereof he conceives to conſiſt in the Power of Ordination and Juriſdiction, as they were exerciſed by the Apoſtles themſelves, and others by Authority derived from them, ſuperior to Presbyters and Deacons in the primitive Times.

His Majeſty's Reſolution being to comply with his two Houſes, for the Alteration and regulating of his preſent Hierarchy, and Government, ſo as Epiſcopacy reduced to the primitive Uſage, may be ſettled and continued in the Church; and if his two Houſes ſhall ſo adviſe, his Majeſty will be content, to leſſen the Extent, and multiply the Number of the Dioceſes.

That he will conſent to the ſitting of the Aſſembly of Divines, as formerly he offered, and to confirm the publick Uſe of the Directory, and will conſent to the Repeal of ſo much of all Statutes, as only concern the Book of Common Prayer, and taking the ſame away out of all Churches, provided that the uſe of it be continued to his Majeſty.

That he will conſent to an Act for the better Obſervation of the Lord's-day, and to prevent ſaying of Maſs.

That he was not ſatisfied to take the Covenant, or to impoſe it upon others, and conceives his two Houſes will not inſiſt upon it, and the rather becauſe the Ends of it will be obtained, by the Agreement if happily concluded.

Vote. Upon debate of this Paper from his Majeſty, whether, as concerning Matter of Religion it was ſatisfactory or not? It was voted in the Negative, and a Letter ordered to be writ to the Commiſſioners to proceed in the Treaty according to their Inſtructions, and that till the Propoſition for Religion were ſigned, they ſhould not proceed to the Debate of any of the new; and that notice ſhould be taken of the extraordinary wiſe Management of this Treaty by the Commiſſioners.

An Ordinance tranſmitted to the Lords for five thouſand Pounds for Pay of the Horſe-guards attending the Parliament.

Orders touching Money and Proviſions for the Fleet.

12. Upon a Report from the Commiſſioners of the Seal, the Houſe ordered, That there ſhould be a new Call of Sergeants at Law, and voted to be Sergeants;

Sergeant. at Law. Out of Grays Inn Sir Thomas Widdrington, Sir Thomas Beddingfield, Mr. Keble, Mr. Thorpe, and Mr. Bradſhaw.

Out of Lincolns Inn, Mr. Sollicitor, Mr. Samuel Browne, Mr Recorder Glyn, and Mr. Earle.

Out of the Middle Temple, my ſelf, Mr. Coniers, and Mr. Puleſton.

Out of the Inner Temple, Mr. Chapman, Mr. Gates, and Mr. William Littleton. 24 Car.

Judges. Order that Sergeant Rolles ſhould be made Lord Chief Juſtice of the King's Bench; that Sergeant Jermyn, and Mr. Samuel Browne ſhould be made Juſtices of the ſame Court.

That Mr. Sollicitor ſhould be Chief Juſtice of the Common-Pleas, Sir Thomas Bedingfield, and Mr. Sergeant Creſwell, ſhould be Juſtices of that Court.

That Sergeant Wilde ſhould be Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer, and Mr. Gates a Baron of the Exchequer.

That Mr. Whitelocke ſhould be Attorney General of the Dutchy, and one of the King's Sergeants; that Mr. Prideaux ſhould be Sollicitor General, and Sir Thomas Widdrington one of the King's Sergeants.

The Houſe approved of all thoſe whom the Commiſſioners of the Seal named to be Judges and Sergeants, except Mr. Hatton of the Middle Temple, upon whom the Queſtion was not put.

I earneſtly deſired to have been excuſed from being King's Sergeant, but could not prevail, but was voted with Sir Thomas Widdrington to be King's Sergeants; and in the Debate, upon the occaſion of mentioning my Name, the Houſe, and many particular Members of it, did expreſs much Favour and Reſpect to me, their Compliments were too high to be remembred by me.

13. Vote that Leaſes renewed with Deans and Chapters ſince a Day paſt, ſhould be void.

An Ordinance paſt by the Commons for aboliſhing Deans and Chapters, &c.

An Ordinance paſt both Houſes for the Governor of Dover Caſtle, to be Lieutenant of it.

Letters from the Iſle of Wight, that the King had conſented, Iſle of Wight.

1. That an Act of Parliament be paſſed to make void the Ceſſation, and all Treaties and Concluſions of Peace with the Rebels in Ireland, without the Conſent of both Houſes of Parliament; and the Proſecution of the War there to be left to the two Houſes, and the King to aſſiſt them, and do no Act to hinder or diſturb them.

2. The Reformation of Religion in Ireland to be ſettled by the Parliament of England.

3. The chief Governors and Officers in Ireland, to be nominated by the Parliament of England.

This to be for twenty Years, from July 1, 1648.

14. Voted for the Lord Admiral to continue at Goree, in order to the reducing of the revolted Ships, and Orders for the Committee of the Navy to make Proviſions, and take care for Money for the Fleet.

16. Upon a Petition of the Common-Council of London, for a Supply of Miniſters in the City, and for an Allowance to them out of Deans and Chapters Lands, referred to a Committee to conſider thereof, and of the want of a good Miniſtry in other Parts of the Kingdom. Petition.

Order, that thoſe who took a Bark at Rye, of the King's Party, ſhould have the Benefit of it.

Debate about ſatisfying of a Debt out of Sir John Stowell's Eſtate, to Sir Henry Holcroft, but not allowed; and an Order for Trial of Sir John Stowell.

Letters,

Anno 1648. Appleby.

Letters, that Lieutenant General Aſhton relieved Cockermouth and purſued the Enemy to Appleby, which was rendred to the Parliament; and taken in it, five Knights, twenty five Colonels, nine Lieutenant Colonels, ſix Majors, forty ſix Captains, ſeventeen Lieutenants, ten Cornets, three Enſigns, five Pieces, one thouſand two hundred Horſe, one thouſand Arms, and all their Bag and Baggage.

Cromwell

Letters, that Lieutenant General Cromwell was received with great Ceremony at Edinburgh, where he demanded, that none who had been in Action in the late wicked Engagement and Invaſion, might hence forward be imployed in any publick Place of Truſt, to which the Committee of Eſtates there, gave a ſatisfactory Anſwer.

He had alſo Viſits and Conferences with Commiſſioners from the Kirk, and from the Provoſt and Magiſtrates of Edinburgh, and a ſtrong Guard of Soldiers at his Lodging. At the time of his being at Edinburgh, ſeveral other Demands were made by him to the Committee of Eſtates, who gave him very fair Anſwer, and he reſerved Liberty for the Parliament of England to make ſuch farther Demands as they ſhould think requiſite.

The Charges of Lieutenant General Cromwell's Entertainment, and of all his Company during the time of their being at Edinburgh were defrayed by the Lord Proveſt of the City, by Order of the Committee of Eſtates; and Cromwell, Haſelrigge, and the reſt of their Company were entertained by General Leven, the Lord Argyle, and many other Lords, at a ſumptuous Banquet in the Caſtle.

At their going away, the Caſtle ſaluted them, with many great Guns, and Vollies of ſmall Shot, and divers Lords convoyed them out of the City.

That in Edinburgh was a Proclamation, for all Malignants to depart the City, and not remain within ſix Miles of it.

17. The Houſe voted to adjourn for ſix Days, but the Lords diſſenting, they recalled their Vote.

Upon Letters from Colonel Aſhton of the Surrender of Appleby Caſtle, referred to the Committee of the North, what to do with the Caſtle, and how to ſecure the Arms, Ordnance and Ammunition there, in Lancaſter Caſtle, and gave thirty Pounds to the Meſſenger.

Letters from Lieutenant General Cromwell of his Proceedings in Scotland, and his Return to Carliſle; the Houſe approved of it, and ordered a Letter of Thanks to be written to him.

Ireland.

The Commons voted Sir William Parſons, and Sir John Temple to be Commiſſioners for the Great Seal of Ireland, and diſſented from the Lords, who voted to have a Chancellor there.

Iſle of Wight.

Letters from the Iſle of Wight, that the King had aſſented to all the Propoſitions, except that of the Church with ſome Qualifications.

That an Act be paſſed for raiſing Monies to pay the publick Debts; and if the King aſſent not to it, that then if it paſs both Houſes, it ſhall be valid in Law.

That by Act of Parliament, all Peers made ſince the Lord Littleton carried away, or that the Great Seal was carried away to Oxford, May 10, 1642. and who ſhall hereafter be made, ſhall not ſit or vote in Parliament, without the conſent of both Houſes; and that all Honours and Titles conferred on any ſince May 20, 1642, ſhall be void.

Letters from the Hague, that the Prince with the revolted Ships is ſtill in Goree Road, his Seamen diſcontented. That the Lord Culpepper was ſent to them with Money, and they ſaid they might thank the Earl of Warwick for it, that the Lord Culpepper was accuſed for betraying the Secrets of the Prince to the Parliament; and that the Lord Piercy was committed for giving the lye in the Prince's Preſence. 24 Car.

Letters that the Lord of Ormond was landed at Wexford in Ireland, and brought with him four thouſand Arms, and five hundred Cuiraſſiers, part of the Supply deſigned for the Scots. That the Engliſh Army were in great want of Pay, and Proviſions.

I made Application to the Lords not to be the King's Sergeant nor Attorney of the Dutchy, and I moved Sir Gilbert Gerrard the Chancellor of the Dutchy to make Mr. Hall Attorney.

18. Letters from the Lord General Fairfax, intimating the Proceedings of the Army, and that ſeveral Petitions were promoting among the Soldiery, of the Difficulties they had undergone in ſubduing their Enemies, and received little Pay, though Taxes were generally paid, deſiring that the Army may be divided into the Counties, proportionable to the Tax they pay, and that their Arrears may be thought of. Army.

The Houſe after a long Debate, voted That the Deſires of the Soldiery be forthwith ſatisfied, and that ſpeedy Care be taken for ſettling of their Arrears.

Several other Petitions were preſented to the General from the Officers and Soldiers of the Army; one from Commiſſary General Ireton's Regiment was to this Effect, Petitions.

1. That there may be a ſtrict Scrutiny for diſcovery of the Contrivers or Encouragers of the late Rebellion and ſecond War, and Juſtice done upon them.

2. And upon all criminal Perſons, eſpecially Obſtructers of Juſtice, and ſuch as have betrayed their Truſt, or been Authors of ſhedding the innocent Blood.

3. That the ſame Fault may have the ſame Puniſhment, in the Perſon of King, or Lord, as in the Perſon of the pooreſt Commoner.

4. That all may be proceeded againſt as Traitors, who act or ſpeak in the King's Behalf, till he ſhall be acquitted of the guilt of ſhedding innocent Blood.

5. For their Pay, and for Proceedings againſt thoſe that withhold it, and for their Arrears.

6. That the intolerable Oppreſſion of free Quarter may be immediately taken off. And about the Eſtabliſhment of their Pay in the Counties.

7. They declare that they ſhall conſtantly endeavour to defend Magiſtracy, and Property with their Lives and Fortunes.

This was a ſubtle Petition, and the beginning of the Deſign againſt the King's Perſon, but not diſcerned till afterwards.

An Ordinance paſt for maintaining a Troop of Horſe in Surrey, out of the Sequeſtrations of that Country.

Orders for bringing in the Arrears of the Aſſeſſment for the Army.

Sir Charles Kemiſh was committed.

Letters from the Commiſſioners of the Treaty with Papers of their Tranſactions.

Order for disbanding the ſupernumerary Forces in Lancaſhire.

The Lords Houſe paſt all the Judges and Sergeants, except Sergeant Wilde to be Chief Baron, and Sergeant Rolle to be Chief Juſtice of the King's Bench.

They alſo adviſed as to the voting of Sir Thomas Widdrington and me to be the King's Sergeants, and my being Attorney of the Dutchy.

19. The Papers from the Iſle of Wight were touching Delinquents. Iſle of Wight.

His

Anno 1648. His Majeſty conſented, that all who have any hand in plotting, deſigning, or aſſiſting the Rebellion in Ireland, ſhall expect no Pardon.

That all other Delinquents in the firſt Branch of that Propoſition may moderately compound for their Eſtates; that ſuch of them as the two Houſes will inſiſt on, ſhall not be admitted to his Council, and ſhall be reſtrained from coming to the Court, at ſuch Diſtance as the Houſes ſhall think fit, and ſhall not have any Office of Employment in the Commonwealth, without Conſent of both Houſes, or ſhall abſent themſelves for ſome time out of the Kingdom.

That all other Delinquents ſhall ſubmit to a moderate Compoſition, and for three Years not to ſerve as Members or Aſſiſtants in either Houſe, without the Conſent of both Houſes of Parliament.

His Majeſty's Propoſitions (which the Commiſſioners of the Parliament were not authorized to receive) were,

Propoſitions. 1. That he might be put into a Condition of Freedom, Honour, and Safety.

2. To be reſtored to his Lands and Revenues.

3. That he may have Compoſition for the Court of Wards, and ſuch of his Revenues as he ſhall part with.

4. That there may be an Act of Oblivion and Indemnity.

Mr. Vines. Mr. Vines gave in a Paper in Anſwer to his Majeſty's, to ſatisfy his Conſcience touching Biſhops.

Upon theſe and other Papers from their Commiſſioners, they had a very long and quick Debate.

Vote. Vote that the Lord's Days, and Faſt-Days, during the time of this Treaty, ſhall be accounted no Part of the twenty Days allowed for it, by which a Week's time longer was gained for the Treaty.

The Houſe reſolved into a Grand Committee to debate the Ordinance for Payment of the reduced Officers.

The Lords Concurrence deſired to an Ordinance for Payment of four thouſand eight hundred Pounds, to Mr. Pecke in reſpect of his Loſſes.

20. The Merchant-Adventurers Company had the Thanks of the Houſe for engaging for ten thouſand Pounds for the Service of the Navy.

Sir Henry Cholmly. Letters from Sir Henry Cholmly, complaining, that the General had given Commiſſion to Colonel Rainsborough to command in chief the Forces before Pontefract Caſtle; whereas he had a Commiſſion before from the Committee of the Militia of Yorkſhire, to be Commander in chief of them, and that the Diſparagement was great to him, and deſires an Order in it.

The Houſe referred the Letter and the whole Buſineſs to the General to ſettle it, and to preſerve the Honour of Sir Henry Cholmly, and to take care that the Buſineſs be carried on againſt the Enemy.

One hundred Pounds beſtowed upon Captain Wolfe, and twenty Pounds upon Mr. Noble who brought the News of the Surrender of Carliſle.

Debate about an Ordinance for Doctor Baſtwick, and about the laſt Meſſage from the King.

Free Quarter. 21. Debate touching Means wholly to take off free Quarter, and ordered that the Members be employed to uſe their beſt Endeavours to bring in the Arrears of the Aſſeſſments, as a Means to take off free Quarter; and ſome were ſent down to the General to confer and adviſe with him, how the Forces may be reduced to the Eſtabliſhment and paid, and to adviſe with ſuch Officers as the General ſhall appoint about theſe Maſters. 24 Car.

Colonel King of Lincolnſhire ſent for, to anſwer before the Committee of the Army, to a Charge againſt him touching the Army.

The Commiſſioners of the Seal met with the Judges to confer together about the Buſineſs of the new Sergeants, for ſending forth the Writs to them, and other Matters for ordering of that Buſineſs.

I ſtayed all the Afternoon in Mr. Selden's Study, where I had the free Uſe of his Books, and his Directions to me in my Studies.

23. Vote to disband all the ſupernumerary Forces in the ſeveral Counties, and the Committees to pay them their Arrears; and the General ordered to ſlight Bridgwater, Bath, and Dunſtar, or to man them.

Iſle of Wight. Sir Peter Killegrew brought a Meſſage from the Iſle of Wight, of his Majeſty's further Conceſſions touching Epiſcopacy.

1. He conſented to the aboliſhing of Archbiſhops, Chancellors, Deans and Chapters, &c. and the whole Hierarchy, ſave Biſhops.

2. To confirm the Form of Church Government for three Years, and no other to be uſed, and the Exerciſe of Epiſcopal Government to be wholly ſuſpended during that time.

3. That none ſhall be exerciſed after that time, other than Ordination (reſtrained to the Council and Aſſiſtance of Presbyters) but ſuch, and in ſuch Manner, as ſhall be agreed by his Majeſty and his two Houſes; whereby, until ſuch Agreement (or if it be not otherwiſe agreed) Epiſcopal Juriſdiction is wholly laid aſide.

His Majeſty alſo conſented, To the Nomination of great Officers, to be by both Houſes for ten Years.

2. To the Propoſition concerning the City of London as is deſired.

3. To that concerning the Great Seal, as is deſired.

4. To that concerning the Court of Wards, a Recompence being aſſured to his Majeſty, his Heirs and Succeſſors, of one hundred thouſand Pounds per Annum.

Lord Goring and Lord Capel. The General explained his former Letter concerning the Quarter given to the Lord Goring and Lord Capel, That it did not extend to any other but the military Power, and that they were notwithſtaneing liable to Trial and Judgment by the Civil Power; otherwiſe any who was treacherous, or had revolted might get Quarter from a private Soldier, and ſo not be further queſtionable; With divers other Reaſons given by him to the ſame purpoſe.

Scotland. Letters from Scotland, that Mr. Parſons ſent to them from the King, had Complaints of the Miſeries ſuffered by the late Engagement, that they refer to the King to their Agreement with Lanerick, and their Declaration, and beſeech him at laſt to hearken to the Advice of his Parliament, in conſenting to the Propoſitions of both Kingdoms.

Eſpecially to thoſe concerning the Covenant, and Reformation of Religion, which they underſtand to be the Point he ſticks moſt at, and they in Honour and Intereſt are moſt obliged to ſtick to; and without which (they tell him) his Kingdom cannot be eſtabliſhed in Righteouſneſs.

That they have alſo writ to the Prince dehorting him from that Courſe of Oppoſition he is now in, and from attempting any Act of Hoſtility againſt that Kingdom; and ſince all worldly Policy and Projects have failed, that he would apply his Endeavours to mediate with his his Father to consent to the Propositions of both Kingdoms, and especially the Covenant.

Letters from Major General Lambert's Quarters, that divers of his Men were set upon, as they pass'd up and down, by some of the Scots, and many Injuries offered to the English; that six of his Regiment with Quarter-Master Diamond, were set upon by fourteen of the Scots, and fought with them about a quarter of an Hour, left three of the Scots sprawling upon the Ground, and wounded most of the rest, routed them, and came off without any hurt, only one of the English had a Cut of his Hand.

That the Committee of Estates taking notice of these things, have endeavoured to prevent the like for the future, and to give Satisfaction for what is past.

The Lords consented to the Sergeants that were named, and the Commons also; the Speaker moved that I might be suspended from being a Sergeant at present in regard of swearing the rest, which was likely to fall to my Share; but this was opposed until I spake and shewed them the Necessity, that either Sir Thomas Widdrington or I must make the Speech to the rest of the Sergeants and swear them, which we could not do if both of us were to be sworn, and that upon Conference together, I was persuaded to take that Trouble upon my self and to have my swearing suspended if they pleased: Nevertheless the House in favour to me would not wholly excuse me, but voted that I should not be sworn a Sergeant till farther Order, whereof I was well content at present.

The House passed Mr. Hatton to be Sergeant.

24. Order for five hundred Pounds for Sir Anthony Welden, in Satisfaction of his Losses by the Kentish Rebels, against whom he was very active.

Sir Henry Cholmly.

Upon the General's Answer to the Parliament's Letter touching Sir Henry Cholmly, the Question was, whether he should be subject to the Commands of the General or of the Parliament only? and voted that he should be subject to the General.

Orders for disbanding supernumerary Forces in several Counties, not of the Army.

Debate about Ordinances for Dr. Bastwick, Mr. Burton and Mr. Pryn, to have Reparations for the illegal Sentences against them in the Star-Chamber.

Exempted from Pardon.

Both Houses agreed upon seven Persons to be exempted from Pardon, viz. The Lord Digby, Lord Cottington, Sir Robert Heath, Sir Francis Doddington, Sir George Ratcliffe, Sir Richard Greenville, and Sir Charles Dalison.

Several Compositions past.

Newcastle.

Letters from Newcastle, that Cromwell, Haselrigge, and the Committee ordered the slighting of several Northern Garrisons; that the Army coming thither was entertained with great Guns, and ringing of Bells and feasting.

That Sir John Chiesely, and others were posting up to London, to declare that Kingdom's dislike of their late Armies invading England, and to desire a fair Correspondency.

Letters of a Design to betray Pendennis Castle, some of the Conspirators were taken, and one of them adjudged to Death by Sir Hardresse Waller and his Council of War. Another, who was employed to corrupt the private Soldiers, was not tried but sent up to the Parliament, because he was no Soldier himself, but a Countryman; many others of them fled.

25. The publick Fast-Day.

26. Voted that the King's last Message concerning Episcopacy was unsatisfactory. And a Committee appointed to draw up the Particulars wherein it was unsatisfactory, that his Majesty might have the same in Writing. 24. Car. Vote.

An Ordinance transmitted to the Lords for Payment of Tithes to the Ministry.

Letters from the Committee of Estates in Scotland, desiring a fair Correspondency and Brotherly Union between the two Nations, and that Sir John Chiesely was intrusted to deliver by word of mouth other Particulars of their Desires; referred to the Committee of Derby House, to impart further Particulars to them. Scotland.

Order that the Letter be communicated to the Lords and Sir John Chiesely.

Order for five thousand Suits of Cloths for Cromwell's Soldiers.

The Lords concurred that the King's Paper concerning Episcopacy was not satisfactory.

27. Voted that that Part of the King's Answer concerning the taking of the Covenant, is unsatisfactory. Votes. Unsatisfactory.

Also, that concerning the taking away of Archbishops, Bishops, Deans, &c.

Also that concerning the abolishing of Popery in desiring to have it tolerated in the Queen's Chapel, and for her Family.

Also that for alienating of Bishops Lands, and Sale of Deans and Chapters Lands, and many others.

A Committee appointed to draw up the Covenant in such a Form as may be proper for his Majesty to take it.

A Committee ordered to consider of his Majesty's Concessions to any Part of the Propositions, and to draw them up into Bills to be tendred to his Majesty.

An Ordinance pass'd for Re-payment of Money advanced by the Merchant-Adventurers for the Service of the Navy.

28. Letters from Colonel Jones in Ireland.

That the Marquis of Ormond was upon concluding a Peace with the Irish Rebels, the Lord Inchequin complying, and all to join against the Parliament's Party there; the Design hatched in England by the Fomenters of the second War, and the Scots who last invaded England; and should then have broken out, and given forth to be by Commission from the King. He desires the House seriously to consider of it. Ireland.

Order that a Message be forthwith sent to his Majesty, to desire him to declare against the Rebellion of Ireland, and against this Truce with the Rebels, and to require the Marquis of Ormond to forbear joining with the Rebels against the Protestants.

The Parliament's Commissioners with the Army, agreed with the General and Officers.

1. That in regard of the new Garrisons of Berwick, and many other Places, that Provision may be made for three thousand Foot, to be continued more than the former Establishment. Army.

2. More Officers of the Train.

3. That the General give Command against listing any new Recruits.

4. Touching Pay of the Army and Deduction for free Quarter.

5. That the Army be drawn into Towns, &c.

6. That by Towns, is meant Market Towns, and the Streets near to them only.

The Earl of Kent, the Lord Grey, and Sir Thomas Widdrington, dined with me and desired to see my Study, which was well furnished with good Books, partly by Gifts of my Friends, but chiefly by my Money; I gave to each of them a Book of Magna Charta in old Manuscript.

Anno 1648.

30. Voted that the King's Meſſage as to Delinquents, was unſatisfactory in all the Clauſes thereof; and ſeveral Votes admitting of Compoſitions at lower Rates than before, and that Perſons excepted, as to Life, ſhould be admitted to Compoſition at a full Moiety of their Eſtates, except only ſeven Perſons, which were not then named.

Votes.

Vote that William Powell, John Clerke, John Eltonhead, Robert Nicholas, John Parker, and Robert Bernard, Eſqs; ſhould be made Sergeants at Law.

Order to the Committee of Norfolk about ſecuring a Ship and Goods caſt away upon that Coaſt.

Biſhops Lands.

The Lords moved that the Diſpute about Sale of Biſhops Lands might be waved at preſent, and the reſt agreed by both Houſes, to be ſent to the King; but upon Reaſons given by the Commons, that in regard their Lordſhips had concurred to aboliſh Biſhops, that it could not be, if their Lands ſhould not be diſpoſed of, and divers of them had been already ſold upon the Authority of an Ordinance of both Houſes; the Lords hereupon concurred with the Commons.

Letters from York of Cromwell's coming to Newcaſtle with his Army, and being highly treated there, and of his ordering Forces for ſtrengthning the Siege of Pomfret; that the Army kept a Day of Thankſgiving for their good Succeſs in Scotland.

That a Soldier by Judgment of a Council of War was ſhot to death, for plundering in Scotland.

Petition.

That Cromwell and his Officers had a Meeting with the Gentlemen of the four Northern Counties, who agreed upon a Petition to the Parliament for Juſtice againſt Delinquents, and for a Commiſſion of Oyer and Terminer to be ſent down to try ſuch as they ſhould apprehend, and for Pay for one thouſand two hundred Foot in Berwick, and a Regiment of Horſe under Colonel Fenwick, and for eight hundred Foot in Carliſle, and a Regiment of Horſe.

Army.

Letters from St. Albans mentioning a Petition to the General from Colonel Ingoldsbye's Regiment, reciting the Hazards, Charges, and Victories of the Army, and good People of the Parliament's Party.

That nothing remains to be done to make the Hazards of their Lives and Loſs of ſo much Blood effectual, but an immediate Care that Juſtice be done upon the principal Invaders of all their Liberties, namely the King and his Party.

That they will live and die with the Parliament in their Declaration of non-Addreſſes to the King

That they apprehend with Grief, that all their Harveſt ſhould end in Chaff, and what was won in the Field ſhould be given away in a Chamber; and they doubt the Iſſue of the Treaty will be neither juſt nor ſafe.

They pray his Excellency to re-eſtabliſh a General Council of the Army, to conſider of ſome effectual Remedies hereunto, by repreſenting it to the Houſe of Commons as the Petitioners of London and other Places have done, or in ſuch other way as his Excellency and his Council ſhall think fit.

31. Order to injoin all the Members of the Houſe, to pay their Aſſeſſments to the Army, equal with the reſt of the Subjects.

Vote.

Vote that his Majeſty's Anſwer concerning the Church was unſatisfactory.

Letters of the Lord Ormond's treating with the Confederate Roman Catholicks in Ireland, for Peace.

Letters from Edinburgh of a Declaration to prevent Injuries or Abuſes to Major General Lambert's Soldiers. 24. Car.

That Lieutenant General Cromwell, and Sir Arthur Haſelrigge were in as high Honour with the well affected Party in Scotland, as ever any of the Engliſh were.

Letters from York, that the Garriſon of Pontefract had killed and taken divers of the Parliament's Forces; that ſometimes they have Ceſſations, and drink to one another, by the Names of Brother Roundhead, and Brother Cavalier; that the Difference between Sir Henry Cholmly, and Colonel Rainsborough, who ſhall command in chief the Forces before Pontefract, gives great Advantage to the Garriſon there. Pontfract.

November, 1648.

November, 1. Order for the Commiſſioners of the Great Seal to paſs a Patent of the Place in the Tower formerly given to Mr. Nichols, one of the Eleven Members to hold for his Life.

Vote that his Majeſty's Meſſage concerning Ireland was unſatisfactory; the like concerning raiſing of Monies to pay publick Debts.

Order that the two Catechiſms be ſent to the Commiſſioners to be preſented to his Majeſty.

Letters from Doncaſter, that forty Horſe ſallied out of Pontefract towards Doncaſter, where they killed the Centinel, then three of them rode on to Doncaſter, and asked for Colonel Rainsborough's Quarters, and came to his Chamber, there called to him and ſaid, they had a Letter from Lieutenant General Cromwell. Rainsborough killed.

That the Colonel roſe, and opened his Door to them, (expecting ſuch a Letter that Morning) and preſently the three Pontefract Soldiers fell upon him, ſhot him into the Neck, and another ſhot him into the Heart, with other Wounds, and left him dead, eſcaping away without any Alarm given.

2. Meſſage from the Lords for adding fourteen Days more to the Treaty with his Majeſty.

Vote.

Vote that the King's Anſwer touching the Court of Wards was ſatisfactory; and that one hundred thouſand Pounds per Annum ſhould be ſettled on the King, and his Heirs, in lieu of the Revenue of that Court, provided it be not alienated from the Crown.

Several Meſſages from the Lords in furtherance of the Treaty.

Information of terrible Deſigns on Foot, to kill the Parliament-men, and of Suſpicion that the Earl of Warwick would prove falſe to the Parliament.

3. A Petition of the Merchants trading into France, referred to the Committee of the Navy, to examine and report the Grievances complained of by them.

Upon a Meſſage from the King, ordered that Dr. Uſher, Bambridge, Prideaux, Warner, Fern, and Morley, have Leave to go to his Majeſty for Information of his Conſcience.

Iſle of Wight.

The Commons concurred with the Lords to add fourteen Days more for the Treaty with his Majeſty; and ordered a Committee to propound to the Common-Council of London, the Loan of four thouſand Pounds more for the Treaty.

Referred to Lieutenant General Cromwell to take ſpecial Care, and ſtrict Examination concerning the Murder of Colonel Rainsborough.

Vote.

Vote that his Majeſty's Anſwer concerning his declaring againſt the Conjunction of the Lord Ormond's Forces with the Rebels of Ireland

Anno 1648. land was unſatisfactory, his Majeſty juſtifying the Lord Ormond in that bloody Act.

In the Evening all the Sergeants, both old and new, met at Lincoln's-Inn, where the new Sergeants invited the old ones to Supper, they alſo ſent for me and I ſupped with them.

They conſulted about their Buſineſs, and all the new Sergeants reſolved that Mr. Solicitor St. John ſhould have the Place and Antiquity before all the new Sergeants, Sir Thomas Widdrington the ſecond Place, and I the third Place in Antiquity, and the reſt in their Order.

At which Sir Thomas Widdrington and I were not well pleaſed, we being the Commiſſioners of the Seal; but the new Sergeants having done it to gratify Mr. Sollicitor, who was in great Favour with the Parliament, we held it beſt to let it paſs without taking any notice of it.

Iſle of Wight. 4. Vote of both Houſes, that any three of the Commiſſioners with his Majeſty, one Lord and two Commoners, might continue upon the Buſineſs of the Treaty, and the reſt return if they pleaſed to London.

Debate about guarding of the Parliament, being in great Danger by reaſon of the malignant Party flocking up to London, upon ſome Deſign at the Breach of the Treaty, and moſt of them armed with Daggers, and Piſtols in their Pockets.

A Committee appointed to confer with the Common-Council of London, concerning the Security of the Parliament and Kingdom, and to report with ſpeed.

5. The Streets were full of Bonfires, this being the Gunpowder Treaſon Day.

Excepted from Pardon. 6. The Commons concurred with the Lords, that the number of the Perſons to be excepted from Pardon ſhould be ſeven, and voted three of thoſe ſeven to be, the Lord Digby, the Earl of Newcaſtle, and Sir Marmaduke Langdale.

Northern Counties. Letters from the Gentlemen of the four Northern Counties, that upon Conference with Lieutenant General Cromwell, it was held neceſſary to have twelve hundred Foot in Berwick, and ſix hundred Foot in Carliſle, and two Regiments of Horſe, ſix hundred in a Regiment to ſuppreſs any Inſurrection, and the Moſs-troupers.

They deſire in regard of the great Sufferings of thoſe Counties, that theſe Forces may be maintained at the general Charge of the Kingdom, theſe being Frontier Garriſons, and thoſe Counties will be willing to pay their Proportions.

Petition. With theſe Letters came a Petition,

Complaining of the want of Bread in thoſe Counties, that many Gentlemen of Quality and their Families had no other Drink but Water, of impriſoning their Perſons, diſpeopling their Towns, deſtroying their Corn and Goods, killing their Neighbours and Country-men, driving away their Cattle, compelling all betwixt the Age of ſixty and ſixteen to bear Arms againſt the Parliament.

Of bringing into this Kingdom a foreign Nation, and delivering into the Scots Hands the two conſiderable Places of Berwick and Carliſle; that many of the Actors in that horrid Deſign are returned to their Homes to plot new Treaſons.

They preſs for Juſtice againſt thoſe Delinquents, and a Commiſſion of Oyer and Terminer to be ſent down for Trial of them.

The Houſe paſſed no Vote upon this Letter and Petition.

Letters from St. Albans of a Day appointed for the meeting of the Officers of the Army, and that the Cry of free Quarter was ſo great in the Ears of the Soldiers, that it was to be feared it would occaſion ſome Diſtemper among them. 24 Car.

By this Petition, and by theſe Letters you may take notice of the miſerable Effects of Civil War, and of the Condition of even the Victors, to be continued full of Fears and Dangers to themſelves, which cannot be too often remembred.

A Complaint came againſt the ill Management of the Siege before Pontefract by Sir Henry Cholmly; and Lieutenant General Cromwell was come thither.

7. Orders touching the Winter Guard of Ships.

Vote, That Sir Richard Greenville, Judge Jenkins, Sir Francis Doddington, and Sir John Winter, ſhould be the reſt of the ſeven Perſons excepted from Pardon. Excepted from Pardon.

Letters that Major General Lambert with three Regiments of Horſe were ſtill in Scotland, and that the well affected there could not act ſecurely without them; that they quarter upon the contrary Party. Lambert.

Letters from the Hague, that the Prince was there ſick of the Small-Pox, and that his Seamen were much diſcontented; that the Lord Willoughby and Sir William Batten had left him.

8. Upon Letters from Colonel Welden, Governour of Plymouth, Orders for Pay for that Garriſon.

The Conſideration of the Garriſons of Berwick and Carliſle referred to the Committee of Derby Houſe, and Orders for Money for disbanding Supernumerary Forces.

Vote, That no more than ſeven Perſons ſhould be excepted from Pardon. Pardon.

An Ordinance paſſed both Houſes for Pay of their Guards.

Several Lords and Commons came from the Treaty, the Earl of Northumberland, Mr. Pierpoint, and Mr. Hollis ſtaid behind; divers alſo of the King's People came away. Iſle of Wight.

His Majeſty made a further Condeſcenſion touching the Church, but did ſtick at the word [Biſhop] yet was content he ſhould be in the Condition only of a primer Presbyter, and was not willing Biſhops Lands ſhould be ſold.

Letters from Ireland of the deſperate Condition of that Kingdom, and the Diſtreſs of Dublin, by the Lord Ormond's joining with the Rebels. Ireland.

Letters from St. Albans, that the general Council of the Army met, and the Officers expreſſed a great Senſe of the Odium caſt upon the Army (as they ſuſpect) by deſign to hinder their Pay, that they might be forced to take free Quarter. Army.

9. Upon jealouſy of a Deſign to ſurprize the Tower, order that the Committee of the Tower do adviſe with the Lord Mayor concerning the Security thereof, and have Power to remove and appoint what Guards they pleaſe there.

Order for an Ordinance to authorize the ſeveral Committees in the Counties to receive Security of all the Delinquents in the reſpective Counties, who have not compounded, not to go above five Miles from their Dwellings, not to act any thing prejudicial to the Parliament, and ſuch as ſhall refuſe this, to be ſecured by the Committees.

The Commiſſioners returned from the Iſle of Wight, made Report to the Houſe of all their Tranſactions in the Treaty, and of the King's laſt Conceſſions touching the Church. Iſle of Wight.

That he doth not intend to make any more Biſhops during three Years, nor that after the three Years, the Power of Ordination ſhould be practiſed in the old manner, but will conſent that Biſhops ſhall not receive any into Holy Orders without the conſent of a limited number of Presbyters to be choſen in ſuch manner as ſhall be agreed by his Majeſty and the two Houſes.

Anno 1648.

That his Majeſty purpoſed, after the Agreement, and within the three Years, to have a Conſultation with the Aſſembly of Divines (twenty being added of his Majeſty's Nomination) for the Settlement of the Church Government.

That his Majeſty will not inſiſt upon any Proviſion, for continuance of the Book of Common-Prayer in his Majeſty's Chapel, for himſelf and his Houſhold, but declares that he intends to uſe ſome other ſet Form of Divine Service.

That he conſents to Acts to be paſſed for a further courſe and more ſtrict, to prevent the ſaying and hearing of Maſs, in the Court or elſewhere.

That in what he hath not conſented, he is not really ſatisfied in Conſcience, and hopes, his two Houſes will not put further Preſſures of ſo tender a Nature upon him.

The Commiſſioners had the Thanks of the Houſe for their good Service in the Treaty, and a Day ſet to debate upon his Majeſty's final Anſwer.

Orders for Relief of the maimed Soldiers, and for disbanding of Supernumerary Forces.

10. Ordinance for repaying Money advanced for the Treaty.

Order for Money for Payment of the Horſe-guards of the Parliament.

Baniſhment. Vote that the Lords Goring, Capel, Loughborough, the Earl of Holland, Major General Langherne, and Sir John Owen, ſhall be baniſhed out of the Kingdom.

Votes. 11. Vote that his Majeſty's Anſwer to the Diſcipline of the Church, and as to the continuing of Biſhops, is unſatisfactory.

The like concerning his laying aſide the Common-Prayer for himſelf and his own Family.

Iſle of Wight. The like concerning his mentioning to have ſome other Form of Prayer in his own Chapel.

The like concerning his Conſent to Bills, to prevent the Saying and Hearing of Maſs, all unſatisfactory.

Order that the Commiſſioners do preſs his Majeſty farther for his final Anſwer to the Buſineſs of the Church, and inform him of theſe Votes, and the Lord's Concurrence herein to be deſired.

Order of both Houſes, that the Committee appointed to draw the King's Conceſſions upon the whole Treaty into Bills, do meet for ſpeedy Diſpatch of that Buſineſs.

13. Vote upon his Majeſty's Propoſitions.

1. That a Committee named do draw up ſomething for his Majeſty's coming to London, and preſent it to the Houſe, and Inſtructions for the Terms, his Majeſty being already in Freedom, Honour, and Safety at the Treaty.

2. That it be referred to a Committee to conſider of his Majeſty's Deſires concerning his Revenues.

3. That an Act of Oblivion ſhall be preſented to his Majeſty to be paſſed, with ſuch Limitations as ſhall be agreed on by both Houſes.

Excepted Perſons. The Lords concurred with the Commons concerning the ſeven Perſons to be excepted from Pardon, only inſtead of the Earl of Newcaſtle, and Sir John Winter, they voted Sir George Ratcliffe, and the Lord Byron to be two of the ſeven.

Both Houſes paſſed Inſtructions for the Commiſſioners of the Great Seal for the making of new Sergeants and the Judges, according to the former Orders of the Houſes.

Juſtice Rolles to bring in his former Patent, and to receive a new Commiſſion under the Great Seal to be Lord Chief Juſtice of the King's-Bench.

Mr. Browne to have Seniority of Sergeant Jermyn, Browne having been a Commiſſioner of the Great Seal, and the reſt that were Commiſſioners of the Great Seal having had Priority to plead within the Bar, to be Seniors, and Sir Thomas Bedingfield, Mr. Recorder, &c. in order. 24 Car.

Letters from the General, that, having had a Meeting of the Officers of the Army, he apprehends their general ſad Reſentment of the many Preſſures upon the Kingdom, particularly that of free Quarter, whereby they and the Soldiers (who have faithfully ſerved the Parliament) are even a Burden to themſelves, becauſe they are ſo much to the poor Country. Army.

Complaints of the great want of Pay and Neceſſaries for the Army, deſires an effectual Proviſion therein, to prevent thoſe ill Conſequences, which otherwiſe Delay therein may produce.

That Lambert and his Men received a Diſmiſſion from the Committee of Eſtates, and were upon their March for England, and they gave him many Expreſſions of Thanks for his good Service done to that Kingdom. Lambert.

Lieutenant General Cromwell ſent a Summons to the Governor of Pontefract Caſtle to render it to the Uſe of the Parliament, and the Governor deſired to be ſatisfy'd, that he had Power to perform the Conditions.

The Sergeants appear'd before the Commiſſioners of the Great Seal in the Queen's Court, but we did not call them in untill the Houſe of Commons had paſſed the Order for the Precedency of Mr. Browne before Sir Thomas Bedingfield and Mr. Recorder; at which moſt of them did grumble. Pontefract.

14. The Account of Colonel Gould ſtated and allowed, and four thouſand four hundred and forty three Pounds ordered to him, and an Ordinance for it tranſmitted to the Lords.

Ten thouſand Pounds inſerted into an Ordinance formerly paſſed, for five thouſand Pounds for the Guards of the Horſe of the Parliament.

Debate about taking of free Quarter, and disbanding Supernumeraries, and a Queſtion for adding three thouſand Pounds to the Eſtabliſhment of the Army, in regard of the Garriſons of Berwick and Carliſle, paſſed in the Negative, which diſcontented the Army, and was therefore thought by ſome to be put on the rather. Army.

The Lords concurred in the Baniſhment of the four Perſons voted by the Commons, but in regard that three of them are Peers of the Houſe, they deſired that the Ordinance for it might begin in their Houſe.

A Meſſage from his Majeſty, that he did conſent to the little Catechiſm, with the Addition of a Preface; and alſo that the Parliament diſpoſe of all great Offices for twenty Years as they deſire. Iſle of Wight.

Letters from the Earl of Warwick, and a Declaration, in Vindication of himſelf, and the Scandal caſt upon him by a falſe Pamphlet, and lying Report, that he reſolved to join with the Prince in caſe the Treaty took not effect. Earl of Warwick.

15. Colonel Roſſiter had the Thanks of the Houſe for his good Services.

Vote that his Majeſty's coming to London ſhall be with Honour, Freedom and Safety, ſo ſoon as the Conceſſions of the Treaty ſhall be agreed upon. Vote.

2. That he ſhall have his Lands and Revenues made good to him, according to the Laws.

3. What he ſhall paſs away of his legal Right, he ſhall have Allowance in Compenſation thereof.

4. That an Act of Oblivion ſhall be preſented to his Majeſty, &c.

Both

Anno 1648.

Both Houſes agreed to theſe Votes, and to ſend them to his Majeſty.

Upon Letters from Lieutenant General Cromwell of the Wants of his Forces, referr'd to the Committee of the Army to conſider of the Particulars, and to ſupply them.

Order for two hundred and fifty Barrels of Powder, with Match and Bullet proportionable for the Forces before Pontefract, and Scarborough.

The Commons adhered to their Vote to except the Earl of Newcaſtle and Sir John Winter from Pardon.

Letters from the Hague, that Prince Charles was upon Recovery; that Prince Rupert was made Admiral, and the Lord Gerrard Vice-Admiral; that ſome of the revolted Ships were come in to the Earl of Warwick, and thoſe Seamen that continued with the Prince were diſorderly.

The Commiſſioners of the Great Seal went into the King's-Bench, where we ſat in the middle, the Judges on each ſide of us; and there we did ſwear the Lord Chief Juſtice of that Court, Judge Rolles; and Sir Thomas Widdrington made a very learned Speech to him. From the King's-Bench we went to the Exchequer, and ſat in the Court, the Barons on each hand of us; and a great Company both of Lawyers and others thronging round about the Court, there they did ſwear Sergeant Wilde to be chief Baron, and I made the Speech to him, which, becauſe it clears ſome Miſtakes concerning the Antiquity of that Court, I thought fit here to inſert it.

Mr. Sergeant Wilde,

Speech.

'THE Lords and Commons in Parliament taking notice of the great Inconvenience in the Courſe of Juſtice, for want of the antient and uſual number of Judges in the High Courts at Weſtminſter, whereby is occaſioned Delay, and both Suitors and others are the leſs ſatisfied; and being deſirous and careful that Juſtice may be adminiſtred more Majorum, and equal Right done to all Men, according to the Cuſtom of England; they have reſolved to fill up the Benches with Perſons of approved Fidelity and Affection to the Publick; and of Piety, Learning and Integrity; and having found by long Experience among themſelves that you, Mr. Sergeant Wilde, are a Perſon thus qualified, and very well deſerving from the Commonwealth, they have thought fit to place you in one of the higheſt Seats of Judicature, and have ordained you to be Lord Chief Baron of this Court.

'The Freedom of this Choice, without ſeeking, or other means for Promotion, this publick Conſent for your Preferment, cannot but bring much Satisfaction to your Conſcience, and Encouragement to your Endeavours, againſt all Burdens and Difficulties which attend ſo great and weighty an Employment.

'Cuſtom and the due Solemnity of this Work, and the Honour of that Authority by which we meet, requires ſomething to be ſaid upon this Occaſion, and the Commands of my Lords have caſt it upon me; for which Reaſons tho I acknowledge my unfitneſs to ſpeak upon this Subject, yet I preſume upon a fair and favourable Interpretation.

'I ſhall borrow a little part of your time in ſpeaking of the Antiquity of this Court, and of your Office in it, and of the Dignity and Duty of your Place.

'For the Antiquity of this Court my Lord Coke in his Fifth Report and 9 Edw. 4. fol. 53. and other Books affirm that the four Courts in Weſtminſter-hall are of great Antiquity, and that no Man can tell which of them is moſt antient. But if you credit Lambert in his Archaion, fol. 28. this Court was erected here by William the Conqueror, after the Pattern of his Exchequer in Normandy; and for Proof hereof he cites Gervaſius Tilburienſis; but under Correction, I find in this Author a Doubt made by himſelf, whether this Court were not in the Time of the Engliſh Kings? and if ſo, it was before William the Firſt's Time. Lambert ſaith in the ſame Place, that this Court is of great Antiquity, and the Orders and Cuſtoms of it not to be diſobeyed; Gervaſe of Tilbury aſſerts the great Antiquity and Cuſtoms of it; and if you reckon the Antiquity and Cuſtoms (as we muſt) from the time of his Book which was dedicated to Henry the Second, and the Author acknowledgeth that he had Conference with the Biſhop of Wincheſter, who was Son to the Conqueror's Siſter, this Court muſt be before the Conqueſt, or it will hardly deſerve the words great Antiquity, and Cuſtoms, when Gervaſe of Tilbury did write, being ſo near the Conqueſt; Lambert who citeth him, alſo obſerves, that the Exchequer in Normandy was the ſovereign Court for Adminiſtration of Juſtice, and that it differeth not a little from the Exchequer here; the leſs Reaſon under his Favour to have been a Pattern for it, I find in Rot. Normanniæ 209 Johan. a Writ Baronibus de Scaccario in Normannia, and the word Baron being Saxon, not likely to be brought out of France hither, and in France this kind of Court in all their Parliaments is called La Chambre des Finances, as may be ſeen in Paſquier Recherches, and Haillan, and ſo it is called in Normandy at this day; the Alteration being made there by Lewis XII. and if we credit him that derives the word Scaccarium from the Saxon words Schats for Treaſure, and Zecherie an Office, the word is more likely to be fetched out of England into Normandy, than the contrary. 24 Car.

'My Lord Coke in his Preface to the third Report, citeth Will. de Rovill's Comment upon the Grand Cuſtomier of Normandy, and it is in the beginning of it that thoſe Cuſtoms were taken out of the Laws of England about the time of Edward the Confeſſor, who he ſaith was harum legum lator: And with this agree Selden's Duello, fol. 22. Cambden, the Book de Antiquis Britanniæ Legibus, and others, who alſo hold that before the Conqueſt we had Eſcheats, Tenures, Reliefs, and Sheriffs in England, the principal Buſineſs of this Court.

'The Regiſter (the antient Book of our Law) hath divers Writs that were in uſe before the time of William I. and many of the moſt antient of them are directed Theſaurario, & Baronibus de Scaccario, and the Mirror of Juſtices (which my Lord Coke ſaith in his Preface to the Tenth Report, was for the moſt part written before the Conqueſt) ſpeaks of this Court, and of the deux Chevaliers qui ſoient eſtre appellez Barons: In this Book, and in the Regiſter, and in the black Book here, where there is mention of the Exchequer, is alſo mention of the Barons, the principal Judges of the Court.

'But with this Matter I have troubled you too long, what hath been ſaid upon it was to clear a Miſtake touching the Antiquity of this Court, and for the Honour of our Law, and of this Court, and of your Office in it, being ſo antient as can ſcarce be parallel'd in any other Nation.

'With

Anno 1648.

'With the Antiquity of your Office there hath always gone along great Dignity and Honour. 'Sir Roger Owen in his Manuſcript diſcourſeth plentifully on this Subject, and cites Prudentius, who calleth Judges, the great Lights of the Sphere; and Symmachus, who ſtiles them the better part of Mankind. Indeed in all Nations and Times, great Reverence and Reſpect hath been deſervedly given to them: we find the Judges often named Lords, and Barons in our Books of Law, and Records, as 14 Hen. 4. fol. 6. recites, that it was determined for Law in temps Monſeigneur Robert Thorpe, and in the Stat. 21 R. 2. cap. 12. mention is of my Lord William Rickwel, who was a puiſne Judge of the Common-Pleas; the like is in many other Places in our Year-Books and Records.

'When Magna Charta was made, it ſeems that the Barons of the Exchequer, and the King's Juſtices were held for ſufficient Peers of Barons. On this Occaſion we may obſerve (amongſt many others) in the Lieger-Book of the Abbey of Peterburgh, two notable Records of Fines levied, the one 29 Henry 2. before divers Biſhops, & Ranulpho de Glanvill Juſticiario Domini Regis, & Richardo Theſaurar. & W° Maldunt Camerar. and divers others, & coram aliis Baronibus ibi tum præſentibus. And another 6 R. 1. before the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and other Biſhops, & aliis Baronibus, as Juſtices of the Common-Pleas. Hoveden, p. 702. noteth of the great Chancellor in Richard the Firſt's Time who was Cuſtos Regni in the King's Abſence, Nihil operari voluit in regimine regni, niſi per voluntatem & conſenſum ſociorum ſuorum aſſignatorum, & per conſilium Baronum Scaccarii. In theſe, and many the like Places, the word Baron cannot ſignify that meaning wherein it was ſometimes taken, of the Saxon Idiom for a Free-holder, as Barones London, the Freemen of London, Barones quinque portuum, the Freemen of the Cinque Ports, and Court Baron, the Free-Suitors Court; but it muſt be taken in the Places before cited, for the name of Dignity and Title in this Kingdom, which hath been ſo antient, and was, and is of ſo great Honour and Eſteem amongſt us.

'You ſee what Dignity and Honours, and deſervedly, the Cuſtom of this Nation affords unto their Judges; Ariſtotle in his Politicks, tells us that the Magiſtrate is ſet above the People, but it is for the People's ſake. A Reverence to the Perſon of the Judge procures a Reverence to the Law pronounced by him; but I ſhall haſten to ſpeak a few words of the Duty belonging to your Office, as you are the chief Judge of this Court, and in your Circuits and other publick Employments in the Commonwealth.

'For the Duty of a Judge there cannot be a better Direction than that Council which Jethro gave to Moſes for the appointing of Judges, That they ſhould be Men of Courage, and Men of Truth, fearing God, and hating Covetouſneſs.

'For Courage I remember in a Speech upon the like Occaſion with this, of a Judge (whoſe Memory I have particular Cauſe to honour) That the Life of a Judge is Militia quædam, if not Martyrium quoddam, in both which Courage is requiſite againſt the Aſſaults of Friends, of Family, of Servants, and the many Importunities and Temptations which he ſhall meet withal; and a Martyr he muſt be in bearing the Provocations, Cenſures, Scandals and Reproaches which will be caſt upon every Judge, one Party being always diſpleaſed, and not ſparing, eſpecially in theſe times to cenſure the Judgment, be it never ſo upright. He muſt want no Courage to reſiſt even the higheſt, and greateſt Powers. The Stat. 2. Ed. 3. cap. 8. ſaith, it is accorded and eſtabliſhed, that it ſhall not be commanded by the Great Seal, nor the little Seal to diſturb or delay common Right; and though ſuch Commandment do come, the Juſtices ſhall not therefore leave to do Right in any Point; and to execute this Law requireth Courage. 24 Car.

'Purſuant to this is the Statute 14. Ed. 3. cap. 14. and the Parliament Roll, 45 Ed. n. 44. and 2 R. 2. n. 51. and all theſe are only declaratory of the common Law, as is evident before any of theſe Statutes, by the cloſe Roll, 7 Ed. 2. M. 15. where in a Writ to the chief Juſtice of the Common-Pleas the King commandeth, quod propter aliqua Mandata vobis ſub magno, aut privato Sigillo; they ſhould not forbear to do right; Juſtitiam nemini denegando, nec etiam deferendo; and in our Books, 1 Ed. 3. fol. 26. and 2 Ed. 3. fol. 3. if the King command the Judges to do that which cannot be done by Law, they ſhall not do it. According to Magna Charta, nulli negabimus, nulli deferemus Juſtitiam, vel rectum; and this the Words of your Oath injoin.

'The old Law of Edward the Confeſſor in Lambert, fol. 38. commands the Judges to be equal to all, nec quicquam formident, quin jus Commune audaciter libereque dicant.

'For this we have an excellent Precedent in Matthew Paris, fol. 971. 41 H. 3. who relates that Nobiles firmius confœderati conſtituerunt ſibi Juſtitiarium, virum ingenuum, militem illuſtrem, & legum terræ peritum, Hugonem Bigod, qui Officium Juſtitiarii ſtrenue peragens nullatenus permittat jus regni vacillare, this is a good Example of a chief Juſtice; and this jus regni is highly entruſted with every Judge, and I doubt not but that your ſelf who have this Truſt hitherto ſo well performed, and the reſt whom the Parliament ſhall prefer, will perform this great Truſt with Courage, againſt which Fear is not admitted for an Excuſe, for ſo is the Petition of the Commons in the Parliament Roll, 1 H. 4. n. 47. That the Lords nor the Judges be not received in time to come for their Excuſe to ſay, that they durſt not do nor ſay the Law, or their Intent for doubt of Death, becauſe ils ſont plus tenus de raiſon de garder leur ſerment, que de doubter mort, ou aucune forfeiture, one Word comprehends all upon this Subject in the firſt of Deuteronomy, a Judge muſt not fear the Face of Man.

'In the next Place they are directed to be Men of Truth; for the finding out whereof there are many Incidents requiſite, as firſt, Learning.

'In the Parliament Rolls, 17 Ed. 3. the Commons petition that none may be made Juſtices but Men of Learning; and King Alfred took great care in appointing and examining his Judges that they ſhould be Learned, as Aſſer Menevenſis teſtifies, and Bracton ſaith of an unlearned Judge, ex alto corruit, quia volare ſatagit antequam pennas aſſumat. The Parliament have manifeſted their Care for the choice of Learned Perſons to be Judges; witneſs your ſelf Mr. Sergeant, and thoſe reverend Brethren of yours, whom you will find upon the Benches, Men able to underſtand and convince the Subtleties of any Arguments tending to obſcure the Truth; and thus Judges ought to be qualified.

'Induſtry

Anno 1648.

'Induſtry is as requiſite for the finding out of 'Truth; the Burden of our Profeſſion grows 'the heavier when we are the leſs able to bear 'it; a Judge is more converſant with his Books, 'and more ſpent with Travail and Attendance 'upon the Affairs of others in his old Age, than 'was required of him when a young Student, 'Oportet Judicem cuncta rimari.

'Patience is alſo neceſſary for the finding out 'of Truth, when the Judgment is clouded with 'Paſſion, the Truth will not be clearly diſcern-'ed; the Digeſt directs a Judge not to give 'opprobrioſa verba to any in Judgment, no Im-'pertinencies, Importunities, Clamours, nor Re-'proaches muſt move him; he is to learn from 'the Unbeſeemingneſs and Intemperances of o-'thers Paſſions, the better how to govern his 'own.

'He muſt alſo be patient in allowing ſufficient 'time both for that which is not material, 'as for that which is; the Diſtinction is not 'eaſy, but by the Diſcretion and Ingenuity of 'Council. The Law of Henry 1. in Lambert, 186. 'ſaith, ipſi co-agentes frequenter interrogandi ſunt 'an amplius dicere velint, an inde judicari, quia 'multa per ſurreptionem eveniunt, the Words of 'our Judgment are ſignificant to this purpoſe, 'and ſhew the Patience of your Predeceſſors, 'viſis, plenius intellectis, maturâ deliberatione habitâ, 'conſideratum eſt. This was of ſo high eſteem 'among the Romans, that Cicero affirms, Sola 'Judicis juſtitia eſt patentia, and ſurely that Judge 'doth ſeldom determine juſtly, that doth not 'hear patiently.

'Advice is very requiſite for knowing the 'Truth, and it hath been the Cuſtom of the 'reverend Judges in doubtful Caſes to have the 'Opinion and Advice of their Brethren, accord-'ing to that Direction, 1 Ed. 3. fol. 11. where 'one Judge tells his Companion, that he ſhould 'not begin a new thing until he had heard his 'Fellows, 7 H. 6. a Judge of the Common-'Pleas ſent into the Hall to know the Opinion 'of the Judges of the the King's-Bench, and 'of the Barons of the Exchequer in a Cauſe 'then before him. In the Reign of Ed. 2. and 'upwards, when any Difficulty was, then all the 'Judges and Sages of the Law determined it; 'and their Aſſembly and Reſolution was entred 'in the Roll. In the great Caſe of the Quare 'Impedit between the King and the Prior of 'Worceſter, concerning an Appropriation; the 'Record ſaith, ad quem diem, &c. examinatis, '& intellectis Recordo, & Proceſſu coram toto con-'cilio, tam Theſaurar. & Baronibus de Scaccario 'quam Cancellar. ac etiam Juſtitiariis de utroque 'Banco, dicunt quod ad Dominum Regem pertinet 'præſentare, &c. Ideo conſideratum eſt, &c. with this 'agrees, H. 3. 2 Ed. 1. coram rege in fine rotuli. Co. Lit. 304. and ſeveral other Authorities, 'and in Caſes of more Difficulty it was uſual 'to adjourn the Matter into the Parliament.

'Impartiality is likewiſe neceſſary, to have 'the Truth prevail, that neither great Men nor 'mean Men may pervert it; nor to turn Truth 'into Falſhood, or Falſhood into Truth. In 'the Decret. of Erod. it is ordained, hoc Judex 'curare debet ut æqua conditione litigetur. The 'like in the Laws of our ancient Kings, as in 'thoſe of Edgar to be found in Lambert, fol. '63. a. is commanded, publici juris beneficio quiſ-'que fruitur, eique ex bono (ſive is dives, ſive inops 'fuerit) jus redditur. And in that of Alured, in 'Lambert 20. juſtè judicato, inopique & adverſario 'perinde atque diviti & amico ſis æquus. Bracton 'hath it thus: ut cauſa viduæ ad eos liberè ingredia- 24 Car. 'tur, ut ſint Orphano & Pupillo adjutores. With 'theſe do agree frequent Conſtitutions of H. 1. 'H. 3. E. 1. and other times.

'As Judges ought to be Men of Truth, ſo they 'ought to be Men fearing God; which is the 'next and higheſt Duty of every Judge, the be-'ginning and the end of all Wiſdom; he that 'doth not fear God will be apt to fear Men, and 'he that fears Men will never give a right Judg-'ment. In the Laws of the Confeſſor which are 'in the Notes upon Eadmerus 4. 186. and in Lam-'bert, 168. in the Language of that time the 'words are, Ententivement ſe purpenſent cil qui 'les judgments ant a favre, que ſi judgment cum 'deſirent quant ils dient, dimitte nobis debita noſ-'tra: and indeed Judges have greateſt cauſe to 'fear God, whoſe Judgments they pronounce, 'and before whom they muſt come in Judgment 'for thoſe Judgments which they give here.

'Hating Covetouſneſs is the laſt part of this 'Charge to Judges, where a Judge is not only 'forbidden to be Covetous, but commanded to 'hate Covetouſneſs.

'Covetouſneſs embraceth Bribery, and Bribery 'doth blind the Eyes of the Wiſe, and pervert 'Judgment. How odious this was to the Peo-'ple of Rome, appears by the Oration of Piſo in 'the Senate mentioned in Tacitus; and in our Na-'tion by the great Examples of Juſtice upon the 'corrupt Judges, as in Edward I. time when the 'Lord Chief Baron amongſt others was ranſom-'ed at 30000 m which in our Account at this 'Day is 100000 l, and the Caſe of Thorpe, 14 E. 3. 'and too many others. He that is Covetous 'makes too much haſte to be rich, and the wiſe 'Man ſaith of him, he cannot be Innocent. The 'Poets feign that when Plutus is ſent from 'Jupiter, he limps and goes ſlowly; but when 'he is ſent from Pluto, he runs, and is ſwift of 'Foot: The Moral is, That Goods ill gotten 'ſent by Pluto, the Devil, come apace; but 'Goods that are well gotten come in but ſlowly. 'The Roman word for them at the beſt is Impe-'dimenta, they are Hindrances to the due Execu-'tion of Juſtice, and all other good Actions. I 'ſhall commend the Council more than the Prac-'tice of a great Judge of our Profeſſion, my Lord 'St. Albans: Seek not proud Riches, but ſuch as 'thou may'ſt get juſtly, uſe ſoberly, diſtribute 'cheerfully, and leave contentedly. As Cicero 'relates of Rabirius Poſthumus, in ſtudio rei ampli-'ficandæ, apparebat non avaritiæ prædam, ſed in-'ſtrumentum bonitati quæri. This concerns all 'good Men, and eſpecially Judges, who ſhould 'be the leſs intent upon their private Intereſt, 'that they may the more intend the Publick; 'according to that of Ariſtotle in his Pol. A Ma-'giſtrate is the Keeper and Diſpoſer of the Publick, 'and not of his own proper Goods. Yet for the 'better Encouragement, and Support of the 'Judges, whoſe ordinary Allowances are no more 'at this Day than they were in Edward I's Time, 'and then it was very liberal, it hath pleaſed 'the Parliament already to provide in part, and 'I am confident they will do the like in general, 'That every Judge ſhall have a competent Sup-'ply, and Salary, according to his great Pains 'and Quality.

'What I might ſay concerning the Courſe and 'Juriſdiction of this Court, will be better infor-'med to you by my Lords the reverend Judges, 'your Aſſociates, and by your own knowledge; 'what I have ſaid concerning the duty of Judges 'is no more but what I have ſeen practiſed by 'them,

'them, and by your ſelf, when I had the Honour to plead before you. I have therefore ſaid 'the leſs, and what I have ſaid is but according 'to the old verſe,

Qui monet ut facias quod jam facis, ille monendo Laudat, & hortatu comprobat acta ſuo.

'In the preſent choice which it hath pleaſed 'the Parliament to make of Judges I doubt not 'but themſelves will receive Honour, the People 'Satisfaction, and the Judges Comfort, which I 'heartily wiſh, and to you Mr. Sergeant Wilde 'in particular.

The Sergeant anſwered my Speech according to Courſe, we gave him his Oath, and inveſted him in the Place of Chief Baron.

Army. Letters from St. Albans that the General Officers of the Army, upon their ſeveral meetings at the head Quarters, had agreed upon a large Remonſtrance to be preſented to the Parliament.

The new Sergeants appeared at the Chancery Bar, and I made the Speech to them, to this Effect: 24 C.

Mr. Sergeant St. John, and the reſt of you Gentlemen, who have received Writs to be Sergeants at Law, Speech to the Sergeants.

'IT hath pleaſed the Parliament in commanding theſe Writs to iſſue forth, to manifeſt their conſtant Reſolutions to continue and 'maintain the old ſettled form of Government, 'and Laws of the Kingdom, and to provide for 'the Supply of the high Courts of Juſtice with 'the uſual number of Judges, and to manifeſt 'their reſpects to our Profeſſion. And likewiſe 'to beſtow a particular mark of Favour upon 'you as eminent Members of it, the good Affections to the Publick, and the Abilities of moſt 'of you, they know by experience among themſelves, and of the reſt, by good Information.

'I acknowledge that the Burthen of this Buſineſs lies heavy upon me in regard of my own 'weakneſs, and the worthineſs of the Perſons, 'to whom my Words are directed; but as I am 'of the leaſt Ability to give, ſo you have the leaſt 'need to receive Inſtructions.

'I ſhould be unwilling to ſee the Solemnity of 'this general Call diminiſhed, and am the rather 'perſuaded to ſupply my preſent Duty for ſeveral 'reſpects:

1 'For the Honour of that Authority, which 'commands your Attendance, and my Service 'upon this occaſion.

2. 'For the Honour of this Court, which 'challengeth a great ſhare in this work, your 'Writs iſſuing from hence, your Appearance 'here Recorded, and your Oath is here to be 'taken.

3. 'The Honour and particular Reſpects 'which I have of you that are called to this 'Degree.

4. 'And laſtly, out of my own Affections to 'the Degree, being my ſelf the Son of a Serge'ant, and having the Honour to be one of your 'number in this Call, and I do acknowledge 'that both in my Deſcent and Fortune, I am a 'great Debtor to the Law.

'For theſe Reaſons, I preſume (eſpecially be'ing with thoſe from whom I have by long Ac'quaintance found much Friendſhip) that I ſhall 'now receive a fair Conſtruction of what I ſpeak 'upon this very great Subject.

'My Obſervations ſhall be upon your Call by 'Writ, and upon the Writ it ſelf.

'Your being called by Writ, is a great Argu'ment of the Antiquity of Sergeants. The Re'giſter hath many Writs (as my Lord Coke holds 'in his Preface to the 10. Rep.) that were in 'uſe before the Conqueſt, and in the moſt An'tient Manuſcript Regiſters is your Writ, of the 'ſame Form with thoſe by which you are called, 'and if there had been any Alteration within 'time of Memory, it would probably have been 'extant.

'We find Sergeants at Law often mentioned 'in our Year-Books, and in the Records in the 'Tower, as high as the beginning of Ed. 1. and 'by Bracton who wrote in Hen. 3. Time.

'And it may probably be conjectured, that 'William de Buſſey was a Sergeant, by his Habit 'of the Coif, and his Office.

'Of whom Matthew Paris relates 42 Hen. 3. 'that he was Seneſchallus, & Principalis Conſiliarius Gulielmi de Valentia, and being accuſed for 'great

Anno 1648.

great Crimes, upon his Trial, when he could not acquit himſelf,

'Voluit ligamenta ſuæ Coifæ ſolvere, ut palam monſtraret tonſuram ſe habere clericalem, and ſo to have avoided Judgment, but it would not ſerve his turn?

'Thus far it is granted by a little Manuſcript Treatiſe, which endeavours to detract from the Honour of this Degree, and therefore requires an Anſwer.

'It aſſerts, that by Magna Charta (Communia placita non ſequantur curiam noſtram) the Court of Common-Pleas was erected; and that ſome of our Profeſſion, by Writ then framed, were commanded to attend that lower Court, the Lawyers being generally unwilling to leave the King's Houſe, where the other Courts of Juſtice then ſat, and to attend this new Court elſewhere. It is reaſonable well that they are allowed the Antiquity of 9 Hen. 3. and by this as Antient as the Common-Pleas Court, but the Error, that this Court was erected 9 Hen. 3. is ſufficiently refuted.

'The ſame great Charter is in Matthew Paris in King John's Time with the Words of Communia placita, &c. in it, but I preſume his meaning is, that before the Statute of Magna Charta, there was no Court of Common-Pleas, though his Words be, before 9 Hen. 3.

'It is manifeſt by undeniable Authorities, out of Antient Manuſcripts, and Rolls, and the black Book of Peterborough, that Caſes were adjudged in Ric. 1. and Hen. 2. Time, Coram Juſtitiariis in Banco reſidentibus, and the Names of thoſe that were then Judges of this Court, are ſet down many Years before Magna Charta was granted, which by Hoveden, Paris, and others, are ſaid to be the Laws of Edward the Confeſſor.

'And if it be admitted, that Sergeants are as ancient as theſe Laws, they allow them the Antiquity of the Confeſſor; and if as ancient as this Court, they are certainly as antient as any thing in our Law.

'But the Author of this Treatiſe affirmeth, that before the Erection of the Court of Common-Pleas it cannot be ſhewed that there were any ſpecial Sergeant Pleaders. I am of his Opinion, and likewiſe that no Man can ſhew when that Court was firſt erected; which is alſo the Opinion of my Lord Coke, 5 Rep. 9 Ed. 4. Sir Roger Owen, Lambert, and others.

'Yet if the Author mean that before Magna Charta 9 Hen. 3. there were no ſuch Sergeants, he may be ſatisfied of the contrary out of Hoveden, and Paris, who lived in Ric. 1. and Hen. 3. Time, and are Authors of good Credit. They recite the Charge of the Juſtices in Eyre given in Ric. 1. and King John's Time: One of their Articles is, to inquire of the Sergeants at Law, and Attorneys Fees.

'In the Book of Entries, in a Bill of Debt againſt a Sergeant at Law, in the Common-Pleas, he ſhows, and preſcribes, that Sergeants could not be ſued there by Bill, but by Writ out of the Chancery; and this being by Preſcription, ſhows that Sergeants were before the Time of Ric. 1.

'And the Mirror of Juſtices (which I preſume they will not deny to be yet more ancient, which my Lord Coke holds to be written before the Conqueſt) ſaith a Countor eſt un Sergeant ſachant la Ley de Realm, to pronounce and defend Actions in Judgment.

'From the Antiquity of the Degree, I come to my Obſervations upon the Words of your Writ, which I ſhall take in order as they are.

1. 'Quia de Adviſamento Concilii noſtri, &c. Car 24.

'Theſe Words are in the Writs of Creation of Peers, and in the Summons of them, both Spiritual, and Temporal, and of the Judges, and King's Council, to the Parliament, and in your Writs, but in no other, except upon ſome high and weighty occaſions, touching the publick ſafety and the like.

'And for your greater Honour this Council by advice of which you are called to this Degree, is the great Council of the Kingdom.

'The next Words in your Writ are, Ordinavimus vos, &c. in the plural Number, in the ſecond Perſon, which is an Enallage of Number, chiefly to expreſs Excellency in the Perſon to whom it is referred.

'Selden in his Titles of Honour f. 121. ſhoweth the uſe of it in the Jewiſh Nation, and in France, Spain, Germany, and other Countries, and always is in dignity of the Party to whom applied; and the Stile of the Chancery is ſo only to the Peers, the Judges, the King's Council, and to Sergeants.

'Therefore 29 Ed. 3. f. 44. In a Quare Impedit, the Writ was Precipite, and excepted againſt as falſe Latin, but Thorp ſaid, it was not falſe Latin, but the plural Number only to expreſs Reverence to the Perſon; the other anſwered that no ſuch Reverence is done to a Sheriff, and for this, the Writ was abated.

'The next Words in your Writ are ad Statum, &c. which ſheweth Dignity, and Honour given to them.

'The Author of the Manuſcript formerly cited by me, allows the Sergeants but little State, where he ſaith, they kept their Pillars at Paul's, where their Clients might find them; as if they did little better than Emendicare panem.

'This was ſomewhat far from Weſtminſter-Hall, and as far from Truth; being grounded upon miſtake of one of their Ceremonies of State, where they went to Paul's to Offer.

'A Manuſcript of the Call of Fitz James, and other Sergeants, 11 Hen. 8. ſaith, that their Steward brought every one of them to a ſeveral Pillar in Paul's, and there left them a time for their private Devotions; no convenient Time for Clients.

'In the Regiſter, a Writ of Ex gravi Querela mentions a Device to a Prieſt, to ſay Maſs at a Pillar in Paul's; and I believe moſt of us, both in this, and other great Churches, have ſeen old People kneeling at the Pillars, in their private Prayers.

'Our old Engliſh Poet Chaucer (whom I think not unproper to cite, being one of the greateſt Clerks and Wits of his Time) had a better Opinion of the State of a Sergeant, as he expreſſeth in his Prologue of the Sergeant.

A Sergeant at Law wary and wiſe,
That oft had been at the perviſe,
There was alſo, full of rich Excellence,
Diſcreet he was, and of great Reverence.

And in his Deſcription of the Franklyn, he ſaith of him:

At Seſſions there was he Lord, and Sire,
Full oft had he bin Knight of the Shire;
A Sheriff had he bin, and a Countor,
Was no where ſuch a worthy Vavaſor.

'A Countor was a Sergeant, and a Vavaſour was the next in Degree to a Baron.

Anno 1648.

'We find in many of our Year-Books, eſpecially in Ed. 3's Time, that they were joined 'with Knights in Aſſizes, Trials of Challenges, '&c. 38 Hen. 6. f. 31. Priſot ſaith to the Ser'geants, they would have no Worſhip by ſuch an 'Act, &c. and that Word was given to the 'Lords in thoſe days.

'By the Statute 12 Ric. 2. c. 10. the ſame 'Privilege, which is given to the Judges for Ab'ſence from the Seſſions, is given alſo to the 'Sergeants.

'34 Hen. 6. Brook. Noſme. 5. ſaith that ſer'viens ad legem eſt noſme de dignity, comme Chiva'lier, and it is character indelebilis, no acceſſion of 'Honour, or Office, or remotion from them, 'takes away this Dignity, but he remains a Ser'geant ſtill.

'Their Robes, and Officers, their Bounty in 'giving Rings, their Feaſts, which Forteſcue 'ſaith were coronationis inſtar, and continued an'tiently ſeven Days, and as Holingſhed notes, 'Kings and Queens were often preſent at them, 'and all their Ceremonies and Solemnities in 'their Creation do ſufficiently expreſs the State 'due unto them.

'The next Words in your Writ are, Et gra'dum, &c.

'This is a Degree of ſuch Eminency, that 'the Profeſſors of Law in no Nation are ho'noured with the like, with ſuch Solemnities 'and State, as I have before mentioned, and by 'Mandate under the publick Seal of the Com'monwealth.

'I find indeed in the Preface to the Digeſt, ſe'veral Appellations given to the Students of that 'Law, that they called them Dupondios, or Juſti'nianeos, and (when of farther ſtanding) Papini'aniſtas.

'When they had proceeded farther, they cal'led them, λύτας, and laſtly προλύτας, and the 'Title and Degree of Doctor of the Laws, I ac'knowledge to merit very much of Reſpect and 'Honour, as to the Degree, and Perſons ho'noured with it. But ſuch State and Degree as 'this of Sergeants at Law, is not among the 'Municipal Lawyers of any other Nation, 'though all Kingdoms have their Municipal 'Laws, and Lawyers as well as we.

'Degrees are Rewards of Study and Learning. '—Nec enim Virtutem amplectimur ipſam, Præmia 'ſi tollas. They are τὸ βραβεῖον, a ſpur to Virtue, 'and witneſſes of Learning. And ſince, Gentle'men, you have already obtained that depth in 'your Profeſſion as renders you capable of this 'Degree, that Reſolution of all true Lovers of 'Learning is worthy of you.

1. 'To ſay ſeneſco diſcens; proceed in your 'Studies ſtill. Your Predeceſſors, for their 'Learning, have been often adviſed with by the 'Judges, as appears in our Books, and by the 'Parliament, as may be ſeen in the Rolls there'of.

2. 'By this Degree you become Chief Advo'cates of the Common Law, an Attribute given 'by Forteſcue, who was a Sergeant, and Chief 'Juſtice, and Lord Chancellor.

'It imports no leſs than all Antiquity hath 'appropriated unto Sergeants at Law, the Prac'tice of that great and univerſal Court, where 'all that concerns meum & tuum, the Inheri'tances, and Property of all the People of Eng'land, are heard and determined.

'This Degree Ordaining you to be Chief Ad'vocates, the Duty of whom pertains to you to 'be performed, and may not be declined by you.

'I hold it not impertinent to mention ſome- 24 Car. 'thing to you, of the Duties of an Advocate; 'which are ſome of them to the Courts, and 'ſome to Clients.

'To the Courts of Juſtice he owes Reverence, 'they being the high Tribunals of Law, of which 'Doctor and Student, and the Statute of Marle'bridge ſaith, omnes tam Majores quàm Minores ju'ſtitiam recipiant, and therefore great Reſpect and 'Reverence is due to them from all Perſons, and 'more from Advocates than from any others.

2. 'An Advocate owes to the Court a juſt and 'true Information, the zeal of his Clients Cauſe, 'as it muſt not tranſport him to Irreverence, ſo 'it muſt not miſlead him to untruths in his Infor'mation of the Court, the Statute of Wil. 1. c. '29. and the Mirrour of Juſtices agree in an ex'cellent Direction in this Point.

'When a good Cauſe is deſtroyed by miſinfor'mations or unlawful Subtleties or Deceits, let 'the Inſtruments thereof take heed of the wo 'denounced by the Prophet againſt them, that 'call good evil and evil good, that put darkneſs for 'light, and light for darkneſs, their root ſhall be 'rottenneſs, and ſhall go up as duſt.

'Remember that in your Oath, for one verb '[you ſhall ſerve] you have two adverbs, [well 'and truly.]

'The Duty of Advocates to their Clients, are 'general and particular.

'The general conſiſt in three Things, Secrecy, 'Diligence, and Fidelity.

1. 'For Secrecy, Advocates are a kind of 'Confeſſors, and ought to be ſuch, to whom 'the Client may with confidence lay open his 'Evidences, and the naked Truth of his Caſe, 'ſub Sigillo, and he ought not to diſcover them 'to his Clients prejudice, nor will the Law com'pel him to it.

2. 'For Diligence, much is required in an Ad'vocate, in receiving Inſtructions, not only by 'Breviats, but by looking into the Books them'ſelves, in peruſing Deeds, in drawing Convey'ances, and Pleas, in ſtudying the Points in 'Law, and in giving a conſtant and careful at'tendance and endeavour in his Clients Cauſes.

3. 'For Fidelity it is accounted vinculum Socie'tatis, the name of Unfaithfulneſs is hateful in 'all, and more in Advocates than others, whom 'the Client truſts with his Livelihood, without 'which his Life is irkeſome, and the Unfaithful'neſs or Fraud of the one, is the Ruin of the 'other.

'Virgil in his Fiction of Æneas going down to 'Hell, ſets theſe in the front of Crimes.

Hic quibus inviſi fratres dum vita manebat,
Pulſatuſve parens, aut fraus innexa clienti,
Incluſi pœnam expectant.

'For your Duty to particular Clients you may 'conſider, that ſome are Rich, yet with ſuch 'there muſt be no endeavour to lengthen Cauſes, 'to continue Fees.

'Some are Poor, yet their Buſineſs muſt not 'be neglected, if their Cauſe be honeſt, they are 'not the worſt Clients, though they fill not 'your Purſes, they will fill the Ears of God 'with Prayers for you, and he who is the Defen'der of the Poor will repay your Charity.

'Some Clients are of mean Capacity, you muſt 'take the more pains to inſtruct your ſelf, to un'derſtand their Buſineſs.

'Some are of quick Capacity and Confidence, 'yet you muſt not truſt to their Information.

'Some

Anno 1648.

'Some are peaceable, detain them not, but ſend 'them home the ſooner.

'Some are contentious, adviſe them to Recon-'cilement with their Adverſary.

'Amongſt your Clients and all others, endea-'vour to gain, and preſerve that Eſtimation and 'Reſpect, which is due to your Degree and to a 'juſt, honeſt, and diſcreet Perſon.

'Among your Neighbours in the Country, ne-'ver foment but pacify Contentions, the French 'Proverb is,

Bonne terre mauvais chemin,
Bon Advocat mauvais voiſin.

'I hope this will never by any here be turned 'into Engliſh.

'The next and laſt Words which I ſhall note 'in your Writ, are Servientes ad legem.

'The name Sergeant is antient, ſome would 'fetch it from the French Word Sergent, as Pas-'quier in his Recherches, but that Word is alſo 'Saxon.

'You are indeed Servientes, but it is Ad legem, 'your Fee is honorarium, and you are or ought 'to be, Patroni Clientium, Viduæ & Orphano Ad-'jutores.

'The Conſervators of the Peace, (as in my 'Lord Coke's Preface to his 10. Rep.) were anti-'ently called Servientes pacis, and the Tenure by 'Grand Sergeantry is the moſt honourable.

'Sergeants were alſo called in Latin Narratores, 'as my Lord Coke, and Sir Roger Owen obſerve. 'And in the Book in the Tower, 14 E. 2. f. 89. 'One prays that he may have Narratores in placitis 'ipſum tangentibus, notwithſtanding the Laws of 'Wales.

'In the Records in the Treaſury, 25 E. 1. one 'Thomas Marſhall juſtified the Maintenance of a 'Cauſe, for that he was Communis Serviens Narra-'tor coram Juſtitiariis, & alibi ubi melius ad hoc 'conduci poterit, and as a Counſellor he adviſed 'him.

'They were antiently called likewiſe Countors, 'as is noted by Sir Roger Owen and my Lord Coke, 'becauſe the Count comprehendeth the Subſtance 'of the Original Writ, and the Foundation of the 'Suit and of that Part (as the worthieſt) they took 'their Name, and loſt it not in the Reign of E. 1. 'and at this Day every Sergeant at his Creation, 'doth count in ſome real Action at the Common-'Pleas Bar.

'In the Statute of W. 1. 3 E. 1. he is called 'Sergeant Countor, and in the Statute 28 E. 1. c. '11. is this Clauſe, Neſt my a entender que home 'ne poet auer Council des Countors & des Sages gents.

'Chaucer calls them Countors, and in the Mir-'ror of Juſtices, there is a Chapter of Countors, 'the like in the grand Couſtumier of Normandy, 'and in the Text, and Gloſs of both, theſe Coun-'tors are agreed to be Advocates, who plead and 'defend Mens Cauſes in Judicial Courts.

'The reſt of the Words of your Writ prefix a 'Day, and command you to prepare your ſelves 'to take this State and Degree upon you.

'Accordingly ſome of you have formerly ap-'peared upon your Writs, which have been or-'dered to be filed, and your Appearances recor-'ded.

'The reſt of you have now appeared upon 'your Writs, which have been read, and the like 'Order given, as for the others, and we are ready 'to admit you to take your Oaths.

'And what Honour and Advantage hath been 'gained by any the moſt eminent of your Prede-'ceſſors in this Degree, I do heartily wiſh may 'be multiplied unto you, Mr. Sergeant St. John, 'and to all the reſt of theſe worthy Gentlemen 'your Brethren.'

20. Vote for Money for the Forces in Carliſle and Northumberland, &c.

Several Officers of the Army preſented to the Commons (not to the Lords) the large Remonſtrance of the Army, with a Letter from the General to the Houſe, deſiring the Remonſtrance might have a preſent reading, and the things propounded therein, be timely conſidered, and that no failing in Circumſtances, or Expreſſions, may prejudice the Reaſon or Juſtice of what was tendered. Remonſtrance.

The Preamble of the Remonſtrance ſhewed the Miſcarriages of the King, and of the Parliament ſeverally and in Treaties between them, eſpecially that Treaty wherein they now are.

That they conceive the Parliament hath abundant cauſe to lay aſide any farther Proceedings in this Treaty, and to return to their Votes of non-addreſſes, and to reject the King's Demands for himſelf and his Party, and that he may no more come to Government nor to London.

That Delinquents be no more bargained with, nor partially dealt with. Nor protected, nor pardonable by any other Power, only moderated upon ſubmiſſion; and among theſe Offenders, they offer,

1. That the King be brought to Juſtice, as the capital Cauſe of all.

2. That a Day be ſet for the Prince and Duke of York to come in, and if they do not, then to be declared Traitors, if they do come in to be proceeded againſt, or remitted as they give ſatisfaction.

3. That publick Juſtice may be done upon ſome capital Cauſers, and Actors in this War.

4. That the reſt upon ſubmiſſion may have Mercy for their Lives.

5. That the Soldiers may have their Arrears, and publick Debts be paid out of Delinquents Eſtates.

6. That a Period be ſet to this Parliament, and a Proviſion for new, and more equal Repreſentatives of the People.

Then they offer Rules for this Repreſentative Power, and that it be the Supreme Power.

That no King be hereafter admitted but upon Election of, and in truſt for the People, by ſuch Repreſentative.

That the General Settlement be done by this Parliament, and eſtabliſhed by a general Contract, and Agreement of the People with Subſcriptions thereunto; and none to be capable of Benefit by this Agreement without ſubſcribing thereunto, nor any King be admitted to the Crown, or any other to any Office, without ſubſcribing to it.

Theſe things they preſs as good for this and other Kingdoms, and hope it will not be taken ill, becauſe from an Army, and ſo Servants when their Maſters are Servants, and Truſtees for the Kingdom.

This Remonſtrance endured a long and high Debate, ſome inveighing ſharply againſt the Inſolency of it, others palliated, and excuſed the Matters in it, and ſome did not ſtick to juſtify it, moſt were ſilent becauſe it came from the Army, and feared the like to be done by them, as had been done formerly; in fine the Debate was adjourned.

21. Ordinance tranſmitted to the Lords touching the Sale of Biſhops Lands.

Order to ſtay all Proceſs againſt any for ſelling Tobacco, without Licence from former Patentees of that Monopoly, and referred to a Committee to examine that Matter; the like Order touching the Office of Wine Licences.

Anno 1648. An additional Propoſition paſt by the Commons to be ſent to the King, that he would paſs ſuch Acts as ſhould be preſented to him by both Houſes, for ſtrengthning the Union between England and Scotland.

Iſle of Wight.

Excepted Perſons. Both Houſes agreed to continue the Earl of Newcaſtle one of the ſeven to be excepted from Pardon, and Sir John Byron to be put in for another, inſtead of Sir John Winter.

Order of both Houſes for three thouſand Pounds for Colonel Roſſiter, and all the Forces in Lincolnſhire, except his Troop to be disbanded.

Letters from the Iſle of Wight, that the King refuſed to paſs any thing againſt the Marquiſs of Ormond, until the Treaty be wholly ended; and that he adheres to his former Reſolution concerning Biſhops, and that their Lands be leaſed only for 99 Years, and not ſold.

New Sergeants. The Commiſſioners of the Great Seal ſat in Chancery without Sir Thomas Widdrington, and heard many Motions, till paſt two a-Clock; then the new Sergeants came in their Party-coloured Robes and their Servants, and the Gentlemen of the Inns of Court with them; after they were come the Judges of the King's Bench, and after them, the Commiſſioners of the Great Seal went to the Common-Pleas Court, where we ſat in the middle of the Bench, the Chief Juſtice of the King's Bench on the right Hand of the Earl of Kent, and the Lord Chief Baron on my left Hand, and the other Judges on either Hand of us, in their Antiquity, and the Barons of the Exchequer on a Form, on the right Side of the Court.

The new Sergeants were brought up in their Antiquity, ſingly, by two of their elder Brethren, to the Bar, where they counted; and when they had done, a Gentleman their Friend appointed by them, did deliver their ſeveral Rings to the Earl of Kent firſt, then to my Lord Grey, next to me, then to the Chief Juſtice and Chief Baron, and to the reſt of the Judges and Barons in their Antiquity.

This Ceremony held till paſt four a-Clock in the Afternoon.

22. Orders touching levying the Aſſeſſments, and disbanding ſupernumerary Forces.

Upon a Report from the Committee of the Army, the Houſe approved of the General's drawing the Army into Towns and Garriſons, and of his lifting no more Forces, and disbanding Supernumeraries.

An Ordinance paſt for five thouſand Pounds out of the Delinquents Eſtates in Eſſex, for the Gratuity promiſed to the Soldiers that were before Colcheſter.

Col. Birch. Upon the Deſire of Colonel Birch a Member of the Houſe, the Place of High Steward of Lemſter, with the Profits thereof, was conferred on him, being void by the Delinquency of Sir Walter Pye. And upon the Deſire of Mr. Thomas Waller of Grey's Inn, Order for the Commiſſioners of the Great Seal to paſs a Patent to conſtitute him the Judge of the Iſle of Ely.

Letters from the Hague, that ſix more of the revolted Ships were come in, and that a Challenge paſt betwixt Prince Rupert and the Lord Culpepper.

Judges. The Commiſſioners heard ſome Cauſes and a few Motions in Chancery, and then roſe and went to the King's Bench, where we did ſwear Sergeant Browne a Judge of that Court; Sir Thomas Widdrington made a ſhort Speech to him, which he anſwered, and then took the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy, and of a Judge.

Then the Earl of Kent delivered to the Secondary of the King's Bench the Patent for him to be a Judge of that Court, which was read, and afterwards the Earl of Kent delivered the Patent to Sergeant Browne, and he took his Place of the third Judge of that Court. 24 Car.

From thence we went to the Common-Pleas, where Sir Thomas Widdrington made a ſhort Speech to Mr. Sergeant St. John, and Sergeant Beding field, who anſwered him, and then their Patents were read, and delivered to them, and Sergeant St. John was ſworn Chief Juſtice of the Common Pleas, and Sergeant Beding field the puiſne Judge of that Court.

From thence we went back to the King's Bench, where I made a ſhort Speech to Sergeant Jermyn, and he anſwered me, and then his Patent was read, and delivered to him, and he took the Oaths, and his Place of a puiſne Judge of that Court.

From thence we went into the Exchequer, where Sir Thomas Widdrington ſpake not long to Mr. Gate, who anſwered him, and was ſworn, and received his Patent, and was made a Baron of that Court.

23. Letters from the Iſle of Wight with his Majeſty's ultimate Anſwer concerning Biſhops. Iſle of Wight.

That he cannot, with a good Conſcience, conſent to the total Abolition of the Function and Power of Biſhops, nor to the entire and abſolute Alienation of their Lands, as is deſired; becauſe he is yet perſuaded in his Judgment, that the former is Apoſtolical in the Inſtitution, and that to take away the latter is Sacrilege.

Neither can his Majeſty communicate in a publick Form of Divine Service, and Adminiſtration of the Sacraments, where it is wholly uncertain, what the Miniſter will offer to God.

To this the Commiſſioners anſwered,

That it was not the Apoſtolical Biſhop which the Bill deſired his Majeſty to remove, but that Epiſcopacy, which was formerly eſtabliſhed by Law, in this Kingdom, grown up to an height of outward Pomp and Greatneſs, and found by Experience to be a Grievance to the Subject, a Hindrance of Piety, an Encroachment upon the Power of the Civil Magiſtrate, and ſo a Burthen to the Perſons, Purſes, and Conſciences of Men. Anſwer.

Whereupon, the Parliament finding it to be for the Honour of your Majeſty and Profit of the Subject, to take it away, deſire this Bill for that purpoſe, not meddling with the Apoſtolical Biſhop, nor determining what that Biſhop is, whom the Apoſtles mention in Scripture, but only to put him down by a Law, who was ſet up by a Law.

Nothing can be more proper for Parliaments, than to alter, repeal or make Laws, as Experience teacheth to be for the good of the Commonwealth: But admitting that Apoſtolical Biſhops were within the Purport of this Bill, they humbly conceive, it doth not follow, that therefore in Conſcience it muſt not be paſſed, for they may not grant that no Occaſion can make that alterable, which is found to have ſure Foundation only in the Practice of the Apoſtles, not in a Precept.

For the Sale of Biſhops Lands, which his Majeſty apprehends to be Sacrilege, they humbly offer, that Biſhopricks being diſſolved, their Lands (as of all Corporations) naturally by the Laws of the Land, revert to the Crown, which is their Founder and Patron, and heretofore held it no Sacrilege to diſpoſe of Biſhops Lands to its own and others Uſe, by Act of Parliament, which was an ordinary Practice in his Predeceſſors.

Beſides that, they might ſay, that in all Ages, and even under the Ceremonial Law, imminent and urgent Neceſſity (eſpecially by the Publick) hath diſpenſed

Anno 1648. penſed with the otherwiſe employing of conſecrated things.

As to that, that his Majeſty cannot communicate in a publick Form of divine Service, where it is uncertain what the Miniſter will offer to God.

They anſwer, That the Directory is certain as to the matter, leaving it to the Miniſter to enlarge or expreſs in Words, according to his Diſcretion, for the Exerciſe of his Gifts; and they add, that it can be no Objection againſt joining with a Miniſter in a Prayer, not to know before-hand the very Words that he will ſay, for then, one muſt not hear any Prayer before Sermon, where every ſeveral Miniſter hath a ſeveral Form, and muſt vary ſtill according to occaſion.

That what his Majeſty hath already conſented to concerning Biſhops, leaves it ſolely in his own Power, for their return again to their former Power after three Years, and to have the negative Voice in Ordination, which they humbly conceive the Scripture holds not forth to have been in that Biſhop who is there mentioned in theſe Writings of the Apoſtles; and conſequently, that which his Majeſty endeavours to preſerve, not to be the primitive Office of a Biſhop.

That the Intention of the Parliament is not to offer Violence to his Majeſty's Conſcience, but that he will be pleaſed to rectify it, by being better informed, that both he and his People may have cauſe of rejoicing.

The Lord Grey of Groby had the Thanks of the Houſe for taking Marquiſs Hamilton Priſoner, and diſperſing a Brigade of his Horſe.

Sheriffs. The Houſe ſpent almoſt the whole Day in nominating Sheriffs for all the Counties of the Kingdom.

Army. Many Rumours were of the Army's coming again to the Houſes.

24. Upon a Letter from the Lord Admiral, Order touching the raiſing of twenty thouſand Pounds for the Mariners that come in for the revolted Ships, and for other Affairs of the Navy, and for providing Money for the Summer's Fleet.

Vote for the Earl of Arundel to be admitted to his Compoſition for ſix thouſand Pounds, in regard he had ſuffered Loſſes by the Parliament's Forces, and that this ſix thouſand Pounds ſhould be paid for the Uſe of the Navy.

Letters from the Earl of Warwick, that divers of the revolted Ships are come into him.

25. Orders touching Sheriffs.

Orders for ſlighting the Garriſons of Aſhby de la Zouch, and Bullingbrook.

A Petition of one Maurice complaining of the arbitrary Proceedings of the Houſe of Lords, concerning an Eſtate of three thouſand Pounds per Annum, referred to be examined by a Committee.

Votes for disbanding Forces.

The Commiſſioners of the Great Seal went into the Queen's Court, and there we did ſwear Mr. Prideaux to be the King's Sollicitor.

Iſle of Wight. 27. Letters from Colonel Hammond, with one incloſed from the General to him, to require Colonel Hammond to repair to his Excellency to the head Quarters; and that Colonel Ewers was appointed to take the Charge of his Majeſty in the Iſle of Wight.

The Commons voted Colonel Hammond to ſtay in the Iſle of Wight to attend his Charge there, and the General to be acquainted with this Vote, and Letters to be ſent to the Admiral to ſend ſome Ships for Security of the Iſle of Wight, and that they obey the Orders of Colonel Hammond.

Letters from the Head Quarters, that the Officers ſpent Yeſterday wholly in Prayer; that they conſult how to effect what is in their Remonſtrance, and are reſolute to bring Delinquents to Puniſhment, and to ſettle the Kingdom in Peace, with what neceſſary Laws are wanting, for the Benefit and Eaſe of the Subject; and that a Petition came to the General from the Forces in Wales, and in the North, to expedite this Work. 24 Car.

A Meſſenger brought word to Windſor, that Colonel Ewers had the Cuſtody of his Majeſty, and that Colonel Hammond was upon the way to Windſor.

Upon Information of the Wants of Plymouth Garriſon, Orders for raiſing four thouſand Pounds for them, and Colonel Welden to go thither.

Debate whether the new Sergeants ſhould ſend a Ring to the King, and put off.

Letters from the Leaguer at Pontefract, that the Garriſon Soldiers come away from thence, and many move for Paſſes; that they made a Sally and were beaten in again; that all the Regiments in the North have petitioned the General againſt the Treaty, and for Juſtice, which were recommended, and ſent by Lieutenant General Cromwell to the Lord General.

28. Order for Captain Skinner and the reſt of the Men in the Creſcent Frigat lately taken, to be brought to Judgment for Piracy, after the Courſe of the Admiralty.

Order for Sequeſtrations of Delinquents in the North, for raiſing Money to disband the Supernumeraries there. And for Satisfaction of the Lancaſhire Forces.

Order touching new Sheriffs.

Order that the Eſtate of the Lord Lovelace be again ſequeſtred, if he refuſe to pay five hundred Pounds to Colonel Temple, as part of his Arrears.

The Lord of Ormond knighted divers in Ireland.

29. The publick Faſt-day.

Letters from Colonel Hammond with a Copy of the Orders from the General Council of the Army, and their Letter to Colonel Ewers and others, for ſecuring his Majeſty's Perſon in the Iſle of Wight. Iſle of Wight.

The Houſe ordered a Letter to the General to acquaint him, that theſe Orders and Inſtructions from him to Colonel Ewers for ſecuring his Majeſty's Perſon in the Iſle of Wight, were contrary to their Reſolutions and Inſtructions given to Colonel Hammond, and that it was the Pleaſure of the Houſe, that his Excellency recall the ſaid Orders, and that Colonel Hammond be ſet at Liberty to attend his Charge in the Iſle of Wight.

The Town was full of Fears of the Army.

30. The Queſtion whether the Remonſtrance of the Army, ſhould be taken into ſpeedy Conſideration, was by ninety Voices reſolved in the Negative. Army.

Report of the Letters from the General to the Committee of the Army, wherein he takes notice, that the Committee intend not to furniſh him with Money for Contingencies, which of neceſſity muſt be had, for Pay of Meſſengers and incident Charges: that he muſt be forced thereby, to receive Monies for this Purpoſe, out of the Collectors and Receivers Hands, where he can find it, if ſpeedy Courſe be not taken to ſupply him.

This was held in the Debate an high and unbeſeeming Letter from the General, but in Concluſion it was referred to the Committee of the Army to take ſuch Courſe as they ſhall think fit, for Pay of the Arrears of the Army.

Debate touching Pay for the reduced Officers.

Intelligence from the Head Quarters,

Anno 1648. Declaration.

That a full Council of the Army had agreed upon a Declaration, expreſſing their ſad Apprehenſions of the Danger and Evil of the Treaty with the King, and of any Accommodation with him, or Reſtitution of him thereupon.

Then they recite their late Remonſtrance preſented to the Commons, the Heads whereof they juſtify, but ſay, that to their Grief, they find that inſtead of any Satisfaction, or a reaſonable Anſwer thereto, they are wholly rejected, and the Conſideration thereof delayed from Day to Day.

That they can ſee in the Majority of thoſe truſted with the great Affairs of the Kingdom, nothing leſs than a treacherous, or corrupt Neglect of, and Apoſtaſy from the Publick Truſt repoſed in them.

And conſidering that as to the Breach of that Truſt, there is no higher formal Power of Man in being to appeal unto for Judgment, in ſuch caſe (as all others concerned in ſuch Breaches of Truſt will) ſo as they cannot but exerciſe that common Judgment which in their natural Capacity is left to them.

And there being no way of a juſt Succeſſion of another proper Judicature to be appealed unto in due time, and they being convinced of the Greatneſs and Deſtructiveneſs of thoſe Evils, they have declared againſt, and of the Neceſſity of thoſe better Things they have propounded, and how inconſiſtent with the publick Truſt and fundamental Ends of it, ſtill to purſue the one and reject the other, as that they dare appeal to the common Judgements of indifferent and uncorrupted Men, and to the more righteous Judgment of God above all.

That this Parliament being ſole Judges of their own Performance or Breach of Truſt, they hold themſelves neceſſitated to, and juſtified in an Appeal from this Parliament, in the preſent Conſtitution as it ſtands, unto the extraordinary Judgment of God and good People.

Yet that in Proſecution of this Appeal, as they will drive it on, but to the ſpeedy obtaining of a more orderly and equal Judicature of Men, in a juſt Repreſentative, according to their Remonſtrance, wherein to aquieſce, ſo they will endeavour to preſerve ſo much of the matter and form of the preſent parliamentary Authority, as can be ſafe or uſeful, till a juſt Conſtitution can be introduced.

That they ſhould rejoice if the Majority of the Houſe of Commons would become ſenſible of the Deſtructiveneſs of their late way, and would exclude from Communication in their Councils, all ſuch corrupt and apoſtatized Members as have obſtructed Juſtice, Safety, and publick Intereſt. However, they deſire that ſo many of them as God hath kept upright, would by Proteſtation or otherwiſe, acquit themſelves from ſuch Breach of Truſt, and would withdraw from ſuch as perſiſt in the Guilt thereof, and that they will own ſuch as ſhall do ſo, as having materially the chief Truſt of the Kingdom remaining in them, and ſhall adhere to them, and be guided by them in their faithful Proſecution of that Truſt till a more full Power in a juſt Repreſentative may be endeavoured.

That they will not hereby take any Advantage to themſelves in Profit or Power, but ſhould be willing to be preſently diſcharged, if they could but attain a rational Aſſurance for the effectual Proſecution of theſe Things, and ſhould give a proportionable Aſſurance on their Parts, concerning their laying down of Arms when required.

That for all theſe Ends, they are drawing up with the Army to London, there to follow Providence as God ſhall clear their way.

By the Appointment of his Excellency the Lord Fairfax Lord General, and his General Council of Officers held at Windſor. 24 Car.

Nov. 30. 1648.

Signed Jo. Ruſhworth, Secr.

Major Cromwell returned with Letters from Colonel Hammond, that he was detained at Windſor, and that Colonel Ewers had the Charge of the King's Perſon in the Iſle of Wight; the Lords preſſed on the Conſideration of his Buſineſs. Iſle of Wight.

December, 1648.

December 1. The General wrote a Letter to the Lord Mayor and Common-Council of London to this Effect: Army.

That being upon an immediate Advance with the Army towards London, they thought fit to give them notice of it, and for the Grounds thereof, refer them to the late Remonſtrance and Declaration of the Army. London.

That they are far from the leaſt Plunder or Wrong to any, and for the better Prevention of any Diſorder, they deſire forty thouſand Pounds may be paid them to-morrow Night, and they will quarter in the Void and great Houſes, in and about the City.

A Report by the Commiſſioners of all his Majeſty's Conceſſions at the Treaty twice read over, and long and ſmartly debated. Iſle of Wight.

About two o' Clock the Queſtion was put, whether they ſhould then debate, whether his Majeſty's Anſwers and Conceſſions were ſatisfactory or diſſatisfactory, and carried in the Negative, and ordered to reſume the Debate to-morrow Morning.

The Lord Wenman, Mr. Hollis, and Mr. Pierrepoint, three of the Commiſſioners who came laſt to the Town, had the Thanks of the Houſe for their great Pains and Care, in managing of the Treaty.

A Committee of the Common-Council acquainted the Houſe with the Letter they received from the General; upon which the Common-Council would not do any thing, till they knew the Pleaſure of the Houſe.

After a long Debate till eight o' Clock at Night it was voted, That the Houſe taking notice of the great Arrears due from the City of London to the Army, to declare, that it is the Pleaſure of the Houſe, that the City do forthwith provide forty thouſand Pounds of their Arrears, upon Security of the ſaid Arrears. Army.

And that the Houſe doth leave it to the City, either by Committee or Letter, or otherwiſe as they ſhall think fit, to addreſs themſelves to the General.

And that a Letter be written to the General upon the Heads of this Day's Debate, and that he be acquainted therein, that it is the Pleaſure of the Houſe, that he do not remove the Army nearer to London.

In all Places they were full of Trouble upon the Army's Advance towards London, and ſtrange were the Turnings and Perplexities of theſe Times.

2. A long and high Debate all Day upon the King's Conceſſions and Anſwers in the Treaty, but no Vote paſſed and the further Debate of it put off till to-morrow Morning.

The General and his Army marched to London, and took up their Quarters in Whitehall, St. James's, the Meuſe, York Houſe, and other vacant Houſes, and in Villages near the City.

The City ſent a Letter to the General that they will do their utmoſt to levy the Arrears Army.

Anno 1648. of the Aſſeſſment to the Army, and at preſent advance ſome thouſands of Pounds to pay Quarters, but deſire the Soldiery may be removed further from London, and to have a right underſtanding which was promiſed to them.

The King removed. 4. The Houſe being upon the Debate of the King's Conceſſions and Anſwers in the Treaty, a Letter came to the Speaker from the Officers deputed by Colonel Hammond, to take the Charge of his Majeſty; that the King was removed from thence to Hurſt Caſtle, by Order of the General and Council of the Army.

That their Orders were to ſecure the Perſon of the King, till they ſhould receive Reſolution from the Houſes upon their late Remonſtrance, and they had Orders to uſe his Majeſty with all Civility.

The Houſe upon reading this Letter, voted that the ſeiſing upon the Perſon of the King, and carrying him Priſoner to Hurſt Caſtle, was without the Advice or Conſent of the Houſe.

After this, they again debated the King's Anſwers, but came to no Reſolution.

Pontfract. Letters from the Leaguer before Pontefract, that the Garriſon have many ſick, but have plenty of Proviſions; that Major General Lambert is left to command the Leaguer, Lieutenant General Cromwell being come to London.

Scarborough. That the Garriſon in Scarborough are in a Mutiny becauſe the Governor will not ſurrender it to the Parliament, and are in want of Proviſions.

Ireland. Letters from Ireland, that the Marquiſs of Antrim hath relinquiſhed the Lord Ormond, and is declared Generaliſſimo of the popiſh Intereſt there. Variance increaſed betwixt Antrim and Ormond.

The Soldiers behaved themſelves with unuſual Civility.

5. Although the Houſe ſat all the laſt Night, yet they were in the ſame Debate again early this Morning, and voted:

Vote. That his Majeſty's Conceſſions to the Propoſitions of the Parliament upon the Treaty, are ſufficient Grounds for ſettling the Peace of the Kingdom, and they named a Committee to go this Afternoon to the head Quarters to confer with the General and the Officers of his Army for Continuance of a good Correſpondency between the Parliament and the Army.

Army. The General cauſed a Proclamation to be made by beat of Drum and ſound of Trumpet, to require all Delinquents to depart ten Miles from London for a Month, elſe to be proceeded againſt as Priſoners of War.

And another Proclamation, that his Soldiers demean themſelves civilly and peaceably, not giving any juſt Offence or Provocation by Language or otherwiſe, on Pain of ſevere Puniſhment.

And not to do any unlawful Violence to the Perſons or Goods of any upon Pain of Death, and no Officer to be abſent from his Charge without Leave upon ſuch Pain as the Party injured ſhould ſuſtain.

None of the Soldiers were quartered in the City, the General ſent to them for Beds, and Firing for the Soldiers and for Money; but none came.

Many were glad of an honeſt Pretence to be excuſed from appearing in the Houſe, becauſe of the Buſineſs of the Army; the Debates about which went extreme high, and on this Account I was the better contented with the Buſineſs of my Place at this time.

6. The Regiment of Horſe of Colonel Rich, and of Foot of Colonel Pride, were ſet for Guards for the Houſes, and the City Train'd-Bands diſcharged. 24 Car.

C. Pride's Force upon the Houſe. Colonel Pride drew up divers of his Foot in the Court of Requeſts upon the Stairs, and in the Lobby before the Houſe, and as the Members were coming in to go into the Houſe, Colonel Pride having a Paper of Names in his Hand, and one of the Door-keepers, and ſometimes the Lord Grey of Groby ſtanding by him, and informing him who the Members were, the Colonel ſeized upon ſuch of them as he was directed by his Note, and ſent them away with Soldiers, ſome to the Queen's Court, and Court of Wards, and other Places, by ſpecial Order from the General and Council of the Army.

The Houſe of Commons being informed hereof ſent their Sergeant at Arms to the Members ſo ſeized upon, to acquaint them, it was the Pleaſure of the Houſe that they ſhould forthwith attend the Service of the Houſe; but the Officers under whoſe Guard they were ſtill detained them.

Army. The Committee ſent to the General, made their Report, that he deſired time to adviſe with his Council of War about his Anſwer, and the ſame Committee were ordered again to attend the General and the Army, for his Anſwer.

Cololel Axtell brought a Meſſage from the Army to the Houſe, that they had ſomewhat to preſent to the Houſe which would be ready for their preſent View; the Houſe cauſed him to be called in again, and he delivered his Meſſage to them the ſecond time, and their Anſwer was that the Houſe will be ready to receive it.

Not long after Colonel Whaley and other Officers preſented the Deſires of the Army to the Houſe, deſiring their ſpeedy Conſideration of them.

The Officers being withdrawn, the Houſe named a Committee to treat with the General and his Council of War about the Diſcharge of their Members, and to make their Report with all ſpeed.

The Propoſals and Deſires of the Army to the Houſe were to this Effect:

Army. Propoſals. That having for a long time ſadly beheld and taſted in the Houſes Proceedings the miſerable Fruits of Councils divided, and corrupted by Factions and perſonal Intereſt, and ſeeing no better or other way, they propound and demand as followeth: Whereas Denzil Hollis, Eſq; Lionel Copley, Eſq; Major General Maſſey, and other of your Members, were in 1647. impeached by your ſelves of Treaſon, or high Crimes in relation to the treaſonable Engagement in the City of London, the Violence then done to the Parliament, the levying of a new War, and other Evils.

And upon clear Proofs againſt them, they were by your Cenſure expelled the Houſe, and diſabled from further Truſt therein, and upon new Writs iſſued out, new Members were choſen, and returned in their Rooms.

Yet by the Prevalency of their Faction, when in the laſt Summer's War, divers faithful Members were engaged abroad, and others through Tumults could not ſafely attend, the ſame Perſons were afterwards re-admitted to ſit in the Houſe and vote as formerly, without any Trial or Satisfaction in the things whereof they were accuſed.

2. Whereas by the Confederacy of Major General Browne, now Sheriff of London, with the ſaid impeached Members and others, the Scots were invited and drawn in to invade this Kingdom the laſt Summer,

Anno 1648. Summer, and the Houſe upon their actual Invaſion, proceeded to declare them Enemies, and thoſe that adhered to them Traitors.

Yet thoſe confederate and other treacherous Members, to the Number of ninety and odd (as upon the Diviſion of the Houſe appeared) did by their Counſels and Votes endeavour to hinder the Houſe from declaring againſt their confederate Invaders.

We deſire that the ſaid Major General Browne may be alſo ſecured and brought to Judgment; and that the reſt of the ninety and odd Perſons, diſſenting againſt the ſaid Vote, may be excluded the Houſe.

3. Whereas in a continued Series of your Proceedings, for many Months together, we have ſeen the Prevalence of the ſame treacherous, corrupt, and divided Council, through Factions and private Intereſt, oppoſing or obſtructing Juſtice, and hindring a Settlement, as in ſeveral Votes, &c. And laſtly in the Votes, declaring the King's paſt Conceſſions to be a Ground for the Settlement of Peace, notwithſtanding the Inſufficiency and Defects of them. We therefore moſt humbly deſire, that all ſuch faithful Members who are innocent in theſe things, would immediately by Proteſtation and publick Declaration acquit themſelves from any Guilt of, or Concurrence in the ſeveral Votes or Counſels before particularly mentioned, as corrupt or deſtructive.

That the Kingdom may know who have kept their Truſt and who have falſifyed the ſame, and that ſuch as ſhall not ſo acquit themſelves, may be excluded or ſuſpended the Houſe, till they have given clear Satisfaction therein.

4. That ſuch as by Faithfulneſs have retained their Truſt, being ſet in a Condition to purſue the ſame without Interruptions and Depravations of Councils, we deſire and hope you will ſpeedily and vigorouſly proceed to take Order for the Execution of Juſtice, and to ſet a ſhort Period to your own Power, to provide for a ſpeedy Succeſſion of equal Repreſentatives, according to our late Remonſtrance, wherein Differences in the Kingdom may be ended, and we and others may comfortably aquieſce; as for our Parts, we hereby engage and aſſure you we ſhall.

This Day was the ſecond General Seal, and by the way as we went to Weſtminſter, before Whitehall were two Troops of Horſe of the Army, and in the new Palace-Yard and old Palace-Yard were many Companies of Foot, and Troops of Horſe drawn up.

When we alighted at the Door of the Lords Houſe, there ſtood two Troopers who denied us Entrance till an Officer came; and when I told the Officer that we were going about Buſineſs of the Chancery, he let us paſs.

The Court of Requeſts, and the Stairs to the Houſe of Commons and towards the Hall were very full of Soldiers, yet we went up into the Queen's Court.

Whilſt we were adviſing what to do (and we were all of Opinion to ſit in Court) the Lord Grey of Groby came to us, and perſuaded us to ſit in Court, which we did without the Seal, and heard ſome Motions.

After which Sir Thomas Widdrington was called away by Sir John Evelyn and the reſt of the Committee, to go to the General, yet we ſat and heard ſome Motions, till Mr. Love a Member of the Houſe, and one of the Six Clerks came to us into the Court, and brought an Intimation (as he ſaid) from the Houſe that we ſhould not ſit, in regard that Clients and Council could not with Freedom attend.

Thereupon we roſe, and the Lords deſired me to go into the Houſe to know their Pleaſure, which Service I undertook, and the more willingly, to try what Countenance I might have from the Soldiers then at the Door. 24. Car

I paſs'd by Colonel Pride without any queſtioning of me, but Pride had then ſeized upon many Members of the Houſe as they were going in, and ſecured them in the Queen's Court, who ſent from thence to the Houſe to acquaint them with the Condition they were in.

I acquainted the Speaker and divers others of the Houſe with the Intimation received from them not to ſit in Court, which ſome apprehended, might too much reflect upon the Army, as if they did interrupt the Courſe of Juſtice; and I prayed their Direction what we ſhould do in this Matter.

They were of Opinion that by all Means the Commiſſioners ſhould ſit in Chancery and proceed in their Buſineſs.

With this Advice I returned to the Lords Commiſſioners; the Lords ſtayed in the little Room by the Chancery, and after I came to them, we went into the Room in the Court of Wards, till Sir Thomas Widdrington came to us, whither the Seal was brought without any Trouble, though the Soldiers were very ſtrict in guarding their Priſoners.

The Commiſſioners ſat till ſix at Night, by which time the Soldiers were all gone, and the Members of the Houſe (thirty nine in Number) who were ſeized upon, were carried away to Places of Confinement.

This was a ſad and moſt diſorderly Day's Work, and many were troubled not only for their Friends who were thus ſecured, but what to reſolve upon in relation to themſelves after this Action.

Lieutenant General Cromwell came into the Houſe, and had their hearty Thanks for his great Services to both Kingdoms.

Order for Sergeant Earle to go to Norwich to execute the Commiſſion of Oyer and Terminer and Goal Delivery, and that Mr. Hugh Audely the Sheriff of that County do attend there likewiſe.

Divers Members of the Houſe were forbid Entrance into the Houſe, becauſe ſome Matters were to be debated concerning themſelves; Sir Edward Patridge, Mr. Dodderidge, and Sir Thomas Dacres, ſome of them wrote a Letter to the Speaker to acquaint the Houſe therewith. Secluded Members.

They ordered the Committee formerly named to go to the General and endeavour a good Underſtanding between the Parliament and Army, and to treat concerning the Reſtitution of their Members under Reſtraint.

Upon a Debate, voted to take into Conſideration the Remonſtrance and Propoſals of the Army the next Day but one; and the next Day (To-morrow) to be kept a Day of Humiliation for the Houſe.

Several Members were at a ſtand whether they ſhould any more attend the Houſe, or not; in regard of the Violence offer'd to many of them, and that it could not be eſteemed a free Parliament.

Many of theſe upon debate and advice of Friends, and Conſiderations that they were choſen by their Country to ſerve for them in this Parliament, and that the Violence was not offered to theſe, but to other Members, whereof theſe were not made the Judge, nor was it left in their Power to deſert the Parliament, and their Truſt, whilſt they might have Liberty to continue in that Service. Theſe Reaſons perſuaded many to continue in that Truſt and Service.

The Commiſſioners of the Seal met this Morning at Weſtminſter, but in regard of the preſent Troubles put off their Cauſes and returned home.

More

Anno 1648. More of the Members of the Houſe of Commons were this Day ſeized upon and ſecured.

8. The ſolemn Faſt was kept in the Houſe, and a Collection made of Money for poor Soldiers Wives, and Widows, and the Houſe adjourned till the eleventh of this Month.

Army. By Order from the General and general Council of the Army, two Regiments of Foot, and ſeveral Troops of Horſe were quarter'd in London, and the Treaſuries ſecured in Haberdaſhers-hall, Weavers-hall, and Goldſmiths-hall, whereof the General by his Letter acquainted the Lord Mayor and City before hand.

And gave his Reaſons for the doing of it becauſe they had not paid their Arrears of the Aſſeſſment, nor furniſhed the Money which he deſired of them, and that they had by order of Parliament quartered in ſeveral Counties, on thoſe who did not pay the Aſſeſſment till they paid the ſame. That yet if they would advance for the Army forty thouſand Pounds in part of their Arrears, the Soldiers ſhould not be further troubleſome to them.

A Party of Soldiers going by miſtake to the Exciſe Houſe to ſeize the Money there, the General recalled them, and wrote a Letter to the Commiſſioners of Exciſe to excuſe it.

City. 9. A Committee of the Common-Council made ſome Propoſals to the General and Council of the Army, touching their Security for forty thouſand Pounds which the General demanded of them, which they promiſed to advance, and humbly deſired that the Army might this Night withdraw out of the City.

To this the General anſwered, that if within fourteen days the City would pay in all their Arrears of the Aſſeſſment, that then the Army ſhould withdraw; but that in the mean time their quartering in the City would facilitate the Work.

The Foot were quartered in private Houſes, the Horſe in Inns, and two more Regiments marched into the City and took up their Quarters there this Day.

Upon my Motion and for the more Freedom in our Buſineſs, the Commiſſioners met in the Parliament Chamber in the Middle-Temple, and we heard in the Hall 40 Demurrers.

The Houſe of Commons adjourned till Thurſday next.

Agreement of the People. 11. The Houſes ſat not, but to the General and general Council of the Army was preſented a new Repreſentative, or an Agreement of the People, propounded as a Rule for future Government, to be publiſhed to the View of all, that any might offer what they thought fit againſt it, or of Alteration, or Addition to any part of it.

Much of the ſame matter was contained therein, as in their late Remonſtrance, this was more large, giving Rules for future Elections of Repreſentatives of the People, they to have the ſupreme Authority, and this Parliament to be diſſolved in April next, and then a new Repreſentative to ſit.

Divers Rules for the Election of them, Officers and Malignants to be incapable of electing, or being elected, and generally of the Power and equal Diſtribution of the Members of this Repreſentative, to be in all three hundred Perſons, &c.

The Frame of this Agreement of the People, was thought to be for the moſt part made by Commiſſary General Ireton, a Man full of Invention and Induſtry, who had a little Knowledge of the Law, which led him into the more Errors.

Little Buſineſs in the Chancery. The Lord Grey of Groby came to the Lord Grey, one of the Commiſſioners, and wiſhed us not to ſit to-morrow, becauſe it would be a buſy Day. It ſeems he was acquainted with the private Councils of the Army. 24 Car.

We all adviſed together about this Matter, and reſolved to meet to-morrow at Weſtminſter, to prevent any failure of Juſtice, and to do as we ſhould ſee cauſe, as to the hearing of Motions, or other Buſineſs of the Chancery.

12. Both Houſes ſat, the Commons order'd two Troops of Horſe in Northamptonſhire to be continued for a Month longer, under Major Butler and Captain Stirke.

Petitions from Briſtol and Exon complaining of the neglect of guarding thoſe Coaſts; that ten Merchants Ships had been taken by the Iriſh the laſt Week, the Petitions referr'd to the Committee of the Navy.

A Letter from the Lord Admiral of the Grounds of his coming from Goree to the Downs, to avoid the Danger of being frozen up, and becauſe he wanted Victuals, referr'd to the Committee of the Navy.

Upon debate of the laſt Propoſals and Deſires of the Army voted, That the Vote for revoking the Order of diſabling the eleven Members, and re-admitting them into the Houſe, when a Charge of ſo high a Nature lay againſt them was Un-parliamentary, and of dangerous Conſequence, and was now made Null. Army. Votes.

They voted likewiſe, that the Vote of this Houſe, concurring with the Lords, to take off the former Vote, which forbid any more Addreſſes to the King, was highly diſhonourable to the Proceedings of Parliament, and apparently deſtructive to the Good of the Kingdom.

Major General Browne, Sir John Clotworthy, Sir William Waller, Colonel Maſſey, and Colonel Copley, were apprehended by the Army and ſent Priſoners to St. James's Houſe; Mr. Pelham, Mr. Vaughan, and ſome other of the Members that were Priſoners, had Liberty given upon their Paroles. Army. Priſoners.

The City ſent in Beds for the Soldiers, whereupon the General order'd them to be removed from private Houſes, and quartered in empty Houſes.

Letters from Ireland that the Marquiſs of Ormond was piecing up the Differences among the Rebels, and that their main Deſign was againſt Dublin.

13. Voted, that the Votes of Non-Addreſſes to the King ſhall ſtand; and that the Votes for Revocation of them, and that for a perſonal Treaty with the King in the Iſle of Wight, were highly diſhonourable to the Proceedings of Parliament, and apparently deſtructive to the good of the Kingdom. Votes.

Letters with the Catalogue of twenty Commanders who were for the Parliament, lately come in to the Lord Ormond.

Several Members did forbear going to the Houſe, not being ſatisfied whether they might with a ſafe Conſcience be in the Houſe or not, having ſuch a Force upon them, and leſt they ſhould countenance that Force. On the other ſide they conſidered whether it were fit for ſuch as had no Force upon them, and were not forbidden to be in the Houſe to be abſent, and wholly to omit their Duty, or rather to continue therein, whereby they might help to keep up the Parliament, leſt it ſhould be diſſolved, which the Soldiers wiſhed, and thereby the whole Power be given up into the hands of the Army. Sir Thomas

Anno 1648. mas Widdrington did forbear going to the Houſe this Day.

14. Referr'd to the Committee of the Army to confer with the General and Officers of the Army how the laſt ſix Months Aſſeſſment may be raiſed and paid to the Soldiers.

Order for two hundred Pounds for Colonel Ewers now Governor of Hurſt Caſtle.

Militia. Order to repeal the former Ordinance for ſettling the Militia, it being made upon deſign to deſtroy the preſent Army, and that a new Ordinance be brought in for the Militia.

Army. Debate of a Letter to be ſent to the General to deſire that a Charge may be brought in againſt ſuch of their Members not admitted to ſit, againſt whom they have any Matter; and that the reſt againſt whom they have no Matter may have the Freedom to ſit in the Houſe.

Hurſt Caſtle. Letters from Hurſt Caſtle that his Majeſty was in health, and had good Accommodations; that he deſired of the Governor to have two of his own Chaplains to pray and preach with him, and to have Liberty to write to the Queen, and to the Prince.

15. Debate touching Proviſions for the Navy, and Orders for pay for Ships, and for two Months Gratuity for the Mariners who ſerved againſt the revolted Ships.

Secluded Members. Referred to a Committee to inquire who printed and contrived a ſcandalous Pamphlet, called, A ſolemn Declaration of the Members ſecluded the Houſe by the Army, That all Acts, Ordinances, Votes and Proceedings of the Houſe of Commons ſince the Seclusion of the Members, and Continuance of the Army's Force upon it, are no way obligatory, but null and void.

The Houſe declared it to be falſe, ſcandalous, and ſeditious, and tending to deſtroy the Government; and that all who had a hand in it, ſhall be uncapable of any Office or Truſt, or to be a Member of Parliament; and that every abſent Member before he ſit, ſhall diſavow that Pamphlet.

Army-Declaration. The Army paſſed a Declaration, that whereas ſome Enemies had written to Merchants beyond Seas, to call home their Eſtates out of England, becauſe the Army had ſeized upon Mens Goods, and deſigned to deſtroy all Trade and Propriety, the Army declare againſt it, and that they will maintain and preſerve both according to Law, and with all Freedom.

16. The new Ordinance for the Militia tranſmitted to the Lords.

Another that no Malignants be elected, or Electors of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council Men of London.

A Party of Horſe went to Hurſt Caſtle to remove the King to Windſor Caſtle.

The General Council of the Army ſat upon the Agreement of the People.

Colonel Butler's Troop, and Major Fincher's were disbanded.

Malignants. 18. The Lords concurred in the Ordinance with the Commons for diſabling Malignants to be elected, or Electors of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council Men, or any other Officers, or Places of Truſt, on pain of two hundred Pounds, one half of it to the Informer, and the other half of it to the maimed Soldiers.

A Sheriff of Nottinghamſhire appointed.

Expedient. A Committee appointed to draw up an Expedient for the Members of the Houſe to ſubſcribe, as Diſſenters to the Vote, That the King's Anſwer to the Propoſitions was a Ground of Peace.

Order for the Sergeant at Arms to apprehend Sir Charles Kemiſh, for ſtaying in Town contrary to the Ordinance, he being a Delinquent.

Both Houſes agreed of a Liſt of Perſons to attend the King. 24 Car.

A day of Humiliation appointed for the two Houſes, and Mr. Cokayn and Mr. Bond to preach and Mr. Foxley to pray.

Intelligence of a new Fleet preparing by the Prince, for Scilly, Guernſey, and Jerſey, and for Ireland, and many diſcontented Perſons and Reformadoes reſorting to him.

A Committee named to confer with the Lord Admiral about this Matter.

Army Letters came to the General from Major General Lambert and his Officers, in compliance with the Army's Remonſtrance by the Forces in the North; and deſiring a Correſpondence with the Army, to whom they gave ſome Cautions touching the Proſecution of their Remonſtrance.

When the Chancery Buſineſs was over, Sir Thomas Widdrington and I went to the Rolls, by appointment, where Lieutenant General Cromwell and Colonel Dean met us; and with the Speaker we had a long Diſcourſe together about the preſent Affairs. And then another time was appointed by the Lieutenant General for us to meet again, and to conſider and confer how the Settlement of the Kingdom might be beſt effected, and to join Counſels for the publick good.

19. An Ordinance paſſed for the Payment of twenty eight thouſand Pounds taken by the Soldiers out of Weavers Hall.

Referred to a Committee to conſider of the great Abuſe in providing bad Victuals for the Ships, and how the Perſons may be puniſhed, and the like prevented.

Upon a Letter from the General referred to a Committee to conſider how the Arrears due to Colonel Rainsborough may be charged and paid to his Wife.

An Ordinance paſſed both Houſes for making the Earl of Pembroke Conſtable of the Caſtle and Honour of Windſor, and Keeper of the Foreſt and great Park there.

Order for levying the Arrears of Delinquents Compoſitions, being two hundred thouſand Pounds.

Letters from Scarborough of the Hopes of a ſpeedy Surrender of that Place; and that the Scots are not well pleaſed with the late Tranſactions of the Army in England.

The Parliament's Ships upon the Coaſt of Ireland took a Dutch Ship loaden with Wine, Salt, &c. of three hundred Tun, bound for Waterford. The Ceſſation was continued in Ireland between the Marquiſs of Ormond and the Rebels.

Mr. Pierrepoint expreſſed much Diſſatisfaction at thoſe Members who ſat in the Houſe, and at the Proceedings of the General and Army.

A Viſit to Lieutenant General Cromwell, who lay in one of the King's rich Beds in Whitehall.

20. An Additional Ordinance paſſed for Election of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Common Council Men of London.

The Committee appointed to attend the General about the ſecluded Members, reported his Anſwers, that the Buſineſs was of great Concernment, and he believed the Houſe would not expect a preſent Anſwer from him, but he would prepare it as ſpeedily as he could, and in the mean time, deſired the Houſe would not trouble themſelves to ſend any more to him concerning that Buſineſs. Army. Secluded Members.

Order for the ſame Meſſage to be renewed to the General.

The Houſe approved of what the Committees of Nottingham and Derby had done for Relief of the Forces before Scarborough and Pontefract.

The

Anno 1648. Sixteen of the ſecluded Members were ſet at liberty by order of the General to ſit again in the Houſe if they pleaſe, and the reſt were ſtill in Cuſtody.

Two new liſted Soldiers in Colonel Dean's Regiment with two more, took upon them to apprehend a Citizen of London, under pretence of a Warrant from the Council of War, and that they had a great Charge againſt him, when there was no ſuch matter, but they deſigned by this means to get Money of him.

The Citizens acquainted ſome of the Council of War herewith, who diſowned the Buſineſs, cauſed the Soldiers to be apprehended, two of them ran away, the other two were ſentenced to ride the wooden Horſe at the Exchange, and to run the Gantlop.

Sir Thomas Widdrington and I had no great mind to ſit in the Houſe of Commons as it was then conſtituted.

21. Order for Repayment of the Money taken out of Weavers Hall, to be for the Uſe of the Navy.

Petition. A Petition from divers of Somerſetſhire, that Juſtice may be done upon Delinquents, the Petitioners had the Thanks of the Houſe, and the Petition was order'd to be printed.

Order that Mr. Strickland uſe the beſt Endeavours he may to hinder the intended Sale, in the Low Countries by the Prince, of the Ordnance of the revolted Ships.

Both Houſes paſſed an Ordinance concerning Lieutenant Colonel Lilburne.

In the Afternoon the Speaker, Lieutenant General Cromwell, Sir Thomas Widddrington and I by appointment met about Six a Clock, and diſcourſed freely together about the preſent Affairs and Actions of the Army, and the Settlement of the Kingdom.

In the Concluſion Sir Thomas Widdrington and I were deſired to draw up ſome Heads upon the Diſcourſe, to be conſidered by the ſame Company.

22. Both Houſes kept the ſolemn Faſt this Day.

Army. The General Council of the Army had much Debate concerning the Matters of Religion, relating to their new Repreſentative, and of the Power of the Repreſentative in Civil Matters.

Sir Thomas Widdrington and I met, ſtaid all the Day together to draw ſome Heads upon Yeſterday's Diſcourſe, and to endeavour to bring the Army into ſome fitter Temper.

We were likewiſe to frame ſomewhat in order to the Reſtitution of the ſecluded Members, for an Anſwer for the Army to the Meſſages of the Houſe to the Army, touching their Members under Reſtraint, and Heads for a Declaration, what the Parliament intendeth for the Settlement of the Kingdom, to be conſidered of, and offered to the Parliament and Council of the Army.

This was a Work of no ſmall Difficulty, and Danger, yet at this time not to be declined by us; both the Members of the Houſe, and chief Officers of the Army, having engaged and truſted us only therein, we prayed to God to direct us in it, and that neither of us might receive any Prejudice, but the Kingdom might receive good by this our Employment, and the Courſes of the Army be moderated (as it was in ſome Meaſure at this time) though it brake out again into Violence afterwards.

23. A Committee of the Common-Council informed the Houſe, that the Citizens of London were ſo generally engaged in the Petition for a perſonal Treaty, that if the Reſtriction in the late Ordinance ſhould ſtand, that none of them ſhould be capable to be elected Officers of the City, there would want ſufficient Perſons to be choſen to ſupply neceſſary Offices in the City. 24 Car.

Referred to a Committee to conſider of ſome Expedient in this Buſineſs.

A ſharp Debate about bringing the great Delinquents of the Kingdom to ſpeedy Puniſhment.

And now was ſet on foot, and begun their great Deſign of taking away the King, whom divers in the Debate did not ſtick to name, for the greateſt Delinquent, and to be proceeded againſt in Juſtice. Deſign againſt the King.

Debates. Others inſiſted upon it, that he was not capable of being brought to Juſtice by his Subjects, but by God alone; and that having ſubdued him and his Party, there was no need of any thing further, but to ſecure the Parliament from their Enemies riſing againſt them any more; and that might be done without bringing the King to any judicial Trial, a thing not read of in any Hiſtory.

But thoſe of the fierce Party proſecuted their Deſign with all Eagerneſs; and thoſe of a contrary Opinion, either durſt not oppoſe, knowing they ſhould be preſently ſecluded the Houſe if they did, or ſeeing that no Oppoſition would be to any Effect or Purpoſe.

It was endeavoured to have put the Buſineſs wholly upon the Army, that if they would have the thing done, they ſhould do it themſelves, as moſt proper for ſuch an irregular and unheard of Buſineſs, as to bring a ſovereign Prince to a publick Trial by his own Subjects, to be done in an irregular way, and by ſuch irregular Men; but they were ſubtle enough to ſee and avoid that, and to make thoſe whom they left ſitting in the Parliament to be their Stales, and to do their moſt dirty work for them; many of whom they found, and perſuaded to be ſtrangely forward to engage in it.

Inſomuch, that it was carry'd by Vote in the Houſe of Commons, to name a Committee of thirty eight Perſons, whereof I was one, but never attended that Committee, to conſider of drawing up a Charge; and for that purpoſe to receive all Informations, and Examinations of all Witneſſes, for the Matters of Fact againſt the King, and all other Delinquents, that may be thought fit to be brought to condign Puniſhment.

Letters from Colonel Bethel to the General of the Surrender of Scarborough Caſtle to him upon Articles for the uſe of the Parliament; that there was in the Caſtle good Store of all manner of Proviſions, eſpecially Rye, and fifty Barrels of Powder with Ammunition for many Months. Scarborough.

Navy. From the Parliament's Ships in the Downs, came a Declaration to the General of their free Concurrence with the Army in their Remonſtrance, knowing the things to be juſt and good.

The King was expected to be at Windſor this Night, and Colonel Thomlinſon commanded the Guards about him, upon Colonel Harriſon's coming away.

Major Pitsford taken at Pembroke, and ſtaying here contrary to the Articles of Surrender thereof, was by the Court Martial ſentenced to be ſhot to Death.

The Lord Wenman expreſſeth himſelf very high againſt the Army, having been ſeized and ſecluded the Houſe by them; which was no ſmall Provocation.

Anno 1648. Sir Thomas Widdrington and I went together according to Appointment to the Speaker's Houſe.

There met us divers Gentlemen of the Houſe, and we conſulted about ſettling the Kingdom by the Parliament, and not to leave all to the Sword; and Sir Thomas Widdrington and I ſpake our Minds freely to them, ſome of them were wholly againſt any King at all, others were againſt having the preſent King, or his eldeſt, or ſecond Son, to be King; others were for the third Son the Duke of Glouceſter (who was among them, and might be educated as they ſhould appoint) to be made King.

They came after a long Debate to no Reſolution at all, but appointed to meet again on next Monday.

24. The Proceedings of the Army continued in the ſame way as before.

25. The Commons ſat though it was Chriſtmaſs-day, and made ſome Orders about the Aſſociation of Somerſetſhire, with the adjacent Counties.

Order for one thouſand Pounds for Mr. Withers, being Monies lent by him to the Parliament.

Diſſenting Members. Five Members declared their Diſſent to the Vote December 5, 1648.

The Committee named to conſider how to proceed in a way of Juſtice againſt the King, were injoined to meet this Afternoon.

Debate whether the ſecluded Members ſhould be re-admitted.

Lord Willoughby. A Diſpute between the two Houſes, whether thirty three thouſand Pounds formerly granted to the Lord Willoughby as Part of his Arrears, and by him aſſigned to his Creditors who accepted the Security, ſhould now be granted away to others in prejudice of the Lord Willoughby's Creditors, which the Lords held not juſt.

The Lords who ſat in the Houſe being very few, they ordered that all the Lords, who were within twenty Miles ſhould appear to-morrow, and thoſe more remote within fourteen Days after Receipt of this Order; ſome moved it might be under the pain of five hundred Pounds, but that was not agreed unto.

Petition. A Petition to the Commons from Norfolk and Norwich, reciting the former, and preſent Evils: and praying,

1. That preſent Inquiry be made who have been the chief Inſtruments of the King in the former or latter War, and in the late bringing in of the Scots, and that he himſelf, and all ſuch as have been the moſt notorious Incendiaries, and Inſtruments in ſhedding of Blood, may without delay be brought to impartial Juſtice.

2. That Courts of Juſtice, Judges and Officers, and Fees may be certain, and Laws in the vulgar Tongue, and Juſtice be ſpeedy, and without reſpect of Perſons, and as may moſt agree with the Rule of Chriſtian Duty, juſt Reaſon, and the Birth-right and Privilege of Engliſhmen and that impartial Commiſſioners be appointed to try the late Mutineers in Norwich, and Kent, and other Counties.

3. That courſe be taken for Payment of the publick Debts out of Delinquents Eſtates, and that Taxes may be made eaſy, and laid proportionably, and ſo levied.

4. That Malignants be incapable of Offices, or being Parliament-men; that under the Notion of a Peer, we be not voted into Ruin, by thoſe that could not beat us into it, and that a Committee be ordained to order Affairs of State in the Intervals of Parliament.

5. That the Power of the Militia be not put into the Hands of Malignants or Neuters, but of faithful Perſons to the Parliament.

6. That the Army (whoſe faithfulneſs we acknowledge) may be vindicated, eſpecially for their late Proceedings, in order to impartial Juſtice upon the capital Offender, the beſt means to eſtabliſh this almoſt deſtroyed Nation; that free Quarter be taken away, and conſtant Pay provided for the Army. 24 Car.

Another Petition was from the Garriſon of Hull of their Adherence to the late Remonſtrance of the Army.

26. The Houſe approved the Articles of Surrender of Scarborough, and gave forty Pounds a-piece to the Meſſengers that brought the News.

Mr. Elſing, Clerk of the Parliament, deſired to quit his Place, by reaſon (as he alledged) of his Indiſpoſition of Health to execute the ſame, but moſt Men underſtood his Reaſon to be (and he acknowledged it to me and others of his Friends) becauſe he would have no Hand in the Buſineſs againſt the King. Mr. Elſing.

He was a Man of very great Parts, and ingenuous Education, he had travelled much, and was very learned, eſpecially in the Latin, French, and Italian Languages, and was a great Student, and a very juſt and honeſt Man, and the moſt excellent Clerk, both to take and expreſs the Senſe of the Houſe, that I believe ever ſat there, ſo great a Help to the Speaker, and to the Houſe, in helping to ſtate the Queſtions, and to draw up the Orders free from Exceptions, that it much conduced to the Diſpatch of Buſineſs and the Service of the Parliament.

He was a particular Friend of mine, and Mr. Selden was fond of him; we were often together at Mr. Elſing's Houſe, who gave noble Entertainment.

The Houſe ordered Mr. Phelps, formerly Clerk to the Committee of plundered Miniſters, to officiate in Mr. Elſing's Place, and by a Deputation from him.

Upon the Petition of the Eaſt-India Merchants, Order for them to have leave to tranſport thirteen thouſand Pounds in Bullion.

Order for procuring ſix thouſand Pounds for Proviſions and Service for the Navy.

Divers Petitions to the Commons, and to the General in compliance with the Army's Remonſtrance; among them one was to the General from Colonel Mackworth, and the Officers and Soldiers in Salop. Petitions.

Inveighing againſt the perſonal Treaty, and concurring with the late Remonſtrance of the Army, praying the General to continue to repreſent to the Commons, theſe Deſires of their Friends, and not to hearken to the Counſels of their Enemies, and to make a preſent Settlement without any more Addreſſes to the King.

And that his Excellency would endeavour that Juſtice may be done upon the Authors of our Troubles, and Bloodſhed in the three Kingdoms, in ſome exemplary way, ſuitable to the Crimes, and without reſpect of Perſons.

That for taking off the Grievances and Burdens by free Quarter, unequal Taxes, corrupt Proceedings in Courts of Juſtice, and other groſs Miſcarriages in Government to be reformed, they will depend upon the ordinary Remedy by Parliament, till God declare by evident Demonſtrations of his Will, in the Paſſages of his Providence, that that extraordinary is to be reſorted unto, which is never denied in caſe of Extremity to any People.

They reſolve, God ſtrengthning them, to follow his Excellency, and the reſt of thoſe Conductors raiſed up and ſpirited for ſo great a Work, through a Sea of Blood, to attain the Fruition thereof.

Letters

Anno 1648. Letters from Windſor, that his Majeſty removing from Hurſt Caſtle, when he came to Wincheſter, the Mayor and his Brethren met him, delivered him the Mace, and made a Speech to him; That the Commander of that Party who guarded the King, told the Mayor, That the Parliament had voted no more Addreſſes to the King on pain of High Treaſon; and by this Addreſs they made to him, that they were within the danger of being Traitors.

The King.

That the Mayor and his Brethren humbly asked Pardon for it, excuſing themſelves, that they knew not any thing of that Vote, and that they would be more cautious for the future.

Letters from Dublin, that they are quiet there, by reaſon of the Diſtractions among the Rebels, whoſe Diviſions daily increaſe.

Widdrington and Whitelock

This Morning Sir Thomas Widdrington and I being together, Mr. Smith who was Clerk to the Committee for preparing the Charge againſt the King, came to us with a Meſſage from the Committee, that they required us to come to them this Day, they having ſome Matters of Importance wherein they deſired our Advice, and Aſſiſtance; and that we muſt not fail them.

I knew what the Buſineſs was, and I told Sir Thomas Widdrington, that I was reſolved not to meddle in that Buſineſs about the Trial of the King; it being contrary to my Judgment, as I had declared myſelf in the Houſe.

Sir Thomas Widdrington ſaid, he was of the ſame Judgment, and would have no hand in that Buſineſs, but he knew not whither to go, to be out of the way; and that the Committee might not know whither to ſend to him.

I replied, that my Coach was ready, and I was this Morning going out of Town purpoſely to avoid this Buſineſs, and if he pleaſed to go with me, we might be quiet at my Houſe in the Country till this Buſineſs ſhould be over, and I ſhould be glad of his Company.

He willingly conſented to go with me, and was not long in preparing himſelf for the Journey.

27. The monthly Faſt-day, and neither of the Houſes ſat.

The King.

The Council of War ordered, That nothing be done upon the Knee to the King, and that all Ceremonies of ſtate to him be left off, and his Attendance to be with fewer, and at leſs Charge.

Allegiance.

28. Order for the City of London to proceed to the electing a new Common-Council, according to the former Ordinance, by which Malignants are excluded. And that the illegal Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy, and all other of the like Nature be referred to a Committee, to the end they may for the future be taken away.

The Committee for drawing up a Charge againſt the King, and to conſider of the manner of his Trial, reported an Ordinance for attainting the King of High Treaſon, and for trying him by ſuch Commiſſioners as ſhould be named in the Ordinance. The Charge was to this Effect:

Charge.

That Charles Stuart had acted contrary to his Truſt, in departing from the Parliament, ſetting up his Standard, making a War againſt them, and thereby been the occaſion of much Bloodſhed, and Miſery, to the People whom he was ſet over for good; that he gave Commiſſions to Iriſh Rebels, and ſince was the occaſion of a ſecond War, and had done contrary to the Liberties of the Subject, and tending to the Deſtruction of the fundamental Laws and Liberties of this Kingdom.

This Ordinance was read the firſt time, and ordered to be read again the ſecond time to-morrow.

Order for the Accounts of Colonel Aldrich, a Member of the Houſe to be ſtated. 24 Car.

29. Orders touching the ſecuring of ſix thouſand Pounds to the Commiſſioners of the Cuſtoms, for the preſent uſe of the Navy.

An Account to the Houſe, what Monies were in Arrear from Delinquents, of their Compoſitions, referred to a Committee.

The Ordinance for impeaching the King, read the ſecond time, and committed.

Major Pitcher, who was violent againſt the Parliament in the War, and upon the Articles of the Surrender of Worceſter, was taken in Arms, and engaged not to ſerve any more againſt the Parliament; yet afterwards was taken in Arms again againſt the Parliament, at the Surrender of Pembroke, had Quarter given upon Mercy, and was to go out of the Kingdom for two Years; and for not doing ſo, and now taken, he was, by Sentence of the Court Martial, executed, and ſhot to Death.

The Council of War ſat at Whitehall, and finiſhed the Agreement of the People, and appointed a Committee to conſider of a Way for the Army to ſubſcribe it.

A Woman out of Hertfordſhire came to the Council of the Army, and acquainted them, that ſhe had ſomething from God to ſpeak to them, and being admitted, ſhe did much encourage them in their preſent Proceedings.

Lilburn.

A Petition from John Lilburn, and others, expreſſing their Diſlike of ſome Articles of the Agreement of the People.

30. Petition of Mrs. Jennings againſt Mr. Jennings her Brother, a Member of Parliament, for refuſing to pay her Portion, or Account, ſtanding upon his Privilege of Parliament, referred to a Committee.

Order for two thouſand five hundred Pounds for Mr. Smithby for Saddles, and other Horſe-Furniture.

Referred to the Committee for the Trial of the King, to inſert the Names of Commiſſioners, and to make a ſpecial Proviſion in the Ordinance, in caſe the King ſhould refuſe to plead to the Charge againſt him.

Debate whether the Thanks of the Houſe ſhould be given to Mr. Watſon, one of the Miniſters that preached before the Houſe of Commons the laſt Faſt-day, and carried in the Negative, becauſe he did not acknowledge the Parliament.

Faſts.

Mr. Brookes, the other Preacher had the Thanks of the Houſe, and it was debated, whether the Ordinance for monthly Faſts ſhould be repealed, and Faſt-days appointed only as there ſhould be occaſion, but no reſult was made of it.

31. Mr. Owen preached two excellent Sermons. And upon Diſcourſe concerning the preſent Affairs of the Army, he ſeemed much to favour them, and ſpake in diſlike of thoſe Members who voluntarily abſented themſelves from the Houſe, having no particular force upon their Perſons.

Diſtracti-ons.

All Men were at a Gaze what would be the Iſſue of ſuch Proceedings, ſome thought it beſt for them to be reſerved as to their Opinion, finding every where too many Talkers, and few with much Judgment.

January, 1648.

King's Judges.

1. Report of the Names of Commiſſioners for Trial of the King, being ſome of the Lords, and Commons, Officers of the Army, Aldermen, and Commanders in London, with ſome Gentlemen from the Counties, all being one hundred and fifty Anno 1648. fifty Perſons, and twenty of them of the Quorum to try the King, and to give Sentence againſt him.

My Name was not brought in among them, I having declared my Judgment in the Houſe againſt this Proceeding, and having abſented my ſelf at the time of naming of them, and wholly from attending this Committee, ſo that they knew my Mind, and therefore did forbear to name me, though I was then in ſo great an Employment under them.

But I reſolved to hazard, or lay down all, how beneficial ſoever, or advantageous to me, rather then to do any thing contrary to my Judgment and Conſcience.

A Month's time was given by the Ordinance, to the Commiſſiones to determine this Buſineſs.

This Vote was paſſed as a Foundation for theſe Proceedings:

Vote. That the Lords and Commons aſſembled in Parliament, do declare and adjudge, that by the fundamental Laws of this Realm, it is Treaſon in the King of England for the time to come, to levy War againſt the Parliament and Kingdom of England.

Order touching ſequeſtring of Delinquents in South Wales.

Elſing. A Letter from Elſing, deſiring the Houſe, by reaſon of his Indiſpoſition, to appoint a Clerk to attend them. Referred to a Committee to take an Account from Mr. Elſing of the Books and Records of Parliament in his Hands, and to receive them by Inventory, and to preſent the Names of fit Perſons to the Houſe, out of whom they may chooſe an able Clerk to attend them.

Vote for Mr. Phelps to be Clerk aſſiſtant to the Houſe, and two hundred Pounds ordered for Mr. Darnell the preſent Clerk aſſiſtant.

A Committee named to conſider of a way to prevent Anticipations of the publick Revenue.

Players. The Soldiers in proſecution of an Ordinance of Parliament, ſecured all the Players, and brought them away Priſoners in the midſt of their Acts, as they were then habited, in their Robes.

A Committee of the Army was appointed to conſider of concealed Monies, due to the State, and another Committee of Officers of the Army and Citizens, to conſider of notorious Delinquents, that are fit to be made Examples of Juſtice, and an unuſual Power was given to theſe Committees to examine Witneſſes upon Oath.

Scotland. Letters from Scotland, That at the late renewing of the Covenant, the Lord Chancellor ſtood up in his Pew, made publick Acknowledgment of his late Failings, and Self-ſeeking, and countenancing the laſt wicked Engagement, which he did ſo orthodoxly, and pathetically, with many Tears, and praying the People to pray for him, that there was much weeping among them.

Letters from Pontefract Leaguer, that many of the Garriſon came into them; that if the Supernumeraries may be ſent for Ireland, and Old Noll, or any Perſon of Honour command them, that he cannot want Men.

Presbyterians. Letters of Advice, that all well affected Men in the Kingdom might aſſociate and be in Arms, leſt the Presbyterians who preach for their God, viz. The Tenth of every Man's Eſtates, and for Forms, do join with their Brother Malignants, to raiſe new Troubles.

2. A High Sheriff named for Durham.

The King. Upon a Letter from Colonel Whitchcot Governor of Windſor-Caſtle, Order for twenty Pounds per diem, for the charge of his Majeſty's Table, and for Fire and Candle for the Soldiery; and Voted that Colonel Whitchcot ſhall have the ſame Power for diſplacing diſaffected Attendants about his Majeſty, as Colonel Hammond had in the Iſle of Wight. 24 Car.

The Ordinance for Trial of the King was carried up to the Lords, of whom ſixteen then ſat, they ſtuck much upon the Declaratory Vote, That it was Treaſon in the King to levy War againſt the Parliament, they agreed to ſend an Anſwer by Meſſengers of their own, and adjourned their Houſe for ten Days. Lords.

Letters from Windſor, that the King was chearful, and took no notice of any Proceedings againſt him, as to his Trial, and ſaith he doubts not but within ſix Months to ſee Peace in England, and in caſe of not reſtoring, to be righted from Ireland, Denmark, and other Places.

Letters from France, that the Parliament there, publiſhed an Edict againſt Cardinal Mazarine, who eſcaped them; and That the Prince of Conde came with Forces before Paris and ſtopt Proviſions.

3. The Liſt of the Officers of the Fleet, referred to the Committee of the Navy, to report who they think fit to go out with this Winter Guard, and who not. Ordered that Captain Moulton be preferred in the Navy, anſwerable to his Merit, and the like for Colonel Lidcote. Navy.

The Commons taking notice that the Lords had rejected their Ordinance for Trial of the King, and had Adjourned their Houſe, they ſent ſome of their Members to examine the Lords Journal-Book, and they reported to the Commons three Votes paſſed by the Lords.

1. To ſend Anſwer by Meſſengers of their own. Lords Journal.
2. That their Lordſhips did not concur to the Declaration.
3. That they had rejected the Ordinance for Trial of the King.

Hereupon the Commons voted,

That all their Members and others appointed to act in any Ordinance wherein the Lords are joined with them, ſhall be impowered and injoined to ſit, act, and execute in the ſaid ſeveral Committees of themſelves, notwithſtanding the Houſe of Peers join not with them. Vote.

Order that the Ordinance for Trial of the King, and the Declaration from which the Lords diſſented, and which are intended for both Houſes, ſhall now be by the Commons only, and that the former Committee do ſit preſently, and report the Alteration in the Afternoon, during which time the Houſe Adjourned.

In the Afternoon the Committee made their Report, and the Ordinance was re-committed, and to be reported again to-morrow, the Lords Names to be left out, and the three Judges, and Sergeant Bradſhaw, Sergeant Nicholas, and Mr. Steel to be Aſſiſtants.

The Speaker acquainted the Houſe with a Letter he had received by the French Ambaſſador from the Queen, but the Houſe would not have it read.

A Letter was ſent from the General to the Committees of ſeveral Counties for levying the Arrears of the Aſſeſſment for the Army, and that he would take off free Quarter from thoſe who paid their Proportions.

4. Report of Amendments to the Ordinance for Trial of the King, and in reſpect the Lords had rejected it, the Commons turned themſelves into a Grand Committee to conſider of the Power of the Commons in Parliament, and the Committee voted:

1. That the People under God, are the Original of all juſt Power.

2. That

Anno 1648.

2. That the Commons of England aſſembled in Parliament, being choſen by, and repreſenting the People, have the Supreme Authority of this Nation.

3. That whatſoever is enacted and declared for Law, by the Commons in Parliament, hath the force of Law, and all the People of this Nation, are included thereby, although the Conſent and Concurrence of the King, and Houſe of Peers, be not had thereunto.

Theſe being reported to the Houſe, were upon the Queſtion all paſſed without a negative Voice to any of them.

An Ordinance intitled, for Trial of Charles Stuart by a Court Martial was aſſented to, and ordered to be ingroſſed and brought in to-morrow.

Order that the Clerk do not give out any Copy of the Ordinance for Trial of the King, to any Member of the Houſe, or to any other.

London. 5. Order to require the Lord Mayor of London, to ſuſpend the taking of the uſual Oaths, and to proceed to perfect the Elections of Common Council-Men.

Upon Information that divers Priſoners of War had eſcaped out of Peter-houſe through neglect of the Keeper, referred to a Committee to examine and report it. And to conſider of a Priſon to be given to the Sergeant at Arms attending the Houſe.

Order to deſire the General to command his Martial General of the Army, to put in execution the Ordinance concerning ſcandalous and unlicenſed Pamphlets.

Order for a large Book of Vellum to be made, and all the Acts, Ordinances, and Records, which lie abroad in Papers, and have been neglected, be there entred.

The Committee for Concealed Monies ſat in Whitehall, and Rewards were allowed to the Diſcoverers.

6. The Ordinance for Trial of the King, was brought in, ingroſſed, and paſſed.

Scots. A Letter from the Commiſſioners of Scotland Reſident here, preſſing for unity of Councils and Actions, according to the Covenant, betwixt the two Kingdoms, and that the Houſe would not proceed to Try or Execute the King, till the Advice of that Nation be had thereunto.

Style. Debate concerning the Proceedings of Law, the iſſuing of Writs, and the like, in what Name they ſhould be, the King, and the Lords not acting.

London. The Common Council agreed upon an Order, to be publiſhed to-morrow in all Churches for ſpeedy Payment of nineteen thouſand Pounds of the Arrears of the Aſſeſſment, for the Army, to prevent the whole Army's coming into the City, and to be quartered upon thoſe who have not paid their Arrears.

Ireland. 8. Letters from Ireland, that Sir Charles Coot marched with his Forces of Connaght from Sligo ſeventy Miles into the Rebels Country, and after a little conflict with the Rebels, ſome of them were killed, and his Party burned great ſtore of their Corn, preyed upon the Country, and brought away one thouſand of their Cows without loſs.

That at his Return he apprehended Sir Robert Stuart, and hath ſent him into England, with a Charge againſt him; that ſince this, he hath poſſeſſed himſelf of Kilmore, and fourteen Guns, which Sir Robert Stuart endeavoured to block up, by Sea and Land, and hindered the Proviſions ſent by the Parliament from being brought to their Forces.

The Houſe referred it to the General and Council of War to try Sir Robert Stuart; and to take care for the Forces of Sir Charles Coot in Ireland, whoſe Actions they approved, and ordered a Letter of Thanks to him. 14 Car.

Referred to the General and Council of War to ſecure Holy Iſland.

Order for the Northern Counties to have the Sequeſtrations of Delinquents there, for disbanding their Forces.

The Commiſſioners for Trial of the King ſat The King. in the Painted Chamber at Weſtminſter, and ordered that to-morrow a Herald ſhould proclaim, and invite the People to bring in what matter of fact they had againſt Charles Stuart King of England, and appointed to ſit the next Day upon his Trial.

9. Sir Thomas Widdrington and I by Agreement went into the Houſe this Morning, the Trial of the King being begun, ſome looked very ſhy upon us, others bid us welcome, and ſeemed glad to ſee us there.

About ten of the Lords ſat, and paſſed ſeveral Lords. Ordinances, which they ſent to the Commons, who laid them all aſide.

The Lords had Debate upon their laſt Votes, about the Trial of the King. And that ſome thing ſhould be publiſhed, to ſatisfy upon what Grounds, they rejected the Commiſſion for his Trial; but they reſolved nothing.

Sergeant Dendy who attended the Commiſſioners for Trial of the King, according to their Order, rode into Weſtminſter-Hall, with the Mace on his Shoulder, and ſome Officers attending him bare, and ſix Trumpets on Horſe-back, and Guards of Horſe and Foot in the Palace-yard.

The Trumpets ſounded in the middle of the Proclamation. Hall, and the Drums beat in the Palace-yard, after which Proclamation was made, to give notice that the Commiſſioners for Trial of the King, were to ſit again to-morrow, and that all thoſe who had any thing to ſay againſt the King, might then be heard.

The Houſe of Commons then ſitting ordered Sergeant Dendy to make the like Proclamation at the Old Exchange, and in Cheapſide London, which was done accordingly.

Vote, That the Name of any one particular Perſon ſhould not be inſerted, as the Style of any Common Writ, or otherwiſe, for the time to come, and referred it to the Committee for ſettling Proceedings in Courts of Juſtice, to conſider how the Style ſhould be. Votes. Style.

Votes that the preſent Great Seal ſhall be broken, and a new one forthwith made; and in the mean time, all Proceedings under the preſent Great Seal to be good, till the new one be confirmed. Great Seal.

That the Arms of England, and of Ireland ſhall be engraven on one ſide of the new Great Seal, with this Inſcription, The Great Seal of England.

That on the other ſide of the Seal ſhall be the Sculpture, or Map of the Houſe of Commons ſitting, with theſe Words engraven on that Side, In the firſt Year of Freedom by God's Bleſſing, reſtored, 1648.

This was for the moſt part, the Fancy of Mr. H. Martin. Henry Martin, a noted Member of the Houſe of Commons, more particularly the Inſcriptions.

Order for Pay of Colonel White's Regiment.

The General ſet forth a Proclamation, reciting Proclamation. the flocking of Malignants to London (as there was ground to believe) to raiſe new Troubles, and the Order of Parliament impowering him to expel them the City, and ten Miles diſtant therefrom

Anno 1648. from; which accordingly he injoins by this Proclamation, and that the Delinquents depart within four and twenty Hours.

Petition. A Petition to the General and his Council from the Officers and Soldiers in the Iſle of Wight, &c. mentioning the late deluſive Treaty with the King, and danger of new Troubles, they declare their conjunction with the Army, in their Deſires, in the large Remonſtrance, and in their preſent Proceedings, which they deſire may be proſecuted; &c.

The Proclamation was made by Sergeant Dendy, whilſt the Courts of Juſtice ſat in Weſtminſter-Hall, to the no ſmall Interruption of them.

About eleven a Clock the Houſe of Commons ſent for the Mace out of Chancery, Sergeant Dendy having that of the Houſe; thereupon the Commiſſioners roſe, and went home.

Pryn. 10. Order for the Sergeant at Arms to take Mr. Pryn into Cuſtody for denying their Authority.

King's Trial. The Commiſſioners for Trial of the King met, and choſe Sergeant Bradſhaw for their Preſident, Mr. Steel to be Attorney General, Mr. Coke Solicitor General, and they with Dr. Doriſlaus, and Mr. Aske to draw up, and manage the Charge againſt the King.

Pryn. Mr. Waller moved for a Habeas Corpus for Mr. Pryn, a Member of the Houſe, lately apprehended, as is before mentioned.

Habeas Corpus. This being a matter of Privilege of Parliament, and Mr. Pryn being committed by order of the Commons, we thought it fit to adviſe with that Houſe before we granted the Habeas Corpus.

The reſt of the Commiſſioners of the Seal deſired me to go preſently into the Houſe, to know their Pleaſure in this Buſineſs, which I did, and the Houſe not being ſat I conferred with the Speaker, and divers of the Members about it, and told them that by the Law, a Habeas Corpus could not be denied.

They commended the Commiſſioners Reſpect to the Houſe, and agreed that a Habeas Corpus could not be denied, ſo I returned to the Court, and we thought fit to grant the Habeas Corpus.

In the Evening one of the Sergeants Men brought me an Order of the Houſe, requiring Sir Thomas Widdrington and me by Name, to attend the Committee to-morrow about ſettling the courſe of Juſtice.

11. Debate touching the Navy.

Pryn. Report of the Sergeants Men, who ſerved Mr. Pryn with the Warrant of the Houſe to take him into Cuſtody; that Mr. Pryn anſwered him, that as he was coming to the Houſe to perform his Duty there for the County for which he was elected, he was apprehended by Sir Hardreſs Waller, and Colonel Pride, and ſecured as a Priſoner ever ſince; that being not diſcharged of the ſaid Impriſonment, he could not ſubmit to that Order which the Sergeants Man had, for any other Reſtraint to be laid upon him, and therefore he refuſed to obey the ſame.

Secluded Members. The Houſe ordered the Anſwer to be read of the General Council of the Army, concerning the ſecluded and ſecured Members; the Subſtance whereof they approved, and appointed a Committee to conſider what was fit further to be done thereupon; and ſet a Day to conſider of the particular Caſe of Mr. Pryn.

Chief Juſtice Rolles. A Viſit to the Lord Chief Juſtice Rolles, a wiſe and learned Man.

He ſeemed much to ſcruple the caſting off of the Lords Houſe, and was troubled at it.

Yet he greatly encouraged me to attend the Houſe of Commons, notwithſtanding the preſent Force upon them, which could not diſpenſe with their Attendance, and performance of their Duty, who had no Force upon them in particular. 24 Car.

The Committee for Proceedings in Courts of Juſtice, had a great Debate, what Style ſhall be uſed in Commiſſions and Writs, inſtead of the wonted Style, Carolus Dei gratia, &c. Style.

12. Petition of the Truſtees and others for the Sale of Biſhops-Lands, that that Buſineſs might be confirmed by Patent, under the Great Seal of England.

Order for the Sollicitor General to draw up a Patent to paſs the Seal accordingly.

The Commiſſioners for Trial of the King being to ſit in the Afternoon, the Houſe adjourned the earlier.

We heard Demurrers, Forenoon and Afternoon in the Queen's Court, the Council were more peremptory and unſatisfied than ordinary, and uſed us like declining Officers.

13. Ordinances paſt for regulating the Affairs of the Navy.

Navy. Reference to the Committee of the Navy to confer with the Lord Admiral about ſending ſome Ships to Goree in Holland, and Northward, and if he were not in Town, that then the Committee ſhould do it of themſelves, and all Officers and Mariners were required to obey their Orders.

Order for Sir George Aſcue to be deſired to go with Captain Moulton in this Expedition, and ſeveral other Orders made concerning the Fleet.

Petition. Two Petitions from the Inhabitants of Devon and Exon, Gentlemen and Miniſters, &c. deſiring Juſtice upon the principal Cauſers of the firſt and ſecond War, and a firm Peace.

Agreement of the People. The general Council of Officers concluded upon the Agreement of the People; and added ſome Truſtees to the Lord Grey, Sir John Danvers, &c. for making the Diviſions for Elections in the ſeveral Counties.

High Court of Juſtice. The high Court of Juſtice (as it was called) ſat for Trial of the King, their whole Time was ſpent about ſettling the Court, and calling over their Members, and to ſummon thoſe who being named Commiſſioners did not appear, amongſt whom, Colonel Rowland Wilſon, a Perſon of great Worth and Integrity, refuſed to act as a Commiſſioner (though named) in this Buſineſs, or to ſit with them.

They agreed that the Place for Trial of the King ſhould be Weſtminſter-Hall, and that in order thereunto, the King ſhould be brought from Windſor to London.

Great Seal. We heard ſome Cauſes in the Queen's Court; ſome told us for News, that new Commiſſioners of the Great Seal were to be appointed, Sergeant Bradſhaw, Sergeant Thorpe, Sergeant Nicholas; this was ſuppoſed to be Diſcourſe only as ſome would have it.

Speaker. 14. The Lord's Day in the Evening, a Viſit to Mr. Speaker, who ſeemed much unſatisfied with the Proceedings of the Army, eſpecially with an Apprehenſion, that they deſign to put him out of his Place, and to claim all by Conqueſt. Army.

Perplexities. The Times were indeed full of Dread and Danger, and of Trouble and Change, which cauſed many a perplexed Thought in ſober Men, who yet put their Truſt in God, and reſolved to depend on him, and to go on in the way wherein he had ſet them, whilſt they were permitted.

15. The Declaration paſſed for revoking the former Vote for taking off that of Non-Addreſſes to the King, and for juſtifying the preſent Proceedings of Parliament.

Order for one thouſand Pounds for defraying incident Charges for Trial of the King.

Petition. A Petition from the Common-Council of London, deſiring the Houſe to proceed in the Execution of Juſtice againſt all capital Actors in the War againſt the Parliament, from the higheſt to the loweſt.

That the Militia, Navy, and Places of Power may be in faithful Hands, for Recovery and Increaſe of Trade, and to endeavour the ſettling of the Votes, that the ſupreme Power is in them, upon Foundations of Righteouſneſs and Peace, and that they reſolve to ſtand by them.

They alſo preſented a Narrative of the Carriage of the Lord Mayor, and ſome Aldermen, denying to concur with them in this Petition, and departing the Court.

The Houſe approved what the Common-Council had done, and gave them Thanks, and appointed a Committee to conſider of their Deſires.

High Court of Juſtice. The high Court of Juſtice ſat, and heard the Charge againſt the King, and appointed a Committee to peruſe it, and the Proofs of the matters of fact, and ordered to move the Parliament to adjourn the Term for fourteen Days, in reſpect to this Trial.

Declaration. A Declaration read at the Council of the Army, of the Grounds of their preſent Proceedings, juſtifying them, and making Apologies for themſelves, that they ſeek no particular Advantage by the Agreement of the People, by which they have diſcharged their Conſciences, and their Duty to their native Country in their utmoſt Endeavours, for a Settlement unto a juſt and publick Intereſt.

France. Letters from France of great Troubles there, and Forces raiſed by the Queen Regent, the Cardinal Mazarine and their Party, and Pariſiens, the Parliament, and the Prince of Conde, and other Grandees of that Party.

The ſecond General Seal not ſo great as uſually it was, probably in regard of the preſent Proceedings of the Army, and the Trial of the King, yet it held us Forenoon and Afternoon.

16. An Act paſſed for adjourning the Term for fourteen Days.

Another Act paſſed for regulating the Clerks Fees of the Navy, and Cuſtoms, and diſcharging unneceſſary ones.

Style. Now the Commons ſtyled what were before Ordinances, at this time Acts of Parliament.

Scotland. Papers from Scotland, not acknowledging the Houſe of Commons a Parliament, laid aſide and not read.

Private Letters from Scotland, that the Parliament there nemine contradicente, did diſſent from the Proceedings of the Parliament of England.

1. In the Toleration of Religion, in order to the Covenant.
2. In the Trial of the King.
3. In Alteration of the Form of Government.

Letters from Pontefract, that the Enemy keeps up in hope of Relief; that Major General Lambert was very active in disbanding the Militia Forces.

The Commiſſioners of the Seals heard Demurrers in the Queen's Court, Workmen being in Weſtminſter-Hall, to make the Chancery and King's-Bench into one Court, taking down part of either Court, and making Scaffolds.

17. Referred to the Committee of Derby Houſe, to bring in a Liſt of Names, of ſome to be ſent Commiſſioners to the Parliament of Scotland now ſitting, and to keep a fair Correſpondence between the two Kingdoms. 24. Car.

Order for Mr. Kiffin, and Mr. Knolles, upon the Petition of Ipſwich Men, to go thither to preach.

Petition. A Petition with large Subſcriptions from the Iſle of Wight, Portſmouth, Southampton, &c. repreſenting their Grievances, and Remedies. A Committee appointed to conſider of this, and all other Petitions of this Nature, and to begin with thoſe of moſt Concernment to the preſent Settlement.

High Court of Juſtice. The High Court of Juſtice ſat, and cauſed the Charge againſt the King to be abbreviated; they ordered a Sword and Mace to be carried before them.

Commiſſioners of the Great Seal. We heard ſome Cauſes in the Queen's Court, and an Act of the Houſe of Commons being brought to us, for adjourning the Term, we were required to iſſue forth Writs for that purpoſe.

We roſe and adviſed together about it, the two Lords Crmmiſſioners with us, refuſed to join in ſigning a Warrant for thoſe Writs, becauſe the Lords did not concur in this Act.

Sir Thomas Widdrington and I thought fit to acquaint the Houſe, herewith; and there, ſome moved to ſend up to the Lords for their Concurrence, but moſt of the Houſe oppoſed it, as a waving of their own Authority, having already without the Lords paſt an Act for it; and ſo it was laid aſide.

Sir Thomas Widdrington and I ſat in the Houſe till four o' Clock, and went then to the Earl of Kent and the Lord Grey, to acquaint them with what the Houſe had done in this Buſineſs, and adviſed them to move the Lords Houſe in it themſelves; which the Earl of Kent did ſtick at.

Then Sir Thomas Widdrington and I went to ſome of the Judges, and adviſed with them, whether the Term might not be adjourned without any Writ, and they ſeemed to be of Opinion that it could not.

18. Major General Maſſey one of the ſecluded Members made his Eſcape from St. James's where he was Priſoner.

Houſe of Lords. The Lords ſent down an Ordinance which they had paſt, to the Houſe of Commons for their Concurrence, and it was the ſame in Effect for Adjournment of the Term, which the Commons had paſt before.

But the Commons having before voted, That they were the ſupreme Power, and that all Committees which before were of Lords and Commons, might after that Vote act, though the Lords join not; they would not own the Lords as formerly, by agreeing to this Ordinance.

I was in the Houſe at this Debate, and excuſed the two Commoners, Commiſſioners of the Great Seal, for their Scruple in this Buſineſs, withal expreſſing their Readineſs to obſerve and obey the Commands of the Houſe of Commons.

19. An Ordinance long debated, and at laſt committed, touching Delinquents paying in the the Remainders of their Compoſitions, or elſe to be ſequeſtred again.

Lieutenant of the Ordnance. The Place of Lieutenant of the Ordnance was formerly given to Sir Walter Earl, now one of the ſecluded Members; it was now ſnapt at by others, and a Motion made to give it to another Member, but referred to a Committee.

High Court of Juſtice. The High Court of Juſtice ſat in the Afternoon, and heard Proofs to the Impeachment; the King was brought from Windſor to St. James's in order to his Trial.

Anno 1648. The general Council of the Army met, and the Draught of the Agreement of the People was ſubſcribed by many of them, and Sir Hardreſs Waller and ſixteen other Officers, were appointed to preſent it to-morrow to the Houſe of Commons.

Agreement of the People.

Information of a Veſſel taken by Colonel Ruſſel Governor of Guernſey, and Captain Burley in her.

Petition. A Petition from North-Wales to the Council of the Army, complying with their Remonſtrance, &c. for which the Council gave them Thanks.

Great Seal. The two Lords Commiſſioners of the Seal ſtill refuſed to join in ſigning Warrants for Writs to adjourn the Term, whereupon Sir Thomas Widdrington and I went to the Speaker, and acquainted him with all Paſſages, and our Intentions in this Buſineſs, to procure an Act of the Houſe of Commons to command Sir Thomas Widdrington and me, to ſign Warrants without the Lords for Writs to adjourn the Term, and to draw an Act for that purpoſe; the Speaker approved of this way, and offered that he would preſent the Act to the Houſe for this purpoſe.

Army. 20. Lietenant General Hammond, and divers chief Officers of the Army, preſented to the Houſe in the Name of all the Army, from the Petition. general Council of the Army, a Petition and a Writing concluded on by them, intituled an Agreement of the People of England; deſiring a ſerious, and ſpeedy Conſideration thereof by the Houſe.

The Petition was read but not the Writing; it being long, and the Houſe having reſolved to riſe at twelve o' Clock, in regard the Commiſſioners for Trial of the King were to ſit in the Afternoon; yet they returned to the Officers this Anſwer, and ordered,

Anſwer. That the Thanks of the Houſe ſhould be given to theſe Officers, for their particular and great Services to the Kingdom, and that they be deſired to return the hearty Thanks of the Houſe, to his Excellency the Lord General and all the Army, for all their unwearied and gallant Services to the Nation.

And that the Petition with this Anſwer ſhould be forthwith printed and publiſhed, that the Kingdom might take notice of the Union and Affection between the Parliament and Army, and for the Agreement and Declaration, they ſhould be taken into ſpeedy and ſerious Conſideration.

The King. Upon a Conference betwixt the King and Mr. Hugh Peters, and the King deſiring that one of his own Chaplains might be permitted to come to him for his Satisfaction in ſome Scruples of Conſcience, Dr. Juxon Biſhop of London was ordered to go to his Majeſty.

Great Seal. Order that the Commoners, Commiſſioners of the Great Seal, ſhould iſſue forth Writs, for adjourning of the Term, though the Lords Commiſſioners did not join with them.

High Court of Juſtice. The High Court of Juſtice ſat in the Place in Weſtminſter-Hall, made for them, the Preſident had the Sword and Mace carried before him, and twenty Gentlemen attended as his Guard, with Partizans, commanded by Colonel Fox.

After an Oyes, and Silence made; the Act of the Commons of England for ſitting of the Court was read, and the Court was called, ſixty of the Members appeared.

The King was brought from St. James's to Whitehall, and from thence by Water, guarded with Muſqueteers in Boats, to Sir Robert Cotton's Houſe near Weſtminſter-Hall, and from thence to the Bar of the Court, attended by Colonel Hacker, with about thirty Officers, and Gentlemen with Halberts. 24 Car.

At his coming to the Foot of the Stairs he was met with the Mace of the Court, and conducted to a Chair within the Bar, where he ſat down in the face of the Court, they all being covered as well as his Majeſty.

The Lord Preſident in a ſhort Speech acquainted the King with the Cauſe of his bringing thither, in order to his Trial, upon a Charge againſt him, by the Commons of England, which was then to be read, and his Majeſty to give his Anſwer thereunto.

The King offered to ſpeak before reading of the Charge, but upon ſome Interruption was ſilent and the Charge was read.

By which he was charged in the Name of Charles Stuart King of England, as guilty of all the Blood that had been ſhed at Kenton, Brentford, Newbury, and other Places, where he had been preſent in Arms againſt the Parliament, and other Particulars very large.

The King ſmiled at the reading of his Charge, and after it was read, demanded of the Preſident by what lawful Authority he was brought thither, and being anſwered, in the Name of the Commons of England.

He replied, he ſaw no Lords there which ſhould make a Parliament, including the King; and urged that the Kingdom of England was hereditary and not ſucceſſive, and that he ſhould betray his Truſt, if he acknowledged or made anſwer to them, for that he was not convinced that they were a lawful Authority.

After he had been often demanded to anſwer and refuſed, he was remanded to Sir Robert Cotton's Houſe, and thence to St. James's, and the Hight Court adjourned, and kept a Faſt together at Whitehall.

Sir Thomas Widdrington ſeemed to ſcruple the ſigning of Warrants without the Lords, for adjourning of the Term.

22. The Commiſſioners of Scotland delivered Scotland. ſome Papers to the Houſe, and declared that Scotland had an undoubted Intereſt in the Perſon of the King; that he was not delivered to the Engliſh Commiſſioners at Newcaſtle for the Ruin of his Perſon, but for a ſpeedier Settlement of the Peace of his Kingdom.

That they extremely diſſent, and declare againſt the Trial of him, and that this preſent way of Proceeding againſt him leaves a deep Impreſſion on them, and ſits heavy on all their Spirits, in regard of the great Miſeries that are like to enſue upon the Kingdoms. And they moved for leave of the Houſe, to make their perſonal Addreſſes to the King.

The Houſe referr'd it to a Committee to draw up an Anſwer to the Parliament of Scotland.

This Declaration with ſome Papers from the Parliament of Scotland were likewiſe preſented by their Commiſſioners to the Lord General.

A Letter to the General from the Officers be- Army. fore Pontefract Caſtle, concurring in the Action of trying the King, ſecluding the Members of Parliament, who carry'd on corrupt Deſigns, and acknowledging the preſent Proceedings of the Army to be the Work of God alone.

The High Court of Juſtice ſat, and the King High Court of Juſtice was again brought to the Bar.

Mr. Coke Sollicitor General moved, That whereas the Priſoner had refuſed to make anſwer to the Charge againſt him, that now he might be directed to make a poſitive Anſwer, either by way of Confeſſion, or Negation, which if he ſhould refuſe to do, that the Matter of the Charge may be taken pro confeſſo, confeſſo, and the Court may proceed according to Juſtice.

Anno 1648.

The Preſident then required the King to anſwer to the Charge againſt him by the Commons of England, of High Treaſon, &c.

The King confeſſed, when he was laſt here, he made the queſtion of their Authority, and ſhould have ſatisfied himſelf with the Proteſtation he then made againſt the Legality of this Court, and that a King cannot be try'd by any ſuperior Juriſdiction on Earth.

But, he ſaid, it was not his Caſe alone that he ſtood for, but the Freedom of all the People of England, for if Power without Law, may make or alter Law, no Subject can be ſafe for his Life, or any thing that he calls his own.

Then he ſaid, he would give his Reaſons why in Conſcience, and the Duty he owed to God firſt, and his People next, for the Preſervation of their Lives, Liberties and Eſtates, he conceived he could not anſwer, till he was ſatisfied with the Legality of it.

Preſident. Sir, I muſt interrupt you, which I would not do, but that what you do is not agreeable to the Proceedings of any Court, you appear as a Priſoner before this Court, and are not to diſpute their Authority, but to give a punctual Anſwer to the Charge.

King. Sir, by your favour, I do not know the Forms of Law, I do know Law, and Reaſon, though I am no Lawyer profeſſed, but I know as much Law as any Gentleman in England; and therefore, under favour, I do plead for the Liberties of the whole People of England, more than you do; and therefore if I ſhould impoſe a Belief upon any, without Reaſons given for it, it were unreaſonable; but I muſt tell you that Reaſon that I have, as thus informed, I cannot yield unto it.

Preſident. Sir, I muſt interrupt you, you may not be permitted; you ſpeak of Law, and Reaſon, it is fit there ſhould be Law and Reaſon, and there is both againſt you. Sir, the Vote of the Commons of England in Parliament, is the Reaſon of the Kingdom, by Law you ſhould have ruled and reigned.

Sir, You are not to diſpute our Authority, you are told it again by the Court; Sir, it will be taken notice of that you ſtand in Contempt, and your Contempt will be recorded.

King. I do not know how a King can be a Delinquent, let me tell you, they may put in Demurrers againſt any Proceedings as legal, and I demand that, and to be heard with my Reaſons, if you deny that, you deny Reaſon.

Preſident. Sir, you have offer'd ſomething to the Court, I ſhall ſpeak ſomething to you, the Senſe of the Court: Sir, neither you, nor any Man are permitted to diſpute that Point; you are concluded, you muſt not demurr to the Juriſdiction of the Court, if you do, I muſt let you know, that they over-rule your Demurrer, they ſit here by the Authority of the Commons of England: and all your Predeceſſors, and you are reſponſible to them.

King. I deny that, ſhew me one Precedent.

Preſident. Sir, you ought not to interrupt while the Court is ſpeaking to you; this Point is not to be debated by you, neither will the Court permit you to do it; if you offer it by way of Demurrer to the Juriſdiction of the Court, they have conſidered of their Juriſdiction, and do affirm their own Juriſdiction.

King. I ſay, Sir, by your favour, that the Commons of England were never a Court of Judicature, I would know how they came to be ſo.

Preſident. Sir, you are not permitted to go on in that Speech, and theſe Diſcourſes.

Then the Clerk of the Court read this aloud: 24 Car.

Charles Stuart, King of England, you have been accuſed on the behalf of the People of England, of High Treaſon, and other Crimes, the Court have determined, that you ought to anſwer the ſame.

King. I will anſwer the ſame, ſo ſoon as I know by what Authority you do this.

Preſident. If this be all that you would ſay, then Gentlemen, you that brought the Priſoner hither, take charge of him back again.

King. I do require that I may give in my Reaſons why I do not anſwer, and give me Time for that.

Preſident. 'Tis not for Priſoners to require.

King. Priſoners; Sir, I am not an ordinary Priſoner.

Preſident. The Court hath conſidered of their Juriſdiction, and they have already affirmed their Juriſdiction; if you will not anſwer, we ſhall give order to record your Default.

King. You never heard my Reaſons yet.

Preſident. Sir, your Reaſons are not to be heard againſt the higheſt Juriſdiction.

King. Shew me what Juriſdiction, where Reaſon is not to be heard.

Preſident. Sir, we ſhew it you here, the Commons of England; and the next time you are brought, you will know more of the Pleaſure of the Court, and it may be, their final Determination.

King. Shew me where-ever the Houſe of Commons were a Court of Judicature of that kind.

Preſident. Sergeant, take away the Priſoner.

King. Well Sir, remember that the King is not ſuffered to give in his Reaſons for the Liberty and Freedom of all his Subjects.

Preſident. Sir, you are not to have Liberty to uſe this Language, how great a Friend you have been to the Laws and Liberties of the People, let all England and the World judge.

King. Sir, under favour, it was the Liberty, Freedom, and Laws of the Subject that ever I took to defend my ſelf with Arms, I never took up Arms againſt the People, but for the Laws.

Preſident. The Command of the Court muſt be obeyed, no Anſwer will be given to the Charge.

King. Well Sir.

Then the Officers guarded the King back again to Sir Robert Cotton's Houſe, and the Court adjourned.

Commiſſioners of the Great Seal.

The Commiſſioners met at Mr. Browne's Houſe, the Clerk of the Parliament, where the Great Seal lay, and there Sir Thomas Widdrington and I without the two Lords, did ſign a Warrant for Writs to adjourn the Term; the two Lords Commiſſioners were preſent, though they did not join in this, yet they did in other Buſineſs.

There were ſtrict Guards, many Soldiers, and a great Preſs of People at the Trial of the King. The Houſe ſat only to adjourn. Some who ſat on the Scaffolds about the Court at the Trial (particularly the Lady Fairfax, the Lord General's Wife) did not forbear to exclaim aloud againſt the Proceedings of the High Court, and the irreverent Uſage of the King by his Subjects, inſomuch that the Court was interrupted, and the Soldiers and Officers of the Court had much to do to quiet the Ladies, and others.

Lady Fairfax.

23. Report of an Ordinance that where, upon Indictments, &c. it was formerly ſaid contrary to the Peace of our ſovereign Lord the King, his Crown, and Dignity; it ſhould now be ſaid, againſt the Peace, Juſtice, and Council of England.

That Writs out of the Chancery ſhould go in the name of the Chancellor, or Keepers of the Style.

Anno 1648. Seal, and in other Courts in the name of the Judges.

High Court of Juſtice. The High Court of Juſtice ſat, Mr. Coke Solicitor General moved,

That whereas the Priſoner, inſtead of giving anſwer to the Charge againſt him, did ſtill diſpute the Authority of the Court, that according to the Law, if a Priſoner ſhall ſtand as contumacious in Contempt, and ſhall not give an iſſuable Plea, Guilty or not Guilty, whereby he may come to a fair Trial, that as by an implicit Confeſſion, it may be taken pro confeſſo, as it hath been done to thoſe who deſerved more Favour than the Priſoner, and that therefore ſpeedy Judgment be pronounced againſt him.

Preſident. Sir, you have heard what is moved by the Council in behalf of the Kingdom againſt you. Sir, you may well remember, and if you do not, the Court cannot forget, what dilatory Dealings the Court hath found at your Hands, you were pleaſed to propound ſome Queſtions, you had your Reſolution upon them.

You were told over and over again, that the Court did affirm their own Juriſdiction, that it was not for you nor for any other Man to diſpute the Juriſdiction of the ſupreme and higheſt Authority of England, from which there is no Appeal; and touching which there muſt be no Diſpute; yet you did perſiſt in ſuch Carriage, as you gave no manner of Obedience, nor did you acknowledge any Authority in them, nor the High Court that conſtituted this Court of Juſtice.

Sir, I muſt let you know from the Court, that they are very ſenſible of theſe Delays of yours, and that they ought not, being thus authorized by the ſupreme Court of England, to be thus trifled withal, and that they might in Juſtice, if they pleaſed, and according to the Rules of Juſtice, take Advantage of theſe Delays, and proceed to pronounce Judgment againſt you.

Yet nevertheleſs they are pleaſed to give Direction, and on their Behalfs I do require you, that you make a poſitive Anſwer to this Charge that is againſt you, Sir, in plain Terms (for Juſtice knows no Reſpect of Perſons) you are to give your poſitive and final Anſwer in plain Engliſh, whether you be Guilty or not Guilty of theſe Treaſons laid to your Charge.

King. After a little Pauſe.

When I was here yeſterday, I deſired to ſpeak for the Liberties of the People of England, I was interrupted; I deſire to know yet whether I may ſpeak freely or not.

Preſident. Sir, You have had the Reſolution of the Court upon the like Queſtion that laſt Day, and you were told, that having ſuch a Charge of ſo high a Nature againſt you, and your Work was, that you ought to acknowledge the Juriſdiction of the Court, and to anſwer to your Charge.

Sir, if you anſwer to your Charge, which the Court gives you leave now to do, though they might have taken the Advantage of your Contempt, yet if you be able to anſwer to your Charge, when you have once anſwered, you ſhall be heard at large, make the beſt Defence you can.

But Sir, I muſt let you know from the Court, as their Commands, that you are not to be permitted to iſſue out into any other Diſcourſes, till ſuch time as you have given a poſitive Anſwer concerning the Matter that is charged upon you.

King. For the Charge, I value it not a Ruſh, it is the Liberty of the People of England that I ſtand for; for me to acknowledge a new Court, that I never heard of before; I that am your King, that ſhould be an Example to all the People of England to uphold Juſtice, to maintain the old Laws, indeed, I do not know how to do it.

You ſpake very well the firſt Day that I came here 24 Car. on Saturday, of the Obligations that I had laid upon me by God, to the Maintenance of the Liberties of my People; the ſame Obligation you ſpake of, I do acknowledge to God, that I owe to him and to my People, to defend as much as in me lies the antient Laws.

Therefore until that I may know, that this is not againſt the fundamental Laws of the Kingdom, by your favour, I can put in no particular Anſwer; if you will give me time, I will ſhew you my Reaſons why I cannot do it, and thus——

Here being interrupted, he ſaid,

By your favour, you ought not to interrupt me, how I came here I know not, there's no Law for it, to make your King your Priſoner, I was in a Treaty upon the publick Faith of the Kingdom, that was the known—— two Houſes of Parliament, that was the Repreſentative of the Kingdom, and when that I had almoſt made an end of the Treaty, then I was hurried away, and brought hither, and therefore——

Here the Preſident ſaid,

Sir, You muſt know the Pleaſure of the Court.

King. By your favour, Sir,——

Preſident. Nay Sir, by your favour you may not be permitted to fall into theſe Diſcourſes, you appear as a Delinquent, you have not acknowledged the Authority of the Court; the Court craves it not of you, but once more they command you to give your poſitive Anſwer——

Clerk. Do your Duty.

King. Duty Sir.

Then the Clerk read a Paper, requiring the King to give a poſitive and final Anſwer by way of Confeſſion or Denial of the Charge.

King. Sir, I ſay again to you, ſo that I might give ſatisfaction to the People of England of the clearneſs of my Proceedings, not by way of anſwer, nor in this way, but to ſatisfy them, that I have done nothing againſt that Truſt, that hath been committed to me, I would do it; but to acknowledge a new Court, againſt their Privileges, to alter the fundamental Laws of the Kingdom, Sir, you muſt excuſe me.

Preſident. Sir, This is the third time that you have publickly diſavowed this Court, and put an Affront upon it; but how far you have preſerved the Liberties of the People, your Actions have ſpoke it; but truly Sir, Mens Intentions ought to be known by their Actions; you have written your meaning in bloody Characters throughout the Kingdom.

But Sir, you underſtand the Pleaſure of the Court.

Clerk, record the Default.

And Gentlemen, you that took the Charge of the Priſoner, take him back again.

King. I will ſay this one Word more to you, if it were my own particular, I would not ſay any more to interrupt you.

Preſident. Sir, you have heard the Pleaſure of the Court, and you are (notwithſtanding you will not underſtand it) to find that you are before a Court of Juſtice.

Then the King went forth with his Guards, to Sir Robert Cotton's Houſe, where he lay.

24. The Houſe only met and adjourned.

The High Court of Juſtice was expected to ſit, but they ſent an Uſher to tell the People there aſſembled, that the Court was buſy in the Painted Chamber, examining Witneſſes in relation to the preſent Affairs, and ſhould not ſit in Weſtminſter-Hall that Day, but that all Perſons appointed to be there, were to appear on farther Summons. High Court of Juſtice.

About

Anno 1648. About four a-clock this Afternoon all the Judges, by Appointment, met at Sergeants-Inn to adviſe with the Committee, about the new Style of Writs; in which Matter the Judges ſeemed not to be very forward to join with us.

Style.

25. The Houſe met and adjourned.

High Court of Juſtice. The High Court of Juſtice met, and proceeded in Examination of Witneſſes to prove the Charge againſt the King, ſome proved that they ſaw him preſent, at the ſetting up of his Standard; others, that they ſaw him in the Field, in ſeveral Fights with his Sword drawn.

France. The Parliament of Paris, proclaimed the Cardinal Mazarine, a Diſturber of the publick Peace, and Enemy to the King and Kingdom.

Style. In the Evening I met at Sergeants-Inn with the Committee to receive the Judges Anſwer, concerning the Alteration in the Style of Writs.

The Judges anſwered, That becauſe of their Oaths, they could not adviſe in this Buſineſs, being it was an Alteration of the Government of the Kingdom; but with this Anſwer the Committee went away, not well ſatisfied.

Heads of the Charge. 26. The Heads of the Charge againſt the King, were publiſhed by leave, in this Form:

That Charles Stuart, being admitted King of England, and therein truſted with a limited Power, to govern by, and according to the Laws of the Land, and not otherwiſe, and by his Truſt being obliged, as alſo by his Oaths, and Office to uſe the Power committed to him, for the Good and Benefit of the People, and for the Preſervation of their Rights and Privileges.

Yet nevertheleſs out of a wicked Deſign, to erect and uphold himſelf in an unlimited and tyrannical Power, to rule according to his Will, and to overthrow the Rights and Liberties of the People, yea to take away and make void the Foundations thereof, and of all Redreſs and Remedy of Miſ-government, which by the Fundamental Conſtitutions of this Kingdom, were reſerved on the Peoples Behalf, in the Right and Power of frequent and ſucceſſive Parliaments, or national Meetings in Council.

He the ſaid Charles Stuart, for Accompliſhment of his Deſigns, and for the protecting of himſelf and his Adherents, in his and their wicked Practices to the ſame ends, hath traiterouſly and maliciouſly levied War againſt the preſent Parliament, and the People therein repreſented, more particularly---

Then they named Nottingham, Beverly, and other Places where Fights were, and go on:

That he hath cauſed, and procured many thouſands of the Free-People of the Nation to be ſlain, and by Diviſions, Parties, and Inſurrections within this Land, and by Invaſions from foreign Parts, endeavoured and procured by him, and by many other evil Ways and Means——

His giving Commiſſions to his Son the Prince, and other Rebels and Revolters, both Engliſh and Foreigners, and to the Earl of Ormond, and to the Iriſh Rebels, and Revolters aſſociated with him, from whom farther Invaſions upon this Land are threatned upon the Procurement and on the behalf of the ſaid Charles Stuart.

All which wicked Deſigns, and evil Practices of him the ſaid Charles Stuart, have been and are carried on, for the advancing and upholding of the perſonal Intereſt of Will and Power, and pretended Prerogative to himſelf and Family, againſt the publick Intereſt, common Right, Liberty, Juſtice, and Peace of the People of this Nation, by, and for whom he was intruſted as aforeſaid.

By all which it appeareth, that he, the ſaid Charles Stuart, hath been, and is, the Occaſioner, Author, and Contriver of the ſaid unnatural, cruel, and bloody Wars, and therein guilty of all the Treaſons, 24 Car. Murders, Rapines, Burnings, Spoils, Deſolations, Damage, and Miſchief to this Nation, acted, or committed in the ſaid Wars, or occaſioned thereby.

I met with Mr. Prideaux and others, at Mr. Liſle's Houſe, about the Ordinance for ſettling the Court of Juſtice, and there it was drawn.

Mr. Pierrepoint ſtill kept in his ſtation, though diſſatisfied with preſent Proceedings; ſo was Sir Thomas Widdrington; we had much Diſcourſe together about theſe Affairs.

27. The High Court of Juſtice ſat in Weſtminſter-Hall, the Preſident in his Scarlet Robe, and many of the Commiſſioners in their beſt Habit. High Court of Juſtice.

After the calling the Court, the King came in, in his wonted Poſture with his Hat on; as he paſſed by in the Hall, a Cry was made, Juſtice, Juſtice, Execution, Execution. This was by ſome Soldiers, and others of the Rabble.

The King deſired to be heard, the Preſident anſwered, that he muſt hear the Court: and ſets forth, the Intentions of the Court to proceed againſt the Priſoner, and withal offered that the King might ſpeak, ſo it were not matter of debate.

The King deſired, That in regard he had ſomething to ſay, for the Peace of the Kingdom and Liberty of the Subject, before Sentence were given, he might be heard before the Lords and Commons in the Painted Chamber.

Upon this the Court withdrew into the Court of Wards, and the King to Sir Robert Cotton's Houſe; and after about an Hour's Debate, they returned again into Weſtminſter-Hall.

The Court reſolved, That what the King had tendered, tended to delay; yet if he would ſpeak any thing for himſelf in Court, before Sentence, he might be heard.

Many of the Commiſſioners in the debate of it in the Court of Wards, were againſt this Reſolution, and preſſed to ſatisfy the King's Deſire, and themſelves, to hear what the King would ſay to them in the Painted Chamber, before Sentence; but it was voted by the major part in the Negative. Upon which Colonel Harvey, and ſome others of the Commiſſioners went away in diſcontent, and never ſat with them afterwards; this Propoſal of the King's being denied by the Commiſſioners, the King thereupon declared himſelf, That he had nothing more to ſay.

Then the Preſident made a large Speech of the King's Miſ-government, and that by Law, Kings were accountable to their People, and to the Law, which was their Superior, and he inſtanced in ſeveral Kings, who had been depoſed, and impriſoned by their Subjects, eſpecially in the King's native Country, where, of one hundred and nine Kings, moſt were depoſed, impriſoned, or proceeded againſt for Miſ-government, and his own Grand-mother removed, and his Father an infant crowned.

After this the Clerk was commanded to read the Sentence, which recited the Charge, and the ſeveral Crimes of which he had been found guilty.

For all which Treaſons and Crimes, the Court did adjudge, That he the ſaid Charles Stuart, as a Tyrant, Traitor, Murderer, and publick Enemy, ſhall be put to death by the ſevering of his Head from his Body.

The King then deſired to be heard, but it would not be permitted, being after Sentence, and as he returned through the Hall, there was another Cry for Juſtice and Execution.

Here we may take notice of the abject Baſeneſs of ſome vulgar Spirits, who ſeeing their King in that Condition, endeavoured in their ſmall Capacity, Anno 1648. pacity, further to promote his Miſery, that they might a little curry Favour with the preſent Powers, and pick Thanks of their then Superiors.

Some of the very ſame Perſons, were afterwards as clamorous for Juſtice againſt thoſe that were the King's Judges.

A Prince is not exempt from the Venom of theſe mad Dogs.

Style. The Act paſſed for altering the Forms of Writs, and other Proceedings in Courts of Juſtice, which were before in the Name of the King, and no Concurrence of the Lords was deſired.

Proclamation. A Committee appointed to draw a Proclamation to declare it High Treaſon, for any to proclaim any King of England without Aſſent of the Parliament, and none to preach or ſpeak any thing, contrary to the preſent Proceedings of the ſupreme Authority of this Nation, the Commons of England aſſembled in Parliament, under pain of Impriſonment, and ſuch other Puniſhments as ſhall be thought fit to be inflicted on them.

The King deſired, that in reſpect Sentence of Death was paſt upon him, and the time of his Execution might be nigh, that the Houſe would give him leave to ſee his Children, and that he might have Dr. Juxon to be private with him in his Chamber, and to give him the Sacrament.

This was ordered accordingly, and Dr. Juxon preached before the King in his private Lodgings this Night at Whitehall.

I was much troubled at the paſſing of Sentence of Death againſt the King, and heartily prayed that it might not be executed.

28. The Commiſſioners of the High Court of Juſtice kept a Faſt in the Chapel at Whitehall.

Secluded Members. 29. The Houſe ſat early, and one of the ſecluded Members coming in, they voted, That ſuch Members as 5 December laſt, voted that the King's Conceſſions were a Ground of ſettling Peace in this Nation, ſhould not be re-admitted, but diſabled to ſit as Members for the future.

Dutch Ambaſſadors. The Dutch Ambaſſadors had their Audience in the Houſe, they read their Inſtructions, and Credentials in French, and promiſed Copies of them in Engliſh to-morrow, but would not part with the Originals.

Their Buſineſs was to interceed for the King's Life, and to preſerve a fair Correſpondence betwixt this Nation and the States.

Style. An Act paſſed for Alteration of Names, and Forms, in Writs, Grants, Patents, Proceedings in Courts, &c.

That in England, Ireland, and Berwick, &c. inſtead of the Style, Title, and Teſte of the King, ſhall be uſed Cuſtodes libertatis Angliæ, Authoritate Parliamenti, &c.

That the Date ſhall be the Year of our Lord, and no other.

That inſtead of the former Words Juratores pro Domino Rege, &c. the Words now to be uſed ſhall be Juratores pro Republica.

Inſtead of the Words, Contra pacem, dignitatem, vel coronam noſtram, the Words ſhall be, Contra pacem publicam.

That all Writs, Patents, Commiſſions, &c. ſhall ſtand good, notwithſtanding the Death of the King.

The High Court of Juſtice ſat, and appointed the time, and place for the Execution of the King.

King's Children. The King's Children came from Sion-Houſe, to viſit him at St. James's, he took the Princeſs in his Arms, and kiſſed her, and gave her two Seals with Diamonds, and prayed for the Bleſſing of God upon her, and the reſt of his Children, and there was great weeping. 24 Car.

The Prince Elector, the Duke of Richmond, and others made ſuit to ſee him, which he refuſed.

Letters from Scotland, that the Miniſters there, preach againſt the Army in England, and the Proceedings againſt their King, they ſay they are bound by their Covenant to preſerve Monarchy, and that in the Race of the preſent King.

That their Parliament have paſſed ſeveral Votes againſt thoſe that were in the late Engagement againſt England.

Letters that Prince Rupert was at Sea with about fourteen of the revolted Ships, and took divers Merchant-men, the Parliament having no Ships abroad.

The Commiſſioners met at Mr. Browne's Houſe where the Seal lay, to have had a Private Seal, but by reaſon of my Lord Grey's Abſence who had the Key, and becauſe of the Sentence given againſt the King, we did not ſeal any thing, but we heard divers Petitions.

30. The King walked from St. James's through the Park, guarded with a Regiment of Foot, and Partiſans to Whitehall.

Divers Gentlement went bare before him, Dr. Juxon followed next to him, and Colonel Thomlinſon had the Charge of him, they brought him to the Cabinet-Chamber where he continued at his Devotion.

He refuſed to dine having before taken the Sacrament, but about twelve a Clock at Noon he drank a Glaſs of Claret Wine, and eat a piece of Bread, from thence he went with Dr. Juxon, Colonel Thomlinſon, Colonel Hacker, and the Guards, through the Banqueting Houſe, adjoining to which the Scaffold was erected, it was hung round with Black, and the Floor covered with Black, and the Ax, and Block laid in the middle of it.

Divers Companies of Foot and Horſe were on every ſide of the Scaffold, and great Multitudes of People came to be Spectators, the King looked earneſtly on the Block, asked if there were no Place higher, and directing his Speech to the Gentlemen upon the Scaffold, he ſpake to this Effect.

King's Speech. I ſhall be very little heard of any Body here, I ſhall therefore ſpeak a Word unto you here; indeed I could hold my peace very well, if I did not think, that holding my peace would make ſome Men think, that I did ſubmit to the Guilt, as well as to the Puniſhment, but I think it is my duty, to God firſt, and to my Country, for to clear my ſelf, both as an honeſt Man, and a good King, and a good Chriſtian.

I ſhall begin firſt with my Innocency, in troth, I think it not very needful for me to inſiſt long upon this, for all the World knows, that I never did begin a War with the two Houſes of Parliament, and I call God to witneſs, to whom I muſt ſhortly make an Account, that I never did intend for to incroach upon their Privileges.

They began upon me, it is the Militia they began upon, they confeſt that the Militia was mine, but they thought it fit to have it from me; and to be ſhort, if any Body will look to the Dates of Commiſſions, theirs and mine, and likewiſe to the Declarations, they will ſee clearly, that they began theſe unhappy Troubles not I.

So that, as to the Guilt of theſe enormous Crimes that are laid againſt me, I hope in God, that God will clear me of it; I will not, I am in Charity, God forbid that I ſhould lay it upon the two Houſes of Parliament, there is no neceſſity of either.

I hope

Anno 1648.

I hope they are free of this Guilt, for I do believe that ill Inſtruments between them and me, have been the chief Cauſe of all this Bloodſhed; ſo that, by way of ſpeaking, as I find my ſelf clear of this, I hope, and pray God, that they may too.

Yet for all this, God forbid that I ſhould be ſo ill a Chriſtian, as not to ſay, that God's Judgments are juſt upon me, many times he does pay Juſtice by an unjuſt Sentence, that is Ordinary; I only ſay this, that an unjuſt Sentence, that I ſuffered for to take Effect, is puniſhed now, by an unjuſt Sentence upon me; that is, ſo far I have ſaid, to ſhew you that I am an innocent Man.

Now for to ſhew you that I am a good Chriſtian, I hope there is a good Man (pointing to Dr. Juxon) that will bear me witneſs, that I have forgiven all the World, and even thoſe in particular that have been the Chief Cauſors of my Death, who they are God knows, I do not deſire to know, I pray God forgive them.

But this is not all, my Charity muſt go further, I wiſh that they may repent, for indeed they have committed a great Sin in that particular, I pray God, with St. Stephen, that this be not laid to their Charge; nay not only ſo, but that they may take the right way, to the Peace of the Kingdom, for Charity commands me, not only to forgive particular Men, but to endeavour to the laſt gaſp the Peace of the Kingdom. So Sirs, I do wiſh with all my Soul, and I do hope there is ſome here, that will carry it further, that they may endeavour the Peace of the Kingdom.

Now Sirs, I muſt ſhew you both how you are out of the way, and will put you in a way; firſt you are out of the way, for certainly all the way you ever have had yet, as I could find by any thing, is in the way of Conqueſt.

Certainly this is an ill way, for Conqueſt (Sirs) in my Opinion, is never juſt, except there be a good juſt Cauſe, either for matter of Wrong, or juſt Title, and then if you go beyond it, the firſt Quarrel that you have to it, that makes it unjuſt at the end, that was juſt at firſt.

But if it be only matter of Conqueſt, then it is a great Robbery as a Pirate ſaid to Alexander, that he was a great Robber, he was but a petty Robber, and ſo, Sirs, do I think, the way that you are in, is much out of the way.

Now Sirs, to put you in the way, believe it, you will never do right, nor God will never proſper you, until you give him his due, the King his due, (that is my Succeſſors) and the People their due, I am as much for them as any of you can be.

You muſt give God his due, by regulating rightly his Church, (according to his Scripture) which is now out of order, for to ſet you in a way particularly now I cannot, but only this, a National Synod freely called, freely debating among themſelves, muſt ſettle this, when that every Opinion is freely and clearly heard.

For the King, indeed I will not (then turning to a Gentleman that touched the Ax) he ſaid, hurt not the Ax that may hurt me.

For the King, the Laws of the Land willy clearly inſtruct you for that, therefore becauſe it concerns my own particular, I only give you a touch of it.

For the People, and truly I deſire their Liberty and Freedom, as much as any Body whomſoever, but I muſt tell you, that their Liberty and their Freedom conſiſts in having of Government, thoſe Laws, by which, their Life, and their Goods, may be moſt their own.

It is not for having Share in Government (Sirs) that is nothing pertaining to them, a Subject and a Sovereign are clean different Things, and therefore until they do that, I mean that you do put the People in that Liberty, as I ſay, certainly, they will never enjoy themſelves. 24 Cor.

Sirs, it was for this, that now I am come here, if I would have given way to an Arbitrary way, for to have all Laws changed, according to the Power of the Sword, I needed not to have come here, and therefore I tell you (and I pray God it be not laid to your Charge) that I am the Martyr of the People.

In troth Sirs, I ſhall not hold you much longer, for I will only ſay this to you, that, in troth, I could have deſired ſome little time longer, becauſe that I would have put this, that I have ſaid, in a little more order, and a little better digeſted it than I have done, and therefore I hope you will excuſe me, I have delivered my Conſcience, I pray God that you do take thoſe Courſes, that are beſt for the good of the Kingdom, and your own Salvation.

Then Dr. Juxon ſpake: Dr. Juxon.

Will your Majeſty (though it may be very well known your Majeſty's Affections to Religion) yet it may be expected, that you ſhould ſay ſomewhat for the World's Satisfaction.

King. I thank you very heartily my Lord, for that I had almoſt forgotten it. In troth Sirs, my Conſcience in Religion I think is very well known to the World, and therefore I declare before you all, that I die a Chriſtian, according to the Profeſſion of the Church of England, as I found it left me by my Fathers, and this honeſt Man I think will witneſs it.

Then turning to the Officers he ſaid,

Sirs, excuſe me for this ſame, I have a good Cauſe, and I have a gracious God, I will ſay no more.

Then turning to Colonel Hacker, he ſaid, take care that they do not put me to Pain, and Sir, this, and it pleaſe you.

Then a Gentleman coming near the Ax, the King, ſaid; Take heed of the Ax, pray take heed of the Ax.

Then he ſaid to the Executioner, I ſhall ſay but very ſhort Prayers, and then thruſt out my Hands.

Two Men in Diſguiſes and Vizors, ſtood upon the Scaffold for Executioners.

Then the King called to Dr. Juxon, for his Night-cap, and having put it on, he ſaid to the Executioner, does my Hair trouble you? he deſired it might all be put under the Cap, which the King did accordingly, by the help of the Executioner and the Biſhop.

Then the King turning to Dr. Juxon ſaid,

I have a good Cauſe and a gracious God on my ſide.

Dr. Juxon. There is but one Stage more, this Stage is turbulent, and troubleſome, it is a ſhort one, but you may conſider, it will ſoon carry you a very great way, it will carry you from Earth to Heaven, and there you ſhall find a great deal of Cordial Joy and Comfort.

King. I go from a corruptible to an incorruptible Crown where no diſturbance can be.

Dr. Juxon. You are exchanged from a Temporal to an Eternal Crown, a good Exchange.

Then the King took off his Cloak and his George which he gave to Dr. Juxon, ſaying Remember — ſome other ſmall Ceremonies were paſt, after which, the King ſtooping down, laid his Neck upon the Block, and after a very little Pauſe, ſtretching forth his Hands, the Executioner, at one Blow, ſevered his Head from his Body.

The King died with true Magnanimity and Chriſtian Patience; his Body was put in a Coffin, covered with black Velvet, and removed to his Lodging Chamber in Whitehall. At this Scene were many ſighs and weeping Eyes, and divers ſtrove ſtrove to dip their Handkerchiefs in his Blood, as in the Blood of a Martyr.

Dutch Ambaſſadors.

The Houſe ſat early, and the Dutch Ambaſſadors having ſent them a Tranſcript of their Ambaſſy in Engliſh, it took up much time in the reading, and was referr'd to a Committee to draw up the Anſwer to it.

An Act paſſed to prohibit any to proclaim the Prince of Wales, or any other to be King, or chief Magiſtrate of England, or Ireland, without Conſent of Parliament, on pain of High-Treaſon.

Some imperfect Copies of the Proceedings at the Trial of the King being printed, the Houſe referr'd it to the High Court, to draw up a Narrative of thoſe Proceedings to be confirmed by the Houſe.

The Act forbidding the proclaiming of any King, was ordered to be ſent down to all the Sheriffs to be proclaimed in all Counties.

I went not to the Houſe, but ſtay'd all Day at home in my Study and at my Prayers, that this Day's work might not ſo diſpleaſe God, as to bring prejudice to this poor afflicted Nation.

Duke Hamilton and the Lord Louborough eſcap'd out of Windſor Caſtle.

Duke of Hamilton.

31. Between three and four a-Clock this Morning, Letters came from Windſor to Lieutenant General Cromwell, of the Eſcape of Duke Hamilton, and his Man the laſt Night. Warrants were preſently iſſued forth, and five hundred Pounds promiſed to whomſoever ſhould ſecure the Duke, and Notice ſent hereof to my Lord Mayor.

A Meſſenger with one of the Warrants to be ſent by the Poſt, was ſtopp'd and examined by ſome Troopers in Southwark, whom he told of the Eſcape of Duke Hamilton.

Not long after as theſe Troopers marched about the Streets, they perceived a Man knocking very earneſtly at an Inn Gate in Southwark, and asked him what he was, and his Buſineſs; he anſwered that he came to Dover Carrier, who lodged there, and he was to go down with the Carrier in his Waggon.

The Troopers more ſtrictly obſerving him, one of them told him, that he believed he was a Scotchman, and that he had ſeen him in Hamilton's Army, which he denied; but preſently another of the Troopers ſaid plainly he believed that it was Hamilton himſelf, though diſguiſed, for he very well knew his Favour, and was at the taking of him; and they had heard a little before, that he had eſcaped out of Windſor Caſtle.

Hereupon they preſently ſearched him, and found about him forty Pounds in Gold, a Diamond Ring valued at a hundred Pounds, and other good Prize for the Troopers, who this Morning brought him by Water to Whitehall, where a ſtrong Guard was put upon him.

The Houſe gave one hundred and twenty Pounds to the Troopers, who apprehended the Duke, beſides what they found about him.

Sir Lewis Dives eſcaped the laſt Night, and Mr. Holder the Prince's Agent, eſcaped through the Houſe of Office in Whitehall ſtanding over the Thames.

The Eſcapes of theſe Perſons put the Houſe in debate, of bringing Hamilton, the Earl of Holland, Laughern, Poyer, Powell, and other chief Delinquents to a ſpeedy Trial.

They appointed a Committee to bring in an Act, for conſtituting a Court for the Trial of theſe Perſons, and ordered the Earl of Holland, to be forthwith removed to London.

This being the monthly Faſt-day, it was moved in the Houſe, when they ſat after the Sermons, to have two Miniſters appointed to preach (as was uſual) the next Faſt-day, but ſome held the courſe of keeping a conſtant monthly Faſt, not to be ſo proper, but favouring of two much Formality, and that it was fitter to appoint Days of publick Humiliation, upon ſpecial Occaſions; upon debate whereof, no Miniſters were named to preach the next monthly Faſt-day.

Car. Monthly Faſt.

February, 1648.

1. The Act paſſed, That ſuch Members as had voted 5 December laſt, that the late King's Conceſſions to the Propoſitions, were a ſufficient Ground for ſettling a Peace in this Nation, ſhould not be re-admitted to ſit as Members of this Parliament.

Secluded Members.

And that ſuch Members as were then in the Houſe, and gave their Votes in the Negative, ſhould enter their diſſent to the ſaid Vote; and ſuch as were abſent, to declare their diſapproving thereof, before they be admitted to ſit as Members.

Many Members declared their diſſent to that Vote.

Voted that Duke Hamilton, the Earl of Holland, Lord Goring, Lord Capel, and Colonel Owen, ſhall be the next Perſons to be proceeded againſt for Juſtice.

Vote Duke Hamilton, &c. Lord Capel.

After this the Lord Capel by a deſperate Attempt, eſcaped this Evening out of the Tower over the Moat, and Warrants were ſent out, and one hundred Pounds promiſed to any that ſhould take him.

A Meſſage from the Lords for a Committee to be named of both Houſes, to conſider of a way to ſettle this Nation; Order, to conſider to-morrow, whether the Lords Meſſenger ſhould be called in or not, and whether the Houſe ſhould take any Cognizance thereof.

Lords.

Order for adjourning the Term for eight Days.

A Petition from Surrey,

Surrey Petition.

That the Militia may be put into faithful Hands, and Neuters, and ſuſpected Perſons rendred uncapable of Truſt.

That Magiſtrates and Officers may be choſen by the well affected Perſons, and Delinquents neither to chooſe nor to be choſen.

That Tithes may be taken off, and a more juſt way provided for the Maintenance of the Miniſtry.

That a Committee for Accounts may be in each County, and that free Quarter may be taken off.

This Petition was referred to a Committee, and the Houſe took notice of the ſeaſonableneſs of it, and the good Affections of the Petitioners, and gave them Thanks.

The High Court met to prepare Matters for the Trial of Duke Hamilton, the Earl of Holland and others.

The Commiſſioners of the Seal met, but did not think fit to ſeal any Writs, or do any Buſineſs becauſe of the King's Death.

I ſtayed in the Houſe of Commons from Morning till Night, and there declared my Diſapprobation of the Vote of 5 December laſt, the like was alſo then done by Sir Thomas Widdrington, and many other Members.

2. A Petition from Kent to the ſame Effect with that of Surrey, referred to the Committee for ſettlement, and the Petitioners had Thanks.

Kent's Petition.

Vote for this Summer's Fleet to be ſeventy three Sail of Ships, and about ſix thouſand Men; this upon Conference with Merchants, and for diſperſing the Prince's Fleet, and Encouragement of of Trade; Orders for Victuals and Money for this Fleet.

High Court of Juſtice.

Divers Members of the Parliament, of the Army, of the City, and private Gentlemen, in all to the number of ſixty, whereof fifteen to be of the Quorum, were by Act made a High Court of Juſtice for Trial of Duke Hamilton, the Earl of Holland, and others.

Order for eſtabliſhing Colonel Henry Martin's Regiment.

Upon the Dutch Ambaſſadors deſire, Ordered, that what was delivered by them to the Houſe, in relation to their Ambaſſy, may not be printed.

Order for Colonel Reynolds's Regiment to be compleated, and added to the Eſtabliſhment.

3. The Act paſſed for the new High Court of Juſtice.

Divers Members entered their diſſent to the Vote 5 December laſt.

Two Watermen of London diſcovered and apprehended the Lord Capel in a Houſe at Lambeth; the Houſe gave forty Pounds to the Watermen.

Houſe of Lords.

5. Debate till ſix a Clock at Night, whether the Houſe of Lords ſhould be continued a Court of Judicature, or a Court Conſultatory only, and whether it ſhould be referred to a Committee to conſider what Power or Conſtitution, the Lords ſhould have, and it being dark, it was upon the Queſtion carried in the Negative, not to have Candles; and the Debate adjourned till to-morrow.

The Lords ſent again for a Committee of both Houſes to conſider of ſettling the Kingdom, but their Meſſengers were not called in.

Dutch Ambaſſadors.

An Anſwer agreed to the Dutch Ambaſſadors, returning Thanks to the States, for their deſire of continuing Amity with this Kingdom, profeſſing their deſire of the like, and care to continue the ſame.

They thanked them alſo for their grave Advice concerning the King, and let them underſtand, that the Commons of England had proceeded according to the Laws of the Land in what they had done, and as they leave all other Nations and Kingdoms, to move according to their Rights and Laws, ſo they hope, none will think ill, if they act according to thoſe of England, and that they ſhall be always ready to ſhew themſelves Friends to the United Provinces.

High Court of Juſtice.

The High Court of Juſtice ſat in the Painted Chamber, and elected the Lord Preſident, and Officers, as were before; they agreed upon a Proclamation:

That they had adjourned themſelves till to-morrow Morning in the Painted Chamber, and ſuch who had any Evidence to give againſt the Earl of Holland, Earl of Cambridge, Lord Goring, Lord Capel, and Sir John Owen, or any of them, were to repair thither, where they might be heard.

Pamphlets.

A Committee to examine the Authors, and Publiſhers of a Pamphlet, and ſuch as have preached, printed, and publiſhed ſeditiouſly the Proceedings in bringing the King to Juſtice, and to prepare an Act to reſtrain the preaching, and printing any thing againſt the Proceedings of the Houſe, and of the High Court of Juſtice.

Scotland.

Letters from Scotland, that the Parliament, and Prieſts there are at much Variance; that they bring all to the Stool of Repentance, that were in the laſt Invaſion of England, yet they are now as much as ever Enemies to the Proceedings of the Parliament, and Army in England.

That they talk big of raiſing an Army, in Revenge of the King's Blood, and all will join unanimouſly againſt the Sectaries of England, and ground themſelves upon Breach of the Covenant.

Letters from Newcaſtle, that many Ships were loaden with Coals for London, and the Coaſt clear, and their Governor Sir Arthur Haſelrigge and ſome Officers of the Garriſon were gone for London. Febr.

Letters from Pontefract, that upon notice of the King's Execution, the Garriſon made a ſtout Salley, but were beaten in again.

In the Houſe, the Debate was long and ſmart, concerning the Lords Houſe.

I informed them, out of Records and Hiſtories as well as I could of their Conſtitution; ſome deſired Notes of my Speech and had them.

Debate: Houſe of Lords.

6. Debate concerning the Houſe of Lords, and the Queſtion being put, whether the Houſe of Commons ſhould take the Advice of the Houſe of Lords in the exerciſe of the Legiſlative Power of the Kingdom, it was carried in the Negative, by many Voices.

Voted uſeleſs.

Then they voted, That the Houſe of Peers in Parliament, is uſeleſs, and dangerous, and ought to be aboliſhed, and that an Act be brought in to this purpoſe.

Debts.

A Committee named to draw up an Act for making the Eſtates both of the late Members of Peers, and likewiſe of the Houſe of Commons liable to the Law for Payment of all Debts.

Referred to a Committee to conſider of a way to take away all Appeals to the Lords, and to diſcharge all Perſons committed by them, in relation thereunto, and how the Peers may be elected Burgeſſes, and Knights to ſerve in the Houſe of Commons.

Debate what Government to ſet up in England and Ireland, and whether Kingſhip ſhould be aboliſhed or not.

Divers Sheriffs made Scruple of acting in their Office, becauſe of the Death of the King; Order for Inſtructions to be drawn up therein.

Order for Sergeant Bradſhaw to make a Deputy in Guildhall, where he is Judge, in regard of his Employment in the High Court.

The Accounts allowed of the Charges of the King's Trial.

Ireland.

Letters that the Iriſh Pirates take divers Veſſels at Sea from the Engliſh; and that the ſeveral Parties in Ireland are agreed to carry on the Deſigns of the Prince of Wales.

It was put upon me to draw an Act to take away the Houſe of Lords, wherein I deſired to have been excuſed in regard I was not in the Houſe when the Vote paſſed, and had declared my Opinion againſt it, but I could not get excuſed.

Debate.

7. Debate whether the Government by Kings ſhould be aboliſhed, and upon the Queſtion whether it ſhould be referred to a grand Committee of the whole Houſe, it was carried in the Negative.

Then after a long and quick Debate, they paſſed this Vote:

Vote.

Reſolved upon the Queſtion by the Commons of England in Parliament aſſembled, That it hath been found by Experience, and this Houſe doth declare, that the Office of a King in this Nation, and to have the Power thereof in any ſingle Perſon, is unneceſſary, burthenſome and dangerous to the Liberty, Safety, and publick Intereſt of the People of this Nation, and therefore to be aboliſhed, and that an Act be brought in to that purpoſe.

Council of State.

A Committee appointed to bring in Names of Perſons, not exceeding forty to be a Council of State.

Inſtructions paſſed for drawing new Commiſſions for the Judges, the new Great Seal being ready.

Commiſſions.

The Judges appointed to meet with the Speaker, and a Committee of the Houſe about the Judges Commiſſions.

Anno 1648. The High Court of Juſtice ſat, receiving Witneſſes and preparing the Charges againſt the five Perſons to be tried.

The Earl of Holland ſent up by Poſt, that he was dangerouſly ſick at Warwick Caſtle.

The Corps of the late King was removed from St. James's to Windſor, to be interred in St. George's Chapel there, and Monies allowed for it.

Great Seal. An Act appointed to be brought in to make Sir Thomas Widdrington and me Commiſſioners of the new Great Seal, with a Blank for others to be added.

Judges. 8. Inſtructions paſſed for Commiſſions to the Judges, of whom ſix agreed to hold, viz. Rolles, Jermyn, St. John, Pheaſant, Wilde, and Yates, provided that by Act of the Commons the fundamental Laws be not aboliſhed.

The other ſix Judges, viz. Bacon, Browne, Bedingfield, Creſwell, Trevor, and Atkins, were not ſatisfied to hold.

Order for altering the Judges Oaths, formerly in the Name of the King, now to be in the People.

A Committee appointed to bring in a Liſt of fit Perſons to be Juſtices of Peace in every County.

Inſtructions paſſed for Rewards to ſuch as ſhall bring in any of the revolted Ships.

The Duke of Richmond and others had Leave to attend the late King's Funeral at Windſor.

Great Seal. I attended all Day in the Houſe, whither Sir Thomas Widdrington and I, without the Lords who were in Commiſſion with us, yet having an Act of the Houſe of Commons for it, went with the old Great Seal to the Houſe.

Mr. Malbon, the uſual Seal-Bearer, carried it to the Door, where Widdrington and I took the Purſe and Seal in it, and both of us holding it, brought it in ſolemnly into the Houſe, all the Members being ſilent, and laid it down upon the Table in the Houſe.

Then the Houſe paſt an Act for the old Seal to be broken, and a Workman was brought into the Houſe with his Tools, who in the face of the Houſe, upon the Floor, brake the old Seal in Pieces, and the Houſe gave to Widdrington and me the Pieces and Purſe of the old Seal.

After this the Houſe paſſed another Act, for eſtabliſhing the new Great Seal, to be the Great Seal of England.

Widdrington. Then they read another Act to conſtitute Sir Thomas Widdrington and me to be Commiſſioners of the new Great Seal, which occaſioned Sir Thomas Widdrington to ſtand up, and excuſe himſelf very earneſtly, becauſe of his Unhealthfulneſs; but that Excuſe would not be allowed.

Then he further excuſed himſelf by reaſon of ſome Scruples in Conſcience, which he had concerning the acting in this high Place, though he did acknowledge the Authority and ſubmit to it, and had acted by virtue of it, in ſigning a Warrant for a Writ to adjourn the Term, and bringing in the new Great Seal without the Lords Commiſſioners.

Upon a long Debate the Houſe did excuſe Widdrington, and to manifeſt their Reſpects for his former Services, and that they took no notice of his ſcrupling their Authority, they ordered that he ſhould practiſe within the Bar, and gave him a Quarter's Wages more than was due to him.

White-locke. My Name was next in the Act, and I was to declare myſelf, whether I would accept of this Employment or not; this Point I had conſidered with as much Serioufneſs as I could; which the Matter required, and I had often adviſed with my Friends about it, being before hand acquainted that I ſhould be named for one of the Commiſſioners. Febr.

The moſt conſiderable Particulars were, that I was already very deeply engaged with this Party, that the Buſineſs to be undertaken by me was the Execution of Law and Juſtice, without which Men could not live one by another; a thing of abſolute Neceſſity to be done.

Yet many Objections were made againſt my Acceptance of this Place, which being mentioned by me in my Speech to the Houſe to be excuſed, for Information of thoſe Paſſages I have thought fit here to inſert that Speech as near as I could remember it.

Mr. Speaker.

'I AM now to declare my ſelf whether I will 'accept or refuſe the higheſt Place of or-'dinary Judicature in the Kingdom, to which 'your Favour and good Opinion hath been plea-'ſed to name me.

'I ſhall plainly lay before you the Motives 'that occur to me, both for the Acceptance, 'and Refuſal of it, and my humble Suit upon 'them, and I ſhall ſubmit all to your Pleaſure 'and Judgment.

'The Motives I ſhall confine my ſelf unto, 'are four of either Sort.

1. 'For my Acceptance of it, may be the 'Honour of the Service, the Greatneſs of 'the Place, which may ſway much with ſome 'others, but not with me, whoſe Ambition is 'of a lower Stature.

'I never affected great Places, it is ſufficient 'Honour to me, to be a Member of this honoura-'ble Houſe, I deſire no further Honour, and if 'Honour be in honorante, good Actions will 'render a Man more honourable than the Cere-'monies and Pageantry of high Places, which 'may take with ſome gayer Spirits more than 'it doth with me.

2. 'The ſecond Motive for Acceptance is the 'Profit of the Place, and that is very conſidera-'ble with moſt Men; I bleſs God he hath gi-'ven me Means convenient for me, and I hope 'he will bleſs that to me, and keep me from 'waſting that which muſt be a Proviſion for 'many Children.

'And to me, Mr. Speaker, this is not ſo great 'a Motive as it may be to others, becauſe thoſe 'that know my Courſe can teſtify, that the 'Benefit of my Practice, was more than the 'Salary of this Office, though I acknowledge 'your Bounty to your Servants.

3. 'The third Motive is the Command which 'this great Officer hath over the Perſons and 'Fortunes of Men, which is a pleaſing thing, 'and much ſought after by Men in this World, 'the Spirit of Domination being natural to us.

'But Sir, in this I am of my Lord of St. Al-'bans Judgment, who holds that Men in great 'Places are ſo far from having Command, that 'they are very Slaves themſelves, Slaves to great 'Men, and Slaves to Buſineſs, and cannot com-'mand ſo much as their own time.

4. 'The fourth Motive is the End of the Ser-'vice, which is to do Right and Juſtice to Men, 'to relieve the Oppreſſed, to ſerve God, and to 'ſerve you and my Country, which will be done 'by a due Performance of the Duty of this 'Place.

'And

Anno 1648.

'And this to me, especially at this time, is 'the greatest and strongest Motive of all others.

'Yet give me leave, Sir, on the other side 'to lay before you, the Motives for my Refu- 'sal of this Employment, which in my humble 'Opinion do far over-balance the other.

1. 'The first of these Motives is the Trou- 'ble of the Place, which hath the greatest and 'most constant Labour in it of any other Place 'in England, this Shop of Justice must be al- 'ways open, nullus recedat à Cancellaria sine re- 'medio.

'The Business of the Chancery, is certainly 'more than of any other Court, the Trouble 'must needs be the greater, and the Burden the 'heavier, too heavy for me to bear.

'It is Trouble enough, and no easy Duty for 'one Man to attend the Service of this House, 'it is more than doubled by being a Commissi- 'oner of the Great Seal, whereof I have some 'Experience, and it hath brought me to be of 'the Poet's Opinion, Beatus ille qui procul negotiis, 'a Condition longed for by me.

2. 'The second Motive for my Refusal, is the 'Danger of this Employment, through the En- 'vy of Men, more in these times than others, 'and through the Importance of the Business, 'in the which as in War, non licet bis peccare.

'There will be Watchmen enough for one 'failing, and one Party almost in every Cause 'determined by him, will be ready to accuse and 'condemn him; no Man can sit in this Place 'but he must expose his Person and Fortune to 'no little Danger.

3. 'The third Motive is the Difficulty of 'this Employment, some will labour to conceal 'or obscure the Truth, as much as Eloquence, 'Learning, and Subtlety can invent; and it is 'hard to discern the clear Truth through these 'Shadows.

'The Judges of the common Law have cer- 'tain Rules to guide them; a Keeper of the 'Seals hath nothing but his own Conscience to 'direct him, and that is oftentimes deceitful.

'The Proceedings in Chancery are secundum 'arbitrium boni viri, and this arbitrium differeth 'as much in several Men, as their Countenances 'differ.

'That which is right in one Man's Eyes, is 'wrong in another's; nothing is more difficult 'than to satisfy in Judgment, and this leads me 'to the last and strongest Motive for my Re- 'fusal of this Employment, which is,

4. 'My Unfitness and Want of Ability to un- 'dergo it; I mention not my Want of Ability 'of Body, though this Place require much 'Pains, Labour, and continual Attendance, and 'my Health is not a little impaired, and my 'bodily Infirmities increased by my late Services, 'but I hold my self obliged to lay down my 'Life to serve you.

'I may more insist upon my Want of Abi- 'lities of Mind to perform this great Charge; 'and this is best known to my self, though I 'confess it hath been too much likewise dis- 'covered to you, both upon former Occasions, 'and at this present, and it were not fit to ho- 'nour me by this Place, and to dishonour your 'selves by my weak Execution of it.

'Perhaps it may be objected, that these are 'but Pretences, whereof you are the most pro- 'per Judges; I do acknowledge, that it will not 'become me to oppose my Judgment to yours, 'but I am most conscious to my self of my own 'Disabilities, and beg your Consideration of them.

'A greater Objection is, that if I decline this 'Service at this time, it will be a kind of dis- 'owning your Authority, as unwarrantable and 'illegal, and a giving of my Judgment against your 'Proceedings upon the present Alterations made 'by you. Febr.

'This, Sir, is far from me, and I suppose 'I have given my Testimony otherwise, in the 'Particulars mentioned by my worthy Col- 'legue that spake last, in which I have owned 'your Authority.

'And for a strict formal Pursuance of the or- 'dinary Rules of Law, it hath been hardly to be 'discerned in any of the late Proceedings on ei- 'ther side, in all our great and weighty Tran- 'sactions.

'Unavoidable Necessity hath put us upon 'those Courses, which otherwise perhaps we 'should not have taken.

'I am sure my sitting and acting here is ac- 'cording to the known Laws of England, and 'that my Protection at this time is only from 'you; therefore my Obedience is only due to 'you, and there is no other visible Authority in 'being but your selves.

'There are sufficient Reasons to justify an 'Obedience to your Authority, which truly, Sir, 'I do own, and not scruple at all as things 'now are, to act by that Authority.

'I only scruple my Undertaking this great 'Charge, knowing my own Want to perform it 'as I ought to do; this Place requires quick 'Apprehension, general Learning, and deep 'Judgment, all which are wanting in me; but 'I see many worthy Gentlemen within these 'Walls, of much greater Abilities, and more 'compleatly furnished for the Execution of this 'Charge than I am.

'My humble Motion therefore to you is, that 'you will be pleased to think of some Persons, 'more fit and worthy of this great Trust than 'I am, and to excuse me from being one of 'your Commissioners for the Great Seal of Eng- 'land, which is a Place too high for me.'

The House would not allow of my Excuse, but after a little Debate, the Question was put, and it was voted nemine contradicente, that I should be one of the Commissioners for the Great Seal.

Then Mr. John L'Isle was named to be ano- Commissi- oners of the Great Seal. ther of the Commissioners, and after a short, and no eager Excuse made by him, and his high own- ing of their Authority (which he had sufficient- ly done before, as one of the High Court of Justice for Trial of the King) Mr. L'Isle was voted to be another of the Commissioners for the Great Seal.

Lastly Mr. Sergeant Keeble was named to be the third Commissioner of the Great Seal, and two of us of the Quorum.

Upon Debate, the time for our being Com- missioners was voted to be, quamdiu se bene gesserint.

The Title held some Debate, whether we Style. should be styled Commissioners, or Lords Commissi- oners, and though the Word Lords was less ac- ceptable at this Time than formerly, yet that they might not seem to lessen their own Autho- rity, nor the Honour of their Officers, consti- tuted by them; they voted the Title to be Lords Commissioners; and the Act was passed presently in these Words.

'An Act of the Commons assembled in Parlia- 'ment for committing the Great Seal of Eng- 'land into the Hands and Custody of Com- 'missioners.

Anno 1648. ‘ Be it enacted by this preſent Parliament and ‘ the Authority of the ſame, that the Great Seal ‘ of England ſhall be committed to the keeping ‘ of Bulſtrode Whitelocke Sergeant at Law, Ri‘ chard Keeble Sergeant at Law, and John L'Iſle, ‘ Eſq; who are hereby appointed Lords Com‘ miſſioners for that purpoſe, quamdiu ſe bene ‘ geſſerint, which ſaid Perſons are hereby conſti‘ tuted and appointed to be Lords Commiſ‘ ſioners for the Cuſtody of the Great Seal of ‘ England during the time aforeſaid, and they or ‘ any two of them, ſhall have, and are hereby ‘ authorized to have the cuſtody, keeping, or‘ dering and diſpoſing thereof, as alſo all ſuch ‘ and the like Powers and Authorities, as any ‘ Lord Chancellor, Lord Keeper, or Commiſ‘ ſioners of the Great Seal of England for the ‘ time being, have lawfully had and uſed, or ‘ ought to have had or uſed.

Hen. Scobell, Cleric. Parliamenti.

Sergeant Keeble was ſent for, and we three being commanded by the Houſe to come up to the Table, I went in the middle, Sergeant Keeble on my right Hand, and Mr. L'Iſle on my left Hand; there the Speaker gave us our Oaths, Well and truly to execute the Place of Commiſſioners for the Seal, and then he delivered the new Great Seal to us.

We put up the Seal in the Purſe, and with the uſual Ceremonies and Reverence, we brought it out of the Houſe, and went into the Queen's Court, where we ſealed it up with our Seals, and went our ſelves to ſee it locked up in the Tower in Mr. Browne's Houſe, where it was uſually laid before.

Juſtices of the Peace. 9. Many Juſtices of the Peace ſcrupling to act, becauſe their Commiſſioners were in the Name of the King, a Committee was appointed to conſider of another Form for them, and that they might be commanded to act in the Name of the Parliament.

The Houſe confirmed the Election of the Lord General and Colonel Rich to be Burgeſſes for Cirenceſter, and to admit them Members.

Judges. This being the firſt Day of the Term, the ſix Judges who were inclined to hold their Places, were as yet much unſatisfied, becauſe the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy were ſtill continued, and becauſe the Houſe had not declared that the fundamental Laws ſhould be continued, and the Judges to adminiſter Juſtice accordingly.

We debated theſe Matters together, and in Concluſion came to this Reſult, that if the Houſe would paſs ſuch a Declaration, repeal the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy, and alter the Oath of a Judge, that then they would preſently ſit in their Places.

I told them, it would be hard to procure all this to be done in the Houſe, ſo ſoon as that they might ſit in the ſeveral Courts this Morning, and if they ſhould not ſit this firſt Day of the Term, it would be ſome Interruption to the Courſe of Juſtice, and reflect upon the Parliament.

I intreated the Judges to draw the Declaration themſelves, as they deſired the Houſe ſhould paſs it, which they did preſently and Mr. L'Iſle and I went into the Houſe, and acquainted them with the Conſequence of the Buſineſs which they tendred to them, to be forthwith paſſed, to enable the ſix Judges to ſit in Court this Morning.

Vote. The Houſe were ſo ſenſible of the Reaſonableneſs, and Fitneſs to give a ſpeedy Diſpatch to this Buſineſs, that they laid aſide all other, and ſoon voted, That the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy ſhould be null and void, made a ſatisfactory Alteration of the Oath of a Judge, and paſſed the Declaration drawn by the Judges. Febr.

They were ſatisfied herewith, and the Commiſſioners preſently ſealed their Patents, and gave them the new Oath of Judges, then they went and ſat in their ſeveral Courts, and the Commiſſioners of the Seal ſat in Chancery.

We cauſed the Declaration to be read, and ſpake to the Auditory concerning the Buſineſs, to give them Satisfaction, and to ſettle their Minds; this we took Occaſion to do in our Speeches to the Judges, and therein 'tis believed we did ſome Service for the Parliament.

Upon the Deſire of the Committee for the Revenue, the Lord General granted his Warrant to all Officers and Soldiers to ſuppreſs the cutting down and deſtroying of Timber, and killing of Deer in any of the publick Foreſts, Chaces, or Parks, and that if any do it, a Troop of Horſe ſhall be quartered on that Place to prevent the like. Timber.

10. Orders for ſettling the Dutchy Seal and about ſome private Affairs.

Letters from Scotland of their threatning Revenge for the King's Blood, that ſome there proclaimed Prince Charles King of Scotland, which was not contradicted by the Parliament nor Kirk there. Scotland.

The High Court of Juſtice ſat in Weſtminſter-Hall, about fifty of the Members preſent; the Earl of Cambridge, Lord Goring, Lord Capel, and Sir John Owen were brought before them, and the Preſident made a Speech to them of the Occaſion of their coming thither, to trial for Treaſon and other high Crimes; after which, they were all commanded to withdraw except the Earl of Cambridge. H. C. of Juſtice.

Then Mr. Steele Attorney General for the Commonwealth, ſet forth the notorioufneſs of the Facts of the Priſoner at the Bar, by his invading the Kingdom, committing many Murders, and Rapines, and all under pretence of the Covenant; that as the War was called Hypocritarium bellum, ſo he might be called Hypocritarius Princeps. He deſired the Charge might be read, and that the Earl might make anſwer to it.

After the Charge read, the Earl of Cambridge pleaded, that he was of another Nation, and what he did, was as a Servant to that Kingdom, and not as a Contriver of it, neither was he ever naturalized Earl of Cambridge that he knew of, that he was a Priſoner of War, and had Articles given him.

The Court cauſed the Act to be read for Naturalization of his Father, and conſequently of him, being his Heir.

The Lord Goring was next brought to the Bar, and his Charge being read to him, he pleaded not guilty, and was diſmiſſed, behaving himſelf with great Reſpect to the Court.

The Lord Capel pleaded, That he was a Priſoner to the Lord General, and had Conditions given him, and his Life promiſed him, that if all the Magiſtrates in Chriſtendom were combined together, they could not call him in queſtion.

He never minded nor looked upon the Court, but upon the People on all ſides, and with an auſtere Countenance.

Sir John Owen pleaded not guilty.

The next day the Earl of Cambridge being brought to the Bar, Mr. Steele moved, that he might anſwer his Charge, which the Preſident required him to do.

The Earl deſired time to put things into a Method, and that he might ſend to Major General neral Lambert, by whom he had Articles given, and to Scotland from whence he received his Commiſſion.

Anno 1648.

The Court gave him two days to anſwer, and upon his Motion for Counſel, he had Liberty to name them, which he ſaid he could not, not knowing any one Counſellor in England.

The Lord Capel brought in and demanded to plead in chief to his Charge, did again inſiſt upon the Articles of Colcheſter, whereby he ſaid, he had fair Quarter given him, and that all the Gowns in the World had nothing to do with him.

Sir Thomas Widdrington moved before us.

12. Orders appointing the ſeveral Judges to go the Circuits this Lent, and for compleating the number of Judges in the ſeveral Courts, and voted that the King's-Bench Court ſhould be called the Upper Bench.

Upper Bench.

New Oath.

An Act paſſed for ſome Amendments in their Commiſſions, and for a new Oath to be given them, well and truly to ſerve the Commonwealth in the Office of a Juſtice of the Upper Bench, &c. according to the beſt of their Skill and Knowledge.

Earl of Holland.

A Certificate of the Doctor and Apothecary of the Earl of Holland, that he could not with Safety of his Life be removed up to London; and a Petition of his Lady for Favour to him, referr'd to the High Court of Juſtice to ſend for him if they ſhould think fit.

Navy.

Colonel Dean, Colonel Popham and Colonel Blake added to the Commiſſioners of the Navy.

New Oaths.

An Act for a new Oath to be taken by every Freeman in London, and in all other Corporations, and for repealing the Statutes 1 Eliz. and 3 Jac. of the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy.

Scotland.

Letters from Edinburgh, that Prince Charles was proclaimed King of Scotland, by conſent of the Parliament there, with Solemnity, and agreed that one Earl, one Baron, one Burgeſs, and one Divine be ſent to invite him thither.

The late King's Body was interr'd at Windſor Caſtle, but the Common-Prayer not permitted to be uſed at his Burial.

The laſt Day of the Term the Commiſſioners ſat till two a-Clock, hearing Motions; then we roſe, and gave the new Oath, and ſealed new Patents to the ſeveral Judges according to the new Act.

13. All private Buſineſs put off for ſeven days.

Order for a new Stamp for Coin.

Council of State.

Debate touching Power and Inſtructions to be given to a Council of State, and referr'd to a Committee to bring in Names.

An Act read for Sale of Deans and Chapters Lands.

High Court of Juſtice.

The High Court of Juſtice ſat, and the Lord Capel being brought into the Court, the Attorney General moved, that the Priſoner might make good his Plea.

Ld. Capel.

The Preſident told the Lord Capel, that he had put in a Plea concerning Articles, for Proof whereof, the Lord General was by order of the Court there preſent; that he had Liberty to ask any thing of him, if not, then the Council of the Commonwealth were to offer what they could in proof of it.

Then the Attorney General went on, and produced the General's Letter to the Parliament, upon the Rendition of Colcheſter, and the Articles and the Explanation of them, whereby, and upon the Teſtimony of the Lord General and General Ireton, Colonel Whaley and Colonel Barkſted, all preſent by order of the Court, it appeared,

That the Lord Capel was to have fair Quarter for his Life, which was explained to be, a Freedom from any Execution of the Sword, but not any Protection from the judicial Proceedings of a Civil Court; and Mercy, was explained to be only from the promiſcuous Execution of the Sword, but that he might be tried by a Council of War. Febr.

But of this Learning, I hope none of this Nation will have uſe hereafter.

It was clearly proved that the Articles were only to free him from the preſent Power of the Sword to take away his Life, and Colonel Berkſted ſwore, that he told him, the Day after the Articles, that he believed the Parliament would proceed againſt them that were taken at Colcheſter, as Traitors.

The Council moved for Judgment againſt the Lord Capel, that he ſhould be hanged, drawn, and quartered, at which he ſeemed to ſtartle; and after a ſhort Speech to the Court, he concluded, that however he was dealt with here, he hoped for a better Reſurrection hereafter.

Then the Earl of Cambridge was brought to the Bar, and required to make good his Plea, he thanked the Court for the time they had given, which he ſaid was ſo ſhort, that he could not be provided. Hamilton.

Upon his deſire there were aſſigned to him for Council, Mr. Chute, Mr. Hales, Mr. Parſons, and Dr. Walker.

He deſired leave to ſend to Scotland, and further time; it was anſwered, That it was for Priſoners to prepare their Proofs againſt the Trial, he having been in Priſon ſo long; he replied, that during his ſix Months Impriſonment, he never ſent about any private Buſineſs but only to get Monies to maintain him, and prayed the Mercy of the Court, that if they would ſpare him, he might be uſeful; and that he was ſorry for what he had done. He had two days time longer given to him to prepare for his Defence.

The Burthen of the Buſineſs of Chancery lay heavy upon me, being antient in Commiſſion, and my Brother Keeble of little Experience in Practice, my Brother Liſle of leſs, but very opinionative.

14. Vote for thirty eight Perſons to be of the Council of State, viz. Earls of Denbigh, Mulgrave, Pembroke, Salisbury, Lord Gray, Fairfax, General Grey of Groby, Lord L'Iſle, Rolles, St. John, Wilde, Bradſhaw, Cromwell, Skippon, Pickering, Maſſam, Haſelrigge, Harrington, Vane junior, Danvers, Armine, Mildmay, Conſtable, Pennington, Wilſon, Whitelocke, Martin, Ludlow, Stapeley, Hevening ham, Wallop, Hutchinſon, Bond, Al. Popham, Valentine, Walton, Scot, Purefoy, Jones.

Their Powers were,

1. To command and ſettle the Militia of England and Ireland.

2. To ſet forth ſuch a Navy as they ſhould think fit.

3. To appoint Magazines and Stores, and to diſpoſe them, &c.

4. To ſit and execute the Powers given them, for a Year.

Inſtructions paſſed for altering Patents of Sheriffs, and their Oath, and a Liſt of all the Juſtices of Peace brought into the Houſe.

Major General Middleton who was upon his Parole at Berwick brake his Word, and went to Scotland.

15. An Act paſſed touching the Accounts of Sheriffs.

Debate upon the Act for Sale of Deans and Chapters Lands.

The High Court of Juſtice ſat, and the Earl of Cambridge moved the Court for further Time, and new Council, in regard that thoſe formerly aſſigned to him for Council, refuſed to plead for him, which was granted to him. Hamilton.

In

Anno 1648. In the Houſe, were the Dutch Ambaſſadors in Perſon, to receive the Anſwer to their Papers and Addreſſes.

Dutch Ambaſſadors. 16. Ceremonies upon the Dutch Ambaſſadors going away.

Some Sheriffs nominated.

Order for Monies for the Judges going their Circuits.

Lord Goring. The High Court of Juſtice ſat, and the Lord Goring was brought to the Bar, Mr. Coke Sollicitor General ſet forth the heinouſneſs of his Crimes at Colcheſter, in Kent, Eſſex, &c.

He ſaid he could not deny the matter of fact, in much of them, but ſhould clear himſelf of ſome Particulars.

Divers Witneſſes were produced vivâ voce, who proved the Death of ſeveral of the Parliament Party before Colcheſter, the ſhooting of poiſoned Bullets boiled in Copperas from the Town, the cruel Uſage of the Priſoners in Colcheſter, the Lord Goring's reviling them, calling them rebellious Rogues, the burning of ſix hundred Houſes at Colcheſter, and many other Particulars.

The Lord Goring by way of Defence made a Narrative of his Proceedings ſince his laſt coming into England, acknowledged his receiving a Commiſſion from the Prince, and his giving Commiſſions to others.

That what he did was out of a good intention for Peace and Accommodation; that Treaſon not being in the Intention, he could not be guilty of it; that he intended not to raiſe Forces againſt the Parliament, he pleaded his Peerage, and the Articles of Colcheſter, by which Quarter was given him.

To this the Council for the Commonwealth replied, that a Man's Actions did beſt expound his Intentions; that the Lord Goring's Actions ſpake him guilty of Murder, Treaſon, &c. that to his Peerage, the Power by which the Court ſat was an Anſwer.

That for the Articles of Colcheſter, though he had at firſt waved them, by pleading not guilty, yet he ſhould have as full a Benefit of them as the Lord Capel, who had largely pleaded for them.

Sir John Owen. Againſt Sir John Owen, Witneſſes teſtified the Death of the High Sheriff of Caernarvan and others; Sir John alledged that what he did, was to free himſelf from Violence and Plunder, but it was proved that he was in the firſt War, had the Articles of Conway, upon which he was admitted to compound, took the Covenant and Negative Oath, and yet engaged a ſecond time.

The Earl of Holland was removed from Warwick Caſtle to London.

17. A Declaration paſſed in anſwer to the Scots Papers, and was ordered to be deliver'd to their Commiſſioners, and to be printed and publiſhed.

Order to allow one thouſand Pounds per Annum Salary to each of the Commiſſioners of the Seal.

Order for the Council of State to ſit, and the Members that deſired it to have Lodgings in Whitehall.

Seals. Vote for two Seals for the Committee of Eſtates, engraven with the Arms of England and Ireland, and this Inſcription, The Committee of Eſtates appointed by Parliament.

Order for the General and Colonel Rich to ſit in the Houſe as Burgeſſes elected for Cirenceſter.

The Speaker acquainted the Houſe with a Letter he received from the Prince Elector, of his Intentions to return to his own Country, with ſome Acknowledgment of Thanks for Favours to him, appointed to be read on Monday next.

The High Court of Juſtice ſat, and Witneſſes proved the Eſcape of the Lord Capel out of the Tower, he pleaded that he did not eſcape as he was a Priſoner of War, but as he was ſent to the Tower in another Condition. Febr. Ld. Capel.

The Earl of Cambridge urged, that the Council aſſigned to him, were not ready for want of longer Time, and held it not proper for them to plead in matter of Law till the Fact were firſt proved. Hamilton.

The Court declared that he had been often moved to make his Defence; whereupon he proceeded in it, produced his Commiſſions from the Parliament to command all the Forces of that Kingdom, and the Order of the Committee of Eſtates there for him to advance into England, then the large Declaration from Scotland.

He pleaded the Ends thereof, being for his Majeſty's Honour, the ſettling of Religion and the Covenant; he alſo pleaded the Articles agreed unto by Major General Lambert, when he yielded himſelf Priſoner to him, whereby he was aſſured by him of Quarter, and Life, to prove which he produced the Lord Grey, Colonel Lilburn, and Mr. Peters for Witneſſes.

Concerning the Point of Naturalization, he pleaded, that his Father being naturalized, could not make him a Subject of England, no more than the Son of an Engliſhman, born in any foreign Parts was intituled thereby to any Inheritance here; that he had a Petition and Bill prepared for his Naturalization, but it paſſed not.

Colonel Whichcot the Governor, and the Marſhal of Windſor Caſtle proved the Earl's Eſcape, after he had paſſed his Word to the Governor to be a true Priſoner: The Earl earneſtly deny'd this, and offer'd upon it a Challenge to the Governor were he not in his preſent Capacity; but it was left to the Judgment of the Court.

Many came daily to me upon the Buſineſſes they had in Chancery; but I gave them all one Anſwer, that I ſhould hear their Buſineſs in the Court, with Patience, and according to the beſt of my Judgment I ſhould do them right, impartially.

19. The Letter from the Prince Elector was read, of the Grounds of his Return to his own Country, returning humble Thanks for the Favour of the Parliament to him, deſiring the Continuance of his Stipend, and the Arrears of it to be paid. Prince Elector.

The Houſe ordered the Arrears to be paid him, and the Speaker to give him a Paſs for himſelf and his Attendants forty Horſes, but none other to go over with him.

Report by Lieutenant General Cromwell from the Committee of Eſtates, that according to the Order of the Houſe, nineteen of the Committee had ſubſcribed for approving the King's Execution, but that two and twenty of the Committee, whereof I was one, had refuſed:

Not but that they confeſſed (except one) the Commons in Parliament to be the ſupreme Power of the Nation, and that they would live and die with them, in what they ſhould do for the future.

But they could not confirm what they had done in relation to the King and Lords: This Report was committed.

Debate about diſbanding the Kentiſh Forces, and referr'd to a Committee, to examine the publiſhing of Papers to proclaim the Prince to be King.

The High Court of Juſtice ſat, and Witneſſes proved, that the Earl of Cambridge was Priſoner to the Lord Grey, before the Articles with Major General Lambert were concluded. Hamilton.

Letters

Anno 1648. Letters produced, ſigned with his own Hand to Sir Marmaduke Langdale, touching the carrying on of the Deſign in England, and Paſſages touching his Friends in Colcheſter.

Proved alſo that he was called by the late King's Writ to ſit in Parliament in the Lords Houſe, by the Name of Earl of Cambridge, and appeared as Earl of Cambridge, and acted as a Peer of England, ſitting in the Lords Houſe, and in divers Committees.

That as a Peer of England he took the National Covenant, and ſubſcribed to it [Cambridge] in the Houſe of Peers, and took the Negative Oath, before the Commiſſioners of the Great Seal, as a Peer of England.

Scotland. Letters from Scotland, that Sir Joſeph Douglas was choſen by their Parliament, to go to their new proclaimed King to acquaint him with what the Parliament had done, and to deſire him to take heed of evil Counſellors.

That they are putting the Kingdom into a Poſture of Defence, Colonels choſen in all the Shires, and every fourth Man to be arrayed and trained.

Pontefract Letters from Pontefract, that one Beaumont a Prieſt was executed, not for matter of Religion, but for correſponding with the Garriſon in Characters, and he choſe to die, rather than to diſcover the Characters.

Teſt. At the Council of State, they were all demanded to ſubſcribe the Teſt, appointed by Parliament, for approving all that was done concerning the King and Kingſhip, and for taking away the Houſe of Lords, and againſt the Scots Invaſion, &c.

All the Lords, and divers other Members of the Council, refuſed to ſubſcribe this Teſt, the General deſired to be ſpared for what was paſt, as to ſubſcribing; but he and the reſt of the Refuſers affirmed, that for the future, if the Parliament thought them worthy to be imployed, they would join with them, and faithfully ſerve them.

Scruples. Many of the Commons, Refuſers to ſign it as it then was, made divers Scruples, ſome to one part of it, ſome to another.

I ſcrupled that part of approving the Proceedings of the High Court of Juſtice, becauſe he was not privy to them, nor did know what they were in particular, nor ever heard any Report of them made to the Houſe; and not knowing what they were, I could not ſign that Paper, to approve of them, the like was ſaid by divers others.

20. Offer for Merchants approved, to ſend out Ships at their own Charge in the next Summer's Fleet.

Order for three thouſand Pounds for the maimed Soldiers, and for Sale of the Crown-Jewels, Hangings, and Goods to raiſe Money for the Navy.

An Act for the Commons to call Common-Councils in London.

Debate about the Act for Sale of Deans and Chapters Lands.

We ſwore Mr. Tomlyns the Curſitor Baron and gave him a Patent after the new Style.

21. Letters directed from the Houſe to the Judges in their Circuits, to give Order for due Payment of the Exciſe, and that all Rioters againſt it be puniſhed.

Earl of Warwick. Upon a Report from the Council of State, an Act paſſed, for repealing the Commiſſion to the Earl of Warwick as Lord Admiral, and an Act ordered to be brought in, giving Power to the Commiſſioners of the Navy to command the Fleet, as the Lord Admiral had done.

An Act paſſed for the Company of Weavers in London.

The Hart Frigat revolted to the Prince, the Sea-men ſet the Captain on Shore, the Prince was courted at the Hague as King, but not by the States publickly. Febr.

The High Court of Juſtice ſat, and their Order was read to the Lord Capel, that they would hear what he could ſay this Day, and then proceed to Judgment. Lord Capel.

He ſaid, He was to be comprehended wholly in the Martial Law, and urged the Articles again, which excepted Trial after by Parliament; that divers that were in Colcheſter in his condition, had compounded.

That breaking Priſon for Treaſon by Common Law was but Felony, and Benefit of Clergy might be had: at laſt when he could not get the Reſolution of the Court, to be referred to a Trial by Martial Law,

He moved, That he might not be barred of additional Defence, and that if he muſt be judged by the Common Law, he hoped he might have the full Benefit of it.

He urged for it, the late Act, which ſaith, Though King and Lords be laid aſide, yet the fundamental Laws ſhall be in force.

He recommended to the Court Magna Charta, and the Petition of Right, and preſt the Conſideration of the Act made in favour of thoſe who aſſiſted King Henry 7. and the Exception in the Acts touching the Lord Strafford, and Canterbury, that they ſhould not be drawn in Precedent.

He deſired to ſee his Jury, and that they might ſee him, and to be tried by his Peers, and ſaid, he believed, that a Precedent could not be given, of a Subject tried for his Life, but either by Bill in Parliament, or by a Jury.

Witneſſes were heard againſt the Earl of Cambridge.

22. Debate about the Buſineſs of the Navy, and to encourage the Sea-men.

Order that the Council of State take care for preſerving the Library, Medals, and Statues at St. James's.

An Expedient aſſented unto, for the Members of the Council of State, that they ſhould ſubſcribe the Teſt to approve of what ſhall be done by the Commons in Parliament the ſupreme Authority of this Nation, but nothing of confirming what was paſt. Expedient.

Referred to the Council of State to take care for the preſerving of Timber for the Navy.

The Earl of Cambridge brought before the High Court, produced his Witneſſes, ſome of whom were diſallowed, being Officers under him, and ſo Participes Criminis. Hamilton.

He pleaded, that he had not broken the Negative Oath, for he had not engaged againſt the Parliament, but for the Ends in the Scots Declaration.

His Council moved that they might with the Council of the Commonwealth, ſtate the Caſe of the Earl, but this was denied, being in caſe of Treaſon; and that the Earl's Council could only declare their Opinions in point of Law. Upon the Earl's Deſire, he had farther time granted him.

The Council of the Army ordered ſome to prepare a Draught of ſuch things as might be preſented by them to the Parliament for the taking away of free Quarter, and for Proviſion of things due to the Army. Army.

They ordered alſo a Proclamation to be drawn up, againſt private Meetings of Officers, or Soldiers to the diſturbance of the Army; but the right of petitioning not to be hindred, provided it be orderly, firſt acquainting their Officers.

Some Officers were appointed to think of a way, for puniſhing thoſe that ſhall endeavour to breed any

Anno 1648. any Diſcontent in the Army, who are not of the Army.

23. An Act touching Sequeſtrations in South-Wales, and in favour of the poorer ſort there; the Houſe accepted of a Sum in groſs from the Delinquents there, except ſome Perſons.

Vote. Many Members having abſented themſelves till the late Storms were over, the Houſe ordered, That none who have been abſent, ſince 31 December laſt, except Military Officers, ſhould be re-admitted till farther Order.

Order that the Houſe do adjourn three Days in every Week, and Committees to meet daily.

Debate how the publick Revenue might be brought all into one Receipt, and referred to a Committee.

The General publiſhed a Proclamation againſt taking free Quarter by ſome, not of the Army, and by his Soldiers, without a commiſſioned Officer.

Earl of Holland. The Earl of Holland being extreme ill, as was depoſed by his Phyſician, was appointed a farther Day to be brought before the High Court.

24. Debate of advancing Money, and eaſing the People of Taxes, they appointed a Committee to conſider of all Parks, Foreſts, Woods, &c. belonging to the King, &c.

Navy. Allowance of three Pounds a Day to the Commiſſioners of the Navy, and that the Mariners ſhall have ſo much for every Gun they ſhall take from any of the revolted Ships.

Cromwell From the Council of State Cromwell and his Son Ireton went home with me to Supper; where they were very chearful, and ſeemed extremely well pleaſed; we diſcourſed together till twelve a-clock at Night, and they told me wonderful Obſervations of God's Providence, in the Affairs of the War, and in the Buſineſs of the Army's coming to London, and ſeizing the Members of the Houſe, in all which were miraculous Paſſages.

As they went home from my Houſe, their Coach was ſtopped, and they examined by the Guards, to whom they told their Names, but the Captain of the Guards would not believe them, and threatned to carry theſe two great Officers to the Court of Guard.

Ireton grew a little angry, but Cromwell was chearful with the Soldiers, gave them twenty Shillings, and commended them and their Captain for doing their Duty. And they afterwards confeſſed that they knew Cromwell and Ireton well enough, and were more ſtrict with them than with others, that they might ſee they were careful of their Duty, which they believed theſe great Men came at this time purpoſely to obſerve.

Scots Paper. 26. The Speaker acquainted the Houſe with a Letter the Scots Commiſſioners ſent him, at their going away, which was without leave; the Letter was full of bitterneſs againſt the Parliament, and their late Proceedings againſt the King, the Houſe of Lords, and the ſecluded Members.

Declaration. The Houſe ordered Guards to be ſent privately to Graveſend, after the Scots Commiſſioners, to apprehend them; and paſſed a Declaration to this Effect,

That the Paper did contain much ſcandalous, and reproachful Matter, againſt the juſt Proceedings of this Parliament; and an aſſuming on the behalf of the Kingdom of Scotland, to have Power over the Laws and Government of this Nation, to the high diſhonour thereof.

And a Deſign in the Contrivers, and Subſcribers of it, to raiſe Sedition, and Grounds of a new and bloody War in this Land, and to ſecond their late perfidious Invaſion.

That all Perſons in England or Ireland, who ſhall join with or aſſiſt the ſaid Contrivers and Subſcribers upon the Grounds laid in that Paper, are Traitors and Rebels, and ſhall be proceeded againſt as Traitors and Rebels. Febr.

Order that a Duplicate of the Paper be ſent from this Parliament, to the Parliament and Kingdom of Scotland, to know whether they do, or will own, and juſtify this Paper, preſented in their Names to the Parliament of England

John Lilburn delivered a Paper to the Houſe, with the Hands of many of his Levellers to it, in the name of Addreſſes to the ſupreme Authority of England, &c. propounding ſeveral Alterations in the Agreement of the People; Lilburn.

As, that there be no Intervals of Parliament, or Council of State: That Parliaments be annual, and in the Intervals, to intruſt a Committee of their own Members; that in the Agreement, there be a reſerve from ever having any Kingly Government, and a Bar againſt reſtoring the Houſe of Lords.

That Tithes be quite taken away, the Exciſe, Cuſtoms, and Merchants Companies; that there be no Impriſonment of diſabled Men for Debts, and a Courſe to force all that are able to pay their Debts, and not to ſhelter themſelves in Priſon.

That Proviſion be made of Work, and comfortable Maintenance for all ſorts of poor, aged, and impotent People; a ſpeedy and leſs troubleſome way for deciding Controverſies in Law, with theſe Propoſals,

1. That they would not diſſolve the Houſe, till a new Repreſentative the next Day be ready to ſucceed.
2. To put in practice the Self-denying Ordinance.
3. That the ſame Perſons may not to be continued long in the higheſt Commands of Military Power.
4. That a Committee of the Houſe, may hear and conclude all Controverſies between Officers and Soldiers, and mitigate the Law Martial, and provide that it be not exerciſed upon Perſons not of the Army.
5. To open the Preſs for printing freely.
6. To abate the Charge of the Law, and the Stipends of Judges, and Officers, and to eaſe the Taxes.
7. Above all, to diſſolve the preſent Council of State, which ſo much doth threaten Tyranny; and to manage Affairs by Committees of ſhort continuance, to be often accountable for their Truſt.
8. To prohibit upon ſtrict Penalty, all Committees, Magiſtrates, and Officers from exceeding their Commiſſions, and to encourage Complaints againſt them.
9. To ſatisfy, as to Arrears of the Soldiers, and as to Accounts.
10. That the Ordinance for Tithes upon treble Damages may be taken away.

Another Petition of divers Officers and Soldiers of the Army, to the ſame Effect with the other; and that the Laws may be in our own Language; both referr'd to a Committee. Petition.

The High Court of Juſtice continued for a Week longer.

Letters from Dublin of the great Wants of Colonel Jones, and of the Conjunction of the Enemy.

The Council of the Earl of Cambridge were heard before the High Court of Juſtice, they pleaded that the Earl was no free Denizen, and though his Father was naturaliz'd, and his Heirs, yet he not being born in the Kingdom, could receive no Benefit thereof. Hamilton.

That if he had been a free Denizen; yet it was not prejudicial to him, becauſe he acted by Command and Authority of the Parliament of another Nation (and not of himſelf) who was govern'd by another diſtinct Law.

The Earl pleaded the Articles given him by Major General Lambert who had Power to do it,

and

Anno 1648. and ſecured him, by a Party of his Forces; that he was order'd to be baniſh'd by Parliament paying one hundred thouſand Pounds for his Delinquency.

27. The Houſe ſat not.

E. of Holland. The Earl of Holland was brought to the High Court, and the Charge of High Treaſon read againſt him, and aggravated by the Sollicitor General, that the Earl was an eminent Courtier, and probably did ill Offices, and perſwaded the King to go from the Parliament, and went afterwards himſelf to Oxford.

That he return'd from thence, had his Sequeſtration taken off; that he publiſhed a Declaration promiſing on the word of a Gentleman, and a Chriſtian, that he would ſtand by the Parliament, he took the Negative Oath, and the Covenant.

Yet the laſt Year he engaged, and probably contriv'd the Inſurrection, wherein the Duke of Bucks, and his Brother, and others were drawn in, and he boaſted that he ſhould ſhortly be twelve thouſand ſtrong, and maſter the Parliament, and reſtore the King.

The Earl pleaded, That his Fact was not Capital, but Criminal, that he had quarter given him, when he was taken at St. Needs, and that both Houſes had paſt an Order ſince for his Baniſhment; the which excuſed the Aggravations, eſpecially in his laſt Action.

Ireland. Letters that a Peace was confirmed by Articles, between Ormond, and the Catholick Party in Ireland, and a Proclamation by Ormond for all to obey it.

Scotland. Letters from Scotland, that the Meſſengers from their Parliament were come to the King; that the Scots Parliament made a Law that Adultery ſhould be puniſhed by Death.

I was High Steward and Keeper of the Park of Greenwich, which I reſigned to the Earl of Pembroke, in Exchange of the Manor, Walk and Lodge in the great Park of Windſor.

28. The Monthly Faſt.

Order for a Day of publick Humiliation throughout the Kingdom.

Faſts. A Committee appointed to bring in an Act to take away the Monthly Faſts, and to have Faſt-days ordered as there ſhall be particular Occaſion.

A Committee to draw up a new Oath inſtead of that of Supremacy to be taken by Papiſts.

Scots. The Scots Commiſſioners being apprehended at Graveſend, referred to the Council of State to ſend them to Scotland with a Guard by Land, and that they write a Letter to the Parliament of Scotland, of their late Carriage, and to know how far that Parliament will own the ſame.

London. An Act paſſed giving power to any ten of the Common-Council of London, to call a Court, and forty Members to be a Common-Council, in caſe the Lord Mayor and Aldermen refuſe.

Norwich. And Act paſt for diſabling the Malignant Magiſtracy of Norwich.

March 1648.

March 1. The Houſe ſat not.

The Council of State made ſeveral Orders in relation to the Navy, and that the Committee of the Army do certify to them the Arrears of the Army, and what Proceedings have been about ſettling their Debentures.

Upon a Petition of the Counteſs of Holland to the High Court and Proof of the Earl's being very ſick, the Court gave him farther time to anſwer.

The Council of the Army paſſed a Petition to preſent to the Houſe, and the General preſented to them a Letter ſubſcribed by eight Troopers of ſeveral Regiments, and delivered to him. March. Army.

The Effect of it, was to aſſert the Soldiers right to petition without their Officers conſent, and it was high againſt the Council of State, and High Court.

This was ill reſented by the Officers, and each of them preſent, by the Poll, diſavowed and diſapproved the Letter, as tending to divide and diſunite the Army; five of the eight Troopers were committed till they ſhould be cleared by a Court Martial.

[2.] Colonel Whaley, and divers other Officers of the Army, preſented a Letter from the General with a Petition from the General Council of the Army, to which the General concurred: Their deſires were, C. Whaley.

1. That Free-quarter be forthwith totally taken away. Petition.

2. For Proviſion for conſtant Pay of the Army.

3. For Receivers to account.

4. Abuſes of clipt Money to be redreſſed.

5. Soldiers Accounts to be ſtated, and Debentures given out.

6. Security for them by Deans and Chapters Lands, or otherwiſe.

7. For Satisfaction for Soldiers Horſes, ſlain or loſt in Fight.

8. For Maintenance for maimed Soldiers and Widows of Soldiers.

9. For Relief of Ireland.

10. For the Supply of the Iriſh Officers come from Inchequin, &c.

Order that theſe Matters be taken into conſideration, and Thanks returned to the Petitioners.

Referred to the Council of State to conſider what Forces are fit to be maintained in this Kingdom and in Ireland, and to bring in an Eſtimate, that the Houſe may make an Eſtabliſhment for all.

Order for Recruits of Horſe according to the Petition.

Referred to the Council of State to conſider what is fit for the Houſe to do at preſent, concerning Ireland.

Referred to a Committee to conſider of the Standard in the old Palace, and of taking it down and ſelling it. Standard.

Order for Sir George Aſcue, to command as Admiral of the Iriſh Seas, and for ſeveral others to be Commanders of Ships. Sir George Aſcue.

Order for two hundred Pounds for the Iriſh Officers.

An Act paſt concerning Sequeſtred Eſtates, in the Northern Counties to be ſold for the Eaſe of the People.

Referred to the Committee of the Army to remove the Obſtructions in ſtating the Soldiers Accounts.

An Act read and committed for bringing Receivers, &c. to account.

3. The Earl of Holland before the High Court pleaded the ſame Plea he had done before, of free Quarter given him, and Witneſſes were examined on both ſides, he deſired Council, but it was denied. Earl of Holland.

The Earl of Cambridge made an additional Defence, not much varying from what he had ſaid before, in Anſwer whereunto, the Council of the Commonwealth did ſpeak five or ſix Hours. Hamilton.

Four of the eight Troopers who preſented the Petition to the General, and General Council,

Anno 1648. were brought, and tried before the Court Martial, and the Paper delivered by them to the General was adjudged by the Court to be ſcandalous to the Parliament, the Council of State, the High Court of Juſtice, and tending to divide the Army.

Upon the fifth Article of War, againſt reproachful and ſcandalous Words and Actions, the Court Martial ſentenced theſe four Troopers, to ride the Horſe with their Faces to the Tail, their Swords to be broken over their Heads, and to be caſhiered the Army.

Charge. 5. Upon a Report from the Council of State, an Eſtimate was made by them of the Charge of all Forces in Field and Garriſon, in England and Ireland, to be one hundred and ſixty thouſand Pounds per menſem. Order for an Act to be brought in thereupon.

Vote. An Act paſſed, to impower the Commiſſioners of the Navy, to execute Martial Law.

An Act read to aboliſh Kingly Government.

Order for the Council of State to conſider of increaſe of Allowance for Encouragement to ſuch Officers of the Fleet, as ſhall deliver back their Charges without imbezzlement of the Stores, or other abuſes to the State.

Prince Elector. Referred to the Commiſſioners of the Admiralty to provide a Convoy and Ship of War, for the Prince Elector and his Retinue.

Sir John Pawlet's Compoſition at three thouſand ſeven hundred and ſixty Pounds allowed, and four thouſand and two hundred Pounds for the Lord Pawlet.

An Act for a new Seal for the Courts of Wales, and for Powell, Eltonhead, Parker and Clerk, to be Judges there.

Scotland. Letters from Scotland, that the Parliament reſolved to raiſe an Army of ſeventeen thouſand Foot and ſix thouſand Horſe againſt the Sectarian Army in England, in proſecution of the Covenant, they having a Report that an Army of Engliſh was upon their Borders.

That Colonel Monroe, and Colonel Fizen with a Party of Horſe and Foot in the Northern Parts of Scotland, having declared for King Charles II. taken Inverneſs, and increaſed to four thouſand; the Scots Parliament repealed their Votes of raiſing an Army againſt England, and ordered Forces againſt Monroe, and his Party.

Pontefract deſired a Treaty, and were full of Sickneſs in the Garriſon.

Standing Army. 6. Report from the Council of State of forty thouſand Horſe and Foot to be kept up in England and Ireland, whereof twelve thouſand for Ireland, their Pay to be eighty thouſand Pounds per menſem, and free Quarter to be taken off.

Mr. Cauton a London Miniſter in his Prayer before the Lord Mayor, having prayed for Charles II. as lawful King, referred to Mr. Steele and Mr. Coke, to proſecute him in the Upper Bench for Treaſon, upon the late Declaration

Letters of proclaiming King Charles II. in Guernſey Iſland by Sir George Carteret.

Letters from Holland, that the Miniſters there, in their Pulpits inveigh againſt the Proceedings in England, and pray for King Charles II.

Referred to the Council of State to conſider what is fit to be done herein, and to preſerve a good Correſpondence betwixt the two Nations.

Hamilton. The Earl of Cambridge brought before the High Court, and asked what he had farther to ſay, why Sentence ſhould not be pronounced againſt him, ſpake to the ſame Effect as formerly.

The Earl of Holland and Lord Goring, extenuated what they could their Offences, as being raſh, not much hurtful, &c.

The Lord Capel briefly repeated what he had formerly ſaid, and further obſerved an Ordinance of Parliament, That Quarter ſhould not be given to Iriſh Rebels for Life, which implied, that Quarter given to others ſhould be inviolable for Life. March.

Sir John Owen pleaded Quarter.

The Preſident in his Scarlet Robe ſpake many Hours, in anſwer to the ſeveral Pleas of the Priſoners, and at laſt Sentence was given againſt them all, that their Heads ſhould be ſevered from their Bodies, yet with relation to the Mercy of Parliament.

7. Referred to a Committee to draw up an Act, for taking off all Privilege from Noblemen, and to make their Perſons as liable to Law, as any Commoner.

An Act committed for taking away Kingly Government, and another for diſſolving the Houſe of Peers.

The Earl of Warwick, and the Counteſs of Holland preſented a Petition for the Life of the Earl of Holland, and divers Ladies for the others, againſt whom the High Court had pronounced Sentence of Death.

After ſome Hours Debate upon theſe Petitions, the Houſe reſolved upon the Queſtion, not to proceed any farther upon theſe Petitions but to leave them to the Juſtice of the Court that ſentenced them.

Then the Ladies petitioned the High Court, who only reprieved the Execution for two Days.

8. A new Form for electing Members of the Houſe aſſented to.

Order that the Council of State, nor Committees do not ſit after nine in the Morning, when the Houſe ſits.

Orders for ſeventy thouſand Pounds per menſem for the Forces in England, and thirty thouſand Pounds per menſem for the Forces in Ireland, and for an Act for eighty thouſand Pounds per menſem Aſſeſſment for the Forces; and free Quarter to be taken off.

New Petitions of the condemned Lords, and a Letter from the General touching their Articles; and after a long Debate, the Queſtion was put of them ſeverally, and voted, Votes.

That the Lord Capel ſhould not be reprieved. L. Capel.

And carried by one Vote that the Lord Goring ſhould be reprieved, this one Vote was the Speaker, who carried the Houſe being equally divided, four and twenty of each Part; and he ſaid he did it, becauſe he had formerly received ſome Civilities from the Lord Goring, and his ſingle Vote now ſaved his Life. L. Goring.

The Houſe was alſo divided upon the Queſtion, whether the Earl of Holland ſhould be reprieved or not, and the Speaker gave his Voice againſt him.

Thus the Lord Goring who had been no Friend to the Religious Party, was ſaved, and the Earl of Holland who had been a moſt civil Perſon to all, and a very great Friend to the old Puritans, and protected them in the Time of his greateſt Intereſt, by the ſame ſingle Vote loſt his Life. Earl of Holland.

This may be a Caution to us againſt the Affectation of Popularity, when you ſee the Iſſue of it in this Noble Gentleman, who was as full of Generoſity and Courtſhip to all ſorts of Perſons, and Readineſs to help the Oppreſſed, and to ſtand for the Rights of the People, as any Perſon of his Quality in this Nation.

Yet this Perſon was by the Repreſentatives of the People, given up to Execution for Treaſon; and another Lord, who never made Profeſſion of being

Anno 1648.

being a Friend to Liberty, either Civil or Spiritual, and exceeded the Earl as much in his Crimes, as he came ſhort of him in his Popularity, the Life of this Lord was ſpared by the People.

Hamilton. The Reſolution touching Duke Hamilton's Reprieve paſſed in the Negative, and for Sir John Owen in the Affirmative, and theſe Votes ordered to be ſent to the High Court of Juſtice.

[9.] Amendments to an Act for Proviſion for the Forces of England and Ireland, aſſented to.

The Houſe roſe early being thin, becauſe of the Execution of the Lords.

Hamilton. The Earl of Cambridge was brought to the Scaffold in the Palace-Yard at Weſtminſter, and after ſome Diſcourſe with Dr. Sibbalds a Miniſter that came with him, he turned to the People and ſeeing them ſo great a Multitude, he ſaid his Voice would not ſerve for them to hear him, and therefore directed his Speech to thoſe upon the Scaffold with him.

He confeſſed his Religion to be according to that of the Kirk of Scotland, that he had ever been Loyal to the late King and wiſhed well to his Poſterity, and that none more deſired the Peace and Happineſs of this and other Kingdoms than himſelf.

That his coming into England with the late Army, was out of no treaſonable or ill Intent, but for the Ends contained in the Scots Declaration, and what he did, was as a Servant to that Parliament and Kingdom.

That in that Employment, next to the ſettling of Religion, the eſtabliſhing the King was his greateſt aim; and he wiſhed his Blood, in order to the Peace of the Kingdom, might be the laſt that ſhould be ſpilt. That if he would have confeſſed who invited the Scots Army into England, it would probably have ſaved his Life.

Then he made a ſhort Prayer, Dr. Sibbalds kneeling with him, and being riſen he caſt off his Cloak and Doublet, put on a little white ſattin Cap, forgave the Executioner, and gave him ten Pounds, a little after he ſpake a while in private with his Servants, and again made a ſhort Prayer.

His Countenance was chearful, and all the time of his being on the Scaffold, there appeared in him no Fear, Diſorder, change of Countenance, or Diſcompoſure. He took his leave of Dr. Sibbalds embracing him; and of his Servants, whom he commended, particularly Mr. Lewys his Secretary.

He laid down his Head upon the Block, and after a ſhort Prayer he gave the Signal, by ſtretching out his Hand, and the Executioner ſtruck off his Head at one Blow; which was wrapped in a Red Sarcenet Scarf, and with his Body put into the Coffin and carried away.

Earl of Holland. Next came upon the Scaffold the Earl of Holland, who was accompanied by Mr. Hodges, and Mr. Bolton Miniſters, divers of his Servants and other Gentlemen with him: From Mr. Hodges a Perſon of eminent Parts and Piety, and who it is believed would not tell an untruth, was this Relation:

That between the time of his Sentence and Execution, he only lay in the Earl's Bed-chamber, to diſcourſe with him, and to comfort him, being admitted and deſired by him to that Freedom, when he would not ſee his Lady, nor any of his Children, which he ſaid would add too much to his Sorrow, and diſcompoſe his Thoughts, which were now to be ſet only upon another World.

That the Earl for ſeveral Days after his Sentence, was in great Perplexity and Agony of his Thoughts, and ſaid, He had not Aſſurance of Pardon of his Sins, and of the Love of God to him, that he was not prepared to die, that Chriſt would not be Advantage to him. March

Mr. Hodges endeavoured to allay theſe Doubtings, and to comfort the Earl with declaring to him the Infiniteneſs of God's Mercies, and his willingneſs to pardon all poor Sinners that come to him through Chriſt, that never any that ſought the Love of God in Chriſt, with a true Faith in Chriſt did ever fail to obtain the Aſſurance of it to his diſtreſſed Soul.

The Earl deſired Mr. Hodges to pray with him, to ſeek God for this Mercy, which Mr. Hodges did; and upon this Subject, with as earneſt a ſeeking of the Lord for it, as he could expreſs; and the Earl himſelf frequently prayed to the ſame Effect, and with wonderful fervency of Expreſſion.

That ſtill the Earl continued in a deſponding Condition, till the Day before his Suffering, when immediately after Prayer, the Earl with rejoicing, told Mr. Hodges, That God had heard their Prayers, and his Spirit was come in to comfort him; that he had prevailed through the ſtrength of Chriſt, over Satan, and all his ſpiritual Enemies, and all Temptations, that the Lord had given in to him an Aſſurance of his Love in Chriſt; and that now he was both ready and willing to die.

Mr. Hodges was much joyed at this, and they then went to Prayer together, to bleſs God for this great Mercy, and to beg the Continuance of this frame of Spirit to the laſt, and God heard them in this alſo

The Earl, who had not ſlept ſeveral Nights before, nor eat his Meat, now ſupped and went to Bed, with no more Diſturbance in his Spirits, than in his beſt Health, and ſlept ſo ſoundly all the Night and this Morning, that they were much troubled to awaken him.

He went to the Scaffold without being any whit daunted, and after ſome Diſcourſe with the Gentlemen, he ſhewed himſelf to the People, who were generally moved with Sorrow, for the Suffering of ſo gallant a Perſon, whoſe Mien, and Comelineſs would move Compaſſion.

He directed his Speech to the People at the Front of the Scaffold towards Weſtminſter-Hall, made a large Profeſſion of his Religion as a Proteſtant, mentioned his Birth and Education, excuſed his going to the King from the Parliament, and return to the Parliament again, and extenuated his late Inſurrection.

After he had ended his Speech, he turned to the other ſide of the Scaffold, and kneeled down to his private Prayers, after which he had Conference with Mr. Hodges and Mr. Bolton.

Then he pulled off his Gown and Doublet, having on him a white ſattin Waſte-coat, and put on a white ſattin Cap, and prepared himſelf for the Block, took his leave and embraced with much Affection Mr. Hodges, Mr. Bolton, his Servants and others, forgave the Executioner, and gave him Money, ten Pounds in Gold.

Then he laid himſelf down on the Block, prayed a while, and gave the Sign by ſtretching forth his Arms, upon which the Executioner ſevered his Head from his Shoulders at one Blow, which with his Body was preſently put into a Coffin and carried away.

I have been the more large in relating the Sufferings of this Gentleman, the Earl of Holland, becauſe he was my particular Friend, whoſe Memory I honour.

Next was my Lord Capel brought to the Scaffold, much after the Manner of a ſtout Roman; L. Capel.

Anno 1648. he had no Miniſter with him, nor ſhewed any ſenſe of Death approaching, but carried himſelf all the time he was upon the Scaffold, with that Boldneſs and Reſolution as was to be admired.

He wore a ſad coloured Suit, his Hat cocked up, and his Cloak thrown under one Arm; he looked towards the People at his firſt coming up, and put off his Hat in manner of a Salute, he had a little Diſcourſe with ſome Gentlemen upon the Scaffold, and paſſed up and down in a careleſs Poſture.

He went to the front of the Scaffold and leaning over, made a Speech to the People, he ſaid he died a Proteſtant according to the Religion profeſt in the thirty nine Articles, the beſt he knew of.

That he was condemned for keeping the fifth Commandment written by God's own Finger, which commanded to obey Magiſtrates; and he died for obeying his King, the moſt religious of all Princes; and his Son Prince Charles who he ſaid, was King, and the reſt of the King's Children Heirs to the Crown.

He concluded with a deſire to the People to pray for him, and after a ſhort Diſcourſe with ſome on the Scaffold, he ſpake once or twice to the Executioner, and gave him Money, then he put off his Cloak and Doublet with much Confidence, and put on a white Cap, took leave briefly of the Gentlemen on the Scaffold, and prepared for the Block.

Where laying himſelf down, with Hands and Eyes lifted up, he prayed a while, after that, fitting himſelf to the Block, upon the ſignal of ſtretching forth his right Hand, the Executioner ſevered his Head from his Body at one Blow, which were coffin'd up and carried away.

General Seal. The firſt General Seal, the Commiſſioners ſat in the Middle-Temple-Hall, and did not go to Weſtminſter, becauſe of the Trouble, and Multitudes of People and Guards in the Palace-yard, upon the Execution of the Lords; but they found their Meetings to be more convenient out of Term, and in the Afternoons in the Temple-Hall, both for them and for the Council.

At the Council of State we had great Business, and long sitting. March.

Dutch Ambassador. 16. Letters from the Hague, that their Ambassador lately returned from England, reported the many Civilities, and Honour he had received in England from the Parliament and Army.

I brought in the Draught of a Declaration touching the Proceedings of Parliament in the late Transactions.

Upon my Report of the Declaration, it was moved to pass it presently without any Commitment; but I moved it might be committed to amend some Faults in it, and upon the Commitment they made it much sharper than I had drawn it, and added divers Clauses, which I thought Matters fit to be omitted.

After this, it was much pressed to set a time for dissolving this Parliament; most of the House disliked to set a Time, as dangerous; but agreed, that when the Business of the Kingdom would permit, that then it should be dissolved.

17. Order for a publick Fast.

This Declaration passed touching the Transactions of Parliament, and ordered to be printed in English, Latin, French, and Dutch.

Kingly Office abolished. An Act reciting Charles Stuart to have been justly condemned, and put to death for many Treasons, Murders, and other hainous Offences by him committed. And that it hath been found by experience the Office of a King in this Nation and Ireland, and to have the Power thereof in any single Person is unnecessary, burthensome, and dangerous to the Liberty, Safety, and publick Interest of the People, and that for the most part use has been made of the Regal Power and Prerogative to oppress, and impoverish, and enslave the Subject, and that usually and naturally any one Person in such Power makes it his Interest to incroach upon the just Freedom, and to promote the setting up of their own Lust: Therefore the Office of a King in this Nation henceforth not to reside, or be exercised by any one single Person. And whereas by the abolition of the Kingly Office, a most happy way is made for this Nation (if God see good) to return to its just and ancient right of being governed by its own Representatives or National Meetings in Council from time to time chosen and intrusted for that purpose by the People, They resolve and declare that they will put a period to the sitting of this present Parliament, and dissolve the same, so soon as may possibly stand with the safety of the People that has entrusted them, and with what is absolutely necessary for the preserving and upholding the Government now settled in the way of a Commonwealth. And that they will carefully provide for the certain Choosing, Meeting and Sitting of the next future Representatives, with such other circumstances of freedom in choice and equality in distribution of Members to be elected thereunto, as shall most conduce to the lasting freedom and good of this Commonwealth.

Votes touching Compositions of Delinquents.

Order for every Member to meet by nine in the Morning upon Forfeiture of twelve Pence for every Default.

Elections. Debate of making Elections of Parliament-men more equal, and not to be ingrossed in some few Corporations.

Petition. 19. A Petition from the well affected of Leicestershire.

1. That the Militia may be in good hands.

2. That the Army may be provided for, and all Delinquents Estates to go for that end, and free Quarter be taken off.

3. That the Profits of great Offices may be imployed for the Publick.

4. That

Anno 1648.

4. That the Laws may be according to thoſe God gave his People, and plain and ſhort, in the Engliſh Tongue, and Hand.

5. That Tithes may be taken away, and a more equal Proviſion for the Miniſtry.

6. That Officers of Treaſure may account.

7. That all may enjoy their Freedoms to worſhip God according to his Word, without coercive Courſes to the contrary.

Order that the Speaker do ſign ſuch Letters as ſhall be thought fit by the Council of State, to the States of Hamburgh touching Merchants.

Upon a Petition of the Borough of Southwark of the Inequality of their Rates with the County of Surrey, the Houſe held their Deſires juſt, and ordered that in all future Rates, they ſhould pay the eighth Part of that aſſeſſed upon the County of Surrey. Southwark

Order for the Committee of Goldſmiths Hall to form the Votes concerning Compoſitions of Delinquents, and to have them printed and publiſhed, that none may plead Ignorance of them.

Referred to the Committee of the Army to make proviſion of four thouſand Caſſocks and Breeches, to be diſpoſed of by the General to his Foot Soldiers, in regard of the Smallneſs of their Pay.

Upon the Report of Alderman Atkins, that the Lord Mayor deſired to be excuſed from proclaiming the Act for aboliſhing kingly Government, the Houſe ordered that he be ſummoned to attend at the Bar, to anſwer his Contempt and Diſobedience herein. London.

31. Upon a Report from the Council of State, that Lieutenant General Cromwell accepted of the Service for Ireland, and would endeavour to the utmoſt of his Power, with God's Aſſiſtance, to carry on that Work againſt the Rebels, and all that adhere to them. Cromwell

Voted that the Houſe doth approve of Lieutenant General Cromwell to be Commander in Chief of all the Forces ſent into Ireland.

And to take off any Reflection upon the General, or Diſlike by him, they alſo voted,

That the Lord Fairfax be General of all the Forces in England and Ireland. Fairfax.

At the Council of State we had Variety of Intelligence, ſome good, but more bad.

We gave a Diſpatch to Colonel Potley to go for Denmark and Sweden, to ſend us from thoſe Parts Intelligence, and we gave him two hundred Pounds in hand, and promiſed him one hundred Pounds more for one Year's Entertainment. C. Potley.

He married the Daughter of my Father's elder Brother Richard Whitelocke, who lived moſt of his Days in Germany and Poland, and was in great favour with that King. A young Gentlewoman of a noble Family in Pruſſia fell in love with him and married him; by her he had many Children.

He was as fit as any Man for this Service, had lived long in thoſe Countries a Soldier, well known and eſteemed by the Grandees, eſpecially in Germany and in the Court of Sweden; I recommended him to this Employment, which was of great Conſequence to us.

The Profits of my Office did not amount to ſo much as I was in a way of gaining by my Profeſſion, and the Envy and want of Freedom in the Place of a Commiſſioner of the Seal, is much more than as a Practiſer at Law.

Yet by my Denial of private Applications and Informations in Cauſes depending before me, I did ſomething enlarge my Vacancy from Trouble.

The

Anno 1649. The Charge of my Living was increaſed by my Office, and I ſpent much more than I gained, to which the Style of Lords Commiſſioners moved by Mr. Prideaux for the Honour of the Place, gave an Addition.

April, 1649.

Ld. Mayor of London. April 1. The Lord Mayor of London, Alderman Reynoldſon, attended the Houſe at the Bar, and being demanded why he diſobeyed the Orders of Parliament for proclaiming the Act againſt kingly Government.

He pleaded Scruple of Conſcience by his Oath taken in the Exchequer, and that he conceived the Buſineſs only proper for the Sheriff of the City.

After a long Debate, the Houſe voted, that the Lord Mayor for his Contempt ſhould be fined two thouſand Pounds, five hundred Pounds of it to the Poor of London, five hundred Pounds to Weſtminſter, five hundred Pounds to Southwark, and five hundred Pounds to the Poor of the Tower-Hamlets.

That he be committed Priſoner to the Tower for two Months and degraded of his Mayoralty, and that the Common-Council be required and authorized, to elect a new Mayor with all ſpeed.

Petitions. A Petition of divers of London and Weſtminſter in the behalf of Lilburn, Walwin, Prince, and Overton, Priſoners in the Tower ſetting forth:

That the freedom of the People is, that none ought to be proceeded againſt, nor puniſhed but by a known Law, and before ordinary Judges, and the military Power not to interpoſe, but where the Civil Power fails.

They pray favour for the Priſoners, and the Union of the Parliament party to be preſerved.

A Petition with this Title.

Anabaptiſts. To the Right Honourable the Commons of England aſſembled in Parliament.

The humble Petition and Repreſentation of ſeveral Churches of God in London, commonly, though falſely, called Anabaptiſts.

They acknowledge the Goodneſs of God to the Parliament and Kingdom, diſown any Conſent to the Book called, The ſecond Part of England's new Chains diſcovered, juſtify their own Principles and Obedience to Authority, and pray the Parliament to make good Laws for the Puniſhment of Wickedneſs.

The Houſe were ſatisfied with the diſowning of the Book, and their Expreſſions to live peaceably, and in ſubmiſſion to the Civil Magiſtracy, which the Speaker told them by Direction of the Houſe:

And that they and other Chriſtians walking anſwerable to ſuch Profeſſions, the Houſe did aſſure them of Liberty and Protection, ſo far as God ſhould enable them, in all things conſiſtent with Godlineſs, Honeſty, and Civil Peace.

The Houſe finding Inconvenience by their late ſitting the laſt Night, ordered to riſe every Day by one a-Clock.

The Votes of the Houſe collected together touching excepted Perſons, and Compoſitions of Delinquents were publiſhed.

Marquis Huntley. Letters from Scotland of the Execution of the Marquis of Huntly.

That a Miniſter asking him a little before his Execution, whether he deſired Abſolution from the Sentence of Excommunication, which he lay under, he anſwered, he would have nothing to do with him, nor with any that taught ſuch heretical Doctrine as he did, to ſpeak to him. April.

In his Speech to the People, the Marquiſs told them, he was ſentenced to loſe his Life for Obedience to his ſacred Sovereign, to which this ought to encourage all Men, and not to affright them, and that they ſhould for that cauſe ſtoop to a Scaffold, as if it were a Theatre of Honour in this World, as indeed it was a heavenly Ladder.

That he only craved in his behalf the Prayers of thoſe among them that were of his Opinion, without deſiring the Prayers of others whoſe Spirits perchance might be otherwiſe inclined.

3. Debate of the Act for Sale of Deans and Chapters Lands, and for Sale of Fee-Farm Rents of the Kings.

Act committed, prohibiting Miniſters to meddle with State Affairs, but to preach Jeſus Chriſt.

Order for a Declaration about Matters of Religion, and ſettling of the Church, That Tithes ſhall not be taken away till another maintenance be provided for the Miniſters, as large and as honourable as by Tithes. Declaration of Religion.

That as ſoon as ſuch a way can be provided, Tithes ſhall be then taken off, that the Government to be eſtabliſhed in England ſhall be the Presbyterian Government.

That a way ſhall be provided for admiſſion of all ſuch Churches as tend to Godlineſs and to advance the Kingdom of Jeſus Chriſt, to be free without Diſturbances.

Alderman Atkins was choſen Lord Mayor in the place of Alderman Reynoldſon Priſoner in the Tower, for the remainder of the Year. Alderman Atkins.

Letters of divers Veſſels taken by the Iriſh Pirates.

Upon the coming of Major General Lambert into Lancaſhire, the two refractory Regiments were disbanded.

The young Lord Cromwell, and Colonel Werden, and the Lord Fitz-herbert's Son, were brought in Priſoners to Cheſter.

Letters from the Hague, that the Earl of Brentford was gone to Sweden to negotiate for Aſſiſtance of Prince Charles, and for that purpoſe Letters were ſent to the Emperor, and King of Spain.

That others adviſed the Prince to go into Scotland, and become the Head of the Covenanters, whom he might caſt off again as there ſhould be occaſion, but Montroſe was againſt that, and that the Sword was moſt honourable.

That Van Trump ſet out a Declaration and preſented it to the Prince to his great Satisfaction as to Sea Affairs.

The Mayor and divers Citizens of Oxford were framing a Petition to the Parliament againſt ſome Privileges claimed and exerciſed by the Univerſity in wrong of the City.

4. A Petition from the well affected in Blackburn Hundred in Lancaſhire, mentioning their former Aſſiſtance to the Parliament, and the corrupt Party in both Houſes, approving the purging thereof, and taking away the prerogative Houſe of Lords; their Deſires were to the ſame effect with thoſe in other Petitions, complying with and approving all the late Proceedings concerning the King and Houſe of Lords, and ſecluded Members, and they had the Thanks of the Houſe for their good Affections.

An Act committed for prevention of the Miſchiefs by thoſe who buy up many Heads of Cattle, and moſt of the Granaries in the Nation, to ſell again at exceſſive Rates.

Anno 1649. Referr'd to a Committee to draw the Form of a new Oath, to be given to the new Lord Mayor of London, and his Succeſſors, and the Oath was New Oath. preſently drawn and aſſented to.

Referr'd to the Council of State, to give ſuch Order as they ſhould think fit, concerning the Forces in Lancaſhire.

Debate of the Acts for Sale of Deans and Chapters Lands, and voted, that all Monies due out of thoſe Lands for charitable Uſes, ſhould be paid according to the intent of the Donors.

The Court Martial ſat upon the Trial of Major General Laugherne, Col. Poyer and Col. Powel.

Colonel Morris late Governour of Pontefract Caſtle, and one Cornet Blackburn who had a hand in the Death of Colonel Rainsbourgh, and both excepted Perſons, at the Rendition of the Caſtle, were taken at Lancaſter in Diſguiſes.

Letters from Hamburgh, that Colonel Cockeram and his Servants there, laid wait for the Miniſter going to preach in the Engliſh Houſe, and attempted to murder him; but he was reſcued by the Citizens.

We heard forty five Demurrers in the Queen's Court in the Afternoon

5. I attended the Houſe, when they commanded me and my Brother Commiſſioner L'Iſle to bring the Great Seal into the Houſe, to lie upon the Table for the more Solemnity, becauſe the new-elected Lord Mayor was to be preſented this Day to the Houſe for their Approbation; we brought the Seal accordingly, and at the Door of the Houſe, I took the Purſe by one corner of it, L'Iſle by the other, carry'd it up with uſual Reverences and laid it on the Table; we were both of us in our Velvet Gowns, the firſt time of our wearing of them.

Ld. Mayor The new Lord Mayor was according to order preſented to the Houſe by their common Serjeant Mr. Proby, who made an indiſcreet Speech; the Houſe order'd Thanks to the Aldermen and Common Hall for their good Choice, which they approved of, but not of the Speech of Mr. Proby.

Order to ſwear the Lord Mayor after the new Oath.

An Act committed touching Compoſitions for Delinquency and Sequeſtrations, and giving an Appeal to the Barons of the Exchequer, inſtead of the former Appeal to the Committee of Lords and Commons for Sequeſtrations.

Reference to the Committee of the Navy of a Complaint of the Spaniſh Ambaſſador, and Petition of Parties intereſſed, concerning an old Buſineſs of the Spaniſh Ship taken by Sir William Waller.

A Committee appointed to receive Complaints touching abuſes in the Foreſt of Dean, and deſtruction of the Timber.

Ships. 6. A Report from the Council of State for ſending out ſome Ships ſpeedily and appointing Commanders of them was approved by the Houſe, and referred back to the Council to expedite the ſending forth of thoſe Ships.

Vote that the Juſtices of Peace in the ſeveral Counties, ſhall be Commiſſioners in the Act of Aſſeſſment of 90000 l. per menſem for the Forces, and the Act was paſſed, and ordered to be printed.

Order that the Lord Mayor and Juſtices of Peace in London, do put in Execution the Statutes, 5 Eliz. c. 4. and 1 Jac. c. 6. for ſettling the Wages of Artificers, and for their better relief in theſe dear times, and the like to be done by the Juſtices of Peace in all Counties.

Upon a Report that the twelve thouſand Engliſh deſigned for Ireland intended to march into Scotland, they went on there to raiſe their defenſive Army of ten thouſand.

London. Diſcontent in London about the unequal laying of the Aſſeſſment, the rich Men being underrated, and the poorer Men over-rated.

11. A Report from the Council of State of ſeveral Propoſals, agreed upon as to the Forces that ſhall go for Ireland, was confirmed by the Lilburn. Houſe, and the Commitment of Lilburn and his Fellows by the Council, was approved by the Houſe, and order'd that they be try'd by the Common-Law, and Mr. Attorney Prideaux to proſecute them in the upper Bench.

A Proclamation publiſhed by the General for the Obſervation of former Orders for the Army, and that no Officer be abſent from his Charge without leave, and to prevent Miſdemeanours of the Soldiers.

At the Council of State, ſome Diſcourſes among them, of ſending me Ambaſſador extraordinary into Holland.

Againſt this I laboured, and urged the Burden of the Buſineſs in Chancery lying upon me, and (which gave moſt Satisfaction, and as I believed in this jealous Age did prevent my Journey) I urged my Lord Willoughby's being in thoſe Parts; which by reaſon of our Relation, might with ſome Men raiſe a Jealouſy upon me.

They again urged the fitneſs of me for this Employment, my Knowledge of the Languages, and being one whom they could truſt, &c. but I inſiſted upon the former matters of excuſe, and ſo the Buſineſs as to me went off.

12. Order for a Writ to elect a new Burgeſs for Carliſle, in the place of Mr. Barwis deceaſed.

An Ordinance committed to give power to the Committee of Admiralty, to proceed to Sentence of Death in criminal Cauſes.

Poor Debtors. An Act recommitted for diſcharging poor Priſoners who are not able to pay their Debts, and to compel ſuch as are able to pay, and the Committee to confer with the Judges.

Levellers. Everard and Winſtanley, the chief of thoſe that digged at St. George's Hill in Surrey, came to the General and made a large Declaration to juſtify their Proceedings.

Everard ſaid, he was of the Race of the Jews, that all the Liberties of the People were loſt by the coming in of William the Conqueror, and that ever ſince, the People of God had lived under Tyranny and Oppreſſion worſe than that of our Forefathers under the Egyptians.

But now the time of the Deliverance was at hand, and God would bring his People out of this Slavery, and reſtore them to their Freedom in enjoying the Fruits and Benefits of the Earth.

And that there had lately appeared to him a Viſion, which bad him, ariſe and dig and plow the Earth, and receive the Fruits thereof, that their Intent is to reſtore the Creation to its former condition.

That as God had promiſed to make the barren Land fruitful, ſo now what they did, was to renew the ancient Community of enjoying the Fruits of the Earth, and to diſtribute the Benefit thereof to the poor and needy, and to feed the hungry and clothe the naked.

That they intend not to meddle with any Mans Property, nor to break down any Pales or Incloſures; but only to meddle with what was common and untilled, and to make it fruitful for the uſe of Man; that the time will ſuddenly be, that all Men ſhall willingly come in, and give up their Lands and Eſtates, and ſubmit to this Community.

And for thoſe that will come in and work, they ſhould have Meat, Drink, and Clothes, which is all that is neceſſary to the Life of Man, and that for Money there was not any need of it, nor of Clothes more than to cover Nakedneſs.

That they will not defend themſelves by Arms, but will ſubmit unto Authority, and wait till the promiſed Opportunity be offered, which they conceive to be at hand. And that as their Forefathers lived in Tents, ſo it would be ſuitable to their Condition, now to live in the ſame, with more to the like Effect.

While they were before the General they ſtood with their Hats on, and being demanded the Reaſon thereof, they ſaid, becauſe he was but their fellow Creature; being asked the meaning of that Place, Give honour to whom honour is due, they ſaid, their Mouths ſhould be ſtopped that gave them that Offence.

I have ſet down this the more largely, becauſe it was the beginning of the Appearance of this Opinion; and that we might the better underſtand and avoid theſe weak Perſuaſions.

Lots for Ireland. The Council of the Army after a ſolemn ſeeking of God by Prayer, caſt Lots, which Regiments of the old Army ſhould go for Ireland, April. there were fourteen Regiments of Horſe and fourteen of Foot of the eſtabliſhed Army, which came to the Lot.

And it being reſolved that four Regiments of Horſe, and four of Foot ſhould go upon the Service, ten Blanks and four Papers with Ireland, writ in them, were put into a Hat, and being all ſhuffled together, were drawn out by a Child, who gave to an Officer of each Regiment in the Lot, the Lot of that Regiment, and being in this impartial and inoffenſive way, no Regiment could take Exceptions at it.

The Regiments whoſe Lot it fell to go were of Horſe, Ireton's, Scroope's, Horton's, and Lambert's; of Foot, Ewer's, Cook's, Hewſon's, and Dean's. Several Troops of Dragoons and all the Officers whoſe Regiments were to go expreſſed much forwardneſs.

The Speaker ſat firſt, next to him the Lord Mayor, then the Lord General, then the Earl of Pembroke called to me to ſit down, being the ancient Commiſſioner of the Great Seal, I deſired his Lordſhip would be pleaſed firſt to ſit down, and then I would ſit by him. With that the Earl ſpake aloud (as he uſed to do) that all near him might hear, What, do you think that I will ſit down before you? I have given place heretofore to Biſhop Williams, to my Lord Coventry, and my Lord Littleton.

And you have the ſame place that they had, and as much Honour belongs to the place under a Commonwealth, as under a King, and you are a Gentleman as well born and bred as any of them, therefore I will not ſit down before you.

With his earneſtneſs, he cauſed me to ſit down before him, and ſat himſelf the next to me, and then the Lord Preſident of the Council, and the two other Commiſſioners of the Great Seal (the Earl of Salisbury, and the Lord Howard) ſat next to the Earl of Pembroke, and after the Commiſſioners of the Seal, ſat Lieutenant General Cromwell, and other Members of Parliament, and of the Council of State.

At two Tables on each ſide of the Hall ſat other Members, and at a Table in the middle of the Hall ſat Major General Lambert, and other Officers of the Army; the Judges ſat in a Room over the Parlour which was very large, and the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and ſome Common Council-men at another Table in the ſame Room.

The Muſick was only Drums and Trumpets; the Feaſt was very ſumptuous, no Healths drunk, nor any Incivility paſſed; and beſides the overplus of the Victuals left at Dinner, 400 l. was given to the Poor of London.

11. De-

Anno 1649.

11. Debate touching the Earl of Cheſterfield's Compoſition.

Letters from the Counteſs of Leiceſter, and the Earl of Northumberland, for allowance for the late King's Children, referred to the Committee of the Revenue to provide Monies for them.

Order for demoliſhing Montgomery Caſtle, and allowance to the Lord Herbert for his Damage thereby, out of his Fine.

Order for demoliſhing Wincheſter Caſtle, and Reparation for the Damage thereby to Sir William Waller. The like for Belvoir Caſtle, and for Reparation of the Damage thereby to the Earl of Rutland, referred all to the Council of State.

The Act paſſed for relieving Perſons comprized in Articles.

Another for altering the Original Seals of Carmarthen, Pembroke, and Cardigan.

Another for altering the Seal of Niſi-prius of the Common-Pleas.

Doriſlaus. Order that the Members of the Houſe, and of the Council of State, the Lords Commiſſioners of the Great Seal, and Judges, do attend the Funeral of Dr. Doriſlaus.

Scotland. Letters that the Parliament of Scotland took many exceptions to the Letter ſent to them from the Parliament of England. That they go on in raiſing Forces, but the quelling of the Levellers in England did not pleaſe them. But they bewail the ſuffering condition of their Presbyterian Brethren in England.

That in Scotland are many Engliſh Officers and Soldiers, who expect employment when their new King cometh, and are out of Patience, and Money by his long ſtay; that the Scots fear a Famine, and execute very many for Witches.

12. Order for 6000 Men for the Summer Guard, to be proportioned to the Ships, and 3000 for the Winter Guard.

Referred to the Committee of the Army, to confer with the Council of State, touching the number of Forces to be kept up, and the Pay of them.

Referred to a Committee to prepare an Act, upon Sir Henry Vane's Report touching the Exciſe.

The new Judges were ſworn in the ſeveral Courts; and it came to my turn to make the Speech to thoſe who were ſworn Judges of the Common-Pleas: Who were Mr. Sergeant Peuleſton, and Mr. Sergeant Warburton.

Wherein (amongſt other Matters) I told them of their being the firſt Judges publickly ſworn in this Commonwealth, and ſpake to them concerning Judges in general, Judges of this Commonwealth, and Judges of this Court. On the ſecond head I told them, That the Judges in this Commonwealth are of as great Antiquity as is the Law it ſelf. That the Druides were Judges or Interpreters of the Law amongſt the Britons. And as they ſtudied the Law 20 Years, yet committed nothing to writing. So our Judges ſpend as much longer time in the ſame ſtudy, and our common Law is Lex non ſcripta at this Day.

I alſo intimated to them what I found in Ingulphus, p. 870, and in Selden's Janus Anglorum, of the Diviſion made by King Alphred, or Allured in Judices, quos nunc Juſtitiarios vocamus, et Vicecomites. And in the ſame Author, that when Wil. 1. upon the ſuit of the Abbot of Crowland confirmed the Laws of St. Edward, he proclaimed them to be kept, et Juſticiariis ſuis commendabat. And then he thus proceeds.

All theſe are Teſtimonies of the Antiquity of our Judges, but I hold not this eſſential to be largely conſidered, ſave as it falls in our way. Neither ſhall I rob you of your time by an elaborate Diſcourſe of the Honour and Reſpect due to your Place, only you may pardon a few Obſervations thereupon, and the rather for the particular Relation I have to that Calling. What reſpect the Saxons had to their Judges appears in the Etymology of their word Grave, which ſignifieth a Judge, and an Earl, Sir John Dauys Rep.

June.

As in the old Law of the Ripuarians, C. 55. Act 1*ſt. The Title being* Si quis Graffionem interfecerit. The Text is, Si quis judicem Fiſcalem, quem Comitem vocant, interfecerit, Seld. Tit. Hon. f. 121, 127. and Haillan. f. 274.

But to come nearer home, we find in the Law of Hen. 1. this Deſcription of a Judge, Regis Judices ſunt Barones Comitatus, qui liberas in eis terras habent, villani vero, corſetti, vel ferdingi, vel qui ſunt viles, aut inopes Perſonæ, non ſunt inter Judices numerandi.

Whence appears the reaſon of the Judges of the Exchequer, being called Barons Seld. Tit. Hon. f. 347, and 390. Lambert. f. 186. 1 Hen. 6. f. 7.

Agreeable with this is the Teſtimony of Bracton, who ſaith thus, Comites vero vel Barones non ſunt amerciandi, niſi per pares ſuos, et hoc per Barones Scaccarii, vel coram ipſo Rege.

Upon which, and the Caſe of the Earl of Northumberland under Hen. 6. Selden obſerves that all Judges were held antiently as Barons.

And the Writ by which they were ſummon'd to Parliament, is in the ſame Style, and hath in it the ſame words with the Writs of Summons of Barons, Conſilium veſtrum impenſuri, Thoſe of the Commons being ad faciendum, et conſentiendum hiis, quæ de communi Conſilio ordinari contigerint.

And in ſome Entries of Judgments upon Writs of Error in Parliament, the words are ex aſſenſu Juſtitiariorum, and the Title of Lord was given antiently to all the Judges, as appears in divers of our Books, and Records, and is ſtill given to the Judges of Aſſize.

They have their Officers, and their Purveyance, as the Barons had, untill taken away by the Statute from both Rot. Parl. 10. E. 2. pt. 2. M. 20. and 2 E. 3. pt. 1. M. 33. and Rot. Clauſ. 11. E. 1. and this was taken away by the Statute 4 E. 3. C. 3.

There be divers Caſes, and Records of Puniſhments inflicted on thoſe, who gave any affronts to Judges, and eſpecially that noted Caſe of Roger Hengham, M. 33. and 34. E. 1. Rot. 71. in the Receipt of the Exchequer.

So tender hath the State always been of the Honour of their great publick Officers, and as the State is, ſo the Judges themſelves ought to be very tender of that Honour with which they are entruſted, which is not ſo much theirs as the Nation's Honour, and the Honour of the Law it ſelf.

They are neither to leſſen their Honour by a Carriage too lofty, for moſt Honour is gained by Courteſy and Humility. Nor to leſſen their Honour by a Port too low, and unbeſeeming their Quality. But this point needs no conſideration in this place.

I haſten to my laſt particular, which is concerning Judges of this Court. A high and antient Court, high in reſpect of the Univerſality and Buſineſs of it; the Liberties, Franchiſes, and Property of all the People of this great Nation, are determinable in it.

And concerning the Antiquity of the Court, give me leave upon this Occaſion, and for the Right and Honour of this Court, a little to look into an Opinion deliver'd by great and learned Men upon that Point.

Not

Anno 1649.

Not that I preſume upon my ſlender Judgment to controul theirs, but to lay before you their Aſſertion, and what Authorities I have met with in my little reading to the contrary, that your ſelves, by comparing both together, may the better judge of the Difference.

Lambert, Cowel, Sergeant Fleetwood, Sir Thomas Smith, and a Manuſcript concerning Maſters of the Chancery, all of them do affirm, That the Court of Common Pleas was erected by the Statute of Magna Charta, Cap. 11.

The Words are Communia placita non ſequantur Curiam noſtram, ſed ſint in loco certo, from hence they collect that Common Pleas which before were held in other Courts, and followed the King's Houſe, were not ſettled in a Place certain, nor the Court of Common Pleas erected till this time.

Of theſe Authors, Sir Roger Owen in his Manuſcript ſaith, They are like unto Oſtriches, Birds of great Feathers, yet little Flight, I cannot ſubſcribe to their Opinion, upon theſe Grounds.

Beda. f. 10. relates that the prime Monarch, with the conſent of the States of Parliament, allotted Pleas of the Crown to one Court, common Suits of Subjects to another, and Matters of Revenue to a third, and this was long before Magna Charta.

They miſtake the words Curiam noſtram in this place of Magna Charta, to ſignify the King's Houſe, which had not then that Appellation; but the word Curia had another Signification.

Among the Romans, whoſe word it is, Curia, ſometimes was taken for the 30th part of the People, into which Romulus divided them; but more frequently it ſignified with them an Aſſembly of Clergymen, and Lawyers, as Curia Hoſtilia, Pompeia, Julia, &c.

St. Auguſtine in his Comment upon the 121 Pſalm, ſaith, that Curia improperly is taken for a Tribe, but properly ſignifies the Courts of Juſtice in Cities and Countries.

In the ſame Senſe, the word is taken with us, and was ſo before any Application of it to the King's Houſe, as is plain in the Mirror of Juſtices. Glanvil, the Stat. of Malbridge, 51 Hen. 3. the Stat. W. 1. 13 Eliz. 1. and W. 2. 13 Eliz. 1. and others, and in Walſingham, Ingulphus, Hoveden, Paris, and all our chief Hiſtorians.

In Hen. 3d's time, and after, Hoſpitium Regis was generally the word for the King's Houſe; as Mareſchallus Hoſpitii, in their Letters Patents, and Britton calls it Hoſtel du Roy.

That ground then will fail them, that by the word Curia in Magna Charta, is meant the King's Houſe, but as Sir Roger Owen, and others conjecture, by it is meant, the Courts of the Chancery, King's-Bench, and Exchequer.

The Caſe 21 Ed. 3. Fitz. Bre. comes to this, where a Writ de rationabili parte Bonorum was brought in the King's-Bench, the Defendant pleaded this part of Magna Charta, Communia placita non ſequantur Curiam noſtram, and though he had been at iſſue, yet the Plaintiff would not proceed.

And in 26 Ed. 1. in the Treaſury, one Nicholas de Scotland brought an Aſſize for Land, which was reverſed for Error in the King's-Bench, where the Judges willed Nicholas to arraign a new Aſſize in the Common-Pleas, becauſe by the words of Magna Charta, Common-Pleas ought not to follow Bancum Regis, and there are no other words (Curiam noſtram) in Magna Charta but theſe.

In the Statute Articuli ſuper Chartas, it is ſaid, no Common-Pleas ſhall hereafter be held in the Cheq. againſt the tenour of the great Charter, and there be no words reſtraining ſuits of Common-Pleas, by the great Charter but theſe.

To make it more plain, It is agreed by Hoveden, Paris, and others, and I think not to be denied, that Magna Charta were the Laws of Edward the Confeſſor: And in that Caſe, 21 Ed. 3. the Defendant pleaded this part of it, not as an Act of Parliament, but as a common Conſent, and Cuſtom. June.

To this purpoſe, that is pertinent 26 Aſſiſ. p. 24. where the Abbot of B. preſcribes to have Cognizance of Pleas, and to have an Original out of Court, by uſage in the time of St. Edmund and St. Edward Kings. And that Hen. 1. by his Charter, confirmed all the uſages, and that they ſhould have Cognizance of all manner of Pleas; ſo that the Juſtices of the one Bench, or the other ſhould not intermeddle, upon which my Lord Coke, Lit. 71. B. collects, that then there was this Court, and theſe Judges.

In the Treaſury of the Chequer, are many Records of Pleas of King Hen. 2. Ric. 1. and King John, dated in the Court of Common-Pleas.

In an antient Roll there is contained the Suit between the Abbot of Anjou, and the Abbot of Crowland, about the Meers of a Marſh, in the Court of Common-Pleas in Ric. 1. and King John's time, and the Names of the Juſtices ſet down in the Roll thus Juſtitiarii in Banco reſidentes, and the Chancellor writes to them by that Name.

Glanvil in his ſecond Book writes of them which would not wage Battle, but have their Matters tried by a Jury, fol. 14. that they were to be tried coram Juſtitiariis in Banco reſidentibus.

In Glanvil's 4th Book, it is ſaid, that Quare impedits are returnable coram Juſtitiariis apud Weſtmonaſterium, which they are to this Day.

In his eighth Book he writes, though Fines were levied in many other Courts, yet ſtill they were ingroſſed coram Juſtitiariis in Banco reſidentibus; and ſo they are to this day.

The Seals of the Dutchy delivered to the Commiſſioners of the Seal.

Referred to the Council of State to preſerve the Books and Medals at St. James's from Imbezzlement.

After this Order paſt, the Council propounded it to me, whether I would take upon me the Charge and Care of theſe precious Medals and Books, and to be the Library-Keeper, and to appoint whom I thought fit to look to them under me.

I knew the greatneſs of the Charge, and conſidered the Prejudice that might fall out, by being reſponſible for thoſe rich Jewels, the Imbezzlement whereof would be endeavoured by many, and my other Occaſions would not permit me to give much perſonal Attendance on this Buſineſs, nor to enjoy much of the delight of peruſing them.

Yet I being informed of a deſign in ſome to have them ſold and tranſported beyond Sea, which I thought would be a Diſhonour and Damage to our Nation, and to all Scholars therein, and fearing that in other hands they might be more ſubject to imbezzleing, and being willing to preſerve them for publick Uſe,

I did accept of the trouble of being Library-Keeper at St. James's, and therein was encouraged and much perſuaded to it by Mr. Selden, who ſwore that if I did not undertake the Charge of them

Anno 1649. them, all thoſe rare Monuments of Antiquity, thoſe choice Books and Manuſcripts would be loſt, and there were not the like to them, except only in the Vatican, in any other Library in Chriſtendom.

The Council made an Order for me to be Library-Keeper of St. James's, and to have Lodgings in the Houſe belonging to the Place, and recommended to me Mr. Duery, a German by Birth, a good Scholar, and a great Traveller and Friend to the Parliament, to be my Deputy in that Place, but at my liking.

I was willing to have a Deputy by their Recommendation, being thereby I ſhould be the leſs anſwerable, and I appointed Mr. Duery to have the Keys, to go to Mr. Patrick Young the former Library-Keeper to the late King, to inquire for an Inventory of the Books and Medals, and to ſee an exact one made forthwith of all of them.

An Act paſſed for altering the Seals of the Cuſtom-houſe.

Leave given to the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of London to tranſport ſixty Priſoners out of Newgate to the American Plantations.

Letters that the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland was ready to take ſhipping, that a few deſerted the Engagement, and that Money was much wanting, that 500 Iriſh were landed at Jerſey, deſigned (as was imagined) to ſecond the Plot for ſurprizing Weymouth, Portland, and other Garriſons.

Letters of many Pickeroons upon the Northern Coaſt, who took divers Veſſels, and much diſturbed the Coal Ships and Fiſhermen.

Scotland. Letters from Scotland that the Kirk Party much commended their new King, and that his coming thither was expected. That they continued a Force of 6000 Men, which in ten days they could make up 20000, and perſuaded the People that England was ſending an Army againſt them to be commanded by Lieutenant General Cromwell.

Letters of a Holland Man of War taken with an Iriſh Commiſſion, and that had done much Miſchief on the Sea to the Engliſh, and taken divers Ships from them.

My Son James went over in a private Capacity with the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, which took off much of Envy from him, and procur'd him the more Credit among the Soldiery, who love to have their Officers to riſe to Commands by degrees and not per ſaltum.

My Lord Lieutenant at his coming to him ſaid, that he was the only Gentleman of England that came as a Volunteer to ſerve under him in this Expedition, and that he would have a very particular Care and Reſpect towards him.

Upon my Wife's Death I received this Letter from my noble Friend Sir John Holland from beyond Sea.

For my honour'd Friend Bulſtrode Whitelocke Eſq;

S I R,

I Accompany you as a Mourner in the ſad Funeral of your Lady, but until this time I heard not of her Death; I wonder not now at your ſo long Silence, nor yet at your preſent Expreſſion in the Apprehenſion of your Loſs: but I know you wiſe, and that you know your duty too well towards him that ſent you this Affliction, to be too immoderate in your Paſſion. We daily pray that God's Will be done, he himſelf hath taught us ſo to pray; we ought not to pray for what we will not with Patience, yea even with Thankfulneſs ſubmit to. I did, I confeſs, very much reſpect her, not only as ſhe was your Wife, which was Obligation enough, but even for her own Merit: But the confident Report here of your Death, and which through the Force of my own Fears had got ſome Poſſeſſion in me, was a ſeaſonable Preparative for this ſad News to make me bear it with more better Temper, whilſt I find you alive. The Continuance of whoſe Life I heartily wiſh, both for the ſake of your Children and Friends, in which number, I hope, you will ever account. July.

Your affectionate Servant,

June 29. 1649. J. Holland.

31. Mr. Lemmon, a Member of the Houſe, choſen by the City to be one of their Aldermen, although he had left the City ſeventeen years ſince; the Houſe left it to himſelf whether he would hold to be an Alderman or not.

Order for Money for maimed Soldiers, and for the Widows of ſlain Soldiers.

An additional Act paſſed for the Sale of Deans and Chapters Lands, and to remove ſome Obſtructions in the Sale of them.

Upon notice that the Priſoners in the King's-Bench were in ſome Mutiny, ſome Horſes were ſent thither to ſuppreſs the Inſurrection, only one Woman was killed by one of the Priſon Officers, and another was hurt.

100000 l. went from London to the Lieutenant of Ireland into Wales.

Letters from Cheſter that Ormond was 40000 ſtrong before Dublin,

That Colonel Monk, upon the Enemy's approach towards Dundalk, ſent to Owen Rowe Oneal Head of the natural Iriſh, deſiring him in purſuance of the Articles between them to draw his Forces together, and to be in readineſs when the Enemy ſhould draw near to them. Ireland.

This was undertaken by Owen, but he ſent word back that he wanted Ammunition, and being come within three Miles with his whole Army, he ſent out 1200 Foot, and 200 Horſe, who received from Colonel Monk 20 Barrels of Powder with Match and Bullets proportionable.

Preſently after this, they had information that Inchequin was coming againſt them, which made them ſpeed as faſt as they could to their General, but they were over taken and routed, 500 killed upon the Place, many Priſoners taken, the reſt ſo beaten and ſcatter'd that few of them eſcaped without their Death's Wounds.

This News was ſo terrible to Owen and his Army that they all roſe in a panick Fear, and fled into the County of Longford; this Defeat was given in the view of the Town of Dundalk, and Inchequin ſent the News of it preſently to Ormond, who thereupon ſent to Colonel Jones for exchange of Priſoners, and ſent him the News of this Defeat given to Owen.

Inchequin the ſame Evening came before Dundalk and ſummoned it. Colonel Monk was retreated thither, upon the Aſſurance of all his Officers and Soldiers to ſtand by him, except one Soldier, who when Monk told them, that if any of them ſcrupled to fight in this Quarrel, he might depart and ſhould have a Paſs from him. Monk.

This one Soldier only deſired a Paſs, and ſaid he could not in conſcience fight in this Quarrel; Monk gave him a Paſs according to his deſire, and the reſt promiſed to be faithful to him.

But

Anno 1649. But when Inchequin came now before the Town, all the faithful Soldiers ran away over the Trenches to Inchequin, ſwearing deep Oaths that they would not engage with Monk, who entred into Confederacy with Owen Rowe the Head of the native Iriſh.

By this and many other Paſſages both in ours and other Hiſtories, we may obſerve the ſtrange Inconſtancy, Lightneſs, and irrational Actions of the common Soldiery, whom for the moſt part Money and avoiding preſent danger carry beyond any other Intereſt.

Theſe Soldiers of Colonel Monk's, one day ſwore to ſtand by him, the next day every one of them deſerted him; Money was to be had from Inchequin, none from Monk, with whom if they ſtaid they muſt fight; but if they left him they thought the Danger was over.

They had all engaged under Colonel Monk, and when he had demanded of them whether they would be faithful to him, and ſtand by him; all but one ſaid, that in conſcience they could not leave him, but would ſtand by him.

The next day when Danger approached, then they could not in conſcience ſtay with him, becauſe he was Confederate with the Head of the native Iriſh Rebels, Owen Rowe.

Yet the ſame Conſcience could give them leave to ſerve under Ormond, who commanded both the Iriſh Rebels Catholicks, and the Engliſh Royaliſts againſt the Engliſh Proteſtants.

Monk's Soldiers having thus deſerted him, the Town of Dundalk was preſently ſurrendred to Inchequin, upon no other Conditions, but that Monk might diſpoſe of what was his as he ſaw good.

That Colonel Mark Trevor was there a great Purchaſer, and bought choice Sheep for three Pound a Score, Cows for thirty Pound a Score, and Horſes for forty Pound a Score, and ſo made himſelf up a Regiment, and was made Governor of the Town to boot.

That this Defeat of Owen was a great advantage to Ormond, that in Dundalk ſtore of Proviſions was taken, that Owen was ſo enraged at this Defeat that he ſwore he would be revenged.

That there were Diviſions in Ormond's Army, between the Engliſh and the Iriſh, for that Ormond gave the Lands ſo regained to the Engliſh, and put them into Garriſons, but kept the Iriſh in the Field in moſt Hardſhip and Danger; that many of the Miniſters in Dublin are ſuſpected, and ſuſpended.

Letters from Scotland, that the Levies there were much preſſed on by Lieutenant General David Leſley and his Party, to conſiſt of about 14000 Foot and 6000 Horſe; and that they were in great fear of an Invaſion, either from England or Ireland.

This was a Year of great Perplexity and Danger as to the publick Affairs in the Cauſe of the Parliament. The publick Buſineſs ſtood on this foot, If the Parliament had loſt but one Battle, all who were engaged with them had been in danger of ruin, as to their Lives and Fortunes; and tho' they gained many Battles, yet their Enemies ſtill continued of Power to raiſe freſh Parties and new Troubles againſt them.

When they were all ſubdued, ſo that not one Man appear'd in Arms for the King, yet many appear'd againſt the Parliament, their own Friends turn'd to be their Enemies; thoſe who fought againſt the King's Party joined with the Parliament, and they fought together againſt the Cavaliers.

When they were ſubdued, then the ſame Soldiers fought againſt their own Maſters and Fellow-Soldiers, witneſs the Agitators, Levellers, and Mutineers.

Thoſe of the Army turn'd head againſt them, from whom they had received their Commiſſions to be an Army, and bent their Arms againſt thoſe who had impower'd them to bear Arms; yet God was ſtill pleaſed to ſupport the Parliament, at leaſt a conſiderable part of them, and to carry them through all the Difficulties they met with in relation to their common Enemy, tho great, numerous, and powerful, and in relation to particular Diſtempers and Inſurrections from that of their own Party. July.

We may from hence take notice of the vaſt hazard Men undergo by engaging in ſuch Affairs as theſe were, in which the Conquer'd were ruin'd, and the Conquerors did thereby but create to themſelves new War and Troubles.

Succeſs raiſed in many of them a haughtineſs of Mind, and a roaming of Imagination, every one almoſt of them endeavour'd or expected to have his private Fancy, to be put in action, and to be little leſs than Princes.

To effect ſomething dream'd on to this purpoſe, many Wits were working; ſome were for one thing, ſome for another, all were violent in their way, and brought in to ſeveral Parties and Factions.

The Army was divided into Levellers and diſciplined Soldiers, the Parliament was divided into Royaliſts and Republicans; the whole Nation was divided into Cavaliers and Parliamentarians.

The Parliamentarians were again divided into Presbyterians, Independants, Anabaptiſts, Fifth Monarchy Men, and many other Perſuaſions, and none but the moſt miſerable of all Cures for the ſick State, no uniting of Diviſions but by a greater Calamity, by the Sword.

When the King's Party grew up to any Strength, then thoſe of the Parliament Party united together to oppoſe the King's; and when that Work was done, then they fell at variance among themſelves.

Thus we find it was by the precedent Story, and thus we ſhall find it to continue, if God give me Life and Opportunity to continue this Story; and this may be a ſufficient Argument that there is neither Safety nor Diſcretion for any who can avoid it to engage in Matters of this nature.

We who were engaged in thoſe before-mentioned were unexperienced in theſe things, and in the Conſequences of them, ſlipt into them by degrees, and before many of us were aware of them, and being once in, were by little and little plunged farther in, and knew not how to get out again.

But thoſe that have the Examples and the Warnings of the Age preceding, and have in part known and heard their Fathers relate the deep Miſeries and Calamities of the Civil War in their days, and to both Parties, will be inexcuſable if ever they engage in ſuch Affairs, and may they never ſee again thoſe ſad days which have been in thoſe times whereof we read before.

Auguſt, 1649.

Auguſt 1. Debate touching Accounts, and the Aſſeſſment of 90000 l. per menſem continued three Months.

Letters that Colonel Reynolds, Colonel Venables, and their Regiments were landed at Dublin.

Debates.

6. Debate of an Ordinance touching Miniſters, publick Worſhip and Government, by way of a Declaration; the Houſe paſſed the Preamble declaring their Reſolutions, for Propagation of the Goſpel, the eſtabliſhing Presbyterial Government, and the Miniſters to have ſufficient Maintenance, and upon the Queſtion, whether Tithes ſhould be continued, it paſſed in the Negative.

Ireland.

Letters that Captain Norwood, one of thoſe who landed laſt at Dublin, ſallied out of the Town with a Troop of eighty, and ſome additional Horſe, upon Sir Thomas Armſtrong, who came with part of four Regiments to drive away the Cattle of the Town.

That Norwood repulſed Armſtrong, killed thirty of his Men, and took ſome Priſoners, and loſt but four Men.

That Trym Caſtle was ſurrendred to Ormond, or Incheqain, by the Treachery of Captain Martin.

An Act paſt, giving Power to the Committee of Indemnity, to tranſmit the Examination againſt malignant Magiſtrates, Officers, or Juſtices of the Peace. Auguſt.

Letters from Newcaſtle that there were condemned by the Judges twenty nine Moſs Troopers, Scots, that robbed upon the Borders, and other Felons.

7. Debate upon the Declaration touching Miniſters, and Church Diſcipline, referred to a Committee to conſider of the Debate of the Houſe and to bring it in again with the Amendments, with reſpect to tender Conſciences.

Letters of the taking of Trym Caſtle, and that 300 in it went to the Enemy, who afterwards took alſo a ſtrong Houſe near it, belonging to Sir Adam Loftus.

Letters that part of Colonel Horton's Regiment refuſed to go with the Lieutenant for Ireland, and disbanded themſelves.

That Major Bethel and other Officers refuſed to go, that about Cheſter they feared the Malignants riſing again.

Letters from Hamburgh, that one Mr. Harrington, an Engliſh Merchant, came thither, and deſigned to trepan Mr. Criſpe, and other Engliſh Merchants there, and got on board a Ship, provided for that purpoſe, to carry them over into England. But by the contrary Winds, the Ship being Wind-bound, the reſt of the Engliſh Merchants overtook the Ship, and reſcued their Friends.

8. An Act paſſed for taking of the Cuſtoms and Navy Accounts.

Debate upon the Act for Poor Priſoners recommitted as to Priſoners, and Creditors; and the Committee to receive any offers from the Judges, or any others for the good of the Commonwealth therein.

Poor Priſoners.

Inſtructions to the Committee for bringing in the form of a Commiſſion, to paſs the great Seal for relief of thoſe that lie in Priſon for Debt, and have nothing to pay, but are like to ſtarve for want of Maintenance.

Letters that a Woman came out of Cleveland to York, and there preached ſeveral times, and was much admired by ſome Ladies and other Perſons of Quality who heard her; but the Miniſters were very angry with her.

I came with my Company from the Manor Lodge in Windſor great Park to London, I attended the Parliament, and the Council of State, and the Buſineſs of the Great Seal, labour enough for one Man.

9. Debate of an Act for ſuppreſſing falſe and ſcandalous Letters, Informations, &c. committed.

Another for ſuppreſſing ſcandalous, and unlicenſed Pamphlets, and for regulating the Preſs.

Upon the Motion of Colonel Martin, Ordered that the Regalia of the Crown be delivered up to the Truſtees for Sale of the King's Goods, to raiſe Money for the Service of Ireland.

10 The Act paſſed for admitting the Delinquents of North Wales to Compoſition for a certain Fine.

Letters from Milford Haven from the Lieutenant of Ireland, giving the Houſe an Account of his Proceedings, and the Readineſs of his Forces.

Anno 1649. Upon a Report from the Council of State, and Letters to them from the Lieutenant of Ireland, concerning Major General Monk's making a Peace with Owen Roe Oneal, which the Council diſapproved, and reported to the Houſe to know their Pleaſure therein.

Monk queſtion'd. Major General Monk was called into the Houſe, and asked ſeveral Queſtions by their Order, which he anſwered at the Bar of the Houſe touching that Buſineſs; after a long Debate of it the Houſe upon the Queſtion paſſed this Vote, That they did diſapprove of what Major General Monk had done in concluding a Peace with the grand and bloody Iriſh Rebel Owen Rowe Oneal, and did abhor the having any thing to do with him therein.

Vote.

Yet are verily perſuaded that the making the ſame by the ſaid Major General Monk was in his Judgment for the moſt advantage of the Engliſh Intereſt in that Nation. And that he ſhall not be farther queſtioned for the ſame for the time to come.

Order that the Report of the Council of State, the Queſtions demanded of Major General Monk, with his Anſwers and the Votes of the Houſe thereupon, be printed and publiſhed.

Major General Monk was much diſcontented at the Proceeding in this Buſineſs in relation to him, eſpeceially at ſome Paſſages highly reflecting upon his Honour and Fidelity.

And it was the Opinion of divers, either not at all to have queſtioned this Buſineſs, or having once queſtioned it, not to have employed him any more in their Service.

But the major part carried it thus, to beat him, and afterwards to ſtroke him, which ſome did think was never forgotten by him.

11. The Houſe ſat not.

Dublin. Letters from Dublin to the Houſe, and to the Council of State, that the firſt of Auguſt the Enemy began his approaches near to the Town, that Ormond, Preſton, and the chief of their Army, were that Night at a work begun Eaſtward of the City upon the Sea, to hinder the landing of the Forces and Supplies expected from England, and had cut off much of their Water, and Forage.

That the 2d of Auguſt Colonel Jones, Reynolds, and the reſt with him diſcovered a Party of the Enemy drawn to their new work, about 1500 Foot, beſides Horſe; they thought fit ſpeedily to remove them, and advanced towards them with the greater ſtrength, 1200 Horſe and 4000 Foot, becauſe they were within a Mile of the Camp, from whence they might have what Supplies and addition of Force they pleaſed.

Ormond routed. That the Parliament Party ſoon entred the Enemy's new Work, yet not without a ſtrong diſpute; and moſt of Ormond's Foot there, were ſlain and taken, their Horſe having deſerted them after the firſt charge.

That Jones and his Party purſuing their advantage, became at laſt engaged with Ormond's whole Army, which after two Hours Fight they totally routed. That they ſlew on the Place, and in the Chaſe 4000, and took 2517 Priſoners, moſt of them Inchequin's Engliſh, and Runaways. That they got one whole Cannon, three Demi Cannons, one long Gun carrying a Ball of twelve Pounds, one Sakerdrake, and one Mortar Piece, all of them of Braſs, ſome train Carriages, and about 200 Draught Oxen for the Train.

That the ſtrength of the Enemy was ſince acknowledged to be 19000. That Ormond narrowly eſcaped.

That of the Parliament's Party there were not twenty miſſing, but many wounded, the greateſt loſs fell on the Horſe, wherein Jones's Regiment did much ſuffer, which he deſired might be conſidered. Auguſt.

That Jones intended not to have engaged ſo far, nor did Ormond expect it, but would have declined it, reſerving themſelves for the coming up of Clanricard with 3000 Connaught Forces, and of the Laird of Ardes with 7000 Scots, all ready for marching; and of Inchequin with two more Regiments from Munſter.

That there never was any Day in Ireland like this, to the confuſion of the Iriſh, and raiſing up the Spirits of the Engliſh, and reſtoring their Intereſt, which from their firſt footing in Ireland was never in ſo low a Condition as at that time, there not being any one conſiderable landing Place left for them, but Dublin only, and that almoſt loſt.

Captain Otway, who brought this Intelligence to the Council and did gallant Service in the Action, did bring other Letters to the ſame purpoſe, and which did farther relate, That Ormond was at Tables in his Quarters, when the firſt news came of the beating up of his Guard, and anſwered the Meſſenger, he wiſhed the Rebels would come, that they might have ſome Sport with them, and ſo went on in his Game.

But a ſecond Meſſenger bringing news of the routing of his Party, he left his Play, and got two or three Regiments to engage, but they being defeated, he and the reſt fled.

That Colonel Reynolds after he had taken Ormond's Brother, threatened to piſtol him, if he would not ſhow him Ormond, which he did at a diſtance, with about ſeven Horſe in Company.

That Colonel Reynolds, and Captain Otway purſued them, and came ſo near as to charge them, and brought one of them a Frenchman off with them, but the reſt with the Marquiſs being well horſed, eſcaped.

That the Plunder of the Field was ſo rich, that the Camp was like a Fair; Cloth, Silk, and all manner of Clothes to be ſold, and at Dublin, the Officers did not know their own Soldiers, they were become ſo gallant, they had good ſtore of Wine, which they drank in their Hats, knocking out the Heads of the Veſſels.

That they took Ormond's Cabinet with his Letters and Papers of Concernment and divers Priſoners of Quality, beſides ſix Lieutenant Colonels, eight Majors, forty one Captains, fifty eight Lieutenants, forty two Enſigns, and a great number of other Officers, and 2100 common Soldiers.

That the Enemy at their marching off had quit ſeveral Garriſons, that a Day of Thankſgiving was appointed at Dublin for this Victory, after which, Colonel Jones and the reſt intended to march out again.

13. The Houſe did not ſit.

Scotland. Letters from Scotland, that the General Aſſembly there had publiſhed a Remonſtrance or Declaration of the Grounds of their late Proceedings, and of their Intentions for maintenance of the Government, ſettling Church Diſcipline, and keeping good Correſpondence with England, &c.

Monk. Much labour was by Major General Monk's Friends, for the clearing him from the Reflection upon him, by his Ceſſation with Owen Roe Oneal, for which end they cauſed the Articles of that Ceſſation to be printed, and publiſhed, together with the Reaſons which induced Major General Monk to make that Ceſſation.

Yet all would not ſerve, but it ſtuck with many to his Prejudice, who both ſuſpected Colonel Anno 1649. Monk's Fidelity, and ſharply inveighed againſt any Peace made by thoſe of the Parliament's Party with the bloody and execrable Iriſh Rebels.

14. Upon reading the Letters from Dublin in the Houſe, they ordered a Day of publick Thankſgiving for that great Victory.

That an Act be brought in, for ſettling 1000 l. per annum Land upon Lieutenant General Jones and his Heirs, that Thanks be ſent to him and the reſt for that good Service.

Jones. That the Council of State prepare the Letter of Thanks to be ſigned by the Speaker, and do take into conſideration the Requeſt of Lieutenant General Jones for continuing Sir George Askue Vice-Admiral of the Iriſh Seas.

That it be referred to the Truſtees for Sale of the King's Goods, to chooſe ſix of the beſt Horſes in Tilbury Race for Lieutenant General Jones, as a Gratuity from the Houſe.

That 200 l. be given to Captain Otway, who brought the Letters.

The Petitions of the Brewers referred to the Committee of Exciſe, and they to bring in a new Model for the Exciſe.

The Act paſſed for the more ſpeedy collecting of the Exciſe.

Order for ſome Penſions to be continued to Soldiers Wives.

And for ſome ſcandalous Pamphlets, and their Authors to be examined and puniſhed, and that Mr. Caughton a London Miniſter now in Priſon be diſcharged.

Letters from Cheſter that Ormond was rallied to 12000 Men, and had taken in ſome Forts.

Letters from Cardiffe, that divers of the Lieutenant of Ireland's Soldiers went away from him.

That Colonel Cook's Regiment was in a great Mutiny at Minehead, and many of them went away, but the Captain appeaſed the Mutiny, and forced his Men on Ship Board.

15. A Petition of the Earl and Counteſs of Thommond, touching a Debt from the Earl of Peterborough, referred to a Committee.

An Act paſſed for ſettling 2000 l. per annum upon the Lord Preſident Bradſhaw, another for 1000 l. per annum upon Colonel Martin out of Eynſham.

Another for 2000 l. per annum upon Major General Skippon.

The Act publiſhed for the Compoſition of the Delinquents of North Wales for 24000 l.

Letters from Ireland, that the Parliament having ſent ſome Corn, and two hundred Soldiers to Londonderry, and two of Sir Charles Coot's Brothers being come to him with ſeven hundred Horſe, he ſallied out of the Town, and ſcoured the Country for ſeven Miles on all ſides of the City, took many Cows and Priſoners, and killed all whom he found in Arms, then returned to Derry.

Petition. 16. A Petition from the General and his Council of Officers to the Houſe, praying, firſt, That all penal Statutes formerly made, and late Ordinances, whereby many conſcientious People are moleſted, and the Propagation of the Goſpel hindered, may be removed.

2. That it is not their Meaning, that the Liberty deſired by them ſhould extend to the Toleration of Popery, Prelacy, the Book of Common Prayer, publick Scorn, and Contempt of God and his Word.

But deſire that all open Acts of Profaneneſs, or Drunkenneſs, Swearing, Uncleanneſs, and the like, be vigorouſly proceeded againſt, and puniſhed in all Perſons whatſoever.

3. That upon the ſenſe of the late great Mercy in Ireland, they would extend Favour to thoſe in Reſtraint, who have formerly ſerved them and this Nation againſt the common Enemy, and for the future all diſturbers of the publick Peace to be vigorouſly proceeded againſt. Auguſt.

4. That ſpeedy Conſideration may be had of the great Oppreſſions, by reaſon of the Multiplicity of unneceſſary Laws, with their Intricacies and Delays, which tend to the Profit of ſome particular Men, but much to the Expence and Damage of the whole.

Colonel Goffe and Pride, and other Officers, who preſented this Petition, were called in to the Bar, and the Speaker by Command of the Houſe gave them Thanks for their conſtant good Affections, and in particular for this Petition. Anſwer.

Acquainting them that the Houſe had the things deſired already under Conſideration, and that this Petition ſhould haſten the granting the ſame with all poſſible Speed and Convenience.

Then it was voted, That all penal Statutes and Ordinances, whereby many conſcientious People are much moleſted, and the Propagation of the Goſpel hindred, may be removed and referred to the Committee, for bringing in an Act for eaſe of tender Conſciences, to bring in the Act according to this Debate. Votes.

And referred it to a Committee, who are to bring in an Act of Pardon, to comprize herein the three Propoſals of this Petition.

And referred to the Committee concerning the Laws of the Land, to conſider of the fourth Propoſal of this Petition.

The Act paſſed for paying 3500 l. to the Widow of Mr. Blackſtone a Member of the Houſe.

An Order for Mr. Hall, Attorney of the Dutchy, to have the Privilege to plead within the Bar.

The like Order was made for Mr. Steele, and alſo to be freed from his Reading.

Order that Mr. Stevens, a Member of the Houſe and a common Lawyer, be made Judge of the Admiralty; for which Place he was not very fit.

A Declaration and Narrative paſſed of the Grounds and Reaſons, for ſetting apart a Day of publick Thankſgiving.

17. Debate of the Act for Payment of the Arrears of Colonel Thornhaugh deceaſed.

Order for the Sergeants Men to diſperſe the Copies of the Act for the Thankſgiving Day, and referred to the Council of State to conſider how the Houſe may be eaſed of this Trouble for the future, and to give Order for the diſperſing of Papers upon the like Occaſions.

The Accounts of Colonel Willoughby referred to be audited.

A Petition of Mariners referred to a Committee.

An Act paſſed for ſettling 1000 l. per annum, upon Lieutenant General Jones.

Order for an Act to ſettle 500 l. per annum, out of the Iriſh Rebels Lands upon Sir Charles Coot. Sir Charles Coot.

An Act paſſed for the Payment of the Arrears to the Engliſh Officers in Ireland, for their former Services in England.

The Houſe adjourned for three Days.

18. Letters of Confirmation of raiſing the Siege before Londonderry by Sir Charles Coot's Brother, in which Service many of the Enemy were taken Priſoners and divers ſlain.

Letters from Cheſter, that Colonel Jones was again gone out of Dublin to beſiege Drogheda, Anno 1649. that Ormond had diſmounted moſt of the Iriſh for not fighting, and had turned all the Engliſh out of Trym Caſtle.

That the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland was embarqued with his Army.

Chancery. The Houſe being adjourned, Mr. Speaker, my Brother Commiſſioner Keeble, Mr. Chute, Mr. Adams, Mr. Steele and I, by Appointment met in the Morning at Mr. Attorney General's Houſe, where we conferred together about the making new Rules for Reformation of the Proceedings in Chancery, and agreed upon ſome general Points, which we referred to ſome of the Company to draw up into Form.

Mr. Attorney, as was uſual with him, gave us great Entertainment at Dinner, and in the Evening I went to bed to Sion Houſe, which the Earl of Northumberland freely lent me.

Iriſh Letters. 20. Letters to the Couneil of State of the embarquing of the Lieutenant of Ireland, on Monday laſt, and of Commiſſioner General Ireton on the Wedneſday after, with a great Fleet, that nevertheleſs they left three Regiments behind for want of Shipping.

That the Engliſh Ships were very forward for the Voyage, and ſo were the Flemiſh Bottoms when their Money was punctually paid them.

That no Proviſion was wanting for the Tranſportation of this Army, and there is a conſiderable Stock of Money, with Plenty of Ammunition, that the Soldiers whilſt they were on Shore, behaved themſelves very civilly, and paid for what they took, and any that were debauched were ſeverely puniſhed, that there was much ſeeking of God by Prayer for a Bleſſing on them.

Letters that the Cavaliers endeavoured to raiſe Differences betwixt the two Nations, but ſince the News of the late Defeat in Ireland, they are very ſtill.

Morrice and Blackſton. Letters from York, that one Morrice, and one Blackſton, were arraigned before Baron Thorp, and Judge Puleſton, for levying War againſt the Kingdom; they pleaded not guilty, but deſired as they were Marſhal Men, that they might be tried by Marſhal Law, which was denied to them.

Morrice at laſt ſaid, he would be tried by God and the Country, and ſeventeen Witneſſes proved foul Crimes againſt him. He had two Sheets of Paper written with Matters of Law, and Statutes, many of which he pleaded, and urged the caſe of the War betwixt the two Houſes of York and Lancaſter, the Difference of which from his Caſe was ſhewed by the Judges.

Then he produced a Commiſſion from the King when he was Prince; the Judges told him that the Prince was a Subject as well as he, and muſt be tried by the ſame Law.

He was found guilty of Treaſon and manacled with Irons, at which he ſaid, What, a Marſhal Man ironed? the like Precedent was never before known.

He deſired to have a ſtrong Guard, ſaying, Let me be damned if I eſcape; but it was denied, ſo was a Copy of his Indictment, and to have Council, or to be exchanged.

He and Blackſton were both condemned.

Letters from Cheſter, that Lieutenant General Jones having put Dublin into a good Poſture, was marched forth with 1000 Horſe, and 3000 Foot, and ſat down before Tredah; that Ormond executed many for Runaways, that the Markets are full again at Dublin.

Letters from Paris that Prince Charles received an Account from Ormond of this Defeat given him by Jones, and blamed Inchequin's Horſe, and others that betrayed him, and ran away, Auguſt. and Inchequin by his Letters to the Prince complained againſt Ormond, for fighting when he was gone from him with 2000 Horſe; that Ormond diſſuaded the Prince from coming into Ireland.

21. The Houſe ſat, and received Letters from Tender Conſciences. the Lieutenant of Ireland of his then being ſetting Sail for Ireland, and offering to their Conſideration the Removal of penal Statutes that enforce the Conſciences of honeſt conſcientious Men.

The Houſe ordered the Committees to make their Reports touching the Eaſe of tender Conſciences.

And an Act to be brought in for Commiſſioners to be choſen in all Countries, to make choice of fit and able Men to be made Miniſters, that cannot conform to the preſent Ordinance for Ordination of Perſons to preach.

Orders about Monies for the maimed Soldiers, and about Diſburſements for diſbanding Soldiers.

The Houſe was acquainted with divers Papers taken in a Frenchman's Trunk at Rye, diſcovering a popiſh Deſign to be ſet on foot in England, with Commiſſions from the Biſhop of Chalcedon, by Authority of the Church of Rome, to popiſh Prieſts and others, for ſettling the Diſcipline of the Romiſh Church in England and Scotland.

Referred to Mr. Attorney General to make a farther Examination of this Buſineſs, and report it to the Houſe.

Some ſent to ſeize Books of Lieutenant Colo- Lilburne. nel Lilburne newly printed, were perſuaded by him to look to their own Liberties, and let the Books alone.

Letters that the Lieutenant of Ireland was ſafely landed at Dublin and all his Men with him, in about forty Ships.

That Commiſſary General Ireton with about ſixty Ships more full of Men, Arms, and Proviſions, were with a good Wind ſailing for Munſter.

22. Petitions of the Miners of Derbyſhire, and of the Earl of Rutland, referred to a Committee.

Petition of the City of London for more Houſes to ſet the Poor on work, referred to a Committee.

The Arreſt of a Member of the Houſe (not one that ſat) was referred to be examined by a Committee.

An Act paſſed touching Plantations about Florida near Virginia.

Letters of great Complaints of the Taxes in Com- plaints. Lancaſhire, and That the meaner ſort threaten to leave their Habitations, and their Wives and Children, to be maintained by the Gentry; That they can no longer bear the Oppreſſion, to have the Bread taken out of the Mouths of their Wives and Children by Taxes; and that if an Army of the Turks come to relieve them, they will join with them.

Reaſons againſt the arreſting of Mens Perſons, were preſented to the Members of Parliament.

I ſent out my Keepers into Windſor Foreſt to harbour a Stag to be hunted to-morrow Morning; but I perſuaded Colonel Ludlow that it would be hard to ſhew him any Sport, the beſt Stags being all deſtroyed, but he was very earneſt to have ſome Sport, and I thought not fit to deny him.

23. The Arrears of the Fee-Farm Rents of French Trade. Carliſle remitted by the Houſe.

The King of France had prohibited all Trade with England, the Engliſh Merchants took this as a Breach of the League, and thereupon addreſt themſelves by Petition to the Council of State, deſiring Anno 1649. deſiring them to report this matter to the Houſe.

Votes. The Council reported the whole matter to the Houſe, who upon long debate thereof voted That no Wines, Wool, or Silk, of the Growth of France, and uſually vended in this Nation, ſhall from thenceforth be imported into any Port thereof, or vended here, upon Forfeiture of the Goods and Ship that ſhall import them.

Upon the Queſtion whether Linen Cloth ſhould be likewiſe prohibited? It was reſolved in the negative, in regard of the general and neceſſary uſe thereof; and they referred it to the Council of State to bring in an Act contrary to theſe Votes.

Lieutenant of Ireland. Letters That when the Lieutenant of Ireland landed at Dublin, he was moſt heroically entertained, with the reſounding Echo of the great Guns round about the City, and great Concourſe of People to ſee him, to whom he made a very grateful Speech with his Hat in his hand, and there was a great Cry, that they would all live and die with him.

That the next day after the raiſing of the Siege of Londonderry, Sir Charles Coot ſummoned the Garriſon that was near to it, in the Poſſeſſion of the Enemy, and that within two Days, the new Fort, Slogh Caſtle, and other Forts were delivered up to him, with the Ammunition, and Artillery, all upon Quarter.

My Keepers did harbour a Stag. Colonel Ludlow, Mr. Oldeſworth, Mr. Thomas, and other Gentlemen met me by day-break. It was a young Stag, but very luſty and in good caſe. The firſt Ring which the Stag had led the Gallants, was above twenty Miles.

24. Order for 20*l.* for the Burial of Mr. Powel, a reduced Officer.

Ireland. A Letter from Sir Charles Coot to the Houſe, That Charles Coot his Brother had concluded a Peace with Major General Row O Neal, and his Reaſons for the doing of it were for Preſervation of the Garriſon of Londonderry, and the Engliſh Intereſt in thoſe parts.

Sir Tho. Coot. After reading of the Articles and a long Debate, ordered that a Copy of a Declaration of the Houſe, upon Major General Monk's joining with Owen Roe O Neal, ſhould be forthwith ſent to Sir Charles Coot; and in vindication of his Honour, they voted, That they approved of the Fidelity, Care, and Vigilancy of Sir Charles Coot, in preſerving the Engliſh Intereſt in Ireland, and holding out Londonderry againſt the Scots.

They referred it to the Council of State, to take care for the ſending of theſe Votes to Sir Charles Coot, and for relieving him with Proviſions and Ammunition.

Order for 100*l.* to Mr. King, who brought the Letters from Sir Charles Coot, for his good Services.

Referred to the Council of State to examine the Buſineſs of Captain Keſar mentioned in Sir Charles Coot's Letter, and to ſend for and ſecure him if they find cauſe.

Vote. 25. By Vote the Houſe declared, That all ſuch Engliſh and Scots, and all others that have engaged for the Parliament of England in the Nation of Scotland, and have revolted from that Service, and all ſuch as have or ſhall adhere unto, or join with Charles Stuart (eldeſt Son of the late King) in that Nation, are Traitors, and ſhall have their Eſtates confiſcated, and their Perſons proceeded againſt by Martial Law.

Order for theſe Votes to be printed and publiſhed, and a Copy of them to be ſent to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland.

Order to forbid Proceedings in the Compoſition of the Earl of Derby, becauſe he holds the Iſle of Man againſt the Parliament. Auguſt.

By two printed Papers, and three Letters to the Committee of the Army for diſcovery of criminal Offenders, Mr. Speaker was taxed for an ill Member, and that he had conveyed a great Sum of Money to the King, and Matters of Falſhoods, and Breach of Truſt are charged on him. Speaker taxed.

Upon the Order of the General, the Officers of the Army certified under their Hands, That they never examined any matter touching the Speaker, nor had any Order from his Excellency for that purpoſe, to authorize it. Army.

That they find the ſame Buſineſs had been judicially heard before a Committee of Parliament, and by them reported to the Houſe, who declared thoſe Complaints raiſed, and proſecuted, falſe, malicious, and ſcandalous againſt the Speaker, and that exemplary Puniſhment be inflicted upon the Proſecutors.

The Officers of the Army conclude their Certificates, That they humbly conceive the ſaid Information raiſed, and promoted ſince the Judgment of the Houſe, as aforeſaid, was a Practice to bring an Odium upon the Speaker, who hath ſo highly merited from the Publick.

An Advertiſement publiſhed, That if any Countryman be injured by the Soldiers taking of free Quarter, contrary to the Act, that upon Complaint to the Judge Advocate of the Army, and Proof thereof made, he ſhall have Satisfaction out of the Pay of the Soldier, and Protection from the Army.

27. The Houſe ſat not.

Letters from Dublin to the Council of State, of ſome Correſpondence betwixt the Governor of Tredah, and Lieutenant General Jones, and that Ormond came thither with 1500 Horſe, and 2000 Foot, That Owen Roe O Neal conceiving that he had merited from the Parliament, deſired a Convoy for his Men to ſerve the Spaniard, but nothing was granted.

Letters that the Scots Army was full of Malignants, and the Nation full of Fears, That nothing will give Satisfaction there, but the King's putting Malignants from him, and granting the Particulars of the Covenant.

Letters from Mr. Peters to the Council, giving them an Account of the Fleet's ſetting ſail for Ireland, &c.

Lieutenant Colonel Morrice, Governor of Pontefract Caſtle for the King, was executed.

Letters that five Men of War wearing the Scots Colours ſet upon five Ships of the Parliament's, killed four of their Men, wounded eighteen, and did much prejudice to the Ships.

The Governors of the new Corporation in London, for ſetting the Poor to work, ſent their Warrants, requiring the Church-Wardens, and Overſeers of the Poor, in every Pariſh to return the Names to them of all ſuch as are able to work, and have not Means to maintain themſelves, and of all who are not able to work and want Livelihood. Po

29. The

Anno 1649.

29. The publick Thankſgiving-day ſolemnized.

Proclamation.

The Lord Lieutenant of Ireland ſhortly after his landing at Dublin, publiſhed a Proclamation, reciting the great Mercies of God to that City, particularly in the late Defeat given to the Rebels, who incompaſſed it round about, and finding that notwithſtanding the Goodneſs of God to them, yet by profane Swearing, Curſing, and Drunkenneſs, his holy Name is daily diſhonoured and blaſphemed, contrary to the Laws of God, and the known Laws of that Land, and to the Articles of War.

He commands the Mayor and Magiſtrates of the City, and the Officers of the Army to put in due Execution the Laws againſt ſuch Offenders, and that he will puniſh the Neglect and Contempt of this Proclamation, with the ſevereſt Puniſhment of the Law.

30. The Act for Relief of Priſoners for Debt, was after a long Debate and difference in Opinion ordered upon the Queſtion to be ingroſſed.

Sir K. Digby.

Upon a Report from the Council of their Opinion, That Sir Kenelm Digby is a dangerous Perſon, and to know the Pleaſure of the Houſe concerning him; they voted That he was not within the Compaſs of the Votes for compounding for his Delinquency.

And that he be injoined to depart the Commonwealth within twenty Days, and not to return without leave of the Houſe under pain of Death and Confiſcation of his Eſtate.

Walter Montague.

They alſo voted that Mr. Walter Montague ſhall depart this Nation within ten Days, and not to return without leave of the Houſe, upon pain of Death and Confiſcation of his Eſtate, and that this Vote be ſent to him.

Ordered that the Commiſſions formerly granted by the King, and his Privy Council to Mr. Mayo and others, for apprehending of convicted Recuſants, be renewed. Septemb.

The Houſe declared, That if any after the publiſhing of theſe Votes ſhall harbour, or conceal the Bodies of Sir Kenelm Digby, or Mr. Montague, their Eſtates ſhall be ſequeſtred.

Order for theſe Votes to be printed, and proclaimed in the City.

Referred to the Council of State to take care for the apprehending of Sir John Winter, he having ſtaid beyond the time formerly granted to him.

This being Friday, the Houſe adjourned till next Tueſday.

September, 1649.

September 1. This Day the Houſe did not ſit.

Letters of ſome of the Train'd Horſe, and a Regiment of Foot deſigned for Ireland, yet behind; and Shipping expected for them.

Letters of a Ship in Weymouth Harbour, that by the late fierce Thunder and Lightning there, had her Main-maſt rent from the top to the bottom in forty Pieces, and the Miſſen-maſt quite hurried out of its Place, and ſo broken, that if ſhe had been at Sea it would have ſunk her.

3. Letters giving an Account of the Parliament's Ships before Kingſale, and Propoſals for a winter Guard, and that Prince Rupert hanged ten of his Men, for offering to go away from him.

Scots Letters.

Letters that in Scotland they are framing new Letters to be ſent to their King, putting him in mind of the Covenant; but for his parting with Malignants, a few will ſerve their turn, and if he ſatisfy the Kirk he then becomes a godly Man. That thoſe of their Party are faithful, and none other. That they put no difference betwixt Malignants and Sectaries.

That if the King employ excommunicated Montroſe, he will be left to himſelf. That they ſee it will be impoſſible to govern theſe wilder Parts of Britain, without the Name and Authority of a King.

That more and more Witches were condemned to the Fire: two that Day, eleven the next Day, and twenty five burnt before.

Letters from Cheſter, That Ireton was deſigned for Munſter, but after ten Days lying at Sea he was fain to put in at Dublin. That Ormond cleared Tredah of all ſuperfluous Perſons, and made it as ſtrong as he could. That the Buff Coats were in the Pulpits of Dublin.

An Act paſſed, prohibiting the bringing of Hats or Hatbands from beyond Seas.

An Act paſſed for all Officers to take the Oath to be true and faithful to the Commonwealth of England without King or Lords.

One Sumner for counterfeiting the Hand and Seal of the General, and cozening the People thereby, was committed to the Marſhal Goal, to be tried for it by a Council of War.

4. Order to renew a Leaſe for forty Years of Deans Lands, for relief of twenty poor People in Lincoln.

Poor Priſoners.

The Act paſt for diſcharging poor Priſoners for Debt, who are unable to ſatisfy their Creditors.

Letters from St. Germains, That there were great Conſultations what Courſe ſhould be taken by the Prince of Wales.

Letters that four Men of War, Oſtenders, took four Coal Ships, and ſunk three of them, gave the Anno 1649. the fourth to forty poor Mariners to carry them home into England, having taken from them all they had.

Letters from Oſtend, That there were great Endeavours to draw in Aſſiſtance for Prince Charles, pretending that Ormond was poſſeſſed of Dublin, and with a very great Army was preparing for England, and that the Prince was going over to take poſſeſſion of Ireland.

That there was a Proclamation reciting that by the Mariners there going to the King of Scotland, in hopes of profit, the King of Spain's Navy wanted Men, and therefore commands that upon pain of Death no Fleming or Spaniard do ſerve in the Ships of the King of England.

5. Debate of a new Oath, and Engagement to the preſent Government.

A Proclamation from the General, forbidding the Soldiers to have Hounds or Greyhounds, or to kill Deer, or Conies in any Chaſes, Parks, or Warrens.

I received this Letter from Mr. Sergeant Widdrington.

To the Right Honourable the Lord Whitelocke, one of the Lords Commiſſioners for the Great Seal of England, theſe Preſents.

My Lord,

I Am now in my return from Berwick, from whence I hoped I might have been able, to have furniſhed you with ſome Scotiſh News, by way of return, for the good News of Ireland, which you were pleaſed to impart unto me by your Letter. I humbly thank you both for the Letter and the News, and muſt remain your Debtor for both, and for many other things beſides. It's not credible that Berwick ſhould ſtand on Scotiſh Ground, and participate ſo little of the Novelties of that Nation. You hear more of Scotland in London, than we do at Berwick. The things we hear of that Nation, in this Place, firſt go to London, without diſcovery by us, and are trimmed and dreſſed there by an Intelligencer or diurnal Man, and then we receive them in looſe Sheets, after they have travelled above 500 Miles. I met at Berwick with a Diſcovery of Witches, by a Scotchman, who profeſſeth himſelf an Artiſt that way. I know not whence he derives his Skill, his Salary was 20 s. for every Witch, he got thirty Pounds after that rate. Theſe thirty ſilly Women whom he avows to be Witches, upon their Examination, ſome of them confeſs themſelves to be ſo, but with no harm to any body. Two or three of them ſay, they were at Preſton Battle, and made many a Scot fall that Day. I will trouble you no further with this Relation for the preſent. All theſe Women are committed to Priſon, I ſhall I hope be able to wait on you about Michaelmas, I preſent my Service to your Lordſhip, and to my other Lords Commiſſioners of the Great Seal. I ſhall ever remain,

My Lord,

Your Lordſhips humble Servant,

Thomas Wriddrington.

6. Order for Mr. Hallowes to have his Leaſe renewed of Lands, which he held of the Duke of Bucks.

Order giving more time to double upon the purchaſe of Deans and Chapters Lands.

Order touching Compoſitions.

Sir John Winter diſclaimed the Pope, and all foreign Power, and put himſelf upon the Mercy of the Parliament.

Win-

Letters that the Lieutenant of Ireland muſtered 17 Regiments of Foot, and 5000 Horſe, in all 15000. Septemb.

Eighteen Soldiers brought Priſoners for ſtealing Deer in Surrey.

The Act paſſed for Oaths to Mayors, Juſtices of Peace, and other Officers in this Form.

You ſhall ſwear that you ſhall be true and faithful to the Commonwealth of England, as it is now eſtabliſhed, without a King, or Houſe of Lords. You ſhall well and truly execute the Office of a Mayor &c. Oath.

Divers Compoſitions of Delinquents paſt.

Letters that Colonel Popham loſt a Veſſel, overſet with the foul Weather.

Mr. Love was before the Committee of plundered Miniſters, but the Charge againſt him not proved.

Letters that the Lieutenant of Ireland was marched forth out of Dublin.

Soldiers appointed to be tried by a Court Marſhal, for killing of Deer.

Two Soldiers ſentenced by a Court Marſhal, one to ride the Wooden-Horſe with eight Muskets at his Heels; and the other to run the Gantlope, for robbing an Orchard, and affronting an Officer of the Army.

Another of reduced Officers and Soldiers, for their Arrears, referred to a Committee.

17. Several Gentlemen of the Houſe, and of the Army, and others, met with ſome of thoſe called Levellers, to confer together, and endeavour a right Underſtanding, and Agreement between all Intereſts. Levellers.

And for the better effecting thereof, it was moved that Walwyn, Prince, and Overton, cloſe Priſoners in the Tower, might have the Liberty of the Tower. Which the Council thought fit, and upon their Reports to the Houſe it was aſſented unto.

A Petition of the Garriſon of Plymouth referred to a Committee.

Allowed to the Earl of Denbigh 1700 l. for his Charges due to him when he was Ambaſſador in Italy.

Order for an Act for 7000 l. for the Town of Taunton out of Sir John Stowell's Eſtate, and another Delinquent's.

The Houſe adjourned.

8. Letters of ſome diſorder in the Garriſon of Oxford, fomented by the Levellers, and Cavaliers. The Soldiers propoſed to have a new Repreſentative, and this to be diſſolved, to have Agitators, to maintain the Engagements at Triplo-Heath, &c.

Intercepted Letters to the Lord Cottington, adviſing the King to a ſeeming Compliance with the Levellers, as the likelieſt way to do his work, that they have cauſed the Speaker to be accuſed by ſome diſcontented Priſoners, and that the beſt Service the King's Friends do him, is to ſet on the Levellers. Intercepted Letters.

Colonel Thomlinſon, and Colonel Ingolesby ſent to Oxon, to quiet the Diſtractions there.

Letters from Dublin that the Lieutenant was marched with 10000 Horſe and Foot towards Tredah, to find out Ormond, who, with the Lord of Ardes, was very numerous: but many Engliſh came from them to the Lieutenant, and ſuch as Ormond took going from him were preſently executed.

One Mr. Williams ſent to Priſon for reading the Common-Prayer publickly.

10. The Council ordered both the General's Regiments, and Okey's Dragoons, and ſome other other Regiments commanded by Major General Lambert to march to Oxford, to quiet the Diſtempers there.

Letters from Dublin, that the Lieutenant with about 12000 Horſe and Foot, was come near Tredah, which Ormond had victualled for ſix Months, and fortified, and put in it 2000 Iriſh Foot, and 200 Horſe, and made Sir Arthur Aſhton, formerly Governor of Reading for the King, Governor of this Place.

That the Lieutenant ordered Ships to ſtop Proviſions from the Town, and to furniſh the Beſiegers; that he ſent 1000 Foot by Sea to Sir Charles Coot, and ordered 500 Horſe to march by land to him.

An intercepted Letter from Prince Rupert from Kingſale to Ormond, of the wants of the Fleets, with Propoſal for Proviſions.

11. The Impoſition of four Shillings per Chaldron upon Coals taken off, for the benefit of the Poor.

Levellers at Oxford.

Captain Wagſtaffe gave an account to the Houſe of the particular Paſſages in the Mutiny at Oxford, how they impriſoned their Officers, ſet Guards, fortified New-College, and other Acts of Hoſtility. That Colonel Ingoldsby their Colonel ſent to them from the Parliament, was put under a Guard by them, and how they choſe Agitators.

That the ſecured Officers walking near to the Guards, after two Days diſcourſing with the private Soldiers on the Guard, and ſome of them not well ſatisfied with theſe Proceedings of their Fellow-ſoldiers, which theſe Officers fomented, and demanded Liberty to go away: Some of the Guards were for it, and others againſt it, whereupon the Officers forced their way through the Guards, and ſo paſt them, and went up to their Colonel Ingoldsby, and told him how the Matter ſtood.

He with his two Men came to the Guards that were put upon him, and without ſaying much to them, came through them, and commanded the Soldiers to march with him, which they did, and came to the Officers in the Street.

One of the Agitators on Horſeback killed a Soldier who offered to ſtop him, and the Guard which the Colonel brought with him took the reſt of the Agitators Priſoners; many Soldiers came in to the Colonel as he went along in the Streets, and marched with him.

Then he went up to New-College, and commanded the Colours, which were brought to him: He ſent for a Party of Horſe to Whately, and placed his own Guards.

The Soldiers generally obeyed him, and manifeſted great Joy that they were thus diſengaged.

Here we may note the Inconſtancy of the Multitude and of the private Soldiers, how ſoon and upon how ſmall an Occaſion their Minds alter, how little they are to be truſted, and how much of Danger comes by Actions of this Nature.

Referred to the Council of State to give Directions to the Attorney General to proceed againſt the Mutineers at Oxford, by a Commiſſion of Oyer and Terminer for Treaſon, and to appoint other Council to aſſiſt him, and a Sollicitor, and to prepare a Declaration touching this Buſineſs.

Dublin Sept. 15th.

Letters that one Den a Leveller, formerly condemned by a Council of War at Burford to be ſhot to Death, and afterwards pardoned, hath raiſed a Tumult in Sturbridge againſt the Commiſſioners of Exciſe, and got together 300 Men armed with Muskets, Swords, &c. who fell upon Captain Preſcot, a Commiſſioner in his Quarters, ſhot him in three places, took from him and the reſt of the Commiſſioners and Soldiers, all their Money, Horſes, Arms, and Clothes.

The General wrote to the Governor of Staffford to apprehend Den, and to ſuppreſs the Tumult.

28. The Buſineſs of the Tumult at Sturbridge by Den continued in the height of it, and they ſent into the neighbouring Towns to come in and join with them, and beat up Drums for that purpoſe, but few came in to them.

29. Letters from Cromwell.

S I R,

Letters from Cromwell. It hath pleaſed God to bleſs our Endeavours at Drogheda, after Battery we ſtorm'd it. The Enemy were about 3000 ſtrong in the Town. They made a ſtout Reſiſtance, and near 1000 of our Men being entred, the Enemy forced them out again. But God giving a new Courage to our Men, they attempted again, and entred, beating the Enemy from their Defences. The Enemy had made three Retrenchments, both to the right and left, where we entred, all which they were forced to quit, being thus entred, we refuſed them Quarter, having the day before ſummoned the Town. I believe we put to the Sword the whole number of the Defendants. I do not think thirty of the whole number eſcaped with their Lives, thoſe that did are in ſafe Cuſtody for Barbadoes, ſince that time the Enemy quitted to us Trym and Dundalk, in Trym they were in ſuch haſte that they left their Guns behind them. This hath been a marvellous great Mercy. The Enemy being not willing to put an iſſue upon a Field Battle, had put into this Garriſon almoſt all their prime Soldiers, being about 3000 Horſe and Foot, under the Command of their beſt Officers, Sir Arthur Aſhton being made Governor. There were ſome ſeven or eight Regiments, Ormond's being one, under the Command of Sir Edmund Verney. I do not believe, neither do I hear that any Officer eſcaped with his Life, ſave only one Lieutenant, who, I hear, going to the Enemy, ſaid, that he was the only Man that eſcaped of all the Garriſon. The Enemy were filled upon this with much Terror, and truly I believe this bitterneſs will ſave much effuſion of Blood, through the Goodneſs of God.

I wiſh that all honeſt Hearts may give the Glory of this to God alone, to whom indeed the Praiſe of this Mercy belongs, for Inſtruments they were very inconſiderable, the Work throughout.

Then he gives an Account of his purpoſe for Wexford, and concludes. Captain Brandly did with forty or fifty of his Men very gallantly ſtorm Tenalis, for which he deſerves the Thanks of the State. October.

O. Cromwell.

Sept. 16th. 1649.

The Council of State ordered that the Miniſters in the ſeveral Churches, to-morrow being the Lord's Day, ſhould acquaint the People. And according to the Order of the Council of State, the Miniſters of London acquainted the People with the great Succeſſes of the Parliament's Forces in Ireland, and returned Thanks to God for the ſame.

October, 1649.

October 1. More Letters of the Particulars of the taking of Drogheda. Drogheda.

That the Breaches not being made low enough, the Horſe could not go on with the Foot, but the Foot alone ſtormed, and entred the Town, but by reaſon of the numerouſneſs and ſtoutneſs of the Enemy, who maintained the Breach as gallantly as ever Men did, and by the Death of Colonel Caſtle, whoſe Regiment was one of thoſe that ſtormed (and he was ſlain at the Storm) our Men were diſheartned, and retreated. Which my Lord Lieutenant ſeeing, went himſelf to the Breach, and after a little time, a freſh reſerve of Colonel Ewer's Men fell on with the reſt very couragiouſly, and God abated the Courage of the Enemy, they fled before us till we gained the Town, and they all agreed in the not giving of Quarter, and other particular Paſſages before-mentioned.

2. Letters from the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland to the Parliament, and Council of State, of the Succeſs at Drogheda more particularly.

That Sir Arthur Aſhton the Governor, and divers conſiderable Officers got up into the Mill Mount, a very ſtrong Fort in the Town, but Cromwell's Men got up to them, and put them all to the Sword; having Command not to ſpare any that were in Arms in the Town.

That about 140 got into a Tower, and being ſummon'd would not yield, but killed and wounded ſome of our Men, and when they ſubmitted, their Officers were knocked on the Head, and every tenth Man of the Soldiers killed, and the reſt were ſhipped for Barbadoes.

That theſe People thruſt the Proteſtants out of the great Church, and ſet up Maſs there, and in this very Place; 1000 of them were put to the Sword flying thither for ſafety; their Friars and Prieſts were knocked on the Head promiſcuouſly with the others, who were in Arms.

The Letters ſaid farther, That in Sir Arthur Aſhton's Pocket were Letters taken from Ormond to him, aſſuring him of relief in a ſhort time.

Cromwell himſelf led on his Men to the Storm; the Prieſts and Friars were killed with the reſt.

That Ormond and Inchequin were at variance.

The Parliament ordered a Day of publick Thankſgiving for the great Succeſſes in Ireland.

The Inhabitants of Wicklow, being all Roman Catholicks, ſubmitted to the Lord Lieutenant, who marched with his Army to the Weſt, for reducing of Munſter.

Letters of more Moſs Troopers taken.

Letters from Scotland, That Mr. Windham was gone to their King with as inviting a Meſſage as Pen could draw or People ſend, promiſing him Perſonal Protection, Reſtauration, &c. and no Condition, for ſo much as ſubſcribing the Covenant. Scots.

Several

3. Several Votes paſt, and ordered to be printed, for Repayment of Money lent upon the publick Faith.

Letters from France, That Prince Charles went from the Court towards Caen in Normandy, and from thence intended to go for Jerſey. That his Train was but ſixty Horſes, and ſix Coaches with ſix Horſes a piece, and that many of his Servants, and ſome Gentlemen went on Foot.

That the Prince had but three hundred Piſtoles left him, to defray the Charges of his Journey.

Petition. 4. A Letter from the General, with a Petition incloſed from the Officers of the Army, being the humble Deſires of the Council of War, in prevention of the diſorderly buying of Debentures of the Soldiers, at inconſiderable Rates. Referred to a ſelect Committee with Power to ſend for, and confer with ſuch Perſons as they ſhall think fit in order to that Buſineſs.

The Election of Alderman Fowke to be Lord Mayor of London, and his being preſented to the Houſe with a Speech by their Recorder Steele. The Houſe approved the Election.

Letters from Salop of their Miniſters preaching bitter Invectives againſt the Parliament.

Acts. 5. Theſe Acts paſſed.

To give Liberty of Tranſporting ungarbled Spices.

For ſettling the Accounts of the Commonwealth.

For Redemption of Captives.

Order for a Declaration to be publiſhed to the Kingdom, upon Sale of the Lands of the late King, Queen, and Prince.

Letters from York that ſome of the reduced Officers there ſeized upon the Perſon of Mr. Rymer a Committee-man, and carry'd him away with them; but being overtaken by ſome eminent Perſons, by their Mediation he was releaſed.

Letters that ſome Aldermen of Wexford were ſent out to treat with the Lord Lieutenant ten Miles before he came to the Town.

That Inchequin would ſurrender up his Forces and Garriſons, ſo he might have Security of his Life and of his Eſtate of 1000*l. per annum*.

That the Earl of Antrim would ſurrender four Garriſons upon condition to enjoy his Life and Eſtate.

That Colonel Venables was made Governor of the North of Ireland.

That moſt of Colonel Ewer's Officers were wounded at the ſtorming of Tredah.

Prince Rupert having been for divers Months block'd up in the Harbour of Kingſale by the Parliament's Ships, at length by reaſon of his want of Proviſions, and Cromwell's being ready to take that Town by land, the Prince was forced to a Reſolution to make his way through them.

And with the Loſs of three of his Ships, he bore out of that Harbour, and with the remainder of his Fleet getting clear of the Parliament's Ships, ſteered his Courſe for Lisbon, where he was not only protected, but careſſed by the King of Portugal; which ſo much diſpleaſed the Parliament, that they commenced a War with that Prince, doing him many great Damages in the Trade and Navigation wherein the Riches of that Nation chiefly do conſiſt. October.

At the ſame time That Prince Charles and his Retinue, about 300, arrived at Jerſey, and was there proclaimed King. Some few Forces were landed in the Iſles of Orkney from the Lord Montroſe, and ſome came out of Ireland into the North of Scotland under Sir James Montgomery.

Hereupon, and to oppoſe theſe Forces, the Scots began to make Preparations, though at the ſame time they were upon Terms of Treaty with their King, for whoſe Service theſe Forces were deſigned.

The Kirk having long before excommunicated Montroſe, ſtrict Order was now given for ſuppreſſing a Declaration which he had cauſed to be publiſhed in Scotland for juſtifying of his Proceedings.

Mr. Windram Laird of Liberton, though hardly drawn to it, was at length diſpatched away with a Meſſage to the Scots King, after his arrival in Jerſey, he waited for an Audience till an Agent that had come from Ireland was diſmiſſed.

Then being admitted to the Prince's Preſence, he preſented to him the Deſires and Offers of the States of Scotland, which were to this Effect. Scots Overtures.

That he would ſign the Covenant, and paſs an Act for all Perſons in Scotland to take it, and to ratify all that had been done there concerning the ſame.

2. That he would paſs divers Acts of the Parliament of Scotland, which were ratified by their two laſt Seſſions, as for his Approbation of their diſclaiming Duke Hamilton's Deſign, for receiving the ſeveral Acts made by the Engliſh for the Militia, for the Kings of Scotland to have no negative Voice in that Parliament.

3. That he would withdraw his Commiſſions to Montroſe, for raiſing Forces to be ſent from beyond Seas into Scotland, and to give preſent Order for the ſtopping thereof.

4. That he would put away all Papiſts from about him, and let none be of his Counſel but known Proteſtants.

5. That he would appoint ſome place about Holland to treat with Commiſſioners from the Eſtates of Scotland, who would ſend eminent Lords to him to treat and conclude there upon all Particulars, and from the time he ſhould come into Holland, they would provide for him what ſhould be neceſſary to make him and his Train to reſide in a regal manner.

6. That he would give a ſpeedy Anſwer to their Deſires.

Theſe Propoſitions were much debated by the Prince's Council, who were of a different Senſe concerning them; nor could a preſent Anſwer to them be agreed upon, the Prince having engaged himſelf to the Queen his Mother, not to do any thing in matters of Importance, without firſt acquainting her therewith, and having her Advice about them. It was thought fit alſo ſpeedily to acquaint Montroſe with this Buſineſs.

Some of the Prince's Council were for rejecting theſe Propoſitions as diſhonourable, and diſadvantageous. Others were for accepting them, and a ſpeedy Agreement with that Party in Scotland, which was moſt prevalent, and by whom the Anno 1649. the Prince had great Probability of obtaining the Crown, than by Montroſe's Deſigns, which were full of Hazard and Uncertainty.

Letters alſo came from the Queen, urging, that if the Scots Propoſitions ſeemed at preſent too ſevere and inſupportable, there might hereafter be Opportunity as ſoon he had obtained the Kingdom, to free himſelf, at leaſt, in ſome meaſure from the Inconveniencies of them.

The main of his Counſel tended to this, that according to the Exigence of his Affairs at preſent, it was abſolutely neceſſary to comply with the Kirk of Scotland.

Montroſe. Montroſs adviſed the ſame, and that the Baniſhment of himſelf might not hinder it; but to that the King anſwer'd, that he had found him ſo faithful, and to have perform'd ſo eminent Services both to his Father and to himſelf, that he could not in Juſtice or Honour leave him, and deſired him to urge him no farther to it.

In regard the Anſwer to the Scots Propoſitions required ſome conſiderable time, becauſe it could not be compleated to be returned by the Laird of Liberton, Sir William Fleming was ſent, as Agent before-hand to Edinburgh, from thence to give Advice of the Affairs in Scotland, that thereby the Counſel might the better know how to frame the Anſwer.

Sir John Berkeley, and Colonel Slingsby were ſent into the Weſt of England to ſollicit the King's Friends to riſe in Arms for their Prince, and being accidentally diſcover'd by a Country Fellow, were apprehended by the Committee of the County, and ſent Priſoners to Truro.

Negotiation in Spain The Prince had Ambaſſadors with the Emperor, the Duke of Muſcovia, the State of Venice, the great Turk, and with the King of Spain, to whom the Subſtance of the Ambaſſy was.

1. That the Parliament of England having been in Arms againſt his Father, prevailed againſt him, and cauſed him to be put to Death.

2. That he being Son and Heir to the late King, was yet kept out of his Kingdom by the aforeſaid Parliament.

3. That he deſired the King of Spain's neighbourly Aſſiſtance, and that he would afford him what Aid he could to eſtabliſh him into his Rights and Dignities in the Kingdoms.

To this the King of Spain made anſwer.

1. That he was ſorry for his Father's ill Succeſs, wiſhing he had been more proſperous.

2. That he condoled with him for his Fathers Death, and was much affected with Sorrow at the manner of it.

3. That concerning the Difference between him and the Parliament, and the Rights on the one or the other ſide, they being Matters out of his Territories and Juriſdiction, he could not take Cognizance of them, nor ſhould he meddle therein. But for any thing within his own Dominions, he ſhould be ready to do him what lawful Favour he could.

November, 1649.

The Prince's continuance at Jerſey was by his Counſel held not fit to be much longer, upon theſe Reaſons.

Reaſons. 1. Becauſe there was a conſiderable Fleet of the Parliament's come already to Portſmouth with ſtore of Proviſions; and it was neceſſary to prevent the Danger that might fall upon them in caſe thoſe Ships ſhould make an attempt upon the Iſland; which that they would do, was the more probable, becauſe there were already Men landed in Guernſey. Novemb.

2. That if they ſhould lie under that hazard, they knew not where to expect Relief, except all other Services ſhould be neglected, and Prince Rupert and Montroſe called hither; which would be the ruin of their Deſigns.

3. That their removal would give great Satisfaction to the Kingdom of Scotland, and be an Encouragement to their Friends in England.

4. That thereby they ſhould be the more free from Hazards and Dangers, both as to themſelves and others, that ſhould make Addreſſes to them.

Intelligence. The Counſel of State in England had good Intelligence of all the Tranſactions of the Prince, and of his Counſel; which they procured by their Money, whereof ſome of the Prince's Servants were needy, and would betray their Maſter for it.

The Times were licentious, and Men took ſtrange Liberty to calumniate all in Authority, and to clamour if they had not what themſelves thought fit, reſpecting themſelves and their private Intereſts and Concerns, much more than the Rules of Right and Juſtice, and the Law it ſelf.

When the King of Portugal could neither by Force nor Intreaties be perſuaded to caſt off Prince Rupert out of his Protection, the Engliſh Admirals reſolved with Patience to wait his coming out, and a long time they kept him in there, till at laſt want of Proviſions made them retire and give the Prince room.

Prince Maurice. Who immediately ſteered from thence to Malaga, but in the Voyage perplexed with extraordinary Storms, he loſt his Brother Maurice, who being in the Vice-Admiral was never ſince heard of.

Prince Rupert. Himſelf being again follow'd by the Parliament's Admirals loſt all his Ships but two, which his Purſuers looking upon as inconſiderable, and not worthy their time and pains to hunt after, returned, and left him Sea-room to come with them into France.

The Parliament fearing leſt now the Scots King ſhould join Intereſt with the Scots (which was now generally talked of) they had good Intelligence of all Proceedings in that Buſineſs, and provided for a Storm from thence, and from thoſe who probably might join with them from England.

They endeavour'd to prevent all trouble which might happen in England, by quartering their Army up and down in the ſeveral Counties, to be ready to attend all Motions; and to defend themſelves from an Invaſion of the Scots, they order'd ſome Force to lie conſtantly upon their Borders.

Cromwell Cromwell proceeded proſperouſly in his Affairs in Ireland, took in many conſiderable Places, and Countries there, and gave a conſtant Account of all his Proceedings to the Parliament and Council of State, and in all his Letters, gives Glory to God, to whom 'tis only due.

Parliaments. The Parliament and the Council of State by their Order, were buſy in making Proviſions and Supplies of Men and Money for the Service of Ireland; which cauſed their Buſineſs to proceed the more happily and willingly on the Soldiers part, who without Money, are without Diſcipline, and commonly without good Succeſs.

Lawyers. In the Parliament were many Debates about Reformation of things, according to the late Petitions; and amongſt the reſt of Particulars, there was a great Peek againſt the Lawyers: Inſomuch as it was again ſaid, as it had been formerly, That it was not fit for Lawyers who were Members of Parlia-

Ann. 1649. Parliament, (if any Lawyers, ought to be of the Parliament) to plead or practiſe as Lawyers, during the time that they ſat as Members of the Parliament.

To this I thought fit to give ſome Anſwers, as I had done before: That which I ſpoke was to this effect.

Mr. Speaker,

I was unwilling again to have troubled you upon this Argument, had I not been again called up by the Miſtakes of the worthy Gentleman that ſpake laſt, to give you a true Account of thoſe Matters, and to vindicate the Honour of that Profeſſion, whereof I am an unworthy Member.

The Gentleman was pleaſed to intimate, That Lawyers were heretofore excluded from being Members of Parliament; but, I ſuppoſe, he had not much ſtudied the Records of that Matter, and therefore related the Diſcourſes of others by hearſay only.

But for his Conviction, and for the Satisfaction of others, I ſhall acquaint you with the clear Paſſages of what he aimed at, as I ſuppoſe, and as I find them upon Record, which are much more authentick than ſome (perhaps) Table-Talk, or Diſcourſes at random.

The Statute 23 Ed. 3. calls the Members of Parliament, the learned Men, whereof many were learned in the Laws, and therefore ſuppoſed to have had that Title. But ſhortly after this, the great Men degenerating in the old Age of the ſame King into ſeveral Factions,

And being much offended with thoſe, who were learned in the Laws, becauſe they hindred their Oppreſſions by pleading the Right of Law on the behalf of their Clients. 46. Ed. 3. petitioned, That Nul home de ley purſuont beſoignes, en le Court de Roy, ne Viſcount pour le temps que il eſt Viſcount, ſoient retournez ni acceptez Chivaliers des Countees. That no Man of Law, following Buſineſs in the King's Courts, nor Sheriff be returned, or accepted Knights of Shires.

Rot. Parl. N. 13.

To this the King anſwers.

Voet le Roy que Chivaliers & Serjeants des Meaux Vaues du païs ſoient retournees deſormais Chivaliers en Parlements, & qu'ils ſoient eſleus en plein Counte.

The King willeth that Knights and Serjeants (that is Eſquires) of the beſt Rank in the County be from henceforth returned to be Knights in Parliament, and that they be choſen in full County.

Rot. Parl. L. 2. N. 4. dorſ.

After this Ordinance, and purſuant to it, a Clauſe was inſerted into the Writ for chooſing Members for the Houſe of Commons. 5. H. 4. to this Effect:

Nolumus autem quod tu ſeu aliquis alius Vicecomes Regni noſtri, ſive aliquis alius homo ad Legem, aliqualiter ſit electus.

We will not that you, or any other Sheriff of our Kingdom, or any other Man of Law, by any means be choſen.

According to this Ordinance and Clauſe of Nolumus, the Sheriffs have been ſince excluded from ſitting in Parliament as Members, during the time of their Shrivalty, the Debate of which Point was had, and full of Learning in a former Parliament, in the Caſe of a very learned and worthy Perſon, Sir Edward Coke, whom moſt of us knew.

He being made Sheriff of Bucks, upon diſpleaſure againſt him, was choſen Knight of the Shire for Bucks, and ſat in Parliament; and I had the Honour then to be a young Parliament-man, in the ſecond Year of the late King.

The Objections againſt him were the conſtant uſage, not to permit Sheriffs, to ſit as Parliament-men, their Oath to reſide in their Counties, the Cuſtody whereof was committed to them, and that their Office was but Annual, and ſo the Diſability was but for that time only. Novemb.

But for a Man to be diſabled from being a Parliament-man, in regard of his being a Lawyer, is to diſable him during his Life; or his continuance in his Profeſſion, by which he gains his livelihood, and they are not publick Officers, obliged to another Attendance on the publick Affairs, as the Sheriffs are.

Yet 'tis true, that in this Parliament which was held 6 H. 4. All Lawyers were excluded, and none of them returned to ſerve in this Parliament, and perhaps, from ſome general Diſcourſe hereof by others, the worthy Gentleman is pleaſed with Confidence to vent his Doctrine and Motion.

But in caſe he did read and underſtand the Records of this Ordinance, and of the Clauſe of Nolumus, yet, I ſuppoſe, he never looked into the ground of this Buſineſs, nor into that which followed thereupon, wherein I ſhall hope to ſatisfy him, and ſo as to alter his Opinion.

King Henry the fourth, being in great want of Money, ſummoned that Parliament, and cauſed to be inſerted in the Writ, this Clauſe of Nolumus, to exclude the Lawyers, becauſe. he doubted that they would oppoſe the exceſſive Demands, which he was to make to the Parliament.

Thomas Walſingham ſaith,

That all the Lawyers being excluded, the Demands of the King were by this means obtained, and by this Parliament was granted an unuſual Tax, and to the People. Hiſt. Eng. An. 1404. p. 371.

Tricabilis & valde gravis.

A Tax full of Trouble and very grievous: Whereof (the Hiſtorian ſaith) he would have ſet down the Manner, had not the Granters and Authors of the ſame deſired to be concealed for ever to Poſterity by cauſing the Papers and Records thereof to be burned. Hypodigma Neuſtriæ an. 1404.

Mr. Speaker, This is the Precedent intimated by the worthy Gentleman, and this was the Occaſion and Iſſue of that Precedent, the like whereof I preſume is not wiſhed by him.

Walſingham ſtyles that Parliament in the Margent,

Parliamentum Indoctorum.

The Parliament of unlearned Men.

Speed in his Hiſtory ſaith, That this Parliament was called the lack learning Parliament, either for the unlearnedneſs of the Perſons, or for their Malice unto Learning.

But God hath bleſt this Nation with ſuch an Age of learned Men at this preſent, that former times knew not, and we muſt acknowledge that though the Houſe ſhould lack all their Members who are Lawyers, yet the reſt are of ſo great Abilities that there would be no lack of Learning.

Yet, Sir, I am ſure that the Addition of thoſe many learned Gentlemen of our Profeſſion, hath been and will be ſome help in your Affairs, and will not be deſpiſed by any prudent Men.

The worthy Gentleman was pleaſed ſlightly to call them Gownmen, who had not undergone the Dangers and Hardſhips that Martial Men had done. And truly it might leſs become the Gentleman that ſaid it, than others to make that Obſervation, if it had been ſo.

The ancient Romans were Soldiers though Gownmen; nor doth that Gown abate either a Man's Courage or his Wiſdom, or render him leſs capable of uſing a Sword, when the Laws are ſilent, or you command it.

You

Anno 1649. You all know this to be true by the great Services performed by Lieutenant General Jones, and Commiſſary General Ireton, and many of the Members, and other Lawyers, who putting off their Gowns when you required it, have ſerved you ſtoutly, and ſucceſfully as Soldiers, and undergone almoſt as many, and as great Dangers and Hardſhips as the Gentleman, who ſo much undervalues all of them.

But we are now ſpeaking of their right to be choſen, and to ſit as Members of the Parliament; which doubtleſs is as much, and the ſame with all other, the Commoners of England.

The Hiſtorian laſt mentioned ſaith, That the Commons of England, who have liberty in the Choice of their Knights and Burgeſſes, would not be debarred thereof by the Ordinance of E. 3. nor by the Clauſe of Nolumus inſerted in the Writ by H. 4. But notwithſtanding the ſame, knowing the Lawyers to be equally intereſted with them in the publick Rights and Liberties of the Nation, have made a conſtant Choice of ſome of them to ſerve in all Parliaments.

The Lord Coke 4 Inſtit. p. 48. holds, That the Ordinance 46 E. 3. by the general Words of 5 R. 2. Stat. 2. Cap. 4. and 7 H. 4. Cap. 15 was repealed.

However, we read not of any Parliament (except that unhappy one 6 H. 4.) in which the Lawyers were excluded: And after not a few conſiderable Services both Civil and Military performed by ſome of them for you, it was ſomewhat an ungrateful Motion now to have excluded them.

We may lay aſide the Clauſe of Nolumus, leſt other Clauſes of Nolumus, which we find in the Writs of Summons, do come as near home to others. Sometimes Clauſes were inſerted in the Writs for Election of Commoners, to this purpoſe.

Nolumus autem quod aliquis de Retinentiâ Domini noſtri Regis aliqualiter ſit electus.

We will not that any of the Retinue of our Lord the King, in any wiſe be choſen.

Though, Sir, I acknowledge that worthy Gentleman, and many others who have been the King's Servants, and Courtiers, have been very faithful to you, and done you acceptable Services, and ſo ſome of them have done in former Parliaments, and I hope you all do think ſo. Yet the undervaluing of our Profeſſion to be Members of Parliament, hath leſs ſtrength coming from ſuch Gentlemen, than from others, becauſe ſome from abroad will be apt to ſay of them (though ſcandalouſly) That Courtiers and King's Servants uſe to ſit in Parliament rather to promote their Maſter's ends, than their own Countries Rights; but ſuch Objections are now out of doors.

The like Paſſage with this we are now debating, is related in the Roman Story, when the Law Cincia was made, whereby it was provided, That for pleading of Cauſes, no Man ſhould take either Money or Gift, and this Law was endeavoured upon the like Grounds, to be ſet on Foot preſently after the Death of Tiberius Cæſar.

But when ſome alledged, That this would cauſe the want of Counſellors and Advocates, whereby the Poor would be oppreſſed by the Rich and Mighty.

That Eloquence did not come by Chance, or Gratis, without Study and Labour. That the Care of a Man's own Family was neglected, whilſt he attended other Mens Affairs. That ſome maintained their Life by War, ſome by tilling the Earth, yet no Man laboured in thoſe Callings or to attain Knowledge; but for the Commodity ariſing thereby.

That the meaneſt of the People endeavoured what they could to better their Eſtates, and that if the Reward of Studies ſhould be taken away, Studies alſo would decay, as having neither Glory nor Honour.

Upon theſe Reaſons the Senate thought it not juſt, and I hope this Senate will be of the ſame Judgment, to take away the Honorarium of Advocates, but limited the ſame to 1000 Seſterces, which ſome compute to about 78 l. of our Money. Novemb.

Neither (ſaith Tacitus Annal l. 11.) did that Law continue, or gain Compliance to it. Neither do I think that ſuch a Law amongſt us, would be to any Effect, or have any Compliance to it.

But I hope this honourable Engliſh Senate, and that worthy Gentleman, a Member of it, will be ſatisfied with the Reaſons given in the Roman Senate (who were very wiſe Men) and not trouble themſelves about ſuch new Laws, which will be ineffectual, prejudicial to many, and good to none.

But the Gentleman objected, and it is much urged in theſe times againſt the Profeſſion of the Law, and the Profeſſors of it, That they are the Occaſion of multiplicity of Suits, and of Delays in them; and therefore after the Example of ſome Foreign Countries not to be permitted.

I have obſerved to you before, that thoſe in Power have moſt reaſon to be diſpleaſed with this Profeſſion, as a Bridle to their Power: But that the Profeſſion occaſions multiplicity of Suits, is as improbable as any other of his Reaſons, or his Arguments.

Mr. Speaker, The Reaſon of the multiplicity of Suits, and Law Cauſes amongſt us, is the greatneſs of our Trade, which cauſeth a multitude of Contracts, and thoſe occaſion a multitude of Law Suits.

In thoſe Countries mentioned by that worthy Gentleman, there is not one of his Profeſſion, one Merchant, nor one Contract, for a hundred in England; that is the Cauſe, that they have ſo few Law Suits and we ſo many.

And give me leave Sir, to tell him that in the Netherlands, and Countries where there is much Trade, there are proportionably as many Law Suits, as there are in England.

Another Ground of what I affirm, is that in foreign Countries, every Man's Eſtate is diſpoſed of by their Law, after a certain Rule, and Proportion, which the Poſſeſſor cannot either by Conveyance, or by his Teſtament afterwards alter.

As when one dies, his Eſtate is thus divided by the Law, his Wife hath a part ſet out for her, the eldeſt Son hath a double Portion, and all the other Sons have equal Portions, and every two Daughters have as much as one Son of the whole Eſtate of their Father thus divided by the Law.

Whereas with us every Poſſeſſor of an Eſtate, hath Power to diſpoſe of it by his Deed, or by his Will, as he pleaſes, which muſt neceſſarily occaſion the more Differences, and Suits at Law, upon Conſtructions of thoſe Deeds, and Wills, and Conteſts of Parties claiming, than where the known Law gives a certain Rule, and Diſtribution of Eſtates, which none can alter.

Another Ground of what I ſay, is the Freedom of our Nation, where every one hath equal Right and Title to his Eſtate, and there is as full a Property to the meaneſt, as to the greateſt Perſon, which cauſeth our Countrymen to inſiſt upon their Right and Privileges, and to conteſt for them with the greateſt Men, or the Prince himſelf, if right of Law be on their Side.

This occaſions many more Law Suits than do ariſe in thoſe Countries where the Boors and Peaſants do wholly depend upon the Will of their Lords, to whom they are Slaves, and dare not diſpute any Matter of Right with him, but tamely ſubmit unto their Lords good or bad Pleaſure.

And though in ſome of thoſe Northern Countries, they have no Counſellors at Law, as a publick Profeſſion, ſeſſion, becauſe the ſmalneſs of their Law Buſineſs will not maintain them, and the great Lords are oftimes their Parties and Judges themſelves.

Anno 1649.

Yet in Germany, France, Spain, and other Countries, the Doctors, and Profeſſors of the Laws are in great Numbers and Credit, and gain vaſt Eſtates, though by ſmall Fees, yet often taken, and long continuing. Whereof, particularly in France, there are many Precedents.

And if we look ſo far as the times of the ancient Romans, and Grecians, their Lawyers will be found numerous and of eſteem among them, and when their Commonwealth enjoyed the greateſt Freedom, this Profeſſion was in the higheſt Reputation.

Sir, The worthy Gentleman was pleaſed to mention one thing with ſome weight, that Lawyers were permitted to Council, and to plead for Men in Matters touching their Eſtates and Liberties, but in the greateſt Matters of all others, concerning a Mans Life and Poſterity, Lawyers were not permitted to plead for their Clients.

I confeſs I cannot anſwer this Objection, that for a Treſpaſs of Six-pence Value, a Man may have a Counſellor at Law to plead for him, but where his Life and Poſterity are concerned, he is not admitted this Privilege, and help of Lawyers.

A Law to reform this I think would be juſt, and give right to People.

What is ſaid in defence, or excuſe of this Cuſtom is That the Judges are of Council for the Priſoners, and are to ſee that they ſhall have no wrong. And are they not to take the ſame Care of all Cauſes that ſhall be tried before them?

To that part of the Gentlemans Motion, that Lawyers being Members of the Houſe, ſhould during that time, forbear their Practice and Pleading, I ſhall only give this Anſwer.

That in the Act which he may be pleaſed to bring in for this Purpoſe, it may likewiſe be inſerted, that Merchants ſhall forbear their Trading, Phyſicians from viſiting their Patients, and Country Gentlemen ſhall forbear to ſell their Corn and Wool, whilſt they ſit as Members of this Houſe; which hath the ſame reaſon, as to debar Lawyers from their Practice.

But I doubt, Sir, I have held you too long, my Profeſſion, and the Subject Matter of the Debate will plead in my excuſe, and I hope, Sir, that by your Prudence ſuch Motions as theſe will be leſs frequent among us.

December, 1649.

1. December. The Affairs in Ireland went on proſperouſly, and Cromwell's Honour increaſed with his Succeſſes. The Treaty between the Scots and their King began to grow to ſome Head, and was very likely to take Effect.

The Parliament went on in their uſual way, debating Acts, making References to the Council of State for the raiſing of Money, and providing Supplies for their Forces in Ireland, and for the ſtanding Army, and Garriſons in England.

A Liſt preſented to the Parliament of divers Regiments and Garriſons, who have ſubſcribed the Engagement.

I A.B. do Declare and Promiſe that I will be faithful to the Commonwealth of England, as the ſame is now eſtabliſhed, without a King or Houſe of Lords.

The Engagement.

10. Letters that every Officer and Soldier ſubſcribed the Engagement, and that it was ſo unanimouſly done by them, that not one of a thouſand did ſcruple the Signing of it. Decemb.

11. The General Council of the Army, being careful that the Soldiers ſhould not be injured in reaping the Benefit of the late Act, for ſale of the Lands of the late King, Queen, and Prince, made ſeveral Votes.

Votes. For a Letter of Attorney to be ſent to the ſeveral Regiments, Troops, Companies, and Garriſons of the Army, and to the Forces in Ireland, and other Forces, not of the Army, who are Original Creditors and have Intereſt in the Security.

That Attornies may be authorized, for the purchaſing of thoſe Lands according to the Act, with the Opinion and Advice of the Council, concerning the Letter of Attorney, to be ſent to every Regiment of the Army, and to be Signed by them.

Army. The General and Officers of the Army met at Somerſet-Houſe according to appointment, to meet every Month to ſeek God for a Bleſſing upon the Army, both in Ireland and here.

Letters from Ireland. Letters from Ireland of the further Succeſſes of the Army there, which were to this Effect.

On the 15*th* of November, our Army marched over the River Barrowe, into the County of Kilkenny towards the Enemy, about 300 of their Men lay at Emſtrong, a party of the Parliament's Horſe and Dragoons were ſent thither in the duſk of the Evening; at firſt the Enemy vapoured over the Wall, but when the Dragoons had ſet fire to the Gate it ſo quaſh'd them, that they preſently quitted the Town, and eſcaped by Boats over the Water, leaving the Town to the Parliament's Men, to plunder and poſſeſs it.

The Parliament's Army ſtill advanced towards the Enemy's Body, who upon their approach brake down the Bridge at Thomas Town, and this Winter Seaſon the Fords were unpaſſable, ſo that the Parliament's could only have a Sight of the King's Army, but could not come to join Battle with them, nor proceed in their Deſigns for Kilkenny. In their March back they took Cnocktofer Caſtle, and put into it thirty Horſe, and twenty Dragoons, but recalled them, the Caſtle being too far into the Enemy's Country. On the 19*th* Captain Reynolds was ſent with a Party of Horſe and Dragoons unto Carrick a walled Town, where is a fair Houſe of the Lord Ormond's, in the Town was a Regiment of Foot and two or three Troops of Horſe. The Dragoons after a little diſpute ſet fire to the Gate, and the Enemy both Horſe and Foot quitted the Place, and eſcaped over the Water; only ſome eighty Welchmen, who were in the great Houſe, ſubmitted to Mercy, and took up Arms with the Parliament.

On the 21. the Army marched to Carrick, to paſs over the River where it is fordable. And the 24*th* of November the Parliament's encamped before Waterford, preſently the Lieutenant General with ſome Horſe and Dragoons marched to Paſſage Town ſix Miles below, where there is a ſtrong Fort that ſecures the River.

The Dragoons fell preſently upon the Storm, and in a ſhort time ſet fire on the Gate, whereupon the Enemy within call'd out for Quarter, and upon Aſſurance given by the Lord Lieutenant that they ſhould have Quarter for their Lives and their wearing Apparel, they ſurrendred the Fort to him, where were ſix Pieces of Ordnance, and the Town was of great Advantage to the Parliament.

Anno 1649.

nolds with his Regiment of Horſe, a Troop of Dragoons and two Foot Companies. The next Day after they marched out of it, Ormond (whom they ſuppoſed inclined towards Cromwell) marched towards Carrick, and beſieged it.

The King's Forces made themſelves ſure of carrying the Town, and therefore drew a Party of Horſe and Foot over the Water, to prevent the Parliament's eſcape that way.

The Ulſter Forces undertook the Storm, they came on very reſolutely, and made deſperate Aſſaults for the ſpace of four Hours; they ſet fire to all the Gates, and in one Place undermined the Wall, attempting to blow it up with a Barrel of Powder.

But through the Mercy and Strength of God, Colonel Reynolds with the reſt maintained the Town very gallantly, and beat off the Enemy with the Loſs of about 4 or 500 Men, and wounded very many; he loſing not above four of his Men all the while.

God hath proſpered Colonel Reynolds very much, he goes out almoſt upon every Party, and behaves himſelf with much Gallantry and Reſolution. The Parliament's Dragoons have done them great Service.

About a Mile from Carrick is a little Caſtle upon the River, where the Parliament put ſix or ſeven Dragoons to keep it; Inchequin ſummons them by his Trumpet, none of them could read the Summons, but perceived by the Trumpet what is was; and though they could not write, yet without Compliment and in plain Phraſe they returned no other Anſwer but this to the Trumpet.

Bid Inchequin go about his Buſineſs, and be hanged, for he had nothing to do with them. And thus, though they could not return an Anſwer in writing, they did in Reſolution.

The Parliament's Forces were now before Waterford, and make Preparations for a Storm, when their great Guns with other neceſſaries ſhall be diſpatched to them. Ruiſile and Bandon Bridge are theirs. The Lord Broghil and Colonel Fair, ſince their Arrival in Munſter, have gained many a Horſe and Foot unto them.

The Lieutenant General and Officers received an Order of Parliament for ſtating the Accounts, and giving Debentures to ſuch reduced Soldiers as ſhould engage for Ireland. In Proſecution of that Order of Parliament, and according to the farther Direction of the Council of State, the General ſent his Orders and Inſtructions for the reducing of Troops to the Number of ſixty, and concerning ſuch ſo reduced, as ſhall engage for Ireland, and ſuch as refuſe to go for Ireland to be diſmiſſed, the reſt to be conducted into Ireland for Recruits for the Forces there, and care taken for their preſent Pay, and for their Accounts to be ſtated, and Debentures given them to purchaſe King's Lands.

13. Letters from Berwick, That every Officer and Soldier of that Garriſon, except two only, ſigned the Engagement. That Wheat there was at ten Shillings a Buſhel, Corn, and other Proviſions deſired.

Letters from Scotland. From Carliſle, of the want of Corn, That the Garriſon unanimouſly ſubſcribed the Engagement, That they give out in Scotland that Cromwell was routed in Ireland, and with four broken Troops eſcaped to Dublin, which much rejoiced them at Edinburgh.

That they expect the return of the Laird of Liberton from Jerſey.

From Newcaſtle, of the unanimous Subſcription of the Engagement by that Garriſon.

That many Witches were apprehended thereabout of late, that the Witch-trier taking a Pin and thruſting it into the Skin in many parts of their Bodies, they were inſenſible of it, which is one Circumſtance of Proof againſt them. Decemb.

From Scarborough, of the Garriſon's free ſubſcribing of the Engagement, That they ſee our Enemies at Sea chaſe our Ships, deſire care of the Winter Guard.

From Hull, That the Regiments, both Officers and Soldiers, ſigned the Engagement, not one refuſing.

14. Order for Ships to convoy, and tranſport the Recruits for Ireland.

An Account from Liverpool of about 2000 Soldiers ſhipped from thence to Ireland.

From Weymouth, That Colonel Popham was there with Ships ready to tranſport Colonel Cox's Men for Guernſey, and the Men alſo ready.

Order of Parliament for a Thankſgiving throughout the City, for the good Succeſſes in Ireland.

15. A private Soldier ſentenced to be ſhot to death for killing a Man.

In the Road at Broadway Hills many were robbed and murdered. A Tailor found dead, with ſeven or eight Wounds, with 50 s. in his Hand, and his Horſe looſe by him.

Directions given to ſeveral Regiments of Horſe to quarter in ſuch Places as are moſt convenient to ſcoure the Highways of Thieves and Robbers.

Letters from Dover, That the Garriſon freely ſubſcribed the Engagement. That the King of France and thoſe of Bourdeaux were upon Agreement. That the States of Holland intended to disband 5000 Horſe and Foot, and many of the Commanders purpoſed to come into England, hoping for Entertainment.

17. The General Council of the Army, after a long Debate about ſettling the Buſineſs for the Sale of the King's Lands, referred it to a Committee to conſult with the Committee of Parliament, for Obſtructions in the Sale of the King's Lands, &c.

Referred to ſome Officers to conſider of a Courſe for pay for Captain Harriſon's Company of Lancaſhire Men, who marched with Cromwell into Scotland.

One Vaughan a Miniſter, once a Cavalier, then turned a Zealot, then turned againſt the Commonwealth, and preached that they were guilty of Perjury, &c.

Letters that the Soldiers quartering about Towceſter, and riding abroad in the Night, had frighted away the Thieves from Broadway Hills and thoſe Parts to the great Contentment of the Country.

18. The Committee of Officers had a long Debate about making the Way practicable, of buying the King's Lands, &c. appointed for the Army's Security.

Mr. Penruddock, and Agent for Prince Charles, was taken and committed cloſe Priſoner to the Tower.

Letters from York, That there was a Rendezvous of Colonel Lilburn's Party that are marching for Ireland, about 100 old Blades, ſtout Men, and well horſed, ready for the Service.

An Account from Cheſter of Soldiers ſhipped from thence to Ireland.

The Port at Coventry intercepted a Pacquet of ſcandalous Books, intituled, The Character of K. Cromwell, The Woodſtock Skuffle, &c.

Letters that Montroſe having ſollicited the Montroſe. King of Denmark, and the Duke of Holſtein, for 6000

Anno 1649. Denmark. 6000 Men to be levy'd in their Dominions for Prince Charles, and for a place of Rendezvous, and free Quarter in Holſtein, and for Shipping and Money to tranſport them, was put off by them, without obtaining any of his Requeſts to them.

That from thence he went to Stockholm to ſollicit the Court of Sweden for their Aſſiſtance.

Account

Anno 1649. Obſtructions.

Account of Recruits for Ireland.

5. The Officers of the Army met about removing Obſtructions in the Sale of the late King's Lands, and agreed upon ſome Deſires to be made to the Parliament for further time to receive Deſentures within the Security, and other matters in order to the Soldiers Satisfaction.

Two Troopers ſentenced to death by a Court Marſhal, for taking Entertainment Money for the Service of Ireland and running away from their Colours, and three Soldiers were ſentenced to death at Briſtol for killing of a Townſman. The Examinations were ſent up to the Judge-Advocate.

An Act paſſed for continuance of the Committee of the Army, and the Treaſurers at War, with the ſame Powers they had formerly.

The Act publiſhed for ſubſcribing of the Engagement.

Letters from Ireland that the Enemy with their whole Army lately ſtormed Carrick, but Colonel Reynolds beat them away with the loſs of ſome hundreds. And that more execution was done with Swords and Staves than with Powder and Bullet, their Ammunition within being ſoon ſpent.

That the dropping Weather had made the Ground ſo moiſt and rotten, that it would not well bear their Guns, ſo that the Council of War adviſed to riſe from before Waterford, and to retire into Winter Quarters to refreſh their ſick and weak Soldiers.

Jones. Letters from Cork to this effect. We had a very ſore and ſtormy March hither, and that which added to the Bitterneſs of it was the Sickneſs of the truly noble and ever honour'd Lieutenant General Jones, who was taken with a very violent Fever, of which he died at Dungarvon the 10th inſtant. He was a Gentleman very uſeful in the Army, and is very much lacked and lamented. His approved Conſtancy and Fidelity to the Engliſh Intereſt was ſuch and ſo manifeſt, that he will very much ſhine and be famous for it to Poſterity.

His Straits, Hazards, Difficulties, and Neceſſities were very many, and I might add Temptations too. Yet he brake through all with unmoved Gallantry, Stedfaſtneſs and Reſolution. His Temper and Diſpoſition was very ſweet and amiable, and obliging to all. And he had very much Love and Reſpect to all that came lately over.

That Colonel Zanchy, at the Defeat he gave to Ferrel and Wogan at Paſſage Fort, took thirty Priſoners more than the number of all his own Party. That they killed all Straglers by the way, that ſeven Parliament Troopers fell upon thirty Ulſters in a Houſe, and killed all of them.

From Scarborough, that there was a Meeting at York of the Commiſſioners for ſettling the Militia of that County, where according to the Inſtructions from the Council of State, they were to raiſe 3000 Foot, and 400 Horſe for defence of that County and Service of the Commonwealth.

That the Pirates took away a great Ship within ſight of Burlington Key, and carry'd her away.

From Dunſtar, that the Enemy ſurprized Enniſcoiſie Caſtle in this manner; That ſome Iriſh Gentlemen feaſted the Garriſon Soldiers, and ſent in Women to ſell them Strong-water, of which they drank too much; and then the Iriſh fell upon them, took the Garriſon, and put all the Officers and Soldiers to the Sword. Ireland.

That upon hearing of this the Lord Lieutenant gave Orders, that the Iriſh ſhould be put out of all the Garriſons in the power of the Parliament.

That an Iriſh Frigat coming aſhore for Proviſions near to Cardiffe, the Governor ſuſpected and apprehended them, and ſent out a Party in ſmall Boats, which took the Frigat, which was richly loaden with Plate and other Commodities.

From Weymouth, that in the Night ſome Perſons in Blandford proclaimed Prince Charles King of England, but ſome of them were apprehended and impriſoned.

From Yarmouth, that ſixty Priſoners that were in the Goal did break Priſon, yet all but three of them were again apprehended.

Letters that Montroſe could get but few to join in aſſiſting Prince Charles, and thoſe he had were more by Connivance than by any Act of State.

12. Several Propoſals made to the General and his Officers, in order to the removing of Obſtructions in the Sale of the late King's Lands.

Cromwell ſent for. The Parliament ordered a Letter to be written by the Speaker to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and to confer with him concerning farther Supplies of Men, Money and Ammunition, and for the ſettling of the Civil Government there.

Reaſons. The ground of this Reſolution was, that the News of the King's coming to Scotland became more probable than formerly, and the Scots Proceedings in the raiſing of new Forces gave an Alarm to the Parliament, and ſome of their Members, who had diſcourſed with the Lord General upon thoſe Matters, and argued how requiſite it would be to ſend an Army into Scotland to divert the War from England, found the General wholly averſe to any ſuch thing, and by the means of his Lady (a ſtrict Presbyterian) to be more a Friend to the Scots than they wiſhed; therefore they thought this a fit time to ſend for the Lieutenant of Ireland, and the rather his Army being now drawn into Winter Quarters.

Order for Relief of ſome of thoſe who ſuffered great Loſs in the late unhappy Accident of the Houſes in Tower-Street being blown up with Gunpowder.

An additional Act paſſed for providing Maintenance for Miniſters by Augmentations.

Vote, That no Merchant or Trader beyond Seas ſhall have any Place in the Cuſtom-houſe during the time that he tradeth.

That the Arms of the King be taken down in all Ships, and the Generals at Sea to ſee it done.

That the Arms of the King be taken down in all Churches and Chapels, and the Juſtices of Peace, Church-wardens, and other Officers order'd to ſee it done.

That the Council of State have power to remove from London, and twenty Miles diſtance from thence, all ſuch Delinquents, whoſe Abode there they ſhall judge to be dangerous.

An Act paſſed impowering Commiſſioners to put in execution the Powers formerly given to the Commiſſioners for compounding with Delinquents, the Committee of Haberdaſhers-Hall, &c.

10. An Account of tranſporting Forces for Ireland.

Letters that Ormond is deſirous to go out of Ireland, and Inchequin to come in to the Parliament.

General Blake. From Lisbon, that General Blake with the Parliament's Fleet arrived there, and underſtood that Prince Rupert intended to ſet ſail from thence within two days; whereupon Blake ſent to the King of Portugal for leave to come into the River of Lisbon, and coming near with his Ships, the Caſtle ſhot at him.

That upon this Blake came to an Anchor, and ſent a Boat to know the Reaſon why they ſhot at him; the Captain of the great Caſtle made anſwer, That they had no Order from the King to let them come in.

That the Merchants Ships that came with Blake ſeeing this, ſet ſail for the Straits.

After this the King ſent one of his greateſt Nobles to congratulate with Blake, and to deſire him not to come in except the Weather proved bad, whereby he could not ride where he was, it being his Majeſty's Fear, that he and Prince Rupert would quarrel and fight in his Harbour. The King alſo ſent to Blake a large Preſent of freſh Proviſions for his Refreſhment. April.

That the Weather beginning to be foul, Blake came into the Bay of Wyers in the River, two Miles from Prince Rupert, whoſe Men came daily from him to Blake, and one of his Ships, the Swallow, was coming away, but was diſcover'd, and the Boatſwain clapt in Chains, that the Admiral had not above forty Seamen in his Ship, and very few in the reſt of his Fleet.

That Captain Molton went on ſhore from Blake to ſatisfy the King of the Falſities of Prince Rupert's Declaration.

11. A Scots Veſſel taken by an Iriſh Man of War, was reſcued by a Dutchman.

The Commiſſioners ſettled the Militia in Cornwall.

From Chepſtow, that at the Aſſizes was as great an appearance of Gentlemen and Freeholders as ever was ſeen in that County.

One tried and found guilty there for poiſoning his Wife, and was upon his own words greatly ſuſpected to have poiſoned his four Wives, and three Children.

Orders iſſued that every Regiment of Foot ſhould be recruited to 1200, the Colonel's Company to be 200, the Lieutenant Colonel's Company 160, the Major's 140, and the other ſeven Companies to be a 100 apiece.

12. From Scotland, that notice being had of their Commiſſioners arriving in Holland, the Kirk kept a day of Humiliation to ſeek God for a Bleſſing upon the Treaty, and injoined the like through Scotland. Scots.

That many German Officers are there expecting Employment when the King comes thither.

That Cromwell granting Liberty of Conſcience to the Iriſh, they will all ſubmit to him.

13. From Dublin, that the Governor Colonel Hewſon, after he had taken Lawlinbridge, by order marched with a ſtrong Party, and met the Lord Lieutenant at Gouran, five Miles from Kilkenny, and March 19 entred the Town without Oppoſition.

That the Caſtle ſtood out, and after a ſharp diſpute upon one attempt to ſtorm, the common Soldiers (that they might have Quarter for themſelves) deliver'd up their Officers, viz. Colonel Hammond, Major Townly, two Captains, one Quarter-Maſter, one Lieutenant and a Prieſt. Ireland.

March 22. All the Officers were ſhot to death except the Lieutenant, who was ſpared, for that he joined with the Soldiers to deliver up the Officers, and the Prieſt was hanged; the Soldiers that were Engliſh took up Arms with ours. Next day our Forces marched towards Kilkenny, and March 24 were neceſſitated to attempt a Storm to divert the Enemy's Forces from falling upon a Party of ours, who were then attempting another part of the Town, called Iriſh Town. Kilkenny.

Our Men were forced to retreat, but yet the deſign took effect; for by that means the whole Strength of the Enemy was held in play, while our other Party gained Iriſh Town; Captain Higly was ſlain in the Attempt, with about ſeven or eight of our common Soldiers.

Then Colonel Hewſon led on the Reſerve very gallantly, and received a ſlight Shot; then the Town beat a Parley, and ſent forth Commiſſioners, and after a days diſpute it was agreed, Anno 1649 That they ſhould deliver the Town with all the Artillery, Arms, Ammunition, and Officers, only they ſhould march a Mile out of Town with Colours flying, Matchlight and Ball in Mouth, and at a Mile's end ſhould deliver up all their Arms, except 100 to defend them from the Tories, and 190 Horſe for the Officers; the Townſmen to have liberty for the three Months to go or ſtay, paying 2000 l.

There was a good quantity of Corn in the publick Store, with a good number of Arms; Captain Frewen was unhappily killed by a Shot during the Treaty, there being no Ceſſation; Lieutenant Colonel Axtel is made Governor of Kilkenny.

The Plague is very hot there, and at Gouran; yet it hath pleaſed God ſo to preſerve ours, that none of them have periſhed by it, though frequently quarter'd in the infected Houſes.

That Axtel the new Governor had the Command of the Storm, and received a Shot in the Back, which pierced his Buff-Coat and a little bruiſed the Fleſh.

That Sir Theophilus Jones, Dr. Jones, Colonel Reynolds, and their Regiments with ſome Dragoons and Foot, were order'd to attend the Earl of Caſtlehaven, with whom Ferald was to join, but there were great Diſcontents between them.

That the Governor with three Troops of Horſe returned and marched to Caſtle Dermont, a great part whereof the Enemy had burnt the day before, and betook themſelves to a ſtrong Tower, the Governor cauſed great ſtore of Straw and other combuſtible Materials to be put to the Door and ſet on fire, which cauſed thoſe within to cry out for Mercy, and in the Tower were taken Captain Sherlock who had been a bloody Tory, and three Friars.

That Colonel Trevor left the Enemy, and came to Dublin upon Licence formerly granted him by the Governor, and that the Iriſh had choſen the Earl of Antrim for their General, Colonel Trevor for Lieutenant General of Horſe, and Hugh Boyoneal for Major General.

A Party of our Forces from Trym fell into the Enemy's Quarters, killed ſome of them, and returned with 300 Cows, and 40 Garrons.

That the Lord Lieutenant was quartered in an infected Houſe, and many of his Officers and Soldiers lay in the ſick Beds of thoſe that died of the Plague, and yet not one of them died of the Infection.

The Lord Lieutenant returned from Kilkenny to the Siege of Clonmel.

15. From Berwick, that in Scotland were great Preparations for Entertainment of the King.

Witches. That at a little Village within two Miles, two Men and three Women were burnt for Witches, and nine more were to be burnt, the Village conſiſting but of fourteen Families, and there were as many Witches.

That twenty more were to be burnt within ſix Miles of that place, and all their Goods are forfeited to the King and the Lords.

From Ireland, that the Lord Broghil went with a Party into the County of Limerick, which ſo terrify'd the Enemy, that they and the Inhabitants fled with their Goods and Cattle over the Shanon into Clare, having ſet fire on all their Houſes and Caſtles, ſo that the Parliament's Forces were fain to retreat into Tipperary. That the Plague was very hot in Kilkenny, Limerick, and other Places.

Letters from the Lord Lieutenant of the former Paſſages, and that at the ſtorming of Kilkenny they loſt thirty Men, that it was not perform'd with the uſual Courage and Succeſs. That they had made two Retrenchments, or Counterworks, ſtrongly paliſaded, and both of them did ſo command the Breach that it was a Mercy they did not further contend for an Entrance there. April.

That an Officer attempting to paſs over the Bridge into the City, to fire the Gate, which indeed was done with good Reſolution, but lying too open to the Enemy's ſhot, he had forty or fifty Men killed and wounded; that the Caſtle was exceeding well fortify'd and capacious.

That he, preparing for a ſecond Battery, the Enemy ſeeing himſelf thus begirt, ſent for a Treaty, and rendred the Town and Caſtle upon Articles.

That one Lieutenant Colonel, three Majors, eight Captains, being Engliſh, Welch and Scotch, with others, were poſſeſſed of Cantwell, a ſtrong Caſtle ſituate in a Bog, well furniſhed with Proviſions, and were order'd by Sir Walter Butler, Governor of Kilkenny, to ſtrengthen that Garriſon.

But they ſent two Officers to the Lord Lieutenant to offer him the Place, and their Service, or that they might have Paſſes to go beyond Sea to ſerve foreign States, which laſt was conſented to.

That Colonel Abbot attempted Enisnag, where were gotten a Company of Rogues who revolted from Colonel Jones. The Soldiers capitulated for Life, and their two Officers were hanged for revolting.

That Adjutant General Sadler with two Guns reduced ſome Caſtles in the Counties of Tipperary and Kilkenny, then ſummoned Pulkerry a Garriſon under Clonmel, battered it, and they refuſing to come out he ſtormed it, put thirty or forty of them to the Sword, and the reſt remaining obſtinate were fired in the Caſtle.

That he took Ballo Poin, the Enemy marching away, and leaving their Arms behind them. Upon the like Terms he took the Granno, and Donkill, conſiderable Places to Waterford.

Complaints for want of Money, that the Horſe have not had one Month's Pay of five, he earneſtly preſſeth for Supplies, that not above two thouſand are come to them of the five thouſand Recruits ordered.

Concerning his coming over into England, he confeſſeth he received many private Intimations of the Parliament's pleaſure for his coming over, and Copies of their Votes, but all theſe were but private Intimations; that he received not the Speaker's Letter till March 22, which was dated Jan. 8. and then ſuppoſed the Army to be in Winter Quarters, and the time of the Year not ſuitable for preſent Action, he concludes thus.

Making this as the Reaſon of your Command, and your Forces having been in Action, ever ſince Jan. 29. and your Letter which was to be the Rule of my Obedience, coming to my Hands after our having been ſo long in Action, with reſpect had to the Reaſons you were pleaſed to uſe therein.

And having received a Letter (ſigned by yourſelf) of the 26 of Feb. which mentions not a Word of the Continuance of your Pleaſure concerning my coming over, I did only conceive, it much conſiſteth with my Duty, humbly to beg a poſitive Signification, what your Will is.

Profeſſing (as before the Lord) that I am moſt ready, to obey your Commands herein, with all Alacrity. Rejoicing only to be about that Work which I am called to, by thoſe whom God hath ſet over me, which I acknowledge to be you; and fearing only in obeying you, to diſobey you.

I moſt

Anno 1650. I moſt humbly and earneſtly beſeech you, to judge for me, whether your Letter doth not naturally allow me the Liberty of begging a more clear Expreſſion of your Command and Pleaſure, which when vouchſafed unto me will find moſt ready and chearful Obſervance from, Sir,

Your moſt humble Servant,

Carrick, 2 April, 1650. O. Cromwell.

Directed to the Speaker.

16. An Act paſſed impowering Commiſſioners for managing Eſtates under Sequeſtration.

An Act paſſed for the better keeping of the Lord's Day.

An Act paſſed, for preventing Wrongs and Abuſes done to Merchants at Sea, and prohibiting Mariners from ſerving foreign Princes or States without Licence, and to impower the Council of State to iſſue Commiſſions under the Seal of the Admiralty, giving Authority to Engliſh Ships to fight with and take ſuch French or other foreign Ships as ſhall require them to be viſited, or diſturb them in their Trade, under colour of viſiting.

Provided that if they take any foreign Veſſels, that after the Fight they ſhall not kill any Perſons therein.

A Declaration paſſed upon this Act.

An Act for general Commiſſions of Marque, committed.

An Act for reducing and bringing in all the Monies and Revenues belonging to the Commonwealth into one Treaſury, committed.

Petition. 17. Upon a Petition from divers of London, Weſtminſter, &c.

Vote. The Houſe voted, That the Scope thereof was to bring Scandal and Reproach upon the juſt and neceſſary Laws and Proceedings of the Parliament, and to weaken the preſent Government, to give thereby Advantage to the common Enemy, and to raiſe new Tumults and Troubles in the Nation.

Referred to a Committee to examine by whom and by what Practices this Petition was contrived and promoted.

From Pendennis, that the Commiſſioners ſettle the Militia there; from Scilly, Conjectures of a Conteſt there betwixt the Engliſh and Iriſh.

18. From Pool, of a Man of War of two hundred Tuns wracked upon that Coaſt, that ſhe ſtruck Ground about Midnight, and could never be got off again, that they fired eight Guns, but no help came to them, till next Day Noontide; in the mean time the Ship brake in two Parts, and all the People which were in that Part that fell away, were drowned ſuddenly.

That the other Part ſtood firm above Water, till the next Day about two a Clock in the Afternoon, when a Gentleman living near got a Boat, and brought away about ſixty Men, Women and Boys, and ſaved their Lives.

That before they were got to Shore, the other Part of the Ship wherein they were, brake to pieces and ſunk down into the Sea, and that in all there were drowned about fifty Men, Women, and Children Paſſengers, and Goods, Gold, Silver, Pearl, and rich Jewels to a great Value.

Montroſe. From Holland, that Montroſe is at Bergen in Norway, ſtaying for ſome Officers and Men that he left at Hamburgh, that he hath ſent five hundred Men to Orkney, that Sir John Cockeran, hath received ſome Monies from the King of Poland, and from Dantzick for the Prince; that General King can procure nothing in Sweden.

That the Agent ſent by Montroſe into Livonia, Courland and Lithuania, is come back with little Comfort, that his Frigat with ten Guns and forty Men is gone from Gottenburgh to him into Norway. April.

That nothing is done at the Treaty at Breda, the Prince of Orange not being yet come thither, and the King's Council are unwilling to reſolve any thing without him, becauſe they expect his Aſſiſtance, and to tranſport them into Scotland.

19. From Exon, five Men ſecured for ſwearing to each other to be ready for a Riſing, to cut the Throats of all the Parliament's Friends, &c.

From Chepſtow, of a Scotchman who went about begging, but he went about under that Pretence, to inform the King's Friends that there would be ſhortly a ſtrong Party of Scots in their Country, to join with them to ſet up King Charles II.

From Coventry, of the Care of the Earl of Denbigh and other Commiſſioners for ſettling the Militia of that County, of two Regiments of Horſe and two of Foot beſides thoſe of the City, and their being feaſted at the City's Charge.

Complaint of Rudeneſs of ſome Troopers, and that they fell out, and two or three of them were killed.

From Briſtol, of a Highwayman that came to the Mayor, and confeſſed that he had been a long time in that wicked Courſe and was weary of it, and if they would procure him his Pardon, he would diſcover many Robbers to them; and accordingly he invited his old Companions, to go forth with him as formerly, and when they were together he had a Party of Soldiers ready, who came and apprehended them.

From Cheſter, that the Lord Lieutenant having great Offers from Inchequin, is haſted to Limerick, where a hundred die of the Plague weekly.

That Hugh O Neale Chief in Clonmel offers to yield the Place for a Sum of Money, ſo that his Garriſon there may be tranſported for the Spaniſh Service.

That Sir Charles Coot and Major General Venables are marched out with 5000 Horſe and Foot (as is ſuppoſed) towards Catherlowe; which is a very ſtrong hold encompaſſed with the River Barrowe.

20. Orders for compleating of twelve Regiments of Horſe of the Army under Lieutenant General Fairfax, eight of them to 600 in a Regiment, and four to eighty in a Troop.

Information by Colonel Shilborne come from Ireland, that Sir Thomas Armſtrong having made his Terms to come in, and by Agreement being to do ſome Service at his beſt Opportunity, he, with a conſiderable Party of Horſe that were to come in with him, fell upon a Party of the Ulſter Forces, put near 500 of them to the Sword, and brought away ſome Priſoners.

Thus did Thieves and Soldiers betray one another, and you will ſee more of the ſame Nature hereafter according to the old Verſe, Nulla fides pietaſque viris qui Caſtra ſequuntur.

The Lord Lieutenant ſent this Sir Thomas Armſtrong to the Governor of Waterford upon ſome Overtures of Surrender of the Town upon Terms; the Governor of Duncannon deſired twenty Days to fit his Buſineſs to come off the better; the Lord Lieutenant ſuſpecting it as a Delay would give him but three Days only.

For Waterford, two Points were in difference.

1. For General Preſton to have leave to carry away five hundred Men for Spain, which the Lord Lieutenant inclined to grant.

2. For a Church for Exerciſe of publick Maſs, which the Lord Lieutenant poſitively denied.

Anno 1650.

22. From Berwick, that Montroſe and Hurrey are raiſing a great Army to march into England.

From Edinburgh, that they are ſtrongly alarmed with Intelligence, that Hurrey is landed in the Naas with 1400 Men, and that Montroſe is ſpeedily to follow from Orkney.

That David Leſley is gone out of Town, and the Scots Horſe ordered Northward.

Maſſey. From Pendennis, that the Commiſſioners of the Militia ſecured ſome Perſons of Quality. That a Letter was ſent to one Courtney with a Declaration from Major General Maſſey revolted to the Prince.

From Dartmouth, of the Peoples freely taking the Engagement.

From Denbigh, of the Death of the Archbiſhop of York and of divers others of Quality; that the People willingly took the Engagement.

From Cork, that Mac Charty and O Sullivant are eight hundred, and two hundred ſmall Horſe called Garrons.

That the Biſhop of Cloher was of late in competition for the Title of Generaliſſimo, and boaſted to bring ſeven hundred Roman Catholicks into the Field, that both he and Ormond have not above 1200 Horſe, and 3000 Foot.

That upon the Rendition of Cantwell's Court, a Place near Kilkenny exceeding ſtrong by Nature and Art, twelve Officers of Quality came in to the Lord Lieutenant, and had leave to embark for Spain.

That the riding of the Parliament's Ships, in the Mouth of the Shanon, blocks up the Limerick Veſſels and Duncannon.

That the Parliament Forces are recovered from a ſick and languiſhing Condition, the Flux and Fever (the two predominant Diſtempers) much abated, and the Garriſons kept clear and healthy, through the Mercy of God, none having any Infection.

For the Condition of the Army, and what the Lord Lieutenant and his Officers have brought it unto (which is a good Precedent) he thus deſcribes.

Our Foot are in a gallant Poſture, well armed, well clothed, and for Bread, Corn, and other things plentifully provided for by the State.

Letters. The Parliament indeed gave full Power to the Council of State to take care for Supply of their Forces, and the Council uſed the greateſt Care and Diligence that poſſibly could be, that nothing might be wanting for the carrying on of the Buſineſs of Ireland and for the Forces there; the Letter goes on, The Army's Diligence, Courage, Thankfulneſs and Behaviour is ſuch, through the ſtrict Care and Providence of our General and chief Officers, that never Men did obey Orders more chearfully, nor go upon all Duty more courageouſly.

Never did greater Harmony appear or Reſolution to proſecute this Cauſe of God, than in this Army, ſuch a Conſent of Hearts and Hands, ſuch a Sympathy in Affection, not only in a carnal but ſpiritual Bond, which lies faſter than Chains of Adamant.

I have often obſerved (eſpecially in that time and thoſe Actions) a wonderful Conſent of the Officers and Soldiers, and indeed of all the Parliament Forces, upon the Ground of doing Service for God, and how miraculouſly they were all in their Actions ſucceſsful. The Mind of Man being ſatisfied and fixed upon God, and that his Undertaking is for God's Glory, it gives the greateſt Courage to thoſe Men and Proſperity to their Actions. The Letter ſays further, our Muſters are ſtrict, here is no free Quarter allowed nor practiſed, either they pay or give Ticket, which being demanded by the pooreſt Iriſh, is not, durſt not be denied by any Officer. April.

Our Horſe have in many Places wanted Hay, but by the Supply of Oats from England, have made good Shift with Straw; we have 7000 Horſe, and our Foot trebles that Number, yet are Engliſh Recruits of Monies and Neceſſaries to be continued.

And by this Government of the Army in Ireland, and the great Succeſs of it, and the well ordering of the civil Affairs of that Kingdom, Cromwell got a very great Intereſt, not only in the Officers of the Army, both there and here, but likewiſe in the Parliament and Council of State, and with their whole Party; only the Scots and Presbyterians generally were no Favourers of him or his Proceedings. Cromwell

23. An Act paſſed for the better Obſervation of the Lord's-day, Days of Thankſgiving and Humiliation.

Order of the Truſtees appointed by Parliament for providing Maintenance for Miniſters and other pious Uſes, for thoſe who have Augmentations to their Benefices, to make their Claims by a Day.

24. From Edinburgh that Sir John Hurrey is come with 1400 Men into Cathneſs, and the Rear of his Army is to follow from Montroſe.

This Hurrey was an Officer in the Pay and Service of the Parliament, and revolting from them, he now was an Officer under Montroſe; he ſeized a Paſs.

That Major General Middleton was ſent for by the Eſtates. He was likewiſe an Officer in the Service and Pay of the Parliament, he revolted from the Parliament and was now in Service in his own Country, and backward he was yet to engage in this Buſineſs, not liking it and pretending to be ill.

That at Breda all is private, none can tell what is done but the King and the Commiſſioners, all Writings being locked up and Guards put upon the Clerks.

That the Clergy in Scotland have procured ſtrict Orders from the Commiſſioners of the Eſtates, for the proſecuting of Sectaries, and have a great arbitrary Power in Proceeding againſt them, and they are purged out of the Army as well as Malignants. Scots.

25. The Truſtees for Sale of the Lands of the late King, &c. gave a Day for all Debentures to be brought in for the Soldiers Arrears, and new Debentures to be given them.

Orders of the Committee for the Accounts of the Soldiery touching their Arrears.

26. The General and the Officers of the Army kept a Day of Humiliation at Somerſet Houſe, to ſeek God for a Bleſſing upon the preſent Undertakings of the Army. Army.

A Petition to the Parliament from the Officers of the Army in behalf of themſelves and the Soldiery, Petition.

Reciting the Engagement of the Parliament to ſatisfy their Arrears, and the transferring the Security for 600000 l. for their Arrears from the Exciſe to the Lands, Parks, &c. of the late King, whereof they hoped to receive the Benefit for their paſt lawful Service and future Encouragement.

Yet they are informed that a fifth Part of the Parks are to be allowed for a pretended Intereſt of Herbage and Pawnage to thoſe who claim Cuſtodies of thoſe Parks for Lives, whereas it were the full Value if they had the Fee-Simple, and nothing is due to them but their Fee only, and this Courſe will weaken if not invalid the intended Security, as diſcontent and diſcourage the Soldiery.

They

Anno 1650.

They pray that no ſuch Allowances may be made, And that the Parliament would declare their Reſolutions herein ſpeedily before the Army marched from hence.

27. From Edinburgh, that Hurrey and Montroſe have 3000 Men and 1000 more coming in to them, whereupon Lieutenant General Leſley is ordered Northward with moſt of the Horſe and 1400 Foot, who labours to appeaſe them by his Proteſtations of Faithfulneſs to the King, and Perſuaſion to forbear inteſtine Broils, ſeeing in a little time the King and they may come to an Agreement, and then go jointly againſt the common Enemy the Sectaries of England.

29. From Berwick, that Meſſengers are to be ſent to Montroſe's Party to know their Intentions, and if the Anſwer be not ſatisfactory, then to fight them is the Reſolution. That Montroſe's Party raiſe all the Country where they go from ſixteen to ſixty.

That the Committee of Eſtates have 7000 Foot and thirty Troops of Horſe, which are marched Northward.

That one Peter Gordon having notice of a Search for Delinquents, he being a notable one, took four others with him in a Boat and boarded a Ship in the Harbour, wherein were 1200 Buſhels of Wheat, and twelve Fats of Wine, and carried them and the Ship to Orkney.

Scots Bonds. That the Grandees cauſed Subſcriptions to be taken in the way of Bonds with Conditions to obey the Laws, and preſerve the Peace, &c.

30. Debate upon the Petition of the Officers of the Army, and voted that for fourteen Days, nothing but publick Buſineſs touching Money be taken into Conſideration.

An Act paſſed for impowering the Commiſſioners for Sequeſtrations, to examine upon Oath, and to give Acquittances for the Monies they ſhall receive.

An Act prohibiting the Exportation of Coin and Bullion into foreign Parts committed.

An Act for Sale of the Lands of the Lord Deincourt, committed.

Debate upon the Act againſt Inceſt, Adultery, and Fornication.

Vote that the Carmen be a diſtinct Company from the Woodmongers, ſubject to the Government of the City of London.

May 1650.

May 1. From Cheſter, that Major General Venables and Sir Charles Coot kept the Field, and Sir Charles had reduced many ſmall Forts near Carrickfergus.

From Dublin, that the Iriſh have got into a great Body near Trym.

From Exon, that moſt of the late ſecured Gentlemen of Cornwall, upon Aſſurance of their peaceable living at home given under their Hands, and a negative Engagement not to act any thing prejudicial to the preſent Government, are permitted to return to their own Houſes.

Ireland. From Dublin, that the Parliament's Forces had taken in the ſtrong Caſtle of Tully and loſt Captain Eriffe and two other Officers; that they fell upon Mac Phaileas's Quarters, killed near two hundred, loſt Cornet Puffey; that Colonel Reynolds with a brave Brigade attends the Enemy's Motion.

That the Earl of Caſtlehaven and Lieutenant General Farrel muſtered all their Forces to a great Body; that Sir Charles Coot had taken in Inniskilling and ſome other Forts.

From Taunton, that the Mayor who was formerly for the Parliament, now refuſed to take the Engagement, was turned out by the Corporation, and they choſe a new Mayor. May.

From Berkſhire that five Drunkards agreed to drink the King's Health in their Blood, and that each of them ſhould cut off a Piece of his Buttock and fry it upon the Gridiron; which was done by four of them, of whom one did bleed ſo exceedingly, that they were fain to ſend for a Chirurgeon and ſo were diſcovered.

That the Wife of one of them hearing that her Husband was among them, came to the Room, and raking up a pair of Tongs laid about her, and ſo ſaved the cutting of her Husband's Fleſh.

2. From Monmouth, of Malignants ſecured, and one of them with a Declaration of Major General's Maſſey's in his Pocket, and of proclaiming an Act of Parliament at the County Court by Order from the Council of State.

From Scilly, that there are ſeven hundred Iriſh and fourteen hundred Engliſh and great Store of Proviſions; that Sir Richard Greenvil is expected with four thouſand Men from Cornwall.

That there was a Plot by the Iriſh to cut off the Engliſh, which being diſcovered, one of the Iriſh Officers was ſhot to death and three ſent to Jerſey, and Engliſh Officers put in the head of the Iriſh.

From Dublin, of a Meeting of Ormond, Caſtlehaven, the Biſhop of Clogher and others; where Ormond propoſed, Whether they could make up an Army fit to engage with Cromwell. Propoſals.

If not, Whether it were not neceſſary to draw all their ſtrength into theſe Quarters, and utterly waſte them, that they might not be able to ſubſiſt. Ireland.

If they were not able to do that, Whether it were not convenient to make Propoſitions of Peace for the Kingdom?

If not that, then Whether it would not be neceſſary for every Man to make Conditions for himſelf.

The Concluſion was, That they would fall into the Parliament's Quarters and deſtroy all, both Proteſtants and Papiſts. But this ſo diſtaſted the Country Gentlemen, that they put off the Buſineſs till another Council.

The Governor of Dublin ſent to Colonel Reynolds and Sir Theophilus Jones, who have 3500 Men to come to his aſſiſtance.

3. From Pendennis, that divers Veſſels of the Dutch were taken by the Iriſh Men of War and brought into Scilly, which the Dutch Agent could not get releaſed, and therefore the Dutch had Commiſſions to take the Iriſh Ships.

4. From Dublin, that Ormond and his Council reſolved to fall into the Parliament's Quarters, and to burn and ſpoil what they can, but Sir Theophilus Jones and Colonel Reynolds are upon their March with 2000 Horſe and 3000 Foot towards them, and that notice hereof was ſent to Sir Charles Coot who had taken the Field with 3000 Men.

6. Letters from Edinburgh, that Colonel Strachan's, Colonel Griffeth's, and part of Colonel Ker's Forces with two other Troops and ſixty Foot, fell upon Montroſe's Party in Roſs, routed them, and took 500 Priſoners, among them, Hurrey, Napier, and Frenerick, and ſlew 300. That Montroſe himſelf hardly eſcaped, they took his Horſe, Piſtols, Belt, and Scabbard, and have ſent a Party to purſue him. Montroſe defeated.

From Barnſtable, of Troops ſhipped for Ireland.

7. Upon

Anno 1650.

7. Upon a Report from the Committee of the Army, voted that two Months pay be provided for the marching Army.

Upon conſideration of drawing the Forces this Summer (as there may be occaſion) into ſeveral Parts of this Nation, and that they may have Pay whereſoever they come, and the Country be ſecured from free Quarter.

Voted, that there be an Aſſeſſment towards the Maintenance of the Forces in England and Ireland for ſix Months, after the rate of 90000 l. per menſem for the firſt three Months, and 60000 l. per menſem for the laſt three Months.

A Declaration paſſed concerning the Compoſitions of Delinquents.

An Act enabling Grantees of Wards Lands, to paſs their Grants under the Great Seal, and to enjoy their Grants commited.

Order touching the Charges upon Deans and Chapters Lands for pious uſes.

Durham. A Repreſentation to the Parliament from the Gentlemen Freeholders and Inhabitants of the County of Durham, delivered by the Grand Jury at the Aſſizes, and ſent up by the High Sheriff to the Parliament to this effect.

1. That the Courts of Juſtice amongſt them being ſuſpended and removed to Weſtminſter, they cannot ſue for any ſmall Debt or Sum, but the Coſt exceeded the Debt, and Suits are multiplied to ſix hundred Writs in one Term, and Fines and Recoveries of their Eſtates are unperfected.

That ſuch an Eſtabliſhment may be had of Courts of Juſtice, as the Parliament ſhall think fit.

2. That the College and Houſes of the Dean and Chapter, being now empty and in decay, may be imployed for erecting a College, School, or Academy for the benefit of the Northern Countries, which are ſo far from the Univerſities.

3. That part of the Lands of the Dean and Chapter near the City may be ſet out to Truſtees for pious uſes.

Referred to a Committee to ſtate this Buſineſs, and report their Opinions touching the Deſires of the County.

Upon a Letter from the Aldermen, and Common Council of Bridgewater, of their removing the Mayor, for refuſing to take the Engagement, and chooſing another, the Houſe approved thereof.

That a Soldier was ſhot to Death for murther.

Of ſeveral Recruits embarked for Ireland.

From Yarmouth, of ſettling the Militia in Norfolk, four Regiments of Foot and one of Horſe; that many of the Cavaliers take the Engagement.

That the General publiſhed Orders to be obſerved for the Hoſpital of Ely Houſe, where the maimed Soldiers were.

Leeds. 9. A Petition from the Inhabitants of Leeds in Yorkſhire againſt an illegal Patent for incorporating that Town, deſiring it may be vacated.

From Coventry, of the Militia of that County ſettled, of 700 Horſe, and 1200 Foot.

From Towceſter, of Recruits willingly come in.

From Stafford, of a diſcovery of a Deſign for an Inſurrection there upon the advance of the Army.

Whereupon Colonel Sanders and Colonel Twiſſelden ſecured the High Sheriff and other Gentlemen.

10. From Londonderry, that the Lord Preſident is marched forth with 3000 Foot and 1200 Horſe, by the Lord Lieutenant's deſire towards Connaught, but will not be able to make any conſiderable attempt upon that Province, for want of Shipping to convey his Ordnance and Proviſions, the ways there being exceeding bogy and mountainous. May.

Yet this will be gained by marching to the Borders of it (which is the chief thing aimed at by the Lord Lieutenant) that the Forces under Clanrickard will not dare to march out of their own Country to join with the Forces under Caſtlehaven, or with any Brigade of the Enemy.

From Edinburgh, that Montroſe's Forces being grown up to about 4000 Horſe and Foot, and 2000 more expected, they divided themſelves into two Parties, and ſo marched out of Cathneſs into Sutherland, having at firſt taken the ſtrong Caſtle of Dunheith, which is near encompaſſed with the Sea. Montroſe.

In it was taken 1500 l. Sterling and ſtore of Proviſions, the Earl of Sutherland fled and divers Miniſters, yet ſome Miniſters were taken, and ſome joined with them.

This hot Alarum cauſed David Leſley to haſten from his Rendezvous at Brichen, and to deſire the reſt of his Forces left with Holborn to march up to him; he in the mean while goes on with what he had, and raiſing as many as he could by the way, came up to about 3000 Men.

Montroſe ſends up a Propoſal, that he might freely, with as many as would voluntarily join with him, paſs into England, and he would engage to do violence to none in his Paſſage.

But Lieutenant Colonel Strachan, and the others before mentioned being many Miles before the reſt of the Army (tho the Sectary Troops) ventured to engage the Enemy, routed Montroſe's whole Army, ſlew about 300, took 500 Priſoners, among them Renegado Urrey and other Perſons of Quality.

That the Kirkmen a little before vented in publick, That the Treaty was but a Juggling to deceive the Godly Party. When (as was believed) they had before heard, that the Treaty was concluded, with a full coming up to the Kirk's Demands. Kirk.

Mr. L'loyd Chaplain to the Lord Lieutenant brought Letters from him, that he was ſet down before Clonmel, and his Guns planted. That after that Buſineſs ſhall be over, he intended to come for England. That two Officers going to view the Town, were taken Priſoners.

That the Enemy in Clonmel are about 2000 Foot and 120 Horſe.

11. Letters that Wogan the Revolter with 500 Foot came to take poſſeſſion of Bourough Caſtle, which the Lord Lieutenant's Forces hearing of, marched towards him, but Wogan quitted the Caſtle, leaving only fourteen Men, who upon the approach of the Lord Lieutenant's Forces yielded upon Quarter.

That Sir Hardreſs Waller's Forces took Laugher Caſtle, a conſiderable Fort within ſix Miles of Limerick, and an attempt of his to take Kilmallock prevented by a diſcovery, but his Forces poſſeſſed an Abby near the Town.

13. From Berwick, that the news of routing of Montroſe's Forces doth much diſtract the Malignants. Montroſe.

That the Committee of Eſtates have given Mr. Strachan 1000 l. Sterling, and a Gold Chain, and to Hacket 1000 Marks Sterling, and to Kiffin, 50 l. and to the Soldiers engaged in that Service three Months Pay.

From Holland, that the Scots King went from Breda to the Hague; that the Scots Commiſſioners

Anno 1650. proclaimed their King at Breda to be King of Scotland, England, and Ireland. And that the Agreement was ſet up there upon Poſts.

Adultery Act. 14. The Act paſſed for ſuppreſſing the deteſtable Sins of Inceſt, Adultery, and Fornication.

H. Martin. Upon which Mr. Henry Martin declared his Opinion, That the Severity of the Puniſhment by this Act, being death, would cauſe theſe Sins to be more frequently committed becauſe People would be more cautious in committing them for Fear of the Puniſhment, and being undiſcovered would be emboldned the more in the commitment of them.

Order for a Bill for the maintenance of the Miniſters in Colcheſter.

An Act paſſed for ſecuring ſuch Sums of Money as ſhall be ſent for the Service of the Navy and Army.

Order, for Colonel Alexander Popham to raiſe a Regiment of Horſe in Somerſetſhire, to be a Part of the Militia of that County and to be kept together for the publick Service, and referred to the Council of State to grant him a Commiſſion.

15. From Cheſter, that Wexford Men have beaten Phelim Birne, killed four of his Captains, and 120 of his Men, and have taken Fyrnes, and Cornow from him.

That the Iriſh Army in Ulſter will not fight with Sir Charles Coot, but are withdrawn into their Quarters. That the Lemſter Army is retreated over the Shanon, and the Lord Lieutenant is Maſter of the Field in all Places.

From Exon, that in ſettling the Militia in that County, they only appoint Captains, and no other Officers.

From the Hague, that the King and the Scots Commiſſioners were come from Breda thither, and the Treaty between them agreed.

From the Iſle of Wight, that a Ship of five Guns, belonging to Sir George Carteret Governor of Jerſey, bound for Virginia, with many Paſſengers, all ſorts of Goods, and Tools for Husbandry, for planting an Iſland, which the Prince had given to Sir George, was taken by Captain Green and brought in thither.

Trepan. 16. From Litchfield, of one who under the Notion of a Cavalier addreſſed himſelf to divers Gentlemen of that Country, acquainting them, that he had Inſtructions from the King to deſire them to ſign an Engagement which he ſhewed them, and got many of them to ſubſcribe it, then diſcovered it to the Officers of Litchfield, who ſent for thoſe Gentlemen, and made them Priſoners.

From Taunton of many Volunteers liſted for the Service of Ireland.

From Hull, that an Iriſh Frigat brought to Amſterdam two great Lords who eſcaped out of Ireland, and reported that the King was undone in his Intereſt there.

That the Governor of Hull renewed a Proclamation, that no Maſter or Owner of any Ship coming to Hull, or in the Harbour, ſhould receive in any Paſſenger to go beyond Seas, or land any coming from beyond Seas, without notice given to the Governor.

A deſign was diſcovered, and the Plotters apprehended. It was to ſeize Pendennis Caſtle for the Prince.

Order for a Day of Humiliation through the Kingdom.

17. Letters that Montroſe was taken two or three Days after the Fight, ſixteen Miles from the Place of the Engagement, in a diſguiſe, and ſorely wounded.

From Dublin, that the Governor was marched out with an additional Strength to join with Sir Theophilus Jones, and Colonel Reynolds; and that they would be about 4000. May.

That Caſtlehaven, Clanrickard, and Mac Thomas were joined in a Body, and that a Spy numbred with them twenty five Colours of Foot, and ten Colours of Horſe.

That Iniskiling was ſurrendred to Sir Charles Coot, according to the Agreement. That the Iriſh Army in the North grow ſtrong, and more Forces to be ſent to Sir Charles Coot who already marcheth with 2700 Foot, and 1100 Horſe.

That Caſtlehaven and his Party are retreated towards Connaught.

That the Parliament's Forces in Wicklow have taken Fernes, and Carnow, and have killed 120 of Mac Phelim's Men.

18. From Edinburgh, the Particulars of Montroſe's Defeat, that he had but 1100 Foot, and no Horſe, yet with them marched fifty Miles into the Country, and would not ſtay for the reſt of his Forces, nor thoſe who were to join with him, but ſent to them to come after. Montroſe.

That he would not keep the Hill, where he might have been ſafe, but marched into the plain Campania, where he had neither Lanes, nor Ditches to favour againſt the Horſe, in which he knew the other Party's ſtrength conſiſted.

That ſome conceived that Montroſe expected to meet with David Leſley, who had received his Propoſitions for marching into England, and further Overtures; and did not expect to have met with Strachan and his Sectary Troops, who fell on him, and he having no Horſe was the more eaſily defeated.

From Newcaſtle, that Sir William Fleming and others were landed at Leith, with Letters from the King, and the Commiſſioners: that they were agreed of the ſubſtantial Points, yet with Reference in ſome particulars to a Reſolution in Parliament.

From Ireland, that Colonel Reynolds fell upon the Earl of Caſtlehaven, killed 1200 of his Men, and took as many Priſoners; that they were ſtruck with ſuch a panick fear that they made no Reſiſtance.

20. From Berwicke, that in Scotland Montroſe was ſentenced to be quartered, and Preparations for his Execution, before they heard from their King, or he from them, leſt he ſhould intercede for his Pardon. Montroſe.

That the King and their Commiſſioners are unqueſtionably agreed, but they hold it not fit for him to come thither, till they be in a better Poſture; that they kept a Day of Thankſgiving, and the Miniſters prayed exceedingly for the King's coming, as one brought into the Kirk, and therefore to God. Scots.

That the Duke of Lorrain had promiſed to aſſiſt the King with 10000 Men.

From the Bath, that four Wagons came thither loaden with ſick and maimed Soldiers, who had good Allowance from the Parliament, to be there, in hopes of ſome help by thoſe Waters; that a private Gentleman near that Place ſent them 20 l.

21. An Act paſſed for a Day of publick Humiliation.

An Act paſſed for an Aſſeſſment for the Forces in England and Ireland for ſix Months, at 90000 l. per menſem for the firſt three Months, and 60000 l. per menſem for the latter three Months.

A Letter from the Officers at the Head Quarters to the Colonels and Governors of the reſpective Regiments and Garriſons in England and Wales,

Army. Exhorting them to Prayer and to Unity, and to join in keeping a Day of Humiliation ſet apart to ſeek God for his Aſſiſtance to them in all Services, whereunto they ſhall be called: And to reform Drunkenneſs, Swearing, Prophanation of the Lord's Day, contempt of the Ordinances of Chriſt, and all Sins in their ſeveral Charges, and to ſanctify the Camp.

Order for an honourable Reception of Mynheer Scaph an Agent ſent from the States of Holland to the Parliament of England.

22. Letters of Deſigns againſt Pendennis Caſtle, and the Commiſſioners of the Militia being very active, and giving great Aſſiſtance to them.

23. From Dartmouth, that two Iriſh Pirates chaſed a Merchant Man into the Harbour, and attempted to board her at noon Day, but the Governor reſcued her.

Law. Certain Propoſals were agreed upon to be preſented to the Parliament, at a general Meeting of Attorneys and Officers for the Reformation of the Proceedings of Law, whereby they hoped that the Client will be much ſecured, the Creditor and Purchaſer fully provided for, the Charge of Suits greatly abated, and the Proceſs of Law much ſhortned.

24. From Cheſter, that Trechohan was quitted and burnt down by the Enemy.

From Liverpool, Report that Clonmel was taken by Storm; and that the Countrymen drawn together by the Biſhop of Cloher were diſperſed, and gone home, being not willing to bear Arms.

From the Leaguer before Clonmel, that they prepared to ſtorm; that all the Engliſh under Ormond had ſubmitted to the Parliament.

That the Enemy had lately two conſiderable Defeats given them, one in the County of Wexford by Colonel Cook, who routed the Enemy, ſlew many, and took divers Priſoners.

The other in the County of Cork, by the Lord Broghil who ſlew about 700, and took many Priſoners, and totally routed the Party.

From Dublin, that they have recovered Drumore and other Forts.

25. From Hull, that the Engagement was generally taken by the Inhabitants of the Eaſt Riding.

Suſpicion of a Plot.

From Coventry, that the Country came in ſo faſt to take the Engagement that the Commiſſioners could not give it to all of them.

Scotland. From Edinburgh, that the Lord Frendraght, of Montroſe's Party, after his Defeat, for Vexation ſtarved himſelf, and that the Lord Kinoul was alſo ſtarved.

That the Presbytery of Orkney and Cathnes had relaxed Montroſe of his Excommunication.

That Sir William Fleming arrived there with a Letter to Montroſe to disband about 300 in Orkney under his Baſtard Brother.

That the Commiſſioners Secretary was arrived with the News of a full Agreement with the King.

Ireland. From Briſtol, that Clonmel was ſurrendred to the Lord Lieutenant upon Articles, that they would have made Conditions for Ormond and Inchequin; but were refuſed; but Paſſes were offered for them to go beyond Seas, which they would not take; but the Lord Ardes and others of Quality took them. May.

That Colonel More and Colonel Reynolds beſieged Tetrogham.

That the Biſhop of Roſs being taken in the late Defeat at Kerny, was hanged before a Caſtle kept by his Forces, who thereupon ſurrendred it. That this Biſhop was wont to ſay, There was no way to ſecure the Engliſh, but by hanging them: And now came himſelf to be hanged.

That in this Defeat at Kerny, the Lord Broghil ſlew about 700, and took 20 Captains, Lieutenants, and other Officers, and the Standard of the Church of Munſter, it being a Church Army.

That the Horſe did the Service before the Foot came up, at ſuch a Paſs, where 100 Muſqueteers might have beaten back all the Horſe in Ireland.

27. From Edinburgh, the Particulars of the Execution of Montroſe, That being brought before the Parliament the Chancellor made a large Speech to him, telling him, how much formerly he was for the Covenant, and how he had ſince broken it. Mon-troſe's Execution.

He told them, His Cauſe was good, and that he had not only a Commiſſion but particular Orders for what he did from his Majeſty, whom he was engaged to be a Servant to, and they alſo had profeſſed to comply with; and upon that Account, however they dealt with him, he would own them to be a Parliament.

That if they would take away his Life, the World knew he regarded it not. It was a Debt that muſt once be paid, and that he was willing, and did much rejoice that he muſt go the ſame way his Majeſty did. And it was the joy of his Heart, not only to do but to ſuffer for him.

The Parliament gave Sentence upon him, That he ſhould be hanged upon a Gibbet ſix Ells and a half high, and after he was hanged, his Head to be ſevered from his Body, and put upon the Tolbooth at Edinburgh; his right Hand to be cut off, and ſent to Glaſcow, his left to Aberdeen; his right Foot to St. Johnſton, and his left to Dundee.

That all the time of his Sentence and Execution he ſeemed to be no way altered, but his Speech full of Compoſure; when they bid him kneel, he told them he would obſerve any Poſture to manifeſt his Obedience, eſpecially to them who were ſo near to a Conjunction with his Majeſty: And a Miniſter attending to offer him Abſolution, he refuſed it from the Miniſter, but deſired him to pray with him; which the Miniſter refuſed, unleſs he would take Abſolution from him.

He himſelf prayed very zealouſly, and ſuffered with great Meekneſs and Courage.

From Liverpool, That the Engagement is willingly taken; that ſome Powder and Match going to ſome Cavaliers was ſeized upon.

28. A Bill for ſettling the Militia of the Commonwealth committed.

Order for an Act to be brought in, to impower the Militia of London to raiſe Horſe, another for Weſtminſter, another to be for ſetting the Poor to work throughout the Nation.

Letters from Clonmel May 10. Ireland. Clonmel.

This Day we entred Clonmel, which was quit by the Enemy the laſt Night, after a tedious Storm, which continued four Hours. Our Men kept cloſe to the Breach, which they had entered, all the time, ſave only one accidental Retreat in the Storm. We loſt in this Storm Colonel Cullum and ſome other Officers, with divers private Soldiers and others wounded.

The

Anno 1650. The Enemy had made many great Preparations within by a Traverſe or Croſswork, and to beat our Men off as they entred; but afterwards many of them ſtole out of the Town, and left ſome few with the Inhabitants, to make Conditions; in the Morning our Forces purſued, and killed all they could light upon.

29. From Newcaſtle, That the Scots are in daily Expectation of their King's landing in ſome Part of the North; that ſome Parliament Ships are wafting up and down on that Coaſt under Captain Hall.

30. From Clonmel, that Colonel Reynolds is waiting upon the Motions of Caſtlehaven with 1500 Horſe and Dragoons.

That they found in Clonmel the ſtouteſt Enemy that ever was found by the Army in Ireland, and that there was never ſeen ſo hot a Storm of ſo long a Continuance, and ſo gallantly defended, neither in England nor Ireland.

From Portſmouth, of a Man of War taken with the Commiſſion of Charles II.

Scots. From Berwick, That the Scots Commiſſioners went beyond their Inſtructions, in promiſing their King Aſſiſtance againſt England; that their Miniſters pray for the Confuſion of the Sectarian Army in England: And that their Army is marching Southwards.

31. From Coventry, that few or none of the Commonality of that Country but had taken the Engagement.

From Briſtol, that the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland was landed there, and that they fired their great Guns thrice over at his Arrival.

From Guernſey, that Major Harriſon had beſieged the Caſtle, and made 150 Shot at it.

Ireland. From Dublin, that Colonel Reynolds was ſat down before Tecroghan, where Colonel Hewſon met him; that they made their Approaches within Piſtol Shot of it, without the loſs of one Man.

That it is a very ſtrong Place never poſſeſt by the Parliament's Forces, during all the time of the Rebellion.

That the titular Biſhop of Clogher, General of the Northern Iriſh, marching with about 300 Horſe and 4000 Foot, being faced by 1000 of the Parliament's Horſe, retreated and many of his Men diſperſed.

Scotland. From Scotland, that Montroſe would have nothing to do with the Kirkmen at the time of his Execution, and that the People ſhewed much ſorrow and regret at his Death.

That the Scots Parliament invited the King thither, and expect his ſudden Arrival. That the Lord Argyle (late turned Royaliſt) and other Lords are ſo deſirous of his coming, that they poſtpone the Church's Intereſt thereto.

Cromwell The Lord Lieutenant of Ireland came to Town, he was met on Hounſlow-Heath by many Members of Parliament, and Officers of the Army, and at Hydepark ſaluted with great Guns, and a Volley of Shot from Colonel Barkſtead's Regiment, and lodged in Whitehall.

June 1650.

June 1. Great Ceremonies and Appearances of Joy upon the coming of the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland to London; moſt of the Perſons of Quality, the Members of Parliament, and Officers of the Army about the Town, paid their Viſits to him, and congratulated the ſafe Arrival of his Excellence after ſo many Dangers both by Sea and Land, wherein God had preſerved him, and the wonderful Succeſſes which he had given him. June.

3. From Edinburgh, That the Miniſters are earneſt in Prayer for the King's coming, but ſo that he may firſt condeſcend to all that is propounded. That they are buſy in ſettling Officers for his Majeſty's Houſe, and in purging the Army.

That Letters came from the King, expreſſing much ſorrow at the Report he hears, that there is ſome blood of his good Subjects ſhed of late: But not knowing how it is, deſires to underſtand the Buſineſs fully. That Sir John Urrey and Colonel Spotteſwood are forthwith to be beheaded.

From Liverpool, That the Excile was quietly ſettled in thoſe Parts.

A Soldier for Swearing and Blaſpheming, and abuſing a poor Woman to whom he owed Money, was ſentenced by the Court Marſhal,

From the Fleet before Lisbon, of a Deſign by Prince Rupert to fire the Admiral, by ſending a Boat with two Negroes and an Engliſhman in Portugueſe Habit under pretence to ſell Proviſions to the Fleet, and had a Device to have fired the Ship.

But the Engliſhman caſting out by chance an Engliſh Word, they were ſuſpected, and apprehended; the Engliſhman confeſſed all the Buſineſs. and that Prince Rupert promiſed him 100*l.* to effect it.

That Prince Rupert ſtanding on the Shore to ſee this done, when he perceived it was diſcovered, and the men apprehended, came to the Water ſide, where ſome Seamen were filling Water, and asked them who they were for? they anſwered for the Parliament. Whereupon the Prince with his Company, calling them Dogs, fell on them with Swords and Piſtols, killed two of them, wounded two more, and carried away three of them Priſoners whom they keep in Chains, and have killed, and taken ſeveral other Seamen of the Parliament's Fleet there.

7. From Dublin, That 120 of the Enemy came to relieve Trecoghan, thinking by ſtealth to get over a Bog; but Colonel Hewſon having notice of it, ſent out a Party of Horſe and Foot, who killed ſixty of them, and purſued the reſt to a Bog, where they killed ſixteen of them, and took four Priſoners.

That the Soldiers which were in Clonmel, fled to Waterford, and were there denied entrance, only Hugh Boy Oneal, and two or three more Commanders were admitted.

That the Plague is very hot there.

That the Parliament's Forces in the North recovered Tuum; which was ſurrendred through the Terror of a Mortar-piece, that made only two Shots, but none of the Shells lighted within forty yards of the Place.

8. From Edinburgh, That Hamilton, Calander, Lauderdale, and other Lords, are forbid to come into Scotland with the King. That Calander offered ſubmiſſion to the Kirk, but it would not do, and he is to depart the Kingdom by a Day, under pain of 100000*l. Scotch.*

Blake. From Portugal, That General Blake had taken five of the King of Portugal's Ships, loaden with rich Commodities from America, and ſent word to the King, that unleſs he will command Prince Rupert's Fleet out from his River, they will endeavour to ſeize upon the reſt of his Fleet coming from America.

Scotland. 10. From Berwick, that the Parliament of Scotland ſent a Letter to their King, expreſſing their Affection to him, and their rejoicing at the happy Agreement, deſiring him not to be diſcouraged at ſome ſeeming Obſtacles, as the Death of Montroſe, &c. they doing nothing therein, but to accompliſh his Intereſt.

That Hurrey and Spotteſwood were beheaded; and an acknowledgement made, That Spotteſwood (a Biſhop's Son) was one of thoſe that murdered Dr. Doriſlaus in Holland, and that another Scotchman, priſoner now at Edinburgh, was of his company. June.

That a French Marquiſs landed in the North of Scotland to aſſiſt Montroſs not knowing what was become of him; but the Marquiſs was ſecured, and from him were taken many Letters from the King, and from ſeveral Princes and great Men, encouraging him in the Buſineſs he had undertaken.

South-Wales. An humble Acknowledgment to the Parliament from the Gentlemen and well affected of South-Wales, with Thankfulneſs and Profeſſion of their future Duty and Obedience. And the Speaker gave them the hearty Thanks of the Parliament.

Juncto of State. The Juncto of the Council of State with whom Cromwell conſulted, having Intelligence of the King's Reſolution for Scotland, and of the Levies there made of Forces to aſſiſt him in his intended Invaſion of England, whereof they had more than ordinary Aſſurance.

Reſolution to invade Scotland. They thought it therefore not prudent to be behind-hand with their Enemy nor to be put to an After-game to ſtay till they ſhould firſt invade England, but rather to carry the War from their native Country into Scotland, who they were ſure had reſolved in a hoſtile manner to enter England.

As to the Objection that their invading Scotland would be contrary to the Covenant, they were ſatisfied that the Covenant was by the Scots broken and diſſolved before, and was not now binding betwixt the two Nations; and the levying of Forces in Scotland, and marching ſome of them to the Borders of England with the hoſtile Acts done by them formerly, were ſufficient Grounds for the Parliament to provide for the Security of themſelves and Countrymen; the which could not be ſo effectually done as by carrying the War which they deſigned upon us unto their own Doors.

Upon theſe and many other weighty Conſiderations it was reſolved here, That having a formed Army well provided and experienced, they would march it forthwith into Scotland to prevent the Scots marching into England, and the Miſeries accompanying their Forces to our Countrymen.

Fairfax unſatisfied. The Lord General Fairfax being adviſed with herein, ſeemed at firſt to like well of it, but afterwards being hourly perſuaded by the Presbyterian Miniſters and his own Lady, who was a great Patroneſs of them, he declared himſelf unſatisfied that there was a juſt ground for the Parliament of England to ſend their Army to invade Scotland.

But in caſe the Scots ſhould invade England, then he was forward to engage againſt them in defence of his own Country.

The Council of State ſomewhat troubled at his Excellency's Scruples appointed Cromwell, Lambert, Harriſon, St. John, and myſelf, a Committee to confer hereupon with Fairfax; and to endeavour to ſatisfy him of the Juſtice and Lawfulneſs of this Undertaking. June.

The Committee met with the Lord General Fairfax, and being ſhut up together in a Room in Whitehall they went firſt to Prayer, that God would direct them in this Buſineſs; and Cromwell began, and moſt of the Committee prayed, after which they diſcourſed to this Effect.

Conference with Fairfax.

Cromwell. My Lord General, we are commanded by the Council of State to confer with your Excellency touching the preſent Deſign (whereof you have heard ſome debate in the Council) of marching the Army under your Command into Scotland, and becauſe there ſeemed to be ſome Heſitation in your ſelf as to that Journey, this Committee were appointed to endeavour to give your Excellency Satisfaction in any Doubts of yours which may ariſe concerning that Affair, and the Grounds of that Reſolution of the Council for the Journey into Scotland.

Lord General. I am very glad of the Opportunity of conferring with this Committee, where I find ſo many of my particular Friends, as well as of the Commonwealth, about this great Buſineſs of our March into Scotland; wherein I do acknowledge my ſelf not fully ſatisfied as to the Grounds and Juſtice of our Invaſion upon our Brethren of Scotland, and I ſhall be glad to receive Satisfaction therein by you.

Lambert. Will your Excellency be pleaſed to favour us with the particular Cauſes of your Diſſatisfaction.

Lord General. I ſhall very freely do it, and I think I need not make to you or to any that know me, any Proteſtation of the Continuance of my Duty and Affection to the Parliament, and my Readineſs to ſerve them in any thing wherein my Conſcience will give me leave.

Harriſon. There cannot be more deſired nor expected from your Excellency.

Whitelocke. No Man can doubt of the Fidelity and Affection of your Excellency to the Service of the Commonwealth; you have given ample Teſtimony thereof, and it will be much for the Advantage of their Affairs if we may be able to give you Satisfaction (as I hope we ſhall) touching the particular Points wherein your Doubts riſe.

St John. I pray, my Lord, be pleaſed to acquaint us with your particular Objections againſt this Journey.

Lord General. My Lords, you will give me leave then with all Freeneſs to ſay to you, that I think it doubtful whether we have a juſt Cauſe to make an Invaſion upon Scotland.

With them we are joined in the national League and Covenant; and now for us contrary thereunto, and without ſufficient Cauſe given us by them, to enter into their Country with an Army and to make War upon them, is that which I cannot ſee the Juſtice of, nor how we ſhall be able to juſtify the lawfulneſs of it before God or Man.

Cromwell. I confeſs (my Lord) that if they have given us no Cauſe to invade them, it will not be juſtifiable for us to do it; and to make War upon them without a ſufficient Ground for it, will be contrary to that which in Conſcience we ought to do, and diſpleaſing both to God and good Men.

But (my Lord) if they have invaded us, as your Lordſhip knows they have done, ſince the national Covenant, and contrary to it in that Action of Duke Hamilton, which was by Order and Authority from the Parliament of that Kingdom, and ſo the Act of the whole Nation by their Repreſentatives.

And

Anno 1650.

And if they now give us too much Cauſe of Suſpicion that they intend another Invaſion upon us, joining with their King with whom they have made a full Agreement, without the Aſſent or Privity of this Commonwealth, and are very buſy at this preſent in raiſing Forces and Money to carry on their Deſign.

If theſe things are not a ſufficient Ground and Cauſe for us to endeavour to provide for the Safety of our own Country, and to prevent the Miſeries which an Invaſion of the Scots would bring upon us, I humbly ſubmit it to your Excellency's Judgment.

That they have formerly invaded us, and brought a War into the Bowels of our Country, is known to all, wherein God was pleaſed to bleſs us with Succeſs againſt them, and that they now intend a new Invaſion upon us I do as really believe, and have as good Intelligence of it, as we can have of any thing that is not yet acted.

Therefore I ſay (my Lord) that upon theſe Grounds I think we have a moſt juſt Cauſe to begin, or rather to return and requite their Hoſtility firſt begun upon us, and thereby to free our Country (if God ſhall be pleaſed to aſſiſt us, and I doubt not but he will) from the great Miſery and Calamity of having an Army of Scots within our Country.

That there will be War between us, I fear, is unavoidable. Your Excellency will ſoon determine whether it be better to have this War in the Bowels of another Country or of our own, and that it will be in one of them, I think it without Scruple.

Lord General. It is probable there will be War between us, but whether we ſhould begin this War and be on the offenſive Part, or only ſtand upon our own Defence is that which I ſcruple. And although they invaded us under Duke Hamilton, who pretended the Authority of the Parliament then ſitting for it, yet their ſucceeding Parliament diſowned that Engagement, and puniſhed ſome of the Promoters of it.

Whitelocke. Some of the principal Men in that Engagement of Duke Hamilton's, are now in great Favour and Employment with them, eſpecially in their Army ſince raiſed, and now almoſt ready to advance into England; and I believe your Excellency will judge it more Prudence for us (who have an Army under your Command ready formed, and experienced Soldiers, whom God hath wonderfully proſpered under your Conduct) to prevent their coming into England, by viſiting of them in their own Country.

Lord General. If we were aſſured of their coming with their Army into England, I confeſs it were Prudence for us to prevent them, and we are ready to advance into Scotland before they can march into England, but what Warrant have we to fall upon them unleſs we can be aſſured of their Purpoſe to fall upon us.

Harriſon. I think, under Favour, there cannot be greater Aſſurance or human Probability of the Intentions of any State than we have of theirs to invade our Country, elſe what means their preſent Levies of Men and Money, and their Quartering Soldiers upon our Borders? It is not long ſince they did the like to us and we can hardly imagine what other Deſign they can have to employ their Forces.

Lord General. Human Probabilities are not ſufficient Grounds to make War upon a Neighbour Nation, eſpecially our Brethren of Scotland, to whom we are engaged in a ſolemn League and Covenant.

St. John. But (my Lord) that League and Covenant was firſt broken by themſelves, and ſo diſſolved as to us, and the diſowning of Duke Hamilton's Action by their latter Parliament, cannot acquit the Injury done to us before.

Cromwell. I ſuppoſe your Excellency will be convinced of this clear Truth, that we are no longer obliged by the League and Covenant which themſelves did firſt break. June.

Lord General. I am to anſwer only for my own Conſcience, and what that yields unto as juſt and lawful, I ſhall follow; and what ſeems to me, or what I doubt to be otherwiſe I muſt not do.

Whitelocke. Your Excellency is upon a very right Ground, and our Buſineſs is to endeavour your Satisfaction in thoſe Doubts you make, if we ſhall ſtay till they firſt invade us, we ſhall ſuffer much Miſery to come among us, which probably we may prevent by ſending firſt to them; and ſurely by the Law of Nations, if an Ally enter in an hoſtile Manner into his Neighbour Nation contrary to the Alliance and be beaten out again, that Nation thus invaded may lawfully afterwards invade the other to requite the former Wrongs done unto them.

But beſides this we cannot but ſee their preſent Preparations to be againſt us, for they are in Amity with all others; and their Conjunction now with the King's Party, may plainly enough diſcover their Deſigns againſt this Commonwealth.

Lord General. I can but ſay as I ſaid before, that every one muſt ſtand or fall by his own Conſcience, thoſe who are ſatisfied of the Juſtice of this War, may chearfully proceed in it, thoſe who ſcruple it (as I confeſs I do) cannot undertake any Service in it.

I acknowledge that which hath been ſaid to carry much Weight and Reaſon with it, and none can have more Power upon me than this Committee, nor none be more ready to ſerve the Parliament than my ſelf in any thing wherein my Conſcience ſhall be ſatisfied; in this it is not, and therefore that I may be no Hinderance to the Parliament's Deſigns, I ſhall willingly lay down my Commiſſion, that it may be in their Hands to chooſe ſome worthier Perſon than my ſelf, and who may upon clear Satisfaction of his Conſcience undertake this Buſineſs, wherein I deſire to be excuſed.

Cromwell. I am very ſorry your Lordſhip ſhould have Thoughts of laying down your Commiſſion, by which God hath bleſt you in the Performance of ſo many eminent Services for the Parliament. I pray, my Lord, conſider all your faithful Servants, us who are Officers, who have ſerved under you, and deſire to ſerve under no other General. It would be a great Diſcouragement to all of us, and a great Diſcouragement to the Affairs of the Parliament for our noble General to entertain any Thoughts of laying down his Commiſſion. I hope your Lordſhip will never give ſo great an Advantage to the publick Enemy, nor ſo much diſhearten your Friends as to think of laying down your Commiſſion.

Lambert. If your Excellency ſhould not receive ſo much Satisfaction as to continue your Command in the Parliament's Service, I am very fearful of the Miſchiefs which might enſue, and the Diſtraction in the publick Affairs by your laying down your Commiſſion; but I hope that which hath been offered unto you by this Committee upon your ſerious Conſideration, will ſo far prevail with your noble and pious Diſpoſition, and with your Affection to this Cauſe wherein we are ſo deeply engaged, as that you will not (eſpecially at this time) leave your old Servants and Officers, and the Concluſion of the moſt glorious Cauſe that ever Men were engaged in.

Harriſon. It is indeed (my Lord) the moſt righteous and the moſt glorious Cauſe that ever any of this Nation appeared in, and now when we hope that the Lord will give a gracious Iſſue and Concluſion to it, for your Excellency then to give it over, will ſadden the Hearts of many of God's People.

Lord

Anno 1650. Lord General. What would you have me do? As far as my Conſcience will give way, I am willing to join with you ſtill in the Service of the Parliament; but where the Conſcience is not ſatisfied, none of you (I am ſure) will engage in any Service, and that is my Condition in this, and therefore I muſt deſire to be excuſed.

Much other diſcouſe paſſed between the General and the Committee to the ſame purpoſe as before mentioned, and none of the Committee ſo earneſt to perſuade the General to continue his Commiſſion, as Cromwell and the Soldiers.

Yet there was Cauſe enough to believe that they did not over much deſire it.

This Committee made Report back to the Council of State of the Lord General's total Averſeneſs to march with the Army into Scotland, but that he reſolved rather to lay down his Commiſſion.

Fairfax lays down his Commiſſion. And the Houſe being made acquainted with it, new Endeavours were made to perſuade his Lordſhip to continue his Command, but in vain; ſo he was pleaſed to lay down his Commiſſion.

26. An Act paſſed for repealing the Ordinance, and Act whereby the Lord Fairfax was appointed Commander in Chief of all the Forces of the Parliament.

Cromwell made General. And this being of ſo great Conſequence and which could admit of no Delay, it not being ſafe for the Army to be without a Head, Cromwell was preſently (by Contrivance) named to be General and Commander in Chief of all the Parliament's Forces; and upon the Queſtion it was voted nemine contradicente, that he ſhould be General.

An Act paſſed for conſtituting and appointing Oliver Cromwell Eſq; to be Captain General and Commander in Chief of all the Forces raiſed and to be raiſed by Authority of Parliament, within the Commonwealth of England.

All Commiſſions to Officers of the Army formerly granted were continued till Cromwell ſhould renew or alter them.

Great Ceremonies and Congratulations of the new General were made to him from all ſorts of People, and he went on roundly with his Buſineſs.

Court. Marſhal. A Soldier for drawing his Sword in a drunken Mood quarrelling and abuſing ſome Towns People, was by a Court Marſhal ſentenced to ſtand an Hour in the Market-place at Plymouth, to run the Gantlope twice through four Companies, to have his Sword broken over his Head, and to be caſhiered.

Which was executed and ſeveral other Sentences, and one adjudged to death for running away from his Colours.

Captain Green by Letters of Marque brought in three French Prizes.

Ireland. 27. Letters that the Plague rageth much in the Iriſh Quarters and ſweeping away whole Towns; that it was alſo in the Engliſh Quarters; that in Dublin there died of it two hundred a Week.

That the Iriſh in the North ſet forth a Declaration courting the King and the Scots Intereſt.

Scots. 28. That the Scots muſtered their Army to four Regiments of Horſe, and ſix Regiments of Foot, their Horſe an hundred in a Troop, their Foot an hundred and twenty in every Company; for their new Levies they go on ſlowly and with much Diſcontent, their Intention being if their ſhall be Occaſion, to make of every Troop two, and of every Company two, for which they have already named Officers and intend for their Field Army to have eight Regiments of Horſe, and twelve Regiments of Foot. July.

That ſome of the Scots Horſe are already marched towards the Borders, and divers other Troops are diſpatching towards Carliſle and Berwick; that Colonel Hacker's Regiment of Horſe are quartered in the Villages bordering upon Tweed, and reſolve to fight the Scots if an Inroad be attempted.

That the Fortifications at Berwick are repaired and about thirty Pieces of Ordnance planted; that the Mount upon the Sea Coaſt hath ten Braſs Pieces, and commands the River.

29. Letters of Recruits ſhipping for Ireland; that the Siege continues at Waterford; that the Plague increaſeth at Galloway.

Cromwell That Lieutenant General Cromwell went out of London towards the North, the News of the Parliament's Army marching Northwards much ſtartled the Scots, who alledge the Covenant and Articles of Pacification, that they ought not to be invaded without three Months warning.

Letters came from their Parliament directed to the Speaker of the Houſe of Commons, but the Houſe being adjourned till Tueſday next, nothing could be done upon the Letters.

July, 1650.

July 1. Letters that the King landed in Scotland, the 16th of June, but ſo privately that it was not known till the 24th of June.

That they have levied, to be immediately at a Rendezvous, 10000 Foot and twenty ſeven Troops of Horſe beſides their old Army, and reſolve to invade England, if England do not invade them firſt.

That two thouſand of their Foot are about Leith, which is ſtrongly fortified for a Reſerve.

Scotland. That the Scots give it out that Cromwell hath a Commiſſion to come for Scotland with Fire and Sword, and is to give no Quarter to any Scotſman, and muſt have all that he can conquer for himſelf and his Soldiers; this they report to incenſe the People againſt the Engliſh.

That ſome of their Friends in England adviſed them to write to the Parliament here, to know whether they intend to come into Scotland, and whether the March of their Army Northwards be in an offenſive or defenſive way.

That this they have done, and hope the Debate of it will produce ſome Interruption or Delay of their March; that the Kirk there appointed a general Day of Humiliation.

2. The Parliament publiſhed a Declaration of the Grounds of their Army's March Northwards.

Act againſt Swearing. An Act paſſed for preventing and ſuppreſſing the deteſtable Sins of prophane Curſing and Swearing.

Every Lord to pay for the firſt Offence 30 s. every Baronet and Knight 20 s. every Eſq; 10 s. every Gentleman 6 s. 8 d. every other Perſon 3 s. 4 d. the ſecond Offence to be doubled to the Tenth, and for that the Party to be bound to the good Behaviour.

Referred to a Committee to conſider what publick Officers are burdenſome to the Commonwealth, and how they may be taken away or regulated for the Eaſe of the People.

Order that Mr. Strickland the Parliament's Reſident in Holland do take the Subſcriptions of the Engliſh Merchants there to the Engagements, and ſuch as refuſe to be diſabled from having any Vote in the Company.

Order

Anno 1650. Order that Colonel Ludlow be Lieutenant General of the Horſe in Ireland, and that Commiſſioners be ſent over thither with Inſtructions from the Parliament.

Letters that the Scots in Ireland contributed to the popiſh Forces.

Letters that the Plague was broken out in Shrewsbury.

Fleet. Letters from the Fleet before Lisbon, that the Braſil Fleet conſiſting of nine Engliſh Ships, and as many Portugueſe and French coming forth, the Parliament's Generals ſtopped all the Engliſh Ships and their lading of Paſſengers and Soldiers, and ſent another Meſſage to the King of Portugal to demand the Engliſh Ships under Prince Rupert, but he and his Council anſwered, that it was an unreaſonable Demand.

That the Engliſh Agent there eſcaped in a Diſguiſe to the Fleet, but the Engliſh Merchants at Lisbon who were Friends to the Parliament were impriſoned by the King's Order; that they tendred an Engagement to the reſt of the Engliſh to endeavour the re-enthroning of King Charles II.

From Barnſtable of a Deſign to deſtroy all the Parliament Party in that Town and thereabouts, prevented by ſmall Means through the Mercy of God, was this Day celebrated with great Solemnity.

4. Letters of a Spaniſh Ambaſſador landed in the Downs, and of a French Man of War with ſome Engliſh in her, who took ſmall Engliſh Veſſels near Pool.

Of the Treaſure Waggons going Northwards to the Army.

Of a Veſſel loaden with Iron under Sail from Tſalee in Ireland newly gone out of the Harbour, when a Party of the Lord Broghil's Forces coming thither haled her to come back, but ſhe being under ſail regarded them not, but made on her way.

Whereupon twenty of the Troopers ſtripped themſelves making as if they would ſwim to her and ſtorm her, and two of them who could ſwim well came up to her, which ſo amazed thoſe in the Veſſel, that they hoiſted out their Boat on the other ſide of the Ship and got away, leaving the Ship and her Lading to the two valiant Troopers.

Of the Plague breaking forth near Barnſtable.

Barbadoes 5. Letters of the Lord Willoughby's Arrival in Barbadoes, where he lay concealed eight Days, until he had contrived his Buſineſs with ſome great Delinquents there, and then appeared as the chief Governor, and proclaimed King Charles II.

Of the ſeizing the Ships bound for Braſil from Lisbon by the Parliament's General at Sea, and all the Ammunition and Proviſions in them, and ſome French Ships blocking up that Haven.

Meſſage from the Scots. 6. Letters of a Meſſage ſent from the Scots Parliament to Major General Lambert, at the ſame time when they ſent to the Engliſh Parliament, to know the reaſon of their Army's March Northwards, and urging That by the large Treaty no Act of Hoſtility or Invaſion ought to be upon each other, before three Months notice given.

That the Meſſenger is detained (but not under Reſtraint) without Anſwer, till the Pleaſure of the Parliament be known.

York. That Cromwell coming to York, the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Sheriffs attended him, and invited him and his Officers to dinner, where they were highly careſſed.

July. From Ireland, that the Biſhop of Clogher interpoſed between Sir Charles Coot and Colonel Venables with an Army of 10000 Iriſh, and cauſed Sir Charles Coot ſeveral times to retreat, but at length his Forces took ſuch Courage that they reſolved to fight the Biſhop, and after an Hour's hot Diſpute it pleaſed God to deliver that great Army into their Hands. Ireland Victory.

That the Biſhop their General received many Wounds, and in a few Hours after he was taken Priſoner died of them; that their Lieutenant General O Neal was ſlain with their Quarter Maſter General, and nine Colonels, inferior Officers very many, and three thouſand common Soldiers.

That the Names and Qualities of their Officers ſlain and taken were not then known, a Meſſenger being diſpatched with a general Account of the Buſineſs till they could have time to particularize; that ſome of the Priſoners confeſt, if they could have given a Defeat either to Sir Charles Coot or Colonel Venables, that the Biſhop reſolved to draw his Army into Scotland to promote the King's Affairs there.

Scotland. 8. Letters that the Scots King was ſtill at Dundee, that they could not agree about his coming to Edinburgh, nor about his Coronation; that Commiſſioners from the Parliament, and a Committee of the Kirk were with him about ſigning the Propoſitions.

That a Party of the Scots Horſe were drawn within twenty Miles of Berwick, which gave an Alarm, and cauſed the Parliament's Forces thereabouts to be in a ready Poſture to receive them; but they came not on.

Letters from Sir Charles Coot. From Sir Charles Coot, that his Party with him being but 600 Horſe and 800 Foot, he ſent to Colonel Venables to come and join with him; but the Biſhop of Clogher with his Army being then about 4000 Foot and 600 Horſe, fell in between them to hinder their Conjunction.

The Enemy encamped themſelves on a boggy Ground within two Musket-ſhot of our Leaguer, and after about four Hours, began to draw off with moſt of their Forces over a Paſs, which I perceiving called the Officers together; and it was thought fit to charge the Enemy in the Rear with about two hundred Horſe, keeping our Foot and the reſt of the Horſe entire.

Our Horſe fell on with a great deal of gallantry, and charged through two Diviſions of their Foot; but their Horſe being quite behind their Foot, finding our Horſe in ſome Diſorder, fell on them and forced them to retreat.

Whereupon Colonel Richard Coot advancing with part of his Regiment to relieve our Men, the Enemy's Horſe faced about, and were beaten back again into their main Body.

We loſt only in this Conflict Captain Taylor (who died moſt gallantly in the midſt of the Rebels Pikes) and ſeven Troopers, but took Priſoners a Captain of theirs, and killed at leaſt ſix for one, but they drew off to a Paſs a Mile below. I ſent Orders to the Country People to remove themſelves and their Goods, and our Soldiers ſecured the Paſſes between them and the Enemy.

Colonel Fenwick with 1000 Foot came to us, but without any Proviſions, and it pleaſed God to give ſuch Courage to our Soldiers that we marched up towards the Enemy, who upon ſight of our Party (they being encamped upon the ſide of a Mountain inacceſſible either for Horſe or Foot) drew forth into a piece of Ground, which though extreme bad, yet it pleaſed God to put into our Hearts to advance towards them.

Whereas

Anno 1650. Where we preſently engaged them, and by the Bleſſing of God after an Hour's hot Diſpute, with great Reſolution on both ſides, we wholly routed them.

Many of them were killed upon the place, and the Execution was ten or eleven Miles every way that Night. What Numbers were ſlain I cannot poſitively ſay, the Country People as well as the Soldiers eagerly purſuing and killing them for two days after.

But with Modeſty, I may aſſure you, there cannot be leſs than 2000 ſlain, together with their Major General, 5 Colonels, 1 Biſhop, with almoſt all their Officers, and their Lieutenant General Offarrel, as we are informed, though his Body be not yet diſcover'd.

They loſt likewiſe their Arms, Colours, Baggage, with moſt of their Horſe.

Since my writing thus far, I have received ſeveral Letters from one Party in the Purſuit, that they have killed 6 or 700 more of the Rebels; that Major King with 50 Dragoons had taken the Biſhop of Clogher Priſoner much wounded, with ſeveral other Perſons of Quality, and 200 Horſe, and have killed 2 or 300 more of the Enemy, ſo that I do verily believe there were at leaſt in all 3000 killed.

Thoſe Officers of ours that were moſt eminently inſtrumental in this great Victory, were Colonel Fenwick, Colonel Richard Coot, Lieutenant Colonel Gore, and Captain Duckinfield.

Whom I have preſumed to add, becauſe their Merits have juſtly deſerved this my Acknowledgment, to the end (if your Honours think fit) ſome Mark of Honour may be conferr'd upon them.

19. Letters that a Trumpet came to the Army from Lieutenant General Leſley, with an Anſwer from the Commiſſioners of the General Aſſembly to the General's laſt Letter.

Execution of the Sentence of a Court Marſhal upon five Soldiers for offering violence to a Countryman, and his Wife, and Family, and Goods.

Scotland. That the Inhabitants of Dunbar were in ſuch want of Proviſions, that they pickt the Beans from the Horſes off the Ground, and eat the Sheeps Guts which were thrown away by the Soldiers.

That the Countrymen are ſo enſlaved to their Lords, that they cannot get any thing conſiderable of their own before-hand, and many of their Women are ſo fluttiſh, that they do not waſh their Linnen above once a Month, nor their Hands and Faces above once a Year.

The General cauſed the Commiſſioners to diſtribute a great Proportion of Peaſe, and Wheat to the value of 240*l.* of that which was ſent from London to the Army, among the poor People of Dunbar; yet when they can have an Advantage, the Country People robbed and killed many of the Soldiers.

That upon the Army's Return to Muſſelburgh, they found it more forlorn than before, Leſley having commanded, That the gude Women of the Town ſhould awe come away with their Gear, and not any ſtay to brew or bake for the Engliſh Army, on pain of death.

That the Miniſters in Edinburgh gave God Thanks for turning back the Army of Sectaries by the way that they came, and ſtriking a Terror into their Hearts, which made them flee when none purſued.

That Captain Bull with the Adventure Frigat, fought with a French Man of War, and ſunk her, ſome of her Men ſaved upon Quarter, about 120 of them killed and drowned.

20. An Act paſſed for continuing the Exciſe for three Years longer.

High Court of Juſtice. An Act paſſed for authorizing Commiſſioners of the High Court of Juſtice to iſſue their Warrant for beheading of Mr. Andrews, according to his Petition to the Parliament; and the like in other Caſes notwithſtanding their Sentence for Hanging, Drawing and Quartering. Auguſt.

Power of naming Fellows and Demies in Magdalen College in Oxford, ordered to be left to the then Preſident.

Letters that the Army's returning to Muſſelburgh, the Scots Miniſters were aſhamed of their Thankſgiving for their running away. Scots.

That Proviſions and Tents were diſtributed to the Horſe and Foot. Divers Scots killed and taken at meeting of ſeveral Parties.

That a Dutch Ship laden with Goods worth 50000*l.* was wracked near Pembroke.

That the Grand Jury at Hereford Aſſizes preſented a Remonſtrance to the Judges of their readineſs to aſſiſt the Parliament againſt the Scots.

21. Letters that Major General Laughern in Wales and other Gentlemen there, and in other places were ſecured upon ſuſpicion of deſigns by them againſt the Parliament.

22. Letters of ſome Fights at Sea between the Parliament's Frigats, and ſome French Men of War, who were ſoundly beaten.

Mr. Euſeby Andrews was beheaded ae the Tower-Hill according to the Sentence of the High Court of Juſtice, and died very reſolutely.

23. Letters that the Army marched from Muſſelburgh towards Edinburgh, in ſight of the City for two or three Miles together, and had no oppoſition in their March, nor ſo much as a Salute from Edinburgh Caſtle, or Dalkeith, and the General pitched his Tents on Pentland Hills, a convenient place to fight, within view of Edinburgh, but they gave no alarm to the Army. That the Scots in Edinburgh were much ſtraitned for Proviſions, by the Army's thus getting behind them.

That all the People fled with their Bairns and Guds, where the Army came, being told by their Miniſters, That the Engliſh would deſtroy all with Fire and Sword, and when ſome of the Soldiers burnt ſome Furz-buſhes, they ſaid they fired their Houſes and Towns.

That the Parliament's Ships attended the Army's March with Proviſions.

That a Trumpet came to the General, with a Declaration and Letters from Lieutenant General David Leſley, which the General cauſed to be read to his Officers in the hearing of the Trumpet.

That upon deſire and ſafe conduct of ſome of the Scots Officers, they and ſome Engliſh Officers had Conferences about a Reconcilement, and the Scots Officers ſaid they were deluded by the Malignants, and that the King refuſed to ſign the diſowning of his Father's actions, and to adhere to the Covenant, and repent for the Bloodſhed by his Father and himſelf, and that they had thoughts of relinquiſhing him. Scots Officers.

That when the Engliſh Army drew off from Edinburgh, the King would have ſallied out in Perſon upon them, but General Leven told him, if he did ſo, he would lay down his Commiſſion.

24. Letters that the Plague increaſed, and that there died the laſt Week 797 in Dublin.

That in Wexford, the People are almoſt all dead of the Plague.

That Waterford, Duncannon, and Carlowe are ſurrendred to the Lord Deputy. That many Officers and Soldiers were dead of it.

26. Letters of taking in and fortifying ſome Places by the General, to ſecure Paſſes to the Army.

That a Sergeant was hanged on Pentland Hills for plundring a Countryman's Houſe, and three Soldiers that were with him, being ſentenced to die, were pardoned by the General.

That

Anno 1650. That Parties on both ſides pickering, and a Body of 3000 Horſe of the Scots being drawn out, Cromwell drew out a Forlorn, and went in Perſon before them, that one of the Enemy fired a Carabine at him, upon which Cromwell called to him, and ſaid to him, that if he had been one of his Soldiers, he would have caſhiered him, for firing at ſuch a diſtance, which the Soldier told to Lieutenant General Leſley, and ſaid he knew it was Cromwell.

Cromwell.

That ſome Runaways from the Army were apprehended at Berwick, and ſent back Priſoners to Cromwell, and nine of them were condemned by a Court Marſhal.

That the Scots drew out their whole Army out of Leith, being about 30000 Horſe and Foot, and retreated without any Engagement.

That in a full Council of War, all the Officers were unanimouſly to fall upon the Enemy. That in Pickering a Scots Captain was killed, and two Priſoners taken.

Ireland. 27. Letters that the Lord Deputy ſent a Summons to Waterford to ſurrender, but they ſo much deſpiſed the weakneſs and ſmall number of his Forces before the Town, that in anſwer to his Summons they returned, That one of their Gates ſhould be ſet open for as many of his Men as would come in.

That the Lord Deputy ſmiling at their vain Brags went on with his Siege, ſent for more Forces and great Guns, and ſo laid the main Body of his Army between Waterford and Carlowe, that they might be ready to give aſſiſtance to either Party.

That after this the Town ſent for a Treaty, but inſiſted upon high Terms of Punctilio's of Honour, which the Lord Deputy rejected. And when they heard that Carlowe was ſurrendred, then they alſo agreed upon Articles of Surrender.

That 700 Soldiers marched out of the Town, and the Townſmen in Arms were more, and the Town very ſtrongly fortified, and full of Proviſions; yet it pleaſed God to bring them to terms of Surrender to a ſmall Party before them, as they had before done at Carlowe.

The Lord Deputy ſent a Letter to the Parliament of the Particulars, and Copies of the ſeveral Articles of Surrender of Waterford, Duncannon, and Cartelagh.

The Parliament ordered a Day of Thankſgiving to be kept for thoſe Succeſſes.

An Act paſſed impowering the Commiſſioners of the High Court of Juſtice to hear and determine any Miſpriſion or Concealment of Treaſon.

28. An Anſwer paſſed to the King's Declaration in Scotland.

Letters that the Fairfax Frigat fought with three French Men of War, who got ſo near the Shore among the Rocks, that the Fairfax could not follow them, and ſo they eſcaped.

29. The Council of State took Order for better ſecuring of Weymouth.

Letters of the decreaſe of the Plague at Dublin.

That Major Blunt fell upon a Party of the Enemy in Wicklowe, fought with them, killed and took many of them, though they were two to one, and had not a Bog prevented they had been all killed or taken. That he brought away with him 200 Cows, and 120 Horſes.

That Charlemont was ſurrendred upon Conditions.

Scotland. 30. Letters that the Army in Scotland was well ſupplied with Proviſions by Sea, and enabled to lie near Edinburgh.

That the Enemy kept cloſe between Edinburgh and Leith having a Trench before them, and a River behind them, and a ſtrong Caſtle on the one hand, and a ſtrong Garriſon Town on the other hand; and it was impoſſible to fall upon them, without the apparent hazard of the whole Army. Auguſt.

That the King had ſigned the Declaration ſent to him by the Parliament of Scotland, who thereupon cloſed with him, and undertook to maintain his Intereſt as they ſay they are oblidged to do by the ſolemn League and Covenant.

That the Declaration which they penned and ſent to the King to ſign, and he at laſt did ſign, was to this effect.

An Acknowledgement of the Providence of God, in recovering him from the ſnare of evil Counſellors, and perſuading him of the Juſtice of the Covenant which he hath taken and ſubſcribed, and reſolved to maintain to the utmoſt; he profeſſeth his Father's Blood, and confeſſeth his Mother's Idolatry, and ſaith he will account them Enemies that oppoſe the Covenant.

He declares his Sorrow for his great ſinfulneſs in making Peace with the Iriſh Rebels, and allowing them the liberty of the Popiſh Religion, and that he being ſorry for his ſeeking to ſuch unlawful help, and recalling his Commiſſions he is therefrom abſolved, and ſaith he will recal and diſannul all Commiſſions given againſt any who adhere to the Covenant and Monarchical Government.

And that the Commiſſions he hath granted to the French and others by Sea and Land, were not given to damage or injure any of his harmleſs Subjects, who follow the Trade of Merchandize, and that he conſtrues well of the intentions of thoſe, who have conſulted and acted againſt the Covenant, yet he will not now employ them, till they have taken the Covenant, and given ſufficient evidence, of their good affection to the work of Reformation.

As a cloſe, again taking notice of his former guiltineſs and ill Succeſſes, he tells them that the ſtate of the Queſtion is now altered, and that he hath obtained mercy to be on God's ſide, and therefore hopes that the Lord will countenance his Cauſe; that for the future he will do nothing, but by advice of the Kirk and State.

After ſeveral times denial by the King to ſign this Declaration, and the Scots threatening thereupon to caſt him off, he ſeeing no other way left, did at laſt ſubſcribe it.

31. Letters that the Army ſtormed Red-Caſtle, a Garriſon of the Enemy's, about a Mile and a half from Edinburgh, which had about eighty Foot to defend it, and though they ſtormed it in the ſight of the Enemy's whole Army, yet they ſent out no Parties to relieve it. There were taken ſixty Priſoners, and the Place was of great advantage to the Engliſh.

That Dunſter Caſtle was ſlighted.

That four Men out of Somerſetſhire, pretending to have an immediate Call from God, to go and preach the Goſpel in Galilee, ſold their Eſtates, and went to London to embark themſelves for that Place. Call from God.

September 1650.

September 2. Letters that Propoſitions and Motives were preſented to the Pope, on the behalf of King Charles the Second, ſhewing his good Inclinations to the Catholicks, by what he had done in Ireland for them, and in other Inſtances; and deſiring from his Holineſs conſiderable Sums of Money out of his Treaſury, and that he would ſend to all Princes and States of the Catholick Religion in Europe, to contribute to the Aſſiſtance

Anno 1650. ſtance of King Charles, with ſeveral other the like Propoſals, and a Copy of them incloſed in the Letters.

Fleet. 3. Letters that Prince Rupert came out of the River of Lisbon with 27 Ships, and 20 Carvils.

That the Parliament's Generals with twenty three Ships made up to him, and ſome Shot were ſpent between ſome of them, but Prince Rupert got under the Command of the Caſtles, and the Parliament's General thought not ſafe to purſue him thither; the like was done ſeveral Days after, but the Prince would not engage in fight.

That the Duke of York came to Paris, having gotten 100000 l. by Prizes.

4. Letters of a great Pirate taken about Dartmouth.

I invited the Speaker, and divers Members of the Parliament and Council of State to dine with me.

5. Letters of the Plague increaſing in Shrewsbury, yet of about 200 Soldiers there, not one was infected.

Scots. 6. Letters that the Scots Army, though more in number than the Engliſh by a great many, and well furniſhed with Arms, and all Accommodations in their own Country, yet will not fight the Engliſh Army.

That in thoſe Parts where the Army marched was the greateſt plenty of Corn that they ever ſaw, and not one fallow Field, and now extremely trodden down and waſted, and the Soldiers enforced to give the Wheat to their Horſes.

That the Scots deſired another Conference with ſome Officers of the Engliſh Army, to which the General conſented, but nothing came of it.

That the Scots Army drew out upon a March, and the Engliſh Army drew out to attend them, but could not engage them, by reaſon of a Bog and great Ditch between the two Armies, only they diſcharged their great Guns at one another, by which 21 of the Engliſh were killed and wounded, but more of the Scots, who would not come into any other Ground to engage, and the Army ſtood all Night in Battalia, and the next Day went back to their Camp on Pentland Hills.

That being informed the Scots had ſent out a Party to take in Muſſelburgh, and the Places for landing the Proviſions that came to the Army by Sea.

Cromwell Cromwell gave Orders for the Army to march, which they did in a moſt tempeſtuous Night, and to fight for their Victuals, but by reaſon of the Storm and Darkneſs, the General ſtaid their March till the next Morning, when they got quietly to Muſſelburgh, but the Enemy got what they had left on Pentland Hills.

That the Parliament loſt ſix Men, and twenty eight were wounded.

That whole Files of the Scots Army were taken away by the great Shot, and from the Ships they played upon the Scots Army as they marched, and did Execution.

Victory at Dunbar. 7. Letters from Cromwell to the Speaker and to the Council of State of a great Victory againſt the Scots at Dunbar; the Particulars were not then certified, but left to the Relation of the Meſſenger, who was an Eye-witneſs of the Action.

I was going in my Coach towards Chelſea, and about Charing Croſs the Meſſenger who came from Scotland came to my Coach ſide, and ſaid to me, O my Lord! God hath appeared gloriouſly for us in Scotland, a glorious Day, my Lord, at Dunbar in Scotland. Septemb.

I asked him how it was? He ſaid, That the General and Army had routed all the Scots Army, but that he could not ſtay to tell me the Particulars, being in haſte to go to the Houſe.

I altered my Reſolution of going to Chelſea, and went preſently to the Houſe where I found the Meſſenger, and as ſoon as the Houſe was ſat he was called in, and after the General's Letters were read, the Meſſenger (who was in the Fight) made his Narrative to this Effect;

My Lord General having a long while ſtaid with the Army on the Weſt-ſide of Edinburgh, and could no way engage the Enemy to fight; on Saturday Auguſt 31*ſt, marched with the Army to* Haddington, and on Sunday to Dunbar; the Enemy hereupon drew out after us, and marched within diſtance in the Rear.

The General on Sunday drew out the Army in the Field near Dunbar, and the Enemy flank'd us upon the Hills on the right Hand, where they lay all Night; we could not without great Diſadvantage go up the Hills to engage them, nor would they come down to engage us.

Their whole Army conſiſted of 18 Regiments of Foot, which altogether with their Horſe and Dragoons (as themſelves ſaid) were 27000, ours about 12000.

On Monday the Enemy drew down part of their Army, and their Train towards the Foot of the Hill, ours ſtood in Battalia in the Field all the Day; a great Ditch was between both Armies, of great diſadvantage to thoſe who ſhould firſt attempt to paſs it.

That night our Army marched as cloſe to the Ditch as poſſibly they could, and our Field Pieces placed in every Regiment. We drew out before day that Morning a Brigade of three Regiments of Horſe, and two Regiments of Foot towards a Paſs, that is upon the Road way between Dunbar and Berwick, by which we might with more Eaſe paſs over to their Army, and there gave the Enemy a hot Alarm.

The Diſpute laſted about an Hour, at laſt our Men gained the Ground, and poſſeſſed the Paſs. Then the Enemy's Horſe (being moſt Lanciers) coming down the Hill charged ſtrongly, ours receiving them as gallantly.

And the Foot of that Brigade coming up charged them ſo to purpoſe, that they put them ſuddenly to the Rout; by this time it was between five and ſix in the Morning.

Their Foot ſeeing the Rout and the flying of the Horſe, threw down their Arms and run away; their left wing of Horſe alſo fled, ours had the purſuit of them beyond Haddington.

We killed on the Place, and in the Purſuit above 4000 and 10000 Priſoners taken; among them the Laird of Liberton, Lieutenant General James Lundſden, Colonel Sir William Douglas, the Lord Grandiſon, Sir Jo. Brown, Colonel Gordon, 12 Lieutenant Coloneks, ſix Majors, 37 Captains, 75 Lieutenants, 17 Cornets, 2 Quartermaſters, 110 Enſigns, 15 Serjeants, 200 Horſe and Foot Colours, 32 Pieces of Ordnance, ſmall and great, and leather Guns, all their Arms, Ammunition, Tents, Bag and Baggage.

We loſt not 40 Men in the whole Engagement, and not one Officer but Major Rookesby, ſince dead of his Wounds; Colonel Whaley had his Horſe ſhot under him, himſelf ſlightly wounded, and Captain L'loyd wounded.

The Council of State ordered the Narrative made by the Lord General's Meſſenger, to be read in all Churches in London to morrow being Anno 1650. being the Lord's Day, and Thanks to be returned for this great Victory.

9. Letters that at the Battle of Dunbar, 15000 were killed and taken.

That the General ſent Home upon their Paroles 5000 of the Priſoners being wounded, old Men and Boys, the Men Houſe-keepers forced out of their Houſes to take Arms, and 2100 of them died by the way; the other 5000 were ſent Priſoners to Berwick, and ſo to Newcaſtle.

That the Major General marched to Haddington, and the General ſtaid behind with two Regiments to order Affairs at Dunbar, and ſo was to march to Edinburgh or Leith, from whence the Enemy had drawn all their Forces, and marched to Stirling, and St. Johnſton, where the King was.

That General Leven haſted to Edinburgh, and after him Lieutenant General Sir David Leſley, who muſtered his Horſe to 1300.

Letters from Colonel Blake and Colonel Popham of Prince Rupert's Endeavour to get out of the Harbour, but would not fight with the Parliament's Ships, but ſtruck in again.

That they ſent home nine Engliſh Ships which they had ſtayed, going to Braſil from Lisbon, and ſix French Ships which they had taken.

That Captain Lawſon with the Fairfax Frigat came up with twenty French Ships and took three of them.

10. Letters from the General to the Parliament of the Particulars of the Battle of Dunbar, and an Account of the whole March into Scotland, and of all Paſſages with the Scots.

Scots Miniſters. That the Scots Miniſters preſſed their Army to interpoſe between the Engliſh in the March, and to fight them, but the Officers of their Army were againſt it, and adviſed to make rather a Bridge of Gold for them to paſs home: But the Miniſters carried it to fight.

That they expreſſed great inſolency and contempt of the Engliſh Army, to divers of the Priſoners of the Engliſh whom they had taken, as was reported afterwards to the Lord General.

The Parliament gave Rewards to the Meſſengers of this good News.

Colours hung in Weſtminſter-Hall. Ordered that the Colours which were taken from Hamilton at the Battles of Preſton and Dunbar, ſhould be hanged up in Weſtminſter-Hall, and that Medals of Gold and Silver ſhould be given to the Soldiery, in Remembrance of God's Mercy and of their Valour and Victory.

Letters that Cromwell was poſſeſt of Leith and Edinburgh, except the Caſtle. That the King was gone to St. Johnſton, and the Forces to Sterling.

Voted to ſeclude all private Buſineſs for a Month.

An Act for Encouragement and Indemnity of all ſuch as engage in the Parliament's Service.

Letters that the Enemy had quitted Edinburgh and Leith, and left there 24 Pieces of Ordnance.

That a Son of Mr. Burgoine, one of the Commiſſioners for the Militia, at the Croſs in Coventry proclaimed King Charles the Second, and was apprehended for it, but eſcaped.

12. Letters of the Settlement of the Militia in ſeveral Counties: And Suſpicions of Deſigns to raiſe new Troubles againſt the Parliament.

Scots. 13. Letters that the Scots were driven like Turkeys by the Engliſh Soldiers, and went along curſing their King and Clergy, for inſnaring them in miſery.

That a Scots Captain taken Priſoner told the Engliſh Officers, That their Miniſters adviſed them, if they were taken, they ſhould throw away their Bibles, for if the Engliſh took any with Bibles, they ſhould have no Quarter. Septemb.

That the Words in moſt of their Colours were Covenant, Religion, King, and Kingdom, the ſame when they came in with Duke Hamilton.

That the Day before the Engagement, they conſulted of ſending Propoſitions to the Engliſh, That they ſhould have leave to paſs into England with their Swords, leaving their Ordnance, Arms, and Ammunition behind. And they had thoughts of ſending thoſe they ſhould take Priſoners beyond Sea.

14. Letters that the Engliſh Officers were fain to break the Pikes, and many Muskets they had taken from the Scots, there not being conveniency to ſend them for England.

That the Governor of Berwick gave to each Scotch Priſoner for one Day three Biskets, and a Pottle of Peaſe, which they ſaid was more than their own Officers gave them in three Days together.

16. Letters from a private Hand, deſcribing the Religion, Laws, and Government of Scotland, both Civil and Military, with a Character of their People and Manners, not much to their Honour.

That Auguſt the 21*ſt*. the Engliſh ſhipped near 600 of their ſick Men for Berwick, and the Scots obſerving many Boats going off, thought they intended to ſhip away all their Foot and Ammunition, and with their Horſe to eſcape for England.

Whereupon the Scots purſued the Engliſh to Dunbar, and conſidered of ſending them to Barbadoes, if they refuſed ſuch Propoſitions as they ſhould offer them; and thinking they had the Engliſh in a Net, did engage with them.

That they having taken 20 of Colonel Pride's Men, they killed three of them and wounded the reſt in cold Blood.

That the Engliſh were in a ſad Poſture, very many of their Men ſick and wanting Proviſions, the Enemy having made up the Paſſes before them; the whole Scots Army on the right Hand, and the Sea on the left Hand, and the whole Nation of Scotland behind them.

That the Scots having a Reſolution to fall upon the Engliſh, were prevented by the unſeaſonableneſs of the Weather; and Cromwell and his Officers ſeeing no other way, reſolved to fall on them; which was done, and after one Hour's hot diſpute they were defeated, and quitted Edinburgh and Leith, which was the ſame Day poſſeſſed by the Engliſh Army.

The Letter ſharply cenſures them to be a People who delight to enſlave others, yet are of a ſervile and ſlaviſh condition themſelves, a People whoſe Freedom is Service, whoſe Mercies are Cruel.

A Kirk whoſe Religion is Formality, and whoſe Government is Tyranny, a Generation of very Hypocrites and Vipers, whom no Oaths or Covenants can bind, no Courteſies or Civilities oblige.

17. An Act paſſed for a Day of publick Thankſgiving for the Victory againſt the Scots.

An Anſwer paſſed to the King's late Declaration and publiſhed.

An Act paſſed againſt the Electing and Swearing Mayors, and other Officers upon the Lord's Day.

Order for Mr. Caryl and Mr. Owen, to go into Scotland, according to the deſire of the Lord General.

Recruits

Anno 1650. Recruits of 600 drawn out of Colonel Barkſted's Regiment for Scotland.

Rules given concerning Augmentations of Miniſters Livings.

Sir John Gell was tried before the High Court of Juſtice.

Several Miniſters of London appeared before a Committee, for not obſerving the Thankſgiving Day, for the Victory againſt the Scots.

Letters that the General had ſettled things at Edinburgh and Leith.

That ſince his coming to Edinburgh, not a Man had appeared out of the Caſtle.

That upon News of the Victory at Dunbar brought to the King, He thanked God that he was ſo rid of the Scots, and ſaid, the Kirk might now ſee their Error in prohibiting him to be in Perſon with their Army, and keeping out the Engliſh and the reſt of his Followers. That he is now with the Army about Stirling.

London. 19. The Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Common Council of London, kept a Day of Thankſgiving by themſelves, for the Victory in Scotland, and invited divers Officers of the Army, Parliament-men, and other Gentlemen to dine with them at Guild-Hall.

That the Miniſters about Taunton would not obſerve the Day of Thankſgiving for the Victory in Scotland, but prayed indirectly to the contrary.

20. Letters of the decreaſe of the Plague in Dublin.

Ireland. That the Lord Deputy in his march through Wicklow, took from the Rebels 3000 Cows, and advanced towards Athlone.

That Money was arrived for the Soldiers.

That Sir Hardreſs Waller was ſet down before Limerick.

That the Enemy ſallyed out of Waterford upon Colonel Eſſex's Quarters, took many of his Troop-Horſes, killed ſome few of his Men, ſorely wounded his Lieutenant, and himſelf hardly eſcaped.

That the Enemy are drawing all their Strength together and give out that they will fight the Engliſh.

From Edinburgh, that the General marched with his Army and ſix Days Proviſion, and from thence towards Stirling, having left Forces in Edinburgh and Leith, and caſt up a Work croſs the Streets of Edinburgh between his Forces and the Caſtle, and there was little or no Action between them and his Forces.

That the General ſent all his ſick Soldiers to a Lord's Houſe in Leith, where they had good Accommodations and great Care taken of them.

That the King inſiſts to have the Lord Ruthen General, but the Kirk will have none but the Lord Louthian, and the old Lord Leven is laid aſide with Diſhonour.

That the Scots are upon raiſing new Forces.

That in Edinburgh they took three thouſand new Foot-Arms, which the Scots had not time to carry away nor put into the Caſtle, they were in ſo great a Confuſion.

That in Leith they took Store of French Wines, part of which was ſpent to refreſh the Soldiers, who for too long time before had drunk nothing but Water, the reſt is to be ſold for the Benefit of the Army.

That about fifteen hundred Foot and a thouſand Horſe of Recruits were come from England to the Army in Scotland.

London. That the Lord Loudon's Cabinet was taken in the Fight, and in it Copies of his Letters to the King and other Papers of Conſequence, he being Chancellor but ill-beloved of the Scots, and upbraided by them for Whoredom and other Sins. Septemb.

21. A Member of the Army came to the Parliament with Letters from the General of the Proceedings of the Army, and deſiring that the three thouſand Tun of French Wines taken at Leith might be Cuſtom and Exciſe free, and ſold and diſtributed among the private Soldiers, which the Houſe granted, and ordered the Letters found in the Lord Chancellor's Cabinet to be printed at the end of the Declaration for the publick Thankſgiving.

23. Letters that the Scots were raiſing new Forces upon the Presbyterian Intereſt, and that the King was at Dundee with ſome of his Cavalier Party as well as Presbyterians.

That the General ſent to the Governor of Edinburgh Caſtle, that the Miniſters with him might return to their Churches and have free Liberty to preach there, and commanded that none of the Army ſhould moleſt them.

The Miniſters ſent Anſwer, That they found nothing expreſt whereby to build any Security for their Perſons; and for their Return they reſolved to reſerve themſelves for better Times, and to wait upon him who had hidden his Face for a while from the Sons of Jacob. Miniſters.

The General replied in a Letter to the Governor to this Effect,

Our Kindneſs offered to the Miniſters with you was done with Ingenuity, thinking to have met with the like; but I am ſatisfied to tell thoſe with you, that if their Maſter's Service (as they call it) were chiefly in their Eye, imagination of ſuffering would not have cauſed ſuch a Return. Letter from Cromwell

Much leſs the Practices of our Party (as they are pleaſed to ſay) upon the Miniſters of Chriſt in England have been an Argument of perſonal Perſecution.

The Miniſters of England are ſupported and have Liberty to preach the Goſpel though not to rail, nor under Pretence thereof to over-top the Civil Power, or debaſe it as they pleaſe.

No Man hath been troubled in England or Ireland for preaching the Goſpel, nor has any Miniſter been moleſted in Scotland ſince the coming of the Army hither.

The ſpeaking Truth becomes the Miniſters of Chriſt: When Miniſters pretend to a glorious Reformation and lay the Foundation thereof in getting to themſelves Power, and can make worldly Mixtures to accompliſh the ſame, ſuch as their late Agreement with their King, and hope by him to carry on their Deſigns, they may know that the Sion promiſed and hoped for, will not be built with ſuch untempered Mortar.

And for the unjuſt Invaſion they mention, Time was when an Army of Scotland came into England not called by the ſupreme Authority. We have ſaid in our Papers with what Hearts and upon what Account we came and the Lord hath heard us, though you would not upon as ſolemn an Appeal as any Experience can parallel.

When they truſt purely to the Sword of the Spirit which is the Word of God, which is powerful to bring down ſtrong Holds, and every Imagination that exalts it ſelf, which alone is able to ſquare and fit the Stones for the New Jeruſalem.

Then and not before, and by that Means and no other, ſhall Jeruſalem (which is to be the Praiſe of the whole Earth) the City of the Lord be built, the Sion of the Holy One of Iſrael: I have nothing to ſay to you, but that I am, Sir,

Sept. 9. 1650. Your humble Servant,
O. Cromwell.

The

Anno 1650. The Scots Miniſters ſent an Anſwer to this Letter and the General another Letter in Anſwer to them, and ſays therein,

Another Letter.

We look upon Miniſters as Helpers of, not Lords over the Faith of God's People; I appeal to their Conſciences, whether any denying their Doctrines and diſſenting ſhall not incur the Cenſure of Sectary; and what is this but to deny Chriſtians their Liberty and aſſume the infallible Chair?

Where do you find in Scripture that Preaching is included in your Function? though an Approbation from Men hath Order in it and may do well, yet he that hath not a better than that, he hath none at all.

I hope he that aſcended up on high may give his Gifts to whom he pleaſe; and if thoſe Gifts be the Seal of Miſſion, be not envious tho Eldad and Medad propheſy; you know who bids us covet earneſtly the beſt Gifts, but chiefly that we may propheſy.

Which the Apoſtle explains there to be a ſpeaking to Inſtruction and Edification and Comfort, which the Inſtructed, Edified and Comforted can beſt tell the Energy and Effect of.

If ſuch Evidence be, I ſay again, take heed you envy not, for your own ſakes, leſt you be guilty of a greater Fault than Moſes reproved in Joſhua, for envying for his ſake.

Indeed you err through the Miſtake of the Scriptures; Approbation is an Act of Conveniency in reſpect of Order, not of Neceſſity, to give Faculty to preach the Goſpel.

Your pretended Fear leſt Error ſhould ſtep in, is like the Man that would keep all the Wine out of the Country leſt Men ſhould be drunk. It will be found an unjuſt and unwiſe Jealouſy to deny a Man the Liberty he hath by Nature, upon a Suppoſition he may abuſe it; when he doth abuſe it, judge.

The Engliſh Laws. The Houſe had a very long and ſmart Debate touching the Act for putting all the Books of Law, and the Proceſs and Proceedings in Courts of Juſtice into the Engliſh Tongue; in which Debate ſome ſpake in Derogation and Diſhonour of the Laws of England.

For ſome Vindication whereof, and for ſatisfying ſome Miſtakes, I delivered my Opinion in the Houſe to this Effect:

Mr. Speaker,

The Queſtion upon which your preſent Debate ariſeth is of no ſmall moment, nor is it eaſily or ſpeedily to be determined; for it comprehends no leſs than a total alteration of the Frame and Courſe of Proceedings of our Law, which have been eſtabliſhed and continued for ſo many Ages.

I ſhould not have troubled you with any of my weak Diſcourſe, but that I apprehend ſome Miſtakes and Diſhonour to the Law of England, if paſſed by without any Anſwer, may be of ill conſequence; and having attended to hear them anſwered by others, who are not pleaſed to do it.

I held my ſelf the more engaged in the Duty of my Profeſſion, to offer to your Judgment (to which I ſhall always ſubmit) what I have met with, and do ſuppoſe not to be impertinent, for the rectifying of ſome Miſtakes which are amongſt us. Novemb.

A worthy Gentleman was pleaſed to affirm with much confidence (as he brought it in upon this Debate) That the Laws of England were introduced by William the Conqueror, as (among other Arguments he aſſerted) might appear by their being written in the French Tongue.

In his firſt Aſſertion, That our Laws were introduced by William the Conqueror out of France, I ſhall acknowledge that he hath ſeveral both foreign and domeſtick Authors whom he may follow therein, the foreign Authors are Jovius, Æmilius, Bodine, Hottoman, Dynothus, Volateran, Berault, Berkley, Choppinus, Uſpargenſis, Malines and Polydore, who affirm this erroneous piece of Doctrine; but the leſs to be regarded from them, becauſe they were Strangers to our Laws, and took up upon truſt what they publiſhed in this point.

Of our own Countrymen, they have Paris, Malmesbury, Matthew Weſtminſter, Fox, Coſins, Twyne, Heyward, Milles, Fulbeck, Cowel, Ridley, Brown, Speed, Martin, and ſome others.

All of them affirm, That the Laws of England were introduced by William the Conqueror: But their Errors are refuted by Sir Roger Owen, in his Manuſcript; who ſaith, that Roger Wendover, and Matthew Paris were the firſt Monks that hatched theſe addle Eggs.

I ſhall endeavour to ſhew you, that the Original of our Laws is not from the French; that they were not introduced by William the Conqueror out of Normandy: And I ſhall humbly offer to you my Anſwer to ſome of their Arguments who are of a contrary Opinion.

Polydore, Hiſt. Angl. L. 9. affirmeth, that William the Conqueror firſt appointed Sheriffs and Juſtices of the Peace, erected Tenures, brought in Trials by twelve Men, and ſeveral other Particulars of our Laws.

For Sheriffs, their Name Scire Reeve, ſhews them to be of the Saxon Inſtitution. And our Hiſtories mention the Diviſion of Shires by King Alphred; but in truth it was much more ancient.

And it is apparent by our Books and Records, ſome whereof are in the Huſtings of London, and in the Tower, that the ſame things were in uſe here long before the Time of King Wil. 1.

Sir Roger Owen ſhews at large, that Livery of Seiſin, Licenſes, or Fines for Alienation, Daughters to inherit, Trials by Juries, Abjurations, Utlawries, Coroners, Diſpoſing of Lands by Will, Eſcheats, Goals, Writs, Wrecks, Warranties, Catalla Felonum, and many other parts of our Law, and the Forms of our Parliaments themſelves, were here in being before the time of Duke William.

Agreeing hereunto are many of our Hiſtorians and learned Antiquaries.

But it is objected, That in the Grand Cuſtomary of Normandy, the Laws are almoſt all the ſame with ours of England, and the form of their Parliaments the ſame with ours.

That the Writer of the Preface to that Book, ſaith, it contains only the Laws and Cuſtoms which were made by the Princes of Normandy, by the Council of their Prelates, Earls, Barons, and other wiſe Men; which ſhews the Forms of their Parliament to be the ſame with ours, and the Laws in that Book to be the proper Laws of Normandy, and ours to be the ſame; therefore they argue that our Laws were introduced from thence by William the Conqueror.

This

Anno 1650.

This will be fully anſwered; If that Grand Cuſtomary of Normandy was compoſed in our King Ed. 1. his time (as good Authors hold it was) then it cannot be, that our Laws or Parliaments could be derived from thence.

Theſe learned Men ſay, That this Cuſtomary was a meer Tranſlation of our Law-Book Glanvill; as the Book of Regia Majeſtas, of the Laws of Scotland, is; and the like of the Laws of Burgundy.

They further add, That the firſt eſtabliſhing of the Cuſtomary of Normandy was in Hen. 1. his time; and afterwards again about the beginning of Ed. 2. his time.

If the Laws in the Cuſtomary were introduced there from England, it will then be granted, that the Laws of England were not introduced here by William the Conqueror: But I think it very clear that their Laws were brought to them out of England; and then you will all agree to the Concluſion.

Our King Hen. 1. conquered Normandy from his Brother Robert, and was a learned King, as his Name Beauclerk teſtifies; whom Juo calls An eſpecial Eſtabliſher of Juſtice: Sequerius relates, That this King eſtabliſhed the Engliſh Laws in Normandy.

Herewith do agree Gulielmus Brito Armoricus, Rutclarius, and other French Writers; who mention alſo, that the Laws in the Cuſtomary of Normandy are the ſame with the Laws collected by our Engliſh King Edward the Confeſſor, who was before the Conqueror.

An additional Teſtimony hereof is out of William de Alenſon Revile, who in his Comment upon the Cuſtomary, ſaith, that all the Laws of Normandy came from the Engliſh Laws and Nation.

In the Cuſtomary, there is a Chapter of Nampes or Diſtreſſes, and Decreed that one ſhould not bring his Action upon any Seizure, but from the time of the Coronation of King Richard; and this muſt be our King Richard I. becauſe no King of France was in that time of that Name; and the Words Nampes and Withernams were Saxon Words taken out of the Engliſh Laws, ſignifying a Pawn or Diſtreſs; and in the ſame Senſe are uſed in the Cuſtomary.

That which puts it further out of Scruple, is, that there are yet extant the Manuſcripts themſelves of the Saxon Laws, made in the Parliamentary Councils held by them here; which are in the Language and Character of thoſe times; and contain in them many of thoſe things which are in the Norman Cuſtomary.

It is no improbable Opinion, that there was a former Eſtabliſhment of our Laws in Normandy, before the time of Hen. 1. and that there was by Edward the Confeſſor, who (as all Writers of our Hiſtory agree) was a great Collector and Compiler of our Engliſh Laws.

He lived a long time with his Kinſman Duke William in Normandy, who was willing to pleaſe the Confeſſor, in hopes to be appointed by him to be his Succeſſor; wherein the Duke's Expectation did not fail him.

The Confeſſor having no Children, and finding Normandy without a ſettled Government, and wanting Laws, adviſed with his Kinſman Duke William, to receive from him the Laws of England, which he had collected, and to eſtabliſh them in Normandy; which Duke William and his Lords readily accepted for the Good of their People; and thereby obliged the Confeſſor.

Another Proof hereof is, That ſuch Laws as the Normans had before the time of Duke William, were different from thoſe in the Cuſtomary, and from the Engliſh Laws. Novemb.

As their Law that the Husband ſhould be hanged if the Wife were a Thief, and he did not diſcover it; the meaner People were as Slaves, and the like: and the trial of Theft by Ordeal, which then was not in England.

Wigornienſis reports, That the Normans, who came in with Queen Emma the Wife of Ethelred, were ſo hated by the Engliſh for their Injuſtice and falſe Judgment, that in the time of King Canutus they were for this Cauſe baniſhed; and it is the leſs probable, that they being ſo unjuſt themſelves ſhould introduce ſo juſt Laws as ours are.

Between the Conqueſt of Normandy by Rollo, and the Invaſion of England by Duke William, there were not above 160 Years; that of Normandy was about anno 912. that of England, anno 1060.

It is not then conſonant to Reaſon, That thoſe Normans, Pagans, a rough Martial People, deſcended from ſo many barbarous Nations ſhould in the time of 150 Years eſtabliſh ſuch excellent Laws among themſelves, and ſo different from the French Laws among whom they were, and all Parts in the World except England.

And ſuch Laws which were not only fit for their Dukedom and ſmall Territory, but fit alſo for this Kingdom, which in thoſe Days was the ſecond in Europe for antiquity and worth, by confeſſion of moſt foreign Hiſtorians.

If we will give credit to their own Authors, this Point will be ſufficiently evinced by them; theſe words are in the Proeme of the Cuſtomary, which is entitled Deſcriptio Normanniæ.

Hucuſque Normannicæ conſuetudinis latorem ſive datorem, ſanctum Edwardum Angliæ regem, &c.

The ſame is witneſſed by Chronica Chronicorum, That St. Edward King of England gave the Laws to the Normans, when he was long harboured there.

And that he made both the Laws of England and Normandy, appears ſufficiently by the conformity of them; for which he cites ſeveral particulars, as of Appeals, and the Cuſtom of England, ad probandum aliquid per credentiam duodecim hominum vicinorum, which he ſaith remained in Normandy to that Day.

Polydore forgetting himſelf what he wrote in another Place, ſaith of King Henry the Seventh, That when a Doubt was made upon the Propoſal of the Marriage of his Daughter to Scotland, that thereby England might in time be ſubject unto Scotland.

The King anſwered, No, and that England as the greater, will draw to it Scotland, being the leſs, and incorporate it to the Laws of England, as (ſaith the Hiſtorian) it did Normandy, though the Owner thereof was Conqueror in England.

And Sir Roger Owen in his Manuſcript affirms that there is not any of our Hiſtorians, that lived in the ſpace of 200 Years immediately after the Conqueſt, which doth deſcribe our Laws to be taken away, and the Norman Cuſtoms introduced by the Conqueror.

Some of them (and not improbably) mention the Alteration of ſome part of them; and the bringing in ſome Norman Cuſtoms effectual for the keeping of the Peace.

There is yet behind the great Argument moſt inſiſted on, and often urged by the Gentlemen of another Opinion, which is the Title of William, who is called the Conqueror, from whence they conclude, That by his Conqueſt, he changed the Laws and and Government of this Nation; and that his Succeſſors reckon the Beginning of their Reigns from his Conqueſt.

To this is anſwered, That à poſſe ad eſſe non valet argumentum: The conquering of the Land is one thing, the introducing of new Laws is another thing, but there is direct Proof to the contrary of this Argument.

Duke William never ſurnamed himſelf the Conqueror, nor was ſo called in his Life time, as may appear by all the Letters Patents, and Deeds that he made, wherein he is called Gulielmus Rex, Dux, &c. never Conqueſtor; and our ancient Hiſtorians give him the ſame Titles, and not that of Conqueror.

In the Title of Nubrigenſis's Book, he is ſurnamed William the Baſtard.

Malmsbury calls him Wil. 1. Hoveden, Wil. the Elder.

Adam de Monmouth ſaith, That 1. Ed. 3. this Word (Conqueſt) was found out, to denote and diſtinguiſh the certain Edward, becauſe two of the ſame Name were Predeceſſors to this King, and to the Conqueror who claimed the Crown as Heir to Edward the Confeſſor; but (ſaith he) we call him the Conqueror, for that he overcame Harold.

Duke William himſelf claimed to be King of England, as Succeſſor and adopted Heir of the Confeſſor by his Will, and Harold's renouncing of his Title by Oath.

The Regiſter of St. Albans, Matthew Paris, and others atteſt, that the Barons of England did homage to him as Succeſſor, and he relied on them in his foreign Wars; and the Check given to him by the Kentiſh Men, and the Forces gathered by the Abbot of St. Albans, brought him to engage to confirm the Laws of the Confeſſor; and as his Succeſſor by legal Right, they admitted him to be their King.

Volaterus writes, That he was made Heir to the Confeſſor, and was Uncle to him.

Another affirms, That Edward by his Will left England to him Paulus Æmilius; and Fulgaſius are to the ſame purpoſe.

Pope Alexander the Second ſent him a Banner, as Witneſs, that with a ſafe Conſcience he might expel Harold the Tyrant, becauſe the Crown was due to him by the Confeſſor's Will, and by Harold's Oath.

Agreeable hereunto are Gemiticenſis, Walſingham, Malmsbury, Huntington, Ingulphus, Paris, Pike, Wendover, Caxton, Gisborn, and others.

The ancient Deeds of the Abby of Weſtminſter (which were ſometimes in my Cuſtody) do prove this.

King William in his Charter to them, ſets forth his own Title to the Crown thus, Beneficio Conceſſionis & Cognati mei glorioſi Regis Edwardi.

In his Second Charter, dated anno 15. of his Reign, he ſaith, In Honour of King Edward, who made me his Heir, and adopted me to rule over this Nation.

In his Charter dated 1088 of the Liberties of St. Martins the Great, in the Manuſcript thereof, are theſe Words,

In Example of Moſes who built the Tabernacle, and of Solomon who built the Temple, Ego Gulielmus Dei diſpoſitione & Conſanguinitatis hæreditate Anglorum Baſileus, &c.

The Charter of Hen. 1. his Son, to this Abbey, In Honour of Edward my Kinſman, who adopted my Father, and his Children to be Heirs to this Kingdom, &c.

In another Character of Henry 1. in the Book of Ely, he calls himſelf the Son of King William the Great, who by hereditary Right ſucceeded King Edward. Novemb.

It is true, that as to his pretence of Title by the Will of the Confeſſor, Matthew Paris objecteth, That the Device was void, being without the conſent of the Barons.

To which may be anſwered, That probably the Law might be ſo in Henry 3. time, when Paris wrote, and was ſo taken to be in the Statute of Carliſle, and in the Caſe of King John.

But at the time of Duke William's Invaſion the Law was taken to be, That a Kingdom might be transferred by Will.

So was that of Sixtus Rufus, and Aſia came to the Romans by the Will of King Attalus; the Words by Annæus Florus are, Populus Romanus bonorum meorum Hæres eſto.

Bithynia came to the Romans by the laſt Will of their King Nicomedes, which is remembred by Eutropius, together with that of Libya.

Cicero in his Oration tells us, That the Kingdom of Alexandria, by the laſt Will of their King, was devolved to Rome.

And Praſitagus Rex Icenorum in England, upon his death Bed gave his Kingdom to the Emperor Nero.

As to Examples in this Point at Home this King William the 1. by his Will, gave England to his younger Son William Rufus.

King Stepheh claimed by the Will of Henry the firſt.

King Henry 8. had Power by Act of Parliament, to order the Succeſſion of the Crown as he pleaſed by Will.

And the Lords of the Council in Queen Mary's Time, wrote to her, That the Lady Jane's Title to the Crown was by the Will and Letters of Edward 6.

As the Caſe of Henry 8. was by Act of Parliament, ſo Duke William, after he had conquered Harold, was by the Conſent of the Barons and People of England, accepted for their King, and ſo his Title by Will confirmed.

And he both claimed and governed the Kingdom as an Heir and Succeſſor, confirmed their ancient Laws, and ruled according to them.

This appears by Chronica Chronicorum, ſpeaking of William the Baſtard King of England and Duke of Normandy, he ſaith, That whereas St. Edward had no Heir of England, William having conquered Harold the Uſurper, obtained the Crown under this Condition, That he ſhould inviolably obſerve thoſe Laws given by the ſaid Edward.

It is teſtified likewiſe by many of our Hiſtorians that the ancient Laws of England were confirmed by Duke William.

Jornalenſis ſaith, That out of the Merchenlage, Weſt-Saxon Lage, and Dane Lage, The Confeſſor compoſed the common Law, which remains to this Day.

Malmsbury, who lived in Duke William's time, ſaith that the Kings were ſworn to obſerve the Laws of the Confeſſor, ſo called (ſaith he) becauſe he obſerved them moſt religiouſly.

But to make this Point clear out of Ingulphus, he ſaith in the end of his Chronicle. I Ingulphus brought with me from London, into my Monaſtery (Crowland) the Laws of the moſt righteous King Edward, which my Lord King William did command by his Proclamation to be authentick and perpetual, and to be obſerved throughout the whole King-

The Leiger Book of the Abbey of Waltham commends Duke William for reſtoring the Laws of the Engliſh Men out of the Cuſtoms of their Country.

Radburn follows this Opinion, and theſe Laws of Edward the Confeſſor are the ſame in part, which are contained in our great Charter of Liberties.

A Manuſcript entitled De geſtis Anglorum, ſaith, That at a Parliament at London, 4 Wil. 1. the Lawyers alſo preſent, the King might hear their Laws; he eſtabliſhed St. Edward's Laws, they being formerly uſed in King Edgar's Time.

There is alſo mention of the twelve Men out of every County, to deliver truly the State of their Laws; the ſame is remembred by Selden, Hiſtory of Tithes and Titles of Honour, and in a Manuſcript Chronicle bound with the Book of Ely in Cotton's Library.

One of the worthy Gentlemen from whom I differ in Opinion, was pleaſed to ſay, That if William the Conqueror did not introduce the Laws of Normandy into England, yet he conceives our Laws to be brought out of France hither in the Time of ſome other of our Kings, who had large Territories in France, and brought in their Laws hither, elſe he wonders how our Laws ſhould be in French.

Sir, I ſhall endeavour to ſatisfy his wonder therein by and by; but firſt with your leave, I ſhall offer to you ſome Probabilities out of the Hiſtory, that the Laws of England were by ſome of thoſe Kings carried into France, rather than the Laws of France brought hither.

This is expreſly affirmed by Paulus Jovius, who writes, that when the Engliſh Kings reigned in a great part of France, they taught the French their Laws.

Sabellicus, a Venetian Hiſtorian, writes, that the Normans in their Manners, and Cuſtoms, and Laws, followed the Engliſh.

Polydore Virgil contradicting himſelf in another place than before cited, relates that in our King Henry 6. Time, the Duke of Bedford called together the chief Men of all the Cities in Normandy, and delivered in his Oration to them the many Benefits that the Engliſh afforded them, eſpecially in that the Engliſh gave to them their Cuſtoms and Laws.

By the Chronicle of Eltham, Hen. 5. ſent to Cane in Normady, not only Divines, but Engliſh Common Lawyers, by the Agreement at Troys.

So there is much more probability that the Laws of England were introduced into France and Normandy, than that the Laws of Normandy, or any other part of France were introduced in England.

If the Normans had been Conquerors of England, as they were not; but their Duke was only Conqueror of Harold, and received as Hereditary King of England; yet it is not probable they would have changed our Laws, and have introduced theirs, becauſe they did not uſe to do ſo upon other Conqueſts.

The Normans conquered the Iſles of Guernſey and Jerſey, yet altered not their Laws, which in their local Cuſtoms are like unto ours.

The like they did in Sicily, Naples, and Apulia, where they were Conquerors, yet the ancient Laws of thoſe Countries were continued.

I hope, Mr. Speaker, I have by this time given ſome ſatisfaction to the worthy Gentlemen who differed from me, that the Laws of England were not impoſed upon us by the Conqueror, nor brought over hither, either out of Normandy, or any other part of France, but are our ancient native Laws. I muſt now come to endeavour alſo to ſatisfy the wonder, if they were not brought out of Normandy, or ſome other part of France, how come they then to be written in the French Language? Novemb.

Sir, it is to me an Argument, that becauſe they are written in French, therefore they were not brought in by Duke William the Norman. For the French Tongue was not the Language of Duke William and the Normans.

They had not been then in Duke William's Time paſt four Deſcents in that part of France, and it is improbable that they in ſo ſhort a time ſhould loſe their native Tongue, and take up and uſe the Language of another Country, which was conquered by them.

The Normans came from Sweden, Gothland, Norway and Denmark, between whoſe Languages, and with the High-Dutch, their Neighbours, there is a great affinity; but between theſe Languages and the French, there is none at all.

Ulphilus holds, that the Dutch Tongue came from the Goths. Jornandus ſaith, The Goths Tongue came from the Dutch; all agree, that between thoſe Languages and the French there is no Affinity.

It is ſo improbable that Duke William ſhould cauſe our Laws to be in French, that when he proclaimed them (as Ingulphus teſtifies) he commanded that they ſhould be uſed in the ſame Language they were written (in Engliſh) to his Juſtices, and gives the reaſon, leſt by Ignorance we ſhould happen to break them.

But it hath been farther objected, if Duke William did not cauſe our Laws to be written in French; what then ſhould be the reaſon that the Grand Cuſtomary of his Norman Laws were written in the French Tongue?

The reaſon thereof is given, that the Normans being a rough and martial People, had few Clerks among them, but made uſe of thoſe French among whom they then lived, and whoſe Language they then began to be acquainted with and to underſtand.

But when they were in England, they had not ſo much uſe of thoſe Clerks, and that Language, but more of the Engliſh.

And probably it might be, that the Confeſſor had been ſo long in France, that he was more Maſter of that Language than of the Norman; and that the Normans underſtood that Language better than the Engliſh; and thereupon the Cuſtomary was written in the French Tongue.

But it doth not therefore follow, that Duke William muſt cauſe the Engliſh Laws to be written in the French Tongue; but it is more likely that he might cauſe them to be continued in their native Idiom, which was much nearer in affinity to his own Northern Language than the French was.

That the French Tongue was not introduced as to our Laws and other things by Duke William into England, appears, in that the French was in great uſe with us here, both before, and ſome time after his Invaſion.

Beda affirms, That in Anno 640. it was the Cuſtom of England to ſend their Daughters into the Monaſteries of France, to be brought up there, and that Ethelbert, Ethelwolf, Ethelred, and other Saxon Kings married into the Royal Blood of France.

Glabor notes, that before the Time of Duke William, the Normans and Engliſh did ſo link together, that they were a terror to foreign Nations.

Ingulphus ſaith, that the Saxon Hand was uſed until the time of King Alfred, long before the time of Duke William; and that he being brought up by French Teachers, uſed the French Hand.

And he notes many Charters of Edred and Edgar, written in the French Hand, and ſome Saxon mixt with it, as in the Book of Doomſday.

Anno 1650.

That Edward the Confeſſor, by reaſon of his long being in France, was turned into the French Faſhion, and all England with him.

But that Wil. 1. commanded our Laws to be written in the Engliſh Tongue, becauſe moſt Men underſtood it; and that there be many of his Patents in the Saxon Tongue.

I ſuppoſe we may be ſatisfied that Wil. 1. did not cauſe our Laws to be written in French, though the French Language was much in uſe here before his Time.

And if he did not introduce the French Language into England, the Argument falls, that becauſe they are written in French, therefore he brought them in.

But, Sir, I ſhall offer you ſome Conjectures, how it came, that our Laws were written in French; which I ſuppoſe might be begun in the Time of our King Hen. 2. who was a Frenchman born, and had large Territories and Relations in France, many of his Succeſſors had the like, and very much to do in France, and with Frenchmen of whom great numbers came into England; and they and the Engliſh matched and lived together, both here, and in ſome parts of France.

Hence it came to paſs (as Giraldus Cambrenſis notes) that the Engliſh Tongue was in great uſe in Bourdeaux, and in other parts of France where the Engliſhmen were reſident and converſant; the like was, when the Frenchmen were ſo converſant in England.

Matthew Weſtminſter writes, that he was in hazard of loſing his Living, becauſe he underſtood not the French Tongue; and that in King Hen. 2. and King Stephen's Time, who had large Dominions in France their native Country, and the number of French and of Matches with them was ſo great, that one could hardly know who was French, and who Engliſh.

Gervaſius Tilsberienſis obſerves the ſame, and Brackland writes, that in Ric. 1*ſt's time, Preaching in* England was in the French Tongue; probably Pleading might be ſo likewiſe: and in King John's Time, French was accounted as the Mother Tongue.

There are ſcarce any Deeds of our Kings in French before Hen. 2's Time; the moſt are in Ed. 1. and Ed. 2's Time.

That our Laws were pleaded and written in French before Ed. 3's Time, appears by the Statute 36 Ed. 3. c. 15. which recites the miſchief of the Law being in French, and enacts that the Law ſhall thereafter be pleaded in Engliſh, and inrolled in Latin.

This is one Ground of the miſtaken Opinion of Lambert, Polydore, Speed, and others, that Duke William brought in hither both the Norman Laws and Language, which I apprehend to be fully anſwered, and the contrary manifeſted by what I have ſaid before on this Subject.

Polydore's miſtake may appear the more, when he aſſerts, that by this Statute 36 Ed. 3. Matters are to be Inrolled in Engliſh, which is contrary to the expreſs words, that they are to be Inrolled in Latin.

Many of our Law-Books were written in Latin, before the Norman Invaſion, as appears by the ancient Rolls of Manors, and Courts Baron, and our Old Authors Glanvile, Bracton, Tilesbury, Hengham, Fleta, the Regiſter, and Book of Entries.

The Records at Weſtminſter and the Tower, and other Records yet extant are in Latin, and many Books of our Law in Latin, were tranſlated into Engliſh about Ed. 3*d's Time.*

Moſt of our Statutes from Ed. 1*ſt's Time till about the middle of* Hen. 7*th's Reign, are* Inrolled in French, notwithſtanding this Statute 36 Ed. 3. except the Statute 6 Ric. 2. and ſome others in Latin. Novemb.

Ric. 2. Hen. 4. Hen. 5. and Hen. 6. uſed to write their Letters in French, and ſome of our Pleadings are in French, and in the Common-Pleas to our Time.

But, Sir, our Law is Lex non ſcripta: I mean our Common Law, and our Statutes, Records, and Books which are written in French, are no Argument that therefore the Original of our Laws is from France; but they were in being before any of the French Language was in our Laws.

Forteſcue writes, that the Engliſh kept their Accounts in French; yet doubtleſs they had Accounts here and Revenues, before the French Language was in uſe here.

My Lord Coke ſaith, That the Conqueror taught the Engliſh the Norman Terms of Hawking, Hunting, Gaming, &c. yet no doubt but that theſe Recreations were in uſe with us before his Time.

And though Duke William, or any other of our Kings before or after his Time, did bring in the French Tongue amongſt us; yet that is no Argument, that he or they did change or introduce our Laws, which undoubtedly were here long before thoſe Times; and ſome of them, when the French Tongue was ſo much in uſe here, were Tranſlated, Written and Pleaded, and Recorded in the French Tongue, yet remained the ſame Laws ſtill.

And from that great uſe of the French Tongue here, it was, that the Reporters of our Law Caſes and Judgments which were in thoſe Times, did write their Reports in French, which was the pure French in that Time, though mixt with ſome words of Art.

Thoſe Terms of Art were taken many of them from the Saxon Tongue, as may be ſeen by them yet uſed. And the Reporters of later Times, and our Students at this Day, uſe to take their Notes in French following the old Reports which they had ſtudied, and the old French which (as in other Languages) by time came to be varied.

I ſhall not deny but that ſome Monks in elder Times, and ſome Clerks and Officers might have a Cunning, for their private Honour and Profit, to keep up a Myſtery, to have as much as they could of our Laws to be in a kind of Myſtery to the Vulgar, to be the leſs underſtood by them.

But the Counſellors at Law and Judges can have no advantage by it; but perhaps it would be found, that the Law being in Engliſh, and generally more underſtood, yet not ſufficiently, would occaſion the more Suits.

And poſſibly there may be ſomething of the like nature as to the Court-hand; yet if the more common Hands were uſed in our Law-writings, they would be the more ſubject to change, as the Engliſh, and other Languages are, but not the Latin.

Surely the French Tongue uſed in our Reports, and Law-Books, deſerves not to be ſo enviouſly decried as it is by Polydore, Aliott, Daniel, Hottomon, Cowel, and other Cenſurers.

But, Mr. Speaker, if I have been tedious, I humbly ask your pardon, and have the more hopes to obtain it from ſo many worthy Engliſh Gentlemen, when that which I have ſaid, was chiefly in vindication of their own native Laws, unto which I held my ſelf the more obliged by the duty of my Profeſſion; and I account it an Honour to me to be a Lawyer.

As to the Debate and Matter of the Act now before you, I have delivered no Opinion againſt it, nor do I think it reaſonable that the Generality of the People of England ſhould, by an implicit Faith, depend upon the knowledge of others in that which concerns them moſt of all.

It

Anno 1650. It was the Romiſh Policy to keep them in ignorance of Matters pertaining to their Souls health; let them not be in ignorance of Matters pertaining to their Bodies, Eſtates, and all their worldly Comfort.

It is not unreaſonable that the Law ſhould be in that Language which may beſt be underſtood by thoſe, whoſe Lives and Fortunes are ſubject to it, and are to be governed by it.

Moſes read all the Laws openly before the People in their Mother Tongue; God directed him to write it, and to expound it to the People in their own native Language; that what concerned their Lives, Liberties and Eſtates, might be made known unto them in the moſt perſpicuous way.

The Laws of the Eaſtern Nations were in their proper Tongue.

The Laws at Conſtantinople were in Greek, at Rome in Latin; in France, Spain, Germany, Sweden, Denmark, and other Nations, their Laws are publiſhed in their native Idiom.

For your own Country, there is no Man that can read the Saxon Character, but may find the Laws of your Anceſtors yet extant in the Engliſh Tongue.

Duke William himſelf commanded the Laws to be proclaimed in Engliſh, that none might pretend Ignorance of them.

It was the Judgment of the Parliament 36 Ed. 3. That Pleadings ſhould be in Engliſh; and in the Reigns of thoſe Kings, when our Statutes were inrolled in French and Engliſh, yet then the Sheriffs in their ſeveral Counties, were to proclaim them in Engliſh.

I ſhall conclude with a Complaint of what I have met with abroad from ſome Military Perſons, nothing but Scoffs and Invectives againſt our Law, and Threats to take it away; but the Law is above the reach of thoſe Weapons, which at one time or another will return upon thoſe that uſe them.

Solid Arguments, ſtrong Reaſons and Authorities are more fit for confutation of any Error, and ſatisfaction of different Judgments. When the Emperor took a Biſhop in compleat Armour in a Battle, he ſent the Armour to the Pope, with this Word, Hæccine ſunt veſtes filii tui?

So may I ſay to thoſe Gentlemen abroad, as to their Railings, Taunts and Threats againſt the Law, Hæccine ſunt Argumenta horum Antinomianorum? They will be found of no force, but recoiling Arms.

Nor is it ingenious or prudent for Engliſhmen to deprave their Birthright, the Laws of their own Country.

But to return to the Matter in Debate, I can find neither ſtrangeneſs, nor forſee great inconvenience by paſſing of this Act; and therefore if the Houſe ſhall think fit to have the Queſtion put for the paſſing of it, I am ready to give my Affirmative.

The Queſtion being put,

It was unanimouſly carried, That the Act ſhould paſs, for turning the Law-Books, and the Proceſs, and Proceedings in the Courts of Juſtice into Engliſh.

An Account of 4700 preſt Soldiers, and 4300 Volunteers gone for Recruits into Ireland.

Engliſh Ambaſſadors. Holland. Letters of a Ship of the Parliament's arrived at Helvoetſluice, one of thoſe ſent to bring back the Engliſh Ambaſſadors, which was unexpected and unwelcome News to the States, but the Courts of the Queen of Bohemia and of the Princeſs Royal, rejoiced at their Departure.

That the ſame Night the States ſent to the Ambaſſadors (which they had not done in a Month before) to know if they might not come to the Ambaſſadors the next Morning to confer with them about the Treaty; to which the Ambaſſadors anſwered, That they might if they pleaſed.

That the next Morning the Commiſſioners from the States were taking the Coach to come to the Ambaſſadors, but fell out among themſelves about the Meſſage they were to bring, and ſo ſent to excuſe their not coming that Day.

That ſome of the Provinces diſagreed as to the nearer Amity, but whether contrived for ſome Excuſe of their unſufferable Delays was not certain; but that they would fain ſee the Iſſue of the Affairs in Scotland before they come to a Concluſion with the Engliſh Ambaſſadors, is agreed by all.

Mr. Love. 25. Mr. Love the Miniſter was again before the High Court of Juſtice, and confeſt that the Conſpirators met at his Houſe for furthering the Scots Deſigns, and that Letters were received and Anſwers ſent from thence, &c. but that he did not perſonally act any thing.

Letters of a great Victory obtained by a Party under Major General Lambert againſt the Scots on Fife ſide; they being a Party of above 5000, that 2000 of them were ſlain upon the Place, and in the Purſuit many Officers and private Soldiers taken Priſoners, the Particulars not yet come to the Parliament.

Victory in Scotland. 28. Letters from Major General Lambert of the late Victory in Scotland.

My Lord General having offered the Enemy Battle at Torwood, and finding it was their Intention to delay this War, took Council to adventure the landing of ſome Forces on Fife ſide, and for that purpoſe drew forth Colonel Daniel's Regiment of Foot, and as many forth of Leith as made them 1600 with four Troops of Colonel Lidcot's Regiment, all commanded by Colonel Overton.

And accordingly attempted landing at Queens Ferry, where almoſt on three ſides, the Sea incompaſſeth a rocky piece of Ground, which with the loſs of about ſix Men, was effected on Thurſday Morning the 17*th* Inſtant; this done they preſently fell to intrenching of themſelves, indeed the Buſineſs was managed both with Diſcretion and Courage.

Whilſt this was doing, My Lord General marched cloſe up to the Enemy with his whole Army, that in caſe they ſhould have marched this Way, he might have engaged their Rear before they could reach Stirling.

The Enemy received the Alarm the ſame Day about 10 of the Clock, and ſent a conſiderable Party of Horſe and Foot to beat ours back, upon which my Lord had ſome Thoughts of attempting the Enemy where they lay, which was not thought fit, but reſolved to the contrary; and in order to the Preſervation of the Forces, his Lordſhip commanded me to march hither with two Regiments of Horſe and two of Foot.

Upon Saturday very early we came to the Water-ſide, and though I made all poſſible Speed to boat over it, I could not get over more than the Foot and my own Regiment of Horſe all that Day and the next Night: About four in the Afternoon on Saturday I diſcovered the Enemy's Body advanced as far as Dumfermling within five Miles of us, being to my Judgment about 4000.

And that Night they incamped there, and it ſeems hearing more Forces were come over, got a Recruit of 500 Men the next Day.

All Saturday Night we laboured to get over our Horſe, and before the laſt came to ſhore on the Lord's-day, the Enemy was advanced very near us. July.

We ſtood upon our own Defence till moſt of ours were come; the Enemy having taken his ſtand began to wheel, as if he meant either to march away, or to take the Advantage of a ſteep Mountain.

Upon this I appointed Colonel Okey to advance with his Regiment, which accordingly he did, and there engaged his Rear as he could draw them no further; but there drew up in Battalia, and we in the ſame Manner with as much ſpeed as conveniently we could.

We were more in number in my Judgment by at leaſt 5 or 600, but on the other ſide the Enemy had the advantage of the Ground, our left Wing of Horſe being upon a very ill Ground, where was a Paſs lined by the Enemy's Musketeers.

Upon Conſideration whereof we placed our greateſt ſtrength in our right Wing, conſiſting of my own Regiment of Horſe, and two of Colonel Lidcot's, and two of Colonel Okey's Troops; the Charge of that Wing being left with him, and in the Left only four Troops of Colonel Okey's, and two of Lidcot's to whom the Charge of that Wing was committed.

The Battle conſiſting of mine, and Colonel Daniel's Regiment of Foot, and reſerved by Colonel Weſt and Colonel Syler's Regiment, being commanded by Colonel Overton; We continued faceing one another about an Hour and an half, ſuppoſing they would have come to us, being come ſo far to ſeek us; but finding they delayed, and having juſt then received Notice from my Lord that more Forces were come from Stirling to their Aſſiſtance, and that my Lord was upon his march to Linlithgow, and by that Means the Enemy at Liberty to ſend more Forces hither.

It was reſolved we ſhould climb the Hill to them, which accordingly we did, and through the Lord's ſtrength by a very ſhort Diſpute, put them to an abſolute Rout; we killed upon the Place (as moſt judge) 2000, and took 1400 Priſoners, and among the reſt Sir John Brown Major General of their Horſe and Commander in Chief of their Forces; Colonel Buchannan and divers other Officers were taken and ſlain.

The Reaſon why the Slain exceeded the number of Priſoners, was becauſe divers of them were Highlanders, and had very ill Quarter; and indeed I am perſuaded few of them eſcaped without a Knock. I think we loſt not above eight Men, but divers wounded; thus eaſy hath the Lord given us this Mercy. My Lord is again remarched towards Stirling.

Upon his advance, I heard the Enemy, who were upon their way five Miles with their whole Body towards us on this ſide Stirling, is drawn back and lieth in Stirling and thereabouts.

My Lord hath ſince ſent me Colonel Ingoleſby's Regiment, and Colonel Aſhfield's, with Colonel Lilburn's, and Colonel Alured's Regiments of Horſe, that I judge the Forces with me to be above 7000.

North Ferry. John Lambert.
July 22. 1651.

Other Letters, that the Scots Retreat to Stirling was in very great haſte, for they left ſeveral of their ſick Men in their Huts, and a pretty quantity of Powder and Match; that the King

That Colonel Porteſcue coming to the General with a Petition on the behalf of Mr. Love, the General and the Army would not intermeddle therewith; and the Colonel with a Convoy of eighteen Troopers, was ſet upon by eighty of the Enemy's Horſe; the Colonel firſt cried for Quarter and had it, moſt of his Convoy were ſlain, only four of them eſcaped. Mr. Love.

That 6000 of the Scots are reported to have run away from them ſince the laſt Rout in Fife. Scotland.

In the Armies March towards St. Johnſton, two Troopers were executed for Straggling and Plundering.

That

Anno 1651. That ſome Country People being left to cut down the Bridge between St. Johnſton and Stirling, they ran away upon the approach of the Engliſh Army before it was quite done, and left their Tools behind them.

That the General ſent a Summons to St. Johnſton, that underſtanding they had no Garriſon, that they ſhould immediately ſurrender to him; and he promiſed to free their Goods from Plunder, and their Perſons from violence.

The Town denying his entrance, he ſent Parties to attempt it, and ſome were ſlain on both ſides; but the Engliſh gaining upon them, they ſent a Drum with a Letter to the General to let him know that his Information was not good, and that they had a Garriſon, and could do nothing without the Governor.

Hereupon the General ſent a Summons to the Governor who returned no Anſwer; and therefore Cromwell planted his Batteries, and played all Night upon them; and the next Day the Lord Daſſeres the Governor, who came into the Town the Day before with 1300 Men, ſent to Cromwell for a Treaty and Ceſſation.

That news was brought to Cromwell; that the Scots Army was marched about to Hamilton, and ſo intended for England.

That Colonel Forteſcue with twenty eight Men in his Company were taken (ſome ſuſpected willingly) by the Moſs Troopers between Leith and Berwick.

9. Letters that the Lord Muskerry having gotten Forces together to relieve Limerick; the Lord Broghill met with them, routed them, killed 500 on the Place, beſides many that were drowned in the Black-water.

That St. Johnſton was rendred to Cromwell upon Articles.

That he had in it four Pieces of Ordnance, much Arms, Ammunition and Proviſion.

That the General left a Regiment of Horſe and another of Foot, and four Troops of Dragoons under the Command of Colonel Overton to ſecure that Place and the Parts adjacent, and ſent Lieutenant General Monk with four Regiments of Horſe, three of Foot, and four battering Pieces to beleaguer Stirling.

The General haſtened to march after the King, who he had notice was advanced for England, and that by the way David Leſley ſummoned Bigger; and the Governor returned a reſolute Anſwer, that he kept it for the Commonwealth of England.

That Argyle and many other Scots Lords were retired to their private Dwellings.

That the King, Hamilton, and Bucks with other Lords are with the Army, which is about 8000, and ſuppoſed to be near Carliſle.

That Major General Harriſon with a conſiderable Party was at Berwick, and expects a conjunction of other Forces with him to hinder the King's March.

That Major General Lambert was marched after the King.

Cromwell. 11. Letters from Cromwell to the Parliament, of the reducing of St. Johnſton, and of the Enemy's March for England, and his following them, who in deſperation and fear, and out of inevitable neceſſity were run to try what they could do in this way.

It is our Comfort, that in ſimplicity of heart, as to God, we have done to the beſt of our Judgments, knowing that if ſome iſſue were not put to this Buſineſs, it would occaſion another Winter's War, to the ruin of your Soldiery, for whom the Scots are too hard, in reſpect of enduring the Winter's difficultys of that Country, and being under the endleſs Expence of the Treaſure of England in proſecuting this War. Auguſt.

He ſhows the Reaſons why he did not interpoſe more between the Enemy and England, and prays the Parliament to uſe their courage by ſuch Forces as they have in readineſs, and can get together, to give the Enemy a check till he can come up to them, and doubts not but the deſperateneſs and folly of this Council of theirs will appear, and puts them in mind of the Scots former Invaſion, when England was much more unſteady than now, and the ſucceſs of it not to be forgotten.

It is good to wait upon the Lord upon the earneſt of former experiences, and hope of his preſence, which only is the life of your Cauſe.

He gives them an account that Major General Harriſon, and Colonel Rich, and the Forces with them, ſhall endeavour to keep the Scots together, and ſo impede their March, and to join with your other Forces, and that Major General Lambert marched with a conſiderable Body of Horſe up to the Enemy's Rear, and himſelf was haſting after them, and that he hoped he had left a commanding Force under Lieutenant General Monk in Scotland.

Major General Harriſon gave an account by his Letters to the Parliament of the Scots coming into England, and of his giving notice to the Commiſſioners of the Militia of Lancaſhire, Cumberland, and other Counties, to raiſe what Forces they could to join with him; that he had gotten together 3000 Horſe, and hoped to hinder the Enemy's March. Harriſon.

He deſires ſome Proviſion for four or five hundred Godly Men for two or three Months, if he can get them mounted, and dated his Letter, 7th of the 6 Month, 1651, at 11 a Clock Forenoon.

Newcaſtle. T. Harriſon.

That in the Succeſs the Lord Broghill lately had againſt the Lord Muskerry in Ireland, the Lord Muskerry's Army conſiſted of 1000 Horſe and Dragoons, and near 2000 Foot. My Lord Broghill had but 400 Horſe and Dragoons, and under 600 Foot. Ireland. Lord Broghill.

That the Charge was very deſperate on both ſides, the Lord Broghill had 120 Horſemen ſhot, and thirty killed; he charged him, that led up the Iriſh oppoſite Wing, and killed him, but the Iriſh did ſo overwing him, that his own Troop, that conſiſted moſt of Gentlemen Reformadoes, was charged in Front, Flank, and Rear, both by Horſe and Foot; amongſt which my Lord was ſo far engaged, that they offered him Quarter, upon the refuſal whereof, they cried, kill the Fellow in the gold-lace Coat.

Which in all probability had been effected, if a Reformado Lieutenant of his Troop, had not come in to his reſcue; whoſe Horſe was killed on that account, and himſelf twice ſhot; the Lord Broghill got off with a dry Pike, beating by the Pikemen, but his Horſe received three Shots.

That the Iriſh loſt 600 Men, among which many Officers Priſoners, but few were taken, beſides ſome Officers of the Field; that the defeated Army had deſigned conjunction with the Lemſter Forces, and the Relief of Limerick.

12. An Act paſſed to put the Militia in London and the ſeveral Counties into a preſent poſture. London.

An Act paſſed prohibiting Correſpondence with the King and his Party, and declaring the Succeſſes ceſſes in Scotland; and the King was fled into England, and that it ſhould be Death to give any Intelligence or Aſſiſtance to them.

Anno 1651.

13. An Act paſſed to expel Delinquents out of London, and that all give in what Arms they have or know of, and for raiſing of Forces; and to indemnify all liſted Perſons in the Service of the Parliament.

An Account of Forces ſhipped for Scilly.

An Account of Forces preparing in Lancaſhire and Cheſhire, to join with Major General Harriſon.

14. Letters that the King marched out of Perith with his Forces, and Major General Lambert quartered there next Night; that they took up many ſtraggling Scots.

Scots invade England.

That Major General Harriſon was in the Van of them, that ſixteen great Lords of Scotland had deſerted the King for invading England.

15. Letters that the Scots were near Preſton, that Cheſhire had ſent out 3000 Foot to maintain Warrington Bridge againſt the King, and Lancaſhire was not wanting; that in Coventry 700 Men were got together; and that Men were very ready to join againſt the Scots.

Of ſecuring diſaffected Perſons.

That the Scots Army are ſuppoſed to be 12000, beſides their Train.

That Major General Lambert was within half a day's March of the King, and Cromwell was not far behind; that the Scots were gone the ready way to Lancaſhire.

That the Engliſh Scouts took a Scotch Laird, and ſome Letters to Mr. Crofts.

C. Alured.

16. Letters that the Towns in Fife began to revolt, ſuppoſing that all the Engliſh were gone out of Scotland; that Colonel Alured ſtormed and reduced them again, killed many and took 200 Priſoners, and took divers Arms, Colours, and great Guns.

Preſton.

That the Scots Army was advanced to Preſton and in great Confuſion; that Major General Lambert with 4000 Horſe purſued them, and Cromwell with 10000 Foot followed him, and Major General Harriſon with a conſiderable Body coaſted them with 4000 Horſe more, and many Forces were ready in the Countries they were to paſs to join with them, and Veſſels were ſent with Intelligence to the Frigats.

That 3000 Lancaſhire Foot had undertaken to ſecure the Paſs at Warrington, and that Lambert and Harriſon were joined; that Cromwell was within two days March with 10000 Foot.

18. Letters of the Soldiers to their fellow Soldiers to encourage them to oppoſe the Scots.

Harriſon.

From Major General Harriſon to the Council of State, that Lambert and he were joined, and were about 6000 Horſe in the Van of the Enemy.

That the Enemy made ſome halt on a Moor four Miles from Lancaſter, which ſomewhat amazed them; but they went on to Preſton and deſigned to get before to the Paſs at Warrington, where were 3000 Foot to join with Lambert and Harriſon, who intended to march thither.

That they heard the King was caſt down, for that his Subjects came in no faſter to him, and did not anſwer his expectation in Perſons or Number, but divers ran away from him. That Cheſhire had been very forward in their Levies, and moſt of the 3000 Foot came from thence; that he was aſſured of a glorious Iſſue of this Work.

That Cromwell was come into England with eight Regiments of Foot, and the Train; the Soldiers tired with a long March.

That Newburn carried good ſtore of Proviſions to the Soldiers, among whom was not a loud word, or an Oath. Auguſt.

That Colonel Lilburn marched with 1000 Horſe to join with Lambert.

That the Engliſh before Stirling Caſtle, killed thirty of the Caſtle Soldiers in one day's Battery.

From the Governor of Oxford to the Council, that the Vice Chancellor and Colleges had raiſed 120 Horſe for the Parliament's Service, and had engaged in the Univerſity and City to raiſe a Regiment of Foot. Oxford.

19. Letters from Lambert and Harriſon, that the Scots Army came and preſſed to paſs at the Bridge and Fort near it, which we had broken down, and ſpoiled as well as we could in ſo ſhort a time; a Company of our Foot were drawn down to the Barricadoe of the Bridge, who behaved themſelves gallantly, and gave the Enemy oppoſition till we ſaw cauſe to draw off, ſecuring their Retreat by Parties of Horſe.

Which we did, becauſe we were unwilling to engage our Army, where our Horſe could not do us Service for the Incloſures. The Enemy thereupon haſtened over their whole Army, and their King in the Van, if not Forlorn, with his own Lifeguard (as ſome Priſoners told us ſince) and preſſed hard upon our Rear, whereof Colonel Rich had the Guard, who wheeled off Parties, and charged them thrice as they came on; and the Lord cauſed the Enemy every time to fly before us.

We killed the Officer that commanded one of their Parties, and two or three Troopers; and ſome Countrymen ſince tell us, that twenty eight of theirs were ſlain in the ſeveral Skirmiſhes, and but four of ours, that I can hear of there, and at the Bridge.

As they fell on, they cried, Oh you Rogues, we will be with you, before your Cromwell comes; which made us think they would preſs to engage us with all Speed.

We are drawing up at Knockforth Moor to wait them; but ſince we hear they are marched a good part of the Night on London Road.

Lambert wrote thus to the Council.

Letters from Lambert.

I ſent to you before my Thoughts of the Untenableneſs of the Paſs at Warrington; ſince which the Enemy preſſing cloſe after us, came to Warrington Town, before we could get the Bridge broken.

The Enemy preſſed hard on us in the Lanes, but we came off well; I commanded the Rear-guard to charge, which they did, and routed the Enemy; and their own Men falling foul upon their other two Bodies routed them alſo.

We had the Purſuit of them at leaſt a Mile; we killed him who commanded the Party, and about eight more, and took ſix Priſoners, beſides divers wounded; this gave us time to ride two Miles without any more trouble, and to draw out a new Rear-guard of Colonel Rich's Regiment.

Which having done they again engaged us, and we charged them with the ſame Succeſs, killed and took the ſame Number, and afterwards marched quietly to Knockforth Heath, and loſt but one Man who was taken Priſoner purſuing a Trooper.

That we endeavoured to amuſe the Enemy, and to flank and front them, till the General come up to us; that we have 9000 Horſe, and between 3 or 4000 Foot to give them Battle, if they force us to engage.

That not one County in England appeared in the leaſt for the King, but generally they raiſed Forces

Anno 1651.

Forces againſt him; yet his Army marched without committing any outrage, or doing any injury to the Country.

The Parliament paſſed an act to impower the Militia of London, &c. to raiſe Foot.

That the Earl of Derby was landed but with 250 Foot and 60 Horſe unarmed; that the Enemy ſeemed to bend towards North-Wales.

The Council of State, during this Action, had almoſt hourly Meſſengers going out and returning from the ſeveral Forces, carrying advice and directions to them, and bringing to the Council an account of their Motions and Deſigns, and of the Enemy's Motions.

It could hardly be that any Affair of this nature could be managed with more Diligence, Courage and Prudence than this was; nor peradventure was there ever ſo great a Body of Men ſo well armed and provided got together in ſo ſhort a time as were now raiſed, and ſent away to join with the reſt of the Forces attending the King.

20. Letters that they ſuppoſed it would be eight days before the General could get up to the Enemy.

A Dutch Prize brought into Plymouth laden with Ammunition for the King, and richly gilded.

21. An Account of Forces raiſed in Salop and the neighbouring Countries, and breaking of Bridges, and endeavouring to divert the courſe of the Scots Army.

That the Governor of Stafford went to Harriſon with 700 Men.

That 4000 of the General's Foot march in their Shirts twenty Miles a day, and have their Clothes and Arms carry'd by the Country.

Mr. Love. 22. Mr. Love the Miniſter and Mr. Gibbons were beheaded at Tower-Hill according to the Sentence of the High Court of Juſtice.

The Under-keeper of Newgate having treated for the Eſcape of Mr. Gibbons, and received 100 l. in hand, and a Bond for 100 l. more; after this, diſcover'd it and ſecured Gibbons.

Letters from Lambert to the Council, with an intercepted Letter, the Copy whereof he had ſent to the General. The Letter intercepted was taken from a Scots Priſoner; it was from the King to Colonel Maſſey, for leaving out a Clauſe in the Letter from the Presbytery in the Army to the Miniſters of Lancaſhire for taking notice of former Malignancy of Perſons.

That the Scots began to plunder extremely, and many of them were weak.

23. Letters that the Scots were marched from Nantwich towards Newport, and ſteered for London. That the General was expected within one Day, and that the Scots were come to Litchfield.

Scots Motion. That 5000 Countrymen appear'd with Horſes at Coventry ready to ſerve the Parliament.

That Harriſon and Lambert were at Uttoxeter, and the Scots at Nantwich, their Foot diſcontented and ſick with their long Marches; and the King came to them with Cap in hand deſiring them to march a little further.

That Harriſon and Lambert had ſent ſome Forces to Worceſter to ſecure that Place, leſt the King ſhould make it a Quarter or Garriſon; and that Glouceſter was ſupply'd; that the next day they expected to join with the General.

That the Governor of Stafford made a Sally upon a Party of the Scots, and killed ſome of them, and gave an Alarm to the whole Army.

That an inſinuating and deluding Declaration was lately publiſhed by the King, that the Scots were marched to Whit-Church, the way to Wales. Auguſt.

That they hoped to hinder the Earl of Derby from raiſing any Forces in Lancaſhire, and if they make a Halt, as 'tis ſuppoſed they muſt, by reaſon of the wearineſs of their Infantry, the Major General hopes to give a good Account of that Buſineſs.

That Lieutenant General Monk had the Caſtle of Stirling ſurrender'd to him upon Articles, with all their Ordnance and Ammunition.

25. Letters that Colonel Pinchback had deſerted the King, and diſliked his way.

That the Highlanders in Stirling Caſtle beat a Parley without the Conſent of the Governor, being frighted with the Mortar-pieces, and threatned to throw the Officers over the Walls if they did hinder them, and ſaid they would fight for their King, but not for their Country's Geer. Stirling Caſtle.

That the Soldiers had broken open divers Trunks in the Caſtle, and carry'd out with them moſt of the beſt Geer: That in the Caſtle were 40 Pieces of Ordnance, 27 of them braſs Guns, and Proviſion for 500 Men for 12 Months, 50 Barrels of Beef, and about 5000 Arms.

That all the Records of Scotland, Chair and Cloth of State, the Sword and other rich Furniture of the Kings, the Earl of Mar's Coronet and Stirrups of Gold, with his Parliament Robes and Store of the Goods of the Country were in the Caſtle, which they carry'd away according to the Articles, little or nothing being imbezelled but what was by their own Men.

That Stirling was one of the ſtrongeſt and moſt magnificent Caſtles of Scotland, and a Paſs of the greateſt Conſequence.

That Colonel Okey took ſome in the Weſt of Scotland who were raiſing Forces there.

That the Scots came to Worceſter, where the Country Forces made a gallant Reſiſtance, and beat back the Enemy ſeveral times; but the Townſmen having laid down their Arms, and ſome of them ſhooting at the Parliament Soldiers out of the Windows, they removed their Ammunition, while thirty Men only reſiſted the Enemy, and beat them back, and then withdrew and left the Town to the Enemy, and came to Glouceſter. Scots

That the King ſent a Summons to Col. Mackworth Governor of Shrewsbury, inviting him to ſurrender that Garriſon to him; but the Governor return'd him a peremptory Denial.

That the King ſent alſo Letters to Sir Thomas Middleton to raiſe Forces for him in Montgomeryſhire, but he detained the Meſſenger Priſoner, and ſent up the Letter to the Parliament.

That Lieutenant General Fleetwood, and Colonel Desborough and other Officers met with Cromwell at Warwick.

Letters that Limerick was in great Straits; that the Iriſh increaſed in numbers; that they had ſurprized a Garriſon of the Parliament's, the Soldiers being aſleep, and ſtormed Fenagh, but were beaten off with great Loſs.

The trained Bands of London, Weſtminſter, &c. drew out into Tuttle-fields, in all about 14000; the Speaker and divers Members of the Parliament were there to ſee them.

26. The Parliament kept this a Day of Humiliation at St. Margaret's Church in Weſtminſter.

A Letter from the King to the City of London was burnt by the Hangman; and the Parliament's Declaration was publiſhed by beat of Drum and ſound of Trumpet, proclaiming all thoſe to be Traitors and Rebels that do or ſhall adhere to the King and his Party.

Letters

Anno 1696. Letters from Fleetwood.

Letters from Lieutenant General Fleetwood, that the Scots had left a Party in Worceſter, and had tranſported their Army over Severn, intending to ſecure the Paſſes, and invite their Friends to them, and to refreſh their wearied Army.

That they have ſummoned the Country to come in, to repair to the Works and Royal Fort at Worceſter.

Indeed it is a Mercy not to be ſlighted by us, that though this precious Cauſe have ſo many Enemies, yet ſo few adventure to come in to them.

That their Army is 12000 Horſe and Foot effective, and their Foot ſo much haraſſed by often and frequent Marches; that they did importune the King to take pity on them, who anſwered, That they ſhould ſuddenly have Refreſhment, gave them good words, and told them what Aſſiſtance he expected from his Friends.

That they have very few Engliſh Horſe among them, their Foot Highlanders; that Major General Maſſey marches with a Party to Glouceſter, in hopes that upon his Approach his old Friends will appear for him.

My Lord General came laſt Night to Warwick, the Foot will be there this Night, we ſhall either this Day or To-morrow march near the Enemy, and not give them the Liberty of ranging far; and though their Confidence be much in their Paſſes, yet I truſt we ſhall not find them and the Work ſo difficult as it ſeems at a diſtance both to you and us.

However you know hitherto the Lord hath carried us through the greateſt Straits before we have attained our deſired Iſſue, and if it be ſo now, it ſhall be the leſs ſtrange to us. I ſhall not further trouble you, ſave to ſubſcribe my ſelf,

SIR,

Banbury 25 Aug. 1651. Your moſt faithful and humble Servant,

Charles Fleetwood.

A Meſſenger from the Army brought an Account that the Lord General, the Lieutenant General, the Major General, the Lord Grey of Groby met at Warwick.

That Lieutenant General Fleetwood went from them to Banbury to his Forces; that the Lord General's Foot and Train were to be in Warwick; that the Enemy was fortifying Worceſter, where they proclaimed their King.

27. Letters that the Militia in Coventry and in all the Countries thereabouts, appeared very willingly and numerouſly againſt the Scots.

Of Hail fallen about Towceſter as big as Musket Bullets, which killed many Birds and broke many Windows; and ſuch Lightning for four Hours, as never was ſeen by any Man alive, which burnt a Rick of Wheat in the Field, and did a great deal of hurt to Trees and Gardens.

That the Lieutenant General's Foot was come up to Warwick, and the Forces marched to Stratford upon Avon; that the Enemy was fortifying Worceſter very faſt, and ſent Parties of Horſe to bring in Proviſions, but their Army moves not as yet.

That Cromwell drew his Army in the face of Worceſter, but they would not meet him with their Army; but there was ſome ſmall pickering, and ſhooting of Muskets behind the Hedges, but nothing conſiderable attempted.

Miniſters. 31. The Lord's-day, the Miniſters who were not of the rigid Presbyterian Judgment, gave Thanks in their Churches for the Succeſſes of the Parliament's Forces in Scotland, and againſt the Earl of Derby, according to the Parliament's Order for that purpoſe: And they likewiſe prayed to God for his Bleſſing upon the Parliament's Forces now near to an Engagement with the Enemy.

But ſome of the more rigid Perſons did not think fit to obſerve that Order, but neglected it, and had their private Meetings to pray to God to bleſs their Brethren of the Presbytery, and their Countrymen. Septemb.

September 1651.

September 1. Letters from Major General Lambert's Quarters.

That he marched the 28th of Auguſt in the Morning with a Party of Horſe and Dragoons from Eveſham towards Upton; about ten in the Morning he approached to the Bridge over the Severn which the Enemy had broke down, all but a Foot-Plank. The Dragoons got up upon the Bridge before the Enemy in the Town (who were about 2 or 300 Horſe and Dragoons) took the Alarm, while they fired upon the Bridge againſt the Enemy in the Town (being within their Sight and Shot) our Horſe partly forded, and partly ſwam over the River about Piſtol-ſhot from the Bridge; and the Dragoons advanced withal, and forthwith by the Major General's Order took poſſeſſion of the Church upon a little Hill near the Bridge-foot, being about eighteen. Worceſter

The Enemy drew up and came to the Church, and ſhot their Piſtols, and thruſt their Swords in at the Windows; but the Dragoons gallantly fired upon them, killed three or four of their Men, eight or nine of their Horſe, and took one Scot ſhot in the Arm, Maſſey's own Horſe being killed upon the place, and we are very ſtrongly informed Maſſey ſhot in the Arm.

By this time our Horſe were come up in a ſmall Party, at whoſe appearance the Enemy faced about without charging; our Men had the Purſuit, but not knowing but that the Enemy might be a great Body, forbore.

And Major General Lambert ſent for Lieutenant General Fleetwood with his whole Brigade, (where my Lord Grey is) to make good what they had gained, being four Miles behind.

He preſently mounted three hundred Foot behind Troopers, and haſtened to the Bridge, the reſt following.

Major General Lambert in the mean time uſing abundance of Diligence to make up the Bridge for the Party to march over, and receiving no Interruption from the Enemy, it was ſpeedily accompliſhed, ſo that we marched all over the Paſs at Night.

Two Guns came to us, and we had a hot but falſe Alarm that Night, Colonel Blundell commanded the Guard, and at Night took the Priſoner, whoſe Examination is incloſed.

In the Morning Colonel Blundell ſent out another good Party of Horſe and Dragoons, who marched three Miles toward the Enemy, and had Scouts a Mile and a half further, but diſcovered no Enemy; only being in the ſight of Worceſter, they diſcovered the General and his Forces near Worceſter, and his Guns playing upon the Town.

Major General Lambert, and Major General Deane, themſelves wrought in the making up of the Bridge; and as ſoon as it was done, the General ſent to them to come to him then near to Worceſter.

Major Mercer carried himſelf ſtoutly and gallantly in this Buſineſs, and indeed Maſſey brought up the Rear very ſtoutly; when they turned about, at leaſt forty Carabins were ſhot at him, within half Piſtol-ſhot, and he was for certain ſhot in the Hand and Thigh.

This was a ſeaſonable Mercy, and more advantageous than can well be expreſſed, Major Mercer

Anno 1651.

cer poſſeſt Maxfield Houſe betwixt Upton and Worceſter, the Enemy quitting it upon our taking the Paſs.

This Day the General came to viſit us at this Paſs, and was entertained with abundance of Joy, by extraordinary Shouting of each Regiment, Troop and Company, as he went to ſalute them.

That the Enemy lay in and near Worceſter on Herefordſhire ſide, the Lord General on this ſide, Lieutenant General Fleetwood on the other ſide at Upton; that the Enemy had burnt down the Suburbs of Worceſter to the Walls round about.

That their Grandees are much diſtracted, and think they were betrayed into this Place, many Sallies they have made but were beaten back; once they ſallied out with a thouſand upon three hundred of ours, but they were gallantly repulſed, and ſeven or eight of them killed with the Commander that led them.

On Saturday the Lord General was with the Lieutenant General viewing his Forces, and conſulting how to carry on the Work when the Boats were ready; that his Train was come to the Lieutenant General.

Scotland. From Scotland of Gatherings of the Scots, eſpecially Highlanders, who plundered the Country People, and then fled up to the Hills, where the Parliament Forces could not follow them.

That the Lieutenant General in Scotland marched with a conſiderable Party and ſome great Guns towards St. Johnſton, near which the Scots were making new Levies, but they were all diſperſed.

That the Lieutenant General ſent a Summons to the Town of Dundee and the Country about, to come and ſubmit to the Parliament of England; but they anſwered, That they were not ſatisfied in Conſcience to do what he required, but would give an Anſwer to Colonel Overton, who had before ſent to them the like Meſſage.

That the Miniſters of St. Johnſton refuſed to preach, unleſs they might pray for the King and their Army in England; the Governor told them, they might preach the Goſpel of Chriſt, but that would not ſatisfy them.

That in ſwimming over the River to come to Dundee, two or three Men and Horſes were drowned.

Among other Countries Oxfordſhire had raiſed a Regiment of Foot and two Troops of Horſe, to aſſiſt the Lord General before Worceſter, and had choſen my Son James to command both their Horſe and Foot; he was the Colonel, Mr. Robert Warcup Lieutenant Colonel, and the Major and Captains were moſt of them Oxfordſhire Gentlemen.

They wrote to my Son James to acquaint him herewith, and to deſire him to come into England to accept of this Command, to which the Committee had freely choſen him; he returned Thanks for the Honour his Countrymen had done him, accepted the Command, and promiſed to haſten into England to ſerve them.

But before he could come over from Ireland, the King with his Army being come into England, and all the new raiſed Forces being commanded to march to the Lord General towards Worceſter, his Lieutenant Colonel Warcup marched with his Regiment of Foot thither.

2. An Act paſſed to enable the Commiſſioners of the Militia, to raiſe Money for the preſent Service of the Commonwealth.

Worceſter. A Meſſenger from the head Quarters informed that the Lord General and Lieutenant General met and viewed their Forces, and conſulted about carrying on of the Work, and prepared to receive the Enemy if he ſhould engage, who came forth in a full Body, but would not come near to Cromwell, who thereupon ſent out a Party againſt them; upon whoſe Approach the Scots retreated into the City. Septemb.

That the Parliament Forces were got within half Musket-ſhot of the Enemy's Works, and their Cannon played daily into the City with good Execution.

That the Earl of Derby came wounded into Worceſter with about thirty Horſe and no more, of all his Levies in Lancaſhire; which ſo diſtracted the Townſmen, that they began to repent their deſerting of the Parliament.

That the King ſeeing his Hopes in the Earl of Derby fruſtrated, would have marched away with his Horſe; upon which his Foot were ready to mutiny, and ſaid, they ſhould both endure the ſame Fortune; the King and his Officers had much ado by fair Words to appeaſe them.

The Parliament voted, that whoſoever had the King's Declaration in their Hands, ſhould bring it in to the Council or to the Lord Mayor of London, or ſome Juſtice of Peace to be burnt by the Hangman; and thoſe who ſhould not bring it in, or ſhould diſperſe it, to be puniſhed according to Law. Vote.

Twelve Regiments of London, being 1400, muſtered in Finsbury Fields, the Speaker and divers Members of Parliament were there, and the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs of London; the King's Declaration was burnt by the Hangman at the head of every Regiment, who gave loud Shouts and Acclamations thereupon.

That Captain Eſcot, a Parliament-man of War, fetched two Prizes out of the Enemy's Harbour in Scotland and brought them into Leith, laden with Corn and other Commodities.

In one of them were divers intercepted Letters of Conſequence from the Lord Argyle, Cleveland, and others, to the Lord Jermyn, Captain Titus, the Earl of Newcaſtle, and others in Holland.

That the ſame Man of War fought three Hours with another Ship bound for the Enemy, laden with Wine, Arms, and Ammunition, and at length ſunk her, and all her Goods, except ten Hogſheads of Wine which were ſaved and a few of the Paſſengers; the reſt were drowned.

3. Letters that a Party of the Enemy's Horſe moved and pulled down two Bridges of the River Tearne in Herefordſhire, but being flanked by a Party of Lieutenant General Fleetwood's, ſuppoſing they intended to march away, they retreated.

That a Servant of Maſſey's came into Cromwell's Quarters and reported, that the Wants of the King's Army were very great; that his Maſter was ſhot in the Hand, and the Earl of Worceſter wounded in the Mouth

Major Mercer with a ſtrong Party was ſent to ſecure Bewdly Bridge.

From Scotland; that a Party of Colonel Alured's Men being ſent out to prevent their new Levies; ſeven Miles from Dundee they found old General Leven and ſeveral other great Lords, raiſing of Forces, whom they apprehended, and brought away Priſoners. C. Alured.

Letters that Scurlocke the famous Tory, took two ſmall Garriſons of the Parliament's in Ireland; that the Garriſons of Limerick and Galloway were much ſtraitned; that two thouſand ſallied out of Galloway upon Colonel Ruſſel, (who commanded there in Sir Charles Coot's Abſence) but were repulſed with the Loſs of two or three hundred Tory. Ireland.

Anno 1651.

hundred of their Men, and but ſix of Ruſſel's loſt.

That the Remnant with Clanrickard increaſed in Number, but were ſo full of Terror, that upon the Advance of Sir Charles Coot and Colonel Reynolds towards them, they quitted divers ſtrong Paſſes and a Caſtle of Conſequence; where the Soldiers had Quarter for Life, the Officers and protected People left to Mercy, and ſome of them hanged.

That the Enemy took Raghara Caſtle from the Parliament, ſurprizing moſt of their Men gathering Contribution in the Country, who were likewiſe cut off; that the Sickneſs is ſtill in thoſe Parts; that the Commiſſioners of Parliament appointed a Day of Humiliation.

Monk. 4. Letters from Scotland to the Speaker, that after the taking of Stirling Lieutenant General Monk marched to Dundee for the reducing of that Place, and ſummoned it; they in Anſwer to his Summons ſent him a Proclamation from the King, That whoſoever would lay down Arms and come in to them, ſhould have Mercy.

That this Impudence of theirs was occaſioned by the Promiſe of old Leſley Earl of Leven, with divers other Lords and Miniſters commiſſioned from the King to raiſe Forces, whereby he would relieve the Town.

Private Intelligence being given hereof, Colonel Alured with a good Party marched to the Place of their Rendezvous, and ſurprized old Leven and the Lord Chancellor, with divers other Lords, ſix or ſeven of their Miniſters, and three hundred more Perſons of Quality.

Letters from Worceſter.

Worceſter Fight. Sir, This Day hath been a glorious Day; this Day Twelvemonth was glorious at Dunbar; this Day hath been glorious before Worceſter; the Word was then The Lord of Hoſts, and ſo it was now, and indeed the Lord of Hoſts was wonderfully with us.

The ſame Signal we had then as now, which was to have no White about us, and indeed the Lord hath clothed us with white Garments, though to the Enemy they have been bloody.

In the Morning 3. Sept. Lieutenant General Fleetwood had Order to advance with his Brigade on the other ſide Severn, and all things being prepared for the making of a Bridge, and having cleared our Paſſages with a Forlorn, we laid a Bridge over Severn, and another over Tame.

Our Foot diſputed the Hedges with much Courage and Reſolution; the Fight began on the other ſide Severn, and our Foot from this ſide began it, they clearing the Way for the reſt to come over after them.

The right Wing of Lieutenant General Fleetwood's Forces came over the Bridge of Tame, while the left Wing diſputed the Bridge at Poyke, which Diſpute laſted a long time and was very hot; but the Lord gave our Men to gain Ground of the Enemy, till we had beaten them out of the Ground.

While this was doing, the Enemy rallying, made a very bold Sally out on this ſide of the Town, and came with great Bodies of Horſe and Foot, ſuppoſing moſt of our Army had been drawn out on the other ſide; they gave our Men a very hot Salute, and put them to a little Retreat and Diſorder.

But in a ſhort while the Lord gave us Victory on this ſide alſo; our Foot did very noble and gallant Service, and they diſputed with them, not only the Hedges, but followed them boldly to the very Mouth of their Cannon, which was planted on their Mountain-Works. Septemb.

At length we gained their Works, and planted their Guns againſt them in the Town, and we hear that ſome of our Horſe and Foot are in the North and Eaſt End of the Town; the Night came on ſo faſt that we could not purſue further.

Moſt of their Horſe eſcaped, but my Lord General diſpatched Major General Harriſon's Brigade after them; we cannot yet give an Account who are taken or ſlain, but we conceive the Number of their Slain far exceeds the Number of the Priſoners, but I gueſs the Number of the killed and taken to be about eight or ten thouſand.

To-morrow we ſhall be able to give you fuller relation.

Our Quartermaſter-General and Captain Jones is ſlain, and Mr. Howard Captain of the Life-guard is wounded, and Major General Lambert's Horſe was ſhot under him.

Yours to ſerve you,

Sept. 3. 1651. Robert Stapleton.

Other Letters came to the ſame Effect.

5. Letters of the Militia Troops riding up and down the Counties to prevent Inſurrections.

Of a Pinnace of the Earl of Derby's taken by one of the Parliament's Ships.

A Letter from General Cromwell to the Speaker of the Victory at Worceſter, but the Particulars in one following.

6. A more particular Letter from the Lord General Cromwell to the Parliament, thus,

Letters from Cromwell. I am not able yet to give you an exact Account of the great things the Lord hath done for this Commonwealth and for his People, and yet I am unwilling to be ſilent, but according to my Duty ſhall repreſent it to you as it comes to hand.

This Battle was fought with various Succeſs for ſome hours, but ſtill hopeful on your part, and in the end became an abſolute Victory, and ſo full a one as proved a total Defeat and Ruin of the Enemy's Army and Poſſeſſion of the Town, our Men entring at the Enemy's heels and fighting with them in the Streets with very great Courage took all their Baggage and Artillery.

What the ſlain are I can give you no Account, becauſe we have not taken an exact View, but they are very many and muſt needs be ſo, becauſe the Diſpute was long and very near at hand, and often at puſh of Pike, and from one defence to another.

There are about 6 or 7000 Priſoners taken here and many Officers and Noblemen of Quality.

Duke Hamilton, the Earl of Rothes, and divers other Noblemen, I hear the Earl of Lauderdale, many Officers of great Quality, and ſome that will be fit Subjects of your Juſtice. We have ſent very conſiderable Parties after the flying Enemy; I hear they have taken conſiderable numbers of Priſoners and are very cloſe in the Purſuit.

Indeed I hear the Country riſeth upon them every where, and I believe the Forces that lay through Providence at Bewdley and in Shropſhire and Staffordſhire, and thoſe with Colonel Lilburn, were in a condition as if this had been foreſeen to intercept what ſhould return.

A more particular Account than this will be prepared for you as we are able; I heard they had not many more than 1000 Horſe in their Body that fled, and I believe we have near 4000

Anno 1651. Forces following and interpoſing between them and home.

Their Army was about 16000 ſtrong, and fought ours on Worceſter ſide Severn, almoſt with their whole, whilſt we had engaged half our Army on the other ſide, but with Parties of theirs.

Indeed it was a ſtiff Buſineſs; yet I do not think we have loſt 200 Men; your new raiſed Forces did perform ſingular good Service, for which they deſerve a very high Eſtimation and Acknowledgement, as alſo for their willingneſs thereunto.

Foraſmuch as the ſame hath added ſo much to the Reputation of your Affairs they are all diſpatched home again, which I hope will be much for the eaſe and ſatisfaction of the Country, which is a great Fruit of the Succeſſes.

The Dimenſions of this Mercy are above my Thoughts, it is, for ought I know, a crowning Mercy, ſurely if it be not, ſuch a one we ſhall have, if this provoke thoſe that are concerned in it to Thankfulneſs, and the Parliament to do the Will of him who hath done his Will for it, and for the Nation; whoſe good Pleaſure is to eſtabliſh the Nation and the Change of the Government, by making the People ſo willing to the Defence thereof, and ſo ſignally to bleſs the Endeavours of your Servants in this late great Work.

I am bold humbly to beg, that all Thoughts may tend to the promoting of his Honour who hath wrought ſo great Salvation, and that the Fatneſs of theſe continued Mercies may not occaſion Pride and Wantonneſs as formerly the like hath done to a choſen People.

But that the Fear of the Lord, even for his Mercies may keep an Authority, and a People ſo proſpered and bleſſed, and witneſſed to, humble and faithful, that Juſtice and Righteouſneſs, Mercy and Truth, may flow from you as a thankful Return to our Glorious God; this ſhall be the Prayer of, Sir,

Your moſt humble and

Worceſter Sept. 4. 1651. obedient Servant,

O. Cromwell.

The Parliament ordered a Thankſgiving-day, and the Letters of the General to be read by the Miniſters.

From Major General Harriſon.

Harriſon. We are in Purſuit of the Enemy about 4000, we have taken more already of them, 1400 Horſe and Foot, many conſiderable Perſons among them, the Lord Cleveland and the Earl of Derby; they make no Reſiſtance when any of ours overtake them, but ride Poſt and in great confuſion, their King being the foremoſt.

Mr. Scot and Major Salleway returned from Worceſter, a particular Account they could not give, becauſe all things were then in confuſion; Lords, Knights, and Gentlemen, were then plucking out of holes by the Soldiers.

The common Priſoners they were driving to the Cathedral Church in Worceſter, and what with the dead Bodies of Men and the dead Horſes of the Enemy filling the Streets, there was ſuch a naſtineſs that a Man could hardly abide the Town: Yet the Lord General had his Quarters in Worceſter, the Walls whereof he hath ordered to be pulled down to the Ground, and the Ditches filled up.

The Lord Hamilton's Leg was broken, and he ſent to the General for a Chirurgeon to dreſs his Wounds; the Militia Forces behaved themſelves gallantly, 5000 out of Norfolk and Suffolk came in chearfully the ſame Night of the Fight, the Lord General diſmiſſed them all home. Septemb.

The Regiment of Surrey under Sir Richard Onſlow, and the Troop under Captain Walter St. John, marched hard to come up to the Engagement.

Priſoners taken, three Engliſh Earls, ſeven Scotch Lords, of Knights four, of Colonels, Lieutenant Colonels, Majors, Captains and other Officers about 640, the King's Standard, and 158 Colours taken, 10000 Priſoners, and above 2000 ſlain, the King's Coach and Horſes, with rich Goods, and all Arms Bag and Baggage taken.

On the Parliament's part, ſlain 100 Soldiers, and 300 wounded, Quarter-Maſter-General Moſely and Captain Jones ſlain, and no other Officers of note, Captain Howard and another Captain wounded.

8. A particular Account from Lieutenant General Fleetwood of the whole Action at Worceſter, of 3000 ſlain, 10000 taken Priſoners, with all their Arms, Bag and Baggage, the Flight and Purſuit of the Enemy, &c.

Letters from Scotland, That a Party of the Parliament's from Edinburgh, after an hour's Fight took Dumfries and the Country; who made oppoſition contrary to their Engagement ſmarted for it. Scotland.

That Lieutenant General Monk having received a ſcornful Anſwer to his Summons from the Governor of Dundee, he ſtormed the Town, and in a quarter of an hour became maſter of it. Dundee.

That Major General Lumſden and 600 of the Enemy were ſlain, and there was in the Town good ſtore of Arms and Ammunition, eleven Pieces of Ordnance and ſixty Sail of Ships in the Harbour.

From Cheſhire that 1000 of the King's Horſe paſſing through Sanebarch on a fair Day, the Townſmen and Countrymen as they paſſed by fell upon them with Clubs and Staves and the Poles of their Stalls, knocked them down, and took about 100 of them.

That the Country riſe upon the routed Scots, and kill and take many of them.

9. A Proclamation for the apprehending of the King, and a Promiſe of 1000*l.* to any that ſhall do it.

Vote for the diſbanding of Forces taken into pay upon the preſent Service.

Order for a Day of Thankſgiving throughout the Kingdom for the Succeſs at Worceſter, and an Act to be brought in for an annual Obſervation of the third Day of September.

Letters that Sir Philip Muſgrave and others raiſing Forces about Galloway, were taken and killed by a Party from Edinburgh, being in all about 500.

That Major General Maſſey came into Leiceſterſhire, but not being able to go further, by reaſon of his Wounds, wrote a Letter to the Counteſs of Stamford, and ſurrendred himſelf to the Lord Grey her Son. Maſſey.

That Sir Arthur Haſelrigge Governor of Newcaſtle, upon notice of the Defeat at Worceſter and the King's Eſcape Northwards, ſent to the Militia Forces, and to the Sheriffs of the four Northern Counties, to raiſe the Poſſe Comitatus, and to the Lieutenant General Monk and Forces in Scotland, to way-lay thoſe that fled; and went out himſelf with a Party for that purpoſe. Sir Arth. Haſelrigge.

The Parliament appointed four of their Members, whereof I was one, to go out of Town to meet the General upon his way from Worceſter to London,

Anno 1651.

London, and to congratulate from the Parliament the great Succeſſes that God had given him.

Ireland.

10. Letters from Ireland that the Iriſh lie up and down in ſmall Parties robbing Paſſengers by the Highway, but meet not in a Body, being divided in their Councils; that Limerick and Galloway hold out.

That Colonel Zanchey was ſent out with 2500 Foot, and twenty eight Troops of Horſe and Dragoons into Connaught, upon Intelligence of the Enemy's gathering to an Head there to engage them, or to ſtrengthen Sir Charles Coote about Galloway; but upon his marching over, the Enemy preſently diſperſed.

The four Members of Parliament appointed to go out of Town to meet the General, went this Day to Ailesbury.

11. Letters that a Party of the Parliament's Forces marched forty Miles a-day in purſuit of the Enemy, and at Lancaſter fell upon ſome of them, routed them, killed about twenty, and took 200 Priſoners.

That 200 more of them were taken about Shifnal in Shropſhire, the Earl of Derby, the Earl of Lauderdale, and divers others of Quality.

That Major General Harriſon had taken 2000 of the Scots in the Purſuit, and left but 1000 of them in a Body; that the Countries roſe upon them; that a Party of the Parliament's about Warrington fell unadviſedly on their Rear and loſt ſome Men.

Complaint that the Country are much burdened with the Priſoners, there being no Allowance for them; that five of them were put to death in Cheſhire, and five more appointed to be executed the next Day.

Dundee.

That at the taking of Dundee in Scotland were ſlain between 7 and 800 Scots, and taken fifty Sail of Ships, forty great Guns and Proviſions, and that with the Plunder of the Town the Soldiers were grown rich and gallant, a private Soldier hardly to be known from an Officer.

That the Lieutenant General ſent a Summons to Montroſe twenty Miles North from Dundee.

The four Members went from Ailesbury on the way the General was to come, and met him, and delivered their Meſſage to him from the Parliament.

The General received them with all kindneſs and reſpect, and after Salutations and Ceremonies paſſed he rode with them croſs the Fields, where Mr. Winwood's Hawks met us and the General, and many Officers went a little out of the way a Hawking, and came that Night to Ailesbury.

There we had much diſcourſe (and my Lord Chief Juſtice St. John more than all the reſt) with the General, and we ſupped together.

The General gave to each of us that were ſent to him a Horſe and two Scots Priſoners, for a Preſent and Token of his thankful Reception of the Parliament's Reſpect to him, in ſending us to meet and congratulate him.

The Horſe he gave me was a very handſome gallant young Nag of Sir John Fenwick's Breed. One of the Scots Priſoners he gave me ſeemed to be a Gentleman of good Quality, and he was of very good Parts; I freely gave him his Liberty and the other likewiſe, and gave them their Paſſes to go to their own Homes in Scotland.

Dundee.

12. Letters that at the ſtorming of Dundee divers of the Parliament's Horſemen went on foot with Sword and Piſtol to aſſiſt the Footmen, and got into the Town as ſoon as the other, and not above ten Men killed on the Parliament's Part, and 800 of the Enemy.

That it was the richeſt Town of the bigneſs in England or Scotland; that ſome of the Engliſh Soldiers got in the Storm 500 l. apiece. Septemb.

That the Inhabitants of St. Andrews ſent to Lieutenant General Monk, that they would ſubmit to his Summons and deliver up their Arms and Ammunition, which was accepted; but becauſe they refuſed former Offers, the Lieutenant General fined them 500 l. to the Soldiery.

Cromwell came to London in great Solemnity and Triumph, accompanied with the four Commiſſioners of Parliament, many chief Officers of the Army and others of Quality. Cromwell

There met him in the Fields the Speaker of Parliament, the Lord Preſident, and many Members of Parliament and of the Council of State, the Lord Mayor, Sheriffs and Aldermen of London, the Militia, and many thouſand others of Quality.

There was a great Guard of Soldiers, Horſe and Foot, and Multitudes of People in the Fields and in the Streets; he was entertained all the way as he paſſed to his Houſe with Vollies of great and ſmall Shot, and loud Acclamations and Shouts of the People.

He carried himſelf with great Affability, and ſeeming Humility, and in all his Diſcourſes about the Buſineſs of Worceſter would ſeldom mention any thing of himſelf, but of the Gallantry of the Officers and Soldiers, and gave (as was due) all the Glory of the Action unto God.

13. A Liſt ſent up to the Parliament of many Officers taken in Purſuit of the Scots near Manchester.

That Colonel Gerrard, who fell upon the Rear of the Scots Party in Cheſhire, was by them taken Priſoner, and carried four or five Miles; when coming to a Paſs, where they ſaw Clubmen ready to oppoſe them, two Majors, three Captains, and twelve Soldiers, deſired the Colonel that they might be his Priſoners, to avoid the Clubmen; which he did, and brought them Priſoners to Cheſter.

That the King was eſcaped, but the Earl of Montgomery, and about eighty more, divers of them Men of Quality, were brought Priſoners to Hallifax.

That Colonel Lilburn's Regiment took divers Officers of Quality, and 200 Soldiers, and ſent them Priſoners to York.

That the Yorkſhire Forces took Lieutenant General Leſley, Major General Middleton, many Officers, Gentlemen, and Soldiers.

That Duke Hamilton was dead.

The Scots Priſoners were conducted through the City, to the new Artillery-ground in Tuttlefields. Scots.

15. Letters that a Party under Colonel Okey took ſeveral Houſes in the Highlands by Storm; that the Scots threatned to hang all between ſixteen and ſixty that would not join with them, and executed ſome.

That eighty Women were killed at the ſtorming of Dundee, 100 Ships Prize in the Harbour.

That about 1000 Scots were brought Priſoners by the Country joining with the Parliament's Forces in Lancaſhire, and that of 2000 Horſe of the Enemy that fled from Worceſter few or none eſcaped.

16. Cromwell ſat in the Houſe, and the Speaker made a Speech to him, and gave him the Thanks of the Houſe for his great Services; Lieutenant General Fleetwood, and other Officers of the Army, had alſo the Thanks of the Houſe; Cromwell and moſt of the Members of Parliament, and divers Cromwell

Commanders

Anno 165. Commanders of the Army, were feaſted by the Lord Mayor in London.

The Parliament reſumed the Debate touching a New Repreſentative.

Debate of an Act of Oblivion and General Pardon, with ſome Expedients for ſatisfaction of Soldiery and the eaſe of the People.

Faſt-day. Order for a Faſt-day in the Houſe to ſeek God for Counſel and Aſſiſtance for improvement of his great Mercies, and for doing things moſt to his Glory, and the good of the Commonwealth.

Report to the Houſe from the Committee of the Army of all the Forces in England and Ireland, and the monthly Charge of them.

A Committee appointed to receive the Agent from the Commonwealth of Genoa.

Letters that the Moſs-Troopers killed four of the Parliament's Soldiers, and two Paſſengers, and indangered the Packet; and that the Forces in the North were on the Borders to meet with the flying Scots.

That the Commiſſioners of the Militia in Worceſterſhire were disbanding the Militia Forces, demoliſhing the Works, and ſecuring the Perſons and Eſtates of ſuch as adhered to the King.

17. The Scots Priſoners came to London, and among them, who were not diſcovered before, were the Lord Grandiſon, Colonel Blague, and others of Quality; the Parliament ordered the Trials of the Earl of Cleveland, Lauderdale, Derby, Mayor and Sheriffs of Worceſter, and others.

Scots. 18. Letters that Aberdeen was quitted by the Scots; that divers died of the ſpotted Fever at Leith, Colonel Hubbold and others; and that Lieutenant General Monk had been dangerouſly ſick.

The Parliament paſſed farther Inſtructions to the Council of State.

The Power of the Admiralty was placed in the Council of State.

They ordered, That the Council of State take care that no Meetings ſhould be in Scotland under any pretence of conſulting touching Matters of Government.

Order, That no Chairman ſhall continue in the Chair of any Committee above a Year, and this to extend to the Preſident of the Council of State.

Several Votes touching Compoſitions of Delinquents in Durham.

Ireland. Letters that Major General Dungan with 600 Horſe attempted Roſs in Ireland, and poſſeſſed the Town, and took Colonel Markham, and killed twelve ſick Men in their Beds, and took thirteen Priſoners, and plundered the Town, although Iriſh; upon the coming of Forces from Waterford they deſerted the Town.

That Zanchey and others fell upon them, killed 100 of them, and took fifty of them Priſoners.

That four or 500 of Limerick were dead of the Plague.

That the Lord Deputy had the Caſtle of Clare ſurrendred to him.

26. Letters that the Lord Belcarris had diſbanded his Forces in Scotland, and was come to his own Houſe to live privately there, and ſubmitted to the Parliament of England; that ſome of the Iſles of Orkney were upon ſubmiſſion to the Commonwealth of England.

Limerick ſurrendred 28. Letters of the particular Paſſages of the Siege of Limerick, and the Rendition of it after fifteen Months Siege; that it was a very ſtrong Town, the Grafts, Counterſcarfs, and Bulwarks without the Walls, the Flanking Towers upon them, and the Rampiers round the Iriſh Town very ſtrong and regular; an incredible quantity of Arms and Ammunition were delivered in there.

29. The Parliament approved the Articles of Limerick, gave 100*l.* to the Meſſenger that brought the News of the Surrender of it; and ordered, that the next Lord's-day Thanks ſhould be given to God for it.

An Act paſſed appointing Dr. Clark, Dr. Exton, and Dr. Stevens to be Judges of the Admiralty.

Scotland. Letters that the Scotch Parliament met in the Highlands, (where were preſent only the Lord Chancellor and two or three Lords, and a few Burgeſſes, who could not agree) but roſe without doing any thing.

That the Lord Chancellor, and other Lords of Scotland, were come in to Lieutenant General Monk; that ſeveral Recruits were come from England to the Army in Scotland.

Decemb.

December 1651.

December 1. Letters that the Parliament's Army in Ireland were ſettling of their Winter Quarters, and had no Enemy to encounter with, but a few Tories and ſtraggling Robbers.

That the Lord Deputy was gone to Galloway to ſummon that City.

That in Limerick there died forty and fifty a Day of the Plague.

2. Letters from the Lord Deputy to the Parliament and to the Council of State, of the Particulars of the Surrender of Limerick, and an Account of the great Guns, in all thirty four, and the Arms and Ammunition taken there, with a Copy of the Articles.

3. Letters that Lieutenant General Monk intended to have prevented the Meeting of the Parliament in the Highlands of Scotland, but could not by reaſon of the exceſſive Quantity of Rain which fell at that time. Scotland.

4. Letters that Captain Pen had taken ſome French Veſſels Prize, and that Captain Cox took a French Ship with thirty nine Guns, which made ſtout Reſiſtance, and one of the Parliament's Seamen loſt both his Legs with one Shot of a Cannon.

That two of Prince Rupert's Ships were ſunk, and himſelf hardly eſcaped drowning at Tercera Iſland.

That Captain Bartlet the notable Pirate of Jerſey, deſired to be received into Favour, and to do ſome Act to merit it from the Parliament.

That Captain Chriſtian a notable Seaman in King James's time, was releaſed from being a Priſoner in Peele Caſtle, in the Iſle of Man, where he had been long detained, and ill uſed by the Earl of Derby.

That the whole Revenue of the Iſle of Man was but 1500*l. per annum*; that the Counteſs of Derby was allowed 200*l.* in Plate to bear her Charges into England.

That three of Prince Rupert's Ships were caſt away near to Tercera Iſland with a great Tempeſt, one of them the Swallow, which carried fifty four Braſs Guns, ſprung a Leak about the Keel and was ſuddenly ſunk, and three hundred and forty Perſons in her drowned; the Prince, the Maſter, the Boatſwain, and three more in her were only ſaved.

5. Letters that divers Scotch Lords came in, and ſubmitted to the Parliament of England.

That the third Shot at Elizabeth Caſtle in Jerſey fell upon the old Church there, killed and wounded thirty Perſons, and endangered the Governor, Sir George Carteret and his Lady, and the chief of the Iſland; that this made ſo great an Impreſſion on the Lady Carteret, and the other Ladies, and ſome few Men who were afraid to be taken, that the next Night they embarked for France. Jerſey.

That this Shot ſpoiled great ſtore of Cider and other Victuals; that ſeveral of their Men made an Eſcape, and ſome being taken were forthwith tried and executed.

6. Letters that Major General Lambert, and Major General Deane were come to Edinburgh.

8. Letters that many of the Parliament's Soldiers in Ireland were ſick, and wanted Accommodations; that the Country groaned much at the Burden of Quartering, but the Lord Deputy was very tender to them.

Letters that the Lord Deputy went from Limerick to aſſiſt the Lieutenant General at the Ireland.

Anno 1651. Siege of Carrick Houlta; but meeting with the Lieutenant General at Inch Caſtle, after Conference together they both returned to Limerick.

Iretondies. That the Lord Deputy having taken cold in his Journey, the Weather being very tempeſtuous, and having no Accommodations he fell ſick, and Nov. 17. took Phyſick, the next Day was let Blood, but grew worſe and worſe every Day after till Nov. 26. and then died.

That the Commiſſioners appointed the Lieutenant General Ludlow to command the Forces in Ireland, till the Pleaſure of the Parliament ſhould be known, or the Lord Lieutenant give further Order; that his Body was to be carried over into England.

This Gentleman Colonel Ireton was a Perſon very active, induſtrious, and ſtiff in his ways and purpoſes; he was of good Abilities for Council as well as Action, and made much uſe of his Pen, and was very forward to reform the Proceedings in Law, wherein his having been bred a Lawyer was an Help to him.

He was ſtout in the Field, and wary and prudent in his Council, and exceedingly forward as to the Buſineſs of a Commonwealth; he married Cromwell's Daughter, who had a great Opinion of him; and no Man could prevail ſo much nor order him ſo far as Ireton could.

His Death ſtruck a great Sadneſs into Cromwell, and indeed it was a great Loſs to him, of ſo able and active, ſo faithful, and ſo near a Relation and Officer under him.

Letters that Clare Caſtle and Carrick Calta Caſtle, were ſurrender'd to Lieutenant General Ludlow, and Maſo Caſtle to Sir Charles Coot.

That two and twenty Men were excepted from the Benefit of the Articles for the Surrender of Limerick, of whom ſeven were executed; that Hugh O Neal the Governor was pardoned for Life.

9. Upon the News of the Death of the late Lord Deputy of Ireland Colonel Ireton, the Parliament (as a Teſtimony of their Affection for his many eminent Services) ordered a Bill to be brought in for ſettling 2000 l. per annum upon his Wife and Children, of the Lands of the Duke of Bucks, and his Corps to be brought to London to be honourably buried.

A Liſt of thirty four ſtrong Holds and Caſtles in Ireland taken in by the Parliament's Forces the laſt Summer.

A Copy ſent to the Parliament of the Earl of Clanrickard's Declaration or Summons, for an Aſſembly of the Rebels.

Preaching. Letters that two Troops of Colonel Whaley's Regiment quartered at Nottingham, had Meetings twice a Week, where their Officers, and ſome of their Soldiers did preach and pray; for which they were hated and curſed by the Presbyterians and their Preachers, who ſay, They are the greateſt Plague that ever did befal that Town.

That the Presbyterians got the Scots Priſoners there to be releaſed, and ſent them home with ſtore of Money and good Clothes; but they will give no Countenance nor Relief to any of the Parliament's Soldiers.

Cromwell 10. Upon the Defeat at Worceſter, Cromwell deſired a Meeting with divers Members of Parliament and ſome chief Officers of the Army at the Speaker's Houſe; and a great many being Conference there, he propoſed to them, That now the old King being dead, and his Son being defeated, he held it neceſſary to come to a Settlement of the Nation.

And in order thereunto, he had requeſted this Meeting, that they together might conſider and adviſe what was fit to be done, and to be preſented to the Parliament. Decemb.

Speaker. My Lord, This Company were very ready to attend your Excellency, and the Buſineſs you are pleaſed to propound to us, is very neceſſary to be conſidered. God hath given marvellous Succeſs to our Forces under your Command, and if we do not improve theſe Mercies to ſome Settlement, ſuch as may be to God's Honour and the Good of this Commonwealth, we ſhall be very much blame-worthy.

Harriſon. I think that which my Lord General hath propounded, is to adviſe as to a Settlement both of our Civil and Spiritual Liberties, and ſo that the Mercies which the Lord hath given in to us, may not be caſt away; how this may be done is the great Queſtion.

Whitelocke. It is a great Queſtion indeed, and not ſuddenly to be reſolved, yet it were pity that a Meeting of ſo many able and worthy Perſons as I ſee here, ſhould be fruitleſs.

I ſhould humbly offer in the firſt place, whether it be not requiſite to be underſtood in what way this Settlement is deſired, whether of an abſolute Republick, or with any Mixture of Monarchy.

Cromwell. My Lord Commiſſioner Whitelocke hath put us upon the right Point, and indeed it is my Meaning that we ſhould conſider whether a Republick, or a mixt Monarchical Government will be beſt to be ſettled; and if any thing Monarchical, than in whom that Power ſhall be placed.

Sir Thomas Widdrington. I think a mixt Monarchical Government will be moſt ſuitable to the Laws and People of this Nation; and if any Monarchical, I ſuppoſe we ſhall hold it moſt juſt to place that Power in one of the Sons of the late King.

Colonel Fleetwood. I think that the Queſtion, whether an abſolute Republick or a mixt Monarchy, be beſt to be ſettled in this Nation, will not be very eaſy to be determined.

Lord Chief Juſtice St. John. It will be found that the Government of this Nation, without ſomething of Monarchical Power, will be very difficult to be ſo ſettled, as not to ſhake the Foundation of our Laws and the Liberties of the People.

Speak. It will breed a ſtrange Confuſion to ſettle a Government of this Nation without ſomething of Monarchy.

Colonel Desborough. I beſeech you, my Lord, why may not this as well as other Nations, be governed in the way of a Republick?

Whitelocke. The Laws of England are ſo interwoven with the Power and Practice of Monarchy, that to ſettle a Government without ſomething of Monarchy in it, would make ſo great an Alteration in the Proceedings of our Law, that you have ſcarce time to rectify, nor can we well foreſee the Inconveniences which will ariſe thereby.

Colonel Whaley. I do not well underſtand Matters of Law, but it ſeems to me the beſt way, not to have any thing of Monarchical Power in the Settlement of our Government; and if we ſhould reſolve upon any, whom have we to pitch upon? The King's eldeſt Son hath been in Arms againſt us, and his ſecond Son likewiſe is our Enemy.

Sir Thomas Widdrington. But the late King's third Son the Duke of Glouceſter is ſtill among us, and too young to have been in Arms againſt us, or infected with the Principles of our Enemies.

Whitelocke. There may be a Day given for the King's eldeſt Son, or for the Duke of York his Brother to come into the Parliament, and upon ſuch Terms as ſhall be thought fit and agreeable both to our Civil and Spiritual Liberties, a Settlement may be made with them.

Cromwell. That will be a Buſineſs of more than ordinary Difficulty; but really I think, if it may be done

Anno 1651. done with Safety and Preſervation of our Rights, both as Engliſhmen and as Chriſtians, that a Settlement of ſomewhat with Monarchical Power in it, would be very effectual.

Much other Diſcourſe was by divers Gentlemen then preſent upon ſeveral Points, and too large to be here inſerted; generally the Soldiers were againſt any thing of Monarchy, though every one of them was a Monarch in his Regiment or Company.

The Lawyers were generally for a mixt Monarchical Government, and many were for the Duke of Glouceſter to be made King; but Cromwell ſtill put off that Debate, and came off to ſome other Point; and in Concluſion after a long Debate, the Company parted without coming to any Reſult at all, only Cromwell diſcovered by this Meeting the Inclinations of the Perſons that ſpake, for which he fiſhed, and made uſe of what he then diſcerned.

Petitions. 11. Several Petitions from divers Counties were directed to the General and his Officers and Army, acknowledging with Thankfulneſs their great Services, and ſetting forth the inſupportable Burdens upon the Country; for the Removal whereof they pray the General and his Officers and Army to be inſtrumental.

1. Burden is of Tithes, at firſt by a Cheat put upon us for Advancement of Popery, and maintaining ſuperſtitious and idle Perſons, whereby a third and fourth Part of our Eſtates is taken away from us, and the Fruit of our Labours by Prieſts and Impropriators.

And that in ſo cruel and tyrannical a Manner, as in former times before 2 Ed. 6. was never practiſed among Chriſtians, and at preſent we are not able to get competent Livelihood for our Children and Families, leaving them as Slaves intailed to Prieſts and Impropriators, who, as cruel Task-maſters, do torment us.

2. Burden is the managing and unlawful uſing of the Laws of the Land, through the Number, Pride, Subtlety, and Covetouſneſs of Lawyers, Attornies, and Clerks, whereby the poor Countrymen find the Cure worſe than the Malady.

3. Burden is the Exciſe.

4. The great Aſſeſſes upon the Nation.

The Petitioners humbly pray, That (as God hath not put the Sword into your Hand in vain) you will mediate for us to the Parliament, that the oppreſſed People may be eaſed and ſettled in Freedom, which they cannot be while Tithes continue, and Covetouſneſs executes the Law.

Scotland. 12. Letters of Proviſions arrived in Scotland for the Army, and of Huntley and the other Lords coming into the Protection of the Parliament of England upon Capitulation and Engagement of the Lords and Gentlemen, to disband all their Forces.

That the Engliſh Army have no Oppoſition in Scotland, and that only four Caſtles ſtand out againſt them in all Scotland.

13. Letters that the Marquiſs of Argyle excuſed his not coming to meet the Commiſſioners appointed by the Lieutenant General to treat with him, he being hindered by the Stone; but he promiſed to come in Perſon to the Lieutenant General.

That Aſhfield's Regiment was marched into Murray-land, which is the moſt fruitful Country in Scotland, and (the common Proverb is) hath fifteen Days more of Summer than any other Part of the Nation.

That three Engliſh Soldiers ſtraggling were killed near Aberdeen, and Colonel Overton ſent for the Gentlemen thereabouts, and told them, that if they did not find out the Murderers, he would fine the Country; whereupon they apprehended three of the Murderers, who were executed. Decemb.

One Bull, who raiſed Money from the Country upon pretence of being a Parliament Captain, was purſued and taken by the Country, and executed for it; the Country alſo brought in two Moſs-Troopers.

The Parliament order'd that no Beer or Ale ſhould be exciſable but what was brewed to be ſold again.

15. Letters that Colonel Overton hearing of ſome Incivility offer'd to Mr. Andrew Cant the Miniſter, the Colonel went over to him at his Houſe, and told him, he was ſorry that any Injury ſhould be offer'd to him, who he heard was a Friend to the Parliament of England.

Cant reply'd, That he was a lying Knave that told him ſo, for he neither regarded him nor his Party.

A Liſt was ſent up of the conſiderable Perſons that came in to the Parliament with the Marquiſs of Huntley.

The Admiralty of Amſterdam order'd, that all Ships of what Nation ſoever lying in the Texel and bound for England, be ſtaid till they hear out of England.

Mynheer Scaep, Catz, and Parre, Extraordinary Ambaſſadors from the States of the united Provinces, landed at Graveſend. Dutch Ambaſſadors.

The Swediſh Ambaſſador Mr. Spiering was upon his Voyage for England.

16. Order for a Commiſſion for the Lord St. John, Sir Henry Vane, junior, Fenwick, Salwey, Lambert, Deane, Monk, and Tichburne, to go Commiſſioners into Scotland.

Order that the Council of State take care for the Reception of the Ambaſſadors from the States.

The Act read for the Monthly Aſſeſſment, and 30000 l. per menſem abated.

Petition of the Juſtices of Peace, and of the Grand-Jury of Cheſhire, read and referred to a Committee; the like of the Officers of the Cheſhire Brigade.

Petition of the Maſters and Liverymen of the Companies of London, referred to the Council of State.

Vote that no Parties of Soldiers ſhall march without a Commiſſioned Officer to conduct them, nor be quartered in any private Houſes, but in Inns, &c. Votes.

Order that the Power of Committees ſhall be transferred to other Perſons not Members of Parliament, that the Members may attend the Houſe.

Letters that Scotland is like to come to ſettle quietly, if the Clergy be kept from having a Finger in the Settlement; for that no Nation that ever permitted the Clergy (more or leſs) to intermeddle could ever continue long in Peace, eſpecially England and Scotland; for there is in the generality of that Coat a rank Mixture of pragmatical Humour and ſpiritual Pride, that beſots them in moſt things.

17. The Dutch Ambaſſadors were brought to London by the Maſter of the Ceremonies, in the States Coaches, and other Lords Coaches to attend them; and they were received with much Honour, and conducted to Sir Abraham Williams's Houſe in Weſtminſter, provided by the Parliament for them. Dutch Ambaſſadors.

18. Letters that the hard Duty of the Soldiers in Jerſey had cauſed much Sickneſs among them, them, ſo that they brought themſelves to fourth Night Duty, both Officers and Soldiers, Horſe and Foot.

Anno 1651.

Jerſey.

That Elizabeth Caſtle held out obſtinately, and ſent many ſhot among the Parliament Soldiers, but had not killed one Man; that one by a Shot of a Mortar-piece, being in the Church in the Caſtle was blown out of the Door, having the Hair of his Head and Beard, and his Clothes ſinged, but his Body had no harm.

That Jermyn and Granville were ſent to Paris, to adviſe about ſelling of Jerſey to the French.

19. Letters that the Parliament Forces marched up into the Highlands, and the Lord Belcarris came in to them, and Articles of Capitulation were ſigned between him and Colonel Overton, and Colonel Lilburn; and they became maſters of Inverneſs, which was further than Julius Cæſar, or any Invader before, ever went in Scotland.

Scotland.

That ſome of the Marquiſs of Huntley's diſbanded Horſe got together under Captain Gordon, and took four of the Parliament's Dragoons and one Foot Soldier; they intended to murder them, but one of them eſcaping, they did not meddle with the reſt.

But drawing them forth upon a Hill, Gordon pulled out of his Pocket a Pſalm Book, and made the four remaining Priſoners to kneel down upon their Knees, and ſwear to be true to the King, and never to take Arms for the Parliament, and ſo let them go.

20. Letters of a Dutch Veſſel laden with French Wines come into Dundee Harbour ſeized as a Prize according to the late Act of Parliament; that ſeveral Engliſh Veſſels were come ſeaſonably thither with Proviſions.

An Act paſſed for continuing the Act formerly made touching the Elections of Officers, and Electors in London.

Dutch Ambaſſadors.

The States Ambaſſadors had their Audience in Parliament; the Houſe had rich Hangings, and Chairs, and Foot-clothes for the Ambaſſadors.

Between 10 and 11 a Clock the Houſe ſent three of their Members, the Earl of Salisbury, Sir John Danvers, and Sir Henry Mildmay, to accompany the Ambaſſadors from Sir Abraham Williams's Houſe where they lodged, to the Parliament.

About 11 a Clock the Ambaſſadors came, accompanied with thoſe Members, and attended by the Maſter of the Ceremonies, with about 30 Gentlemen, and 30 Lacquies of their own Retinue to the inner Court of Wards, where they repoſed a little time, and the Parliament ſent their Serjeant to bring them into the Houſe.

They came with all their Company into the Houſe, and when they came to the Bar, put off their Hats; and then the Speaker and all the Members of the Houſe ſtood up in their Places uncovered; and when they came to the Chairs, the Speaker deſired them to take their Places.

Being ſat down and covered, the Speaker and the Members at the ſame time ſat down and were covered; and after a little Pauſe one of the Ambaſſadors made his Oration to the Houſe in Latin; and the Speaker returned the uſual Anſwer, That he would acquaint the Houſe with what the Ambaſſador had ſaid.

When the Ambaſſadors were ſat down, all the Company (not Members) did withdraw, and the Doors of the Houſe were ſhut; after the Speech ended and the Speaker's Anſwer, the Ambaſſadors roſe from their Chairs, and put off their Hats, and ſaluting the Speaker and Members, who alſo ſtood up in their Places bare, and anſwered the Salutes, the Ambaſſadors went out of the Houſe again, attended as before to the inner Court of Wards, and from thence to their Lodgings; between which and the Parliament were placed a double Row of Pikes and Musqueteers, and a Troop of Horſe drawn up in the Palace-yard. Decemb.

22. Letters that Sir James Stuart had gotten a Commiſſion from Major General Lambert, to get himſelf to be choſen Provoſt of Edinburgh.

Letters of many Ships caſt away in the late Storms.

23. An Act paſſed for raiſing of 90000 l. a Month, for ſix Months, for pay of the Armies.

Order touching the Reception of the Publick Miniſter from the Queen of Sweden.

Ireton.

Letters from Briſtol, that upon Notice of the Ships coming into that Road with the Corps of the late Lord Deputy Ireton, the Mayor ſent out a Boat with a Tilt covered with Black, in which they brought the Corps unto the City, where a Hearſe of Velvet was provided to put over the Coffin.

The Mayor, Aldermen and Council in their Formalities, and the Governor and his Officers, with a multitude of the Inhabitants, attended the Body to the Caſtle; and the great Guns were fired from the Caſtle and the Fort.

That many of the chief Rebels in Ireland have made Offers to treat about their coming in to the Parliament, and that Galloway hath done ſo.

25. That the Houſe ſat this Day.

A Letter of Advice to the Parliament in theſe Words,

Advice

That if they would but grant an Act for all the Profit of the Tithes in all Counties in England and Wales, to be gathered into a Treaſury, and the one half thereof may be paid to a competent number of Godly Miniſters to preach the Goſpel in each County.

And all thoſe drunken, malignant, ſcandalous, delinquent, ignorant, whoring, and profane ones, that go under the Name of Miniſters, put to work for their livings.

That the Goſpel would be better propagated than now it is, and the Lord would be more glorified in the Land, and this preſent Government better eſtabliſhed.

Jerſey.

26. Letters that Elizabeth Caſtle was upon a Treaty, but broken off again; that this Caſtle is ſo ſeated in the Sea, that they can relieve or ſend away at Pleaſure; and when they can keep it no longer, they can leave only the bare Walls.

That ſince the Siege, they have made no Salley out of the Caſtle, though they took in with them 400 Foot and 100 Horſe; that they have ſent divers Veſſels with Women and Children and rich Goods over to St. Malos, and are daily ſending more, and cannot be prevented by reaſon of the Rocks, though the Parliament's Frigats lie there.

That ſix Hours the Tide floats round the Caſtle, and ſix Hours the Sand is bare, when three Priſoners ſtole away by Boat, and came to the Parliament's Forces, and informed them, that Cateret had ſent his beſt Horſes to St. Malos, and the poorer Horſes he had knocked on the Head, and had hanged a Man for endeavouring to come from them.

That few of the Inhabitants ſpeak any Engliſh, and moſt of their drink is Cider.

27. Letters of Recruits come to Scotland from England.

Letters

Anno 1651. Letters that the two Major Generals were gone their Progreſs, which they intended throughout Scotland, and Commiſſioners were appointed to ſettle Aſſeſſments for the Engliſh Army.

Elizabeth Caſtle. That Elizabeth Caſtle was ſurrender'd to the Parliament upon Articles, and in it 17 Braſs Pieces, 36 Iron Pieces, 450 Muſquets, 40 Swords, 100 Bandaliers, 64 Barrels of Powder, Match 5000, great Shot 1000, Muſquet Shot 100 weight, Lead four Ton, Iron two Ton.

Of Victuals, 60 Hogſheads of Biskets, ſix Quarters of Wheat, four Quarters of Barley, 20 Quarters of Malt, 36 Buſhels of Peaſe, 50 Sides of Pork, 60000 of poor John, three Hogſheads of French Barley, four Pipes of Spaniſh Wine, ten Hogſheads of French Wine, four Ton of Beer, 60 Quarters of Salt, ſix Hogſheads of Beef, with great ſtore of other Proviſions.

29. Letters that Cornet Caſtle in Guernſey Iſland was ſurrendred to the Parliament upon Articles: That in Elizabeth Caſtle were French, Germans, Danes, Switzers, Scotch, Dutch, Iriſh, Engliſh, and the Iſlanders 340; that it is the ſtrongeſt Caſtle in the Parliament's Poſſeſſion.

Lambert. 30. Letters that ſome Officers of the Army, by Commiſſion from Major General Lambert, did hear and determine Controverſies between Party and Party; wherewith the People were much ſatisfied for the quick diſpatch they received with full hearing.

That a Soldier for Whoredom was ſentenced by a Court Marſhal to be duck'd thrice at high Water, and to be whipped, and turned out of the Town; the Woman had the like Sentence.

That Captain Henry Green, by Letters of Marque from the Parliament, ſurprized a Ship bound for St. Malos, laden with Merchandize of the growth of France, and upon Frenchmens Account, and with it ſteered for Guernſey to ſecure his Prize, which he went on board in great Storms.

That a Man of War of the States of Holland, meeting with Captain Green boarded his Prize, and ſent all the Guernſey Men in her on drift in the Boat, where they muſt have periſhed, had not another Engliſh Ship by accident met them, and taken them up.

That the Holland Man of War did cruelly beat Captain Green and his Company, and ſaid he would throw them all over-board, as he had Commiſſion to do all Engliſh Ships ſent out with Letters of Marque; and what is ſince become of Captain Green, and the reſt of the Engliſh with him, is not yet known.

Law. The Parliament voted, That it be referred to Perſons out of the Houſe to take into Conſideration what Inconveniences there are in the Law, and how the Miſchiefs that grow from the Delays, the Chargeableneſs, and the Irregularities in the Proceedings of Law may be prevented, and the ſpeedieſt way to reform the ſame, and to preſent their Opinions to ſuch Committee as the Parliament ſhall appoint.

That a Committee be appointed to conſider, and preſent to the Houſe the Names of fit Perſons to be employed in this Work; and to receive from them ſuch things as ſhall be prepared by them in purſuance of the former Vote.

Petition. A Petition was preſented to the Parliament, in the Name of divers well-affected in the Northern Counties telling them,

That there remains yet to be done by them the taking away of Tithes, and Law (as it now ſtands) the moſt ancient Badges of Eccleſiaſtical and Civil Tyranny.

What elſe can be expected from ſuch Swarms of Lawyers, Attorneys, Sollicitors, and nouriſhed with the Bread of Oppreſſion, by long and tedious Suits.

What hope of Juſtice, when the greateſt Streſs of Mens Cauſes in all Courts, depends chiefly upon thoſe Men who are more ſenſible of the Money (which oft makes the Caſe) than of the Juſtice of the Cauſe, which they never or ſeldom take to heart.

A general and great Grievance, alſo Papal Impoſition of Tithes, fitter for a Levitical or Romiſh Prieſthood, than for Miniſters of the New Teſtament, to whom it proves either a Snare or Scandal, hardning of People, and hindring the Power and Succeſs of the Miniſters.

Eating out part of the Sweet and Benefit of other Mens Labours, ſecretly impoveriſhing and diſcouraging the Endeavour of the Husbandman.

They pray Eaſe of theſe Preſſures.

That we may have Juſtice given, not bought; Courts of Juſtice in all Counties, ſo eſtabliſhed and maintained at the publick Charge, that all Matters of meum and tuum, may be heard and determined free, yet by a written Law.

Clerks of all Courts and Committees may do their Duties without wicked Delays, or taking any thing above their ſet Penſion; that Juſtice every where, may come down like a mighty Stream, free for the pooreſt to reſort unto, too ſtrong for the richeſt to divert.

And that the Hand of the Labourer may be ſtrengthened to his Work, every Man reaping what he ſows, and not another.

Every one eating the Fruit of his own Vineyard, with Joy and Gladneſs of Heart, praiſing the Lord; and a more honourable Way of Maintenance ordered for the Miniſtry, which eaſily might be effected.

Anſwer. The Parliament told the Petitioners that ſome of the Particulars mentioned in their Petition, were already under the Conſideration of the Houſe, and gave the Petitioners Thanks for their good Affections.

Letters that Colonel Venables went out with a Party thirty Miles into the Enemy's Country in Ireland, and brought away four hundred Cows.

That Galloway was upon Overtures of a Treaty.

That the Sheriffs in Scotland ſent in their Deputies to the Engliſh Commiſſioners very ſlowly, who ordered, that they ſend in their Deputies by a Day; and ſent for Argyle to come in to them.

28. Letters that the Parliament's Forces landed in Orkney, were civilly entertained by the Inhabitants. March.

That the Declaration of the Commiſſioners of England, for nulling Kingly Power, and Prerogative Courts of Juſtice, was proclaimed at the Market-Croſs of Dundee, by beat of Drum and ſound of Trumpet; and the Magiſtrates of the Town attended all the time. Scotland.

March, 1651.

March 1. The Act of general Pardon and Oblivion was publiſhed, with the Exceptions and Qualifications therein.

Letters that the Meetings with the Engliſh Commiſſioners at Dalkeith, by the Deputies of the Shires, were at an End.

That ſome of the Deputies, eſpecially from the Boroughs, had two Commiſſions, one ſigned to pleaſe the Miniſters, that nothing be done prejudicial to the Covenant; the other full and ample, to do all things conducible for the ſettling of the Nation.

That ſeveral of the great ones are in much Perplexity what to do, and preſs their Tenants for a Year's Rent before-hand.

The Engliſh Commiſſioners made a further Declaration; that whereas the Deputies of Shires and Boroughs have conſented to the Propoſals made to them from the Parliament of England;

The Commiſſioners declare, That thoſe Shires and Boroughs are taken into the ſpecial Protection of the Parliament of England, and all Officers and Soldiers and others are commanded not to injure them, but they are to have all Favour and Encouragement in the Union with the Commonwealth of England.

The Deputy Governor publiſhed a Proclamation againſt Butchers engroſſing of Proviſions to ſell again in the Town of Leith.

2. An Act paſſed for the better Diſcovery of Thieves, and that the reſpective Sheriffs ſhall pay ten Pounds to every one that ſhall apprehend ſuch Thieves.

An Offence of Colonel Gill in Matter of doubling and reproaching the Parliament, was confeſſed by him, and his Offence pardoned.

Report from the Committee of the Credentials, and Oration of the Agent from the Hanſe Towns, and particular Credentials from the Town of Hamburgh to the ſame Perſon; the Houſe referred to the Council of State to treat with the Agent and report to the Houſe. Hanſe Towns.

Report of the Tranſactions of the Council with the Ambaſſador of the King of Spain.

3. The Committee for regulating the Law proceeded in that Buſineſs, and had great Debates, but little done in it.

4. The Committee appointed by the Council of State to treat with the Agent of the Hanſe Towns attended that Buſineſs; the Agent was a diſcreet ſober Perſon, and ſpake good Latin.

5. A Petition to the Committee for regulating the Law, for Fines upon Copyholds to be made certain, &c.

Letters that the Deputies of the Shires and Boroughs to the Parliament's Commiſſioners come in very uncertain.

A Placart of the States of the United Provinces, of their ſtopping Ships going out of their Harbours, and their Intentions to ſet forth a ſtrong Fleet the next Summer for their Fiſhing. Holland.

6. The Adventurers for Ireland made ſeveral Propoſitions to the Committee of Parliament, and Anno 1651. and assented to their Proceedings; and sent in two-pence in the Pound for incident Charges.

8. Advice touching the Settlement of Affairs in Ireland.

9. Papers from the Dutch Ambassadors.

Credentials to the Agent of the King of Denmark.

An Act for the better Settlement of the Affairs of the Admiralty and Navy.

Blake. General Blake continued General of the Seas for nine Months.

Kirk. 10. Letters that notwithstanding the Parliament's Declaration, yet the Kirk Judicatories proceed as formerly, and are very high against the Parliament of England and their Army; and Covenant. Mr. Cant persuades his Auditory to prepare for Sufferings, and presseth the Covenant; and that when Parents bring their Children to be baptized, he causeth them to engage to bring them up in the Covenant.

A Letter written to the Laird of Drum by Direction from the Presbytery of Aberdeen, That they were resolved to excommunicate him, unless he submit to them and rescind his Appeal.

He is exhorted to prevent this dreadful and direful Judgment.

That Presbytery is the Lord's Ordinance, 1 Tim. 4. 14.

That religious Swearing is not only lawful, but commanded and practised by God himself.

The Laird of Drum in his Answer to this Letter saith to the Moderator,

That he expected from their Severity to be excommunicated summarily for his Appeal to Colonel Overton.

That he can neither in point of Conscience nor Honour grant the Conditions they require; and yet that he doth humbly submit himself to God's Will.

That many others have spoken more freely than he against the usurped tyrannical Power and Supremacy of your Presbyterian Inquisition, to which they impute the Cause of all those Miseries which have befallen this Nation.

Yet none are persecuted by you but I and my Family, whereby it is notoriously known that the only Cause of your unparallel'd Severity against me, is my Appellation to Colonel Overton, wherein I imitated St. Paul, who did appeal from the Cruelty of the Pharisees to Cæsar a civil Judge and no Christian.

Which I have the more reason to do, seeing I found all your Questions to be matters of your own Invention, which yet you urge as necessary and Gospel Truths; and because all your Indifferences, Prayers, and Preachings have been, and are more for advancing your own Interest and Factions, to hinderance of a blessed Peace betwixt the two Nations, than for the advancement of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

I therefore upon these Principles do not at all fear that which ye call the dreadful Sentence of Excommunication.

For either ye are infallible in your Proceedings and Judgments, or ye are fallible; the first I think you will not arrogate to your selves, for that were the highest Point of Popery, albeit ye often practise in Deeds what ye deny in Words.

And your so frequent Changes will prove it to be evidently false.

If ye be fallible, I am not much afraid of your fallible Sentence, since I have so great reason to think ye actually err by urging me to swear,

That Presbyterian Government (as ye use it) is the only Government which Christ hath established in his Church.

So that of late ye have made it the third Mark of the true Kirk.

I acknowledge and receive those Words of our Saviour which ye act; Tell the Kirk, and if he will not hear the Kirk, let him be to thee as a Heathen. March.

But I do not approve your Interpretation and Application of them; for by this means ye assume unto your selves the Name of the whole Kirk, as if all others who did not approve your Discipline, were false Kirks, and thereby ye furnish too strong an Argument to the Papists against Luther and other Reformers, who would not hear, nor obey the Papistical Kirk, albeit there was no other Kirk nor Congregation then settled.

Therefore I care no more for your Excommunication than you care for the Popes.

And whereas ye pretend to shew that Presbyterian Government is established by the Word of God, citing 1 Tim. 4. 14.

May not I as justly cite to you the Chapter immediately going before, where the Apostle speaks of the Office and Duty of Bishops, and to give you two for one.

He resumes also the same Words in the first to Titus, which if they be taken according to the Words, may be as strong an Argument for the Bishops; but such Arguments as these are meer Logomachies, every one throwing the Word of God to their own Sense and Interest.

And because ye find the Word of Presbytery once in the Scripture, ye think ye have won the Point, which would make no more for you, than for the Papists, who call their Priests Presbyters, and the Congregation of their Presbytery.

Ye turn the Word Presbyter an Elder, and in your Presbytery (which should be turned Eldership, as it is in my own House-Bible printed Anno 1630. as being derived from Presbytery) ye admit only Ministers, whereas according to the Word they should be all Elders.

By which it may appear, that ye could only act that one place for your selves in the whole Word of God, which makes more against you than for you.

I do not question about Names, I doubt only about the thing ye intend by it, for I can see no Authority, neither in the Word of God, nor in the Practice of any Kirk as ye use it, nor in any approved Author; and if you did esteem so much of the Kirk as ye would have me do of your Presbytery, ye ought not to have given me such ensample by protesting against the late National Assembly, which is the supreme Representative Body of the Kirk in this Land.

Whereby your selves are liable to censure as Schismaticks, and therefore have no power to censure me.

I acknowledge God is honoured by Oaths, yet that must receive some limitation; they must be taken in Judgment, in Truth, and upon necessity.

Now I appeal to your own Consciences, whether you have observed these Conditions, in your urging so many dreadful Oaths upon this miserable Nation, these Years by-past; not only in the Covenant but in your solemn League with your Presbyterian Brethren of England: Whereby ye enforced all Men to swear, to establish by Arms that Tyranny there, as ye had done here; how many have ye enforced by threatning and execution of your Kirk-Censure? and the severity of the Civil Law falling upon them, depriving Men of their Estates to swear and subscribe to all ye enjoined, or could invent; albeit ye knew them to be of far contrary Judgment.

Wherein ye did imitate that feigned and false Mother, who before Solomon was contented to have the Child divided; by which her Hypocrisy was found out by that most wise Prince.

By which means ye have made this Nation guilty of horrible Perjury, besides many other heinous Sins.

I wish

Anno 1651.

I wiſh to God ye had remembred, or would yet remember, how much ye cried out againſt the Tyranny of Biſhops, when they were urging ſome of your number who were refractory to Epiſcopacy, that there ſhould be had ſome regard to tender Conſciences, which were of another Judgment.

But ſo ſoon as ye got the Power into your hands, neither Miniſter nor Laird, Man, Woman, nor Child was ſpared, nor no regard had unto them, whatever Quality or Condition they were of; all were forced not only to obey you, but (which is the greateſt Point of Tyranny over Mens Conſciences) they were made to ſwear that they thought as you would have them, albeit to your own Knowledge many thought the contrary.

But there was no regard, you would have it ſo, to ſatisfy your Ambition and crooked Ends.

Ye abhorred and deteſted the Title of Lords in the Biſhops, but ye have uſurped without the Name the Power of Popes, which was ſo much the more inconſequential in you, that profeſſing and ſhewing your ſelves ſo often fallible, yet ye exacted one infallible Obedience.

Wherein if you have obſerved Chriſt's Rule, which commands, That whatſoever we would that Men ſhould do unto us, we ſhould do the ſame to them, ye have reaſon to look to it; and if ye had reaſon to complain of the Biſhops, I, and many others, have had much more reaſon to complain of you, for your little Finger hath been heavier than all their Hands, as woful Experience hath ſhewed.

I wonder that ye ſhould write, that Presbyterian Government is eſtabliſhed by Law in England, and that which ye call Independency, is only tolerated and connived at; this is a matter of Fact well known, that Presbyterians have no Power of cenſuring, or forcing Men to ſwear, as ye do aſſume to your ſelves.

The Commonwealth of England will never permit ſuch a Tyranny to be eſtabliſhed, for that were to involve themſelves in a greater ſlavery of Conſcience, than they were in before under the Biſhops.

Both Reaſon and Experience plead againſt you in this matter, and therefore you muſt pardon me, if I do not give credit to your bare Relation without ſome more proof.

Whereas you accuſe me of Blaſphemy for calling your Summons Libels and Paſquils, &c. becauſe in them ye cited the Word of God, I wonder much of your raſhneſs in Judgment, that you cannot diſcern between your own Word and the Word of God. I do moſt humbly reverence and honour the one, and what Cenſure I made was only on your Words, which would involve me in Perjury by a forged Interpretation of God's Word, to ſwear that your Government, as ye uſe it, is only Jure Divino, which I can ſee no reaſon to believe.

If any Blaſphemous Heretick, ſuch as Arrius was, would cite the Word of God for his Blaſphemy, as he did, and write Books in defence of it, would any be guilty of Blaſphemy for calling ſuch Books (as they cited the Word of God) Paſquils and Libels? I ſuppoſe no Man of Judgment can be guilty of ſuch groſſneſs.

I do not apply this to you, of whom I have a charitable Opinion, only I intend to clear my ſelf of Blaſphemy, with which ye unjuſtly charge me.

I intreat you to abſtain from your Spells and Divinations ye have uſed againſt me, as a Ring-leader of Novelty, leſt theſe Judgments ye preſage will befall me, light heavy upon your ſelves; for the many falſe Gloſſes ye have put upon the Word of God, and your deceiving the poor and ignorant People, and enforcing others, who ſaw evidently your Deceits, and for your cruel and bloody Practices for maintaining your own private and perverſe Intereſts.

I do not take you for Prophets, or that you have any extraordinary Divine Revelations; the whole Country now ſee by experience, that many, if not all your bragging Prophecies, concerning the Proſperity and ſetting up of your Presbyterian Court, which you would have all Men to adore as an Idol, have proved very falſe. March.

So that it may juſtly be ſaid of you what God ſaith by the Prophet Hoſea, c. 8. againſt Samaria and its Idol Calf. The Calf of Samaria ſhall be broken in pieces, they have ſowed the Wind, and ſhall reap the Whirlwind, it hath no Stalk, the Bud ſhall yield no Meal, if ſo be it yield, the Stranger ſhall ſwallow it up.

Which Words, I think, agree now moſt evidently to you and your Calf, which you did equal to the Word of God, and preſſed it much more; and for which ye your ſelves ſpent only much Wind, albeit ye made others ſpend much Money, of which I have found as doleful Experience as any one in this Nation, but now by God's juſt Judgment ye have reaped a Whirlwind.

Your Proſperity did blind you, and it was ever the ſtrongeſt Argument ye uſed (except Pike and Muſquet) that did ſhut your Bowels againſt all Compaſſion. I pray God now your Eyes may be opened, and that ye may make good uſe of your Humiliation, leſt it be ſaid of you that ye are humbled but not humble.

I ſhall not wiſh that ye be uſed with the ſame meaſure of rigor wherewith ye have uſed others, which yet were juſt with God to render to you; for I think in that caſe we ſhould ſee few patient Sufferers, albeit we have found many great Profeſſors and zealous Perſecutors.

I do not deſire your perſecution; the greateſt evil I wiſh you, which indeed is good for your own Souls, that ye be not ſuffered to have any more Power to preſent others, who without your diſparagement, are as good Chriſtians as your ſelves, however you are pleaſed to have them all nick-named and eſteemed Papiſts or godleſs Perſons.

For the tenderneſs of the Presbytery's Good-will towards me, whereof you make mention in the end of your Letter I willingly accept it, for there is none who ſhall overcome me in kindneſs; but I wiſh ye had not uſed me ſo harſhly heretofore when ye had Power both of Kirk and State in your hands, which I truſt in God ye ſhall never have again, by enforcing my Servants, when all other means failed, to prove your vain Inquiſition, to reveal upon their Oaths, what they knew, ſaw, or heard within my Houſe, which was an incomparable Point of Severity, to give it the beſt word.

I ſuppoſe never was Spain's Inquiſition arrived to that height, I am ſure they could not go beyond it.

Now if ye will deſiſt from your rigorous Proceedings againſt me and my Family, I ſhall reſt contented for all that is paſt, for I intend to offend none but to defend my ſelf; but if you will yet proceed upon your former Principles, which I think in Conſcience ye cannot do, I am not reſolved to buy your Friendſhip at ſo dear a rate as the Perjury of my Soul.

Only I ſhall ſtrive to let my Innocence be known, whereby your Cruelty will the more appear and be abhorred.

And now to conclude, I wiſh you as a Friend to ſpend this Saturday next in better Meditations than you did the laſt, wherein you did put in practice your great Presbyterian Maxim borrowed from Michael, fortiter calumniari againſt him who is, Sir,

Yours, if you walk in the Truth,

Drum, Jan. 20. 1651.

A. Irving.

Anno 1651.

12. A Sutler for having two Wives was ſentenced by the Court-Marſhal to be whipped at the Gallows and turned out of the Army.

Scotland.

The Number of Shires in Scotland ſummoned by the Engliſh Commiſſioners to ſend in their Deputies were thirty one, the Number of Boroughs fifty ſix, Stewarties one. The Number of Shires whoſe Deputies have appeared and aſſented to the Union were eighteen, the Number of Boroughs who aſſented were twenty four.

Many others attended, but their Commiſſions being defective they were diſmiſſed, who yet petitioned for new Summons, and come in daily with Aſſents to the Union.

13. Letters to the Parliament from their Commiſſioners in Ireland, of the State of their Affairs there.

Ireland.

That the Earl of Clanrickard had ſent for a Treaty to come in to the Parliament, and to put a Period to the War there; Sir Charles Coote ſent Copies of the Earl's Letters to the Parliament; that the Town of Galloway with the Nobility and Clergy, requeſted the Earl of Clanrickard to ſend for a Treaty for the Settlement of the Nation.

That if a Treaty were not granted, and a ſafe Conduct for the Earl's Commiſſioners, they reſolve to ſtand upon their defence to the utmoſt hazard of their Lives.

The Letter was directed to the Commander in Chief of the Parliament's Forces in Ireland.

That Colonel Reynolds marched into Caterlogh, where the Enemy had all the Country thereabouts in their power, and three Garriſons.

That upon his coming near to them, they quitted two of the Garriſons, and the next Day ſurrender'd the third, a Place of great Importance, and the only Paſs over the Shanon in thoſe Parts.

That the Colonel had there 400 Barrels of Corn, and Forage for ſome Horſe which were in great Neceſſity; a Captain, a Lieutenant Colonel, and ſome other Officers, were taken Priſoners, and 30 of the Enemy ſlain by the Parliament's Forces.

That Sir Theophilus Jones had taken a Caſtle, put ſome Men to the Sword, and 13 Prieſts (being therein) having with them 2000*l.* in Money.

That Captain Clark in the Bay of Galloway had ſunk a great Dutch Ship laden with Proviſion, by forcing her upon the Rocks, and had taken another.

Barbadoes taken.

15. Letters that Sir George Aſcue had ſent in a third Summons to Barbadoes to ſubmit to the Parliament of England; which being refuſed, he formed a Regiment out of the Ships of 600 Men, whereof 170 were Scots.

The Enemy having Notice four Hours before of their coming, made Oppoſition at their landing with nine Companies of Foot, and three Troops of Horſe, who made a gallant Charge.

But the Parliament's Forces having received the Onſet, immediately fell in upon the Lord Willoughby's Forces, and wholly routed them, and their Commanders ran away, and left the Foot engaged; after which the Parliament's Forces purſued the Enemy to their Fort Royal, and ſtormed it, with the Loſs of nine Men, ſome hurt, as Colonel Morrice, his Major and others.

That 70 of the Enemy were killed, and 100 Priſoners taken, all their Ordnance diſmounted, and many of their Houſes burned by the Parliament's Forces, the Place being not tenable.

That ſoon after Sir George Aſcue ſent a Trumpet to the Lord Willoughby, which produced a Treaty; and Hoſtages being given, Articles were concluded between them, for the Surrender of Barbadoes, and the reſt of the Iſlands, to the Obedience of the Commonwealth of England. March.

That the Lord Willoughby, Colonel Walrond, and divers others, ſhould have Protection for Enjoyment of their Eſtates in England, or elſewhere. Lord Willoughby.

That the Inhabitants be protected from the Fury of the Sword, and to enjoy and live peaceably in their own Habitations, acting nothing prejudicial to the Parliament.

Sir George Aſcue was very courteous to my Lord Willoughby, and gave him very good Terms upon his Rendition of the Iſland, and did great Service in it for the Parliament.

That Colonel Pointz, Governor of St. Chriſtophers, ſeeing the Inhabitants of that Iſland generally well affected to the Parliament, quitted that Iſland and went to Virginia.

That Sir George Aſcue, by reaſon of Prince Rupert's being near him, his Fleet having watered and ballaſted, he ſailed towards Virginia to prevent Prince Rupert's getting that Place.

Ireland.

Letters from Lieutenant General Ludlow concerning the Earl of Clanrickard's Letters; that the Lord of Muskerry was in Treaty with the Lord Broghill, and Colonel Fitz-Patrick with Colonel Reynolds. That Colonel Axtel fell upon the Enemy, killed 100, took 300 Horſe; that Captain Gilbert took Lieutenant Colonel Farrel, a Major and two Captains; Major Meredith drove 30 of the Enemy into a Bog, and put them all to the Sword.

That Captain Cotterel flew another Captain, Major Bolton killed and took 25 of the Enemy with their Horſe, and endangered Scurlocke; Captain Preſton took a Captain Priſoner, and killed 16 of his Men; Captain Staffe fell upon the Enemy in Thomond and was ſhot, yet his Party routed the Enemy, and killed their two Officers.

That Colonel Reynolds took in the Collowe, and garriſoned a Fort there.

A Veſſel taken by Captain Church, attempting to go into Golloway with Corn, and bulged on a Rock; another Veſſel taken laden with Wheat for Galloway.

Three Companies of the Enemy at Dingel routed, and all their Arms taken.

That the Synodal Aſſembly at Edinburgh emitted a Declaration, for every one of their Congregation to ſubſcribe any thing tending to an Union, and deſire every one to do what is publickly commanded in reference to Quarter and Aſſeſſments.

That Sir James Stuart proteſted againſt the acting of the Engliſh Commiſſioners, and of the Scotch Deputies, and left Edinburgh.

That Argyle wrote to all of his Name (though ſome of thoſe Gentlemen lived 100 Miles from him) to attend him to Dunbarton to meet the Engliſh Commiſſioners; that he had a conſiderable part of the Highlands in League with him.

16. Sir Henry Vane, and another of the Parliament's Commiſſioners ſent into Scotland, returned, and gave an Account to the Parliament of their Commiſſioners Proceedings in Scotland; and what had paſſed between them and the Deputies of the Scots; that 20 Shires and 35 Boroughs had aſſented to the Union. Union.

A Petition preſented to the Houſe by divers Merchants and Seamen, Ship-Carpenters, &c.

An Act paſſed for impreſſing of Seamen.

Reports from the Committee appointed to receive the Daniſh publick Miniſter.

Daniſh Miniſter.

That he after a ſhort Preamble delivered his Letters of Credence from the King of Denmark his Maſter, with Papers of what he delivered by word of Mouth, which were read and referred to the Council of State, to hear the Daniſh Agent, and to treat with him.

Reports touching the Payment of ſmall Debts owing upon publick Faith, Votes upon it.

Reports and Orders upon them touching Compoſitions of Delinquents.

Scotland.

17. Letters that Major General Deane was gone to treat with the Marquiſs of Argyle; that the Country People followed their Husbandry; that the Cavaliers in Scotland were moſt forward to ſubmit to the Parliament of England.

19. Letters that Galloway was reported to be ſurrendred; that the Rebels wanted Victuals and were much divided, ſo that Colonel Venables had Intelligence from their Provincial Council.

20. Letters from Orkney of great Dangers paſſed by the Parliament's Forces in going thither, and the Inhabitants willingneſs to ſubmit to the Parliament of England.

That Deputies from more Counties came in daily to the Parliament's Commiſſioners in Scotland, and a fair Compliance was expected.

Union.

They deſire a general meeting to comply and carry on the General Union.

That the Provoſt of Edinburgh by the Parliament's Authority convened a Miniſter for preaching againſt the Union; but the Miniſter ſaid, That he knew better what to preach than the Provoſt could inſtruct him.

That the Iſles of Orkney and Shetland ſent their Deputies to the Engliſh Commiſſioners, and conſented to the Union.

That the Commiſſioners ordered a Citadel to be built at St. Johnſton, to hold 500 Men.

The Parliament ordered an Act to be brought in, to incorporate Scotland into one Commonwealth with England.

22. Letters that the Treaty was begun with Argyle, in Relation to his coming in; and for the good Effect thereof, the Presbytery daily meet, and faſt and pray; that the Hollanders called away their Ships from Scotland, and ſome of their Ships hung out the Scotch King's Colours.

That a conſiderable Fleet was come into Leith with Corn and other Proviſions very ſeaſonably, there being before ſome ſcarcity.

That many, formerly refractory, came in daily, and a face of Peace was upon the whole Nation; the bitterneſs of ſome Spirits began to aſſuage, and the Union with England deſired.

Several Perſons deſired the Enlargement of their Friends, the Scots who are Priſoners of War in England; and offered ſufficient Bail for their Appearance when required, and in the mean time to live peaceably, and ſubmit to the Parliament and to ſubſcribe the Engagement.

Ireland.

Letters of great Diviſions among the Iriſh Rebels, moſt of them being for a Treaty; but the Prieſts had enflamed the reſt, eſpecially thoſe of Galloway againſt it; that they have ſent ſeveral Expreſſes of Dean King into France for relief, elſe they cannot hold out any longer; that the Tories do much Michief.

To prevent which and other Inconveniences, the Parliament's Commiſſioners in Ireland publiſhed a Declaration, excepting ſeveral Places from the Protection of the Parliament, from which all Friends to the Parliament are to remove their Perſons, Families and Goods, and thoſe that remain in thoſe Places ſhall be taken as Enemies, ſlain and deſtroyed: And all Intelligence forbid with them, and that thoſe who ſhall remove from thoſe Places ſhall have other waſte Lands aſſigned them, and Places for their Habitations. March.

23. Dr. Walker and Dr. Turner, added to the Committee, for regulating the Law.

Order for an Act for Confiſcation of the Eſtates of ſeveral Perſons in Scotland, and for pardoning the reſt.

An additional Act paſſed for Sale of the Remainder of Fee-farm Rents.

Referred to the Council of State, to nominate Perſons for Adminiſtration of Juſtice in Scotland.

Order for an Act to prevent the Miſchiefs and Robberies upon the Borders, and for ſettling of the Fiſhing upon Tweed.

Report from the Committee for regulating the Law of an Act for Marriages to be made before Juſtices of the Peace.

That Committee preſented to the Committee of Parliament, to be reported to the Houſe, the Draughts of ſeveral Acts, viz. For taking away Fines upon Bills, Declarations and Original Writs. Bills.

Againſt Cuſtomary Oaths, of Fealty and Homage to Lords of Manors.

For taking away common Recoveries, and the unneceſſary Charge of Fines, and to paſs and charge Lands intailed, as Lands in Fee-Simple.

For aſcertaining arbitrary Fines upon deſcent, and alienation of Copyholds of Inheritance.

For the more ſpeedy Recovery of Rents.

Touching Pleaders and their Fees.

For the more ſpeedy regulating andeaſy diſcovery of Debts and Damages not exceeding four Pounds and under.

Union.

24. Letters that the new choſen Magiſtrates of Edinburgh, had ſubſcribed their Aſſents to the Union with England, and taken the ſame Oath that the Mayors of Cities and Towns in England do take; and that other Burghs in Scotland ſue for Licence upon the ſame Terms to chooſe new Magiſtrates.

That in many parts of Zealand the People are ſo mad againſt England, that it is dangerous for an Engliſhman to be among them; but in other Places they are in a better Temper.

25. I was deſired to attend the Buſineſs of the Council, relating to foreign Treaties, wherein my Attendance and Labour was not ſmall or eaſy.

26. Letters that Captain Pen came to Pendennis with his Squadron and five Prizes, which they had taken in the Straits.

Dutch. That the States of Holland ſent an Expreſs for all the Captains of their Men of War, forthwith to go down to their Ships, and to ſtay all Shipping going for England; which Embargo raiſeth Thoughts that they intended a War againſt England.

Union. 30. Reports to the Parliament, from the Commiſſioners for Scotland, of the Form of Conſent of the Deputies of the Shires and Boroughs of Scotland, to the Union with England into one Commonwealth, without a King or Houſe of Lords, and to live peaceably in the mean time with Submiſſion to the Authority of the Parliament of England.

With their Petition for New Magiſtrates to be choſen, of ſuch as conſent thereunto, and that Courſe may be taken with the Miniſters who preach againſt this Union.

April 1652.

Ireland. April 1. Letters of Recruits ſhipped for Ireland.

A Letter ſigned by Gerald Fitz-Gerald, in behalf of an Aſſembly of the Iriſh in the Province of Leinſter, to the Parliament's Commiſſioners for Ireland, ſetting forth the Calamities of War, and the Bleſſings of Peace, and the good Inclinations of the Commonwealth of England, to give reaſonable Conditions to thoſe that ſhall ſubmit to them.

He deſires a ſafe Conduct for the Inhabitants of the ſeveral Provinces, to meet and chooſe Commiſſioners to treat with and propound ſuch things to Commiſſioners to be appointed to meet with them, as may conduce to the Peace and Settlement of that Kingdom.

The Commiſſioners in Ireland publiſhed a Declaration in anſwer to this Letter,

That they cannot in Duty and Honour own that of Gerald Fitz-Gerald for an Authority, but declare,

That the Settlement of the Affairs of Ireland, doth of right belong to the Commonwealth of England, the Conſideration whereof is at preſent before them.

2. That in the Settlement thereof the Parliament will make Diſtinction of ſuch Perſons as have lived peaceably, or having been miſled, have ſince ſubmitted to their Authority, and thoſe who have acted, or abetted the Murders and Maſſacres of the Proteſtants, and ſuch as adhered to them the firſt Year of their Rebellion, or ſuch as continue in Hoſtility.

3. That to grant ſafe Conducts to ſuch as are in Hoſtility againſt the Parliament, to meet and conſult together, is an Act to which the Commiſſioners cannot in prudence conſent.

4. That for ſuch as are now in Arms and are willing to lay them down, and ſubmit to the Parliament upon timely Application to the Parliament's Miniſters here for particular Places and Perſons, ſuch moderate Terms will be conſented unto, as Men in their condition can in reaſon expect. April.

Lieutenant General Ludlow, by Advice with the Engliſh Commiſſioners and Field Officers of the Army, returned Anſwer to the Earl of Clanrickards Letters, Lieutenant General Ludlow.

That the Power of Ordering the Affairs of Ireland, belonged to the Parliament of England, who would not capitulate with thoſe in Arms againſt them; but upon Application of particular Perſons, ſuch Favour would be ſhewed to them, as they ſhould deſerve, and ſhould be reaſonable.

The Commiſſioners from the Rebels preſented another Paper to the Engliſh Commiſſioners, for a ſafe Conduct to ſuch as ſhould be appointed Commiſſioners by the Provinces to attend the Parliament.

To this the Parliament's Commiſſioners made Anſwer,

That they do not hold it fit or reaſonable to lay open their Power, but ſuch as ſhall ſubmit, they have ſufficient Power to receive them into the Parliament's Favour.

As to the granting Paſſes to any to go to the Parliament, they hold it not fit, to ſuch as contrary to their Duty are in Hoſtility againſt them.

2. Letters that the Bas Iſland was deliver'd up to the Parliament, and in it all the Kirk Records, which much troubled the Clergy.

An Act paſſed for continuing Serjeant Bradſhaw Chancellor of the Dutchy, and Bartholomew Hall Eſq; Attorney-General of the Dutchy.

3. An Act paſſed for removing Obſtructions in the Sale of the King's Lands, &c.

Letters, that the Dutch Ships had Orders, if they met any Engliſh Ships, to bring them into their Harbours.

5. Letters of a petty Riſing of ſome Highlanders; but their Commander, and a few of them being knock'd down, the reſt of them ran away.

That a bloody Moſs-Trooper was condemned to be hanged, and another by the Court-Marſhal to be ſhot to death for killing a Scotch Woman.

That ſome Engliſh Troopers being purſued by ſome Moſs-Troopers, who ſaid they were of Colonel Okey's Regiment and Friends, and ſo they put up their Arms again, and rode on together; when ſuddenly the Moſs-Troopers drew out their Piſtols and killed one of the Troopers, wounded another of them, and took the reſt Priſoners, and afterwards in cold Blood murder'd three of their Priſoners, and the fourth miraculouſly eſcaped.

6. Letters of the low Condition the Iriſh were brought unto; of John Fitz-Patrick an eminent Rebel admitted to his Submiſſion to the Parliament; and of Clanrickard's Letter for a national Treaty; of the good Service of Colonel Reynolds, and the other Officers and Soldiers in Ireland.

Of the Forces of the Parliament about Eniſcorſy, burning the Corn, and every Morning the Houſes they quarter'd in the Night before, killed and took many Iriſh; that he was an idle Soldier who had not a Veal, Lamb, Pig, Poultry, or all of them for his Supper; that they deſtroyed as much Proviſion as would have kept many Thouſands of the Iriſh till next Harveſt. Ireland.

That they took about 200 Garons, 300 Cows, and 400 Sheep and Goats, and many Horſemen.

Anno 1652.

Of the Dutch great Preparations for the Seas.

7. Letters that Blackneſs was not thought fit to be made a Garriſon; that Dunbarton Caſtle was one of the ſtrongeſt Holds in the three Kingdoms.

Kirk.

That Argyle in his Treaty with Major General Deane, and Major Salloway, inſiſted much for the Intereſt of the Kirk; that the Parliament's Forces fortify'd Aire, a ſtrong Town and convenient Harbour.

9. Letters of the Meetings of the Miniſters in Scotland, who do threaten Interdiction and Excommunication to Complyers with the Parliament; and that the Highlanders fall upon them.

Of an Eclipſe in Scotland, that put the Inhabitants to a great Aſtoniſhment.

10. Letters that the Dutch Ships in Pendennis Harbour haſted away from thence, fearing an Embargo by the Parliament.

Of ſix Engliſh Colliers taken by the Dutch, and reſcued again by an Engliſh Frigat.

That Colonel Cook was ſlain, and no other of his Party, in a Skirmiſh with the Rebels.

Ireland.

12. Letters from Colonel Zanchey to the Lord General, and read in Parliament, of all the Proceedings of his Party the Winter paſt; wherein among others he mentions the good Service of Captain Whitelocke.

That they killed above 400 of the Iriſh, and took 350, 110 whereof he ſent for Spain; that they took many hundreds of Cows and Garrons, and 300 Troops of Horſes, and a great quantity of Arms; that about 400 of them upon their Petition and Security given, have been received into the Parliament's Protection.

That they hanged above 50 of the Iriſh according to the Lord General's Orders; that he had not loſt above five Men, nor any Officers but Captain Ball. He mentions the Sollicitation of many of the Iriſh for a Treaty, wherein he was doubtful what to do, not knowing the mind of the Parliament therein towards thoſe bloody Rebels, but that to Colonel Odvery (who had been very civil and kind to the Engliſh who were Priſoners with him, and very juſt in performance of all his Engagements) he had granted a ſafe Conduct and Treaty to be confirmed or annulled as the Parliament ſhould think fit, and ſent a Copy of the Articles.

From Leith, that March 29 was ſo dark, that they could not ſee to write without a Candle, and it cauſed great Fear upon all Men.

April.

13. The Act read for incorporating Scotland into one Commonwealth and Free-ſtate with England, and for aboliſhing the kingly Office in Scotland, and committed.

Union.

A Letter aſſented unto to be ſent to the King of Denmark, and order'd to be ſent.

Anno 1652.

missioners and Sir Charles Coot in Ireland about that Buſineſs, referr'd to the Council of State.

Vote. Vote that the Committee for the Univerſities, and the Committee of Indemnity do ſit no more, and the Houſe appointed a Day to conſider of filling the Houſe with new Members.

Hamilton. 23. Letters that the Iſle of Arran in Scotland, and Duke Hamilton's Houſe, the Caſtle there, was upon Summons ſurrender'd to the Parliament's Forces; the Iſland is eight Miles over, and twenty four Miles in length, and thoſe in the Caſtle told the Commander of the Parliament's Forces, That if they could have kept the Caſtle againſt him, they would not have ſurrender'd it, but being they could not defend it, that he and his Soldiers were welcome to it.

That the Inhabitants ſhewed much diſtaſte to Argyle, but the civil Carriage of the Parliament's Soldiers did much engage them.

24. Letters of ſeveral Ships come into Leith Road, laden with Hay, and others with Merchandize; that the Ship which brought the Money for the Army loſt her Rudder at Yarmouth Road, and ſo was hinder'd of her Voyage.

That Argyle was preparing of Forces, and yet gave good words to the Engliſh Commiſſioners; that great Depredations were committed by the Highlanders; that the Chancellor ſought to come in, and the Miniſters in the Weſt were buſy in deſigning againſt England.

Sir Geo. Aſcue. Barbadoes. That Sir George Aſcue had taken in Barbadoes; the Letters from him with the Articles were read in Parliament, and the Meſſenger had 100 l. given him by the Houſe.

Debate upon regulating of the Prizes of Wine.

26. Letters that Sir George Aſcue landed but 200 at firſt under Captain Morris, who beat up one of the Enemy's Quarters, and took from them a little Fort with four Guns, which they ſpiked up without any Loſs.

That the Virginia Fleet came in thither, but very weak, and their Men ſick; yet Sir George took the Advantage of the Appearance of that Fleet, and ſent a new Summons to the Lord Willoughby.

But he refuſing to ſubmit, Sir George modelled 400 into a Regiment, and landed them at night, and were gallantly received by the Lord Willoughby's Men; but being night, they thought the Aſſailants more than they were, and the Seamen with great Shouts running upon the Enemy, they were ſo amazed, that after a ſhort diſpute they all ran away,

Leaving a Place, where in a manner they were intrenched, and four great Guns.

That this Party thus routed were 1200 Foot and a Troop of Horſe, and Sir George loſt but 7 or 8 Men, whereof one was Lieutenant Colonel Allen; of the Enemy were 100 ſlain, and 80 Priſoners.

The Succeſs was nothing towards the gaining of the whole Iſland, the Enemy having then about 5000 Horſe and Foot in Arms.

That the Virginia Fleet after ſeven days went away, and then Sir George upon Information of Colonel Muddiford's Intereſts in the Iſland, and Affections to the Parliament, Sir George ſent to him and engaged him and his Friends by giving them honourable Conditions, and he joined with Sir George, and made up 2000 Foot, and 100 Horſe.

That the People came in hourly to Sir George, who went on ſhore to Colonel Muddiford and his Company, and gave them full Satisfaction of his Commiſſion, and the Parliament's Intentions; whereupon they engaged to live and die with the Parliament. April.

That the Lord Willoughby underſtanding this, marched up to them with all the Force he could make; and one of Sir George's great Guns ſhot in at the Door, where the Lord Willoughby and his Council of War were, and carry'd away the Sentinel's Head.

That this Night the Enemy marched two miles from Sir George's Men, who had many Deſigns, but were hinder'd by the Rains for three or four days together; and before they could march, the Lord Willoughby ſent for a Treaty, and in regard his Strength was much the greater, and to avoid the Deſtruction of that goodly Iſland, which was already much waſted.

Sir George ſent his Commiſſioners to meet with the Lord Willoughby's Commiſſioners, and they agreed upon Articles; and it was ſurrender'd to the Parliament.

The truth was that the Lord Willoughby was forced to this Surrender, knowing that his Men would not ſtand to him but daily did deſert him; and moſt of the Iſlanders took in with Colonel Muddiford againſt my Lord.

Letters that the Frigat with the Money was ſafely arrived at Leith, narrowly eſcaping the Sands on which he ſtruck ſix times upon the Coaſt of Yarmouth, but was deliver'd by the breaking of her Rudder.

That Argyle and his Clans agreed to oppoſe the Parliament of England, and that he had gotten 10000 Arms. Scotland.

That the Kirk began to piece again, but the People were inclinable to the Union.

27. Votes touching the Payment of Debts upon publick Faith.

Referr'd to a Committee to conſider how the Poor may be ſet to work and relieved, and not ſuffer'd to beg; and to review all the Acts touching the Poor, and report the Defects of them, and to receive Propoſals for the City of London, or others touching the Poor.

An Act paſſed for the further Eaſe and Relief of poor Priſoners for Debt.

Letters that the Scots King was engaged in mediating a Peace between the King of France and the Princes, wherein he alledged his own Condition, and that of his Father; and the King of France thanked him for his good Intentions, and deſired him to make the like Propoſals to the Princes, France.

Which the Scots King did; but the King of France refuſed to put away the Cardinal, who offer'd to go away, rather than to be a Cauſe of continuing the Miſeries of France; that the Princes doubled their Guards, and the People were enraged againſt Cardinal Mazarine.

29. Letters of the reducing of Barbadoes to the ſame effect as before.

The Revolt of Colonel Muddiford, and Letters from my Lady Willoughby to my Lord her Husband, that the King's Forces were defeated at Worceſter, and of the Condition of the Affairs in England, with her Advice to him to ſubmit to the Parliament upon good Terms, and Letters to the ſame effect from other Friends, were the Cauſe of his Surrender of the Iſland. L. Willoughby.

30. Orders for Recruits from Pendennis Caſtle for Ireland, and ſix Weeks Pay for them before they were tranſported out of England.

Anno 1652.

May, 1652.

May 1. Letters that the Declaration of the Parliament of England for the Union of Scotland with England, and their ſending of Members to the Parliament of England, was proclaimed with great Solemnity at Edinburgh Croſs; but the Scots ſhewed no Rejoicing at it.

3. Letters juſtifying the Proceedings of the Commiſſioners for propagating the Goſpel in Wales, written by Mr. Vavaſour Power a Miniſter there.

4. Referr'd to the Committee to conſider how a competent Maintenance for godly Miniſters may be ſettled in lieu of Tithes.

Conde.

Argyle. Letters that Argyle did again ſollicit for ſome ſingular Act of Favour from the Parliament of England, but his ways were known.

That three Judges were come from England to adminiſter Juſtice to the Scots in Scotland.

5. That ſome Travellers upon Hounſlow Heath ſaw a ſtrange Apparition of the Sun about ſix a Clock in the Evening, &c.

6. Letters that the Miniſters of Scotland were as bitter as ever againſt the Intereſt of England.

Union. Of more Counties and Boroughs accepting the Union with England, and that Argyle had agreed to Terms to come in to the Parliament of England, but they were not publiſhed.

That the Lord Chief Juſtice St. John, Mr. Salloway, and Alderman Tichburne, the Parliament's Commiſſioners in Scotland, went away for England.

That the Deputies of Argyleſhire had conſented to the Union.

7. Letters that the Magiſtrates of Muſſelburgh had taken the Engagement of the Parliament of England.

Of a Pirate who took ſeveral Engliſh Veſſels to the Weſtward; of Recruits ſhipped from Pendennis for Ireland.

That the Iriſh begged for Conditions to come in to the Parliament, and ſome of them were admitted.

10. Letters of Preparations to reduce Dunnoter Caſtle in Scotland.

That the new Judges ſent into Scotland were very buſy in ſettling of new Judicatories there.

That Ireland was wholly reduced, and had no other Refuge but Bogs and Woods; that the Plague was much abated there.

That Commiſſary General Reynolds had gotten moſt of the Proviſions of the Rebels, and killed and taken many of them, and prevented their fortifying.

That he ſettled three conſiderable Garriſons upon Paſſes in King's County; took in the ſtrong Forts in thoſe Parts upon Quarter for Life only.

11. The Scots Commiſſioners returned, and were in the Parliament.

Repreſentatives. The Committee revived for ſetting a Period to this Parliament, and providing for future Repreſentatives. May.

12. Debate upon Qualifications of ſuch Perſons as ſhall be received into the Houſe as Members.

Captain Howe. Letters that Captain Howe, a young Gentleman, who had done gallant Service for the Parliament in Ireland, being aſſaulted in his Quarters by a Party of the Tories, he at the firſt Charge routed them; but then they came on again with a freſh Party, and routed Captain Howe's Party, who endeavour'd to make good his Soldiers Retreat; and himſelf charged three times, and came off well; but upon a fourth Charge he was unfortunately ſlain, and his Death was very much lamented.

13. A Duel between the Lord Chandois and Mr. Compton; and the Lord killed Mr. Compton.

14. The knocking of a Link near ſome Reeds ſet the Reeds on fire, and they fired a Houſe in Rotherhith, and two Ships lying near the Shore; and burnt them at low Water, when no Boats could come to help them, nor could they get Water.

Letters that the Inhabitants of Virginia willingly ſubmitted to the Government of the Parliament.

15. That the Army in Scotland was taking the Field.

17. Letters from the Commiſſioners in Ireland to the Parliament, giving an Account of the Affairs there, of the Proviſions received; and acknowledging the great care of the Parliament therein, and how they had diſpoſed thereof to the Forces.

Ireland. Of the Ports in Kerry fit for a foreign Enemy to land in; that Clanrickard and others were gone to Ulſter to join with Phelim O-Neale; that in ſome places the Enemy have made ſome Incurſions in ſmall Parties, and taken ſome Prey and Dragoon Horſes; but upon their Return, they being 250 Horſe and 500 Foot, they were met by Lieutenant Colonel Throckmorton with 140 Horſe and 400 Foot, who had no Pikes, and the Horſe at firſt made ſome Retreat.

But at length, after a ſharp Diſpute, the Engliſh Horſe routed the Iriſh, and killed 200 of them on the Place and in the Purſuit, and took and killed divers Officers, and had but twenty one killed, and 100 Soldiers wounded.

That the Iriſh Clergy have excommunicated Colonel Fitz-Patrick for ſubmitting to the Parliament; and the Laity publiſhed a Declaration againſt him, and all that joined with him; and ſome of his Party were cut off by the Iriſh, who alſo cut off the Ears of ſome whom they took Priſoners.

That Fitz-Patrick met with ſome of them.

That ſhipping was wanting to tranſport thoſe who are to go beyond Seas, 2000 of Fitz-Patrick's Party, 1000 of O-Dwyer's Party, and 4000 more.

Of many Applications made by divers chief Officers of the Iriſh to come in to the Parliament; and Commiſſioners were ſent with Inſtructions to give the ſame Terms, which Colonel Venables was authorized to give to thoſe in Ulſter.

That Sir Charles Coot explained the Articles of Galloway, which he yielded to, to prevent Charge to the Parliament, and to get the Poſſeſſion of that City.

Anno 1652.

18. Letters of one of the Parliament's Ships meeting with three Dutch Men of War and four Merchants, that the Dutch Admiral came under the Lee of the Parliament's Ship and kept his Flag up; whereupon the Engliſh Ship ſent a Boat to him to acquaint him that they had received Orders from their Admiral to cauſe thoſe Ships they met to take down their Flags; and preſently the Dutch Admiral took down his Flag, and ſaluted the Engliſh Ships with three Pieces of Ordnance, and the Engliſh did the like to him.

Fleet.

Dutch Flag

After the Admiral came the Vice-Admiral of the Dutch, but came to the Windward of the Engliſh contrary to the Cuſtom in the Narrow Seas, and ſaluted the Engliſh with thirteen Shot, but took not down their Top-Flag.

The Engliſh called to them to take it down but they refuſed, and ſtill ſailed on with it up; ſo the Engliſh filled their Sails and haſted all they could after the Dutch Vice-Admiral, and ordered their Boat to go on Board them to perſuade them to take down their Flag; but he inſtead of taking it then down, gave a croſs Anſwer, and ſaid he would not, and that we ſhould come and take it down our ſelves.

Upon Advice, the Engliſh addreſſed themſelves to prepare to fight the Dutch; but before they began, there was come up with them a little Frigat of twelve Guns, which did inſtantly let go three Guns at the Dutch Rear-Admiral for them to ſtrike, but he did not fire again, only pleaded, That they durſt not take down their Flag ſo long as their Vice-Admiral kept up his.

Whereupon that Frigat ſpake with their Admiral, and deſired to know the Reaſon why the Vice-Admiral did not ſubmit to take down his Flag; to whom the Admiral anſwered, That he thought they were drunk; the Captain of that Frigat propounded to the Admiral, whether he would ſide with him in his ſtanding out, and he anſwered No, but ſaid, as they brewed ſo they ſhould bake.

Hereupon the Engliſh Ship came up to the Vice-Admiral and gave him a Broad-ſide, and ſaluted him with eighteen Guns which did good Execution; and they likewiſe gave the Engliſh a Broad-ſide, and they had for a time a hot Diſpute, in which one of the Engliſh was hurt, and another wounded, and one ſlain; the Dutch had a greater Loſs.

But afterwards he took down the Flag, and the Admiral and other Veſſels gave the Engliſh ſuch loving Salutes, confeſſing their Faults; and ſo they parted good Friends.

19. The Houſe ſat in a Grand Committee for ſetting a Time for the ending of this Parliament, and about ſucceeding Parliaments.

Referred to the Council to take care about the Reception of the two Ambaſſadors come from the King of Denmark.

A Letter of Count D'Ognion to the Parliament was read.

Letters of a Body of the Iriſh together intending for the Lagan.

21. Letters of Recruits for Ireland.

Of a Ship fired by a Barrel of Powder, but her Men ſaved, and the mended and put to Sea again, and was taken by a Ship with Commiſſion from the King of Scots; another Ship taken by a French Pirate.

That Scurlocke the Arch-Tory met with ſome Engliſh, pretending a Treaty to come in; but upon the Advantage they had they fell upon the Engliſh and diſordered them; but another Party of Engliſh coming in, routed the Rebels, killed three hundred on the Place, and took many Priſoners. May.

Letters to the Parliament, that Van Trump the Dutch Admiral, ſailing in the Downs, with an unuſual Fleet of forty five Men of War, being demanded the Reaſon of it, ſaid, That he was forced in by tempeſtuous Weather, and had no Deſign to prejudice the Commonwealth of England. Van Trump.

This being held a ſlight Anſwer, and that there had been no ſtormy Weather, and his ſlight Behaviour towards the Engliſh confirmed a Jealouſy of him, and notice was given of it to the Council and to the Engliſh Admiral,

Who coming thither, ſaluted the Dutch Fleet with a ſingle Gun, to require them to ſtrike ſail to ours; they being within the Teritories of this Commonwealth, the Honour whereof our Navy was bound to maintain.

But they refuſing, a ſecond Gun was fired, and a third, which Van Trump anſwered with a Broad-ſide; by which our Admiral diſcerning their Intention to fight us, ſingled out himſelf from the reſt of the Fleet, to treat with Van Trump about that Point of Honour, and to endeavour to prevent the Effuſion of Blood and national Quarrel.

But when our Admiral came near Van Trump, he and the reſt of his Fleet, contrary to the Law of Nations coming upon a Treaty, fired upon our Admiral with many hundreds of Shots.

Yet the Admiral, though for ſome time he fought alone againſt the whole Dutch Fleet, after four Hours Fight he forced the Dutch to flight, the Darkneſs of the Night not permitting us to follow; we took two of their beſt Ships in the Fight, and one of them ſunk as we brought her to ſhore, and the Dutch Fleet fled Weſtward, and ours did caſt Anchor in the ſame Sea where they did fight.

We loſt fifteen Men, moſt of them out of the Admiral; the Loſs was great the Dutch had, but the Particulars not known; the Seamen from the Shore came out in little Boats to aſſiſt us.

22. A Guard was ſet upon the Dutch Ambaſſadors where they were at Chelſey; the Lieutenant General and many of his Officers went to Dover. Dutch Ambaſſadors.

24. Letters of the Particulars of the Fight at Sea betwixt the Engliſh and the Dutch; that the Engliſh Admiral had their Maſter and others wounded, and received a thouſand Shot, her Main-Maſt ſhot away, all her Rigging torn, ſhot between Wind and Water; that they took one of the Dutch of thirty ſix Guns and ſunk another. Fight in the Downs.

That General Blake was ſent to by Major Bourne and came in to the Fleet; and that Van Trump came near to our Fleet when there was no Occaſion for it; and coming near to General Blake's Ship, he ſhot two Guns at Van Trump's Flag, but without Ball, to call to him to ſtrike; and Trump ſhot on the averſe ſide of his Ship, which was in high Diſdain of the Engliſh.

That then Van Trump hung out a red Flag, which ſome of his Officers being Priſoners, confeſſed was their Signal, and gave a Broad-ſide to General Blake, and ſo the Fight began between them; and Major Bourne came in to the Engagement with eight Ships more, and the Fight continued four Hours.

That the next Morning the Dutch Fleet was four Leagues from ours towards the Coaſt of France;

Anno 1652. France; that General Blake had ſix of his Men ſlain, nine or ten deſperately wounded, twenty five more in danger, and the Maſter and one of his Mates; that he received ſeventy Shot in his Hull and Maſts, and in his Sails and Rigging without Number, and ſometimes alone fought with the whole Dutch Fleet.

Ireland. 25. Letters of an Agreement by Articles between the Officers of the Parliament's Forces, Lieutenant General Ludlow, &c. and the Earl of Weſtmeath, and the grand Tories and Forces in Munſter, Connaught and Lemſter, for their Submiſſion to the Parliament.

Of great Differences among the Kirk-men in Scotland.

26. The Ambaſſadors from the King of Denmark had Audience in Parliament.

The Lieutenant General Cromwell ſettled the Buſineſs of the Fleet at Dover and returned to London. General Blake's Fleet was re-inforced; the Dutch appeared with ſeventy Sail, but attempted nothing.

The Act read for continuing the monthly Aſſeſſment for the Armies.

A Committee appointed to conſider in what Places, and on what Days Markets are fit to be kept.

Referred to the Commiſſioners of the Great Seal to iſſue out a Commiſſion, and take care for the viſiting of the Charter-Houſe Hoſpital near Kingſton upon Hull.

Throckmorton. 27. Letters that Lieutenant Colonel Throckmorton met with Duncan, who had five hundred Foot and four hundred Horſe near Wexford, who had taken all the Cattle and left not a Cow to give Milk; that at the firſt Charge the Iriſh behaved themſelves gallantly, and put the Engliſh to ſome Diſorder; yet the Iriſh did not purſue till the Engliſh had rallied, and upon the ſecond Charge the Engliſh beat up the Iriſh to their Horſe, and ſo put them to the rout, killed two hundred of them, and many Officers Priſoners, and loſt but thirty Men, and ſixty wounded.

Judges Scotland. 28. Letters that the Judges at Edinburgh met and heard a good Sermon, and then ſat in the Court of Juſtice, and Mr. Smith one of them made a Speech to the Company, of the Occaſion of their Meeting, and to take off ſome Aſperſions caſt upon the Parliament by the Miniſters, as if they countenanced Hereſies and Blaſphemies.

Then they cauſed the Act of Parliament againſt Hereſies to be read, and concluded, That he doubted not but they ſhould give Satisfaction to the People of Scotland in the due Adminiſtration of Juſtice to them.

Then a Liſt of the Fees of Officers was read, and the Auditory ſeemed to be much contented.

Of Recruits ſhipped for Ireland, and of ſome Veſſels taken by Pirates.

29. Letters of the Arrival of Sir George Aſcue and his Fleet at Plymouth from Barbadoes, with thirty ſix Prizes.

31. Of the Siege of Dunotter Caſtle in Scotland, and the high Terms they ſtand upon; that the high Sheriffs appointed in Scotland went to execute their Offices.

Scotland. Of Differences among the Miniſters in Scotland, and the Lord Wareſton and others conſulting againſt the Aſſembly of the Kirk.

That the People queſtioned divers great Men before the new Judges, for former Injuries and Oppreſſions.

That Colonel Dungan wrote a civil Letter to Lieutenant Colonel Throckmorton; that ſince he was maſter of the Field, by a fair Diſpute, he deſired a civil Uſage of the Priſoners he had taken, and a Liſt of them, and whether Ranſoms would be taken for them. June.

June 1652.

June 1. Letters that the Holland Fleet was battered and made unfit for fight.

That the Plague was at Liverpool.

The Parliament ordered a Day of publick Humiliation and Faſt through England and Wales, and appointed a Committee to prepare a Declaration of the Grounds of the Faſt.

Order for preſerving Books and Manuſcripts at Wincheſter.

Report of a Paper from the Agent of the Queen of Sweden, and another from the Ambaſſador of the King of Demark read in the Houſe, and Anſwers to them agreed upon.

Votes, that nothing in the Articles of Rendition of Limerick ſhall extend to any Toleration of the Popiſh Religion.

2. Debate in Parliament how ſome Retrenchment may be made of the Charge of the Commonwealth with ſafety, and how the Revenue of the State may be improved; and a Committee was appointed to conſider thereof.

Vote that all annual Salaries to Officers for Sale of Lands of Biſhops, and of Deans and Chapters, be ſuſpended till further Order.

4. Letters that the Hollanders took into their Ships many Pick-axes, Spades, Shovels, and Barrows, which cauſed a ſuſpicion of their Intent to land.

That there was an Embargo put upon the Dutch Ships in Scotland.

That the Engliſh Forces before Dunotter Caſtle in Scotland playing with their Guns at it, and having ſhot in about twelve Granadoes, which broke into their great Tower and killed ſeven Men; thoſe in the Caſtle notwithſtanding their high Terms before, yielded upon Conditions, only to march out half a Mile with their Arms and then to lay them down. Dunotter Caſtle.

That this was the laſt Garriſon in Scotland unreduced.

That the Fleet under General Blake was much increaſed in Ships and Men; that he with his Officers and Seamen kept ſeveral Days of Humiliation in the Fleet. Blake.

Of another Engagement between Captain Moulton with ſome Ships againſt ſome of the Dutch who were beaten by the Engliſh.

5. Letters that Prince Rupert took an Engliſh Merchant's Ship with thirty nine Guns, and made her his Rear-Admiral, and put in her French and Dutch Mariners, and uſed the Engliſh Mariners very hardly, who conſulted among themſelves, and one of them a Carpenter took his Advantage to ſingle out the Captain, and the reſt took to ſingle out an outlandiſh Mariner to each of them.

And thus they ſubdued and brought away the Veſſel into Plymouth, with the Captain and Officers of the Ship's Priſoners.

The Parliament order a Reward to theſe Mariners, and an Act to be brought in to encourage others upon the like occaſion.

That Prince Rupert met with a Merchant from Guinea richly laden.

7. Letters that great Riches were in Dunotter Caſtle, the Sword, Scepter, and Crown, but they could not be found.

Divers,

Anno 1652. Divers Highlanders ſubmitted to the Parliament.

The Sails of the Dutch Ships were brought on Shore at Leith.

A Petition to the Parliament from the Owners and Commoners in Lincolnſhire Fens, for ſatisfaction for Injuries formerly done to them.

An additional Act paſſed for ſale of Fee-farm Rents.

9. The Parliament kept a ſolemn Day of Humiliation.

10. Order for the Reception of Mynheer Paw, Ambaſſador Extraordinary from the States General.

A Narrative was publiſhed of the late Engagement between the Engliſh Fleet and Van Trump.

Dutch Paper. The former publick Miniſter of the States preſented a Paper to the Council of State;

Taking God, the Searcher of Mans Heart, to witneſs, that the moſt unhappy Fight of the Ships of both Commonwealths, did happen againſt the Knowledge and Will of the Lords States General of the United Netherlands, and that with grief and aſtoniſhment they received the fatal News of that unhappy raſh Action.

That they did conſult and endeavour to find out what remedy chiefly may be applied, to mitigate that raw and bloody Wound; to which end they have written to gather a ſolemn Meeting or Parliament of all the Provinces, whereby they do not doubt but an help will be found out for thoſe Troubles, and a better hope of our Treaty in hand; which thing being now moſt earneſtly agitated by our Lords, for the common good of both Nations, to ſhun that deteſtable ſhedding of Chriſtian Blood, (ſo much deſired, and would be dearly bought by the common Enemies of both Nations, and of the Reformed Religion:) We again do crave this moſt Honourable Council, and beſeech you by the Pledges both of the common Religion and Liberty, mean while to ſuffer nothing to be done out of too much heat, that afterwards may prove neither revocable nor repairable, by too late idle Vows and Wiſhes; but rather that you would let us receive a kind Anſwer without farther delay upon our laſt Requeſt.

Signed,

J. Catz, G. Schaep, Vanderpeere.

Anſwer. To this the Parliament gave this Anſwer.

That calling to mind with what continued Demonſtration of Friendſhip, and ſincere Affections, from the very beginning of their inteſtine Troubles, they have proceeded towards their Neighbours of the United Provinces, they

Do find themſelves much ſurprized with the unſuitable Returns that have been made thereunto, and eſpecially at the Acts of Hoſtility lately committed in the very Roads of England, upon the Fleet of this Commonwealth; the matter of Fact whereof ſtated in clear Proofs, is hereunto annexed.

Upon ſerious conſideration of all, and of the ſeveral Papers delivered in by your Excellencies to the Council of State, the Parliament thinks fit to give this Anſwer.

As they would be willing to make a charitable Conſtruction of the Expreſſions uſed in the ſaid Papers, endeavouring to repreſent the late Engagements of the Fleets to have happened without the knowledge, and againſt the mind of your Superiors; ſo when they conſider how diſagreeable to that Profeſſion the Reſolutions and Actions of your State, and of their Miniſters at Sea, have been, even in the midſt of a Treaty offered by themſelves, and managed here by your Excellencies.

The Extraordinary Preparations of 150 Sail of Men of War, without any viſible occaſion, but what doth now appear a juſt ground of Jealouſy in your own Judgments; when your Lordſhips pretended to excuſe it, and the Inſtructions themſelves, given by your ſaid Superiors to their Commanders at Sea they do find too much cauſe to believe, that the Lords the States General of the United Provinces have an intention by force to uſurp the known Rights of England in the Seas, to deſtroy the Fleets that are, under God, their Walls and Bulwarks, and thereby to expoſe this Commonwealth to Invaſion at their pleaſure, as by this late Action they have attempted to do. June.

Whereupon the Parliament conceive they are obliged to endeavour, with God's aſſiſtance, as they ſhall have opportunity, to ſeek reparations of the wrong already ſuffered, and ſecurity that the like be not attempted for the future.

Nevertheleſs with this mind and deſire, that all differences between the two Nations may (if poſſible) be peaceably and friendly compoſed, as God by his Providence ſhall open a way thereunto, and Circumſtances ſhall be conducing, to render ſuch Endeavours leſs dilatory, and more effectual, than thoſe of this kind hitherto yet have been.

11. Letters that the Engliſh Commiſſioners in Scotland publiſhed two Acts for the regulating of the Miniſters, and of the Univerſities in Scotland, and for the Proceedings in Courts of Juſtice. Scotland.

12. The Dutch Ambaſſador Mynheer Paw had Audience in Parliament, with the uſual Solemnities, and was to make his farther Addreſſes to the Council of State, with the other Ambaſſadors from Holland. Dutch Ambaſſador.

Letters from General Blake of another Fight at Sea, between Captain Peacock and Captain Taylor, with two of the Parliament's Frigats, and two of the Hollanders, upon the Coaſt of Flanders, upon the ſame account as the former, for refuſing to ſtrike their Top-Sail; that after a ſhort diſpute, the Engliſh boarded one of the Holland Ships, and took all her Officers and Mariners; but ſhe was ſo torn in the Fight that ſhe preſently ſunk, though all means were uſed to ſave her, and the other Dutch Ship ran her ſelf upon the Sands to avoid being taken. Fight at Sea.

The Parliament ſent a Letter of Thanks to Captain Peacock and Captain Taylor for their gallant Services.

13. Letters from General Blake, (which occaſioned the Council of State to ſit this Day) that he having notice of a Fleet of Hollanders near the Downs, he ſent out a Squadron of Men of War to diſcover them, and they were twenty ſix Sail of Merchant-men laden, with three Men of War for their Convoys; all which the Squadron brought in to General Blake, who had before ſtayed ten more of the Holland Ships. Blake.

14. The Commiſſioners in Scotland ſat for regulating the Miniſters.

A Liſt ſent up to the Parliament of the Dutch Men of War and Merchants Ships taken by the Parliament's Fleet, being in all taken thirty ſix.

15. Letters that the Connaught and Ulſter Rebels being joined, took Balliſhanon in Ireland by ſurrender; but the ſame day the Lord Preſident of Connaught marched on the other ſide of the River, which cauſed the Rebels to go away, leaving a Regiment in Balliſhanon, who ſurrender'd the Town to the Preſident of Connaught as ſoon as he came before it. Ireland.

That they marched over inacceſſible Bogs; many of them took protection and came in; that they had but eight Barrels of Powder left; that they loſt thirty Commiſſioned Officers at Balliſhanon,

Anno 1652. ſhanon, and 300 ſlain, and 1200 more are ſince come from them.

That the Caſtle of Drumah was rendred to the Lord Brogbill, and a ſtrong Party was ſent into Kerry againſt Roſs.

That the Rebels took another Caſtle, and were purſued; that many ſubmitted to the Parliament, to whom their Commiſſioners gave an account of their Affairs, and pray the ſpeeding of Recruits.

Vote. 16. Vote, That the Act of Parliament conſtituting Cromwell. Oliver Cromwell Captain General, and Commander in Chief of the Armies and Forces raiſed by their Authority within England, ſhall extend to the Forces in Ireland, as if Ireland had been therein particularly named.

That the Lord General be required to appoint ſuch Perſon as he ſhall think fit to command the Forces in Ireland, and to commiſſionate him accordingly.

Referred to the Council of State to conſider what Commiſſions and Powers are fit to be given to ſuch as ſhall have the Civil Power in Ireland, and the Names of fit Perſons to be Commiſſioners there for that purpoſe, for the Parliament's Approbation.

The Military Commiſſions in Ireland to continue in force, till the Lord General ſhall give farther Order.

This Vote of putting the Command of the Forces in Ireland into the Lord General Cromwell, was contrived by his Friends, and to ſatisfy his Lambert diſtaſted. ambition; but it began the diſtaſte and grudge betwixt him and Major General Lambert, who being formerly named by the Parliament to be Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and now in effect, that Vote by this repealed, he thought himſelf highly diſhonoured, and affronted by the Lord General and his Party.

Upon the other Vote for Commiſſioners to be named to have the Civil Power in them in Ireland, it was propounded and urged to me to be one of them, and the chief of them; and the great Command and Honour of that Employment, with conſiderable Profit, was uſed as an Argument to perſuade me to accept of it.

This was ſuſpected to be a Deſign of ſome Ill-willers to me, who would have me ſent out of the way, and rid me from my Place of Commiſſioner of the Great Seal; and ſome believed that Cromwell under-hand might be forward in it, not liking my Non-compliance with his Pleaſure in ſome things, and particularly in ſome Chancery Cauſes.

But I excuſed myſelf from undertaking this Service, being no advancement in Honour or Profit, and that I did not like the Country; and with ſome Reſoluteneſs of denial I got my ſelf off from being named.

Ireland. 17. The General perſuaded me to accept of the Employment for Ireland, and highly commended the Country, and the Honourable Employment; but I made the ſame excuſes to him as I had done before.

18. Letters that when the Rebels ſtormed Balliſhanon Caſtle, 300 of them were ſlain, though but ſixty Men were in the Caſtle; and at the retaking of it by the Parliament's Forces within ten days after, they took 1000 Priſoners, and 8000 Cows.

Scotland. 19. Letters of Preparations to invade the Highlands with three Brigades marching ſeveral ways.

That a Convention of the Kirk was held at Dalkeith, and diſſolved by the Women of the Town.

That fifty of the Parliament's Men of War went from the Downs Northwards.

21. Letters of a Debate in the Synod at Edinburgh, about drawing up of a Paper, ſtyled, a Teſtimony againſt the preſent incroaching of the Civil Power upon the Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction, which they took from the Proclamation concerning the Committee for Viſitation of the Univerſities, and declaring, that they will remove ſcandalous Miniſters; which hath highly incenſed them, thoſe Proceedings being ſpecial Flowers of their Kirk-Prerogative, that ought to be managed only by themſelves; and they concluded their Declaration. June. Kirk Prerogative.

That in the Synod in Fife they made a Proteſtation againſt the publick Reſolutions of the Civil Power.

That two French Frigats took two or three Engliſh Ships upon the Scotch Coaſt.

That the King of Scots was tranſacting with the Dutch about their fiſhing in the Narrow Seas, and had offered them large Privileges.

That Sir George Aſcue came with his Fleet of eleven Men of War from Plymouth into Dover Road, and after he had ſaluted General Blake with all his Guns, and the whole Fleet returned him the like Salutation, Sir George came aboard the General and all his Captains, and dined with him. Sir George Aſcue.

Theſe Salutes of the Guns gave the Country an Alarm, ſo that they flocked to the Sea-ſide expecting a Fight; that the Parliament's Navy was above 100 Men of War.

Two Regiments ſhipped on Board the Navy.

That the Dutch Ships forbear to come through the Narrow Seas, but put into Ports of France, and go home by Land.

22. An Act paſſed for transferring the Powers of the Committee of Indemnity, to the Committee for compounding.

A Petition touching Regiſtring Conveyances, upon which an Order for bringing in the Bill for that Buſineſs. Regiſter.

23. It was particularly given to me in Charge, to prepare for the Debate with the Dutch Ambaſſadors upon the Treaty, for maintaining the Right of the Commonwealth in the Dominion of the Britiſh Seas.

25. Letters of the Synod's meeting at Perth, and citing the Miniſters and People, who had expreſſed a diſlike of their heavenly Government; that the Men being got out of the way, their Wives reſolved to anſwer for them. Kirk Tumult.

And on the day of Appearance, 120 Women with good Clubs in their Hands came and beſieged the Church where the Reverend Miniſters ſat.

They ſent one of their number to treat with the Females, and he threatning Excommunication, they baſted him for his labour, kept him Priſoner, and ſent a Party of ſixty, who routed the reſt of the Clergy, bruiſed their Bodies ſorely, took all their Baggage and twelve Horſes.

That one of the Miniſters after a Mile's runing, taking all Creatures for his Foes, meeting with a Soldier fell on his Knees for Quarter; who knowing nothing of the matter, asked the Black-Coat what he meant.

That theſe Conquerors having laid hold on the Synod Clerk, beat him till he forſwore his Office.

That thirteen of the Miniſters rallied about four Miles from the Place, and voted, that this Village ſhould never more have a Synod kept in it, but be accurſed; and that although in the Years 1638 and 39, the Godly Women were called up for ſtoning the Biſhops, yet now the whole Sex ſhould be eſteemed wicked.

26. Letters

Anno 1652.

26. Letters that a Pinnace of forty Tun being to be launched was by the Seamen and Soldiers drawn ſix Miles over Land.

That the Lieutenant General was ſat down before Roſs in Ireland, that the Connaught and Ulſter Forces were very numerous, and Colonel Reynolds and Venables in purſuit of them.

28. Letters of the great Fire in Glaſcow, which burned moſt part of the Town; and the Miniſters preached, that this was for their compliance with the Sectaries.

That by Thunder and Lightning on the laſt Lord's-day at Church-Lawton in Cheſhire, Eleven Perſons during the Sermon were ſtruck dead in the Congregation.

Storm. Much hurt was done at Greenwich by Storms and a ſtrange kind of Hail, and a Ship coming up the River there had her Maſt quite taken away, and her Sails and Tackle torn, ſeveral Boats were turned over and many People drowned.

The Thunder and Lightning burnt a Barn in Eſſex, and the Steeple and much of the Church, and melted the Lead and Bells at Okenden.

Petition. 29. A Petition to the Parliament ſigned by many thouſands, ſetting forth the miſeries of the War endured by them, in hopes that their Rights and the fundamental Laws (formerly corrupted by the King with his Inſtruments the Clergy, Lawyers, and Stateſmen) would be reſtored, as was promiſed by the Parliament and Army, whereupon they were invited to aſſiſt them, They pray,

1. That no Man be attached, &c. But according to the old Law of the Land, and whatſoever hath been done contrary thereunto by Committees, Courts-Marſhal, High Courts of Juſtice, or the like may be aboliſhed.

2. That no Man be put to his defence but by Preſentment of faithful Men and lawful Witneſſes face to face.

3. That no Man be compelled by Oath to anſwer againſt himſelf.

4. That all Suits may be determined without Appeal by a prefixt time, in the Hundred, or County Courts by Juries, and no more tedious travelling to London, nor vexation and conſumption of Mens Eſtates by the Chancery and other Courts of Weſtminſter, nor further attendance upon Committees, nor long Impriſonments; that Malefactors may have ſpeedy Trials; that Bail may not be denied where it ought to be taken; that food and neceſſaries may be provided for Priſoners at the common Charge, and no Fees taken by Goalers; that all Proceedings in Law may be free from the Parties to the Officers.

5. That Puniſhments may be proportioned to the Offences, that nothing be deemed Treaſon but what tends to the Subverſion of fundamental Liberty; and that in criminal Cauſes the Parties damnified may be ſatisfied out of the Eſtates of the Offenders, and not confiſcate to the Commonwealth, and that Witneſſes may be ſworn for the accuſed as well as for the Proſecutor.

6. That none be queſtioned or moleſted for matter of Conſcience or Religion, the Grounds of implacable Trouble and the very Spawn of Tyranny and Superſtition, and that Tithes ſprung from the ſame Root, and tending to the ſame ends, and to the obſtruction of Tillage and Induſtry may alſo ceaſe, and no enforced Maintenance impoſed in the place thereof.

7. That Copyholds and the like, and the Court of Wards and unjuſt Deſcents to the eldeſt Son only, the principal remaining Badges of the Norman Conqueſt, and main Support of Regal Tyranny may be taken away.

8. That there be no Impriſonment for Debt, but all Eſtates be made liable to make ſatisfaction, nor the rich turn Priſons into Places of Protection.

July.

9. That none be preſſed for War, the Power of Counties being ſufficient to ſuppreſs all Inſurrections and foreign Invaſions.

10. That Trade be free and exempt from Monopolies and disburdening Cuſtoms, Exciſe, and all Charges and all publick Monies to be equally raiſed.

11. That all Sheriffs, Juſtices, Coroners, Conſtables and the like, be annually choſen by thoſe of the Place.

12. That all Laws contrary to theſe Fundamentals be repealed.

13. That Parliaments or Common-Councils of England may be returned to the old courſe to be annually elected, and Satisfaction given to the Nation in point of Accounts and the publick Faith ſatisfied, Arrears of Soldiers paid, Juries duly choſen, Regiſters appointed to aſcertain all Mortgages and Sale of Lands, care taken of the Poor, and waſt places aſſigned for them, the Printing Preſſes ſet at liberty.

Votes in anſwer to Dutch Paper. The Parliament debated the Buſineſs of the Dutch Ambaſſadors, and paſſed theſe Reſolutions to the Ambaſſador in anſwer to his Papers.

1. That the Lords the States General do pay to this Commonwealth the Charges and Damages they have ſuſtained by their Attempts.

2. That upon payment or ſecuring thereof ſhall be a Ceſſation, and their Ships and Goods releaſed.

3. This being aſſented to and put in Execution, the ſecurity for the time to come to be a firm Amity and Intereſt of the two States for the good of both.

The Parliament received another Paper from the Dutch Ambaſſadors, that they were commanded Home, and deſired Audience to take their leaves, which was appointed to-morrow.

A Letter from the King of Denmark's Ambaſſadors for Audience; they were appointed to have it the next Day but one.

Dutch Ambaſſadors. 30. The Dutch Ambaſſadors had Audience in the Houſe with the uſual Ceremonies. The Lord Paw made a Latin Oration, which he gave in writing to the Speaker, with a Petition from the Merchants of the Intercourſe; they went all away this Night.

Letters from Amſterdam, that the Dutch are very high againſt the Engliſh and for a War with them.

The Ambaſſadors having received the laſt Reſolutions of the Parliament of England, demanding ſatisfaction for all their Damages, it gave ſuch a diſtaſte to their Excellencies that they preſently reſolved according to their Inſtructions to return Home, and went to Graveſend this Day; and many Letters came from Holland, mentioning the great Preparations there made for the War at Sea.

July 1652.

July 1. Much Diſcourſe was upon the departing of the Dutch Ambaſſadors, ſome Members of Parliament being unſatisfied with the Diſmiſſion of them, and that ſo high Terms were inſiſted on by the Parliament.

2. Letters of 800 Iriſh come in, and many thouſands of them ſtand out becauſe they cannot be pardoned for their Murders.

Hewſon. Ireland. From Colonel Hewſon of his Proceedings, and that an ambuſh being laid by the Iriſh for a Captain of the Engliſh and Colonel Pretty, he eſcaped and a Party ſent out by Colonel Hewſon killed four of them, releaſed their Priſoners, and took divers Rebels and ſixteen Horſes.

That another Party ſent out by him killed forty of the Rebels, and took thirty good Horſes. That Colonel Hewſon denied to give or take any Quarter with them.

Anno 1652. That Slego was ſurrendred, and that Sir Thomas Jones killed two Colonels, ten Captains, and 300 of a Party of 3000 of the Rebels, and took all their Horſe.

3. Letters of the Engliſh Forces gotten into the Highlands, of Ships come into Leith with Proviſions.

Of ſeveral late Succeſſes in Ireland.

That the Enemy burnt Portumney Town, and Colonel Ingolsby relieved them, and routed all their Horſe, and ſurrounded their Foot in a Bog.

That the Iriſh were in the Field with about 4000 Men; that the Lord Broghill did good Execution upon the Iriſh and purſued them four Miles, took 100 Horſe and 200 Beefs.

That the Lord Muskerry was come in to the Parliament with his Forces.

Blake. Aſcue. That General Blake with a gallant Fleet went Northwards, and left Sir George Aſcue to command the reſt of the Fleet in the Downs, who took five Dutch Merchant-men, and General Blake took two Men of War, and two Merchant-men, 500 Soldiers ſent on Board Sir George Aſcue.

That after this Sir George Aſcue and the Fleet with him met forty Dutch Ships, took ſeven of them, and burnt four; and about twenty four of them ran on Ground on the French Shore, and he purſued the reſt; and this Fight was gallantly performed by him after ſo long a Voyage which his Ships had gone, and were very foul.

Ireland. 5. Letters from the Parliament's Commiſſioners in Ireland, that Sir Charles Coot and Colonel Reynolds had reduced Slego; that the Lord Clanrickard had ſent for a Treaty, and that the Lieutenant General had routed a Party of the Enemy and marched towards Roſs; that the Lord Muskerry ſent for another Treaty, that the Lord Broghill took eighty Horſe, killed about fifty, took Lieutenant Colonel Supple, and two Colours and Arms; yet the Iriſh were double his Number, and he regained 200 Cattle.

Of Recruits come into Ireland.

6. A Declaration paſt concerning the Differences of England with the Netherlands.

Aſcue's Sea Fight. Letters from Sir George Aſcue of his Fight with the Dutch, who were forty Merchants and four Men of War; he took ſeven of them and burnt three, and few that ran on Shore eſcaped; that the French defended them from the Engliſh, yet coming on board their Ships plundred them.

That Captain Wright made a gallant Fight with one of them, and forced him on Shore and burnt him; and Captain Wright loſt eight Men, and above twenty wounded; and Captain Wright himſelf loſt his Leg with a great Shot, and few or none of his Officers but were wounded.

That of thoſe Iriſh who ſubmitted, not a fourth Man laid down their Arms.

9. Letters of Recruits ſent for Ireland.

Highlands That ſome of the Parliament's Forces were marched twenty Miles into the Highlands, where the Country of the Fraziers all (except one inconſiderable Perſon with a few People) came in and ſubmitted to the Parliament.

Sea-fights. 5. Letters of the laſt Engagement with the Dutch Fleet, thus;

Since the return of our Fleet out of the Weſt upon the 14th of September, Sir George Aſcue with his Barbadoes Fleet, ſet ſail out of the Downs himſelf for Chatham, and the reſt for London.

September 25. The Holland Fleet appeared on the back ſide of the Goodwyn, but that Night were driven back by a Storm.

September 26. they appear'd again, but were forced away by another Storm.

September 27. they appear'd the third time.

Upon firſt appearance it was agreed upon by a Council of War that Afternoon, to ſet ſail the next Morning.

But in the interim the Weather proved ſo tedious, that we could not with Safety weigh till the 28th, and then the General with the Fleet got under Sail, having a freſh Gale at W. by N.

At Noon we diſcover'd the Dutch, and about three in the Afternoon the General not having above three of his Squadron up with him (the reſt of our Fleet being a League or two a ſtern) only Vice-Admiral Pen, with moſt of his Squadron, was near him.

Who demanded whether he ſhould leave the General, and bear up among the Enemy; it was anſwered, That we ſhould bear in all together, ſo ſoon as ſome more of our Fleet ſhould come up.

In this time de Wit, who commanded the Dutch Fleet, conſiſting of about 59, all Men of War and ſome ſmall Veſſels, left his own Ship of 40 Guns, and went aboard the biggeſt of the India Ships of 56 Guns.

About four a Clock moſt of our Fleet being come near, they gave ſome ſingle Shot in a Bravado to our General who bore in among them, and the Vice-Admiral filled to bear after him.

But it pleaſed God to diſappoint us, being grounded upon a Sand called the Kentiſh Knock, under which they placed themſelves that we might be neceſſitated to Miſchief, in caſe we endeavoured the Weather Gage; and heaving the Lead overboard, we found we had not three Fathom of Water.

Our General ſailing to Windward of their Admiral, was on Ground; the Sovereign was near Musket-ſhot within us and ſtruck ſeveral times, ſo did the Reſolution, as alſo the Vice-Admiral even as they were engaged, and the Andrew.

But it pleaſed God to deliver them, that they got off immediately without any harm, and he turned it to our Advantage; becauſe being forced thereby to tack our Ship to clear our ſelves of the Sands, it fell out better for doing Execution upon the Enemy, than we could have caſt it ourſelves.

For as the Dutch Fleet cleared themſelves of our General, he ſtanding to the Northward, and they to the Southward, we fell pat to receive them, and ſo ſtaid by them till Night parted us.

What Damage we did them cannot be exactly known, and what they did us (bleſſed be God) was not much.

Anno 1652. Three of their Ships were wholly diſabled at the firſt Brunt, having loſt all their Maſts, and another as ſhe was towing off the Rear-Admiral was taken by Captain Mildmay, and the ſecond Day they were many leſs in number than the firſt.

The Rear-Admiral and two other Captains are Priſoners, who ſay, they conceive by the ſtriking of De Wit's Antient, and the putting forth another of a blue Colour, that he is ſlain.

We have not above forty ſlain in all our Fleet, whereof one Officer Captain Jervis, and not many wounded; we loſt not one Ship or Frigat, nor did any Veſſel ſhrink from their Work; the Merchant-men of War fell to it to purpoſe, and a great Spirit of Reſolution and Gallantry poſſeſſed our whole Fleet.

Our Tackle and Maſts were ſomewhat ſhattered as is uſual in ſuch Diſputes, at firſt our Enemies appeared very reſolute, having placed themſelves in a fighting Poſture before our Ships came up, divided into three Squadrons, and behaved themſelves very ſtoutly, but ſeemed to flag towards the latter end. And I believe if Providence had allowed us one hour more, we had made a total end of them.

After this they abode all Night (as we perceived by their Lights) at a ſmall diſtance to Leeward of us, which made us ſuppoſe they would have fought us next Morning: But then as the Day broke, we ſaw them North-Eaſt, more than two Leagues off us; we bore up to them, but the Wind coming contrary ſo that they had the Wind of us, we could not get up to them.

Our General commanded our Frigats to ply up to them as near as they could, and keep firing at them, while the reſt of us did our beſt to get near them. Some Shot was ſpent, but they hoiſed all their Sails and ran for it.

September 30. by day-light they were as far as we could diſcern them at Top-Maſt-head; we purſued them as far as in ſight of Weſt Gabel in Zealand, and ſaw them run into Goree. Whereupon it was concluded by a Council of War, ſeeing we were ſo near their Shallows, and ſome of the Frigats wanting Victuals, to return to the Downs.

We were commanded not to fire till we came cloſe to them, and our Artillery did great Execution.

That Captain Mildmay took the Dutch Rear-Admiral, and another Veſſel in ſight of their Fleet took the Rear-Admiral, 2 Captains and 80 Priſoners, and left the Ship with the dead Men in her ſinking in the Sea.

That three or four other of their Ships were ſeen to ſink; the whole Fleet was the choiceſt of all their Ships.

I received this Letter from Sir William Davenant.

MY LORD,

I AM in ſuſpence whether I ſhould preſent my Thankfulneſs to your Lordſhip for my Liberty of the Tower; becauſe when I conſider how much of your Time belongs to the Publick, I conceive that to make a Requeſt to you, and to thank you afterwards for the Succeſs of it, is to give you no more than a Succeſſion of Trouble, unleſs you are reſolved to be continually patient and courteous to afflicted Men, and agree in your Judgment with the late wiſe Cardinal;

Anno 1652.

Cardinal; who was wont to say, If he had not ſpent as much time in Civilities as in Buſineſs he had undone his Maſter.

But whilſt I endeavour to excuſe this Preſent of Thankfulneſs, I ſhould rather ask your Pardon for going about to make a Preſent to you of my ſelf; for it may argue me to be incorrigible, that after ſo many Afflictions, I have yet ſo much Ambition as to deſire to be at liberty, that I may have more Opportunity to obey your Lordſhip's Commands, and ſhew the World how much I am,

My Lord,

Your Lordſhip's moſt obliged, moſt

7. Letters that in the Levant Seas, a ſmall Fleet of the Engliſh Men of War convoying certain Merchant-men from Scandaroon, were unawares aſſailed by eleven Sail of Dutch Men of War, who having great advantage of the Engliſh, and much over-powering them in number, took and blew up about five of the Engliſh Ships. Dutch Fleet.

Several other Letters touching Prizes taken by the Dutch from the Engliſh, but many more from the Dutch by the Engliſh; and of Miſchief done by the Pickeroons on the Engliſh Coaſts, and of the purſuit and taking of ſome of them by the Parliament's Men of War.

That the Buſineſs in Ireland was almoſt finiſhed, and the Enemy there in effect wholly ſubdued; and many of the Iriſh tranſported beyond Seas, not a body of them conſiderable to be met with in the Field.

That the Forces under General Monk in Scotland had great Succeſs there, taking in divers ſtrong Places, and giving many Defeats to the Kings Forces in the Highlands.

The Debate upon the Bill for the Scotch Union, and for an Act of Oblivion there, was ſo far proceeded in by the Committee, that they ordered the Report thereof to be made to the Parliament. Union.

The Buſineſs of the Chancery was full of trouble this Michaelmas-Term, and no Mans Cauſe came to a determination how juſt ſoever, without the clamour of the Party againſt whom Judgment was given; they being ſtark blind in their own Cauſes, and reſolved not to be convinced by Reaſon or Law.

It was about this time in a fair Evening, I being walking in St. James's Park to refreſh my ſelf after buſineſs of Toil and for a little Exerciſe, that the Lord General Cromwell meeting with me, ſaluted me with more than ordinary Courteſy, and deſired me to walk aſide with him, that we might have ſome private diſcourſe together; I waited on him, and he began the diſcourſe betwixt us, which was to this Effect. Cromwell

Cromwell. My Lord Whitelocke, I know your faithfulneſs and engagement in the ſame good Cauſe with my ſelf, and the reſt of our Friends, and I know your ability in Judgment, and your particular Friend- Whitelocke. ſhip

ſhip and Affection for me, indeed I am ſufficiently ſatisfied in theſe things; and therefore I deſire to adviſe with you in the main and moſt important Affairs relating to our preſent condition.

Whitelocke. Your Excellency hath known me long, and I think will ſay that you never knew any unfaithfulneſs or breach of Truſt by me, and for my particular Affection to your Perſon, your Favours to me, and your publick Services, have deſerved more than I can manifeſt, only there is (with your Favour) a miſtake in this one thing, touching my weak judgment, which is uncapable to do any conſiderable ſervice for your ſelf, or this Commonwealth; yet to the utmoſt of my power, I ſhall be ready to ſerve you, and that with all diligence and faithfulneſs.

Cromwell. I have cauſe to be, and am without the leaſt ſcruple of your Faithfulneſs, and I know your kindneſs to me your old Friend, and your abilities to ſerve the Commonwealth, and there are enough beſides me that can teſtify it: and I believe our Engagements for this Commonwealth have been and are as deep as moſt Mens, and there never was more need of advice, and ſolid hearty Counſel, than the preſent State of our Affairs doth require.

Whitelocke. I ſuppoſe no Man will mention his particular engagement in this Cauſe, at the ſame time when your Excellency's engagement is remembred, yet to my capacity, and in my ſtation, few Men have engaged farther than I have done, and that (beſides the goodneſs of your own nature and perſonal knowledge of me) will keep you from any jealouſy of my Faithfulneſs.

Cromwell. I wiſh there were no more ground of ſuſpicion of others, than of you, I can truſt you with my Life, and the moſt ſecret matters relating to our Buſineſs, and to that end I have now deſired a little private diſcourſe with you; and really (My Lord) there is very great cauſe for us, to conſider the dangerous condition we are all in, and how to make good our ſtation, to improve the Mercies and Succeſſes which God hath given us, and not to be fooled out of them again, nor to be broken in pieces, by our particular jarrings and animoſities one againſt another, but to unite our Councils, and Hands, and Hearts, to make good what we have ſo dearly bought, with ſo much Hazard, Blood, and Treaſure, and that the Lord having given us an entire Conqueſt over our Enemies, we ſhould not now hazard all again by our private Janglings, and bring thoſe Miſchiefs upon our ſelves, which our Enemies could never do.

Whitelocke. My Lord, I look upon our preſent danger, as greater than ever it was in the Field, and (as your Excellency truly obſerves) our Proneneſs to deſtroy our ſelves, when our Enemies could not do it. It is no ſtrange thing for a gallant Army (as yours is) after full conqueſt of their Enemies, to grow into Factions and ambitious Deſigns, and it is a wonder to me, that they are not in high Mutinies, their Spirits being active, and few thinking their ſervices to be duly rewarded, and the emulation of the Officers breaking out daily more and more, in this time of their vacancy from their Employment; beſides the private Soldiers, it may be feared, will in this time of their Idleneſs, grow into diſorder, and it is your excellent Conduct, which under God, hath kept them ſo long in Diſcipline, and free from Mutinies.

Cromwell. I have uſed and ſhall uſe the utmoſt of my poor Endeavours to keep them all in Order and Obedience.

Whitelocke. Your Excellency hath done it hitherto even to admiration.

Cromwell. Truly God hath bleſt me in it exceedingly, and I hope will do ſo ſtill. Your Lordſhip hath obſerved moſt truly the inclinations of the Officers of the Army to particular Factions, and to Murmurings, that they are not rewarded according to their deſerts, that others who have adventured leaſt, have gained moſt, and they have neither profit, nor preferment, nor place in Government, which others hold, who have undergone no hardſhips nor hazards for the Commonwealth, and herein they have too much of truth, yet their inſolency is very great, and their influence upon the private Soldiers works them to the like diſcontents and murmurings. Novemb.

Then as for the Members of Parliament, the Army begins to have a ſtrange diſtaſte againſt them, and I wiſh there were not too much cauſe for it, and really their Pride, and Ambition, and Self-ſeeking, ingroſſing all Places of Honour and Profit to themſelves, and their Friends, and their daily breaking forth into new and violent Parties and Factions.

Their delays of Buſineſs, and deſign to perpetuate themſelves, and to continue the Power in their own hands, their meddling in private Matters between Party and Party, contrary to the inſtitution of Parliaments, and their injuſtice, and partiality in thoſe Matters, and the ſcandalous Lives of ſome of the chief of them, theſe things (My Lord) do give too much ground for People to open their Mouths againſt them, and to diſlike them.

Nor can they be kept within the bounds of Juſtice, and Law or Reaſon, they themſelves being the ſupreme Power of the Nation, liable to no account to any, nor to be controuled or regulated by any other Power; there being none Superior, or coordinate with them.

So that unleſs there be ſome Authority and Power ſo full and ſo high, as to reſtrain and keep things in better order, and that may be a check to theſe exorbitances, it will be impoſſible in human reaſon to prevent our Ruin.

Whitelocke. I confeſs the danger we are in by theſe extravagancies and inordinate powers, is more than I doubt is generally apprehended; yet as to that part of it which concerns the Soldiery your Excellency's Power and Commiſſion is ſufficient already to reſtrain and keep them in their due Obedience, and bleſſed be God you have done it hitherto, and I doubt not but by your wiſdom you will be able ſtill to do it.

As to the Members of Parliament I confeſs the greateſt difficulty lies there, your Commiſſion being from them, and they being acknowledged the ſupreme Power of the Nation, ſubject to no controuls, nor allowing any appeal from them.

Yet I am ſure your Excellency will not look upon them as generally depraved, too many of them are much to blame in thoſe things you have mentioned, and many unfit things have paſſed among them; but I hope well of the major part of them, when great matters come to a deciſion.

Cromwell. My Lord, there is little hopes of a good ſettlement to be made by them, really there is not; but a great deal of fear, that they will deſtroy again, what the Lord hath done graciouſly for them and us; we all forget God, and God will forget us, and give us up to confuſion; and theſe Men will help it on, if they be ſuffered to proceed in their ways; ſome courſe muſt be thought on to curb and reſtrain them, or we ſhall be ruined by them.

Whitelocke. We our ſelves have acknowledged them the ſupreme Power, and taken our Commiſſions and Authority in the higheſt concernments from them, and how to reſtrain and curb them after this, it will be hard to find out a way for it.

Cromwell. What if a Man ſhould take upon him to be King?

Whitelocke. I think that remedy would be worſe than the diſeaſe.

Cromwell. Why do you think ſo?

Whitelocke. As to your own perſon the Title of King would be of no advantage, becauſe you have the full full Kingly Power in you already, concerning the Militia, as you are General.

Anno 1652.

As to the Nomination of Civil Officers, thoſe whom you think fitteſt are ſeldom refuſed; and although you have no Negative Vote in the paſſing of Laws, yet what you diſlike will not eaſily be carried, and the Taxes are already ſettled, and in your Power to diſpoſe the Money raiſed. And as to foreign Affairs though the ceremonial Application be made to the Parliament, yet the Expectation of good or bad Succeſs in it is from your Excellency, and particular Solicitations of Foreign Miniſters are made to you only.

So that I apprehend indeed leſs Envy and Danger and Pomp, but not leſs Power and real Opportunities of doing Good in your being General, than would be if you had aſſumed the Title of King.

Cromwell. I have heard ſome of your Profeſſion obſerve, that he who is actually King, whether by Election or by Deſcent, yet being once King, all Acts done by him as King, are lawful and juſtifiable, as by any King who hath the Crown by Inheritance from his Fore-Fathers; and that by an Act of Parliament in Hen. 7. time; it is ſafer for thoſe who act under a King (be his Title what it will) than for thoſe who act under any other Power.

And ſurely the Power of a King is ſo great and high, and ſo univerſally underſtood and reverenced by the People of this Nation, that the Title of it might not only indemnify in a great Meaſure thoſe that act under it, but likewiſe be of great Uſe and Advantage in ſuch times as theſe, to curb the Inſolencies and Extravagancies of thoſe whom the preſent Powers cannot controul, or at leaſt are the Perſons themſelves who are thus inſolent.

Whitelocke. I agree in the General with what you are pleaſed to obſerve as to this Title of King, but whether for your Excellency to take this Title upon you, as things now are, will be for the Good and Advantage either of your ſelf and Friends, or of the Commonwealth I do very much doubt, notwithſtanding that Act of Parliament 11 Hen. 7. which will be little regarded or obſerved to us by our Enemies, if they ſhould come to get the upper hand of us.

Cromwell. What do you apprehend would be the Danger of taking this Title?

Whitelocke. The Danger I think would be this, one of the main Points of Controverſy betwixt us and our Adverſaries, is whether the Government of this Nation ſhall be eſtabliſhed in Monarchy, or in a free State or Commonwealth, and moſt of our Friends have engaged with us upon the Hopes of having the Government ſettled in a free State, and to effect that, have undergone all their Hazards and Difficulties.

They being perſuaded (though I think much miſtaken) that under the Government of a Commonwealth they ſhall enjoy more Liberty and Right, both as to their Spiritual and Civil Concernments, than they ſhall under Monarchy; the Preſſures and Diſlike whereof are ſo freſh in their Memories and Sufferings.

Now if your Excellency ſhall take upon you the Title of King, this State of our Cauſe will be thereby wholly determined, and Monarchy eſtabliſhed in your Perſon; and the Queſtion will be no more whether our Government ſhall be by a Monarch, or by a free State, but whether Cromwell or Stuart ſhall be our King and Monarch.

And that Queſtion, wherein before ſo great Parties of the Nation were engaged, and which was Univerſal; will by this Means become in Effect a private Controverſy only; before it was national, what kind of Government we ſhould have, now it will become particular, who ſhall be our Governor, whether of the Family of the Stuarts, or of the Family of the Cromwells.

Thus the State of our Controverſy being totally changed, all thoſe who were for a Commonwealth (and they are a very great and conſiderable Party) having their Hopes therein fruſtrated will deſert you, your Hands will be weakned, your Intereſt ſtraitned, and your Cauſe in apparent Danger to be ruined. Novemb.

Cromwell. I confeſs you ſpeak Reaſon in this, but what other thing can you propound that may obviate the preſent Dangers and Difficulties, wherein we are all engaged.

Whitelocke. It will be the greateſt Difficulty to find out ſuch an Expedient; I have had many things in my private Thoughts upon this Buſineſs, ſome of which perhaps are not fit or ſafe for me to communicate.

Cromwell. I pray, my Lord, what are they? you may truſt me with them, there ſhall no Prejudice come to you by any private Diſcourſe betwixt us; I ſhall never betray my Friend, you may be as free with me as with your own Heart, and ſhall never ſuffer by it.

Whitelocke. I make no Scruple to put my Life and Fortune in your Excellency's Hand, and ſo I ſhall if I impart theſe Fancies to you, which are weak and perhaps may prove offenſive to your Excellency; therefore my beſt way will be to ſmother them.

Cromwell. Nay I prithee, my Lord Whitelocke, let me know them, be they what they will, they cannot be offenſive to me, but I ſhall take it kindly from you; therefore I pray do not conceal thoſe Thoughts of yours from your faithful Friend.

Whitelocke. Your Excellency honours me with a Title far above me, and ſince you are pleaſed to command it, I ſhall diſcover to you my Thoughts herein, and humbly deſire you not to take in ill part what I ſhall ſay to you.

Cromwell. Indeed I ſhall not, but I ſhall take it (as I ſaid) very kindly from you.

Whitelocke. Give me leave then firſt to conſider your Excellency's Condition: You are environed with ſecret Enemies; upon your ſubduing of the publick Enemy, the Officers of your Army account themſelves all Victors, and to have had an equal Share in the the Conqueſt with you.

The Succeſs which God hath given us hath not a little elated their Minds, and many of them are buſy and of turbulent Spirits, and are not without their Deſigns how they may diſmount your Excellency, and ſome of themſelves get up into the Saddle, how they may bring you down and ſet up themſelves.

They want not Counſel and Encouragement herein, it may be from ſome Members of the Parliament, who may be jealous of your Power and Greatneſs, leſt you ſhould grow too high for them, and in time over-maſter them; and they will plot to bring you down firſt, or to clip your Wings.

Cromwell. I thank you that you ſo fully conſider my Condition, it is a Teſtimony of your Love to me and Care of me, and you have rightly conſidered it, and I may ſay without Vanity, that in my Condition yours is involved and all our Friends, and thoſe that plot my Ruin, will hardly bear your Continuance in any Condition worthy of you.

Beſides this, the Cauſe it ſelf may poſſibly receive ſome Diſadvantage by the Strugglings and Contentions among our ſelves: But what, Sir, are your Thoughts for Prevention of thoſe Miſchiefs that hang over our Heads?

Whitelocke. Pardon me, Sir, in the next place, a little to conſider the Condition of the King of Scots.

This Prince being now by your Valour, and the Succeſs which God hath given to the Parliament, and to the Army under your Command, reduced to a very low Condition; both he and all about him cannot but be very inclinable to hearken to any Terms, whereby their loſt Hopes may be revived of his being reſtored

to

Anno 1652. to the Crown, and they to their Fortunes and Native Country.

By a private Treaty with him you may ſecure your ſelf and your Friends, and their Fortunes, you may make your ſelf and your Poſterity as great and permanent to all human Probability as ever any Subject was, and provide for your Friends. You may put ſuch Limits to Monarchical Power, as will ſecure our Spiritual and Civil Liberties; and you may ſecure the Cauſe in which we are all engaged, and this may be effectually done, by having the Power of the Militia continued in your ſelf, and whom you ſhall agree upon after you.

I propound therefore for your Excellency to ſend to the King of Scots, and to have a private Treaty with him for this purpoſe; and I beſeech you to pardon what I have ſaid upon the Occaſion, it is out of my Affection and Service to your Excellency, and to all honeſt Men; and I humbly pray you not to have any Jealouſy thereupon of my approved Faithfulneſs to your Excellency and to this Commonwealth.

Cromwell. I have not, I aſſure you, the leaſt Diſtruſt of your Faithfulneſs and Friendſhip to me, and to the Cauſe of this Commonwealth, and I think you have much reaſon for what you propound; but it is a Matter of ſo high Importance and Difficulty, that it deſerves more of Conſideration and Debate, than is at preſent allowed us.

We ſhall therefore take a further time to diſcourſe of it.

With this the General brake off and went to other Company, and ſo into Whitehall, ſeeming by his Countenance and Carriage diſpleaſed with what I had ſaid; yet he never objected it againſt me in any publick Meeting afterwards;

Only his Carriage towards me from that time was altered, and his adviſing with me not ſo frequent and intimate as before; and it was not long after that he found an Occaſion by an honourable Employment to ſend me out of the way (as ſome of his neareſt Relations, particularly his Daughter Cleypoole confeſſed) that I might be no Obſtacle or Impediment to his ambitious Deſigns; as may appear by the Proceſs of this Story.

December 1652.

Blake. About the beginning of this Month, General Blake himſelf was engaged with the whole Fleet of the Dutch, but having great Diſadvantage in the Numbers, and the Wind not favouring him, though his Squadron fought very gallantly, and did much Harm to the Dutch; yet he came off with the Loſs of the Garland and Bonaventure, two good Ships, and ſome other of leſs Force.

Monk. Many Letters and Intelligences came of further Succeſſes in Scotland by the Forces under General Monk in the Highlands. Others, of ſeveral Prizes taken by the Parliament's Ships from the Dutch, and of Loſſes of ſome Engliſh Ships taken by the Dutch, and tranſporting ſome Iriſh to the Service of the King of Spain.

Parliament. The Parliament were very buſy in Debate of ſeveral Acts of Parliament under Conſideration, but very little was brought to Effect by them.

The Soldiers grumbled at their Delays, and there began to be ill Blood between them; the General and his Officers preſſed the putting a Period to their Sitting, which they promiſed to do, but were ſlow in that Buſineſs.

The Buſineſs of the Chancery being over and I ſufficiently tired with it, and with the Buſineſs of the Council of State, I got leave towards the end of this Month to go into the Country, and retired my ſelf at Fawley Court. Febr.

January 1652.

The Preparations for the Navy, and the War at Sea with the Dutch went on with great Vigour; and the Parliament were quick in it, and referred it to the Council of State to take care of it. Navy.

And they were diligent in their Buſineſs and cautious to have Money in Readineſs for it, and to ſettle Amities with foreign Princes, and ſuch Correſpondences, that there might be the leſs Aſſiſtance to their Enemies, or joining with them.

Intelligences came of the Continuance of their Succeſſes in Scotland, and of the peaceable Condition of their Affairs in Ireland. Scotland.

The Kings of France and of Spain, and the Queen of Sweden, ſent hither their Ambaſſadors and publick Miniſters to treat for the ſettling of Leagues and Trade. Foreign Miniſters.

Upon a Report from them, the Parliament paſſed ſeveral Reſolutions for the Encouragement of Seamen in their Service. As for Advancement of ſome Pay to them beforehand, and to leave ſome Subſiſtence to their Families during their Abſence. Seamen encouraged

That for every Ship taken, which ſhould be adjudged good Prize, they ſhould have 40*s.* per Ton, and 6*l.* for every Piece of Cannon taken or found in the Prize Ships, to be equally diſtributed according to their Qualities, and that they ſhould have 10*l.* for every Cannon which ſhould be taken aboard of any Ship which they ſhould ſink or fire.

That whoever ſhould inroll themſelves within forty Days in the Parliament's Service, ſhould, as a Gratuity, receive a Month's Pay not to be paſſed to Account; that Hoſpitals ſhould be erected at Dover, Deal and Sandwich, for ſick and wounded Seamen brought on Shore, and a Stock ſettled for Maintenance of them, and of other ſick and wounded Men, who by reaſon of their Diſeaſes and Wounds could not be brought on Shore.

Theſe and other Encouragements cauſed the Seamen to come flocking into the Service of the Parliament; and although the Hollanders had prohibited the Importing, of Pitch, Tar, Hemp, and other Materials of Navigation by any Nation whatſoever into England, a Placard of ſufficient Inſolency; yet the Council of State had provided ſufficient Stores, and had prepared and equipped a gallant Navy. Placard.

In the Levant Captain Bodiley coming from Porto-Longone to the Relief of Captain Appleton, who was blockt up in the Mole of Leghorn, the Dutch there ſet upon Bodiley, and deſtroyed two or three of his Ships.

February 1652.

The Parliament's Fleet at Sea had great Succeſs this Month in a Fight with the Dutch, between Portland and the Iſle of Wight about the twentieth of this Month; in which Battle both the Officers, Mariners and Soldiers of both Parties, behaved themſelves with great Courage and Gallantry. Sea Fight.

But it pleaſed God ſo to favour the Engliſh, that after a ſharp and bloody Fight the Dutch were wholly routed and overcome; and had a ſore and terrible Loſs both of their Ships and Men; the Anno 1652. the Engliſh loſt likewiſe many Men, but came off with a great Victory.

Several Letters alſo came of the Succeſſes of the Army in Scotland, and the Submiſſion of more of the Iriſh Rebels. All theſe Paſſages conduced to the raiſing up not only of the Reputation, but with it of the Spirits and Ambition of Cromwell, and the Officers of the Army.

Cromwell and the Army againſt the Parliament. And they now began to aſſume to themſelves all the Honour of the paſt Actions, and of the Conqueſts by them atchieved; ſcarce owning the Parliament and their Aſſiſtance, and Proviſion for them; but taxing and cenſuring the Members of Parliament for Injuſtice, and Delay of Buſineſs, and for ſeeking to prolong their Power and promote their private Intereſt, and to ſatisfy their own Ambition.

With theſe and many others the like Cenſures they endeavoured to calumniate the Parliament, and Judge them guilty of thoſe Crimes whereof themſelves were faulty, not looking into their own Actions, nor perceiving their own Defaults; yet cenſuring the Actions and Proceedings of the Parliament very opprobriouſly.

March 1652.

The drift of Cromwell and his Officers was to put an end to this Parliament, which many wondred at, and ſought to diſſuade him from it upon all Opportunities as far as it was thought convenient, and that they might not appear deſirous to continue their own Power, and ſitting in Parliament; whereof they had cauſe to be ſufficiently weary.

Neither could it be clearly foreſeen, that their Deſign was to rout the preſent Power and to ſet up themſelves; againſt the which they were adviſed, as pulling down the Foundation of their own Intereſt and Power, and the way to weaken themſelves, and hazard both their Cauſe and Perſons.

Yet ſtill they ſeemed zealous upon their common Pretences of Right and Juſtice, and Publick Liberty, to put a period to this Parliament, and that if the Parliament would not ſhortly do it themſelves, that then the Soldiers muſt do it.

I always and earneſtly declared my Judgment againſt this, as the moſt dangerous, and moſt ungrateful thing that could be practiſed; by this Freedom I gained no favour with Cromwell and his Officers.

But there wanted not ſome Parliament-men perhaps to flatter with them, who ſoothed them in this unhandſome Deſign, and were complotting with them, to ruin themſelves, as by the Conſequence will appear.

Letters of Dutch Free-booters, and French Pickeroons infeſting the Coaſt, and that in Britain they are building new Ships of War to infeſt the Engliſh.

Prince Rupert. That Prince Rupert with three Ships only was come into Nantes, that he could give no Account of his Brother, and his Ships which were ſeparated from him by a Hurricane in the Indies; and he believed they were caſt away.

Captain Bodiley. From Leghorn, that the Duke by the Inſtigation of the Dutch, demanded Reſtitution of the Phœnix Frigat, recovered by a bold Adventure of the Engliſh; and the Duke ſent to Captain Bodiley, that he having refuſed to reſtore the Phœnix to the Dutch, it was his Highneſs's Pleaſure that all the Engliſh Ships ſhould depart the Port within ten Days, and Bodiley prepared to depart accordingly.

March. That the Dutch Admiral ſent a Proteſt on ſhore by four of his Captains, that if his Highneſs would not reſtore the Phœnix, they would fall upon the Engliſh Ships in the Mole, and they warned other Ships to withdraw.

19. That the Queen of Sweden had fifty ſtout Ships Men of War at Sea.

Cromwell 20. Yeſterday there having been a great Meeting at Cromwell's Lodgings in Whitehall of Parliament-men and ſeveral Officers of the Army, ſent to by Cromwell to be there, and a large Diſcourſe and Debate having been amongſt them touching ſome Expedient to be found out for the preſent carrying on of the Government of the Commonwealth, and putting a Period to this preſent Parliament;

It was offered by divers as a moſt dangerous thing to diſſolve the preſent Parliament, and to ſet up any other Government, and that it would neither be warrantable in Conſcience or Wiſdom ſo to do; yet none of them expreſſed themſelves ſo freely to that purpoſe as Sir Thomas Widdrington and I then did.

Of the other Opinion as to putting a Period forthwith to this Parliament, St. John was one of the chief, and many more with him; and generally all the Officers of the Army, who ſtuck cloſe in this likewiſe to their General.

And the better to make way for themſelves and their ambitious Deſign of advancing them to the Civil Government, as well as they were in the Military Power.

They and their Party declared their Opinions, that it was neceſſary the ſame ſhould be done one way or other, and the Members of Parliament not permitted to prolong their own Power.

At which Expreſſion Cromwell ſeemed to reprove ſome of them; and this Conference laſted till late at Night, when Widdrington and I went home weary, and troubled to ſee the Indiſcretion and Ingratitude of thoſe Men, and the way they deſigned to ruin themſelves.

Therefore I came early again this Morning according to Appointment to Cromwell's Lodgings, where there were but few Parliament-men and a few Officers of the Army, of whom Colonel Ingoldsby was one.

A Point was again ſtirred which had been debated the laſt night, whether forty Perſons, or about that number of Parliament-men and Officers of the Army ſhould be nominated by the Parliament and impowered for the managing the Affairs of the Commonwealth till a new Parliament ſhould meet, and ſo the preſent Parliament to be forthwith diſſolved.

I was againſt this Propoſal, and the more, fearing leſt I might be one of theſe forty; who I thought would be in a deſperate Condition after the Parliament ſhould be diſſolved; but others were very ambitious to be of this Number and Council, and to be inveſted with this exorbitant Power in them. April.

Cromwell being informed during this Debate that the Parliament was ſitting, and that it was hoped they would put a Period to themſelves; which would be the moſt honourable Diſſolution for them;

Hereupon he broke off the meeting, and the Members of Parliament with him left him at his Lodgings and went to the Houſe, and found them in Debate of an Act, the which would occaſion other Meetings of them again and prolong their ſitting.

Thereupon Colonel Ingoldsby went back to Cromwell and told him what the Houſe were doing, who was ſo enraged thereat, expecting they ſhould have meddled with no other Buſineſs but putting a Period to their own ſitting without more delay;

That he preſently commanded ſome of the Officers of the Army to fetch a Party of Soldiers with whom he marched to the Houſe, and led a File of Muſqueteers in with him; the reſt he placed at the Door of the Houſe, and in the Lobby before it.

In this manner entring the Houſe he in a furious manner bid the Speaker leave his Chair, told the Houſe, That they had ſat long enough, unleſs they had done more good; that ſome of them were Whore-maſters, looking then towards Henry Martin and Sir Peter Wentworth.

That others of them were Drunkards, and ſome corrupt and unjuſt Men, and ſcandalous to the Profeſſion of the Goſpel, and that it was not fit they ſhould ſit as a Parliament any longer, and deſired them to go away.

The Speaker not ſtirring from his Seat, Colonel Harriſon who ſat near the Chair, roſe up and took him by the Arm to remove him from his Seat, which when the Speaker ſaw he left his Chair.

Some of the Members roſe up to anſwer Cromwell's Speech, but he would ſuffer none to ſpeak but himſelf.

Which he did with ſo much Arrogance in himſelf and Reproach to his Fellow-members, that ſome of his Privadoes were aſhamed of it. Parliament turned out of Doors.

But he and his Officers and Party would have it ſo, and among all the Parliament-men of whom many wore Swords, and would ſometimes brag high, not one Man offered to draw his Sword againſt Cromwell, or to make the leaſt Reſiſtance againſt him; but all of them tamely departed the Houſe.

He bid one of his Soldiers to take away that Fool's Bauble, the Mace; and ſtaid himſelf to ſee all the Members out of the Houſe, himſelf the laſt of them, and then cauſed the Doors of the Houſe to be ſhut up.

Thus was this Great Parliament which had done ſo great things, wholly at this time routed by thoſe whom they had ſet up, and that took their Commiſſions and Authority from them; nor could they in the leaſt juſtify any Action they had done, or one Drop of Blood they had ſpilt, but by this Authority.

Yet now the Servants roſe againſt their Maſters, and moſt ingratefully, and diſingeniouſly, as well as raſhly and imprudently, they diſſolved that Power by which themſelves were created Officers and Soldiers; and now they took what they deſign'd, all Power into their own Hands.

All honeſt and prudent indifferent Men, were highly diſtaſted at this unworthy Action.

This

Anno 1653.

This occaſioned much rejoicing in the King's Party, who now daily expected the Deſtruction of Cromwell and his Party and Army, yet made great Applications and Congratulations to him; and thoſe of the Parliament's Party were at a ſtand, divers fierce Men, Paſtors of Churches, and their Congregations were pleaſed at it, and generally the Officers and Soldiers of the Army; ſo that one of them did not ſtick to ſay to the Father being a Parliament-man, and the Son a Captain in the Army, that this Buſineſs was nothing but to pull down the Father and to ſet up the Son; and no more but for the Father to wear worſted, and the Son ſilk Stockings; ſo ſottiſh were they in the Apprehenſions of their own riſings.

Thus it pleaſed God, that this Aſſembly famous through the World for its Undertakings, Actions, and Succeſſes, having ſubdued all their Enemies, were themſelves overthrown and ruined by their Servants; and thoſe whom they had raiſed, now pulled down their Maſters.

An Example never to be forgotten and ſcarce to be paralleled in any Story, by which all Perſons may be inſtructed how uncertain and ſubject to change all Worldly Affairs are, how apt to fall when we think them higheſt.

How God makes uſe of ſtrange and unexpected means to bring his Purpoſes to paſs.

Of Robberies done by the Highlanders.

Anno. 1653.

That Argyle endeavours to prevent any joining with them by thoſe in his Country.

That the Scots Miniſters are angry among themſelves.

3. The Commander in Chief in Scotland diſſolved the Aſſembly of the Kirk there.

Letters to the Parliament.

Letters of a Sea Fight.

That July the twenty ninth about nine in the Morning, having weighed Anchor the Night before, the Dutch Fleet was diſcovered by our Scouts a-head, which within two Hours after appeared to be the Dutch Fleet come from the Waylings, conſiſting of ninety ſeven Ships or thereabouts, whereof ninety were Men of War, whereupon we made what Sail we could after them, fitting our Ships in the mean time for an Engagement. But the Enemy tacked about, and ſtood off from us as ſoon as they perceived what we were; ſo that it was five a Clock in the Evening before any of our Frigats could come up to engage them, which they did.

And this forced them to make a Halt, whereby in the Evening at ſeven of the Clock, the Reſolution, with as many Ships and Frigats as made up thirty Sail, engaged with them, the reſt being a-ſtern could not get up; however we fell to work, and continued fighting, till Night parted us, which was about nine a Clock.

After which being dark, all Hands were at work to bring ſome new Sails to the Yard, and mend the Rigging, wherein we had ſuffered very much in ſo ſhort a time; there were killed outright ſixteen, and twenty five wounded, of whom fourteen dangerouſly.

The next Day little was done as to any Engagement, both Fleets finding it work enough to get off from a Lee-ſhore, the Wind blowing hard, with thick and dirty Weather, which was the worſe for us being in an Enemy's Country; and in the Evening it began to clear up.

This Morning being fair and little Wind, both Fleets prepared for a new Engagement, the Enemy bore in upon us, having the Wind of us; to this time the Lord ſeemed to encourage the Enemy, by laying the Scale as it it were in the Balance, ſo that neither could tell which had the better.

About ſeven in the Morning their great Ships from the Texel, being twenty five in Number, had made a Conjunction with them, and there began a very hot Diſpute, which continued till one in the Afternoon; the Enemy having the Wind of us all the while, whereby he had the Opportunity of taking all Advantages.

Yet by this time the Lord had ſo daunted the Spirits of the Enemy, that they begun to bear away from us, making all the Sail they could with the Remainder of the Fleet, being not above ſixty left of their whole Number.

So far as I could diſcern, there cannot be leſs than thirty or forty ſunk, taken and deſtroyed; we are now in purſuit of them, ſome of our beſt ſailing Frigats being almoſt up with them; and our Expectations ſtill are great.

The Enemy had nine Flag-Ships when we firſt engaged, and now but one left; ſome of them I know are ſunk.

In this Engagement we had but two Ships of ours fired by them, one of them is the Oak, moſt of her Men were ſaved; the other had not any of her Men ſaved. The Worceſter Frigat took the Garland, which had been formerly taken from us by the Dutch, but our Men were forced to fire her.

Van Trump's Flag was ſhot down in the Morning, and could not be made ſtand all the Day after. Auguſt.

The Lord General called a Council of Officers, and adviſed with them, and with other Perſons of Intereſt in the Nation, how this great Burthen of governing England, Scotland, and Ireland with the Armies therein, and the Navy at Sea, ſhould be born, and by whom. They, after ſeveral days ſeeking of God, and adviſing in this Matter, reſolved, That a Council of godly, able, and diſcreet Perſons ſhould be named, conſiſting of twenty one; and that the Lord General ſhould be choſen Lord Protector of the three Nations.

The Protector inſtall'd. His Excellency the General, about three in the Afternoon came from Whitehall to the Chancery Court, in this Equipage.

Firſt went the Commiſſioners of the Great Seal, then the Judges and Barons in their Robes, after them the Council of the Commonwealth, then the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Recorder of London; after them, the Lord General attended with the chief Officers of the Army; a Chair of State was ſet in the Chancery Court, and the General ſtood on the left hand of it uncover'd, till a large Writing in Parchment was read, containing the Power with which his Excellency was inveſted, and how he was to govern the three Nations, and the Oath to be taken by him. His Excellency ſubſcribed this Writing in the face of the Court, and had the Oath given him by the Lord Commiſſioner Liſle: and after this, his Excellency ſat down in the Chair cover'd, then the Commiſſioners deliver'd up the Great Seal to him, and the Lord Mayor his Sword and Cap, the which his Excellency returned immediately again to him; then the Court roſe, and they went back to Whitehall; the Lord Mayor himſelf uncover'd, carrying the Sword before the Lord Protector; and coming into the Banqueting Houſe, Mr. Lockier made an Exhortation to them, and ſo the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Judges departed. Decemb.

The Inſtrument which his Excellency ſubſcribed was in theſe Words,

The Government of the Commonwealth of England, Scotland, and Ireland.

I.

THAT the ſupreme Legiſlative Authority of the Commonwealth of England, Scotland, and Ireland, and the Dominions thereto belonging, ſhall be, and reſide in one Perſon, and the People aſſembled in Parliament; the Style of which Perſon ſhall be, Lord PROTECTOR of the Commonwealth of England, Scotland, and Ireland.

II.

That the Exerciſe of the chief Magiſtracy and Adminiſtration of the Government over the ſaid Countries and Dominions, and the People thereof, ſhall be in the Lord PROTECTOR, aſſiſted with a Council; the Number whereof ſhall not exceed Twenty one, nor be leſs than Thirteen.

III.

That all Writs, Proceſſes, Commiſſions, Patents, Grants, and other things, which now run in the Name and Style of the Keepers of the Liberty of England by Authority of Parliament, ſhall run in the Name and Style of the Lord PROTECTOR, from whom, for the future, ſhall be derived all Magiſtracy and Honours in theſe three Nations; and ſhall have the Power of Pardons (except in caſe of Murder and Treaſon) and Benefits of all Forfeitures for the publick Uſe; and ſhall govern the ſaid Countries and Dominions in all things by the Advice of the Council; and according to theſe Preſents, and the Laws.

IV.

That the Lord PROTECTOR, the Parliament ſitting, ſhall diſpoſe and order the Militia and Forces both by Sea and Land, for the Peace and Good of the three Nations, by conſent of Parliament; and that the Lord PROTECTOR, with the Advice and Conſent of the major part of the Council, ſhall diſpoſe and order the Militia for the ends aforeſaid, in the Intervals of Parliament.

V.

That the Lord PROTECTOR by the Advice aforeſaid ſhall direct, in all things, concerning the keeping and holding of a good Correſpondency with foreign Kings, Princes and States; and alſo with the Conſent of the major part of the Council have the Power of War and Peace.

VI.

That the Laws ſhall not be altered, ſuſpended, abrogated or repealed, nor any new Law made, nor any Tax, Charge, or Impoſition laid upon the People, but by common Conſent in Parliament, ſave only as is expreſſed in the thirteenth Article.

Anno 1653.

VII.

That there ſhall be a Parliament ſummoned to meet at Weſtminſter upon the third day of September, one thouſand ſix hundred fifty four; and that ſucceſſively a Parliament ſhall be ſummoned once in every third year, to be accounted from the Diſſolution of the preceding Parliament.

VIII.

That neither the Parliament to be next ſummoned, nor any ſucceſſive Parliaments, ſhall, during the time of five Months, to be accounted from the day of their firſt meeting, be adjourned, prorogued, or diſſolved, without their own Conſent.

IX.

That as well the next, as all other ſucceſſive Parliaments, ſhall be ſummoned and elected in manner hereafter expreſſed: That is to ſay, the Perſons to be choſen within England, Wales, the Iſles of Jerſey and Guernſey, and the Town of Berwick upon Tweed, to ſit and ſerve in Parliament, ſhall be, and not exceed the Number of four hundred. The Perſons to be choſen within Scotland, to ſit and ſerve in Parliament, ſhall be, and not exceed the Number of thirty; and the Perſons to be choſen to ſit in Parliament for Ireland, ſhall be, and not exceed the Number of thirty.

X.

That the Perſons to be elected to ſit in Parliament from time to time for the ſeveral Counties of England, Wales, the Iſles of Jerſey and Guernſey, and the Town of Berwick upon Tweed, and all Places within the ſame reſpectively, ſhall be according to the Proportions and Numbers hereafter expreſſed, that is to ſay,

The

Anno 1653.

The diſtribution of the Perſons to be choſen for Scotland, and the ſeveral Counties, Cities, and Places within the ſame, ſhall be according to ſuch proportions and number, as ſhall be agreed upon, and declared by the Lord Protector and the major part of the Council, before the ſending forth Writs of Summons for the next Parliament. The diſtribution of the Perſons to be choſen for Ireland, and the ſeveral Counties, Cities, and Places within the ſame, ſhall be according to ſuch proportions and number, as ſhall be agreed upon, and declared by the Lord Protector, and the major part of the Council, before the ſending forth Writs of Summons for the next Parliament.

XI.

That the Summons to Parliament ſhall be by writ under the Great Seal of England, directed to the Sheriffs of the ſeveral and reſpective Counties, with ſuch alteration as may ſuit with the preſent Government, to be made by the Lord Protector and his Council, which the Chancellor, Keeper, or Commiſſioners of the Great Seal, ſhall ſeal, iſſue, and ſend abroad by Warrant from the Lord Protector. If the Lord Protector ſhall not give Warrant for iſſuing of Writs of Summons for the next Parliament, before the firſt day of June, one thouſand ſix hundred fifty four, or for the Triennial Parliaments, before the firſt day of Auguſt in every third Year, to be accounted as aforeſaid; that then the Chancellor, Keeper, or Commiſſioners of the Great Seal for the time being, ſhall, without any Warrant or direction, within ſeven days after the ſaid firſt day of June, one thouſand ſix hundred fifty four, ſeal, iſſue, and ſend abroad Writs of Summons (changing therein what is to be changed as aforeſaid) to the ſeveral and reſpective Sheriffs of England, Scotland, and Ireland, for ſummoning the Parliament to meet at Weſtminſter, the third of September next; and ſhall likewiſe within ſeven days after the ſaid firſt day of Auguſt, in every third Year, to be accounted from the Diſſolution of the precedent Parliament, ſeal, iſſue, and ſend abroad ſeveral Writs of Summons, changing therein what is to be changed, as aforeſaid, for ſummoning the Parliament to meet at Weſtminſter the ſixth of November in that third Year. That the ſaid ſeveral and reſpective Sheriffs ſhall, within ten days after the receipt of ſuch Writs as aforeſaid, cauſe the ſame to be proclaimed and publiſhed in every Market Town within his County, upon the Market days thereof, between twelve and three of the Clock; and ſhall then alſo publiſh and declare the certain Day of the Week and Month for chooſing Members to ſerve in Parliament for the Body of the ſaid County, according to the tenor of the ſaid Writ, which ſhall be upon Wedneſday five Weeks after the date of the Writ; and ſhall likewiſe declare the place where the Election ſhall be made; for which purpoſe he ſhall appoint the moſt convenient place for the whole County to meet in, and ſhall ſend Precepts for Elections to be made in all and every City, Town, Borough or Place within his County, where Elections are to be made by virtue of theſe Preſents, to the Mayor, Sheriff, or other head Officer of ſuch City, Town, Borough, or Place, within three days after the receipt of ſuch Writ and Writs, which the ſaid Mayors, Sheriffs and Officers reſpectively are to make publication of, and of the certain day for ſuch Elections to be made in the ſaid City, Town or Place aforeſaid, and to cauſe Elections to be made accordingly.

XII.

That at the day and place of Elections, the Sheriff of each County, and the ſaid Mayors, Sheriffs, Bailiffs and other head Officers within their Cities, Towns, Boroughs and Places reſpectively, ſhall take view of the ſaid Elections, and ſhall make return into the Chancery within twenty days after the ſaid Elections of the Perſons elected by the greater number of Electors, under their Hands and Seals, between him on the one part, and the Electors on the other part; wherein ſhall be contained, that the Perſons elected ſhall not have power to alter the Government as it is hereby ſettled in one ſingle Perſon and a Parliament. Decemb.

XIII.

That the Sheriff, who ſhall wittingly and willingly make any falſe Return, or neglect his Duty, ſhall incur the penalty of two thouſand Marks of lawful Engliſh Money; the one moiety to the Lord Protector, and the other moiety to ſuch Perſon as will ſue for the ſame.

XIV.

That all and every Perſon and Perſons, who have aided, adviſed, aſſiſted, or abetted in any War againſt the Parliament, ſince the firſt day of January, one thouſand ſix hundred forty one (unleſs they have been ſince in the ſervice of the Parliament, and given ſignal Teſtimony of their good Affections thereunto) ſhall be diſabled, and be uncapable to be elected, or to give any Vote in the Election of any Members to ſerve in the next Parliament, or in the three ſucceeding Triennial Parliaments.

XV.

That all ſuch, who have adviſed, aſſiſted, or abetted the Rebellion of Ireland, ſhall be diſabled and uncapable for ever to be elected, or to give any Vote in the Election of any Member to ſerve in Parliament; as alſo all ſuch who do or ſhall profeſs the Roman Catholick Religion.

XVI.

That all Votes and Elections given or made contrary, or not according to theſe Qualifications, ſhall be null and void: And if any Perſon who is hereby made uncapable, ſhall give his Vote for Election of Members to ſerve in Parliament, ſuch Perſon ſhall loſe and forfeit one full Year's value of his real Eſtate, and one full third part of his perſonal Eſtate; one moiety thereof to the Lord Protector, and the other moiety to him, or them who ſhall ſue for the ſame.

XVII.

That the Perſons who ſhall be elected to ſerve in Parliament, ſhall be ſuch (and no other than ſuch) as are Perſons of known Integrity, fearing God, and of good Converſation, and being of the age of one and twenty Years.

XVIII.

That all and every Perſon and Perſons ſeized or poſſeſſed to his own uſe, of any Eſtate real or perſonal, to the value of two hundred Pounds, and not within the aforeſaid Exceptions, ſhall be capable to elect Members to ſerve in Parliament for Counties.

XIX.

That the Chancellor, Keeper, or Commiſſioners of the Great Seal, ſhall be ſworn before they enter into their Offices, truly and faithfully to iſſue forth and ſend abroad Writs of Summons to Parliaments at the times, and in the manner before expreſt; and, in caſe of neglect or failure to iſſue and ſend abroad Writs accordingly, he or they ſhall for every ſuch offence be guilty of High Treaſon, and ſuffer the Pains and Penalties thereof.

XX.

That in caſe Writs be not iſſued out, as is before expreſt, but that there be a neglect therein, fifteen days

Anno 1653. days after the time wherein the ſame ought to be iſſued out by the Chancellor, Keeper, or Commiſſioners of the Great Seal, that then the Parliament ſhall, as often as ſuch failure ſhall happen, aſſemble and be held at Weſtminſter, in the uſual place, at the times prefixt, in manner and by the means hereafter expreſſed; that is to ſay, that the Sheriffs of the ſeveral and reſpective Counties, Sherivedoms, Cities, Boroughs, and Places aforeſaid, within England, Wales, Scotland, and Ireland, the Chancellor, Maſters and Scholars of the Univerſity of Oxford and Cambridge, and the Mayor and Bailiffs of the Borough of Berwick upon Tweed, and other the Places aforeſaid reſpectively, ſhall at the ſeveral Courts and Places to be appointed as aforeſaid, within thirty days after the ſaid fifteen days, cauſe ſuch Members to be choſen for their ſaid ſeveral and reſpective Counties, Sherivedoms, Univerſities, Cities, Boroughs and Places aforeſaid, by ſuch Perſons and in ſuch manner, as if ſeveral and reſpective Writs of Summons to Parliament under the Great Seal had iſſued and been awarded, according to the Tenor aboveſaid: that if the Sheriff, or other Perſons authorized, ſhall neglect his or their Duty herein, that all and every ſuch Sheriff and Perſon authorized as aforeſaid, ſo neglecting his or their Duty, ſhall, for every ſuch offence, be guilty of High Treaſon, and ſhall ſuffer the Pains and Penalties thereof.

XXI.

That the Clerk, called the Clerk of the Commonwealth, in Chancery for the time being, and all others, who ſhall afterwards execute that Office, to whom the Returns ſhall be made, ſhall for the next Parliament, and the two ſucceeding Triennial Parliaments, the next day after ſuch Return, certify the Names of the ſeveral Perſons ſo returned, and of the Places for which he and they were choſen reſpectively, unto the Council, who ſhall peruſe the ſaid Returns, and examine whether the Perſons ſo elected and returned be ſuch as is agreeable to the Qualifications, and not diſabled to be elected: And that every Perſon and Perſons being ſo duly elected, and being approved of by the major part of the Council to be Perſons not diſabled, but qualified as aforeſaid, ſhall be eſteemed a Member of Parliament, and be admitted to ſit in Parliament, and not otherwiſe.

XXII.

That the Perſons choſen and aſſembled in manner aforeſaid, or any ſixty of them, ſhall be, and be deemed the Parliament of England, Scotland and Ireland; and the ſupreme Legiſlative Power to be and reſide in the Lord Protector and ſuch Parliament, in manner herein expreſt.

XXIII.

That the Lord Protector, with the advice of the major part of the Council, ſhall at any other time than is before expreſt, when the neceſſities of the State ſhall require it, ſummon Parliaments in manner before expreſt, which ſhall not be Adjourned, Prorogued, or Diſſolved without their own conſent, during the firſt three Months of their ſitting: and in caſe of future War with any Foreign State, a Parliament ſhall be forthwith ſummoned for their Advice concerning the ſame.

XXIV.

That all Bills agreed unto by the Parliament, ſhall be preſented to the Lord Protector for his Conſent; and in caſe he ſhall not give his Conſent thereto, within twenty days after they ſhall be preſented to him, or give ſatisfaction to the Parliament within the time limited; that then, upon Declaration of the Parliament, that the Lord Protector hath not conſented nor given ſatisfaction, ſuch Bills ſhall paſs into, and become Laws, although he ſhall not give his Conſent thereunto; provided ſuch Bills contain nothing in them contrary to the matters contained in theſe Preſents. Decemb.

XXV.

That Philip Lord Viſcount Liſle, Charles Fleetwood Eſquire; John Lambert Eſquire; Sir Gilbert Pickering Baronet, Sir Charles Wolſeley Baronet, Sir Anthony Aſhley-Cooper Bar. Edward Montague Eſq; John Desborough Eſq; Walter Strickland Eſq; Henry Lawrence Eſq; William Sydenham Eſq; Philip Jones Eſq; Richard Major Eſq; Francis Rouſe, Philip Skipton Eſqs; or any ſeven of them, ſhall be a Council for the purpoſes expreſt in this Writing; and upon the Death, or other removal of any of them, the Parliament ſhall nominate ſix Perſons of Ability, Integrity, and fearing God, for every one that is dead or removed, out of which the major part of the Council ſhall elect two, and preſent them to the Lord Protector, of which he ſhall elect one: and in caſe the Parliament ſhall not nominate within twenty days after notice given unto them thereof, the major part of the Council ſhall nominate three as aforeſaid to the Lord Protector, who out of them ſhall ſupply the vacancy; and until this choice be made, the remaining part of the Council ſhall execute as fully in all things, as if their number were full: and in caſe of Corruption, or other Miſcarriage in any of the Council in their Truſt, the Parliament ſhall appoint ſeven of their numbers, and the Council ſix, who together with the Lord Chancellor, Lord Keeper, or Commiſſioners of the Great Seal for the time being, ſhall have Power to hear and determine ſuch Corruption and Miſcarriage, and to award and inflict Puniſhment, as the nature of the Offence ſhall deſerve; which Puniſhment ſhall not be pardoned or remitted by the Lord Protector: and in the interval of Parliaments, the major part of the Council, with the conſent of the Lord Protector, may for Corruption, or other Miſcarriage as aforeſaid, ſuſpend any of their number from the exerciſe of their Truſt, if they ſhall find it juſt, until the matter ſhall be heard and examined as aforeſaid.

XXVI.

That the Lord Protector and the major part of the Council aforeſaid, may at any time before the meeting of the next Parliament, add to the Council ſuch Perſons as they ſhall think fit; provided the number of the Council be not made thereby to exceed one and twenty, and the Quorum to be proportioned accordingly by the Lord Protector and the major part of the Council.

XXVII.

That a conſtant yearly Revenue ſhall be raiſed, ſettled and eſtabliſhed for maintaining of ten thouſand Horſe and Dragoons, and twenty thouſand Foot, in England, Scotland and Ireland, for the defence and ſecurity thereof, and alſo for the convenient number of Ships for guarding of the Seas; beſides two hundred thouſand Pounds per annum for defraying the other neceſſary Charges for adminiſtration of Juſtice, and other Expences of the Government: which Revenue ſhall be raiſed by the Cuſtoms, and ſuch other ways and means as ſhall be agreed upon by the Lord Protector and Council, and ſhall not be taken away or diminiſhed, nor the way agreed upon for raiſing the ſame altered, but by the conſent of the Lord Protector and the Parliament.

XXVIII. That

Anno 1653.

XXVIII.

That the ſaid yearly Revenue ſhall be paid into the publick Treaſury, and ſhall be iſſued out for the Uſes aforeſaid.

XXIX.

That in caſe their ſhall not be cauſe hereafter to keep up ſo great a Defence at Land or Sea, but that there be an abatement made thereof; the Money which will be ſaved thereby, ſhall remain in Bank for the publick Service, and not be employed to any other uſe but by conſent of Parliament; or in the intervals of Parliament, by the Lord Protector and major part of the Council.

XXX.

That the raiſing of Money for defraying the Charge of preſent extraordinary Forces both at Land and Sea, in reſpect of the preſent Wars, ſhall be by conſent in Parliament and not otherwiſe; ſave only that the Lord Protector, with the conſent of the major part of the Council, for preventing the Diſorders and Dangers which may otherwiſe fall out both at Sea and Land, ſhall have Power, until the meeting of the firſt Parliament, to raiſe Money for the purpoſes aforeſaid, and alſo to make Laws and Ordinances for the Peace and welfare of theſe Nations where it ſhall be neceſſary, which ſhall be binding and in force, untill order ſhall be taken in Parliament concerning the ſame.

XXXI.

That the Lands, Tenements, Rents, Royalties, Juriſdictions and Hereditaments which remain yet unſold or undiſpoſed of by Act or Ordinance of Parliament, belonging to the Commonwealth, (except the Foreſts and Chaſes, and the Honours and Manours belonging to the ſame; the Lands of the Rebels in Ireland lying in the four Counties of Dublin, Cork, Kildare and Katerlaugh; the Lands forfeited by the People of Scotland in the late Wars; and alſo the Lands of Papiſts and Delinquents in England, who have not yet compounded) ſhall be veſted in the Lord Protector; to hold, to him and his Succeſſors, Lord Protectors of theſe Nations, and ſhall not be alienated, but by conſent in Parliament: and all Debts, Fines, Iſſues, Amerciaments, Penalties and Profits, certain and caſual, due to the Keepers of the Liberties of England by Authority of Parliament, ſhall be due to the Lord Protector, and be payable into his publick Receipt, and ſhall be recovered and proſecuted in his Name.

XXXII.

That the Office of the Lord Protector over theſe Nations, ſhall be Elective and not Hereditary; and upon the death of the Lord Protector, another fit Perſon ſhall be forthwith Elected to ſucceed him in the Government, which Election ſhall be by the Council; who, immediatly upon the death of the Lord Protector, ſhall aſſemble in the Chamber where they uſually ſit in Council; and having given notice to all their number, of the cauſe of their aſſembling, ſhall, being thirteen at leaſt preſent, proceed to the Election; and before they depart out of the ſaid Chamber, ſhall elect a fit Perſon to ſucceed in the Government, and forthwith cauſe Proclamation thereof to be made in all the three Nations, as ſhall be requiſite: and the Perſon that they, or the major part of them ſhall elect as aforeſaid, ſhall be, and ſhall be taken to be Lord Protector over theſe Nations of England, Scotland and Ireland, and the Dominions thereto belonging: provided that none of the Children of the late King, nor any of his Line or Family, be elected to be Lord Protector, or other chief Magiſtrate over theſe Nations, or any the Dominions thereto belonging. And until the aforeſaid Election be paſt, the Council ſhall take care of the Government, and adminiſter in all things as fully as the Lord Protector, or the Lord Protector and Council are enabled to do. Decemb.

XXXIII.

XXXIV.

That the Chancellor, Keeper, or Commiſſioners of the Great Seal, the Treaſurer, Admiral, chief Governors of Ireland and Scotland, and the Chief Juſtices of both the Benches, ſhall be choſen by the approbation of Parliament; and in the intervals of Parliament, by the approbation of the major part of the Council, to be afterwards approved by the Parliament.

XXXV.

That the Chriſtian Religion contained in the Scriptures, be held forth and recommended as the publick Profeſſion of theſe Nations; and that as ſoon as may be, a Proviſion leſs ſubject to ſcruple and contention, and more certain than the preſent, be made for the encouragement and maintenance of able and painful Teachers for inſtructing the People, and for diſcovery and confutation of Error, Hereſy, and whatever is contrary to ſound Doctrine: and that, until ſuch Proviſion be made, the preſent Maintenance ſhall not be taken away or impeached.

XXXVI.

That to the publick Profeſſion held forth, none ſhall be compelled by penalties or otherwiſe, but that Endeavours be uſed to win them by ſound Doctrine, and the example of a good Converſation.

XXXVII.

That ſuch as profeſs Faith in God by Jeſus Chriſt (though differing in judgment from the Doctrine, Worſhip, or Diſcipline publickly held forth) ſhall not be reſtrained from, but ſhall be protected in the profeſſion of the Faith, and exerciſe of their Religion; ſo as they abuſe not this liberty, to the civil Injury of others, and to the actual Diſturbance of the publick Peace on their parts: provided this Liberty be not extended to Popery or Prelacy, nor to ſuch as under the profeſſion of Chriſt hold forth and practiſe Licentiouſneſs.

XXXVIII.

That all Laws, Statutes, Ordinances and Clauſes in any Law, Statute and Ordinance to the contrary of the aforeſaid Liberty ſhall be eſteemed as null and void.

XXXIX.

That the Acts and Ordinances of Parliament, made for the ſale or other diſpoſition of the Lands, Rents and Hereditaments of the late King, Queen and Prince, of Archbiſhops and Biſhops, &c. Deans and Chapters, the Lands of Delinquents, and Foreſt Lands, or any of them; or of any other Lands, Tenements, Rents and Hereditaments belonging to the Commonwealth, ſhall no way be impeached or made invalid; but ſhall remain good and firm: and that the ſecurities given by Act and Ordinance of Parliament for any ſum or ſums of Money, by any of the ſaid Lands, the Exciſe, or

Anno 1653. or by any other publick Revenue; and alſo the Securities given by the publick Faith of the Nation, and the Engagement of the publick Faith for Satisfaction of Debts and Damages ſhall remain firm and good, and not be made void and invalid upon any Pretence whatſoever.

XL.

That the Articles given to, or made with the Enemy, and afterwards confirmed by Parliament, ſhall be performed and made good to the Perſons concerned therein; and that ſuch Appeals as were depending in the laſt Parliament, for Relief concerning Bills of Sale of Delinquents Eſtates, may be heard and determined the next Parliament, any thing in this Writing, or otherwiſe to the contrary notwithſtanding.

XLI.

That every ſucceſſive Lord Protector over theſe Nations, ſhall take and ſubſcribe a ſolemn Oath in the preſence of the Council, and ſuch others as they ſhall call to them; that he will ſeek the Peace, Quiet and Welfare of theſe Nations, cauſe Law and Juſtice to be equally adminiſtred, and that he will not violate or infringe the matters and things contained in this Writing, and in all other things will to his Power, and to the beſt of his Underſtanding govern theſe Nations, according to the Laws, Statutes and Cuſtoms.

XLII.

That each Perſon of the Council ſhall before they enter upon their Truſt, take and ſubſcribe an Oath, that they will be true and faithful in their Truſt, according to the beſt of their Knowledge; and that in the Election of every ſucceſſive Lord Protector, they ſhall proceed therein impartially, and do nothing therein for any Promiſe, Fear, Favour or Reward.

The Oath taken by his Highneſs Oliver Cromwell, Lord Protector.

WHereas the major Part of the laſt Parliament (judging that their ſitting any longer as then conſtituted, would not be for the good of this Commonwealth) did diſſolve the ſame, and by a Writing under their Hands, dated the twelfth Day of this Inſtant December, reſigned unto me their Powers and Authorities; and whereas it was neceſſary thereupon, that ſome ſpeedy Courſe ſhould be taken for the Settlement of theſe Nations upon ſuch a Baſis and Foundation, as by the Bleſſing of God might be laſting, ſecure Property, and anſwer thoſe great Ends of Religion and Liberty ſo long contended for; and upon full and mature Conſideration had of the Form of Government hereunto annexed, being ſatisfied that the ſame, through divine Aſſiſtance, may anſwer the Ends aforementioned; and having alſo been deſired and adviſed, as well by ſeveral Perſons of Intereſt and Fidelity in this Commonwealth, as the Officers of the Army, to take upon me the Protection and Government of theſe Nations, in the Manner expreſſed in the ſaid Form of Government, I have accepted thereof, and do hereby declare my Acceptance accordingly; and do promiſe in the preſence of God, that I will not violate or infringe the Matters and Things contained therein, but to my Power obſerve the ſame, and cauſe them to be obſerved; and ſhall in all other things to the beſt of my Underſtanding, govern theſe Nations according to the Laws, Statutes, and Cuſtoms, ſeeking their Peace, and cauſing Juſtice and Law to be equally adminiſtred. Decemb.

O. Cromwell.

Oliver Cromwell, Captain General of all the Forces of this Commonwealth, and now declared Lord Protector thereof, did this ſixteenth Day of December, One thouſand ſix hundred fifty three, ſign this Writing, and ſolemnly promiſe, as is therein contained, in preſence of the Lords Commiſſioners of the Great Seal of England, who adminiſtred the ſame Oath, and of the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the City of London, divers of the Judges of the Land, the Officers of State and Army, and many other Perſons of Quality.

The Writing mentioned in the Oath was in theſe Words,

December 12, 1653.

UPon a Motion this Day made in the Houſe, that the Sitting of this Parliament any longer, as now conſtituted, will not be for the good of the Commonwealth; and that therefore it was requiſite to deliver up unto the Lord General Cromwell, the Powers which they received from him; theſe Members whoſe Names are underwritten, have, and do hereby reſign their ſaid Powers to his Excellency.

The ſame Day the Council did ſet forth this Proclamation.

By the COUNCIL.

WHereas the late Parliament diſſolving themſelves, and reſigning their Powers and Authorities, the Government of the Commonwealth of England, Scotland and Ireland, by a Lord Protector, and ſucceſſive Triennial Parliaments, is now eſtabliſhed; and whereas Oliver Cromwell, Captain General of all the Forces of this Commonwealth, is declared Lord Protector of the ſaid Nations, and hath accepted thereof: We have therefore thought it neceſſary (as we hereby do) to make Publication of the Premiſes, and ſtrictly to charge and command all, and every Perſon and Perſons, of what Quality and Condition ſoever, in any of the ſaid three Nations, to take notice thereof, and to conform and ſubmit themſelves to the Government ſo eſtabliſhed. And all Sheriffs, Mayors, Bailiffs, and other publick Miniſters and Officers, whom this may concern, are required to cauſe this Proclamation to be forthwith publiſhed in their reſpective Counties, Cities, Corporations and Market Towns; to the end, none may have Cauſe to pretend Ignorance in this behalf.

Letters that the French labour'd hard to be comprehended within the Treaty. Monſieur Chanute their Ambaſſador at the Hague in the Aſſembly of the States General, ſpake to this Effect;

Speech of Chanute the French Ambaſſador.

'HAving underſtood by the Deputies of this State in England, who viſited me after their Return by Order of their Superiors, that their Negotiations have brought the Treaty of Peace to equitable Conditions, I come in the Name of the King my Maſter, to congratulate with your High Puiſſances, and to wiſh that this great Affair may be readily determined to the Honour and Advantage of your Provinces.

'I am alſo to thank your High Puiſſances for the conſtant and faithful Communication which hath been given of this whole Negotiation to the Miniſters of the King in England, by your Deputies to Monſieur de Bourdeaux, Neuf Ville, and to me in this Court by your High Puiſſances your ſelves, which hath not been done as a ſimple Compliment, but becauſe of the Community of Intereſts in this Peace, and to make known to the King the Care which the Lords Deputies have had according to their Inſtructions to comprehend France within the Pacification.

'I doubt not, but your High Puiſſances will perſiſt to effect in this good Intention, and to obtain a Point ſo eaſy, ſince the Inſtances of your Deputies have reduced unto commodious Terms a great Number of the moſt difficult Articles; ſo that it ſeems, this only Point is reſerved to your High Puiſſances, to the end that the Honour of this great Office rendred to a potent King your old Ally, may be by the whole Body of your State.

'I therefore deſire you, in the Name of his Majeſty, ſo to carry on this Buſineſs, that he may be compriſed in the Treaty of Peace with England, and forthwith to do that your ſelves, which you gave Inſtructions to your Deputies to do; nevertheleſs the Affection of his Majeſty to this State is ſuch, and ſo pure, that for his own Intereſt alone, he would not have made this Requeſt, if it had not been equally advantageous to the good of theſe Provinces. April.

'But ſince there is nothing more deſirable to your High Puiſſances, than an Union with France and England, if it ſhould be otherwiſe, it were impoſſible that the Trade of the State ſhould not be extremely interrupted, being to paſs daily through a ſtrait Channel between two powerful Nations, Enemies, and armed one againſt the other; that the free Trade with France (which ſpends more of foreign Commodities, than any other Part of Europe, and furniſheth more of her own to Strangers) would not be beneficial to your Subjects, if it ſhould be no Peace, but a kind of languiſhing, ruinous Careleſſneſs; and that thereby the Freedom of Trade ſhould not be deſtroyed. Theſe are the open and manifeſt Propoſitions upon which I am to rely.

'But theſe are Reaſons above the Conſideration of Profit, and which render the Incluſion of France in this Treaty to be, as it were neceſſary.

'The Peace will unarm the States, becauſe your Subjects, wearied with the War, would fain enjoy reſt and the fruits thereof, and be diſcharged of the Burdens occaſioned by the Expences of the War.

'It is not altogether ſo here at this time as in England, where the Protector conſtantly entertaineth a powerful Land-Army, and alſo Sea-Forces; whereas always when a State lays down Arms to enjoy Peace, they muſt provide inſtead of Arms ſtrong and powerful Alliances, as Cautions of their Peace. Whereupon their High Puiſſances may judge of two things, firſt, in what Condition ſhall France be to aſſiſt you, if there ſhould be need, having much ado to keep herſelf from Civil Wars, keeping ſo many Forces in the mean time, and alone ſuſtaining the whole Weight of the great Houſe of Auſtria; ſhe may be alſo attacked by England on one ſide; and in the ſecond place, ſome Thoughts may come into the Mind of his Majeſty, if he know that his Intereſts are ſo little regarded in theſe Provinces.

'There are likewiſe many things to be obſerved touching the Security of the Peace on the part of the State of England, without entring into the Diſcuſſion of the Rights of People and of Sovereigns, whereof Strangers are not Judges; for it is true, that the Force and the Subſiſtence of the preſent Government conſiſteth in the Authority and Induſtry of one Man only: It is true alſo, that Jealouſy of Trade which hath chiefly occaſioned the Differences of the Provinces with England, and that the Deſire of drawing to themſelves the Trade, will not be ended by the Peace: It is alſo true, that there is great Difference of Humour between the two Nations; and in fine it is known, that there remain certain Pretences of Superiority, which are not cleared, but continue diſſembled.

'In the midſt of all theſe Circumſtances, who can promiſe a long and ſure Peace? And is it not neceſſary to engage Friends, and to intereſt them in this Treaty, without expectation that France, being weakned with many Wars at 'once, and theſe Provinces diſabled by the Interruption of Trade, become not in a Condition to yield mutual Aſſiſtance one to another.

Anno. 1654.

'Your High Puiſſances are alſo too juſt to give the World cauſe to ſay, that you regard not your Friends, but in the Moment when you have need of them; and that you neglect to give them like Succour as you expect from them. What will all the Neighbourhood judge of ſuch Proceedings, that while theſe Provinces are treating in England, they let it be known that at the ſame time they are negotiating an Alliance in France; and the Treaty in England being brought near to effect, they ſpeak no more of the Alliance of France.

'One would expect that theſe two Treaties ſhould march with an equal Pace; it will be ſeen that one is advanced, and the other ſtands ſtill. If that of England be concluded, and no mention made of that of France, will it not rather be ſuſpected that an Alliance was propoſed at Paris, to obtain an advantageous Peace at London? But it will not fall out ſo, theſe Diſtruſts have not entered into the Council of the King, the Alliance will proceed, and if in the Project which the Commiſſioners of his Majeſty have given to the Ambaſſador of your High Puiſſances, there be any thing that requires a Temperament, it will be done with Juſtice and Equality: Since France will be free from Miſunderſtanding with England; otherwiſe there would be too much Difference in the Condition of the Contractors; your High Puiſſances finding your ſelves in full Peace with Spain and England; and France being overcharged with new Troubles from England, beſides the War which ſhe ſuſtains againſt Spain.

'The ſame Juſtice to procure for France the Accommodations with England, appears clearly in the Deſign which your High Puiſſances diſcovered when you reſolved to treat an Alliance with France; for they thereupon gave Inſtructions to their Ambaſſadors in two Caſes, the one of the Peace, the other of the War with England; deſiring in the laſt Caſe, that the King ſhould employ his Forces for their Succour; and it is Equity that you ſhould include in the Peace him, whom you would have engaged in the War; otherwiſe you would reap all the Benefit to your ſelves, and put all the Hazards upon your Friends.

'Theſe Conditions are ſo natural and preſſing, that they may ſurmount the greateſt Obſtacles, if you ſhall include France in the Peace of your High Puiſſances with England; but if you do not, or be found ſlack therein, it cannot be ſaid here, as in other Treaties, that France would not have Peace, for ſhe demandeth it inſtantly.

'It cannot be alledged, what was ſaid to your Deputies on the behalf of the King of Denmark,

'That that Prince did not at all appear by his Miniſters, France hath hers at London: The Engliſh are offended with Denmark; no ſuch thing appears againſt France. It cannot be objected, that our Differences are of long Diſcuſſion and mingled with divers Pretenſions; nor that there is any great War to be determined, or long Animoſities to be extinguiſhed.

'It is not a War, nor is it any Hatred, but theſe Differences between us and England, may rather be named Diſorders in the Commerce of particular Perſons, and are principally upon ſuch Matters as make Application to the Office of Friends, to prevent the Miſchiefs of War before they be declared. The thing then is eaſy of it ſelf, but much more eaſy in the Condition you are in. April.

'England is willing to have a Peace with you; and without ſearching into the Reaſons wherefore they deſire it, it appears ſufficiently that they are willing to have it; parting with ſo many Pretentions which were put forth in the beginning; it is not credible that they would loſe the Occaſion of this Accommodation with the Provinces in the preſent Conſtitution of Affairs, for this only Circumſtance, the including of France; they would the rather have Peace with your High Puiſſances; if they ſaw you ſtraitly united with France. And if it ſhould fall out otherwiſe, it would neceſſarily be believed, that England had higher Deſigns, that it were joined with Spain; and that the Peace preſented to the United Provinces were but a blind, to diſunite them from their ancient Friends, and to ruin them with joint Forces of the Spaniards, when they had ſeparated them. But I have no ſuch Opinion; I eſteem England to treat ſincerely with your High Puiſſances, and hope that after you have well conſidered this Inclusion which I demand of you in the Peace, what profit it will bring, how neceſſary for your Trade, and to the ſecurity of a reaſonable Treaty among Friends, juſt between Allies and eaſy to be obtained; you will not loſe the favourable occaſion, to perform one of the beſt Actions that hath been done, ſince the foundation of your State; promoting a Peace to a great Kingdom, doing a good office to a powerful King, and making known to all the World, what they may expect from your Friendſhip.

'Hereupon, I ſhall attend the Anſwer of your High Puiſſances, to make it known unto the King my Maſter.'

Anno 1654.

Another for the Union of Scotland with England in these Words,

'His Highness the Lord Protector of the Commonwealth of England, Scotland and Ireland, &c. taking into consideration how much it might conduce to the glory of God, and the peace and welfare of the People in this whole Island, that after all those late unhappy Wars and Differences, the People of Scotland should be united with the People of England, into one Commonwealth and under one Government; and finding that in December one thousand six hundred and fifty one, the Parliament then sitting did send Commissioners into Scotland to invite the People of that Nation unto such an happy Union, who proceeded so far therein, that the Shires and Boroughs of Scotland, by their Deputies convened at Dalkeith, and again at Edinburgh, did accept of the said Union and assent thereunto. For the compleating and perfecting of which Union, be it ordained, and it is ordained by his Highness the Lord Protector of the Commonwealth of England, Scotland, and Ireland, and the Dominions thereto belonging, by and with the Advice and Consent of his Council, that all the People of Scotland, and of the Isles of Orkney and Zetland, and of all the Dominions and Territories belonging unto Scotland, are and shall be, and are hereby incorporated into, constituted, established, declared and confirmed one Commonwealth with England; and in every Parliament to be held successively for the said Commonwealth, thirty Persons shall be called from and serve for Scotland.

'And for the more effectual Preservation of this Union, and the Freedom and Safety of the People of this Commonwealth so united, be it ordained, and it is ordained by the Authority aforesaid, that all the People of Scotland, and of the Isles of Orkney and Zetland, and of all the Dominions and Territories belonging unto Scotland, of what Degree or Condition soever, be discharged of all Fealty, Homage, Service and Allegiance, which is or shall be pretended due unto any of the Issue and Posterity of Charles Stuart, late King of England and Scotland, or any claiming under him; or that Charles Stuart eldest Son, and James called Duke of York, second Son; and all other the Issue and Posterity of the said late King, and all and every Person and Persons pretending Title from, by or under him, are and be disabled to hold or enjoy the Crown of Scotland, and other the Dominions thereunto belonging, or any of them, or to have the Name, Title, Stile, or Dignity of King or Queen of Scotland, or to have or enjoy the Power and Dominion of the said Kingdom and Dominions, or any of them, or the Honours, Manors, Lands, Tenements, Possessions and Hereditaments belonging or appertaining to the said Crown of Scotland, or other the Dominions aforesaid, or to any of them, any Law, Statute, Usage, Ordinance, or Custom in Scotland to the contrary hereof in any wise notwithstanding.

'And it is further ordained by the Authority aforesaid, that the said Office, Stile, Dignity, Power and Authority of King of Scotland, and all Right of the three Estates of Scotland, to convocate or Assemble in any General Convocation or Parliament, and all conventional and parliamentary Authority in Scotland, as formerly established, and all Laws, Usages and Customs, ordaining, constituting, or confirming the same, shall be, and are hereby, and from henceforth abolished and utterly taken away, and made null and void. April.

'And that this Union may take its more full Effect and Intent; be it further ordained by the Authority aforesaid, that the Arms of Scotland, viz. a Cross commonly called St. Andrews Cross, be received into, and born from henceforth in the Arms of this Commonwealth, as a Badge of this Union; and that all the publick Seals, Seals of Office, and Seals of Bodies, Civil or Corporate in Scotland, which heretofore carried the Arms of the Kings of Scotland, shall from henceforth instead thereof, carry the Arms of this Commonwealth.

'And be it further ordained by the Authority aforesaid, that all Customs, Excise, and other Imposts for Goods transported from England to Scotland, and from Scotland to England, by Sea or Land, are and shall be so far taken off and discharged, as that all Goods for the future shall pass as free, and with like Privileges, and with the like Charges and Burdens from England to Scotland, and from Scotland to England, as Goods passing from Port to Port, or Place to Place in England; and that all Goods shall and may pass between Scotland, and any other Part of this Commonwealth or the Dominions thereof, with the like Privileges, Freedom, Charges, and Burdens, as such Goods do, or shall pass between England and the said Parts and Dominions, any Law, Statute, Usage or Custom to the contrary thereof, in any wise notwithstanding. And that all Goods prohibited by any Law now in Force in England, to be transported out of England to any foreign Parts, or imported, shall be, and hereby are prohibited to be transported or imported by the same Law and upon the same Penalties, out of Scotland to any foreign Parts aforesaid, or from any foreign Parts into Scotland.

'And be it further ordained by the Authority aforesaid, that all Cesses, publick Impositions and Taxations whatsoever, be imposed, taxed and levied from henceforth proportionably from the whole People of this Commonwealth so united.

'And further, to the end that all Dominion of Tenures, and Superiorities importing Servitude and Vassallage, may likewise be abolished in Scotland; be it further declared and ordained by the Authority aforesaid, that all Heritors, Proprietors, and Possessors of Lands in Scotland, or the Dominions thereunto belonging, and their Heirs shall from and after the twelfth Day of April, in the Year of our Lord, one thousand six hundred fifty and four, hold their respective Lands of the respective Lord and Lords by Deed, Charter, Patent or Enfeofment, to be renewed upon the Death of every Heritor, Proprietor, Possessor, (as now they do) to his Heir or Heirs, by and under such yearly Rents, Boons, and annual Services, as are mentioned or due by any Deeds, Patents, Charters or Enfeofments now in being, of the respective Lands therein expressed, or by vertue thereof enjoyed, without rendring, doing or performing any other Duty, Service, Vassallage or Demand whatsoever, by reason or occasion of the said Lands, or any the Clauses, or Covenants in the said Deeds, Charters, Patents, or Enfeofments contained, saving what is hereafter herein and hereby particularly expressed and declared, that is to 12. Letters that in Ireland there wanted Men to till the Land; that few Tories were left there; that two Breſt Men of War came near to Liverpool.

Letters that in Holland there ſticks one Particular, which hath occaſioned ſome trouble at the Hague; to wit his Highneſs and the two Ambaſſadors here who ſerve for the Province of Holland, viz. Beveningk and Newport, (the other knowing nothing of it,) agreed a ſecret Article, That the Province of Holland ſhould not of themſelves ever conſent, that the States General ſhould make the Prince of Orange, or any of his Line Stadtholder, or Captain General of their Forces, by Sea or Land. Secret Article.

After the Generality had ratified the Treaty, this was propounded in the Aſſembly of the States, every one before having ſworn Secrecy; upon the propounding of it great Diſſatisfaction aroſe amongſt

Anno 1654. mongſt them; but at laſt they paſt it, being Diſſenters, four Noblemen, and four Sovereign Towns; of the Nobles that agreed to it were Bredrode Genetal of their Forces, Opdam Admiral of their Fleet; notwithſtanding the Secrecy it came the next Day to the States General.

The other ſix Provinces have proteſted againſt it, and accuſe the two Ambaſſadors, as having done, not only beſide, but againſt their Inſtructions. But Holland will carry it through all, though I verily believe, they have great difficulties to conteſt with; the Animoſities and Jealouſies, which are occaſioned by this, will not eaſily be extinguiſhed.

His Highneſs hath not yet received the Ratification of this Article from Holland, but expects it daily; although all Endeavours will be uſed to perſuade his Highneſs to go from it.

There is included in this Peace beſides Denmark, the Swiſſers, Hans-Towns, Count of Oldenburgh, the Duke of Holſtein; and Alliance with Sweden being made, there will be a good underſtanding between moſt of the Proteſtant States; and opportunities may, through God's Bleſſing, ariſe from thence to promote that Intereſt. All the Queſtion is, what is to be done with the two Crowns of France and Spain? they both ſeek our Friendſhip and Alliance, but nothing is yet done with either of them. I truſt God will lead to ſuch an Intereſt, as will be for his Glory and the good of this State.

The Denmark Agent Roſenwing had his Publick Audience, ſince which he hath offered nothing; ſo that the Advertiſement concerning him in reference to the Iſles of Orcades, came in very good time.

The Treaty with Portugal is not yet come to any Agreement, the Buſineſs of his Brother yet ſticks; his Highneſs hath now ordered his Trial by a ſpecial Commiſſion of Oyer and Terminer. The Commiſſioners are my Lord Rolles, Juſtice Atkins, Sergeant Steel, Doctor Zouch, Doctor Clerk, Doctor Turner, Sir Henry Blunt, Mr. Lucy, and Alderman Tichburn.

13. Letters that the French Pickaroons did much trouble the Fiſhermen about Rye.

15. That the Enemy will not come near to Colonel Morgan.

A Proclamation by the Commander in Chief in Scotland for Pardon of thoſe in Rebellion, who ſhall come in by a Day; and for their Parents and Relations if they ſhall come in; and impoſing a Fine upon every Pariſh and Presbytery, whereof any one continueth in Rebellion if they do not diſcover him; and Rewards to thoſe that ſhall apprehend any of the Rebels and their principal Commanders, or kill them.

Order of the Juſtices of Peace of Wales againſt Licences to Drovers, &c.

16. The Lord Mayor and Aldermen of London dined with his Highneſs the Lord Protector.

17. An Ordinance for ſuſpending the Proceedings of the Judges, touching Relief of poor Priſoners and Creditors.

Swedland. I having happily concluded the Buſineſs with the Crown of Sweden was upon my Journey homewards.

That Preparations were made for the Queen's Reſignation, and for crowning King Charles.

20. That Ireland was ſettled in as much Peace as it was before the Rebellion. May.

That General Monk was marching Northward, and Middleton and his Party were raiſing new Forces. Monk.

That Middleton's Brother was taken, and five or ſix Officers more; that General Monk had hanged two of them for Spies, and had burnt an Inn in Muſſelburgh for harbouring them.

That the Governor of St. Malos in France, upon ſome Engliſh coming aſhore from their Ships to get freſh Water, took an Alarm, killed divers of the Seamen, and ſhot at the Ships; but they got off, and then he ſeized the Goods, and turned the Engliſh out of the Town.

That the Peace with Holland is entertained here with all Satisfaction, but is not ſo on the other ſide; eſpecially becauſe of the ſecret Article, which excludes the Houſe of Orange's Family from being Stadtholder of the United Provinces, or any of them.

Beſides the Proteſtation which the other ſix Provinces made againſt Holland, as to this, Remonſtrances have been put forth, Pro and Con; and but that the Orange Party fears the Protector's joining with Holland, it is more than probable that they had been in Arms one againſt the other by this time; what the Iſſue will be, Time will ſhew.

Endeavours are uſed to perſuade the Protector to remit the Article, but in vain.

22. Letters that a Party of twenty two Engliſh Dragoons met with ſixty Scots, routed them, killed their Captain, two Cornets, and ſix more, and took divers Horſe and Men.

23. Obſerved as a Day of publick Thankſgiving for the Peace with the Dutch.

That ſome Engliſh Men of War meeting with Dutch Merchant-men, the Dutch ſtruck ſail, and acknowledged the Sovereignty of England in the Seas, and were very civil to the Engliſh. Strike Sail.

Of ſome French Ships taken prize.

24. Divers apprehended on ſuſpicion of a Plot and Conſpiracy againſt the Lord Protector and his Government, and to raiſe a new War. Whereupon the Lord Protector ſet forth a Proclamation for a Liſt to be brought in of the Names of all Lodgers, and of all Inhabitants, and of ſuſpected Perſons in London, Weſtminſter, and the Lines of Communication; the Liſt to be deliver'd into the Council at Whitehall. Plot. Proclamations.

25. Another Proclamation publiſhed by the Lord Protector touching ſome Parts of the Agreement and Peace with the Dutch to be obſerved.

Order of the Lord Protector's Council touching the Monies collected for Relief of thoſe who ſuffer'd by the late Fire at Marlborough?

26. Letters of ſome Pirates upon the Northern Coaſts, pretending Commiſſions from the King of Scots.

That Middleton's Men ran away from him, and fed upon Horſe-fleſh for want of Proviſions.

27. That General Monk was marched towards the Hills to obſerve the Paſſes, and to engage the Enemy if poſſible he can.

29. An Ordinance publiſhed for Preſervation of the Works of the great Level of the Fens.

Debate of a further Act for ejecting ſcandalous, prophane, and ignorant Miniſters. Miniſters.

Lieutenant Colonel Lilburn moved by his Council in the King's-Bench for a Habeas-Corpus, but in regard Lilburn.

That upon mature Conſideration of the Treaſons and Murders, plotted and contrived by them againſt his Highneſs the Lord Protector, and the Commonwealth, and raiſing a bloody War in the ſame, the Court did adjudge them to be hanged.

Mr. Gerrard moved that he might be beheaded, or ſhot to death like a Soldier, and petitioned the Lord Protector to that purpoſe.

Whitelocke's Embaſſy. This Day I gave Account to the Protector and his Council of my Ambaſſy in Sweden, and ſpake to this Effect:

May it pleaſe your Highneſs,

'I Attend by your Command, to give an Account of the Diſcharge of that great Truſt and weighty Burthen which (through the Aſſiſtance of God) I have undergone in my Employment to Sweden, with the Succeſs of that Negotiation; wherein I ſhall not waſte much of your time, for which you have other great Affairs: but in as few Words as I can, I ſhall with clearneſs and truth acquaint your Highneſs and this Honourable Council, with thoſe Matters which I apprehend moſt fit and worthy of your Knowledge.

'After the Receipt of my Commiſſion and Inſtructions from the Parliament then ſitting, to go Ambaſſador unto Sweden, I neglected no time, how unſeaſonable ſoever, to tranſport my ſelf unto that Country. Upon the 5th of November I embarked at the Hope, and after ten Days Voyage through many Storms, Enemies, and Dangers, it pleaſed God on the 15th of November to bring me in ſafety, with all my Company, into the Port of Gottenburgh.

'The next Day I diſpatched two of my Servants to the Court, with Letters to Prince Adolphe the Grand Maſter, and to the Ricks Chancellor of Sweden, to advertiſe them of my Arrival, and to deſire their Advice whither I was to direct my Journey to attend the Queen.

'In the City I received many Civilities and Teſtimonies of Reſpect to the Commonwealth, from the Magiſtrates, Officers, and others there; and a ſmall Conteſt I had with a Dutchman, a Vice-Admiral of her Majeſty's, about our War with his Countrymen, and about ſome Prizes brought in by me; wherein I took the Liberty to juſtify the Proceedings of this State, and after Submiſſion, I ordered the Releaſe of a ſmall Dutch Prize taken by one of my Ships.

'Having refreſhed my ſelf and Company ſome Days in this Place, I began my Land-Journey the laſt Day of November; the Military Officers accompanied me out of Town, the Citizens and Garriſon Soldiers ſtood to their Arms, and with many Volleys of great and ſmall Shot, the Bullets making ſomewhat too near Compliments, they gave me an honourable Farewell.

'In our Journey we met with extreme Hardſhips, both in the Weather, and want of neceſſary Accommodations. In the greater Towns where we quartered, the Magiſtrates and Officers ſhewed great Reſpect to our Commonwealth; only in one Town a little Affront was given in Words by a Prætor, who acknowledged his Fault, and it appeared to proceed more from Drink than Judgment. July.

'In all Places the Officers took great care to furniſh me with what the Country would afford, which I wanted; the Ways were repaired, Wagons and Horſes brought in, and all done that could be by the ſpecial Command of Her Majeſty.

'After twenty one Days in our Land-Journey, near four hundred Miles from Gottenburgh up into the Country in that Climate, in December, through all our Difficulties, it pleaſed God to bring us ſafe to Upſal upon the 20th of December.

'About half a League from the Town, the Maſter of the Ceremonies, and after him two of his Ricks Senators, with the Queen's Coaches, the Spaniſh Reſidents, and divers of the great Officers met me, and with more than ordinary Ceremonies conducted me to an Houſe in the Town, by the Queen's Order taken and furniſhed for me.

'Divers Compliments paſſed from the Queen her ſelf, and many in that Court, expreſſing much Reſpect to this Commonwealth, in the Perſon of your Servant.

'By favour I obtained my firſt Audience from the Queen on the twenty third of December; the particular Paſſages whereof, as of moſt other matters which I have to mention, were in my Letters imparted as they fell out, to Mr. Secretary Thurloe, and by him, I preſume, unto your Highneſs and the Council.

'Two or three Days after this, I procured a private Audience from Her Majeſty, when I ſhewed her my Commiſſion, and appointed to wait on her again with my Propoſals.

'The Spaniſh Reſident Don Piementel expreſſed very high Reſpect to this Commonwealth, and particular Affection to me, who knowing his great Favour with the Queen, I contracted an Intimacy of Friendſhip with him; I had the like with Mr. Woolfeldt, the King of Denmark's Brother in Law, and grew into good Acquaintance with Grave Wrangel, Grave Tot the Queen's Favourite, Grave Leonhagh, Baron Bundt, Baron Vanderlin, and ſeveral other Senators and great Men; eſpecially I got into the favour and affection of the old Chancellor. Mr. Lagerfeldt, Secretary Canterſtein, Mr. Ravins, and ſeveral others were uſeful to me; and of my Countrymen, I had the Aſſiſtance of Major General Fleetwood, a faithful Servant to England; and my noble Friend Colonel Hambleton, the Lord Douglas, Mr. Bloome, and ſome others gave me their Aſſiſtance. Having thus given your Highneſs ſome Account of Perſons, I come now to the Matter of my Negotiation, wherein theſe Perſons were exceedingly uſeful. By Piementel's Advice I made my Applications to the Queen her ſelf, and as much as I could, put the Buſineſs upon her perſonal Determination, which ſhe liked, and proved very advantageous. She her ſelf objected the Unſettledneſs of our Commonwealth, the preſent Peace of her Kingdoms, and we involved in a War; which aroſe upon my preſenting to her all my Articles at once, except three reſerved, the Articles propoſed a League offenſive and defenſive, which enforced the Objection; to which I gave the beſt Anſwers I could, that her Kingdom could not long continue in Peace, and would have as much need of our Aſſiſtance as we of theirs; and our War and Succeſs againſt Holland was an Ar-

Anno 1654.

'gnment that our Friendſhip merited Acceptance; that I hoped our Commonwealth was now ſettled, yet that Leagues were between Nations, not Governments.

'This Debate was very large with her Majeſty, who ſeemed to be ſatisfied with my Anſwers, and appointed her Chancellor to treat with me; who much more inſiſted on the unſettledneſs of our Commonwealth, and the ſame Objections that the Queen had made; to whom I gave the ſame Anſwer, and they proved much the more ſatisfactory after they received the News of your Highneſs's Acceſſion to the Government, which made the Wheels of this Treaty move the more freely.

'I had often and long Diſputes with the Chancellor upon the Article touching Engliſh Rebels not to be harboured in Sweden; moſt of all touching Contraband Goods, and about repairing the Loſſes of the Swedes taken Prizes in our War with the Dutch, beſides many other Objections, whereof I have formerly given a particular Account.

'The Chancellor being ſick, his Son Grave Erick was commiſſionated to treat with me in his Father's ſtead, and was much more averſe to my Buſineſs, and more earneſt upon the Objections than the old Man; who being recovered, I found him the more moderate, yet we could not agree one way or other; and when I preſt for a Concluſion, both the Queen and her Chancellor did ingenuouſly acknowledge, that they deſired firſt to ſee whether the Peace would be made between us and Holland, before they came to a Determination upon the Treaty with me. I could not but apprehend Reaſon therein, and as ſoon as the News came that the Peace between your Highneſs and the Dutch was concluded, I urged a Concluſion of my Treaty, and what the Chancellor and I differed in, the Queen her ſelf was pleaſed to reconcile; and ſo we came to the full Agreement contained in this Inſtrument, ſigned and ſealed by the Queen's Commiſſioners, which I humbly preſent unto your Highneſs and this honourable Board; and which I hope, through the Goodneſs of God, may be of advantage to this Commonwealth, and to the Proteſtant Intereſt in Chriſtendom.

'I cannot but acknowledge the great Goodneſs of God to me in this Tranſaction, in my Preſervation from Attempts againſt my Perſon, raiſing me up ſuch eminent Friends, giving me ſo much favour in the Eyes of Strangers, and giving this good Succeſs unto my Buſineſs, notwithſtanding the Deſigns and Labours of the Enemies of this Commonwealth to the contrary.

'The Treaty with me being thus finiſhed, the Buſineſs came on of the Queen's Reſignation of the Crown, wherein ſhe was pleaſed to expreſs a wonderful Confidence in a Stranger, by imparting it to me many Weeks before, whereof I took the boldneſs to certify your Highneſs. The Prince who was to ſucceed the Queen was ſent for to Upſal, and their Ricksdagh or Parliament was to meet him there in the beginning of May.

'Your Highneſs will believe that your Servant had longing Deſires of returning, and had Advice that your Frigats were in the Elve ſtaying for him; yet judging it might conduce to your Service to ſalute the Prince, and have his Approbation of this Treaty, I ſtaid till his Entry, which was in great State into Upſal, where I ſaluted him from your Highneſs, and acquainted him with my Negotiation, which he well approved. And to teſtify his great Reſpect to your Highneſs and this Commonwealth, he came in perſon to viſit me at my Houſe, and uſed ſuch extraordinary Ceremonies and Favours towards me, as never the like had been done by him to any Ambaſſador before. We had ſeveral Conferences at large, and much Diſcourſe of your Highneſs and this Commonwealth, the Particulars whereof I ſhall acquaint you with at your better leiſure. July.

'The time of the Queen's Reſignation being near, I thought it not convenient for me to be upon the Place at the time of it, but removed, with my Company, to Stockholm, where I was when the Reſignation was with great Solemnity executed.

'The Magiſtrates of this City expreſſed good Reſpect to your Highneſs and this Commonwealth, by their Civilities to your Servant. From hence I embarked the firſt of June in a good Ship of the Queen's, to croſs the Baltick Sea; She ſent one of her Vice-Admirals to attend me, and after a hazardous Voyage, and bad Weather, the Lord gave us a ſafe Arrival at Lubeck on the 7th of June. There ſome of the Magiſtrates with their Sindick, bid me welcome to their City, and expreſſed good Affection to your Highneſs, and made ſome Requeſts by me to this State. From thence I travelled over Holſtein and Luneburgh, and came on the 10th of June to Hamburgh, where I was alſo ſaluted by the Sindick, and ſome of the Magiſtrates; and moſt of them afterwards came to me, and indeed they teſtified an extraordinary Reſpect and Service to your Highneſs and this Commonwealth.

'My Countrymen, the Company of Merchant Adventurers there, ſhewed much Kindneſs to me, and lodged me in their Houſe, and principally Mr. Bradſhaw your Highneſs's Reſident there.

'I departed from thence the 17th of June, and embarked in your Highneſs's Frigats near Gluckſtadt. We were detained for ſome Days in the Elve by croſs Winds, and in ſome danger, but more when we came into the open Sea; and above all, the Lord was pleaſed to appear for us on the 28th of June, when our Ship ſtuck upon the Sands about twelve Leagues off from the Coaſt of Yarmouth; and when there was no Help or Means of Men left for our Eſcape, but we expected every Moment to be devoured by the Waves, then it pleaſed our God to ſhew his Power and free Mercy by his own hand, to deliver us, and after two Hours Expectation of Death, to reprieve us, and to ſet our Ship on float again, and to bring us all in Health and Safety unto your Highneſs's Preſence, and to our dear Country and Relations.

'The Queen and the new King were pleaſed to honour me with their Pictures ſet with Diamonds; and in recompenſe of my Horſes, I received a Preſent of Copper from her Majeſty, I having refuſed to ſell them, as a thing uncomely for my Condition in the Service of this Commonwealth.

'Thus, Sir, I have given you a clear and full Account of my Tranſactions; as I muſt juſtify my own Diligence and Faithfulneſs therein, ſo I cannot but condemn my many Weakneſſes and Failings, for which I can only ſay, They were not wilful: and make an humble Demand to your Highneſs and this honourable Council, that I may obtain your Pardon.'

7. Letters

Anno 1654.

7. Letters that the Highlanders lying in Ambuſcade, fell upon ſome of Colonel Bryan's Men that came from Ireland, and were careleſs; and that the Highlanders killed eighty of them, and two Lieutenants.

8. Mr. Bond was ſent to the three condemned Priſoners in the Tower, to adviſe them touching the State of their Souls, but they were obſtinate, except Mr. Fox who was penitent.

The Portugal Ambaſſador's Brother was reprieved.

10. The Portugal Ambaſſador's Brother endeavoured an Eſcape, but was prevented.

The Engliſh Boy, who was in the Murder with the Portugal Ambaſſador's Brother, was hanged at Tyburn; Mr. Fowel was hanged at the Meuſe-gate; Mr. Fox was reprieved; Mr. Gerrard was beheaded at Tower-hill.

The Portugal Ambaſſador's Brother was conveyed from Newgate to Tower-hill, in a Coach and ſix Horſes in mourning, with divers of his Brother's Retinue with him.

On the Scaffold he ſpake ſomething to thoſe that underſtood him, in excuſe of his Offence, laying the Blame of the Quarrel and Murder upon the Engliſh in that Buſineſs. After a few private Words and Paſſages of Popiſh Devotion with his Confeſſor, he gave him his Beads and Crucifix, laid his Head on the Block, and it was chopt off at two Blows. The reſt condemned for the Murder were all reprieved.

The Articles of Peace were ſigned by the Portugal Ambaſſador, who thereupon went out of Town.

Letters that thoſe of Zealand and Frizeland, were diſcontented at an Order made by the States of Holland, That the Prince of Orange, nor any deſcending from the late King of England, ſhould be Admiral of Holland, or have Power over the Militia.

But upon a Letter to them from the Lord Protector they were pacified.

11. Letters that a Party of forty Engliſh fell upon two hundred and twenty Highlanders, routed them, killed twelve of them, one Captain, and two Cornets; wounded thirty, and took thirty Priſoners, and thirty two Horſes.

That Captain Hilliard took of the Highlanders a Major, two Captains, and fifteen Priſoners, and as many Horſes. Another met with a Cornet and nine Men, and took them all.

That General Monk built a Fort at Lochaber.

12. Order that the Sheriff, making an undue Return of any Parliament Election, ſhall forfeit one hundred Marks, and the Returns to be examined by the Council.

Letters from Sweden, that upon the thirtieth Day of May, the Queen at Upſal made a ſolemn Reſignation of her Crown and Government; in this manner:

About nine a-Clock in the Morning the Queen being attired in Her Royal Robes and Apparel of Purple Velvet, with Her Crown upon Her Head, and attended by Her Officers and Servants, came into the Room prepared for that occaſion, where was a Table with a rich Carpet, and five great Cuſhions laid upon it; moſt of the Grandees and Officers of the Court and Army were preſent.

Upon one of the Cuſhions was laid the Sword of State, upon another of them was laid the Scepter, upon another the Ball, and upon the fourth Cuſhion were laid the Keys.

The Queen being come into the Room, after a little Pauſe, made a ſhort Speech to the Company, acquainting them with Her Reſolution to reſign the Crown and Government of this Kingdom to Her Couſin the Prince Hereditary of Sweden, there ſtanding by Her, to whom She wiſhed all Happineſs and good Succeſs in the Management of the publick Affairs of this Nation; that upon her earneſt Deſire, the Ricksdagh now ſitting, after long Debate and much Sollicitation on her part, had at laſt, though unwillingly, given their Aſſent to this Her Reſolution; and that now She was come to put the ſame in Execution before all thoſe Honourable Witneſſes there preſent. July.

Then She deſired that ſome of them would take the Crown from off Her Head, but none of them would do it; She Her ſelf laid down the Scepter upon one of the Cuſhions on the Table, and the Ball on another Cuſhion, but ſeeing none of them ſtir to take the Crown from off Her Head, She called to Grave Tot, and the Baron Steinbergh, and expreſly commanded them to do it; who after ſome backwardneſs, being again commanded by Her, they took the Crown from off Her Majeſty's Head, and laid it down upon the fifth Cuſhion on the Table.

After that was done, ſome others by Her came and took off the Royal Robes wherewith She was clothed, and laid them down upon the Table. Then the Queen (having thus reſigned the Crown, and deveſted Her ſelf of Her Royal Apparel, Crown and other Enſigns of Royalty) making a Curſey to Her Couſin the Prince, and to the reſt of the Company, She retired into Her own Chamber; not making any Shew outwardly of Repentance or Reluctancy for what She had done; but with the like Behaviour and Confidence as at other times, betook Her ſelf to Her own particular Occaſions.

For this Act of the Queen's Reſignation they had no Preſident. For the Solemnity of the King's Coronation they had many, from which the Coronation of this King was not much different; and was in ſhort thus:

King of Sweden crown'd.

After the Queen was withdrawn to Her private Chamber, the Ricks Officers and Senators humbly deſired the Prince, that He would be pleaſed to walk to the Cathedral Church in Upſal, where the Archbiſhop and other Prelates were ready to attend His Royal Highneſs, and to perform the Solemnities of His Coronation. The whole Company went thither in this Order:

The Officers and Servants of the Court went firſt in a very great Number, together with many Officers of the Army and other Gentlemen; after them came the Nobility, Gentlemen, Barons, and Earls, Members of the Ricksdagh; then followed the Ricks Senators, two and two in Ranks, after them the five Ricks Officers, firſt the Ricks Scats Maſter or Treaſurer who carried the Keys, next him the Ricks Chancellor who carried the Globe, after him the Ricks Admiral who bare the Scepter, then one in the Place of the Feldthere or General who carried the Sword, and after him the Ricks Drotſett or Chief Juſtice, who carried the Crown.

Next to him came the King himſelf in his ordinary Habit, with a huge Troop following him, and the Streets and Windows full of Crowds of People, with the Guards and Soldiers in their Arms as they paſt by. Being thus come to the Cathedral Church, at the Door ſtood the Archbiſhop with a Horn of Oil in his Hand, accompanied with other Biſhops and Clergymen; he received the Prince at the Church Door, and conducted him to the High Altar, where they had Anno 1654. Prayers, and there the Archbiſhop anointed the Prince with Oil; then they put upon him the Royal Robes, and put the Crown upon his Head, the Scepter in his right Hand and the Ball in his left Hand, and ſo he was inveſted into the Royal Dignity, and declared with all his Titles, King of Swedes, Goths and Vandals, &c. Drums, Trumpets, and loud Acclamations of the People were added to the proclaiming of their new King; all of them expreſſed their high Joy that it was done; not many Days ſince they earneſtly laboured to hinder the doing of it, now they ſhout for Joy becauſe it is done; thus are the Minds, this is the Practice of the Multitude, whom nothing pleaſeth long, nothing more than Novelty. The Ceremonies being performed at the Cathedral, the new King with all his new Subjects and Servants returned back from thence unto the Caſtle, in the ſame Order as they came thither, and by the way he was ſaluted by the People, with their loud Shouts of God ſave the King. Thus coming to his Court, the abdicated Queen as he entred, looks out of the Window, and with a chearful Countenance and Voice, heard by the Company, wiſheth her Couſin Joy of his Crown and Government.

He retires for a while to his private Chamber; then is called forth to a ſumptuous Feaſt, where moſt of the Senators and Nobility did attend upon him and rejoice with him.

whole Body broken and diſperſed; ſeveral Scots Officers of Quality taken Priſoners.

31. Letters from General Monk to the Lord Protector, of the Particulars of the routing of Middleton's Army to this Effect,

The Enemy having marched off in a very ſcattered Poſture, upon our Purſuit of them in Argyle, and they bending Northwards, I held it much neceſſary, in regard that both Horſe and Foot with me were much beaten out with continual Marches, to attend their Motion ſlowly, having ſent to Colonel Morgan with his freſh Party to purſue them as he had Intelligence; who marching out of Badenoch to Loughgary, where he intended to quarter that Night, he fell upon Middleton's Body of Horſe who had alſo appointed that ſame Place for their Quarter; after a little Reſiſtance the Enemy ran, and the Paſs being narrow and bogy, quitted their Horſes and diſperſed themſelves; what Execution is done I have not yet notice, but by divers Priſoners who endeavoured to eſcape this way, I am aſſured that their whole Body of Horſe is routed totally, ſo that they will not be able to get any conſiderable Numbers together; among thoſe Priſoners taken, there was brought in by Cornet Baker, Lieutenant Colonel Hay, who lately eſcaped out of Edinburgh Caſtle, and Captain Graham.

I alſo yeſterday ſent out Major Bridge with a Party of Horſe and Dragoons, who fell upon ſome of their ſcattered Horſe and Foot, under Macgrigger, who was left to bring the Stragglers after the Foot to Lochaber; theſe after ſome Reſiſtance ran away.

The Major took ſome Priſoners with divers of their tired Horſes with Baggage, and amongſt the reſt the Earl of Athol's Portmantle, wherein were theſe incloſed Papers, which I thought it my duty to ſend to your Highneſs, as alſo the Incloſed directed into Ireland, which was lately intercepted.

Camp near Weems Caſtle July 21, 1654. I remain your Highneſs's moſt humble Servant, George Monk.

The Letter from Colonel Morgan was this.

Letters from Morgan.

Sir, Upon the nineteenth Inſtant about ſix or ſeven at Night, upon our March toward Rannough, our Scouts diſcovered a Party of the Enemy, which afterwards proved to be Middleton with all his Force, to the Number of eight hundred.

They were on the North ſide of Loughgary, Major Knight and my ſelf being at the Head of our Forlorn, perceiving them to face about, we made to them with all ſpeed, and ſent back Orders for our Horſe to march up after us; we preſently put them to the Rout, purſued them about ſix Miles, and forced them to diſperſe three ways, ſo that Major Liſle, Captain Duckat, and my ſelf followed them one way, Major Knight, Captain Pockley, Captain Day, Captain Merryman another, and Captain Legg, and Captain Ginuel the other; we killed and took many of the Rogues, and near three hundred Horſes taken, Middleton was diſmounted and very much wounded, as ſome of the Priſoners affirm, his charging Horſe was taken by one of my Servants with gallant Furniture and a rich Caſe of Piſtols; one of Captain Babington's Troop took his Sumpter, wherein was rich Apparel, his Commiſſions and Inſtructions, with divers other Letters to him.

One of Colonel Rich's Troop took Kinmore's charging Horſe; Middleton and Kinmore with divers others, were fain to make uſe of their Heels over the Bogs, and if the Night and the Bogs had not prevented us, I believe we had left very few of them undeſtroyed. Auguſt.

But thoſe that eſcaped are totally diſenabled; they had twelve hundred Foot within five Miles of them, which I hear are much diſperſed and gone towards their homes; their Intentions (as the Priſoners inform me) were to march to Caithneſs, where they expected the Arrival of ſome Ships with Men, Arms, and Ammunition. In all this Action the Lord was pleaſed to appear for us, for we had not above four Men wounded, none killed, and two Horſes ſhot.

From the Camp near Badinas, July 22, 1654. I am your affectionate Servant, Thomas Morgan.

One of Gerrard's Conſpiracy, that had eſcaped through a Houſe of Office, was retaken in Norwich, where he practiſed Phyſick.

September, 1654.

September 2. Athol with his two Scots Regiments ſubmitted to General Monk; and Glencairn was upon Treaty of Submiſſion; there were not one hundred Scots left together in a Body.

I returned from Briſtol where I had been highly feaſted and entertained being their Recorder, and was met a Mile out of Town by five hundred Horſe, who conducted me into the City where the Mayor and Aldermen, and many others performed much Ceremony to me.

Being now in London and hearing of the Queen of Sweden's intention to come into England, I made it known to the Protector; but he would not give her any Encouragement; he put it all upon the ill Example ſhe would give here by her courſe of Life, and would not be ſatisfied by me to the contrary.

Parliament. 3. The Lord's day, yet the day of the Parliament's meeting, the Members met in the Afternoon at Sermon in the Abbey Church at Weſtminſter; after Sermon they attended the Protector in the Painted-Chamber, who made a Speech to them of the cauſe of their Summons, after which they went to the Houſe, and adjourned to the next Morning.

Cavalcade. 4. The Protector rode in State from Whitehall to the Abbey Church in Weſtminſter, ſome hundreds of Gentlemen and Officers went before bare, with the Lifeguard, and next before the Coach, his Pages and Lacquies richly clothed; on the one ſide of his Coach went Strickland, one of his Council and Captain of his Guard, with the Maſter of Ceremonies, both on Foot; on the other ſide went Howard Captain of the Lifeguard. In the Coach with him, was his Son Henry, and Lambert; both ſat bare. Septemb.

After him came Claypole Maſter of the Horſe, with a gallant led Horſe richly trapped; next came the Commiſſioners of the Great Seal, and of the Treaſury, and divers of the Council in Coaches, and the ordinary Guards.

He alighting at the Abby Door, the Officers of the Army and the Gentlemen went firſt, next them four Maces, then the Commiſſioners of the Seal; I carried the Purſe after Lambert carrying the Sword bare, the reſt followed; and his Highneſs was ſeated over againſt the Pulpit, the Members of the Parliament on both ſides.

After the Sermon preached by Mr. Thomas Goodwin, his Highneſs went in the ſame Equipage to the Painted-Chamber, where he was ſeated in a Chair of State ſet upon ſteps, and the Members upon Benches round about ſat all bare; all being ſilent his Highneſs put off his Hat, and made a large and ſubtle Speech to them.

He told them the Danger of the levelling Principles, and of the Fifth-Monarchy-Opinions, and of the form of Godlineſs, and the great Judgment that had been upon this Nation of ten Years Civil War. Protector's Speech.

That the two Pretenſions, of the Liberty of the Subject, and of Conſcience, (two as Glorious things, and as much to be contended for, as any Gift God hath given us,) were brought in to patronize their Evils.

Theſe Abominations ſwelled to that height, that the Ax was laid to the Root of the Miniſtry, as Antichriſtian, and Babyloniſh; and as the Extremity was great before, that no Man, though well approved having a good Teſtimony, might preach, if not Ordained: ſo now, on the other hand, they will have Ordination put a Nullity upon the Calling.

I conceive in my very Soul, that many of the Fifth-Monarcy-Opinion have good meanings, and I hope this Parliament will (as Jude ſays, reckoning up the abominable Apoſtaſies of the laſt times) pluck ſome out of the Fire, and ſave others with Fear, making thoſe of peaceable Spirits, the ſubject of their Encouragement; and ſaving others by that Diſcipline, that God hath ordained to reform Miſcarriages.

The danger of that Spirit being not in the Nation, but in its proceeding to a civil Tranſgreſſion, when Men that come into ſuch a Practice, as to tell us that Liberty and Property are not the badges of that Kingdom, and that inſtead of regulating Laws, Laws muſt be ſubverted, and perhaps the judaical Law impoſed, or ſome Fancy inſtead of it, (for that was good and honourable in the Inſtitution, though now by ſome miſapplied) eſpecially when every Stone is turned to bring in Confuſion; this will be a Conſideration worthy of the Magiſtrate.

Whilſt theſe things were in the midſt of us, and the Nation rent and torn, from one end to the other, Family againſt Family, Parent againſt Child, and nothing in the Hearts and Minds of Men, but Overturn, Overturn, overturn a Scripture very much abuſed, and challenged by all Men of diſcontented Spirits.

The common Enemy in the mean time ſleeps not, ſwarms of Jeſuits come over, and have their Conſiſtories abroad, to rule all the Affairs of England, and the dependences thereof; in the mean time viſible endeavours

Anno 1654. endeavours are uſed to hinder the work in Ireland, to obſtruct the Work in Scotland, Correſpondencies and Intelligences are held to encourage the War in thoſe Places.

And withal, we were deeply engaged in a War with Portugal, whereby our Trade ceaſed, and not only ſo, but a War with Holland, which conſumed our Treaſure, as much as the Aſſeſſment came to. At the ſame time we fell into a War with France, or rather we were in it; and all this fomented by the diviſions among ſt us.

Which begat a Confidence we could not hold out long; and the Calculation had not been ill, if the Lord had not been gracious to us.

Beſides, Strangers increaſed in the Manufacture, the great ſtaple Commodity of this Nation.

In ſuch an heap of Confuſion was this poor Nation; and that it might not ſink into a Confuſion, from theſe Premiſes a Remedy muſt be applied. A Remedy hath been applied, this Government.

A thing that is ſeen and read of all, and which, (let Men ſay what they will, I can ſpeak with Comfort before a greater than you all, as to my intention, and let Men judge out of the thing it ſelf) is calculated for the Intereſt of the People, for their Intereſt alone, and for their good, without reſpect had to any other Intereſt.

I may with humbleneſs towards God, and modeſtly before you ſay ſomething in the behalf of it.

It hath endeavoured to reform the Laws, and for that end hath joined Perſons (without reflection upon any) of as great Integrity and Ability, as any other, to conſider how the Laws might be made plain, ſhort and eaſy, which may in due time be tendered.

It hath taken care to put into ſeats of Juſtice, Men of the moſt known Integrity, and Ability.

The Chancery hath been reformed, and I hope to the juſt ſatisfaction of all good Men.

It hath put a ſtop to that heady way, for every Man that will, to make himſelf a Preacher, having endeavoured to ſettle a way for approbation of Men of piety and fineſs for the work, and the Buſineſs committed to Perſons both of the Presbyterian, and Independent Judgment, Men of as known Ability, and Integrity, as (I ſuppoſe) any the Nation hath; and, who (I believe) have laboured to approve themſelves to God, and their own Conſciences, in approving men to that great Function.

It hath taken care to expunge Men unfit for that work, who have been the common ſcorn and reproach to that adminiſtration.

One thing more, it hath been inſtrumental to call a free Parliament, bleſſed be God, we ſee here this day, a free Parliament; and that it may continue ſo, I hope is in the Heart of every good Man of England; for my own part, as I deſired it above my Life, ſo to keep it free, I ſhall value it above my Life.

A Peace is made with Sweden (wherein an honourable Perſon was inſtrumental) it being of much importance to have a good Underſtanding with our Proteſtant Neighbours.

A Peace is alſo made with the Danes, and a Peace there that is honourable, and to the Satisfaction of the Merchants.

The Sound is open to us, from whence, as from a Fountain, our Naval Proviſions are ſupplied.

A Peace is made with the Dutch, which is ſo well known in the Conſequences of it, and the great Advantages of a good Underſtanding with Proteſtant States.

I beg that it may be in your Hearts to be zealous of the Proteſtant Intereſt abroad, which if ever it be like to come under a Condition of ſuffering, it is now; many being baniſhed and driven to ſeek Refuge among Strangers.

A Peace is made with Portugal (though it hung long) of great Concernment to Trade; and the People that trade thither have Freedom to enjoy their Conſciences, without being ſubjected to the bloody Inquiſition. Septemb.

A Treaty with France likewiſe is now depending.

It may be neceſſary in the next place for you to hear a little of the Sea Affairs, and to take notice of the great Expence of the Forces and Fleet, and yet 30000 l. is now abated of the next three Months Aſſeſſment.

Theſe things which I have before mentioned, are but entrances and doors of Hope; you are brought to the Edge of Canaan (into which many that have gone before could not enter) but if the Bleſſing and Preſence of God go along with you in Management of your Affairs, I make no queſtion but he will enable you to lay the top Stone of this Work.

But this is a Maxim not to be deſpiſed, though Peace be made, yet it is Intereſt that keeps Peace; and further than that, Peace is not to be truſted.

The great End of calling this Parliament is, That the Work of God may go on, that the Ship of this Commonwealth may be brought into a ſafe Harbour.

I ſhall put you in mind that you have a great Work upon you, Ireland to look to, that the beginning of that Government may be ſettled in honour.

That you have before you the Conſiderations of thoſe foreign States, with whom Peace is not made, who if they ſee we manage not our Affairs with Prudence, as becomes Men, will retain hopes that we may ſink under the Diſadvantages thereof, and break into Confuſion.

I ſhall conclude with my Perſuaſion to you, to have a ſweet, gracious, and holy Underſtanding one of another, and put you in mind of the Council you heard this day in order thereunto.

And I deſire you to believe that I ſpeak not to you as one that would be a Lord over you, but as one that is reſolved to be a Fellow-ſervant with you to the Intereſt of this great Affair.

Then he wiſh'd them to repair to their Houſe, and exerciſe their own Liberty in the Choice of their Speaker.

After he had done, the Members went to their Houſe, and choſe the old Speaker, Mr. Lenthal, Maſter of the Rolls, to be their Speaker, and Mr. Scobel to be their Clerk, and Mr. Berkſhead to be the Sergeant at Arms to attend them. Speaker choſen.

Then they appointed a Day of Humiliation, 13th of September, to be kept by the Parliament, City, and Parts adjacent, and the 4th of October to be kept in all other Parts of England, Scotland, and Wales, and the 13th of November in Ireland; and ſo they adjourned till the next Day.

5. The Parliament ſat, and called over their Members; the Houſe appointed a Committee of Privileges, and order'd, That no Petition concerning any Election ſhould be received after three Weeks.

6. An Ordinance publiſhed for ejecting ſcandalous, ignorant, and inſufficient Miniſters and School-maſters; and Commiſſioners appointed in the reſpective Counties for that purpoſe.

Some Conſiderations were had in the Houſe touching the Privilege of the Parliament in their Freedom of debate. Then the Lord Protector's Speech to them was taken into Conſideration; and amongſt the Particulars thereof, the foreign Negotiations were mentioned, and particularly that of Swedland.

Which cauſed me to make the following Relation.

Mr.

Anno 1654.

Negotiation with Sweden.

Mr. Speaker.

'I Held it my Duty, though the preſent Occaſion had not been offer'd, to give a clear 'Account to this honourable Houſe of that Negotiation, wherein I had the Honour to ſerve 'the Commonwealth lately in Swedland, with 'the general Tranſactions and Iſſue thereof, and 'the great Reſpects teſtify'd to this Commonwealth in thoſe Places, and by thoſe Princes 'and States beyond the Seas, where I had occaſion to be during this my Employment, that 'you may judge of the Succeſs and Advantages 'thereof.

'I ſhall not mention the great Difficulties and 'Oppoſition which I met with from ſome in 'that Court, and from the Daniſh and Dutch publick Miniſters, and Party there, whoſe high Intereſt it was to hinder your Alliance with that 'Crown.

'Neither ſhall I particularly inſiſt upon, and 'acquaint you with the great Dangers both by 'Sea and Land, through which it pleaſed God to 'bring me, and to preſerve me, leſt I ſhould 'ſeem to magnify (that which was but my Duty) 'to undergo any Hazards or Perils for your Service.

'Only, Sir, you will give me leave not to forget the Goodneſs of God to me and my Company, in our great Deliverances which the Lord 'was pleaſed to vouchſafe to us, and which I 'hold my ſelf obliged to remember, with all 'Thankfulneſs to his immediate hand of Goodneſs to us.

'Sir, Your Servants had extraordinary Reſpect 'and Civility manifeſted to them both by the Officers and People of that Country, in their long 'Journey, and upon their ſafe Arrival at the Court 'at Upſal, by all ſorts of People of inferior Rank, 'and of the greateſt ones, and by the greateſt 'of them, the Prince Heretier, and by the Queen 'her ſelf, who ſought to make appear her Affection and Regard to this Nation, by her Favours 'to your Servant, which did much exceed thoſe 'which ſhe uſually allows to others of the like 'Condition.

'In our Ceremonies, wherein that Nation is 'very punctual, I confeſs I was ſomewhat refractory to their Expectations, out of my Zeal to 'keep up the Honour of my Nation, and even 'thoſe things have ſuch a Signification in ſuch 'Affairs; but they were well paſſed over, and 'then we fell to our Buſineſs, wherein I found 'thoſe with whom I diſcourſed and treated, to 'be full of Experience, Abilities and Wiſdom, 'and ſome of them full of Subtlety, and too 'much inclining to uſe Delays for their particular Advantage, which you will pardon thoſe 'to take the more notice of, who were at ſo great 'a diſtance from their Country and Relations.

'I thought it behoved me, for the Service of 'my Country, and the better performance of the 'Truſt at that time repoſed in me, to acquaint 'my ſelf by the beſt means I could with the nature of the People, their Government, the Quality of their Governors, their Religion, Strength, 'and Trade, and other Matters relating to them.

'This I did not only by ſtudying of Books, 'but of Men alſo in the Converſation and Treaties which I had with them, and wherein I endeavoured to gain Information of theſe things 'from them, added to my own Obſervations on 'the Place.

'I found the People hardy and ſtout, and the 'more inured to it by the ſharpneſs of their Climate, which renders them the more able for Military Service. Septemb.

'They are obedient to their Rulers, but amongſt their Equals, too much addicted to 'Quarrelling and Drinking; that ferments the 'other.

'They are yet very courteous to Strangers 'in their travelling and ſojourning, not making a Prey of them, nor deceiving them, nor 'deriding them in their ignorance of the Country or Language, but affording them all Accommodations for their Money which they expect.

'Their Governors are wiſe, expert, and politick, keeping their diſtance, and the Rules of 'Juſtice; but they will hardly pardon any neglect; the omiſſion of a Ceremony, or not returning a Viſit, is enough with ſome of them 'to break off a Treaty of the greateſt Conſequence.

'Though they practiſe much Delay when they 'judge their Intereſt to require it, yet they obſerve honourably their Capitulations; and though 'both Rulers and People regard their particular 'Intereſt in the firſt place, yet it is not with the 'excluding of Juſtice and Honeſty.

'Their Government is by municipal Laws and 'Cuſtoms, and by Acts of their ſupreme Council, which hath the Legiſlative Power, and is 'the ſame in effect, if not the Original of our 'Parliament; they have inferior and ordinary 'Courts of Juſtice, not unlike to ours in many 'Particulars. The King hath a great Power, and 'the Senators under him, and by them the Affairs 'of the State are managed.

'Though their Government have great Affinity with ours, yet the People do not enjoy the 'like Rights and Liberties as (bleſſed be God) we 'do in England; they are in more Subjection to 'the Will of their Lords, and their Lords to 'the Will of their Superiors, though they have 'more Power over their Tenants and nearer 'Neighbours than the Engliſh have.

'Their Laws are clear and few, nor are they 'covetous to multiply them, which they hold an 'Error in Government, and Cauſe of Contention; nor do they allow Debates in Council of 'any other Matters than what are propoſed to 'them from the King.

'The Paucity of Law-Suits amongſt them, is, 'becauſe of the diſtribution of Eſtates by a Rule 'of Law to all Children, or Heirs, upon the 'death of every Anceſtor; ſo that they have ſeldom a Queſtion upon any Will or Conveyance.

'And by reaſon of the ſmallneſs of their Trade, 'their Contracts are few, and conſequently their 'Law-Suits; nor will they afford Maintenance 'for a Profeſſion of Lawyers, or large Salaries 'for Officers: In general, their Government is 'wiſe, juſt, and peaceable.

'Their Religion is punctually Lutheran, both 'in Doctrine and Diſcipline, and they are ſo ſevere in it, that they will hardly admit a Papiſt 'or Calviniſt to live among them, except in ſome 'few places, where they permit Calviniſts to reſide for Trade's ſake.

'They have a Liturgy much to the ſame Effect 'in Words and Ceremonies with that which was 'in the Engliſh Church, nor will they part with 'any of the Reſponſals, Ceremonies, and Rites extracted out of the Maſs-Book, or with the Images in their Churches, though ſo little different 'from thoſe uſed in the Church of Rome.

Anno 1654.

'Their Biſhops and Superintendants who have 'the ſame Power, have the like Juriſdiction in 'Eccleſiaſtical, but not in Temporal Matters, 'as the Engliſh Prelates had, ſo have their In'ferior (as they alſo call them) Spiritual Courts 'and Judicatories.

'They allow but ſlender Maintenance to their 'Clergy, their Metropolitan Archbiſhop of Upſal, 'hath not above two thouſand Rix Dollars, which 'is not five hundred Pounds of yearly Revenue; 'and one hundred Rix Dollars per annum is an 'extraordinary Benefice.

'Their Dioceſes and Pariſhes are very large, 'and Sermons are a Rarity in them; but the Li'turgy muſt not be omitted every Sunday, and on 'their many Holidays.

'They have a good way upon every Avoidance 'to ſupply their Churches; the Inhabitants of 'every Pariſh where their Miniſter died, or is 'removed, do meet, and chooſe three Deacons, 'whom they preſent to the Biſhop or Superin'tendant, who chooſeth one of the three, and 'ordains him a Prieſt, and inſtitutes him into the 'Benefice that is void.

'Their Strength is conſiderable both at Land 'and at Sea; at Land it conſiſts chiefly in the Bo'dies of their Men, and in their Arms and For'tifications. Their Men are ſtrong, and the more 'inured to Hardſhip by the Coldneſs of their 'Climate, and to War by their frequent Expe'ditions abroad; and they want no Courage nor 'Obedience to their Superiors.

'Their Arms are made at home, as good and 'uſeful as any Country hath; they want not 'Materials of Copper, Steel, and Iron, both for 'their greater and ſmaller Guns, and Swords; 'and have skilful Workmen and ſtore of Pow'der.

'Their Fortifications are not many, except in 'Frontier Towns, and Havens; ſome whereof 'are ſtrongly and regularly fortify'd, fully gar'riſon'd, and provided with copper great Guns 'upon their Works.

'They have a ſtanding Militia of fifty thouſand 'Men, twelve thouſand Horſe, and thirty eight 'thouſand Foot, and all theſe maintained at a 'very ſmall Charge to the Crown, and with no 'Burden to the Country; whereof I ſhall be 'ready to give you a particular Account when 'you ſhall command it.

'Theſe may be drawn together in ten days, 'and out of theſe they write forth Soldiers upon 'any foreign Deſign; which Deſignation is whol'ly left to the reſpective Landlords, and gives 'them no ſmall Awe and Subjection from their 'Tenants.

'Their Strength by Sea ſurpaſſeth their Neigh'bours; they have many Ships which carry eigh'ty, and ſome one hundred copper Guns, well 'and ſubſtantially built, but not after our ex'cellent way of Frigats, nor ſo nimble at Tack'ing, or Fighting, or the Chaſe, as our Men of 'War.

'They are not inferior in their Strength at 'Sea to any Prince or State in theſe Parts, except 'the Engliſh, and our Neighbours the Nether'lands; the greateſt defect and want in their Na'val Force is as to the number of their Ships and 'Mariners.

'For their Trade, it is not great, but they take 'a Courſe daily to improve it; they underſtand 'better than they did formerly, the Conveniences 'and Advantages they have of Timber for Maſts, 'and building of their Ships, of Iron to fit them, 'of Copper for their Guns, of the Cheapneſs and 'Plenty of Pitch and Tar neceſſary for them, Septemb. 'and to be had in their own Country, and ſuffi'cient Cordage near them, with their good Har'bours on both ſides the Britiſh Sea, and at Got'tenburgh.

'They are ſenſible that the Increaſe of Trade 'increaſeth their Mariners and Shipping, which 'increaſeth their Trade; and not only their 'Merchants, but their great Men engage in a way 'of Trade for the Encouragement of it; and find'ing the Sweetneſs and Profit in it,

'They already ſend Ships, and plant in the 'Weſt-Indies, and have begun a Trade with their 'Native Commodities to moſt Parts where Trade 'is to be had, and will in a ſhort time become 'conſiderable for Trade; and the more by the 'plenty of their Copper, Iron, Deal, Pitch and 'Tar, which now they export themſelves, and 'know how neceſſary they are for other Nations, 'and how profitable it is for them to be their own 'Merchants.

'I have thus ſhortly and weakly given you In'formation of what I learned upon the Place 'touching this Nation of the Swedes and Goths, 'in relation to themſelves.

'Give me leave, Sir, now to acquaint you with 'what I obſerved concerning them, as they may 'have Relation to an Alliance with this Common'wealth, and to conclude with an Account in ge'neral of my Negotiation there, and with the Re'ſpects I met with to this Nation, both from them 'and others, whilſt I was abroad.

'I look upon them as a Nation in a perfect di'ſtance and ſituation, to be the beſt Friends and 'Allies to you; they are neither ſo near to us as 'to cauſe Jealouſies from us, nor ſo far diſtant, 'but that they may give a timely Aſſiſtance to 'us.

'They profeſs the ſame Proteſtant Religion 'with us, in the Fundamentals they agree with 'us, and in their Averſneſs to Popery and the 'Hierarchy of Rome; and are the more likely to 'keep a firmer Union with us.

'There is great Similitude between their Man'ners, Laws, Language, and Diſpoſition of the 'People, and the Engliſh, and the like Gallantry 'of their Gentry and Soldiery, Induſtry of their 'Merchants and Artificers, and Laborioufneſs of 'their Husbandmen. They are generally much 'like the Engliſh, and the more likely to correſ'pond and agree in Amity with us.

'They have ſtore of Men, Arms, and Ship'ping to join with us upon any Occaſion, and 'whereby both you and they may be ſtrengthen'd 'againſt your Enemies, and be the more conſide'rable throughout the World.

'They are juſt and faithful in their Actions and 'Undertakings, as the Engliſh are, and honourable 'in their Performances; nor are they engaged to 'any of our Enemies, or ſuch as you may have 'Cauſe to ſuſpect; but their Differences and 'Contentions have rather been with thoſe who 'have contended with you, and therefore they 'are the more likely to obſerve their Alliance with 'you.

'They firſt fought to his Highneſs, and this 'Commonwealth for an Amity with us, and ſent 'ſeveral Perſons of Honour, as publick Miniſters 'hither, for that purpoſe; and their Queen and 'the preſent King have teſtify'd great Affection 'to this Nation, and juſtly expected ſome Return 'of it from you again.

'Theſe, and many other Motives, grounded 'upon Reaſon and Wiſdom of State, perſuaded 'thoſe who ſat at the Helm here, to judge it fit

to

Anno 1654.

'to ſend from hence an Ambaſſador to that Crown 'to conclude an Amity with them for the Advantage of Trade and mutual Aſſiſtance of one 'another.

'Herein their Judgment did not fail them, it 'was very requiſite to ſend an Ambaſſador thither; 'but perhaps you may ſee a Failure of their Judgment in the Choice of a Perſon ſo unfit for ſo 'weighty an Employment.

'Yet they would not excuſe him; you will believe that he had no Ambition for ſuch a Service, and at ſuch a time, but he obeyed the 'Commands of thoſe whom he ſerved, undertook 'the Employment, and can ſay without Vanity, 'performed his Duty therein to the utmoſt of his 'Capacity with Diligence and Faithfulneſs, and 'God was pleaſed to own him in it.

'I paſs over the dangerous Voyage by Sea in 'November, through your then Enemies, and 'the cold Journey by Land in December, and 'come to the Court at Upſal, which was ſplendid and high, repleniſhed not only with gallant Outſides, but with Perſons of great Abilities within, both of the Civil and Military 'Condition.

'Upon my firſt Ignorance of their Ceremonies, 'I fell into ſome diſlike with ſeveral of their 'Grandees, who thought me not enough ſubmiſſive; others thought the better of me for 'inſiſting upon the Right of my Nation, vindicating their Honour, and not ſneaking to thoſe 'with whom I had to do.

'I followed my own Reaſon, and what pleaſed 'God to direct me for your Service, and in order to the Good of the Proteſtant Intereſt. In 'my Treaty I apply'd my ſelf upon all Occaſions 'to the Queen her ſelf, and never to the Senate, 'wherewith her Majeſty was not diſtaſted.

'In the Tranſactions of my Affairs, I endeavour'd to gain the beſt Intelligence I could 'from Home, and from that Court, and ſpared no 'Coſt to gain it; the one made me the more conſiderable there, the other was of great Advantage to me in my Negotiation.

'But, Sir, I was to encounter with great Difficulties and Oppoſition; the King of Denmark's Ambaſſador, the Holland Reſident, with all their 'Party and Friends (ſome of the moſt conſiderable in the Court and Army, and of great numbers) oppoſed me, and endeavoured to affront 'me and my Company; but by that were no 'Gainers.

'The French, Poliſh, and German publick Miniſters, as much as they could covertly, fought 'to hinder me; but on the other ſide, I found 'the Spaniſh publick Miniſter there (who was a 'Perſon of great Ingenuity, and in much Favour 'with the Queen) a great Friend and Aſſiſtant to 'me.

'Several great Officers of the Army, as General Wrangell, Grave Horn, Grave Wittenburge, 'Grave Bannier, Grave Leenhough, and divers 'others, were Friends to me; and of the Civil 'Officers and other Senators, the Baron Bundt, 'Steinlorke, Grave Tot, the Rix Droit, or Chief 'Juſtice, the Grave Braghe, and chiefly the old 'Chancellor Oxenſtiern was my chief Friend, and 'helper in my Buſineſs.

'Prince Adolphe the preſent King's Brother, 'was no ill willer to it; the King that now is, 'a great Friend to it, and manifeſted more particular reſpect to you in the Perſon of your Servant, than he was ever known to do to any of 'the like Quality, or to any State whatſoever.

'And the Queen her ſelf was reſolved to have 'the Buſineſs done, ſo much had I gained of her Favour, and ſatisfied her of your Intereſt, and 'Reſpects to her. Septemb.

'But above all, ſome of my own Countrymen 'were fierce againſt me, eſpecially thoſe of the 'Scots Nation; both of the Army, and Traders, 'whom I little conſidered, yet knew their 'Humours, and that they would rail at me in the 'Morning, and afterwards come to my Table to 'Dinner; and I cauſed my Officers to welcome 'them accordingly.

'To counterwork theſe, I was not without 'Friends of my own Nation, whereof divers 'were of the like Condition; and eminent amongſt them was General Douglas, a Scotch 'Gentleman, who was very civil to me.

'So was a true Engliſh Gentleman, Major 'General Sir George Fleetwood, a Perſon of great 'Intereſt and Reſpect in thoſe Parts, and with all 'that know him; he teſtified extraordinary Reſpect and Affection to you, and to your Servant; and was very courteous, and helpful to 'me.

'Thoſe who oppoſed, or endeavoured to affront me in your Buſineſs, I forbear to name; 'not for their ſakes, but leſt it might be prejudicial to your Friends there, and to your 'own future occaſions.

'But, Sir, we ought to look higher, than to 'the greateſt and wiſeſt of Men; it was the 'Goodneſs and Mercy of God who gave a Bleſſing to your Proceedings, and a deſired Succeſs 'to this Treaty; which we ought to acknowledge with humble Thankfulneſs; and the 'weaker the Inſtruments were, the more his 'Power and Goodneſs appear in it.

'He was pleaſed to give Succeſs to that Negotation under my hands; and (after many delays and debates, and all the oppoſition that 'could be made) to give a concluſion to it. I 'made an Alliance betwixt the Commonwealth 'and that Crown, ratified by the then Queen, 'and the preſent King under their hands, and 'under their Great Seal of Sweden.

'The Inſtrument thereof I preſented to his 'Highneſs, and his Council at my return home; 'who cauſed a ſtrict peruſal and examination 'thereof to be made, and finding it punctually 'according to my Inſtructions, did approve of 'it, and of my poor Service in it; and his 'Highneſs ratified the other part of the Treaty, 'to which the Great Seal of England was affixed; 'the Tranſcript whereof, with the Original of 'the other, are at your Command to be produced.

'I ſhall not preſume to judge of the Advantages by this Alliance to this Nation and to 'the Proteſtant Intereſt through the World; this 'honourable Houſe are beſt able to judge thereof, and of the Duty of their Servant, and his 'performance thereof; who ſubmits all to their 'Wiſdom and favourable Conſtruction.

'And being now in my return homewards, 'give me leave, Sir, to acquaint you with ſome 'paſſages of Reſpect to this Commonwealth in 'my Journey both in Sweden, Denmark and 'Germany.

'The Magiſtrates and People of Stockholm, 'were very reſpectful to your Servants, and 'General Wrangel, and Major General Fleetwood 'with Here Lagerfelds, and others, accompanied 'me forty Engliſh Miles to their chief City.

'There they freely ſhowed me not only the 'ſtately Caſtle, Town, Haven and Ships, but 'their Works, Magazines, Arſenal, Work-Houſes for Arms and Shipping, which were very ſtrong and conſiderable.

Anno 1654.

'There I had two Ships provided for my Tranſportation over the Baltick Sea, and in that where I went on Board, a Vice-Admiral was ſent to command being a point of great Honour, and the Ship was richly furniſhed, and accommodated for the Voyage.

'After we had paſſed this deep and rough Sea, through great Tempeſts and Dangers, and were arrived near to the Hans Town of Lubeck, they hearing of it by our Guns, ſent their Coach and Officers to conduct me to their City, where ſome of the chief of their Lords with their Syndick or Recorder, came from the reſt to ſalute me, and in the Latin Oration made to me, gave me all welcome to the Place, and highly expreſſed their valuation of this Commonwealth.

'I received alſo civil Compliments and Salutations from the Dukes of Saxony, Holſtein, Courland, Lunenburgh, and other free Princes of Germany, full of Reſpect and Honour to you.

'Here I received likewiſe Reſpect and Ceremonies from the Engliſh Company at Hamburgh, two days journey from this City, who ſent Meſſengers to invite me to their Houſe in Hamburgh, and expreſſed all Duty and Reſpects to you as their Superiors.

'In my Land-journey which was not without hardſhip and want of Conveniences, where the Armies had been in their late Wars betwixt theſe two Hans Towns of Lubeck and Hamburgh: about two Leagues before I came to Hamburgh, my Countrymen of the Engliſh Company there, met me upon the way with about fifty Coaches, and about two hundred Horſemen to welcome me to thoſe Parts.

'They treated me nobly by the way, and conducted me into Hamburgh, where the Streets were ſo crowded with People, that we had a difficult Paſſage through them; and generally both in their words and carriage, they expreſſed all civility and reſpect unto this Commonwealth.

'The ſame Evening that I came hither, the Lords of Hamburgh ſent four of their Senators with their Syndick to ſalute and welcome me to their City, and preſented me nobly with Proviſions of Fiſh and Fleſh, Wine and Beer, for my Hoſpitality.

'They congratulated the Succeſs of your Treaty with Swedland, and expreſſed very high regard to our Commonwealth; they invited me to Collations, and did me the Honour to come to my Table, and appointed one of their chief Military Officers to ſhew me the Works and Ammunition of the Town, and others of their own number to accompany me to their Town-Houſe, and to inform me in Matters relating to their Judicatories.

'Indeed their Fortifications are very ſtrong and regular, and they have great ſtore of Arms and Ammunition, and give therein a good Pattern for others, as alſo for Proviſions for their Shipping.

'Sir, I muſt do this right to them, that both at my coming thither and during my ſtay there, (which was about ten days,) and at my departure from thence, they did upon all occaſions manifeſt as great an eſteem and reſpect for this Commonwealth, as any whom I have met with in Foreign Parts.

'Sir, it pleaſed God to ſtop our Voyage by contrary Winds, and to ſtay us upon the Elbe near Gluckſtade, a Town of the King of Denmark's, who hearing of my being there, ſent one of his Senators Grave Roſſen-Groſs, Vice-Roy of Holſtein, to invite me to his Court. Septemb.

'The Vice-Roy came with many Attendants, and not without great danger by the ſtormy Weather on board my Ship, and highly complimented this Commonwealth from his Maſter; but I knowing the courſe of Treatments in thoſe Parts, excuſed my ſelf with the beſt civility I could from going on Shore.

'Alledging (what was a truth,) that no Perſon having the command of your Ships (as I then had) and being on board them, ought to go from them without leave until his Voyage were finiſhed; and that this was my condition at that time.

'I had much ado to ſatisfy the Vice-Roy, but he was well pleaſed with this Treatment and promiſed to make my Apology to his Maſter, and to do all good Offices with him to teſtify his Service to this Commonwealth.

'After an extreme dangerous and ſtrong Paſſage betwixt Hamburgh and England, wherein the hand of God appeared wonderfully in the preſervation of your Servants, we all came in ſafety to our dear Country.

'Thus, Sir, I have given you an account of the whole Tranſactions of this Buſineſs, and for any errors or miſcarriage of Mind in the Negotiation, or in this account I have given you of it, I humbly ask your Pardon.'

After I had ſpoken the Houſe gave a general Applauſe, and divers of them ſtood up and moved, that I might have the publick Thanks of the Houſe for the good Service done in this hazardous and important Buſineſs of my Ambaſſy.

Then the Lord Broghill my noble intimate Friend ſpake much in commendation of the Treaty and of the Ambaſſador, and ſeconded the Motion, that I might have the publick Thanks of the Houſe for my good Service.

He added, that there was a conſiderable Sum of Money due to me for the Expences of my Ambaſſy, and no Gratuity or Reward given me for my hazardous and great Service done for this Commonwealth.

And farther moved, that two thouſand Pounds might be ordered by the Houſe to be paid, in ſatisfaction of all Arrears due to me, and as a mark of Favour from the Houſe.

Others, who were well acquainted with the Buſineſs, informed the Houſe, that there was near two thouſand Pounds Arrears due to me, and that there would be very little of the two thouſand Pounds (if they ſhould order it for me) which would be a Teſtimony of their Favour and Reward of my Services.

The Houſe unanimouſly ordered, that two thouſand Pounds ſhould be forthwith paid out of the publick Treaſury, in ſatisfaction of all my Expences in my Ambaſſy not yet paid, and of all Arrears due to me; and the Speaker according to the order did ſolemnly give me the Thanks of the Houſe for the great Service I had performed for this Commonwealth in my Ambaſſy in Sweden.

The Pickeroons were chaſed from the Weſtern Coaſt into France.

7. Six Engliſh Veſſels at ſeveral times were taken upon the Weſtern Coaſt and carried into Breſt, and other Havens of France by the Pickeroons.

8. The

Anno 1654.

8. The States of Holland ſent their Command to the Governor of Breda, that if the Queen of Sweden came thither, he ſhould entertain her according to the Quality of ſo great a Princeſs.

Much Diviſion was amongſt them concerning the young Prince of Orange.

9. Moſt of the great Commanders of the Highlanders came in to the Engliſh upon Articles.

Debates about the Government.

11. The Houſe all the three laſt days and this day debated upon the Articles of Government.

An Ordinance was publiſhed, to enable ſuch Soldiers as had ſerved the Commonwealth in the late Wars, to exerciſe any Trade.

12. Oliver being acquainted that the Debates of the Parliament grew high touching the new Government, and entertaining a Jealouſy (to which he was much addicted) that this Parliament would either too far invade it, or endeavour to overthrow it, he ſent for the Members to meet him in the Painted-Chamber, where he ſpake to them to this Effect;

Protector's Speech.

That when he met them few days ſince, and delivered his Mind unto them, he did it with much more hopes and comfort than now; that he was very ſorry to find them falling into heats and diviſions. He opened to them the miſcarriages of the former long Parliament, and by what means he came to the Government, together with the conſent that the People had many ways given theneunto.

That the other day when he told them they were a free Parliament, he did alſo conſider there was a Reciprocation: for that the ſame Government which made them a Parliament, made him Protector; and as they were intruſted with ſome Things, ſo is he with other Things. That there were ſome Things in the Government Fundamental, and could not be altered.

1. That the Government ſhould be in one Perſon, and a Parliament.

2. That Parliaments ſhould not be made perpetual, which would deprive the People of their ſucceſſive Elections; nor that the Parliament ſhould be always ſitting: that is, as ſoon as one Parliament is up, that another Parliament ſhould come and ſit in their places, the very next day; that this could not be without ſubjecting the Nation to an Arbitrary Power in Governing, becauſe Parliaments as long as they ſit, are abſolute and unlimited.

The third Fundamental was in the matter of the Militia, and therefore for the preventing the two aforementioned Inconveniences, the Militia was not to be intruſted in any one hand or power, but to be ſo diſpoſed, that as the Parliament ought to have a check upon the Protector, to prevent exceſſes in him; ſo, on the other hand the Protector ought to have a check upon the Parliament, in the Buſineſs of the Militia, to prevent exceſſes in them; becauſe if it were wholly in the Parliament, they might, when they would, perpetuate themſelves.

But now the Militia being diſpoſed as it is, the one ſtands as a Counterpoiſe to the other, and renders the balance of Government the more even, and the Government it ſelf the more firm and ſtable.

The fourth was about a due Liberty of Conſcience in matters of Religion; wherein Bounds and Limits ought to be ſet, ſo as to prevent Perſecution.

That the reſt of the things in the Government, were Examinable, and Alterable, as the occaſion, and the ſtate of Affairs ſhould require.

That as for a Negative voice he claimed it not, ſave only in the foreſaid particulars.

That in all other things he had only a deliberative Power, and if he did not paſs ſuch Laws as were preſented to him within twenty days after their preſentment, they were to be Laws without his Conſent. Septemb.

Therefore he told them, that things being thus, he was ſorry to underſtand, that any of them ſhould go about to overthrow what was ſo ſettled, contrary to their Truſts received from the People, which could not but bring on very great Inconveniences; to prevent which he was neceſſitated to appoint a Teſt, or Recognition of the Government, which was to be ſigned by them, before they went any more into the Houſe.

The Recognition was in theſe Words; The Recognition.

I A. B. do hereby freely promiſe and engage my ſelf to be true and faithful to the Lord Protector and the Commonwealth of England, Scotland and Ireland, and ſhall not (according to the tenor of the Indeature whereby I am returned to ſerve in this preſent Parliament) propoſe, or give any Conſent to alter the Government as it is ſettled in one ſingle Perſon, and a Parliament.

This being ingroſſed in Parchment, was placed on a Table near the Houſe Door, for the Members to peruſe and ſign it; and about 130 of them ſubſcribed it, and took their Places; and the Houſe adjourned for one day, to give time for the reſt to ſign it.

My Lord,

'I Have lately received by the hands of Mr. 'Vice-Chancellor two Swediſh Medals, which 'you were pleaſed to give (an honourable 'Addition) to Sir Thomas Bodlye's Library, and I 'have taken the Confidence in the Name of the 'Univerſity to return our humbleſt and heartieſt 'Thanks. It is the fatal Infelicity of this Age, 'that too many think, even Univerſities, and 'Learning it ſelf uſeleſs if not dangerous; but it 'is a great Credit and Comfort to us, that your 'Honour thinks otherwiſe, which we are aſſured 'of (amongſt other Evidences) by your preſent 'Charity; nor do we doubt but that Hand which 'at preſent does liberally augment our Library, 'will for the future (if need be) defend it: Your 'old Mother the Univerſity (in this is happy that 'ſhe is your Mother) hath commanded me to tell 'you, that ſhe is not now in a Condition to re'quite your Kindneſs; yet ſhe doubts not but her 'Children here have ſtill ſo much Learning and 'Gratitude as to let Poſterity know who hath been 'her Benefactor, and withal ſhe hopes, it will be no 'Diſhonour to your Lordſhip, when (in After-ages) 'your Name and Charity ſhall be read in our Re'giſter. I know you have Goodneſs enough to 'pardon this rude and (I fear) impertinent Scrib'ble: God Almighty bleſs you and all yours, and 'all thoſe noble and generous Souls who wiſh well 'to the Publick; this is and ever ſhall be the 'Prayer of, my Lord,

Q. College Oxon, Biblioth. Bodl. Oct. 22. 1654.

Dr. Walker appointed to be of Council for the Commonwealth in the Buſineſs of the Lord Craven.

23. A Petition of disbanded Officers for their Arrears referred to a Committee.

A Petition from the Univerſity of Cambridge referred to a Committee.

Government. The Bill for ſettling the Government was read the ſecond time; and the Houſe ſat Forenoon and Afternoon in the Debate of it.

25. The Houſe ſat though it was Chriſtmas-Day, and proceeded in their Debates touching the Government.

L. Craven. 26. Arguments before a Committee concerning the Lord Craven's Buſineſs on his part, and for the Purchaſers of his Eſtate; the Lord Craven's Council ſhewed Preſidents, That Judgments againſt a Party unheard have been reverſed in ſucceeding Parliaments; the Purchaſers Council inſiſted on the Credit of the Act of Parliament, which perſuaded them to buy his Lands.

27. Letters of Solemnities at Stockholm upon the Marriage of their King.

Government. 28. The Houſe proceeded in their Debates touching the Government.

29. The Government by the Protector was ſtill the Subject of the Houſe's Debate.

30. A Quaker came to the Door of the Parliament, and drawing his Sword, fell to ſlaſhing thoſe near him, and knocked at the Door aloud; he was laid hold on and committed to Priſon.

January 1654.

January 1. The Houſe debated the matter of Election of Members for ſucceeding Parliaments.

The Company of Merchant Adventurers of England reſiding at Hamburgh, ſent a Letter to me ſubſcribed by moſt of them, intreating my Protection of them from the Injuries ſought to be put upon them by ſome of their diſcontented Brethren, who miſinformed the Lord Protector againſt them; and they ſent me the State of their Caſe, and intreated my Interpoſition to the Protector on their behalf; and I did them ſome Service therein.

Quaker. 3. The Quaker being examined by a Committee why he drew his Sword, and hurt divers at the Parliament Door; anſwered, That he was inſpired by the Holy Spirit to kill every Man that ſat in the Houſe.

The Houſe debated the Point of Liberty of Conſcience upon the new Government, and agreed to give it to all who ſhall not maintain Atheiſm, Popery, Prelacy, Prophaneneſs, or any damnable Hereſy, to be enumerated by the Parliament. January

Government. 7. The Parliament continued their Debates touching the Government, wherein many things were ſpoken, which gave great Offence to the Protector and his Council, and cauſe of Suſpition that no good was to be expected from them.

8. The Parliament continued not inclinable to the Protector's Deſires.

11. The Parliament made what haſte they could to finiſh their Debates.

16. The Buſineſs of Parliament was not likely to come to a good Iſſue.

17. The Protector adviſed about ſending a Fleet to the Weſt-Indies.

20. I attended the Parliament, but not with much hope of doing good.

The Protector began to be weary of the Parliament, and to have thoughts of diſſolving it. I adviſed him to the contrary, upon Experiences of former Inconveniences upon the Diſſolution of Parliaments, which ever cauſed ill Blood; however I adviſed him not to diſſolve it till after the time was paſt that they were to ſit by the Inſtrument of Government, but the Protector ſeemed not to be very ſolicitous thereof, and was reſolute to part with them; and ſome of his Council were not backward to promote what they perceived he was inclined to have done.

29. Much Debate was at Whitehall about diſſolving of the Parliament.

31. The Protector diſſolved the Parliament, having firſt made this Speech:

Gentlemen,

'I Perceive you are here as the Houſe of Par-
'liament, by your Speaker, whom I ſee here,
'and by your Faces, which are in a great mea-
'ſure known to me.

'When I firſt met you in this Room, it was,
'to my Apprehenſion, the hopefulleſt Day that 'ever mine Eyes ſaw, as to Conſiderations of 'this World: For I did look at (as wrapt up in
'you, together with my ſelf) the Hopes and
'the Happineſs of (though not of the greateſt,
'yet a very great, and) the beſt People in the 'World; and truly and unfeignedly I thought
'ſo; as a People that have the higheſt and the
'cleareſt Profeſſion among them, of the greateſt
'Glory (to wit) Religion; as a People that have 'been like other Nations, ſometimes up, and
'ſometimes down, in our Honour in the World,
'but yet never ſo low but we might meaſure
'with other Nations; and a People that have
'had a Stamp upon them from God, God hav-
'ing (as it were) ſummed all our former Glory
'and Honour, in the things that are of Glory to
'Nations, in an Epitomy within theſe ten or
'twelve Years laſt paſt; ſo that we knew one
'another at home, and are well known abroad.

'And (if I be not very much miſtaken) we 'were arrived (as I, and truly as I believe, many 'others did think) at a very ſafe Port, where we 'might ſit down and contemplate the Diſpenſa-
'tions of God, and our Mercies, and might
'know our Mercies not to have been like to thoſe
'of the Antients, who did make out their Peace
'and Proſperity, as they thought, by their own
'Endeavours; who could not ſay as We, That
'all Ours were let down to Us from God him-
'ſelf, whoſe Appearances and Providences a-
'mongſt Us are not to be out-matched by any 'Story.

'Truly

Anno 1654.

'Truly this was our Condition, and I know nothing 'elſe we had to do, ſave as Iſrael was 'commanded in that moſt excellent Pſalm of 'David, Pſal. 78. ver. 4, 5, 6, 7. The things 'which we have heard and known, and our Fathers 'have told us, we will not hide them from their 'Children, ſhewing to the Generation to come the 'Praiſe of the Lord, and his Strength, and his won-'derful Works which he hath done; for he eſtabliſh-'ed a Teſtimony in Jacob, and appointed a Law in 'Iſrael, which he commanded our Fathers that they 'ſhould make them known to their Children, that the 'Generation to come might know them even the Chil-'dren which ſhould be born, who ſhould ariſe and 'declare them to their Children, that they might ſet 'their Hope in God, and not forget the Works of 'God, but keep his Commandments.

'This I thought had been a Song and a Work 'worthy of England, whereunto you might have 'happily invited them, had you had Hearts un-'to it.

'You had this Opportunity fairly delivered 'unto you; and if a Hiſtory ſhall be written of 'theſe times, and of Tranſactions, it will be ſaid '(it will not be denied) but that theſe things 'that I have ſpoken are true.

'This Talent was put into your Hands, and I 'ſhall recur to that which I ſaid at the firſt, I 'came with very great Joy, and Contentment, 'and Comfort, the firſt time I met you in this 'Place: But we and theſe Nations are, for the 'preſent, under ſome diſappointment. If I had 'purpoſed to have plaid the Orator, which I did 'never affect, nor do, nor I hope ſhall, I doubt 'not but upon eaſy Suppoſitions, which I am 'perſuaded every one among you will grant, we 'did not meet upon ſuch Hopes as theſe.

'I met you a ſecond time here, and I confeſs, 'at that meeting I had much Abatement of my 'Hopes, though not a total Fruſtration. I con-'feſs, that that which dampt my Hopes ſo ſoon 'was ſomewhat that did look like a Paricide. It 'is obvious enough unto you, that the manage-'ment of Affairs did ſavour of a not-owning, 'too too much ſavour I ſay of a not-owning 'the Authority that called you hither; but God 'left us not without an Expedient that gave a 'ſecond Poſſibility; ſhall I ſay, a Poſſibility? It 'ſeemed to me a Probability of recovering out 'of that diſſatisfied Condition we were all then 'in, towards ſome Mutuality of Satisfaction, 'and therefore by that Recognition, ſuiting with 'the Indenture that returned you hither, to 'which afterwards alſo was added your own De-'claration, conformable to, and in acceptance of, 'that Expedient whereby you had (though with 'a little Check) another Opportunity renewed 'unto you to have made this Nation as happy, 'as it could have been, if every thing had 'ſmoothly run on from that firſt Hour of your 'meeting.

'And indeed (you will give me liberty of my 'Thoughts and Hopes) I did think, as I have 'formerly found in that way, that I have been 'engaged as a Soldier; that ſome Affronts put 'upon us, ſome Diſaſters at the firſt, have made 'way for very great and happy Succeſſes.

'And I did not at all deſpond, but the Stop 'put upon you, would in like manner have made 'way for a Bleſſing from God, that that Inter-'ruption being, as I thought, neceſſary to divert 'you from deſtructive and violent Proceedings, 'to give time for better Deliberations; where-'by leaving the Government as you found it, you 'might have proceeded to have made thoſe good 'and wholeſom Laws, which the People expect-'ed from you; and might have anſwered the 'Grievances, and ſettled thoſe other things pro-'per to you as a Parliament, and for which you 'would have had thanks from all that intruſted 'you.

January

'What hath happened ſince that time, I have 'not taken publick notice of, as declining to in-'trench upon Parliament Privileges: For ſure I 'am, you will all bear me witneſs, that from your 'entring into the Houſe upon the Recognition, 'to this very Day, you have had no manner of 'Interruption or Hindrance of mine, in proceed-'ing to that bleſſed Iſſue the Heart of a good 'Man could propoſe to himſelf to this very Day.

'You ſee you have me very much lock'd up 'as to what you tranſacted among your ſelves 'from that time to this, but ſomething I ſhall 'take liberty to ſpeak of to you. As I may not 'take notice what you have been doing, ſo I 'think I have a very great liberty to tell you, 'that I do not know what you have been doing: 'I do not know whether you have been alive or 'dead, I have not once heard from you in all this 'time, I have not, and that you all know: If 'that be a Fault that I have not, ſurely it hath 'not been mine.

'If I have had any melancholy Thoughts, and 'have ſat down by them, why might it not have 'been very lawful to me, to think that I was a 'Perſon judged unconcerned in all theſe Buſi-'neſſes? I can aſſure you, I have not reckoned 'my ſelf, nor did I reckon my ſelf unconcerned 'in you, and ſo long as any juſt Patience could 'ſupport my Expectation, I would have waited 'to the uttermoſt to have received from you the 'Iſſues of your Conſultations and Reſolutions; 'I have been careful of your Safety, and the 'Safety of thoſe that you repreſented, to whom 'I reckon my ſelf a Servant.

'But what Meſſages have I diſturbed you with-'al? What Injury or Indignity hath been done 'or offered, either to your Perſons, or to any 'Privileges of Parliament ſince you ſat? I look-'ed at my ſelf, as ſtrictly obliged by my Oath 'ſince your recognizing the Government, in the 'Authority of which you were called hither, and 'ſat to give you all poſſible Security, and to 'keep you from any Unparliamentary Interrup-'tion.

'Think you I could not ſay more upon this 'Subject, if I liſted to expatiate thereupon? 'but becauſe my Actions plead for me, I ſhall 'ſay no more of this.

'I ſay, I have been caring for you, your 'quiet ſitting, caring for your Privileges (as I 'ſaid before) that they might not be interrupted; 'have been ſeeking of God, from the great 'God, a Bleſſing upon you, and a Bleſſing up-'on theſe Nations; I have been conſulting, if 'poſſibly I might in any thing promote, in 'my Place, the real good of this Parliament, of 'the Hopefulneſs of which I have ſaid ſo much 'unto you.

'And I did think it to be my Buſineſs, ra-'ther to ſee the utmoſt Iſſue, and what God 'would produce by you, than unſeaſonably to 'intermeddle with you. But as I ſaid before, 'I have been caring for you, and for the Peace 'and Quiet of the Nations, indeed I have, and 'that I ſhall a little preſently manifeſt unto you.

'And it leadeth me to let you know ſome-'what that I fear, I fear will be through ſome 'Interpretation a little too juſtly put upon you, 'whilſt you have been employed as you have

Anno 1655.

'been (and in all that time expreſſed in the 'Government, in that Government, I ſay, in 'that Government) brought forth nothing that 'you your ſelves can be taken notice of with-'out Infringement of your Privileges.

'I will tell you ſomewhat, that (if it be not 'News to you) I wiſh you had taken very ſerious 'Conſideration of; if it be News, I wiſh I had 'acquainted you with it ſooner; and yet if any Man 'will ask me why I did not, the Reaſon is 'given already, becauſe I did make it my Buſi-'neſs to give no Interruption.

'There be ſome Trees that will not grow 'under the Shadow of other Trees; there be 'ſome that chooſe (a Man may ſay ſo by way 'of Alluſion) to thrive under the Shadow of 'other Trees; I will tell you what hath thriven, 'I will not ſay what you have cheriſhed under 'your Shadow, that were too hard. Inſtead of 'the Peace and Settlement, inſtead of Mercy 'and Truth being brought together, Righte-'ouſneſs and Peace kiſſing each other, by recon-'ciling the honeſt People of theſe Nations, and ſet-'tling the woful Diſtempers that are amongſt us, '(which had been glorious things, and worthy 'of Chriſtians to have propoſed) Weeds and 'Nettles, Briars and Thorns, have thriven un-'der your Shadow, Diſſettlement and Diviſion, 'Diſcontentment and Diſſatisfaction, together 'with real Dangers to the whole, has been 'more multiplied within theſe five Months of 'your ſitting, than in ſome Years before.

'Foundations have been alſo laid for the fu-'ture renewing the Troubles of theſe Nations by 'all the Enemies of it abroad and at home; 'let not theſe Words ſeem too ſharp, for they 'are true, as any mathemetical Demonſtrations 'are or can be; I ſay, the Enemies of the Peace 'of theſe Nations abroad and at home, the diſ-'contented Humours throughout theſe Nations, 'which I think no Man will grudge to call by 'that Name, or to make to allude to Briars 'and Thorns, they have nouriſhed themſelves 'under your Shadow.

'And that I may be clearly underſtood, they 'have taken the Opportunities from your Sit-'ting, from the Hopes they had, which with 'eaſy Conjecture they might take up, and con-'clude, that there would be no Settlement, and 'therefore they have framed their Deſigns, pre-'paring for the Execution of them accordingly.

'Now whether (which appertains not to me 'to judge of in their behalf) they had any Oc-'caſion miniſtred for this, and from whence 'they had it, I liſt not to make any Scrutiny or 'Search; but I will ſay this, I think they had 'them not from me, I am ſure they had not; 'from whence they had it is not my Buſineſs 'now to diſcourſe, but that they had is obvious 'to every Man's Senſe.

'What Preparations they have made to exe-'cute in ſuch a Seaſon as they thought fit to take 'their Opportunity from, that I know (not as 'Men know things by Conjecture but) by cer-'tain demonſtrable Knowledge, that they have 'been (for ſome time paſt) furniſhing them-'ſelves with Arms, nothing doubting but that they 'ſhould have a Day for it; and verily believing, 'that whatſoever their former Diſappointments 'were, they ſhould have more done for them 'by and from our own Diviſions, than they 'were able to do for themſelves: I do not, and 'I deſire to be underſtood ſo, that in all I have 'to ſay of this Subject, you will take it that I 'have no Reſervation in my Mind to mingle 'things of Gueſs and Suſpicion with things of January 'Fact, but the things I am telling are of Fact, 'things of evident Demonſtration.

'Theſe Weeds, Briars and Thorns, they have 'been preparing, and have brought their De-'ſigns to ſome Maturity by the Advantages 'given to them, as aforeſaid, from your Sitting 'and Proceedings; but by the waking Eye that 'watched over that Cauſe that God will bleſs, 'they have been and yet are diſappointed. And 'having mentioned that Cauſe, I ſay that ſlight-'ed Cauſe, let me ſpeak a few Words in be-'half thereof (though it may ſeem too long a 'Digreſſion) whoſoever deſpiſeth it, and will ſay 'it is non Cauſa pro Cauſa, the all-ſearching Eye 'before-mentioned will find out that Man, and 'will judge him as one that regardeth not the 'Works of God, nor the Operations of his 'Hands, for which God hath threatned that he 'will caſt Men down, and not build them up; 'that becauſe he can diſpute, and tell us, he 'knew not where the Cauſe begun, or where it 'is, but modelleth it according to his own In-'tellect, and ſubmits not to the Appearances of 'God in the World, therefore he lifts up his 'Heel againſt God, and mocketh at all his Pro-'vidences, laughing at the Obſervations made 'up not without Reaſon and the Scriptures, but 'by the quickning and teaching Spirit, which 'gives Life to the other, calling ſuch Obſervations 'Enthuſiaſms. Such Men, I ſay, no Wonder 'if they ſtumble and fall backward, and be 'broken and ſnared, and taken by the things of 'which they are ſo maliciouſly and wilfully ig-'norant. The Scriptures ſay, the Rod hath a 'Voice, and he will make himſelf known by 'the Judgments which he executeth; and do we 'not think he will, and does by the Provi-'dences of Mercy and Kindneſs which he hath 'for his People and for their juſt Liberties, whom 'he loves as the Apple of his Eye? Doth he not 'by them manifeſt himſelf? And is he not 'thereby alſo ſeen, giving Kingdoms for them, 'giving Men for them and People for their 'Lives? As it is in the 43d of Iſaiah. Is not 'this as a fair Lecture and as clear ſpeaking, as 'any thing our dark Reaſon, left to the Let-'ter of the Scriptures, can collect from them. 'By this Voice has God ſpoken very loud on 'the behalf of his People, by judging their E-'nemies in the late War, and reſtoring them a 'Liberty to worſhip with the Freedom of their 'Conſciences, and Freedom in their Eſtates and 'Perſons when they do ſo. And thus we have 'found the Cauſe of God by the Works of 'God, which are the Teſtimony of God, upon 'which Rock whoſoever ſplits, ſhall ſuffer Ship-'wrack.

'But it is our Glory, and it is mine, if I 'have any in the World, concerning the Inte-'reſt of thoſe that have an Intereſt in a better 'World; it is my Glory that I know a Cauſe, 'which yet we have not loſt, but do hope we 'ſhall take a little Pleaſure rather to loſe our 'Lives than loſe. But you will excuſe this 'long Digreſſion.

'I ſay unto you, whilſt you have been in the 'midſt of theſe Tranſactions, that Party, that 'Cavalier Party, (I could wiſh ſome of them 'had thruſt in here to have heard what I ſay) 'the Cavalier Party have been deſigning and 'preparing to put this Nation in Blood again 'with a Witneſs; but becauſe I am confident 'there are none of that Sort here, therefore I 'ſhall ſay the leſs to that; only this I muſt

'tell

Anno 1654.

'tell you, that they have been making great 'Preparations of Arms, and I do believe will 'be made evident to you that they have raked 'out many thouſands of Arms, even all that this 'City could afford, for divers Months laſt paſt.

'But it will be ſaid, May we not arm our 'ſelves for the Defence of our Houſes? Will 'any body find Fault for that? No, for that, 'the Reaſon of their doing ſo hath been as ex-'plicit, and under as clear Proof as the Fact of 'doing ſo, for which I hope by the Juſtice of 'the Land, ſome will in the face of the Na-'tion anſwer it with their Lives, and then the 'Buſineſs will be pretty well out of doubt.

'Banks of Money have been framing for theſe 'and other ſuch like uſes; Letters have been 'iſſued with Privy Seals, to as great Perſons as 'moſt are in the Nation, for the Advance of 'Monies, which have been diſcovered to us by 'the Perſons themſelves; Commiſſions for Re-'giments of Horſe and Foot, and Command of 'Caſtles have been likewiſe given from Charles 'Stuart ſince your Sitting; and what the gene-'ral Inſolences of that Party have been, the 'honeſt People have been ſenſible of, and can 'very well teſtify.

'It hath not been only thus, but as in a 'Quinzy or Pleuriſy, where the Humour fixeth 'in one Part, give it Scope it will gather 'to that Place to the hazarding of the 'whole; and it is natural to do ſo, till it de-'ſtroy Nature in that Perſon on whomſoever 'this befals.

'So likewiſe will thoſe Diſeaſes take acciden-'tal Cauſes of Aggravation of their Diſtemper; 'and this was that which I did aſſert, that they 'have taken accidental Cauſes, for the grow-'ing and increaſing of thoſe Diſtempers, as 'much as would have been in the natural Body, 'if timely Remedy were not apply'd. And in-'deed things were come to that paſs (in reſpect 'of which I ſhall give you a particular Ac-'count) that no mortal Phyſician, if the great 'Phyſician had not ſtept in, could have cured 'the Diſtemper.

'Shall I lay this upon your Account or my 'own? I am ſure I can lay it upon God's Ac-'count, that if he had not ſtept in, the Di-'ſeaſe had been mortal and deſtructive; and 'what is all this? Truly I muſt needs ſay, a 'Company of Men ſtill, like Briars and Thorns, 'and worſe if worſe can be, of another Sort 'than thoſe before-mentioned to you have been, 'and yet are endeavouring to put us into Blood, 'and into Confuſion, more deſperate and dan-'gerous Confuſion than England ever yet ſaw.

'And I muſt ſay, as when Gideon commanded 'his Son to fall upon Zeba and Zalmunna and 'ſlay them, they thought it more noble to die 'by the Hand of a Man than of a Stripling; 'which ſhews there is ſome Contentment in 'the Hand by which a Man falls; ſo is it ſome 'Satisfaction if a Commonwealth muſt periſh, 'that it periſh by Men, and not by the Hands 'of Perſons differing little from Beaſts; that if 'it muſt needs ſuffer, it ſhould rather ſuffer 'from rich Men than from poor Men, who, 'as Solomon ſays, When they oppreſs, they leave 'nothing behind them, but are as ſweeping Rain.

'Now ſuch as theſe alſo are grown up under 'your Shadow. But it will be asked, what have they 'done? I hope, though they pretend the Com-'monwealth's Intereſt, they have had no Encou-'ragement from you, but that as before rather ta-'ken it, than that you have adminiſtred any Cauſe 'unto them for ſo doing, from Delays, from January 'Hopes that this Parliament would not ſettle, from 'Pamphlets mentioning ſtrange Votes and Re-'ſolves of yours, which I hope did abuſe you.

'Thus you ſee whatever the Grounds were, 'theſe have been the Effects. And thus I have 'laid theſe things before you, and others will 'be eaſily able to judge how far you are con-'cerned.

'And what have theſe Men done? They have 'alſo laboured to pervert where they could, 'and as they could, the honeſt meaning People 'of the Nation, they have laboured to engage 'ſome in the Army; and I doubt, that not on-'ly they, but ſome others alſo very well known 'to you, have helped in this Work of de-'bauching and dividing the Army; they have, 'they have; I would be loth to ſay, who, where 'and how, much more loth to ſay, they were 'any of your own Number; but I can ſay, 'Endeavours have been to put the Army into 'a Diſtemper, and to feed that which is the 'worſt Humour in the Army, which though 'it was not a maſtering Humour, yet theſe took 'their Advantage from Delay of the Settlement 'and the Practices before-mentioned, and ſtop-'ping the Pay of the Army to run us into free 'Quarter, and to bring us into the Inconveni-'ences moſt to be feared and avoided.

'What if I am able to make it appear in 'Fact, that ſome amongſt you have run into 'the City of London to perſuade to Petitions 'and Addreſſes to you for reverſing your own 'Votes that you have paſſed? Whether theſe 'Practices were in Favour of your Liberties, or 'tended to beget hopes of Peace and Settlement 'from you; and whether debauching the Army 'in England, as is before expreſſed, and ſtarving 'it, and putting it upon free Quarter, and oc-'caſioning and neceſſitating the greateſt Part 'thereof in Scotland to march into England, 'leaving the Remainder thereof to have their 'Throats cut there, and kindling by the reſt a 'Fire in our own Boſoms, were for the Advan-'tage of Affairs here, let the World judge.

'This I tell you alſo, that the Correſpon-'dency held with the Intereſt of Cavaliers, by 'that Party of Men called Levellers, and who 'call themſelves Commonwealth's Men; whoſe 'Declarations were framed to that purpoſe, and 'ready to be publiſhed at the time of their 'Common Riſing, whereof we are poſſeſſed, and 'for which we have the Confeſſion of themſelves 'now in cuſtody; who confeſs alſo they built 'their Hopes upon the Aſſurance they had of 'the Parliament's not agreeing a Settlement: 'Whether theſe Humours have not nouriſhed 'themſelves under your Boughs, is the Subject 'of my preſent Diſcourſe, and I think I ſay not 'amiſs if I affirm it to be ſo.

'And I muſt ſay it again, That that which 'hath been their Advantage thus to raiſe Diſtur-'bance, hath been by the Loſs of thoſe golden 'Opportunities, that God hath put into your 'Hands for Settlement; judge you whether theſe 'things were thus or no when you firſt ſat 'down; I am ſure things were not thus, there 'was a very great Peace, Sedateneſs throughout 'theſe Nations, and great Expectations of a Set-'tlement, which I remembred to you at the begin-'ning of my Speech, and hoped that you would 'have entered upon your Buſineſs as you found it.

'There was a Government in the Poſſeſſion of 'the People, I ſay a Government in the Poſſeſ-'ſion of the People for many Months, it hath now

'been

Anno 1654.

'been exerciſed near fifteen Months; and if it 'were needful that I ſhould tell you how it came 'into their Poſſeſſion, and how willingly they 'received it; how all Law and Juſtice were 'diſtributed from it in every reſpect as to Life, 'Liberty and Eſtate; how it was owned by 'God as being the Diſpenſation of his Provi'dence after twelve Years War, and ſealed and 'witneſſed unto by the People; I ſhould but re'peat what I ſaid in my laſt Speech made unto 'you in this Place, and therefore I for'bear.

'When you were entred upon this Govern'ment raveling into it (you know I took no 'notice what you were doing) if you had gone 'upon that foot of Account, to have made ſuch 'good and wholeſom Proviſions for the good of 'the People of theſe Nations, for the ſettling 'of ſuch Matters in things of Religion as would 'have upheld and given Countenance to a god'ly Miniſtry, and yet would have given a juſt 'Liberty to godly Men of different Judgments, 'Men of the ſame Faith with them that you 'call the Orthodox Miniſtry in England, as it 'is well known the Independents are, and ma'ny under the Form of Baptiſm, who are ſound 'in the Faith, only may perhaps be different in 'Judgment in ſome leſſer Matters, yet as true 'Chriſtians both looking at Salvation, only by 'Faith in the Blood of Chriſt, Men profeſſing 'the Fear of God, having Recourſe to the 'Name of God as to a ſtrong Tower; I ſay you 'might have had Opportunity to have ſettled 'Peace and Quietneſs amongſt all profeſſing 'Godlineſs, and might have been inſtrumental, 'if not to have healed the Breaches, yet to have 'kept the Godly of all Judgments from run'ning one upon another, and by keeping them 'from being over-run by a common Enemy, 'rendred them and theſe Nations, both ſecure, 'happy, and well ſatisfied.

'Are theſe things done, or any thing towards 'them? Is there not yet upon the Spirits of Men 'a ſtrange Itch? Nothing will ſatisfy them, un'leſs they can put their Finger upon their Bre'threns Conſciences, to pinch them there. To 'do this was no part of the Conteſt we had with 'the common Adverſary; for Religion was not 'the thing at the firſt conteſted for, but God 'brought it to that Iſſue at laſt, and gave it 'unto us by way of Redundancy, and at laſt it 'proved to be that which was moſt dear to 'us; And wherein conſiſted this, more than 'in obtaining that Liberty from the Tyran'ny of the Biſhops to all Species of Pro'teſtants, to worſhip God according to their 'own Light and Conſciences? For Want of 'which, many of our Brethren forſook their 'native Countries to ſeek their Bread from 'Strangers, and to live in howling Wilder'neſſes; and for which alſo, many that re'mained here were impriſoned and otherwiſe 'abuſed, and made the Scorn of the Nation.

'Thoſe that were found in the Faith, how 'proper was it for them to labour for Liberty, for 'a juſt Liberty, that Men ſhould not be trampled 'upon for their Conſciences? Had not they la'boured but lately under the Weight of Perſe'cutions, and was it fit for them to ſit heavy 'upon others? Is it ingenuous to ask Liberty and 'not to give it? What greater Hypocriſy, than 'for thoſe who were oppreſſed by the Biſhops, 'to become the greateſt Oppreſſors themſelves 'ſo ſoon as their Yoke was removed? I could 'wiſh that they who call for Liberty now alſo, 'had not too much of that Spirit if the Power were in their Hands. January

'As for prophane Perſons, Blaſphemers, ſuch 'as preach Sedition, the contentious Railers, 'evil Speakers, who ſeek by evil Words to cor'rupt good Manners, Perſons of looſe Conver'ſations, Puniſhment from the Civil Magiſtrate 'ought to meet with them; becauſe if theſe 'pretend Conſcience, yet walking diſorderly, 'and not according but contrary to the Goſ'pel, and even to natural Light, they are judged 'of all, and their Sins being open, makes them 'Subjects of the Magiſtrates Sword, who ought 'not to bear it in vain.

'The Diſcipline of the Army was ſuch, that 'a Man would not be ſuffered to remain there, 'of whom we could take notice he was guilty 'of ſuch Practices as theſe: and therefore how 'happy would England have been, and You, and 'I, if the Lord had led you on to have ſettled 'upon ſuch good Accounts as theſe are, and to 'have diſcountenanced ſuch Practices as the other, 'and left Men in diſputable things free to their 'own Conſciences, which was well provided for 'by the Government, and Liberty left to pro'vide againſt what was apparently evil.

'Judge you, whether the conteſting for things 'that were provided for by this Government 'hath been profitable expence of time for the 'good of theſe Nations? by means whereof you 'may ſee you have wholly elapſed your time and 'done juſt nothing.

'I will ſay this to you in behalf of the long 'Parliament, that had ſuch an Expedient as this 'Government been propoſed to them, and that 'they could have ſeen the Cauſe of God thus 'provided for, and had by Debates been enlight'ned in the Grounds by which the Difficulties 'might have been cleared, and the Reaſon of the 'whole inforced, the Circumſtances of Time and 'Perſons, with the Temper and Diſpoſition of 'the People, and Affairs both Abroad and at 'Home, when it was undertaken, well weighed, '(as well as they were thought to love their 'Seats) I think in my Conſcience that they 'would have proceeded in another manner than 'you have done, and not have expoſed things to 'thoſe Difficulties and Hazards they now are at, 'nor given occaſion to leave the People ſo diſ'ſettled as now they are, who, I dare ſay, in the 'ſobereſt and moſt judicious Part of them, did 'expect, not a queſtioning, but a doing things 'in purſuance of the Government, and if I be not 'miſ-informed, very many of you came up with 'this Satisfaction, having had time enough to 'weigh and conſider the ſame.

'And when I ſay, ſuch an Expedient as this Go'vernment is, wherein I dare aſſert there is a juſt 'Liberty to the People of God, and the juſt 'Rights of the People in theſe Nations provided 'for, I can put the Iſſue thereof upon the clear'eſt Reaſon, whatſoever any go about to ſuggeſt 'to the contrary.

'But this not being the time and place of ſuch an 'Averment, for ſatisfaction's ſake herein, enough 'is ſaid in a Book entitled, A true State of the Caſe of the Commonwealth, &c. publiſhed in 'January, 1653. (and for my ſelf, I deſire not 'to keep it an Hour longer than I may preſerve 'England in its juſt Rights, and may protect 'the People of God in ſuch a juſt Liberty of their 'Conſciences, as I have already mentioned) and 'therefore if this Parliament have judged things 'to be otherwiſe than as I have ſtated them, it had 'been huge Friendlineſs between Perſons that 'had

Anno 1654.

'had ſuch a Reciprocation, and in ſo great Concernments to the Publick, for them to have convinced me in what Particulars therein my Error lay, of which I never yet had a word from you. But if inſtead thereof, your Time has been ſpent in ſetting up ſomewhat elſe upon another Bottom than this ſtands, that looks as if a laying Grounds of a Quarrel had rather been deſigned, than to give the People Settlement; if it be thus, it is well your Labours have not arrived to any Maturity at all.

'This Government called you hither, the Conſtitution whereof being ſo limited, A ſingle Perſon and a Parliament, and this was thought moſt agreeable to the general Senſe of the Nation, having had Experience enough by Trial of other Concluſions, judging this moſt likely to avoid the Extremes of Monarchy on the one hand, and Democracy on the other, and yet not to found Dominium in gratia. And if ſo, then certainly to make it more than a Notion, it was requiſite that it ſhould be as it is in the Government, which puts it upon a true and equal Balance. It has been already ſubmitted to the judicious honeſt People of this Nation, whether the Balance be not equal, and what their Judgment is, is viſible by Submiſſion to it, by acting upon it, by reſtraining their Truſtees from meddling with it; and it neither asks nor needs any better Ratification. But when Truſtees in Parliament ſhall by Experience find any Evil in any parts of the Government, referr'd by the Government it ſelf to the Conſideration of the Protector and Parliament (of which Time it ſelf will be the beſt Diſcoverer) how can it be reaſonably imagined, that a Perſon or Perſons coming in by Election, and ſtanding under ſuch Obligations, and ſo limited, and ſo neceſſitated by Oath to govern for the Peoples Good, and to make their Love, under God, the beſt Under-proping, and his beſt Intereſt to him; how can it, I ſay, be imagined, that the preſent or ſucceeding Protectors will refuſe to agree to alter any ſuch thing in the Government that may be found to be for the Good of the People, or to recede from any thing which he might be convinced caſts the Balance too much to the ſingle Perſon? And although for the preſent, the keeping up and having in his Power the Militia ſeems the moſt hard, yet if it ſhould be yielded up at ſuch a time as this, when there is as much need to keep this Cauſe by it (which is moſt evident at this time impunged by all the Enemies of it) as there was to get it, what would become of all? Or if it ſhould not be equally placed in him and the Parliament, but yielded up at any time, it determines his Power, either for doing the good he ought, or hindering Parliaments from perpetuating themſelves, or from impoſing what Religions they pleaſe on the Conſciences of Men, or what Government they pleaſe upon the Nation, thereby ſubjecting us to Diſſettlement in every Parliament, and to the deſperate Conſequences thereof; and if the Nation ſhall happen to fall into a bleſſed Peace, how eaſily and certainly will their Charge be taken off, and their Forces be disbanded, and then where will the Danger be to have the Militia thus ſtated?

'What if I ſhould ſay, If there ſhould be a Diſproportion or Diſequality as to the Power, it is on the other hand, and if this be ſo, wherein have you had cauſe to quarrel? What Demonſtrations have you held forth to ſettle me to your Opinion? would you had made me ſo happy as to let me have known your Grounds. I have made a free and ingenuous Confeſſion of my Faith to you, and I could have wiſhed it had been in your Hearts to have agreed that ſome friendly and cordial Debates might have been towards mutual Conviction; was there none amongſt you to move ſuch a thing? no fitneſs to liſten to it? no deſire of a right Underſtanding? if it be not Folly in me to liſten to Town-Talk, ſuch things have been propoſed and rejected with ſtifneſs and ſeverity, once and again; was it not likely to have been more advantageous to the good of this Nation? I will ſay this to you for my ſelf, and to that I have my Conſcience as a thouſand Witneſſes, and I have my Comfort and Contentment in it, and I have the Witneſs of divers here, that I think truly ſcorn to own me in a Lye, that I would not have been averſe to any Alteration, of the good of which I might have been convinced, although I could not have agreed to the taking it off the Foundation on which it ſtands, viz. The Acceptation and Conſent of the People. January

'I will not preſage what you have been about or doing in all this time, or do I love to make Conjectures; but I muſt tell you this, that as I undertook this Government in the Simplicity of my Heart, and as before God, and to do the part of an honeſt Man, and to be true to the Intereſt which in my Conſcience is dear to many of you (though it is not always underſtood what God in his Wiſdom may hide from us, as to Peace and Settlement) ſo I can ſay, that no particular Intereſt, either of my ſelf, Eſtate, Honour or Family, are or have been prevalent with me to this Undertaking.

'For if you had upon the old Government offer'd to me this one thing I ſpeak, as thus adviſed, and before God, as having been to this day of this Opinion, and this hath been my conſtant Judgment, well known to many that hear me ſpeak, if this one thing had been inſerted, that one thing, that this Government ſhould have been, and placed in my Family hereditary, I would have rejected it, and I could have done no other, according to my preſent Conſcience and Light; I will tell you my reaſon, though I cannot tell what God will do with me, nor you, nor the Nation, for throwing away precious Opportunities committed to us.

'This hath been my Principle, and I liked it when this Government came firſt to be propoſed to me, that it puts us off that hereditary way, well looking, that as God had declared what Government he had deliver'd to the Jews, and placed it upon ſuch Perſons as had been inſtrumental for the Conduct and Deliverance of his People; and conſidering that Promiſe in Iſaiah, that God would give Rulers as at the firſt, and Judges as at the beginning, I did not know, but that God might begin, and thought at preſent with a moſt unworthy Perſon, yet as to the future, it might be after this manner, and I thought this might uſher it in. I am ſpeaking as to my Judgment againſt making it hereditary, to have Men choſen for their Love to God, and to Truth and Juſtice, and not to have it hereditary; for as it is in Eccleſiaſtes, Who knoweth whether he may beget a Fool or Wiſe, honeſt or not; whatever they be, they muſt come in upon that account, becauſe the Government is made a Patrimony.

'And this I do perhaps declare with too much Earneſtneſs, as being my own Concernment, and know not what place it may have in your Hearts, and of the good People in the Nation;

'but

Anno 1653.

'but however it be, I have comfort in this my 'Truth and Plainneſs.

'I have thus told you my Thoughts, which 'truly I have declared to you in the fear of God, 'as knowing he will not be mocked, and in the 'ſtrength of God, as knowing and rejoicing 'that I am kept in my ſpeaking, eſpecially when 'I do not form or frame things without the 'compaſs of Integrity and Honeſty, that my own 'Conſcience gives me not the Lye to what I ſay, 'and then in what I ſay I can rejoice.

'Now to ſpeak a word or two to you, of that 'I muſt profeſs in the name of the ſame Lord, 'and wiſh that there had been no Cauſe that I 'ſhould have thus ſpoken to you; and though I 'have told you that I came with Joy the firſt 'time, with ſome Regret the ſecond, that now 'I ſpeak with moſt Regret of all.

'I look upon you, as having among you many 'Perſons, that I could lay down my Life indi-'vidually for, I could through the Grace of God, 'deſire to lay down my Life for you; ſo far am 'I from having an unkind or unchriſtian Heart 'towards you in your particular Capacities.

'I have that indeed as a Work moſt incum-'bent upon me, I conſulted what might be my 'Duty in ſuch a Day as this, caſting up all Con-'ſiderations. I muſt confeſs, as I told you, that 'I did think occaſionally this Nation hath ſuf-'fer'd extremely in the Reſpects mentioned, as 'alſo in the Diſappointments of their Expecta-'tions of that Juſtice that was due to them by 'your ſitting thus long; and what have you 'brought forth?

'I did not nor cannot apprehend what it is, '(I would be loth to call it a Fate, that were too 'paganiſh a Word) but there is ſomething in it 'that we have not our Expectations.

'I did think alſo for my ſelf, that I am like to 'meet with Difficulties, and that this Nation will 'not (as it is fit it ſhould not) be deluded with 'Pretexts of Neceſſity in that great buſineſs of 'raiſing of Money, and were it not that I can 'make ſome Dilemma's upon which to reſolve 'ſome things of my Conſcience, Judgment, and 'Actions, I ſhould ſink at the very Proſpect of 'my Encounters; ſome of them are general, ſome 'are more ſpecial, ſuppoſing this Cauſe, or this 'Buſineſs muſt be carry'd on, either it is of God 'or of Man, if it be of Man, I would I had never 'touched it with a Finger; if I had not had a 'Hope fixed in me that this Cauſe and this Bu-'ſineſs is of God, I would many years ago have 'run from it. If it be of God, he will bear it 'up. If it be of Man, it will tumble, as every 'thing that hath been of Man, ſince the World 'began, hath done. And what are all our Hiſto-'ries, and other Traditions of Actions in former 'Times, but God manifeſting himſelf that he 'hath ſhaken and tumbled down, and trampled 'upon every thing that he hath not planted? and 'as this is, ſo the all-wiſe God deal with it.

'If this be of human Structure and Invention, 'and it be an old Plotting and Contrivance to 'bring things to this Iſſue, and that they are not 'the Births of Providence, then they will tumble. 'But if the Lord take pleaſure in England, and if 'he will do us good, he is able to bear us up; 'Let the Difficulties be whatſoever they will, we 'ſhall in his Strength be able to encounter with 'them. And I bleſs God I have been inured to 'Difficulties, and I never found God failing when 'I truſted in him; I can laugh and ſing in my 'heart when I ſpeak of theſe things to you, or 'elſewhere. And though ſome may think it is an 'hard thing without Parliamentary Authority to January 'raiſe Money upon this Nation; yet I have ano-'ther Argument to the good People of this Na-'tion, if they would be ſafe and have no better 'Principle; whether they prefer the having of 'their Will, though it be their Deſtruction, ra-'ther than comply with things of neceſſity; that 'will excuſe me, but I ſhould wrong my native 'Country to ſuppoſe this,

'For I look at the People of theſe Nations as 'the Bleſſing of the Lord, and they are a People 'bleſſed by God. They have been ſo, and they 'will be ſo, by reaſon of that immortal Seed, 'which hath been, and is among them, thoſe re-'generated ones in the Land, of ſeveral Judg-'ments, who are all the Flock of Chriſt, and 'Lambs of Chriſt, though perhaps under many 'unruly Paſſions and Troubles of Spirit, where-'by they give Diſquiet to themſelves and others; 'yet they are not ſo to God, as to us, he is a God 'of other Patience, and he will own the leaſt of 'Truth in the Hearts of his People, and the Peo-'ple being the Bleſſing of God, they will not be 'ſo angry but they will prefer their Safety to their 'Paſſions, and their real Security to Forms, 'when Neceſſity calls for Supplies; had they not 'well been acquainted with this Principle, they 'had never ſeen this day of Goſpel-Liberty.

'But if any Man ſhall object, it is an eaſy 'thing to talk of Neceſſities when Men create 'Neceſſities; would not the Lord Protector make 'himſelf great, and his Family great? doth not 'he make theſe Neceſſities? and then he will 'come upon the People with this Argument of 'Neceſſity.

'This were ſomething hard indeed, but I have 'not yet known what it is to make Neceſſities, 'whatſoever the Judgments or Thoughts of Men 'are. And I ſay this, not only to this Aſſembly, 'but to the World, that that Man liveth not, that 'can come to me, and charge me that I have in 'theſe great Revolutions made Neceſſities; I 'challenge even all that fear God, and as God 'hath ſaid, My Glory I will not give unto another; 'Let Men take heed, and be twice adviſed, how 'they call his Revolutions, the things of God, and 'his working of things from one Period to ano-'ther; how I ſay, they call them Neceſſities of 'Mens Creation, for by ſo doing they do vilify 'and leſſen the Works of God, and rob him of 'his Glory, which he hath ſaid, he will not give 'unto another, nor ſuffer to be taken from him. 'We know what God did to Herod when he was 'applauded, and did not acknowledge God; and 'God knoweth what he will do with Men when 'they ſhall call his Revolutions human Deſigns, 'and ſo detract from his Glory, when they have 'not been fore-caſt, but ſudden Providences in 'things, whereby carnal and worldly Men are 'enraged, and under, and at which many I fear '(ſome good) have murmur'd and repined, becauſe 'diſappointed of their miſtaken Fancies; but ſtill 'they have been the wiſe Diſpoſings of the Al-'mighty, though Inſtruments have had their Paſ-'ſions and Frailties; and I think it is an Honour 'to God to acknowledge the Neceſſities to have 'been of God's impoſing, when truly they have 'been ſo, as indeed they have, when we take our 'Sin in our Actings to our ſelves, and much more 'ſafe than judge things ſo contingent, as if there 'were not a God that ruled the Earth.

'We know the Lord hath poured this Nation 'from Veſſel to Veſſel, till he poured it into your 'Lap, when you came firſt together: I am con-'fident that it came ſo into your hands, it was not

Anno 1654.

'judged by you to be from counterfeited or feigned Neceſſity, but by divine Providence and Diſpenſation. And this I ſpeak with more earneſtneſs, becauſe I ſpeak for God and not for Men; 'I would have any Man to come and tell of the 'Tranſactions that have been, and of thoſe Periods of Time wherein God hath made theſe 'Revolutions, and find where they can fix a feigned Neceſſity.

'I could recite Particulars, if either my Strength 'would ſerve me to ſpeak, or yours to hear; if 'that you would revolve the great Hand of God 'in his great Diſpenſations, you would find that 'there is ſcarce a Man that fell off at any Period 'of Time when God had any Work to do, that 'can give God or his Work, at this day, a good 'Word.

'It was, ſay ſome, the Cunning of the Lord 'Protector (I take it to my ſelf) it was the Craft 'of ſuch a Man, and his Plot that hath brought 'it about. And as they ſay in other Countries, 'there are five or ſix cunning Men in England 'that have Skill, they do all theſe things: Oh 'what Blaſphemy is this! becauſe Men that are 'without God in the World, and walk not with him, 'and know not what it is to pray, or believe, and 'to receive Returns from God, and to be ſpoken 'unto by the Spirit of God, who ſpeaks without 'a written word ſometimes, yet according to it: 'God hath ſpoken heretofore in divers manners, 'let him ſpeak as he pleaſeth. Hath he not given 'us Liberty? Nay is it not our duty to go to 'the Law and to the Teſtimonies, and there we 'ſhall find that there have been Impreſſions in extraordinary Caſes, as well without the written 'Word as with it, and therefore there is no Difference in the thing thus aſſerted, from Truths 'generally received, except we will exclude the 'Spirit, without whoſe Concurrence all other 'Teachings are ineffectual: He doth ſpeak to 'the Hearts and Conſciences of Men, and leadeth them to his Law and Teſtimonies, and there 'he ſpeaks to them, and ſo gives them double 'Teachings, according to that of Job, God ſpeaketh once, yea twice; and that of David, God 'hath ſpoken once, yea twice have I heard this. Thoſe 'Men that live upon their Mumpſimus and Sumpſimus, their Maſſes and Service-Books, their dead 'and carnal Worſhip, no marvel if they be Strangers to God, and the Works of God, and to 'ſpiritual Diſpenſations: And becauſe they ſay 'and believe thus, muſt we do ſo too? we in this 'Land have been otherwiſe inſtructed, even by 'the Word, and Works, and Spirit of God.

'To ſay that Men bring forth theſe things, 'when God doth them, judge you if God will 'bear this, I wiſh that every ſober Heart, though 'he hath had Temptations upon him of deſerting this Cauſe of God, yet may take heed how 'he provokes, and falls into the hands of the living 'God by ſuch Blaſphemies as theſe, according to 'the tenth of the Hebrews, If we ſin wilfully after 'that we have received the Knowledge of the Truth, 'there remains no more Sacrifice for Sin (It was ſpoken to the Jews, that having profeſſed Chriſt 'apoſtatized from him) what then? nothing but 'a fearful falling into the hands of the living God.

'They that ſhall attribute to this or that Perſon 'the Contrivances and Production of thoſe mighty 'things God hath wrought in the midſt of us, 'and that they have not been the Revolutions of 'Chriſt himſelf, upon whoſe Shoulders the Government is laid, they ſpeak againſt God, and 'they fall under his Hand without a Mediator; 'that is, if we deny the Spirit of Jeſus Chriſt, the 'Glory of all his Works in the World, by which January 'he rules Kingdoms, and doth adminiſter, and is 'the Rod of his Strength, we provoke the Mediator; and he may ſay, I'll leave you to God, 'I'll not intercede for you, let him tear you to 'pieces, I'll leave thee to fall into God's hands, 'thou denieſt me my Sovereignty and Power 'committed to me, I'll not intercede nor mediate for thee, thou falleſt into the hands of the 'living God. Therefore whatſoever you may 'judge Men for, and ſay, This Man is cunning, 'and politick, and ſubtle; take heed, again I 'ſay, how you judge of his Revolutions, as the 'Products of Mens Inventions.

'I may be thought to preſs too much upon 'this Theme, but I pray God it may ſtick upon 'your Hearts and mine; the worldly minded 'Man knows nothing of this, but is a Stranger 'to it, and becauſe of this his Atheiſm and Murmurings at Inſtruments, yea, repining at God 'himſelf; and no wonder, conſidering the Lord 'hath done ſuch things amongſt us as have 'not been known in the World, theſe thouſand 'Years, and yet notwithſtanding is not owned by 'us.

'There is another Neceſſity which you have 'put upon us, and we have not ſought; I appeal 'to God, Angels, and Men, if I ſhall raiſe Money according to the Article in the Government 'which had Power to call you hither, and did, 'and inſtead of ſeaſonable providing for the Army, you have labour'd to overthrow the Government, and the Army is now upon free Quarter; and you would never ſo much as let me 'hear a Tittle from you concerning it, where 'is the Fault? has it not been as if you had had 'a Purpoſe to put this Extremity upon us and 'the Nation? I hope this was not in your Minds, 'I am not willing to judge ſo; but this is the 'State unto which we are reduced: By the Deſigns of ſome in the Army who are now in Cuſtody, it was deſigned to get as many of them 'as could, through Diſcontent for want of Money, the Army being in a barren Country, near 'thirty Weeks behind in Pay, and upon other 'ſpecious Pretences to march for England out of 'Scotland, and in diſcontent to ſeize their General there, a faithful and honeſt Man, that ſo another might head the Army, and all this Opportunity taken from your Delays, whether will 'this be a thing of feigned Neceſſity? What could 'it ſignify but that the Army are in Diſcontent 'already, and we will make them live upon 'Stones, we will make them caſt off their Governors and Diſcipline? What can be ſaid to 'this? I liſt not to unſaddle my ſelf, and put 'the Fault upon others Backs; whether it hath 'been for the Good of England, whilſt Men have 'been talking of this thing or the other, and 'pretending Liberty, and a many good Words, 'whether it hath been as it ſhould have been? I 'am confident you cannot think it has, the Nation will not think ſo. And if the worſt ſhould 'be made of things, I know not what the Corniſh Men or the Lincolnſhire Men may think, or other Counties, but I believe they will all think 'they are not ſafe. A temporary Suſpenſion of 'caring for the greateſt Liberties and Privileges '(if it were ſo, which is denied) would not have 'been of that Damage, that the not providing 'againſt free Quarter hath run the Nation upon. 'And if it be my Liberty to walk abroad in the 'Fields, or to take a Journey; yet it is not my 'Wiſdom to do ſo when my Houſe is on fire.

Anno 1654.

'I have troubled you with a long Speech, and 'I believe it may not have the ſame Reſentment 'with all that it hath with ſome: but becauſe 'that is unknown to me, I ſhall leave it to God; 'and conclude with that, that I think my ſelf 'bound in my duty to God, and the People of 'theſe Nations, to their Safety and Good in every 'reſpect; I think it my duty to tell you, That 'it is not for the Profit of theſe Nations, nor 'for Common and Publick Good for You to con-'tinue here any longer, and therefore, I do de-'clare unto you, THAT I DO DISSOLVE 'THIS PARLIAMENT.

February 1654.

February 1. The Protector, who was uſually poſitive in his own Judgment and Reſolutions, having diſſolved the Parliament, becauſe he found them not ſo pliable to his Purpoſes as he expected; this cauſed much diſcontent in the Parliament, and others, but he valued it not; eſteeming himſelf above thoſe things. And now he ſat cloſe with his Council to frame ſome Ordinances, whereby he might ſweeten the generality of the People, particularly by taking off ſome Burdens and Inconveniences (as they held them) in the Proceedings of Law, and in other matters.

He was alſo buſy with his Council in the Examination of a Plot diſcovered, wherein ſeveral of the King's Party, and ſome of the Levelling Party were engaged againſt him and his Government; whereof having formerly had ſome inkling, he affirmed that to have been a chief Motive to him for diſſolving the late Parliament. Divers of the King's Party who were in the Conſpiracy were apprehended and committed to Priſon, and enough was proved againſt them.

13. The Lord Mayor, Aldermen, Recorder, and ſixty of the Common-Council of London, by the Protector's Order came to him to Whitehall, where he acquainted them with the danger of the Conſpiracy, the Conſpirators, and what they had diſcovered; wiſhed them to be careful to preſerve the Peace of the City, gave them a Commiſſion for a Committee of Militia in London, and to raiſe Forces to be under the Command of their old faithful Major General Skippon.'

The Conſpiracy was generally laid to bring in the King; and the Deſign ſo far took Effect, that in ſeveral Counties ſmall armed Parties began to gather into a Body. In Shropſhire, Sir Thomas Harris with a Party endeavoured to ſurprize Shrewsbury Caſtle, but was prevented and taken Priſoner: Others were prevented at Chirke Caſtle, endeavouring to ſurprize it; and the like was in other Places. This Deſign the Protector had a Jealouſy was countenanced by the Parliament, and he gave out that to be a Cauſe of the diſſolving of them.

In Scotland, Middleton and others of his Party the principal Men, ſent Propoſals to the Parliament's Commander there, upon which they offered to lay down Arms.

The King's Party were very active, and had many meetings about Newcaſtle; ſome of their Letters were intercepted and ſent to the Protector.

Some Quakers at Haſington in Northumberland, coming to the Miniſter on the Sabbath-day, and ſpeaking to him, the Country People fell upon the Quakers, and almoſt killed one or two of them; who going out fell on their Knees, and prayed God to pardon the People, who knew not what they did; and afterwards ſpeaking to the People, ſo convinced them of the evil they had done in beating of them, that the Country People fell a quarrelling among themſelves with thoſe who occaſioned it, and beat one another more than they had before beaten the Quakers. Febr.

The Breſt Men of War did much damage to the Engliſh Merchants in the Weſtern Seas, which were not well guarded by the States Ships, whereof Complaint was made, yet two of them were taken.

A great Fire happened in Fleet-ſtreet next Door to the Red Lion Inn, and both Houſes were burnt.

Letters of ſeveral Scots Commanders of the King's Party taken by the Engliſh Forces in Scotland.

Major John Wildman was ſeized upon by a Party of Major Butler's Horſe, and carried Priſoner from Edninſton near Farington, where he was taken, unto Chepſtow Caſtle. They found him in his Chamber (the Door being open) leaning upon his Elbow, and dictating to his Man, who ſat writing by him. They ſeized the Papers, that which the Man was writing was ſent up to the Protector; it was thus entitled and written:

The Declaration of the free and well-affected People of England now in Arms againſt the Tyrant Oliver Cromwell, Eſq;

'BEing ſatisfied in our Judgment and Conſci-'ences of the preſent Neceſſity to take up 'Arms for the Defence of our Native Rights 'and Freedoms, which are wholly invaded and 'ſwallowed up in the Pride and Ambition of 'Oliver Cromwell, who calls himſelf Lord Pro-'tector of England, and hath rendred all Engliſh-'men no better than his Vaſſals, we expect to be 'branded with the infamous Name of Rebels 'and Traitors, or to be miſrepreſented both to 'the Army, City, and Country, as common E-'nemies, Diſturbers of the publick Peace, arbi-'trary Cavaliers, Levellers, or under ſome other 'odious Notion that may provoke the Army and 'People to endeavour our Deſtruction; but if we 'may prevail to be heard before we be condem-'ned and executed, we ſhall ſubmit our Cauſe 'and righteous End we ſeek, to the Judgment 'of the Army and every honeſt Engliſhman; and 'if the Army it ſelf according to their many En-'gagements will undertake (and their Strength 'be ſufficient) to redeem us from our preſent 'Slavery, and ſettle that Right and Freedom, 'unto which our Birth gave us Title, we ſhall 'readily lay down our preſent Arms.

'The whole Chriſtian World knows, that our 'Engliſh Earth hath been drunk with Blood theſe 'twelve Years through the great Conteſt for 'Right and Freedom, and the whole Treaſure 'of the Nation exhauſted in that Quarrel; how 'then can any Man, whoſe Hand or Heart hath 'been engaged in that bloody Conteſt, either 'acquit himſelf to God, his Conſcience, or his 'Country, in yielding up tamely and ſilently, all 'the Laws, Rights, and Liberties of England into 'an Uſurper's Hand? We have for many Years 'patiently born all kinds of Oppreſſion, Arbi-'trarineſs and Tyranny, and ſuffered under ſuch 'heavy Burdens of Exciſe and Taxes, as Eng-'land never knew in former Ages, having been 'led by him that now calls himſelf Lord Pro-'tector, and his Army, with ſpecious Pretences, 'and moſt alluring Promiſes (ſeconded with ma-'ny Appeals to God for their Integrity of Heart 'in them) that true Engliſh Liberty ſhould be 'ſettled and ſecured, impartial Juſtice provided for, Arbitrary Powers aboliſhed, and every Yoke of Oppreſſion broken and every Burden eaſed: And we did believe (as they told us) That our preſent Sufferings were only like a rough ſtormy Paſſage to the Haven of Juſtice, Right, and Freedom; we could not ſuſpect theſe ambitious Deſigns in Cromwell and his Confederates, that are now proclaimed to the World: we could not think it poſſible that a Man of ſuch a mean Quality and Eſtate, as he, ſhould aſpire to make himſelf an abſolute Lord and Tyrant over three potent Nations; but above all, his pretended Zeal for God and his People, his high Profeſſions of Godlineſs, Simplicity, and Integrity; his hypocritical Prayers and Days of Faſting to ſeek the Lord; his diſſembled Humility and Meekneſs, and his frequent compaſſionate Tears upon every occaſion: We ſay, theſe things, together with his Engagements publick and private; his moſt ſolemn Proteſtations, with Imprecations of Vengeance upon himſelf and Family, if he diſſembled, and his moſt frequent Appeals to God for the truth of his Profeſſions and Declarations, that he deſign'd nothing but ſecuring the Liberties of God's People, and Adminiſtration of Impartial Juſtice, and ſought no Power, Honour, Riches or Greatneſs to himſelf, or any particular Party or Intereſt: We ſay, theſe things rocked us ſo aſleep with the pleaſant Dreams of Liberty and Juſtice, until he hath made a Sacrifice of all our Laws, Liberties and Properties unto his own Ambition, and now is not afraid to own what he before diſclaimed and declared againſt: He that formerly proteſted before the dreadful God, and to the long Parliament, That He and his Army ſhould be wholly ſubject to their Civil Authority, and that whoſoever ſhould attempt any Violence againſt them, ſhould make his way through his Blood; he now owns the breaking them in pieces with Scorn and Contempt: He that declared ſo much Humility and Self-denial, claims and owns a Power ſupreme to Parliaments, and exerciſeth an abſolute Dominion over the Laws and Eſtates of three Nations: He that ſeemed ſo zealous for Liberty, now dares own every private Engliſhman his Vaſſal, and their Parliaments his Slaves: He publiſheth in his printed Speeches to his Parliament, That the Benefit all Engliſhmen have in the execution of any Laws amongſt them is from him; and the Authority that their Parliaments have, and ſhall have, is wholly derived from him: He hath publiſhed to the whole World that he hath diſſolved all Civil Government, and that he had in himſelf an abſolute, unlimited, arbitrary Power, without check or controul, until he put ſome Limits upon himſelf; if he may be believed in his Paper of Government. Now what Patron in Algier ever claimed more Maſtery over his Slaves bought in the Market, than this Claim of Cromwell extends unto over us? If we have the Benefit of the Execution of no Laws but from him, then all the Rights, Privileges, and Eſtates we have, are enjoyed by his Mercy only: Without the Execution of Laws no Man hath more right to Lands or Goods than another; nor is any Man's Life under any ſecurity, if another be ſtronger than he. So that Cromwell owns and profeſſes, that the Bread that every Man eats, is by his Mercy: And if his Power was without Limit (as he ſays) until he had put ſome Bounds, then 'tis of his Grace and Favour only that all Engliſhmen have now a ſeeming Right in their Wives, Children, Servants, Lives and Eſtates, if his own Limits of his Power gives any ſuch Right, and if he pleaſe to throw away, (or burn by the Hand of the Hangman) his Limits in his Paper of Government, who can controul him? He may do what he liſt with things of his own making, 'tis the old Engliſh Proverb, He that can bind, can looſe: and he may do what he liſt alſo with the Authority of Parliaments, if it be as he ſays, of his own giving. Now wherein doth a Patron's Power over his purchaſed Slave exceed this, which Cromwell owns over us? The Patron can but give the Slave his Laws, his Clothes, his Meat, his Life; and all thoſe Cromwell owns to have given to us, only he ſpeaks it in ſuch Language as ſounds not ſo harſhly.

Febr.

'Now after the Expence of ſo much precious Chriſtian Blood, for the ſettling the Rights and Liberties due unto us as Men and Chriſtians, when he that was truſted with an Army for that purpoſe, hath ſo unworthily betrayed his Truſt, ſpilt innocent Blood like Water, falſified all his Declarations, Promiſes, Proteſtations and Oaths; and aſſumed to himſelf ſuch a Dominion over our Country as is deſtructive unto all Right and Liberty, and renders us and our Poſterities Slaves to him and his Succeſſors, with the Payment of a fifth or thereabouts of our Eſtates certain in Taxes, to be intailed upon our Poſterities, beſides our Burthens; we appeal to the Conſcience of every honeſt Man, whether a preſent Neceſſity and an incumbent Duty be not upon us to arm our ſelves in defence of our ancient Laws, and deareſt Birthrights againſt the preſent Impoſtor and Uſurper; and we hope moſt of the preſent Army have not extinguiſhed their Love to their Country's Freedom, (although Cromwell's hypocritical Profeſſions, Prayers and Tears, have much deluded them) but that they will readily concur with us, and other honeſt Engliſhmen in our preſent Attempt by Force of Arms to redeem our Country out of the Uſurper's Hands, and to ſeek thoſe righteous Ends, which we do hereby declare to be thoſe, for which we now hazard our Lives, and with which we ſhall reſt ſatisfied, and return to our Homes in Peace; and they are theſe following, viz.

'1. That all aſſumed and uſurped Powers and Authorities over our Country may be utterly aboliſhed.

'2. That the Government may be ſettled upon a juſt Baſis, with due Bounds and Limits to every Magiſtrate.

'3. That the ancient Liberties of England, ſetled by Magna Charta, the Petition of Right, and other Laws, may be ſecured inviolably: That no Man's Perſon may be moleſted, impriſoned, reſtrained, or touched, without a legal Cauſe ſhewn in the Warrant, whereby he is moleſted or reſtrained, and that alſo in a due Courſe of the Laws, known Proceedings, without Countermands from the Will of any Man; whereas now Mens Perſons are troubled and reſtrained at will, and deſtroyed by long Impriſonments, no Man knows for what. And alſo, that no Man's Eſtate may be liable to any Diſpoſal or Prejudice but by the known Laws of the Land, and the lawful Judgment of his Equals.

'4. That free ſucceſſive Parliaments may be ſettled, with times of their beginning and ending, and with their ancient Power and Privileges.

Anno 654.

'And that the Juriſdictive Power which Parliaments have taken upon them to exerciſe in theſe times of War-Diſtraction, by taking upon them the Judgment of particular Cauſes concerning Mens Perſons and Eſtates, ſometimes by their Committees, and ſometimes by themſelves, contrary to the known Proceedings of the Law, that ſuch Power (we ſay) may be declared againſt, and ſecure Proviſion made againſt the ſame, that thereby Parliaments may be free from the temptations of Profit, Friendſhip, and all private Intereſts, by which only they can be corrupted.

'5. That the Militia of the Nation be ſo diſpoſed, that no Man may be able to be Maſter of Parliaments; and alſo, that ſecure Proviſion may be made, that no Parliament ſhall make it ſelf perpetual, and inſlave the People to them.

'And that ſuch a Settlement may be made of Right and Freedom, and theſe our ends obtained, and a Peace firmly eſtabliſhed, we know no means under God but a truly free Parliament.

'Now for the Defence of theſe our Rights and Liberties we are reſolved to expoſe our Lives to the utmoſt hazards, and we ſhall neither wrong nor oppoſe any Man, who doth not join himſelf to the preſent Uſurper, to deſtroy or prevent theſe our righteous ends; and though we have reaſon to believe, that no Perſon fearing God, or of Conſcience, Honour, or Reaſon, can ſatisfy himſelf to ſhed our innocent Blood for ſeeking theſe things; yet however we ſhall commit our ſelves and our juſt Cauſe to the tuition of the righteous God, and hope in his Mercy that our endeavours may procure Juſtice, Freedom, Peace, and Settlement unto this diſtracted Nation.'

Many who viewed this Declaration, knew there was too much of Truth in it, and had not the Deſign been nipt in the Bud, and timely diſcovered and prevented, it might have cauſed ſome diſturbance to the Protector, and to the Peace of the new Government; but by the Commitment of the chief Conſpirators, their Plot was cruſhed, and the Peace not interrupted. Divers wondred moſt, that Wildman and others of his Party who had ſerved the Parliament, ſhould now join in this Deſign with thoſe of the King's Party; but they alledged the ſtrengthening of themſelves, and their Power afterwards to ſuppreſs the Cavaliers, or any other who ſhould oppoſe their ends: but divers ſuſpected their Deſigns at the bottom of it, to intend the bringing in of the King; becauſe they conclude in their Declaration for a truly free Parliament, which was the way for the King's Reſtauration, and that began now to be held fit and requiſite by many ſober and faithful Patriots, who were diſtaſted at the private Ambition of ſome, and their Domineering; and feared the Faction daily increaſing, that would prevent a firm Settlement of our Peace.

The Protector was jealous of many of his former Friends to be this way inclined, and of me in particular; which was thought one main reaſon of his ſending me out of the way to Swedland, and of his not taking me in to be of his Council.

March, 1654.

The Protector and his Council were very buſy in framing new Ordinances to pleaſe the People; amongſt them, they had one in Conſideration for regulating the Proceedings in Chancery; which cauſed doubtful thoughts in the Commiſſioners of the Seal, who knew the authority of that Court was deſigned to be leſſened; and they were not conſulted in this matter, yet they took no notice of it, but went on in the ordinary courſe of their Proceedings. March. Chancery.

Upon the Lord's day, March 11, a Party of about two hundred of the new Conſpirators came into Salisbury at midnight, ſeized upon many Horſes and took away the Judges Commiſſions, (being then in their Circuit in that Place) and they marched from thence Weſtward; whereof Captain Unton Crook having timely Intelligence, purſued them with his Troops, and at South Molton in Devon overtook them, and after a ſharp Conflict routed them, took Captain Penruddock, Jones and Grove, and fifty common Perſons Priſoners; Sir Joſeph Wagſtaff their chief Commander hardly eſcaping. Crook.

There were other riſings in Northumberland and in Yorkſhire, of whom Sir Henry Slingsby was taken Priſoner and others; and Sir Richard Maleverer hardly eſcaped. Many of the Conſpirators were tried by a Commiſſion of Oyer and Terminer at Sailsbury and Exeter; Mr. James Dewy was Clerk to the Commiſſioners, and did ſome ſervice to Sir Henry Moor, Sir George Browne and others, who were of that Plot in helping to favour them; for which I ſuppoſe they were not ungrateful. Slingsby. Maleverer

Penruddock and Grove were beheaded, Lucas of Hungerford and others were executed, and the Priſons were filled in thoſe Parts, Penruddock.

Letters from Scotland informed that Middleton was ſaid to be landed there again with new Supplies from the King, who was alſo expected to come thither ſhortly with a great Force and ſtore of Money; and his Brother the Duke of York to come a little before him. Upon this News former Treaties were broken off; and in divers Parts new Levies began to be made for the King. Scotland.

The Protector and his Council publiſh'd an Ordinance, appointing Commiſſioners for approbation of publick Preachers. Ordinances

Another for paſſing Cuſtodies for Idiots and Lunaticks.

Another for continuing the Act for Impreſſing of Seamen.

He and his Council and Officers kept a day of ſolemn Humiliation and Faſting, the which was alſo obſerved throughout London and Weſtminſter. Faſt-day.

Breſt Men did much Miſchief to the Merchants of Briſtol and the weſtern Parts who complained thereof.

The Parliament's Commander in Scotland apprehended divers of the King's Party.

The Lord Mayor and the Militia of London attended the Protector with their ſuit to him, to give leave to revive the Artillery Company in London, for the better exerciſing of the Citizens in Arms; and they undertook that none but well-affected Perſons ſhould be admitted into that Company; to which the Protector aſſented. Artillery Company.

Letters that Colonel Hacker had apprehended ſeveral of the Conſpirators in Nottinghamſhire, Leiceſterſhire and thoſe Parts, and kept them all in awe. Conſpirators.

Captain Howard had given to him the Command of Colonel Rich's Regiment.

An Agent from Portugal brought the Ratification of the Treaty between England and Portugal. Portugal.

Several

Anno 1655. Several Examinations were taken about the late Risings and Plots.

The Duke of Lenox died at London.

Letters from Scotland that they were in a quiet Condition.

West-Indies Expedition. The Protector by the advice of one Gage a Minister, who had been long in the West-Indies, set forth a gallant Fleet under the Command of Vice-Admiral Pen with a great Party of Land Soldiers under the Command of Venables; many were very eager to engage in this Design, being given out in general to be very rich, and that it was for the West-Indies: but it was kept very secret till the Fleet had been gone a long time, which arrived at Barbadoes in this Month, and the thirtieth day of it set sail from thence, and steered their Course towards Hispaniola, one of the fairest and richest Islands in America under the King of Spain's Dominions;

Hispaniola

Who having some inkling of this Design, sent the Marquis of Leda his Ambassador to the Protector; and the Marquis finding how things went, quickly returned to his Master.

Anno 1655.

Plot. April, 1655. The Protector and his Council issued many Orders for the apprehending of several Persons suspected to be in the late Plot, and they were brought to Whitehall, and there examined by the Protector and Secretary Thurloe; some of them were discharged, but more of them were committed.

Colonel Birch and others were secured in Herefordshire, and divers in Northumberland.

Blake. Letters that the Brest Pirates took some English Ships and that General Blake was gone from Tunis to Malta, to demand satisfaction for some Cromwell. Piracies done there upon Englishmen. The Protector feasted the Commissioners for approbation of Ministers; he sat at the Table with them, and was chearful and familiar in their Company; and by such kind of little Caresses, he gained much upon many Persons.

Sweden. Lauderdale. The King of Sweden sent a Letter to his Highness the Lord Protector in behalf of Lord Lauderdale and his Brother Laundie.

And the Lord Douglas writ to me from Stockholm into England, for the release of his poor Kinsman; not doubting but that his Highness, as a Gracious Prince might be moved to compassion; having no powerful, or any opposition at all in any of the three Kingdoms. For since it hath pleased the Lord of Hosts to bless his Actions in such a height, that by his valour his Highness has not only subdued superior and all other Power that was against him, but also by prudent Conduct of Affairs hath established himself and these three Nations in one peaceable Estate, what could that augment to his Greatness, to let his Goodness and Compassion be made known to the World, that he shews upon those whose Lives and Fortunes he has in his Hands.

Upon this Letter, and the Recommendation from the King of Swedland, I procured Favour from the Protector to the Lord Lauderdale and his Brother, and did considerable Services for them; but when the times altered, they, Scots like, remembred nothing of it, nor ever returned the least Kindness, or Gratitude for all the good Offices were done them.

Letters from Scotland of new designs and endeavours of the Enemy there to raise Forces.

The Protector sent Letters to the Justices of the Peace in Yorkshire, and in most Counties, for the watching and apprehending suspicious Persons, as to the new designs on foot against the Peace of the Commonwealth; and the matter of the Letters was carefully executed. April.

Letters were sent to the Lords Commissioners of the Great Seal to attend a Committee of the Council at the Council Chamber. They attended accordingly, and were acquainted with this Order.

Monday 23. April, 1655.

At the Council at Whitehall,

Ordered by his Highness the Lord Protector and the Council, that the Lords Commissioners Chancery. of the Great Seal do proceed according to the Ordinance of his Highness and the Council, Entitled, An Ordinance for the better regulating and limiting the Jurisdiction of the High Court of Chancery.

Henry Scobel Clerk of the Council.

The Chairman told us that this Ordinance was made upon good deliberation and advice, and his Highness was perswaded that it would much conduce to Publick good to have it duly executed, which this Order did require, which he delivered to me, and said his Highness did not doubt of our ready compliance therein.

I spake as ancient, and told the Committee, That we had not the honour to be advised with upon the making of this Ordinance, and that we were under an Oath, and as far as we could, we should readily comply with the pleasure of his Highness and the Council, and desired some time to peruse and consider the Ordinance. Some debate in general there was about it, and the Master of the Rolls spake most resolutely against it; the Committee would not enter into a Debate about it, but gravely admonished us to be careful not to oppose his Highness's intentions for the common good, and so they dismissed us.

After this the Commissioners of the Seal, and the Master of the Rolls had several meetings and consultations about the execution of this new Ordinance; the Commissioner Lisle was wholly for the execution of it; Sir Thomas Widdrington, the Master of the Rolls and my self were not satisfied for the execution of it, and declared our reasons against it, and observations of inconveniences in it, which I caused to be set down in writing, and they are as followeth,

Reasons. The Commissioners and Master of the Rolls are by this Act of Regulation made instrumental to deprive several Persons of their Freehold without Offence or legal Trial, which reflecting upon the Great Charter, and so many Acts of Parliament, they humbly desire they may have the Opinion of all the Judges of England in point of Law therein.

The fourth Rule of the Ordinance is, that the first Process in Chancery be a Subpœna, which shall be open, and that as many Defendants as the Plaintiff doth desire be inserted into the same, paying no more but one Shilling six Pence for every Subpœna thus to be distributed, six Pence for the Seal and twelve Pence to the Office.

Upon serving the Subpœna open, the abuse, now too frequently used, will be much increased by Forgery of Names, Persons and Dates.

5. That no Subpœna be sued out until a Bill be filed, and a Certificate thereof be brought unto the Subpœna Office, under the hand of the chief Clerk, or his Deputy; for which Certificate the chief Clerk shall receive no Fee.

The Exhibiting a Bill before a Subpœna will draw an unnecessary Expence and Trouble in many Suits, which which would end upon the bare ſervice of the Subpœna, as is found by daily experience; and is miſchievious to the People in many particulars ready to be expreſſed, and only profitable to Lawyers and Attornies.

6. That in default of appearance, upon Oath made of due Service, or in default of anſwer within due time (Security being put in as is provided) an Attachment with Proclamation ſhall iſſue to the Sheriff who ſhall cauſe the ſame to be proclaimed at the Door of the Defendant's dwelling Houſe, Lodging or laſt Abode between ten and two by the Sheriffs Bailiffs, or ſpecial Bailiffs; and the Bailiffs ſhall have Power for the apprehenſion of the Party (if need ſhall be) to break open any Houſe or Door, where the Party is in the day time, provided that if the Warrant be to ſpecial Bailiffs, they ſhall not break up any Houſe or Door but in preſence of a Conſtable; who upon the ſhewing of ſuch Warrant is required to be aſſiſting unto the Bailiffs, and if the Defendant cannot be apprehended nor ſhall appear by the return of the Writ, the Plaintiff may return the Attachment as often as there ſhall be cauſe, which Attachment ſhall be in lieu of a Commiſſion of Rebellion, and Sergeant at Arms.

This ſeems to advance the Juriſdiction of the Chancery upon a mean Proceſs, beyond an Execution at Law, to break open, not only the Parties, but any other Perſons Houſe without notice or requeſt made to be admitted; which may be uſed to the robbing of Houſes and taking away Evidences, and other great Abuſes; it being far different from the awarding the Sergeant at Arms, who is a known and reſponſible Officer, and acts only by ſpecial Order in open Court, upon ſatisfaction of the height of the Contempt; and his Warrant is under the Hands and Seals of the Commiſſioners, and he is alſo anſwerable to them for his miſcarriage if any be: and the other Proceſs is iſſued by Clerks of courſe; which reflects upon the Liberty and Safety of the People of this Nation, wherein every ordinary Clerk hath power to do more than all the Judges of England; and how ſafe it is for Judges to award ſuch Proceſs is left to Conſideration.

7. The Defendant ſhall not be compelled to anſwer, untill the Plaintiff with one Surety at leaſt, hath acknowledged a Recognizance before a Maſter of the Chancery in Ordinary or Extaordinary, (the Sum not to be under twenty Marks) conditioned to pay ſuch Coſts to the Defendant in that Suit, as the Court of Chancery ſhall award, if they ſee cauſe to award any, for which Recognizance he ſhall be paid twelve Pence only, and no more; and ſuch Maſter of the Chancery ſhall for as much certify every ſuch Recognizance, into the Office of the Petty-bag in Chancery, to be there filed, and the Officer there ſhall give a Certificate thereof to the Plaintiff or his Attorney upon requeſt; and for the filing ſuch Recognizances, making Certificate and keeping an Alphabet thereof, he ſhall receive twelve Pence and no more, but where the Plaintiff ſhall be admitted in forma Pauperis, there no Security is to be required.

By this the Defendant is not bound to anſwer without the Plaintiff gives ſecurity by Recognizance, which will be an incumbrance upon his Land, ſo long as that Suit endures; which will hinder Commerce, and diſable Infants, and Perſons Non Compos Mentis to ſue, and is of great delay, and five times the former expence, before the Suit can have an anſwer, and the diſcharging and ſuing Recognizances will increaſe Motions, Suits, and Expences, and if the Suits never proceed, it will be difficult to have it diſcharged, and cannot be but by Orders, albeit the Parties conſent, and the Rule it ſelf is uncertain, not expreſſing to whom the Recognizance ſhall be given; and doth no more than what may be done upon an Order for Coſts, without ſo much expence, which is only of advantage to Lawyers, Officers and Clerks.

April.

8. That where a Defendant might anſwer by Commiſſion in the Country, he ſhall not now be forced to take a Commiſſion but may anſwer upon Oath before a Maſter of the Chancery in the Country, in like manner and by ſuch time as if a Commiſſion had iſſued, and that the Lords Commiſſioners for the Great Seal do take care for that purpoſe there be in every County a convenient number of ſuch of the Juſtices of the Peace reſident in that County, as they ſhall judge to be of the greateſt Ability and Integrity, appointed to be Maſters of the Chancery Extraordinary, and that ſuch Maſter or any Maſter in Ordinary, after the Anſwer ſo ſworn before him, ſhall ſign the ſame and give it into Court himſelf, or being ſealed up, deliver it to ſome Perſon to deliver the ſame into Court, and to make Oath that he did receive the ſame from the hand of ſuch Maſters of the Chancery, and that ſince the receiving thereof the ſame hath not been opened or altered.

It is very dangerous to rely upon Anſwers as this Rule directs; for the Defendant may go into any Country, and never call any Perſon thereunto, that knows him to be the ſame Perſon.

9. That upon delivering in the Anſwer the Attorney for the Defendant do take care that he be provided with Names of Perſons for Commiſſioners to be given by him upon a Rule given to rejoin.

It is not poſſible until the Defendant doth know into what County the Plaintiff will take his Commiſſion.

10. When an Anſwer is put in, the Plaintiff ſhall reply within eight days if the Anſwer were in Term time, otherwiſe within four days after the beginning of the next Term, unleſs the Plaintiff ſhall within eight days after the Anſwer come and put in Exceptions thereunto, or promiſe the Cauſe to be ſet down for hearing on Bill, and another to be heard the next Term, otherwiſe the Cauſe to be diſmiſſed without Motion, which Coſts to be taxed by the chief Clerk.

This cannot be obſerved without great miſchief that may happen, in caſe where all the Defendants have not anſwered, which may be the loſs of a Cauſe, where the Plaintiff hath occaſion to put in a ſpecial Replication, it cannot be known to his Council, or Attorney, but by the Plaintiff's Information; and experience hath found great inconvenience to confine the Plaintiff to ſuch ſhort time; and it is the Cauſe of many Motions to enlarge it, and the execution of this Rule is of no advantage to the Defendant as is conceived, unleſs it be to ſurprize the Plaintiff from making the truth of his Caſe appear.

12. That in caſe the Plaintiff think fit to except unto the Anſwer for inſufficiency, the Plaintiff ſhall deliver the Exception in writing, to the Defendant's Attorney within eight days after the Anſwer filed, and ſhall enter the Cauſe with the Regiſter; and in the ſame Order as they are entred, the ſame ſhall be heard by the Maſter of the Rolls, who ſhall appoint one or more days in the Week for that purpoſe, and at every ſitting ſhall appoint his next day of ſitting and how many of the ſaid Cauſes ſhall be then heard upon Exceptions, in the ſame order as they are entred, which days the Parties ſhall attend at their Peril.

Anno. 1655.

And the Maſter of the Rolls upon hearing thereof ſhall give ſuch Coſts as be fitting.

This hinders the Defendant's liberty to amend his Anſwer without farther delay or expence.

13. That if a Defendant doth appear and anſwer inſufficiently, and it be ſo ruled, or ſhall plead, Demur and the ſame be over-ruled; then if upon a Rule given, he ſhall not anſwer within eight days, the Plaintiff may proceed in ſuch ſort as is before directed, in caſe the Defendant had not appeared.

This together with the ſixth Article, impoſeth upon any Perſon that lives remote, without any notice or default in him, to have his Houſe broke open, or any other Houſe wherein he is, and to be taken in contempt.

14. That after an Anſwer, if it appear at any time to the Court, that no Part of the Matter of the Plaintiff's Bill is then proper for Relief in that Court, the Court ſhall diſmiſs the Bill with full Coſts upon a Bill to be allowed by the chief Clerk; but if ſome particular Part of the Bill be thought fit by the Court to be proceeded in, the Court then ſhall direct the Examination, and Proceeding upon that particular Point, and the Defendant not to be enforced to proceed to examine upon any other Matters.

This will create a Multitude of Actions and Expence, and in implicated Cauſes of Fraud and Truſts, will be dangerous to break or cut them off, and to give Judgment upon them before a Hearing; and is of no Advantage to either ſide, but what the Court may thereby provide for at the Hearing, if any thing be unneceſſarily examined.

15. The Plaintiff the next Day after the Supplication filed, or the ſame Day if he will, ſhall cauſe a Rule to be entred for the Defendant to rejoin and join in Commiſſion; which if the Defendant ſhall not do within eight Days, the Plaintiff may take a Commiſſion ex parte, and the Defendant ſhall have no new Commiſſion in that Cauſe.

This will be a Means to ſurprize many Perſons in their juſt Defence, without any Proviſion againſt Sickneſs or any other Accidents, and if this be enforced as a Law, all Special Rejoinders, for which there may be juſt Cauſe, are taken away; and it will deſtroy many a juſt Cauſe, leave the Party remedileſs, and encourage falſe Dealing.

16. That no Witneſs ſhall be examined in Court but by one of the Examiners themſelves, but in caſe of Sickneſs; and that one of the Examiners ſhall examine the Witneſſes of the Plaintiff's Party, and the other the Witneſſes of the Defendant's Party, if any be produced to be examined in Court, and that no Clerk of that Office ſhall be a Solicitor upon pain of loſing his Place.

No Proviſion is made but that an Examiner being a Party, muſt examine his own Witneſſes or his Adverſaries.

17. That all Commiſſions for Examination of Witneſſes ſhall be open.

The ſame will be in this, as in the Caſe of Subpœnas, Patents, and many more.

19. That Commiſſion for Examination of Witneſſes ſhall take an Oath before Execution of any Commiſſion, to execute the ſame faithfully and impartially, which each Commiſſioner is impowered to adminiſter to other. And the Clerk or Clerks attending ſuch Commiſſioners ſhall take an Oath, which is to be adminiſtred by the Commiſſioners, to write down the Depoſitions of Witneſſes truly and indifferently without Partiality; and a Clauſe ſhall be in the Commiſſion for that purpoſe.

The Commiſſion is a Writ in the Regiſter; and it is not mentioned or provided what the Form of the Oath or Clauſe to be inſerted ſhall be, nor by whom inſerted; and if this be extended beyond a Rule and taken for a Law, any Plaintiff who ſhall loſe his Commiſſion ſhall loſe his Cauſe, and ſo of any other Accident though never ſo unavoidable. April.

21. That there ſhall be no more than two Commiſſions at the moſt for Examination of Witneſſes in any one Cauſe to be executed in England or Wales, unleſs where one ſhall be ſuppreſſed; and in caſe either Party have any Witneſſes in Scotland or beyond the Seas to examine, ſetting down the Names of ſuch Witneſſes, and delivering them to the Attorney of the other ſide, he may take out a Commiſſion within the time before limited, wherein the adverſe Party may join if he will, within four Days after notice, or otherwiſe the Commiſſion ſhall iſſue ex parte, provided that the Parties or either of them (and Court ſee Cauſe) may have ſeveral Commiſſions unto ſeveral Counties of the ſame Date.

This is miſchievous for the Reaſons before, and if this be extended beyond a Rule, not to be diſpenſed withal, as Reaſon may require upon Accidents, many Plaintiffs will loſe their Cauſes, eſpecially Merchants, who cannot by that time know where their Witneſſes are.

22. That after the Execution of one Commiſſion, no ſecond Commiſſion ſhall be taken out but by Order of the Court, and upon Affidavit that ſome material Witneſſes, whoſe Names ſhall be therein expreſſed, have been diſcovered ſince the Execution of the former Commiſſion, or that ſome of the Witneſſes intended to be examined at that Commiſſion, and which are material could not be found, or by reaſon of Sickneſs or like juſt Cauſe, could not attend that Commiſſion; in ſuch Caſe only thoſe Witneſſes which ſhall be named, ſhall be examined by ſuch ſecond Commiſſion, and the ſame ſhall iſſue and be executed at the Charge of the Party praying the ſame, unleſs the other ſide ſhall alſo deſire to examine any Witneſſes by any ſuch ſecond Commiſſion, and then he ſhall likewiſe ſet down their Names.

This is like as before.

23. That after the Return of a Commiſſion executed, or Witneſſes examined in Court, there ſhall be but one Rule for Publication; within which time, if the other ſide do not ſhew unto the Court good Cauſe to the contrary, Publication ſhall paſs, &c.

This Rule doth not expreſs after what Commiſſion nor what Witneſſes, whether all on either ſide, or not; and will ſurprize the Parties before they can move or be heard by the Court, why Publication ſhould not paſs, and increaſe Motions to the Advantage of Lawyers and Solicitors.

24. That from and after the twenty ſecond of October, 1654. no Order or Direction concerning any Cauſe depending in Chancery to be made or given, but upon Motion in open Court, that then both Parties concerned or their Council may be heard.

The Rule of the Court already being, that no Order ſhall be made upon Petition, upon the Merits or Body of the Cauſe, or to controul an Order in open Court; if that be further extended as a Law, then many of the Suitors of the Court may loſe their Cauſes and be ruined, and there will be a Failure of Juſtice and great Miſchief enſue, as by daily Experience is found.

27. That no Injunction be granted but upon Motion in open Court, ſatisfying the Court in ſuch ſuch Matter which may induce the Court in Juſtice to grant the Injunction; but the Defendant's taking a Commiſſion, or ſitting an Attachment only, ſhall be no ſufficient ground for an Injunction.

This is ſo general that it extends to all Injunctions; and ſo in Caſes of Waſte, Timber may be felled, Houſes pulled down, Meadows and ancient Paſtures ploughed up, to the irreparable Loſs of the Plaintiffs and the Commonwealth, before an Order can be procured to ſtay, in caſe the Defendants will not anſwer; and if no Injunction be granted upon an Attachment or Delay of Anſwer, a Defendant not worth a Penny may ſtand in contempt, get an Execution on the Plaintiff's Eſtate, and make it away, and no Reparation can be had.

29. That no Injunction granted after a Plea, pleaded at Law or Rules given, ſhall ſtop a Trial at Law or any Pleading, or Proceeding preparatory to a Trial.

It ſeems much againſt Equity, that if the Defendant ſhall by Anſwer confeſs the whole Debt to be paid, to ſuffer him to go to Trial at Law, which will be but a vain Expence to the Parties, and only profitable to Lawyers.

30. That from and after the twenty ſecond of October 1654. no Injunction be granted to ſtay the Mortgagee from his Suit at Law, till the final Hearing of the Cauſe; but an Injunction may be granted to prevent the Mortgagee's pulling down Houſes, cutting Trees, or making other Waſte or Spoil upon the mortgaged Lands.

This is very miſchievous where there is Equity for an Injunction in this Caſe as well as upon Bonds or other Securities; the Miſchief being greater to the Mortgager (who ſhall be turned out of Poſſeſſion) than to the Obligor in a Bond, and the Mortgagee is alſo in better Condition than the Obligee, by reaſon of his Security by Land, and yet the Court is not barred to ſtay Proceedings upon Bonds, and all other Securities, but are reſtrained in Caſes of Mortgages.

31. That all Differences touching irregularities in Proceedings, or upon the Rates or Courſe of the Court, ſhall be determined by the ſaid chief Clerks or any two of them, on whom the Attornies on both ſides are to attend; and in caſe either ſide ſhall not reſt ſatisfied with the Judgment therein, they may appeal to the Maſter of the Rolls, who upon hearing the Attornies on both ſides (and the chief Clerk who made the Certificate) if he ſee cauſe ſhall ſettle the ſame, and give Coſts where he finds the Fault.

This deprives the Commiſſioners of all Power upon the Rules and Courſe of the Court; and theſe very Rules upon which they are to judge and be anſwerable as they are judges of that Court; and gives Power to the chief Clerk to be judge even of theſe Rules.

32. All other References ſhall be determined by the Maſters of the Chancery in ordinary, which ſhall be only ſix in Number, to be now, and from time to time appointed by the Protector for the time being; of which ſix, there ſhall ſit daily at ſome certain publick Place three, ſo long as any References do depend; and ſhall have a ſworn Regiſter to attend them, who ſhall in preſence of them and the Counſel, read the Notes taken in each Cauſe upon any Order made, or Report agreed; and the ſame being read, ſhall be ſubſcribed by the Maſters then preſent, or any two of them; and afterwards the Report ſhall be drawn up by the Regiſter and ſubſcribed by the ſame Maſters and certified; and that after the twenty ſecond of October 1654. no other Perſon or Perſons ſhall exerciſe the Office of a Maſter of the Chancery in ordinary.

This ſeems to give the Maſters Power, finally to determine without any Appeal to the Court, without any Proviſion concerning Merchants Accompts, and other References of that Nature, which they cannot ſo properly determine; and concludes the Court from making any Reference though the Parties deſire it; whereby the Cauſe may receive an End by indifferent Friends. April.

38. That from and after the twenty ſecond of October 1654. every Attorney ſhall keep all and every Affidavit, whereupon he ſhall make forth any Writ or Proceſs in his own Cuſtody, and ſhall ſhew the ſame to the Attorney on the other ſide, and ſuffer him or other Perſon to take a Copy thereof if he ſhall require it; and that the Senior Regiſter ſhall appoint a Clerk of Honeſty and Integrity to attend the Court, and at the Rolls and all Seals, who ſhall take an Oath before the Lord Chancellor, Keeper or Commiſſioner of the Great Seal to be faithful in his Employment, and ſhall receive into his Cuſtody all and every Affidavit which ſhall be made in Court, or upon which any Order ſhall be grounded, and ſhall daily file the ſame, and keep an Alphabet thereof; and in caſe the Party at whoſe Inſtance ſuch Affidavit was made, ſhall have Cauſe to have a Copy thereof, he ſhall pay unto the ſaid Clerk for the ſame, four-pence for the Filing, and three-pence for every ſide for a Copy thereof; and the other ſide, or any other Perſon deſiring it, may alſo have a Copy at the ſame Rate; and the Regiſter ſhall have for examining and ſigning ſuch Copy, ſix-pence and no more.

It is conceived, by the Clerk's keeping the Affidavit, it may be in his and his Client's Power to alter or retract it after it is ſworn, as is found by Experience hath been done.

40. That all Cauſes ſhall be ſet down for Hearing in Order as they were publiſhed, without prefering one Cauſe before another, and ſhall be preſented by the chief Clerks, without taking any Fee for the ſame; and the Cauſes being ſo ſet down, ſhall be heard in the ſame Order.

This Rule is very prejudicial in Caſes (which are many) that depend upon the Lives of the Perſons, and alſo of Merchants, where one gets the Eſtate of another into his hands and goes beyond Seas; and to deny him a Hearing in ſuch Caſes as Occaſion ſhall require, is all one as to deny them Juſtice, if this be enforced as a Law; and if cauſe be to adviſe with Judges, or any other Accident, the Court cannot put off the Cauſe for half an Hour.

41. That every Cauſe ſhall be heard the ſame Day on which it is ſet down for Hearing; and for that purpoſe the Lords Commiſſioners, if there be Cauſe, ſhall ſit for hearing ſuch Cauſes in the Afternoon as well as in the Forenoon, except upon Saturdays.

This is impoſſible to be done; for Cauſes of Equity depend upon ſo many Circumſtances in caſes of Frauds and Truſts, that three or four Days is not ſometimes ſufficient for the orderly hearing of one Cauſe; and the ſitting of the Commiſſioners upon the Rolls Days cannot conſiſt, by reaſon of Counſel and Solicitors who cannot do their Duty at both Places; and if this be impoſed as a Law upon the Judges of that Court, they are enjoined thereby to act an Impoſſibility.

The like Objections were made to all the reſt of the Articles, and Particulars of the new Ordinance touching the Chancery; which though they could not prevail to ſtay the Execution of it, as to us who ſeemed to doubt the Power that made it (which the Makers would not endure)

Anno 1655. dure) yet we were the Means that it was not exacted from our Succeſſors; but they were connived at in the not Execution of it, wherein they could not have ſatisfied themſelves having taken an Oath which they ſcrupled would be broken, either in the Admittance of this Ordinance for a Law; or if admitted, in neglecting the Performance of any Part thereof.

May, 1655.

Viſitors. May 1. The Protector's Commiſſioners for viſiting the Univerſities, Colleges, and Schools in Scotland, ſet forth a Proclamation, Prohibiting Miniſters to pray for the King, or to excite the People to new Troubles, prohibiting all Perſons from paying any Maintenance to ſuch Miniſters.

News of the Death of the Queen Dowager of Sweden, who after ſhe had been long ſick of a Quartan Ague, it was followed by a ſtrong Rheum that fell on her Breaſt till ſhe died.

Old Oxenſtiern Chancellor of Swedland was buried, and the King and Queen at his Funeral.

Pen. Letters from Vice-Admiral Pen, that his Fleet was ſafe at Barbadoes, where they had taken in four or five thouſand Men, and within few Days intended to ſet ſail from thence upon their Deſign.

Letters of the Continuance of the cruel Perſecution againſt the poor Proteſtants of Piedmont, by the Duke of Savoy.

Jeſuits. A Proclamation publiſhed for the Execution of the Laws againſt Jeſuits and Prieſts, and for Conviction of popiſh Recuſants; againſt which I declared my Opinion at this time, when there was not a fixed Settlement, and ſo great Pretences for Liberty of Conſcience.

Judges put out. Baron Thorpe and Judge Newdigate were put out of their Places, for not obſerving the Protector's Pleaſure in all his Commands.

This Order was ſent from the Protector and Council to the Commiſſioners of the Seal.

Tueſday, May 1. 1655. At the Council at Whitehall.

Chancery. Foraſmuch as the naming and ſettling of the Attornies in the Court of Chancery, and the diſpoſing of the Records in ſuch Manner as is directed by an Ordinance of his Highneſs, by and with the Conſent of his Council, entitled, An Ordinance for the better regulating and limiting the Juriſdiction of the High Court of Chancery, hath been omitted by thoſe who are intruſted with the doing thereof, and that great Delay in Juſtice will neceſſarily fall out, in caſe all Proceedings in Chancery ſhould be ſuſpended, until all the ſaid Officers and Records be ſettled; for Prevention thereof, it is ordered by his Highneſs the Lord Protector by the Advice of his Council; that the Lords Commiſſioners of the Great Seal and Maſter of the Rolls, do proceed in the Buſineſs of the ſaid Court, notwithſtanding the ſaid Officers have not been nominated and the Records diſpoſed of, as by the ſaid Ordinance is directed; which his Highneſs and the Council expect ſhould be done with all ſpeed by thoſe who are concerned therein; and that in all other things they proceed according to the Direction in the ſaid Ordinance.

Henry Scobel Clerk of the Council.

This Order was made to put a further Trial upon the Commiſſioners, and a Command to execute the new Ordinance; and the Default in this Particular was in the Maſter of the Rolls, who was more poſitive than any other, in denying as yet to execute the Ordinance; but afterwards, his Profit and Fear to offend, over-ſwayed all other Conſiderations. May.

At one of our Meetings, Widdrington, Lenthal, and my ſelf, agreed upon this Letter to be ſubſcribed by us, and ſent to the Preſident of the Council.

My Lord,

'WE have ſeriouſly and duly conſidered 'what we received from his Highneſs 'concerning the Execution of the Ordinance 'touching the Chancery, and have ſtrictly exa-'mined our own Judgements and Conſciences, 'having with all Submiſſion ſought to God 'therein, yet cannot give our ſelves Satisfaction 'ſo as to be free to proceed upon that Ordinance; 'wherefore, and in regard of the near Approach 'of the Term, We hold it our duty to repre-'ſent the ſame unto his Highneſs, together with 'the great Trouble of our own Thoughts, in 'our Unhappineſs in this Diſſatisfaction; and 'deſire the Favour from your Lordſhip to ac-'quaint his Highneſs herewith; we remain,

May, 1. 1655. My Lord, your Lordſhip's very humble Servants,

B. Whitelock, T. Widdrington, W. Lenthal.

This Letter was not delivered to the Preſident of the Council till ſome time after the Date of it; the next Day we received this Order or Warrant from the Protector.

Oliver PROTECTOR,

'RIght truſty, and right well-beloved, We 'greet you well, Whereas by an Ordinance 'entitled, An Ordinance for the better regulating, 'and limiting the Juriſdiction of the High Court of 'Chancery, It is among other things ordained, that 'the Maſters of the Chancery in ordinary, ſhall 'be only ſix in Number, to be now and from 'time to time appointed by the Lord Protector 'for the time being, We according to the ſaid 'Ordinance do appoint William Lenthal, Eſq; 'Maſter of the Rolls, John Sadler, Nathanael 'Hubart, Arthur Barnardiſton, Thomas St. Ni-'cholas, and Robert Aldworth, Eſqs; to be the 'Six Maſters of the Chancery in ordinary; and 'do hereby ſignify unto you our Pleaſure, that 'they be ſworn and admitted accordingly; given 'at Whitehall this ſecond Day of May, 1655.

To our right truſty, and right well beloved Sir Bulſtrode Whitelocke Knight, Sir Thomas Widdrington Knight, and John Liſle, Eſq; Lords Commiſſioners of the Great Seal of England.

Upon Receipt of this Warrant we gave the Oath to the Six Maſters of the Chancery named in the Order, it being the old Oath; and we proceeded in ordinary Buſineſs of the Court, according to the former Courſe.

Letters from Barbadoes of ſome Dutch Ships there trading, ſeized upon by Pen and his Fleet ready to ſail from thence, but whither the Officers knew not; that they only waited for more Stores from London, which were not yet come to them; that Pen had here recruited his Men, and ſent ſome Forces to the Leeward Iſlands; that the Engliſh here love to trade more with Pen.

Anno 1655. Barbadoes

the Dutch than with their Countrymen; that Pen and Venables ſettled in Barbadoes, a Court by Commiſſion to levy what ſhould appear to be owing there to the Dutch, and to make Seizures of all Dutch who ſhould trade there; that they were now ſix thouſand Landmen, and five thouſad Seamen, and intended ſhortly to ſet ſail upon their Deſign.

Piedmont.

Letters of the Duke of Savoy's cruel perſecuting the Proteſtants in Piedmont, by taking away their Goods and Eſtates, and putting them in Priſon, and carrying away of their Children; uſing all means with Violence to make them forſake their Religion and the Purity of the Goſpel; which when they could not do, the Prieſts perſuaded the Duke to ſend an Army againſt them to force them to Conformity, who ſent eight thouſand Men againſt theſe poor quiet People and loyal Subjects; the Army fell upon them, ſlew many of them, with ſmall Loſs, and took many Priſoners, whom they uſed with all Cruelty, and then put them to death. Others of them with their Wives and Children, fled unto the Mountains, whilſt the Soldiers plunder'd their Houſes, and then fired them and their Churches.

A ſolemn Faſt was kept throughout London and Weſtminſter.

Chancery.

During this Eaſter Term we proceeded in Chancery according to the former Courſe of that Court, and did not execute the Protector's new Ordinance, which was inform'd to him, but he would not diſturb us till the Term was over; and then he was quick with us for our Diſobedience.

June, 1655.

Divers Solicitations were made to me by ſundry Perſons, whoſe Intereſt lay that way, that I ſhould recant the Letter I had ſubſcribed with Widdrington and Lenthal, that I was not ſatisfy'd to execute the Protector's new Ordinance concerning the Chancery, and that I would promiſe to do it, and to conform to his Highneſs's Pleaſure, and that then I ſhould be continued in the place of Commiſſioner of the Great Seal, otherwiſe I muſt expect to be put out of that good and great Office.

I anſwer'd them, that no worldly Conſiderations could prevail with me to do any thing contrary to my Judgment and Conſcience, for then I knew I ſhould offend a greater Protector and better Friend than my Lord Protector could be: That I had taken an Oath to execute the Place of Commiſſioner of the Great Seal legally, and juſtly; and for me to execute this Ordinance as a Law, when I knew that thoſe who made it, had no legal Power to make a Law, could not be juſtify'd in Conſcience, and would be a betraying of the Rights of the People of England, and too much countenancing of an illegal Authority.

That as long as I ſhould continue a Commiſſioner of the Great Seal, I would execute that Place according to Law, and do right to the Parties in Court, after the beſt of my Judgment and Conſcience; but to do an illegal Act, and to execute ſuch an Ordinance, as I knew not to be agreeable to Law, and would be an Occaſion of Injuſtice to many, becauſe I would thereby keep myſelf in the Place of a Commiſſioner, I thought was not according to good Conſcience nor Honeſty, and therefore I reſolv'd to give my ſelf Satisfaction, rather than any other, and further than this, I could not be perſuaded.

This Order was brought to me. June.

To the Right honourable the Lords Commiſſioners of the Great Seal.

My Lords,

I AM commanded to ſignify unto your Lordſhips, his Highneſs's and the Council's Pleaſure, That your Lordſhips do attend his Highneſs with the Great Seal, at ſix of the Clock this Evening. I am,

My Lords, Your Lordſhip's

Whitehall, June 6. 1655. moſt humble Servant,

Henry Scobel.

As ſoon as this Letter came to us, we underſtood the meaning of it, and attended with the Great Seal at the time appointed, at the Council-Chamber, and were after a little waiting called in. The Protector gravely told us; 'That he 'was ſorry ſome of us could not ſatisfy our own 'Conſciences, to execute the Ordinance con-'cerning the Chancery, which they were in-'form'd had much good in it to the Publick, 'but he confeſſed that every one was to ſatisfy 'himſelf in Matters to be perform'd by him, and 'that he had not the worſe Opinion of any Man 'for refuſing to do that whereof he was doubt-'ful; but in this particular the Affairs of the 'Commonwealth did require a Conformity of the 'Officers thereof, and their Obedience to Au-'thority, and (being ſome of us refuſed to exe-'cute this Act, as was enjoined) they were com-'pell'd thereby to put this Charge of the Cuſtody 'of the Great Seal into the Hands of ſome others, 'who might be ſatisfy'd that it was their duty to 'perform this Command, and to put the Ordi-'nance in Execution.

I being the antienteſt of the Commiſſioners, told his Highneſs, 'That our Scruple was not upon 'the Authority of his Highneſs and the Council, 'as to the Command of all Matters concerning 'the Government of the Commonwealth, but on-'ly as to the effect of this Ordinance, to be exe-'cuted as a Law, the which we apprehended (and 'had formerly given our Reaſons for it) would be 'of great Prejudice to the Publick, and would be 'contrary to what we had formerly by our Oath 'promiſed; and being yet unſatisfy'd therein, was 'the Ground of our Scruple.

Sir Thomas Widdrington ſpake ſomewhat to the ſame purpoſe, and then the Protector ſpake to us to lay down the Seal, which we did; and then we were deſired to withdraw; and ſo this great Office was voluntarily parted with by us upon Terms of Conſcience only.

And I bleſs God I never had cauſe to repent of this Action.

People paſſed their Cenſures upon us as their Affections led them, ſome commended what we had done as a conſcientious Act, ſome of larger Principles blamed us for parting with ſo great and profitable an Employment, upon a nice Scruple, which probably themſelves would have ſwallowed, although it had been never ſo great: But they held themſelves accountable to none but God for what they did.

Lenthal, who ſeemed moſt earneſt againſt the Execution of this Ordinance, and proteſted, That he would be hanged at the Rolls-Gate before he would execute it, yet now when he ſaw Widdrington and me,

Anno 1655. me put out of our Places for refuſing to do it; he wheeled about, and was as forward as any one to act in the Execution of it, and thereby reſtored himſelf to their Favour.

The Protector kept the Seal in his own Cuſtody for ſome days, and diſpatched ſome buſineſs of Sealing in his Chamber, where the Officers attended till he had reſolved upon the Perſons to whom he afterwards committed the Cuſtody of it.

Thus my Fortunes and Intereſt decreaſed, and now my former pretended dear Friends and frequent Viſitors withdrew themſelves from me, and began neither to own nor to know me: Such is the Courſe of dirty Worldlings; but I valued not theſe loaf Friends and Hypocrites.

I was adviſed and encouraged to fall again into my Profeſſion, upon which I received many Fees; but this Courſe laſted not long, as you will find in the next Month.

Liſle. June 8. The Great Seal was thus parted with by me and Widdrington, and June the 15th it was deliver'd to Colonel Fiennes and Mr. Liſle, our late Brother, who was for all Aſſays; and theſe two were Commiſſioners of the Great Seal, the one of them never had Experience in Matters of this Nature, and the other had as little Knowledge in them, till by accompanying us he gained ſome; and now he carry'd the Buſineſs very high, and ſuperciliouſly.

Blake. Letters that General Blake demanding at Tunis Reparation for the Loſſes of the Engliſh from Turkiſh Pirates; the Dey of Tunis anſwer'd him with Scorn, and bid him behold his Caſtles, whereupon Blake ſailed into the Harbour within Musket-ſhot of the Caſtle, and though the Shore was planted with great Guns, yet he ſet upon the Turkiſh Ships in the Haven, fired nine of them, and came off with great Honour.

About the latter end of this Month the Lord Willoughby of Parham, and the Lord Newport, were committed to the Tower upon Suſpicion of Treaſon.

July, 1655.

Commiſſioners of the Treaſury. The Protector being good-natur'd and ſenſible of his harſh Proceedings againſt me and Widdrington, for keeping to that Liberty of Conſcience which himſelf held to be every one's Right, and that none ought to ſuffer for it; he now intending to make ſome Recompenſe to us, put us in to be Commiſſioners of the Treaſury, together with Colonel Mountague and Colonel Sydenham, with whom we had fair Quarter, our Salary one thouſand Pounds a-piece per annum; and Mr. Sherwyn, an able Man in the Buſineſs of the Exchequer, was Secretary to the Commiſſioners.

Venables. Letters from the Fleet under General Pen and Venables, whereby the ill Succeſs and Miſcarriage of Venables was ill reſented by all, and the Protector was much offended at it; and indeed it was indiſcreetly managed by Venables, who might have landed his Men near Sancto Domingo, from whence the Inhabitants fled into the Woods, and left a great booty in the Town.

Hiſpaniola. But Venables landed his Men ten Leagues Weſtward, who were ſo tired with a long and hot March, and ſo ſick with it, that the Enemy returned upon them, and ſlew Major General Hains, who fought ſtoutly, and ſix hundred Engliſh, beſides thoſe that were ſlain ſtraggling; and this was done by about ſixty of the Enemy, who chaſed the Engliſh to their Ships.

The reſt of this Naval Army ſailed to an Iſland called Jamaica, in the Weſt Indies, of which they poſſeſſed themſelves, where they found a tolerable Habitation; and in the beginning of this Month Major Sedgwick was ſent with twelve Ships, and Colonel Humphreys with his Regiment with Supplies to thoſe in Jamaica; ſo careful was the Protector to loſe no Advantage of what he had got footing in. Auguſt. Jamaica.

Graef Hannibal Seſthead, a Lord of Denmark, who had marry'd the King's half Siſter there, and been Vice-Roy of Norway, but afterwards grew out of Favour of his King, came into England to ſee the Protector, and made his Applications to me, whom he had been acquainted with in Germany. Denmark.

I brought him to the Protector, and he uſed him with all Courteſy; he dined with him ſeveral times, and the Protector was much taken with his Company; he being a very ingenious Man, ſpake many Languages, and Engliſh perfectly well, and had been employed in ſeveral great Charges and Ambaſſies, but he was a very debauched Perſon; which when the Protector knew, he would not admit him any more into his Converſation; and not long after he departed out of England.

The Swediſh Ambaſſador Graef Bundt being landed, and making his Entry into London, the Council made this Order, Swediſh Ambaſſador.

Friday, July 27. 1655.

At the Council at Whitehall.

Ordered, That Mr. Strickland, Colonel Montague, and the Lord Whitelock, or two of them, be deſired to receive the Lord Ambaſſador Extraordinary from the King of Sweden, and conduct him to his Lodgings at the Lady Williams's Houſe To-morrow.

Henry Scobel Clerk of the Council.

Auguſt, 1655.

We were full of Buſineſs in the Treaſury, part whereof may be ſeen by this enſuing Letter from one of us to the other.

My Lords,

I Have moved his Highneſs and the Council concerning the Money to be diſpoſed of to the Treaſurers at War, and the Council have order'd the Treaſurers to pay the Soldiers that Fortnight's Pay out of any Monies in their Hands; ſo that if your Lordſhips pleaſe to give Directions that the 1000 l. be paid upon the remainder of the Seal for 17000 l. and 1000 l. more upon the 92000 l. Seal, it will do the Work. I am,

Your Lordſhips humble Servant,

E. Montague.

Treaſury. We had a Seal from the Protector and his Council for every great Sum, and then the Commiſſioners order'd under their Hands the Payment of every particular Sum accordingly; and all theſe were enter'd in our Books, ſo that the State could not be cozened, and we had not the hard ways of the uſual Courſe of the Exchequer, but yet we did not take off that Courſe, as to the conſtant Form of it.

Swediſh Ambaſſador. The laſt Month Strickland and I received the Swediſh Ambaſſador at the Tower, by order of the Protector, with his Coaches, and near a hundred Anno 1655. Reception. others, with ſix Horſes a piece; and met the Ambaſſador at the Water-ſide; I bid him welcome in the Protector's Name, and after Ceremonies, took Coaches; the Ambaſſador and I, Strickland, the Maſter of the Ceremonies, and Graef Hohento, a German, and Couſin to the King of Sweden in the Protector's chief Coach.

At our firſt ſetting forward there was Strife between a French Ambaſſador's Coach, which he ſent with ſome of his Gentlemen to meet the Swediſh Ambaſſador, and the Swediſh Ambaſſador's own Coach, which ſhould go firſt; the French Lackies and the Swediſh Lackies drew their Swords, and ſome ſlight Hurts were given, and a great Tumult in the Streets; but Strickland and I ſent the Protector's Lackies to quiet them, with Order that the Swediſh Ambaſſador's Coach ſhould go firſt, he being preſent in perſon, and the other only ſent to wait on him; which Order was obſerved. We came by Torch-light through London to Sir Abraham Williams's Houſe at Weſtminſter, where the Ambaſſador was feaſted and entertained nobly at the Protector's-Charge three days. Strickland and I uſually dined with him: He asked why I who was no Privy-Counſellor had the Precedency of Strickland, who was a Privy-Counſellor? Whereas in his Country, the Counſellors (who are called Senators) have Precedency of all other Subjects of what Degree or Office ſoever they be; and the Reaſon was given him, becauſe in his Country the Counſellors are Senatores Regni: here they are only Conſiliarii Protectoris, not Regni.

Audience. The third day of his Entertainment he had his Audience, the Protector's Coaches and a great Number of other Coaches, moſt of them with ſix Horſes, came and took up the Ambaſſador and his Company, and thoſe appointed to wait on him, with Sir Oliver Flemming, Maſter of the Ceremonies, and brought them into the Court at Whitehall, where he alighted, and his Gentlemen and Servants went all bare before him.

There were of his Company five Swediſh Barons (the Cuſtom of their Country being, that every Son of a Baron hath the Title of a Baron) and about thirty other Gentlemen of Quality, about four Pages, and ten Lackies, his other Servants made up the Number of two hundred Perſons; generally proper handſom Men, and fair-hair'd; they were all in mourning (very genteel) as the Ambaſſador himſelf was, upon the Death of the Queen-Mother of Sweden.

His People went all bare, two and two before him in order, according to their Qualities, the beſt Men laſt; and next to him, the Maſter of the Ceremonies next before him, I on his Right Hand and Strickland on his Left Hand; they made a handſom Shew in this Equipage, and ſo went up to the Council-Chamber, where the Ambaſſador repos'd himſelf, about a quarter of an hour, and then word being brought that the Protector was ready in the Banqueting-Houſe, he came down into the Court again, and in the ſame Order they went up into the Banqueting-Houſe. Whitehall Court was full of Soldiers in good Order, the Stairs and Doors were kept by the Protector's Guards in their Livery Coats, with Halberts, the Rooms and Paſſages in very handſom Order; the Banqueting Houſe was richly hung with Arras, Multitudes of Gentlemen in it, and of Ladies in the Galleries. The Ambaſſador's People were all admitted into the Room, and made a Lane within the Rails in the midſt of the Room. At the upper end upon a Foot-pace and Carpet, ſtood the Protector with a Chair of State behind him, and divers of his Council and Servants about him. Auguſt.

The Maſter of the Ceremonies went before the Ambaſſador on the left ſide; the Ambaſſador in the middle, betwixt me and Strickland, went up in the open Lane of the Room; as ſoon as they came within the Room, at the lower end of the Lane, they put off their Hats: The Ambaſſador a little while after the reſt, and when he was uncover'd, the Protector alſo put off his Hat, and anſwer'd the Ambaſſador's three Salutations in his coming up to him, and on the Foot-pace they ſaluted each other as uſually Friends do: And when the Protector put on his Hat, the Ambaſſador put on his, as ſoon as the other.

After a little pauſe, the Ambaſſador put off his Hat, and begun to ſpeak, and then put it on again; and whenſoever in his Speech he named the King his Maſter, or Sweden, or the Protector, or England, he moved his Hat, eſpecially if he mentioned any thing of God, or the Good of Chriſtendom, he put off his Hat very low; and the Protector ſtill anſwer'd him in the like Poſtures of Civility.

The Ambaſſador ſpake in the Swediſh Language, and after he had done, being but ſhort, his Secretary Berkman did interpret it in Latin to this effect.

Ambaſſador's Speech.

'That the King of Sweden his Maſter having a very great Affection and Reſpect to his Highneſs, which he had formerly in ſome ſort teſtify'd, when a noble Perſon now preſent was Ambaſſador from your Highneſs to that Crown.

'His Majeſty, the King my Maſter, ſince his coming to the Crown, hath ratify'd the Treaty made with your Highneſs, and commanded me to repair hither to ſalute your Highneſs, which I do with all Reſpect and Reverence in his Majeſty's Name, and congratulate the happy Acceſs of your Highneſs to the Government of this Commonwealth, wiſhing you all Proſperity therein.

'The King my Maſter hath impower'd me to propound unto your Highneſs ſome other Matters in order to the perfecting of ſome things left to a farther Determination in that Treaty, and to a farther and more ſtrict Union and Alliance between the two Nations, tending to the Glory of God and to the Advantage of the Proteſtant Intereſt in the World, and to the Benefit of both Nations in point of Trade and other Intereſt; which I ſhall be ready particularly to declare unto your Highneſs, or ſuch as you ſhall appoint for that purpoſe.

Many other Paſſages of Compliment and Civility were in his Expreſſions; and after his Interpreter had done, the Protector ſtood ſtill a pretty while, and putting off his Hat to the Ambaſſador, with a Carriage full of Gravity and State, he anſwer'd him in Engliſh to this effect.

Protector's Anſwer.

'My Lord Ambaſſador, I have great reaſon to acknowledge with thankfulneſs, the Reſpects and good Affection of the King your Maſter towards this Commonwealth, and towards my ſelf in particular, whereof I ſhall always retain a very grateful Memory, and ſhall be ready upon all occaſions to manifeſt the high Senſe and Value I have of his Majeſty's Friendſhip and Alliance.

'My Lord, you are very welcome into England, and during your abode here, you ſhall find all due Regard and Reſpect to be given to 'your,

Anno 1655.

'your Perſon, and to the Buſineſs about which 'you come.

'I am very willing to enter into a nearer and 'more ſtrict Alliance and Friendſhip with the 'King of Swedland, as that which in my Judg- 'ment will tend much to the Honour and Com- 'modity of both Nations, and to the general 'Advantage of the Proteſtant Intereſt; I ſhall 'nominate ſome Perſons to meet and treat with 'your Lordſhip upon ſuch Particulars as you 'ſhall communicate to them.'

The Protector's Speech was not interpreted, becauſe the Ambaſſador underſtood Engliſh, and after it was done the Ambaſſador gave Copies of his Speech in Swediſh and in Latin to the Protector, and then delivered unto him his Credential Letters; a Copy whereof had been ſent to him before; then the Ambaſſador ſpake in Engliſh to the Protector, and after ſome ſhort Compliments between them, the Ambaſſador took his leave, returning in the ſame order as he came, and was by the ſame Company conducted back to his Lodgings in Weſtminſter.

The next Day the Ambaſſador removed with his Family to Dorſet-houſe, which was taken up and furniſhed for him at his own charge.

Tho' as to this Accommodation I was more kindly dealt with at Upſal.

About the beginning of this Month the Ambaſſador was highly feaſted and entertained, with moſt of his Followers, by the Protector at Hampton-Court.

September, 1655.

General Pen. General Pen returned to England with a part of the Fleet from Jamaica, the greateſt part of it ſtayed behind, and not long after him came General Venables, who upon Examination by the Protector and Council of his Management of that Affair was committed to the Tower; but being judged that he failed rather through his Imprudence than any ill Intent, he was at length releaſed. Venables.

The Princeſs Royal, and her Brother the Duke of Glouceſter, went to the King of Scots to Cologn, and they went together to the Fair at Francfort; through every Prince's Country where they paſt, the chief Officers of State were ſent to compliment them, and the great Guns ſaluted them from their Forts; the Elector of Mentz entertained them ſumptuouſly three days.

Queen of Sweden. The King hearing the Queen Chriſtiana of Sweden was coming that way in her Journey to Italy, ſent one of his Lords to her to ſalute her in his Name, and to expreſs his deſire to wait upon her Majeſty at what Place ſhe would appoint; ſhe named Coningſtein where they met, and had private Diſcourſe together, and amongſt other things (as the King afterwards related) there was ſome mention of me and of my Ambaſſage in Sweden, wherein the Queen ſpake with high Favour and Reſpect of me; and told the King that in all the Conferences that ſhe had with me at that time, ſhe never heard me ſpeak a diſhonourable Word of the King.

Piedmont. The Duke of Savoy having committed great Cruelties, and a barbarous Perſecution of the poor Proteſtants in Piedmont, the Protector appointed a ſolemn Day of Humiliation to be kept, and a large Contribution to be gathered throughout the Nation for their Relief, which was very well reſented by the Proteſtants beyond the Seas.

October, 1655. October.

The Protector's Council in Scotland publiſhed a Declaration for the Election of Magiſtrates there; which was obſerved, ſo great a Power had he then in Scotland. Scotland.

Notice by a Ship arrived in the Iſle of Wight from Bilboa, that the Embargo continued there upon Engliſh Goods, and in all Spain; and the Engliſh Factors were confined to their Houſes there, and at Malaga the People were in diſorder for the loſs of their Trade with the Engliſh. Spain.

The Council at Whitehall ordered, that no Perſon preſume to publiſh in Print, any matter of publick News or Intelligence, without leave and approbation of the Secretary of State. News.

Major Generals appointed by the Protector and his Council in the ſeveral Counties.

The Articles of Peace between England and France, ſigned here October 24.

General Pen was releaſed from his Impriſonment.

A great Queſtion was moved before us at the Treaſury concerning the Deſcent of Lands in the Iſland of Sark, and Council heard on both ſides by us.

I was the moſt part of this Month very buſy in the matters of the Treaſury, and the Commiſſioners joined with me were civil, and we had not ſo much difference and private Animoſities betwixt us as we had when I was in the Chancery, where the Envy and Emulation of my Collegues, Anno 1655. Collegues, and their want of Experience was no ſmall trouble to me.

The Protector often adviſed with me in his greateſt Affairs, and I was faithful in my advice to him, though ſometimes it was leſs pleaſing to him than the Counſel of ſome others, who for their private ends would flatter him, and ſeldom differ from him in Judgment, whereof he grew at laſt ſenſible; he ſeldom omitted to adviſe with me about his foreign Affairs, wherein he thought me not unſerviceable, and did much follow my Counſel therein; and I did often preſs him to have frequent Parliaments, againſt which he wanted not the Council of others.

Swediſh Ambaſſador. This Month the Ambaſſador was full of expectation, that Commiſſioners ſhould be appointed to treat with him, but by reaſon of the great and unſettled Affairs of this Nation, and for that the Council judged other Affairs which they had in hand (though perhaps miſtaken) to be of greater Conſequence than this Treaty.

No Commiſſioners were yet appointed, though the Ambaſſador had been ſeveral times with the Protector, and deſired his Buſineſs might be proceeded in, and was promiſed that it ſhould.

November, 1655.

Letters of the miſerable Condition of the poor Proteſtants in Dauphine oppreſſed by the Duke of Savoy, and left ſick, and without Covert, Food, or Cloathing, and many of them dead with Cruelty.

Ireland. A Day of Thankſgiving in Dublin, for their Deliverance from the Rebels, the Courts of Juſtice eſtabliſhed there, the Soldiers many of them turned Planters.

One who called himſelf William Smith, a Miniſter in Cornwall, apprehended for having ſeven Wives together.

General Venables was releaſed from his Impriſonment.

The Swediſh Ambaſſador had Audience.

Letters of Repriſal granted to divers Engliſh againſt the Spaniards.

Committee of Trade. The Protector and Council appointed a Council of Trade, to conſider how to improve, order, and regulate the Trade and Navigation of the Commonwealth; upon which I received this Letter.

SIR,

'HIS Highneſs conſidering of how great
'Importance it is to this Nation, that the 'Trade and Commerce thereof be by all good
'ways and means advanced and duly regulated,
'hath by the Advice of his Council thought fit
'to appoint a certain number of Perſons (whoſe
'Abilities and Experience have qualified them
'to be ſerviceable to their Country herein) to be 'a Committee for Trade, impowering them to
'take into Conſideration, the Trade and Navi-
'gation of this Commonwealth, and in what 'manner, and by what ways and means the ſame
'may be encouraged, improved, ordered and 'regulated. And having named you to be one
'of that Committee, have thought fit to ſignify
'the ſame unto you, to the end you may be pre-
'ſent at their firſt meeting, which is appointed
'to be on the 27th of this Inſtant November in
'the Painted-Chamber at Weſtminſter, not doubt-
'ing of your readineſs to join with the reſt of
'the Committee, in contributing your beſt aſſi-
'ſtance to a Work ſo highly tending to the Novemb.
'Publick good.

Whitehall the 2d of November, 1655. Signed in the Name and by the Order of his Highneſs and the Council.

Hen. Lawrence, Preſident.

This was a Buſineſs of much Importance to the Commonwealth, and the Protector was earneſtly ſet upon it.

New raiſed Forces. A Declaration of the Protector and his Council, of the Reaſons for raiſing additional ſtanding Forces of Horſe in every County, to preſerve the Peace thereof, from the new Plots and Attempts of the Enemies of the Commonwealth, upon whom he reſolves to put the Charge of theſe new Forces, which they have occaſioned, and not upon the honeſt Party who have already ſo much ſuffered.

Ireland. Letters from Ireland commending their Governour the Lord Lieutenant Cromwell, and his countenancing Orthodox Miniſters, and frequenting the publick Ordinances.

The Swedes had good Succeſs in Poland, and in Muſcovia.

Colonel Harvey committed to the Tower.

A Declaration for a new Aſſeſſment.

The Peace between England and France proclaimed in London.

The French Ambaſſador by Invitation dined with the Protector.

Swediſh Ambaſſador. The Swediſh Ambaſſador having often ſolicited the Protector, that Commiſſioners might be appointed to treat with him, and none being yet appointed, he grew ſomewhat impatient, and the more becauſe none of the Grandees would vouchſafe to viſit him by reaſon of a former Order of the long Parliament, prohibiting the converſing with foreign Miniſters, neither were they willing that the Ambaſſador ſhould come to them; at which he wondred, being ſo contrary to the Practice in his Country. Only for the Honour of my Country I was frequently with him and he with me.

December 1655.

Scotland. Inſtructions publiſhed by the Protector's Council in Scotland, for the Juſtices of Peace in that Kingdom, Anno 1655. Kingdom, and for Conſtables; and they order the former Great Seal, and Privy Seal there to be brought in.

Queen of Sweden. The Tories in Ireland brought in the Copy of a Letter from Queen Chriſtiana to the King of Sweden, of her declaring her ſelf to be of the Roman-Catholick Religion; and ſome Compliments to the King.

Jews. Divers Miniſters ſent for by the Protector, whom he acquainted with the Propoſals made by Manaſſeth Ben Iſrael the Jew, and referred them to the Conſideration of the Miniſters and others.

A Day of Faſt publickly kept.

The French Ambaſſador went away.

A Breſt Man of War ſunk by one of the Engliſh Fleet, the Peace not being yet known.

Inſtructions to the Major Generals to take Security of all who had been in Arms for the King, for their peaceable Demeanour and Obedience to the Protector.

Audience to the Envoy of the Duke of Brandenburgh.

Jews. A Conference with Manaſſeth Ben Iſrael about admitting the Jewiſh Nation to trade in England.

The Swediſh Ambaſſador had Audience.

The Proteſtors in Scotland petitioned with Reaſons againſt the Power of the Civil Magiſtrate in Church Matters, as contrary to Law and Scripture.

The Queen Chriſtiana of Sweden honourably received at Ferrara.

Additional Inſtructions to the Major Generals.

Manning. Letters of Mr. Manning's being put to death by King Charles at Duynwald, for holding Correſpondence with thoſe in England: He was a Servant to Sir Edward Hyde, and ſhot to death.

Ambaſſador. Audience to the Venetian Ambaſſador.

No Commiſſioners being yet come to the Swediſh Ambaſſador, he grew into ſome high Expreſſions of his ſenſe of the neglect to his Maſter by this delay; which I did endeavour to excuſe, and acquainted the Protector with it, who thereupon promiſed to have it mended, and to ſend ſuddenly to the Ambaſſador.

Letters from Mr. Meadow to have me peruſe the Tranſlation of the Swediſh Treaty made by me, which the Secretary of State commanded him to do.

I received this Letter from Mr. Strickland, one of the Protector's Council.

My Lord,

I Am commanded to let you know that his Highneſs hath appointed you and ſome others Commiſſioners to treat with the Swediſh Ambaſſador, and that the Commiſſioners intend to meet at his Houſe to-morrow, being the fifth Inſtant, at four a-clock in the Afternoon. My Lord, this is all I have in charge to acquaint you with, but that I am,

My Lord,

Whitehall, Dec. 5. 1655.

Your Lordſhip's

Humble Servant,

Wal. Strickland.

Letters of a gallant Action performed by the Engliſh in Jamaica, againſt the Spaniards in the Indies. Jamaica.

An Agreement made between the King of Sweden and the Elector of Brandenburgh.

The Lord Deputy Fleetwood and Colonel Sydenham told me, that his Highneſs and the Council had appointed them to acquaint me with a Buſineſs of very great Importance; which is, that they conſidering the preſent Condition of Affairs, did hold it neceſſary forthwith to ſend an extraordinary Ambaſſy to the King of Swedland, about a Buſineſs of the greateſt Conſequence and Honour that could be, and moſt conducing to the good of the Proteſtant Cauſe; which was the uniting of that Intereſt, and preventing the Differences that were likely to fall between that King and the United Provinces, and the Elector of Brandenburgh; for which ends they had thoughts of me and Sir Chriſtopher Pack, to go to the King as Ambaſſadors from his Highneſs. Swediſh Ambaſſy.

I thought I had enough of Danger and Trouble in my former Ambaſſy, without the leaſt Reward or Acknowledgment of my Service therein; but inſtead thereof, and notwithſtanding the Succeſs which God gave me; yet at my return home, I found Neglects and Slightings, and was removed from my Place of Commiſſioner of the Seal, and was 500 l. out of Purſe upon my Accounts.

Theſe Conſiderations ſtuck with me, and made me endeavour by all handſom Pretences to be excuſed that Service. And when Colonel Sydenham ſpake in commendation of Sir Chriſtopher Pack, I replied, that they might ſend Sir Chriſtopher alone, for I did not apprehend a neceſſity of ſending two Ambaſſadors together.

They both to that ſaid, that the Intention of ſending Sir Chriſtopher Pack was to manifeſt the Engagement of the City in this Buſineſs; and in it to put an Honour upon them.

I alledged alſo, that the King of Sweden's Ambaſſador here might probably conclude upon the Buſineſs intended, without ſending one from hence to him.

The Lord Deputy ſaid, that the Ambaſſador here had no Inſtructions for it. I told him the Ambaſſador here (I believed) had Inſtructions ſufficient, or might have them before Ambaſſadors could go from hence to Sweden: And that to ſend me now, who had been ſo lately with the ſame King, would give an Alarm to all the Popiſh Princes, and haſten an Union amongſt them; which Anno 1655. which would put a diſadvantage upon the Buſineſs that all good Men did ſo much deſire might be effected.

The Lord Deputy anſwered that he did believe the Buſineſs could not be effected here by this Ambaſſador; and that the Pope was now at work to unite his Intereſt amongſt all the Popiſh Princes, and particularly betwixt Spain and France.

To which I ſaid, that the ſending of an Ambaſſador hence would haſten that Union: Whereas if our Buſineſs might be done with the Ambaſſador here, no Notice would be taken of it.

23. Upon diſcourſe with the Swediſh Ambaſſador concerning the uniting of the Proteſtant Intereſt, which I had propounded to the Protector at a ſecret Audience, he ſeemed to like it very well; and ſaid, the Difficulty would be what to propound in order to it, and where to begin; for it would be a long Buſineſs to endeavour to bring in all the Proteſtant Princes and States together: but I thought the beſt way would be for the King his Maſter and the Protector to join together firſt, and then to draw in the reſt afterwards; and ſuch of them as ſhould refuſe to join, to be taken as Enemies. Which would be quick and reſolute, and make the Popiſh Princes look about them.

The Ambaſſador alſo took notice, that he heard of the Protector's Intentions to ſend Ambaſſadors from hence to his Maſter about this Buſineſs; and ſaid, he believed it might be done as effectually and more ſpeedily here as to the general and foundation of it, than by ſending to his Maſter: And that when he propounded the Buſineſs to his Highneſs, he deſired to know from him, what Particulars he thought fit to be taken into conſideration in the firſt place hereupon; and told him, that when he ſhould know his mind therein, he would forthwith ſend an Expreſs to the King to receive his farther Directions; that he had already given his Majeſty an account of the Buſineſs in general, and did expect within a few Days to hear farther from him about it, and hoped to receive ſuch further Inſtructions from him, as will be for the good carrying on of this great Buſineſs.

He intimated likewiſe, that the King might think it a little ſtrange, that whilſt his Ambaſſador is here with the Protector, the Protector ſhould ſend his Ambaſſadors to the King; which is not uſual. He ſaid, That he confeſſed he had done little ſince his coming, but it was not his fault; and that it would be now time for him to think of returning.

I anſwered, That the Multitude of our great Occaſions here had been the only Cauſe of his delay; and the great Succeſſes of the King in Poland might give ſome Alteration of Affairs, and many things thereupon might fall into conſideration touching matter of Trade in relation to Poland and Pruſſia, which at his Excellency's coming hither were not thought upon.

This the Ambaſſador acknowledged to be true; and ſaid farther, That he hoped within a very few Days there would be an Agreement between the King and the Elector of Brandenburgh, or elſe that the Buſineſs would be put to a ſpeedy Iſſue the other way: and then there would be the leſs occaſion of ſending from hence to prevent that difference; and that would certainly make the Dutch quiet.

The Elector (he ſaid) had received about 150001. from the Dutch of their Money to aſſiſt him againſt the King.

24. Sir Charles Wolſey of the Council, did not approve of the joining Sir Chriſtopher Pack with me in this Ambaſſy, nor the timing of it; for he ſaid, He heard the King of Sweden had made an Order to deſire all Foreign Publick Miniſters to forbear for a time, their coming to his Camp; becauſe he was in the midſt of his Military Affairs. Febr.

25. The Protector ſent to me, and earneſtly preſſed me to undertake the Ambaſſy to Sweden; recommending it as a Buſineſs of the greateſt Honour, and of the higheſt Concernment to the Proteſtant Intereſt: but upon my Diſcourſe and Reaſons againſt it, the Protector ſeemed to be moved, and ſaid he would take the Buſineſs into further Conſideration with the Council.

28. An Order of the Protector and Council, whereby the Lord Fiennes, Mr. Strickland, Sir Gilbert Pickering, and my ſelf, or any two of us, were appointed Commiſſioners to treat with the Swediſh Ambaſſador; and we were deſired to meet at the Council-Chamber with Secretary Thurloe, to confer together about the Articles.

30. According to Order we met at Whitehall, and were told of the Ambaſſador's Impatience, that in ſo long time as ſince he had given in his Articles, he could not obtain any Anſwer to them, nor have any Commiſſioners to treat with him. In order thereunto they now peruſed the Articles, and adviſed together upon them.

31. The Ambaſſador ſeemed much unſatisfied with divers parts of the Articles, and ſaid, That he had no Commiſſion to treat of any matter concerning the United Provinces to be included, and was much nettled at that Buſineſs. In diſcourſe touching a general Union of the Proteſtant Intereſt, he ſaid, it would be a difficult work; and for his Maſter's falling upon the Emperor, he ſaid, that they in Sweden did not wiſh it to be ſo, becauſe they doubted that then Sweden would be neglected. He declared his Opinion to be, not to meddle with the great Buſineſs of the Proteſtant Union; nor to have to do with the United Provinces in this or any other Treaty: But he ſaid, that they might ſend to the King his Maſter at their Pleaſure, and have a fitting Anſwer.

The Peace ratified betwixt the King of Sweden and the Elector of Brandenburgh perſonally.

Order of the Seſſions of Middleſex, for ſuppreſſing diſorderly Inns and Ale-Houſes.

Swediſh Ambaſſador. 7. The Lords Commiſſioners Fiennes, Strickland, and I, went to the Swediſh Ambaſſador's Houſe as Commiſſioners from the Protector to treat with him, where we had a long Debate touching Levies of Soldiers, and hiring of Ships in one anothers Dominions, which had been propounded by the Ambaſſador; and certain Cautions put in by the Counſel here, as to be only in ſuch Places and Ports, as the Chief Governor of the Country where it was to be done ſhould approve, and not to be employed againſt the others Friends.

Cautions.

Againſt thoſe Cautions the Ambaſſador offered Reaſons, That it would then be in the power of him in whoſe Country theſe were to be hired or levied, to make it wholly fruitleſs, by appointing inconvenient Places, as by his Maſter in Finland, or by the Protector in Ireland, or the like.

To which we anſwered, That the Chief Governor of the Country knew beſt the Condition of it, and the State of Affairs there, which might be much endamaged, if the Stranger ſhould have the Appointment of the Places; and then if either had a mind to break the Treaty, it would not be difficult to find an occaſion for it; and that in theſe caſes there muſt be a mutual Confidence in the Juſtice and Honour of each other.

Expedient. After much Debate this Expedient was propounded and not held unreaſonable, That the Chief Governor of the Country, where the Soldiers were to be levied or Ships hired, in caſe he ſhould not think fit to conſent to the Place deſired, he ſhould then appoint ſome other convenient Place for the Accommodation of the Party deſiring it, and as near as might be to the Place which he deſired.

As to the not employing the Soldiers or Ships againſt the Friends of the Party in whoſe Country they were had, it was propounded by the Ambaſſador and not oppoſed by us, That the Soldiers might be employed defenſively, as in Garriſons, but not offenſively againſt the others Friends.

But concerning Ships, the Ambaſſador inſiſted upon a Liberty to employ them againſt the others Friends, if thoſe Friends attempted any diſturbance of the Seas or Trade of him that hired the Ships; and both Parties inſtanced in caſe of the Kings of France or Denmark; but neither inſtanced in caſe of the Hollanders, though they were moſt intended.

This Point was left to further Conſideration, and there were other Debates concerning the Form of Paſſports for Ships, purſuant to the Treaty made by me in Sweden, to which they referred it; and alſo that Point of the Diſturbance of Navigation; after long Debate ſuch Paſſports we held would occaſion Deceit, and hardly be ſo framed as to avoid it

Dutch Ambaſſador. In Diſcourſe with the Dutch Ambaſſador, he was paſſionate even to Indiſcretion, blaming the neglect of ſending to the King of Sweden from the Protector, and urging the Neceſſity of yet doing it ſpeedily. Being asked for what End; he anſwered, Concerning Trade, and to prevent the doing of that which would be a Hinderance to it, intimating the King's great Succeſſes. From the Diſcourſe it might plainly be collected, that he laboured to get an Ambaſſador ſent from hence to Sweden, chiefly for the Advantage of their Trade.

Febr.

Iriſh. Colonel Nappier being in France, and in good Repute there, ſent his Brother into England to procure leave to tranſport ſome Iriſh from Ireland into the Service of France, as a Recruit to his Regiment there: But the Protector was not willing to ſuffer the Iriſh to go into the Service of France.

Sweden. 9. The Swediſh Ambaſſador received new Advices from the King his Maſter, concerning the great Buſineſs of uniting the Proteſtant Intereſt; and owned that he had ſufficient Inſtructions to conclude upon the General; but that Particulars could not ſo ſoon be determined, nor ſo well as upon the Place; that it would be a difficult matter to unite the ſeveral Proteſtants who have different Intereſts, and that it would prove a long Buſineſs: Therefore his Opinion was, That it was not a ſeaſonable time for a general Union of the Proteſtant Intereſt. But that if the King of Sweden and the Protector made a Conjunction firſt, they might fall upon the Emperor and the Houſe of Auſtria, which would be of great Advantage to England, eſpecially now they had War with Spain: and that ſome ſupply of Money and Men afforded to the King upon ſuch a Deſign, would be of more Benefit to the Protector than the ſending out of great Fleets to the Indies, and to the Coaſt of Spain; which would return no Benefit to this Nation. But it was anſwered, That notwithſtanding the vaſt Expences of our Fleets at this time, yet a War being begun with Spain, it muſt be maintained, and the War proſecuted with Vigour; the People of England being ever contented to bear the Burden of their Taxes rather than the Injuries and Inſolencies of their Enemies.

The Opinion of the Swediſh Ambaſſador was plainly to be collected, not to admit the Dutch to be joined in a Treaty with us; affirming that if we would have the Dutch to be equal with us in point of Trade, he thought it the way to overthrow the Trade of England; the Dutch being able to ſell at under Rates, trading with leſs Charge both for Ships, Men and Victuals, than the Engliſh could; with this, That the King his Maſter did not look upon the Duke of Briganza or the King of Portugal, but upon the Salt that came from thence; nor upon the King or Parliament, or Protector of England, but upon the Cloth and Nation; acknowledging a due Civility to whomſoever they found Chief in the Government. That it was the ſame Reaſon for the Dutch to follow their Trade in the Baltick Sea, as they might, whether the Commodities thereof were in the Hands of King Caſſimere or of his Maſter. It was objected, that if they were all in one Hand and Power, unreaſonable Gabels might be required; he anſwered, That when that was they might complain; but he believed it would not be at all.

13. Fiennes, Strickland and I, proceeded in the Treaty with the Swediſh Ambaſſador at his Houſe; we had long Debates touching Contraband Goods, in which Liſt was inſerted by the Council, Corn, Hemp, Pitch, Tar, Money and other things. The Ambaſſador ſaid, That if they would likewiſe add Copper and Iron, it would take in all the Commodities of his Maſter's Dominions, and he might inſiſt upon Cloth to be added, which was as neceſſary for Soldiers as Corn and Money.

We anſwered, That the Particulars added were moſt uſeful for War, eſpecially for our preſent Enemy the Spaniard, and it was our Intereſt to debar him thereof.

Anno 1655.

The Ambaſſador ſaid, that in the Enumeration of Contraband Goods, the preſent Condition of Affairs was not to be looked upon but how they were when the Treaty was made with me in Sweden, by which the Enumeration was to be made within four Months then following; and that as Hemp and Pitch were neceſſary for Ships of War, ſo they were alſo for Merchandiſe, which was not intended to be barred.

Debates. I then gave them an Account of the Treary made with me, and how that agreed the Enumeration to be, and what Debates were in Sweden with me about it, but referred by me to an after Enumeration.

It was alledged alſo, that Contraband Goods were ſuch as were ready for preſent Uſe of War, not ſuch as were Materials for Preparation; and we urged, that we had made the like Enumerations in other Treaties, and a ſaving of Corn to be no Contraband Goods, elſe it had been included; and we ſaid that there was no Certainty what Goods were or were not Contraband but as was agreed by Stipulation.

This was referred to a further Conſideration, and a more full Anſwer to be given to it.

We had likewiſe Debate touching the Form of a Paſſport in purſuance of my Treaty, at which the Commiſſioners did ſtick, and offered their Objections as formerly they had done, but we could not come near to an Agreement. At length the Ambaſſador propounded, That a free Ship ſhould make free Goods, and free Goods a free Ship, which was not held unreaſonable.

At our parting the Ambaſſador alſo propounded to take into Conſideration at our next Meeting, the giving of Satisfaction for the Loſſes ſuſtained by either Part in the late Wars between England and Holland; with the reſt of the Particulars in my Treaty referred to a future Conſideration and Treaty; whereof I gave them an Account.

Sweden Birth-day. 20. The Swediſh Ambaſſador kept a Solemnity this Evening, for the Birth of the young Prince of Sweden.

All the Glaſs of the Windows of his Houſe which were very large being new built, were taken off, and inſtead thereof painted Papers were fitted to the Places with the Arms of Sweden in it, and Inſcriptions in great Letters teſtifying the Rejoicing for the Birth of the young Prince; in the inſide of the Papers in the Rooms were ſet cloſe to them a very great Number of lighted Candles, glittering through the painted Papers; the Arms and Colours, and Writings were plainly to be diſcerned, and ſhewed glorious in the Street; the like was in the Stair-Caſe which had the Form of a Tower.

In the Balconies on each ſide of the Houſe were Trumpets which ſounded often ſeven or eight of them together. The Company at Supper were the Dutch Ambaſſador, the Portugal and Brandenburgh Reſidents, Mynheer Coyett Reſident for Sweden, the Earls of Bedford and Devon, the Lords St. John, Offery, Bruce, Ogleby, and two or three other young Lords, the Count of Holac a German, the Lord George Fleetwood, and a great many Knights and Gentlemen, beſides the Ambaſſador's Company.

It was a very great Feaſt of ſeven Courſes, the Swediſh Ambaſſador was very courteous to me, but the Dutch and others were reſerved towards me, and I as much to them.

Ambaſſador. 25. The Swediſh Ambaſſador came to viſit me and told me, that now the Buſineſs of ſending an Ambaſſador from hence to Sweden was over, and there was at preſent no Occaſion for it; for this their Reaſons he alledged were, a Peace concluded betwixt the King of Sweden and the Elector of Brandenburgh, and the Proceeding of the Treaty here. Intimating, that he was ſufficiently impowered to conclude what was at preſent requiſite between his Maſter and the Protector; and that there was no Likelihood but there would be alſo a good Underſtanding between the King of Sweden and the United Provinces. March.

Fidlers. 28. Some of the Swediſh Ambaſſadors Gentlemen had a little Quarrel with two Fidlers in a Tavern, and beat them for calling the Gentlemen Swediſh Dogs and other foul Language, and ill Carriage of the Fidlers who were drunk; yet Alderman Tichburn bound over the Gentlemen to the Seſſions, being apprehended by a Conſtable; and the Fidlers in Actions of Battery againſt one of the Gentlemen, had a Verdict for forty Pounds Damages. The Ambaſſador was highly exaſperated at this Affront, and, as he called it, Breach of the Privilege of an Ambaſſador, and complained of it; upon which his Servants had no further Trouble, which gave full Contentment to the Ambaſſador.

Ambaſſador's Debates. 29. Fiennes, Strickland, and I, went to the Swediſh Ambaſſador's Houſe, where we proceeded in the Treaty, and had much Debate upon the Article of Reſtitution, which the Ambaſſador preſſed as purſuant to my Treaty, and inſtanced in ſeveral Caſes wherein his Maſter's Subjects had received great Injury and Damage by the Capers of England in time of the War betwixt them and the United Provinces.

I acquainted them with my Proceedings upon this Point in Sweden, that it was there demanded to have Reſtitution made to the Swedes, which I denied upon theſe Grounds.

1. Becauſe ſuch an Article would ſeem to admit a Wrong done to the Swedes by the Engliſh, and that Juſtice could not be had for the ſame.

2. Becauſe ſuch Injuries were relievable in the ordinary Courſe of Juſtice in England, as in the Admiralty Court and upon Appeals.

3. Becauſe no Reſtitution could be expected, until the Damage and Wrong were firſt made to appear, which could not then and there be done, and was not to be admitted without Proof.

At length this Expedient was agreed on there, That Reſtitution ſhould be made to either Part for Damage ſuſtained, and as it is in the Article.

Admiralty. After long Debate, and many Complaints now made by the Ambaſſador, wherein the Admiralty Court here was much reflected upon, and the Delays and Injuſtice of that Court by him opened and not ſpared; it came to this Cloſe:

The Ambaſſador was deſired by the Commiſſioners, that his Secretary might prepare Abſtracts of ſuch particular Caſes as he thought fit to inſiſt upon to be preſented to his Highneſs and the Council; who would thereupon cauſe an Examination to be made of the Particulars, and would give Order that Right ſhould be done as the Caſes ſhould require.

It was now alſo agreed, that at the next Meeting we ſhould proceed to a Peruſal of all the reſt of the Matters remaining to be treated on, that after a View of the whole they might come to particular Reſolutions and Agreements.

Swediſh Ambaſſador.

Fiennes, Strickland and I, went to the Swediſh Ambaſſador's Houſe, and proceeded in the Treaty with him; the Debates were upon Matters of Trade; the Ambaſſador thought the Demands not equal, that the Engliſh ſhould pay no greater Impoſitions in the King of Sweden's Ports than his own Subjects paid; and ſaid that the former Articles were reciprocal, and that herein nothing was offered for the Swedes Privilege in the Ports of this Commonwealth.

We anſwered, That this being granted to the Engliſh, would cauſe them to frequent the King's Ports, to bring a great Increaſe of Trade thither, to have Ships there in a readineſs to be hired for his Majeſty's Service if he ſhould have Occaſion, and that they were better fitted for War than any other Merchants Ships in Europe; and that if his Excellency ſhould think fit to propound any thing on the behalf of the Swedes, the ſame would be taken into due Conſideration.

The Ambaſſador replied, That neither the Engliſh nor any other Nation did afford equal Privilege to Strangers in point of Impoſitions, as to their own People, but made a Difference as to the Perſons; only in Sweden the Difference was not made as to the Perſons of Swedes, but as to Swediſh Ships; whoſoever brought any Goods in them paid leſs Impoſitions than others, which was done to increaſe their Shipping, and to prevent the Deceit of Strangers conſigning their Goods to Swedes Names, that thereby they might pay the leſs Cuſtom.

I told them that this was the Work of the wiſe old Chancellor, whereby they did not only increaſe their Ships, but likewiſe were provided of Mariners for thoſe Ships, which was the greateſt Want in Sweden as to their Navigation; and the Deceits of Strangers vending their Goods in Swedes Names, were alſo thereby prevented. March.

This Matter was referred to further Conſideration, and we proceeded to the Demands for ſettling the Trade and Privileges of the Engliſh Merchants in Pruſſia and Poland; wherein I obſerved to them the Injuſtice of the ſealing the Engliſh Cloths at Dantzick, and the not confirming of the general Pact of Pruſſia, agreed to be done formerly in relation to the Engliſh by the King of Poland, who had not kept his Word therein.

The Ambaſſador anſwered, That his Maſter was but newly Maſter of Poland and Pruſſia, which he hoped (by the Bleſſing of God) to keep; that he was not Maſter of Dantzick, and probably he may have granted and confirmed to thoſe Towns that had ſubmitted to him their ancient Privileges; and that he could not grant to the Engliſh there any thing contrary to thoſe Privileges of the Towns which he had confirmed; and this we thought reaſonable, and not to be preſſed further than might ſtand with the Confirmation of Privileges which the King had granted to the Towns that were come in to him.

The Ambaſſador then propounded, That the Engliſh might have all the Trade of Ruſſia brought down the River Volga into Narva, the King of Swedes Port upon the Baltick Sea, and by that Means ſave the going about to Archangel, which Voyage can be made but once in a Year, but to Narva may be made three Voyages in a Year.

I informed them of much Diſcourſe between the old Chancellor and his Son, and me, about this Matter; and the Ambaſſador having his Maps there, I ſhewed them the great Difference of the Voyage going about by Norway and the frozen Sea to the Archangel, and going through the Baltick Sea to Narva; I ſhewed them likewiſe that there was a Probability of having the Perſian Silks and Commodities from the Caſpian Sea to the River Volga, and from thence to be brought to Narva, and thereby to ſave that vaſt Voyage which Merchant-men now take of going to Perſia the uſual way.

But I objected now as I had done formerly to the Chancellor, that it would be difficult to procure the Ruſſians Commodities to be brought down to Narva, and to ſatisfy the Emperor of Ruſſia that he ſhould be no loſer in reſpect of his Cuſtoms which he now received at Archangel, and the Goods being brought to Narva, the Cuſtoms would be payable there to the King of Sweden.

To which the Chancellor then anſwered, That the People of Ruſſia would be more willing to bring their Commodities to Narva than to Archangel, becauſe it would be done at a leſs Charge almoſt by the half, and that the Emperor would be no loſer as to his Cuſtoms; for the ſame Cuſtom which was now paid at Archangel would be paid at Bleſgo, a Town of the Emperor's, whither the Goods muſt be brought before they came to Narva; and that notwithſtanding the Payment of Cuſtom twice, yet the Commodities would be afforded at eaſier Rates than they are at Archangel, by reaſon of the Cheapneſs and Conveniency of bringing them to Narva.

All this was agreed unto by the Ambaſſador, who inſerted a Story of a Dutchman, who obſerving the Boats paſſing upon the Volga to be manned with three hundred Men in a Boat, who in a Storm and high Wind held the bottom of the Sails down; this Dutchman offered to the Anno 1656. Emperor that he would ſhew him a way how with thirty Men in a Boat they ſhould be as well manned as now they were with three hundred Men in a Boat, and ſo the Charge to be leſſened; but the Emperor called him Knave, and asked him if a Boat that now went with three hundred Men, were brought to go but with thirty Men, how then ſhould the other two hundred and ſeventy Men get their Living.

After a long Debate upon this and the other Particulars of the Treaty, they were deferred unto a more full Anſwer upon further Conſideration and a new Meeting.

5. The Commiſſioners were ſummoned to meet at Whitehall with Thurloe, to look over together the ſeveral Matters which had been treated on with the Swediſh Ambaſſador, and to conſider how far it was fit to go on to an Agreement, and wherein not to conſent, that ſo we might come to ſome Concluſion with the Ambaſſador.

The Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Common-Council of London were with the Protector.

11. The Commiſſioners were with the Swediſh Ambaſſador, and moſt of the Articles, for Levies of Men and hiring of Ships, and for the Paſſports, and Contraband Goods, were near agreed between us; the Articles for Trade and Reſtitution for Damages in the time of War between England and Holland were not concluded, but deferred to another time; in the mean while the Matters agreed upon, were ordered to be drawn up in Form.

13. The Swediſh Ambaſſador did very earneſtly preſs that his Buſineſs might be brought to a Concluſion, becauſe he had long attended, and the King his Maſter grew very impatient of his long Stay here, and had commanded his Return, and looked upon the Neglect to his Servant, as reflecting upon his own Honour. The Delay was excuſed, and ſome Occaſion of it alledged to be the Lord Fiennes's Abſence, who was gone into the Country.

31. The Council voted, that Pitch, Tar, Hemp, and Flax, ſhould be taken as Contraband Goods, during the War betwixt us and Spain.

In caſe the Treaty here with the Swediſh Ambaſſador came to a good Concluſion, the Lord George Fleetwood had Commiſſions to levy for the King of Sweden two thouſand Men more than the four thouſand already granted, and deſigned to form thoſe two thouſand into two Regiments, and to be Colonel of both thoſe Regiments himſelf.

The Commiſſioners of the Treaſury had a conſtant weekly Account of all the Receipts and Diſburſements of that great Revenue, which being ſo often taken, made it the more eaſy, and gave them the more Opportunity of ordering the ſame to the beſt Advantage of the Commonwealth; and as they received this Account from the Officers under them, ſo they gave Information to the Protector how it was from time to time with their Advice concerning the ſame.

The Protector and his Council kept a Day of private Faſting, and Seeking God for a Bleſſing upon their Affairs.

The Swediſh Ambaſſador had been at Whitehall, and was much diſcontented becauſe he waited above an hour before the Protector came to him, which brought the Ambaſſador to ſuch Impatience, that he roſe from his Seat and was going home again without ſpeaking with the Protector; and ſaid, that he durſt not for his Head admit of ſuch Diſhonour to his Maſter, by making him ſo often and ſo long to attend for his Audience.

But Sir Oliver Fleming the Maſter of the Ceremonies, did earneſtly interpoſe with his Perſuaſions, and prevailed with the Ambaſſador to ſtay a little longer, and went himſelf to the Protector, and plainly told him how unfit it was, and how ill taken, to put the Ambaſſador to ſuch Attendance, and brought him to the Ambaſſador. In the Diſcourſe between the Protector and the Ambaſſador, when the matter of a nearer Alliance was mentioned, his Highneſs anſwer'd, that he was willing in caſe of a nearer Alliance, or of an Union concerning the Proteſtant Intereſt, to have our Neighbours and Allies the Low Countries included therein; and that he thought it did become him to have a particular care of them, and to take them into any ſuch Treaty or Alliance; and that he was not willing to do any such thing without them.

and

These Expressions of his Highness did a little startle the Ambassador.

It was afterwards offer'd to his Highness's Judgment, whether it were not fit in all things that might stand with our Interest to give Contentment to the King of Sweden, being a wise and potent Prince, and God having given him great Successes; and that the Dutch being greatly for their own Interest as well as other States, in case there should not be a nearer Alliance betwixt us and Sweden, might possibly slip in and make a nearer Alliance betwixt themselves and Sweden, without taking much care to have us included therein.

The Protector sent to the Swedish Ambassador to excuse his long Stay before he had his Audience, and to assure him that there was not the least Intention of reflecting upon the King's Honour, or of any Disrepect to him, but only the Omission of the Protector's Servants in their Duty; wherein care should be taken for the future, and that it should be amended; and that his Highness had a very great Affection for the Ambassador's Person, and as great a Respect for the King his Master as for any Prince in Christendom. With this the Ambassador seemed fully satisfy'd, and desired to return his Service to the Protector, and his most humble Thanks.

But yet the Ambassador was very much troubled, apprehending that at his last Audience his Highness's Mind was somewhat alter'd from what it seem'd to be formerly; and that now there was nothing to be done without the Dutch.

He much wonder'd why the Protector should seem so forward heretofore for a nearer Alliance and Conjunction with his Master, and now seemed to be more cold in that matter, and wished that he might have known his Mind at first, for he had already given the King an Account of the Protector's Willingness to have a nearer Alliance with his Majesty, who thereupon had dressed his Counsels accordingly; and now he must acquaint the King that he perceiv'd his Highness's Mind to be changed as to that point, which would cause the King very much to marvel, and would put him to Inconveniences.

That in his Country when a Man profess'd Sincerity, they understood it to be plain and clear Dealing; that if one were desired to do a thing, if he meant to do it, he would say, yea, and do it accordingly: But if he did not intend to do it, then he would at the first desire to be excused, and not seem at one time to be willing to it, and at another time to deny it.

That if the Protector had not the same Inclinations as formerly for the great Cause, and for a nearer Alliance with his Master, he must be contented; that yet he hoped the Matters left to be done upon my Treaty might be dispatched, and he be enabled to return to his Master speedily as he was commanded; that he should have been contented, if he might have had the Honour to have laid the Foundation of that great Business for the Glory of God, to unite the Protestant Interest; and the Particulars thereof to have been left to a new Treaty with the King, by an Ambassador from the Protector, when there might be full time to consider all Grounds and Circumstances thereof.

The Ambassador was told that the Protector's Inclinations were the same now as at first, in relation to a new Union with the King of Sweden, and to that great and common Interest of the Protestants, for the Glory of God; which no Prince did more desire to promote than the Protector did; but the Reason why he would have the Dutch included in that near Alliance, was, because of the Treaty which he had formerly made with them, and which he was careful not to infringe, as he was obliged in Honour and Justice. April.

The Ambassador reply'd, that in case England should not enter into a nearer Union with Sweden, perhaps the Dutch would provide for themselves, and presently make a nearer Alliance with the King of Sweden, without taking much care to have the Protector included with them, if they could get advantage by leaving him out, which matter of advantage the Dutch very well like: That they were now upon very good Terms with his Master, and he did not believe they had any Designs against him, or to the Baltick Sea; that he had good Intelligence from Holland, and it was true, that they were equipping twenty eight Ships of War.

But he said, he could not imagine that they should be intended for the Baltick Sea, because five or six Men of War would serve as well for a Convoy for their Merchants that way, as twenty eight; and if they should have any Design against the King of Sweden, they had no Port to friend them; for the King of Denmark would do nothing to displease the King of Sweden, and all the Ports round the Baltick were now his, except one or two of small Consideration; and that his Ports were well guarded, therefore he could not believe that they had any Design that way. But he offer'd to consideration, whether, now that the English Fleets were almost all of them sent abroad to other Parts, that our Neighbours of Holland, who were not all of them yet our Friends, might not have some Design this way.

4. Letters that Prince Adolphus the King of Sweden's Brother, broke his Leg in a Fight.

5. Fiennes, Strickland, and I, met by order at Whitehall to confer about the Swedish Treaty; we perused the Vote of the Council, That Hemp and Flax, and Pitch and Tar shall be accounted by that Treaty Contraband Goods during the War between us and Spain. I said with Submission to the Council, I wished that this Vote had not been passed, because I believed it might tend to a hindrance of a good Conclusion of the Treaty with the Swedish Ambassador, and doubted that he would not consent to it; and that it seemed to be a departing from what we as Commissioners had formerly done, in being inclinable to wave it; and they thought it best not to carry this Vote to the Ambassador till the Council were further advised with about it, who perhaps would not insist upon it; and in the mean time I was to go to the Ambassador to excuse the Delay, which was to the end to give him the better Satisfaction; which his Highness agreed to, and order'd me to go to the Ambassador, and to discourse with him about the Protestant Union; and appointing Commissioners for Restitution of Damages; and other Points.

7. According to the Direction from his Highness, I went this Morning to the Swedish Ambassador, and deliver'd to him what I was directed from the Protector, as much to his Highness's Advantage as I could improve it; and endeavour'd to satisfy the Ambassador, that his Highness's Intentions and Inclinations, as to a nearer Alliance with the King of Sweden, were the same still as at first, and that he had a very good Inclination to it, and was really desirous of it.

The Ambassador answer'd, 'That perhaps his 'Highness had no great mind at the first to a near'er

Anno 1656.

'er Alliance with the King of Sweden, and ſo 'might have the ſame Intentions ſtill: That he 'could not but wonder that his Highneſs ſhould 'heretofore expreſs himſelf ſo well inclined to that 'nearer Alliance, and at his laſt Audience to be ſo 'cold in it, and of another Opinion than he was 'before; which would make him ſeem to his 'Maſter either negligent as to his Service, or 'not at all thought worthy of regard here; but 'he deſired to know a certain anſwer, I or no, 'whether he would do it or not; and if he had 'no mind to it, that then there might be a Diſ-'patch of what was left to be done upon the 'Treaty made by me, and ſo he might kiſs the 'Protector's Hand and return to his Maſter.

I ſeeing him in ſuch a Humour of Diſcontent, ſought to divert him, and to ſatisfy him that the Protector was ſtill very well inclined to the Point of a nearer Alliance with the King of Sweden, but found it difficult to make him to be of that Perſuaſion; yet thought fit to demand of him what thoſe Propoſitions were which he deliver'd to the Protector concerning the nearer Alliance. Whereupon the Ambaſſador ſhewed me the Propoſitions he had deliver'd in to that purpoſe; which were, 'To have a League Defenſive contra omnes gentes, 'and Offenſive as to the Maintenance of the Trea-'ty of Augsburgh; that the Protector ſhould con-'tribute 200000 l. per annum to that Deſign, when 'undertaken; and the King would have 30000 'Foot and 6000 Horſe in Service upon it. I 'asked why his Excellency put the Buſineſs upon 'maintenance of the Treaty of Augsburgh; where-'to England was no Party; and why rather it 'might not be againſt the Houſe of Auſtria, where-'of the Emperor was one Branch, and the King 'of Spain another; and ſaid, As to the contri-'buting of Money, he knew the Protector was 'not in a Condition at this time to ſpare Money, 'having ſuch vaſt Occaſions of Expence at pre-'ſent for maintenance of his Navy, and by occa-'ſion of the War with Spain.' The Ambaſſador reply'd, 'That he did believe the Protector was 'at preſent in no Condition to part with much 'Money, and that there would be ſome time be-'fore this Deſign could be ſet on foot; by which 'time probably the Protector might be better 'able to ſpare Money than now he is; and that 'he thought it would be better husbandry for 'England to ſpare 200000 l. a Year for this War, 'which would be a good Diverſion, and trouble 'the King of Spain more than we do by ſpending 'two Millions a year upon our Fleets, and in 'ſending to Jamaica. That it was true the Treaty 'of Augsburgh was not concerning the Engliſh 'Nation, but the Proteſtants of Germany were 'highly concerned in it, and conſequently of all 'Chriſtendom; and the Emperor having broken 'that Treaty in many Points, there was a juſt 'ground thereby of falling upon him; and the 'Reaſon why he mentioned the Maintenance of 'that Treaty was, becauſe France was already 'obliged in a Treaty with Sweden for the main-'tenance of the Treaty of Augsburgh; and Eng-'land joining likewiſe therein, France would be 'engaged with them, and that Crown was a good 'Balance. Whereas if the Union with the King 'of Sweden ſhould be againſt the Houſe of Au-'ſtria, and the King of Spain, it would cauſe the 'Peace which was ſo much endeavour'd between 'France and Spain to be brought to effect; and 'France would hardly be brought into ſuch an 'Union againſt the Houſe of Auſtria, becauſe it 'would ſeem as too much againſt the Papiſts in general, wherein France would be ſhy to join.' April.

I made a doubt what great Advantage would be to England by the King of Sweden's falling upon the Emperor, which would but little concern the War between us and Spain, as to give us Advantage thereby againſt Spain. To which the Ambaſſador alledged, That Spain was ſo much concerned in any thing relating to the Emperor, that he muſt ſupport him to ſupport himſelf; and whoſoever fell upon the Emperor made Spain his Enemy, and hindred from him the Supplies which he conſtantly had, eſpecially of Men out of Germany, and did neceſſitate Spain to a charge of ſupplying and aſſiſting the Emperor; whereby would be cauſed a Diverſion of great Advantage to England; and Spain once appearing (as undoubtedly they would) for the Emperor, Sweden and they preſently became Enemies; and all the Commodities of the King of Sweden, which were of neceſſary uſe to Spain, would be reſtrained from them, without which they could not ſubſiſt; and that there would be no need of ſpecifying Pitch, and Tar, and Hemp to be Contraband Goods.

I reply'd, 'That Germany was a great diſtance 'from England within the Land, and we could 'have nothing to do with them by Sea; that if 'the Emperor ſhould be ſet upon by the King of 'Sweden, probably Spain would aſſiſt him; but 'ſo covertly and craftily, that Sweden nor Eng-'land could take publick Notice or Advantage 'thereof; that in caſe the King of Sweden ſhould 'travel towards Flanders, that would make the 'King of Spain look about him indeed.

To this the Ambaſſador ſaid only, 'That 'there was a large Country to paſs over before 'they could come to Flanders; but that in time 'ſomething might be done: he ſaid, that France 'had gained well by that Treaty of Augsburgh, 'and ſo had all Countries that had been in Alli-'ance with the Crown of Sweden.

I ſaid, 'That he was ſufficiently ſatisfy'd of 'the Honour and Juſtice of that Crown in thoſe 'publick Tranſactions, and that the Protector 'was as careful to preſerve his own Honour, and 'the Faith of the Nation in thoſe Treaties which 'he had made with other Princes and States, and 'that was the Reaſon which cauſed him to be ſo 'careful that the Dutch might be included in 'ſuch Treaties as he ſhould make with others, 'becauſe there was an Article to that purpoſe in 'the late Treaty made with them, which he was 'careful to obſerve as all other Treaties; 'and that might the more ſatisfy the Ambaſſa-'dor of a juſt performance of what was, or 'ſhould be agreed upon with his Maſter.' To which the Ambaſſador replied, 'That he did 'believe as much; but was of opinion that the 'Article which was mentioned in the late Dutch 'Treaty, did not reſtrain the Protector from 'making the nearer Alliance with Sweden with-'out them; but when it ſhould be made, then 'they were by that Article to be admitted into 'ſuch new Treaty if they pleaſed.' And thereupon they read over together that Article of the Dutch Treaty, which ſeemed to carry the Senſe that was obſerved by the Ambaſſador; who ſaid farther, 'That there was no intention of exclu-'ding the Dutch or the King of Denmark, or 'any other Proteſtants out of this intended 'Union, but that they ſhould be admitted, and 'invited into it; and he believed, they would be

Anno 1656.

'the ſooner brought into it, if they firſt ſaw 'Sweden' and England joined together; whereas 'to have a general meeting and Treaty firſt would 'be very difficult, if not impoſſible to be effect-'ed; that ſeveral Intereſts would draw ſeveral 'ways; but if they ſaw the King of Sweden and 'the Protector once conjoined, it would be the 'ſtrongeſt argument in the World to perſuade 'the reſt into the ſame Union; and ſuch as 'would oppoſe ought to be taken for Enemies: 'That the King of Denmark was now upon a 'Treaty with the King of Sweden whom he 'would not diſturb; and had not yet concluded 'by reaſon of England; deſiring firſt to hear 'from the Protector about it: That the Empe-'ror had now no fear of the King of Sweden's 'troubling him, as might appear by his ſending 'at this time 15000 Men into Flanders for the 'King of Spain. Which Body of Men he would 'not have now ſent out of his own Country, if 'he had doubted the King of Sweden's falling 'upon him; and that no Prince in Chriſtendom 'had offered the eſpouſing of the Protector's in-'tereſt as his Maſter had done: Which deſerved 'to be regarded by him.'

I anſwered, 'That the ſame was much re-'garded by the Protector, and deſervedly, and 'that no Nation in Europe was of ſo much con-'ſideration to the King of Sweden as England, 'eſpecially in regard of their Men and Ships; 'altho' they had not Money to ſpare at this 'time, it was not becauſe of any Poverty of the 'Nation, but by reaſon of their preſent and ex-'traordinary Occaſion of great Expences about 'their publick Affairs, eſpecially of their Navy, 'whereby the ſtrength of the Nation was in-'creaſed.'

We had likewiſe Diſcourſe concerning Commiſſioners to be appointed on each part, to conſider of Damages ſuſtained in the laſt War with the Dutch, and to give juſt Reſtitution.

Wherein I propoſed, 'that it might be conve-'nient for thoſe Commiſſioners to have likewiſe a 'Power if any Ships on either part were brought 'in to examine the matter ſpeedily; and if any 'wrong were done to award ſatisfaction, and 'cauſe the Party that had done it to make 'amends, and the Admiralty Court (of which 'his Excellency had ſo much complained) not 'to be troubled with thoſe matters, but in caſes 'of difficulty or matters of Law, which could 'not well be determined by the Commiſſioners.'

This the Ambaſſador ſeemed to like well, and ſaid, he would conſider of it. We had much other diſcourſe of Paſſes, and Contraband Goods, and other particulars of the preſent Treaty, wherein the Ambaſſador held himſelf to the ſame grounds he had formerly inſiſted on.

In the Afternoon I came to Whitehall to have given an account of this diſcourſe to the Protector, but he was gone abroad, and thereupon I found out the Lord Fiennes in the Lobby by the Council Chamber; who ſent for Mr. Secretary Thurloe, and we three had a long Diſcourſe and Debate together about this Buſineſs.

I told them that I had excuſed to the Ambaſſador the Commiſſioners not coming to him on Saturday as they intended, and gave them a full and clear account of the Diſcourſe between the Ambaſſador and me in the Morning. And deſired them to obſerve, 'That the King of Swe-'den was willing to take in with the Protector's 'particular Intereſt, as well as with the Intereſt 'of our Nation; and I thought nothing more 'conſiderable as to the ſecurity thereof, and of 'the preſent Government, than a Conjunction April. 'with Sweden: That the Dutch had not the 'like affection thereunto, but moſt of them 'were Enemies in heart to the Protector, and 'did but watch for an occaſion to ſhow it: 'That their preſent preparations of a Fleet of 'thirty eight Men of War were not to be ſlighted, 'eſpecially when the Emperor had ſent 15000 'Men into Flanders; that they were at preſent 'Friends with our Enemies of Spain, and if an 'opportunity ſhould be offer'd now when we 'had few Ships of War at home, whereby they 'might bring a conſiderable advantage to them-'ſelves, they would be apt enough to lay hold 'on it.'

And I did adviſe, 'as a thing (in my Judg-'ment, at the diſtance I ſtood) moſt fit, not to 'ſend away the Swediſh Ambaſſador with any 'juſt cauſe of diſcontent to him and his Maſter; 'but to comply with him as far as ſtood with 'their own Judgments, and with the Intereſt of 'our Nation;' wherein both of them ſeemed to agree, and the Lord Fiennes more inclinable to the particulars of Satisfaction than the other. And concerning Pitch and Tar, and Hemp and Flax, to be Contraband Goods during the War with Spain, the Secretary held it reaſonable, but I differ'd from him therein, eſpecially becauſe at the time when Contraband Goods were to be agreed upon and ſpecified, we had then no War with Spain; and they were the great Commodities of the King of Sweden; the Secretary ſaid, 'That tho' he ſhould be reſtrained from carry-'ing or vending them to Spain, yet he might to 'any other Nation, and there would be beſide 'vent enough for them.' Which I obſerved as an Argument for the contrary, 'becauſe other 'Nations would certainly ſupply Spain therewith, 'altho' the Swedes were forbid to carry them.' The Secretary replied, 'That in whoſe Ships 'ſoever they were taken they ſhould be Prize,' I anſwered, 'That the Lubeckers, Hamburghers, 'and Dutch, would pretend to be bound for 'Lisbon, and then when they were paſt our 'ſearch would carry them into Spain.' This the Secretary laid hold on as an Argument againſt the Paſſes, and I anſwered, 'That it would not 'be more or leſs by reaſon of Paſſes, but I 'thought it juſt that the form of Paſſes ſhould 'be agreed on, becauſe it was ſo with other 'Nations, and the thing agreed on by the 'Treaty formerly made.'

The Lord Fiennes ſaid, 'That they had it in 'their power to agree on no other form, but 'what ſhould ſignify little or nothing to the 'Swedes advantage; which I ſaid would not be 'Honourable for them to do; and I thought 'more advantage to come to the Engliſh by 'thoſe Paſſes than to the Swedes, becauſe the 'Engliſh did ſo much exceed them in number of 'Merchants Ships,' to which the Secretary ſaid, 'That they would be of uſe to us only in the 'Baltick Sea, but to the Swedes in all their Voya-'ges Southwards.'

Upon the ſame reaſon we were of Opinion againſt that Propoſition, that a free Ship ſhould make free Goods, which the Secretary ſaid, 'would increaſe their Ships exceedingly, and 'other Nations would ſell, or build them Ships 'to colour the carrying of Contraband Goods to 'our Enemies.'

I anſwered, 'That greater advantage would 'be to us than to them at preſent; but that we 'could not carry Goods to their Enemies, Poland 'now having no Harbour at all, and in Germany

'the

Anno 1656.

'the Emperor hath none at any time, but for 'what might fall out hereafter no judgment 'could be now given.'

We had Debates upon ſeveral other Particulars to the like effect, as is here before ſet down.

8. The former Commiſſioners went in the afternoon to the Swediſh Ambaſſador's Houſe, where Mr. Jeſſop one of the Clerks of the Council by their direction, read the new Articles in Engliſh as they were drawn up according to the laſt Reſolves of the Council; after they were read the Ambaſſador ſaid, 'That he deſired to be 'excuſed if he ſhould miſtake any thing of the 'Senſe of them they being in Engliſh, which he 'could not ſo well underſtand, as if they had 'been in Latin, which they muſt be put into in 'concluſion; but he did obſerve on the ſudden 'amongſt other things that the ſpecification of 'Contraband Goods did contain in it Pitch and 'Tar, Hemp, Flax and Sails; theſe were the 'great Commodities of his Maſter's Countries, 'and to be reſtrained from a Trade with them to 'Spain or any where elſe, would be of very dan-'gerous Conſequence to his Maſter: That they 'were never yet in any Treaty made with Sweden 'allowed as Contraband Goods, and if they 'ſhould be now allowed ſo, it would be to the 'extraordinary prejudice of the Crown of Swe-'den; and if allowed in this Treaty with England, 'then other Nations would expect the like. 'And that in the Treaty with the Lord White-'locke at Upſal, it would by no means be hearken-'ed unto, as he very well knew; and he did ſee 'a Paper which was given to Mynheer Boneale 'the King's Commiſſioner here of Contraband 'Goods, wherein theſe particular Goods were 'not inſerted; and that he did think the King 'would be very hardly drawn to conſent to any 'ſuch thing.'

The Lord Fiennes anſwered, 'That the Ar-'ticles were brought in Engliſh for the ſaving of 'time, and they ſhould be put in Latin when 'his Excellency ſhould deſire; that concerning 'the ſpecifying theſe Goods to be Contraband, 'it was upon a great Debate of the Council, 'who could not ſatisfy themſelves, but that it 'was fit to be inſiſted upon during our War 'with Spain; and there could be nothing of 'greater advantage to our Enemy, or prejudice 'to us, than by furniſhing him with thoſe 'Goods which were of ſo neceſſary a uſe for his 'ſupply; and without which he could not carry 'on his War againſt us, which was a Naval 'War; and therefore the Council thought it 'reaſonable to hinder him from thoſe Supplies as 'much as might be, and that in caſe the King 'of Sweden ſhould have any thing to do with 'the Emperor, that it would be his advantage 'likewiſe not to afford thoſe Supplies unto the 'King of Spain, who had want of nothing more 'than of thoſe Commodities.'

I ſaid, 'That at Upſal when mention was made 'by me of thoſe Commodities to be Contraband 'Goods, both the old Chancellor and his Son 'the now Chancellor would by no means debate 'on that Point, ſaying, it was not to be men-'tioned; which was one of the Reaſons why I 'thought fit to refer the ſpecifying of them to 'the Council here, and ſaid, that I was of the 'Committee of Parliament who treated with 'Mynheer Boneale, and it was true that in the 'Liſt of Contraband Goods given in to him, 'theſe Commodities were not expreſſed, nor was 'any mention to the contrary; but the Council 'of State, whereof I was then a Member, did 'reſerve that Particular to their own Judgments; 'and that if they took any Ships whatſoever 'carrying ſuch Goods to the Dutch, their Ene-'mies at that time, they did make bold to bring 'them in, and to prevent that Supply to their 'Enemies.' April.

The Ambaſſador ſaid, 'That ſurely if the 'then Council had been of Opinion that ſuch 'Goods were Contraband Goods, they would 'not have omitted them out of the Liſt given 'to the King of Sweden's Commiſſioners; and 'ſaid, that Cloth was neceſſary for the Soldiers 'of every Army, yet if he ſhould inſiſt upon 'Cloth to be Contraband Goods, that none 'ſhould be carried to the King of Poland's Army, 'or to any of his Enemies, he did believe, that 'it being the great Commodity of England, 'that we ſhould hardly be drawn to conſent un-'to it, and the ſame occaſion was for Pitch, and 'Tar, and Hemp, being the great Commodities 'of his Country.'

The Lord Fiennes anſwered, 'That Cloth was 'no weapon for Soldiers to offend withal, nor 'could be made uſe of for that purpoſe; that 'Corn was as neceſſary, and other Victual for 'the Soldiers as Clothing, and yet we had not 'ſpecified that to be Contraband Goods, no 'more than Cloth; that he never ſaw the Liſt 'delivered to Mynheer Boneale, and therefore 'could ſay nothing to it, but now we were upon 'a particular agreement what Goods ſhould be 'ſaid to be Contraband Goods, and if we did 'permit theſe Commodities to be free; the 'Council were of Opinion, that it would be 'much to our prejudice in this War with Spain.'

Mynheer Coyett then ſpake in Latin, 'That 'Pitch, Tar and Hemp, were not in their own 'nature, nor by the Law of Nations eſteemed 'Contraband Goods; and that they were of uſe for 'Men in Civil things, and other uſes which were 'not Military, but for the well-being of Men, 'and were alſo uſeful for Merchandiſing, as well 'as for Ships of War, and therefore not to be 'accounted nor ever were eſteemed Contraband 'Goods.'

The Lord Strickland ſaid, 'That Guns were 'alſo uſeful to kill Birds, and yet were eſteemed 'always to be Contraband Goods.'

I anſwered Mynheer Coyett in Latin, 'That I 'did not know of any Law of Nations at all, 'properly ſo called, and binding univerſally; but 'that certain things were generally admitted, 'and received by moſt Nations and particularly 'relating to Treaties, to Merchandiſe, to Mat-'ters of War, and to Sea-Affairs; That I had 'not found, or heard of any Law which did 'define Contraband Goods, nor any that natu-'rally might be called ſuch; but that they were 'to be eſteemed ſuch, or not, according to par-'ticular Stipulations. That the word Contraband 'came of the old French word Ban, which ſig-'nifies an Edict, or Proclamation, as Ban, Ar-'riereban; and Contraband is as much as to ſay 'contra Edictum, vel Proclamationem, which is 'agreed upon by the Nations concerned; and 'according as their Intereſt leads them upon the 'occaſion preſented; and I thought that theſe 'Commodities could not ſo properly be termed 'Contraband or not of their own nature; but 'the denomination muſt be given by Agreement, 'and not otherwiſe.'

The Lord Fiennes ſaid, 'That certainly Con-'traband Goods were only ſuch as were agreed 'to be ſo; and that ſometimes a Nation in War 'with another, would by publick Proclamation

'forbid

Anno 1656.

'forbid the bringing of ſuch Goods as they 'thought fit to be forbidden, to be brought to 'their Enemies; and that in our late Wars with 'the Dutch, they did by publick Proclamation 'forbid the bringing of theſe and other Commo-'dities to England, and did ſeize upon them, if 'they found any bringing hither to us; and if 'we ſhould permit theſe Commodities to be car-'ried by the Swedes to Spain, the Dutch would 'expect the like Liberty, and ſo our Enemy 'would be ſupplied by our Conſent.

The Ambaſſador ſaid, 'It was true that the 'Dutch did make ſuch a Proclamation as is re-'membred in the time of our War with them, 'but that no Nation did ever acknowledge the 'ſame to be binding, and that the Swedes at that 'time in ſpite of their Proclamation did bring 'thoſe Commodities into England, and ſupplied 'us in our greateſt Want of them, and that it 'would be hard now to reſtrain the People of 'Sweden from trading to Spain or elſewhere, 'with thoſe Commodities which were never 'heretofore reputed Contraband Goods.

I ſaid, 'That I had formerly peruſed moſt of 'the Treaties which England had made, and had 'three Books Manuſcript of Treaties and Tranſ-'actions between England and Sweden, and be-'tween England and Denmark, and other Northern 'Parts, which the old Chancellor had looked 'into with much Delight; that I could not 'charge my Memory with Particulars of thoſe 'Treaties, becauſe ſince my Service was not 'held uſeful in Matters of that Nature I had 'wholly laid them and the Thoughts of them 'aſide; but that I did much forget, if in ſome of 'thoſe, eſpecially with Denmark, Pitch and Tar, 'and Hemp were not enumerated among the 'Contraband Goods; and if his Excellency 'thought it might be of ill Conſequence to be 'now put into the Treaty, there might be a 'private Article for that only.

The Ambaſſador ſaid, 'That if there ſhould 'be a private Article for it, yet all the People 'of Sweden muſt know it, and be forbid the 'carrying of thoſe Commodities, and poſſibly 'they might be named Contraband Goods in a 'Treaty with Denmark, becauſe they had little 'of thoſe Commodities in their Country.

I ſaid, 'That they had great Store of Fir in 'Norway, and whereſoever was Fir, they might 'make Pitch and Tar.

The Ambaſſadors ſaid, 'They might make it 'in Norway, but the Country was ſo mountain-'ous, that it could not be carried to any Port to 'be tranſported abroad; and that in this Buſineſs 'he did believe though theſe Commodities were 'not taken to be Contraband Goods, yet ſuch 'Courſe would be taken that our Enemies ſhould 'not be ſupplied with them from the Ports of 'the King of Sweden, where only they were to 'be had, eſpecially Hemp out of Livonia and 'thoſe Parts; and that he knew no other Ex-'pedient in this Buſineſs but what he had pri-'vately ſaid to my Lord Protector.

The Lord Fiennes ſaid, 'That we were tied 'up to inſiſt as we did upon the Treaty, and if 'his Excellency had propoſed any thing to his 'Highneſs by way of Expedient, that he might 'be pleaſed to ſpeak with him again about it; 'and he hoped that a good Iſſue would come 'of it.

There was alſo a Debate at this time concern-ing Paſſes; the Ambaſſador ſaying, 'That he 'obſerved nothing to be mentioned of them in 'that which was read.

The Lord Fiennes ſaid, 'That the Council had 'had it in Debate, and did find much Difficulty to 'agree upon a Form of Paſſes; but that the 'ſame would be liable to be counterfeited, and 'much Prejudice thereby to England, eſpecially 'in this time of our War with Spain; that they 'had thought of another way which they de-'ſired might be propounded to his Excellency, 'that the Commiſſioners which were to be ap-'pointed for Reſtitution of Damages, might al-'ſo be impowered that when any Ship were 'brought in, to examine whether ſhe had any 'prohibited Goods or not; and if any Injury or 'Damage were done to the Party ſo brought in, 'that thoſe Commiſſioners ſhould have Power 'forthwith to award Reſtitution and Satisfacti-'on out of his Eſtate that did the Wrong; and 'if he had not Eſtate ſufficient, then the Com-'monwealth to make Satisfaction, and not to 'have Proceedings in the Admiralty Court, but 'only in Matters of Law or of great Difficulty; 'and this was apprehended to be the beſt way 'for avoiding Deceits in counterfeiting Paſſes, 'and colouring of prohibited Goods, and the 'readieſt Means to obtain Satisfaction where 'any Injury ſhould be done. April.

The Ambaſſador ſaid, 'That the Lord Whitelocke 'knew it was much inſiſted upon at Upſal, that 'there ſhould be Paſſes, and the Form ſhould have 'been agreed upon within four Months; that it 'was impoſſible to avoid former Wrongs, and ſuch 'Uſage as had been heretofore without Paſſes; and 'that although ſome might counterfeit Hands, 'yet they could not counterfeit Seals; and if any 'were taken that did counterfeit, let them be 'hanged; and for Commiſſioners they could not 'tell how to judge but by the Paſſes, and they 'muſt have Rules to go by.

The Lord Fiennes ſaid, 'That there were many 'that could counterfeit Seals as well as Hands; 'and that the Seal of the Council it ſelf here 'had been counterfeited; that he believed after 'ſome few Examples made for bringing in Ships 'without cauſe, and ſound Damages given, that 'very few would be troubled, nor any Adven-'ture, but upon juſt Ground to hinder any Ship 'in her Voyage; and that ſome Commiſſioners 'might reſide at Dover, and another Set of them 'at Plymouth, and ſo in convenient Ports in the 'King of Sweden's Dominions, that no Ship 'ſhould be brought far out of her Way, and 'have a ſpeedy Diſpatch; and three Commiſſi-'oners being Engliſh, and three other Swedes, 'there could be no doubt but that Juſtice would 'be done to each Party.

I acknowledged 'That the Paſſes were much 'inſiſted upon at Upſal, and that I was very 'glad I had not there agreed upon a Form, ſee-'ing the Council here did find it ſo difficult a 'Matter,' that I was there acquainted with many 'Complaints againſt the Proceedings in the Court 'of Admiralty here, and that I thought no 'way better to prevent the like Complaints here-'after, than by having ſuch Commiſſioners of 'both Parts as was mentioned by the Lord 'Fiennes.

Strickland ſaid, 'That if we agreed to Paſſes 'for the Swediſh Ships, that the Dutch would 'expect the like, and that would bring great In-'conveniences to this Nation.

Mynheer Coyett ſaid, 'That it would be im-'poſſible to preſerve Terms of Amity, and to 'prevent doing of Injuries, unleſs Paſſes were 'agreed upon; and that it was ſo with other

Anno 1656.

'Nations, and he did not comprehend the Inconveniences of it.

The Ambaſſador ſaid, 'That the Caſe was not 'the ſame to the Dutch as to the Swede, becauſe 'theſe were the native Commodities of the King 'his Maſter's Territories, as Cloth was of Eng- 'land; and that the Dutch had little Store of any 'Commodities of their own Country; that there 'had been too much Cauſe of Complaint againſt 'the Proceedings in the Admiralty Court of Eng- 'land, and he thought that ſuch Commiſſioners 'might be ſome Means to prevent the like cauſe 'of Complaints for the future; that he deſired a 'Copy of thoſe Articles now debated, and if they 'pleaſed, that he might have it in Latin, which 'he would conſider of, and return a more par- 'ticular Anſwer at the next Meeting.

This was promiſed to be ſent to him within a Day or two; and after ſome Diſcourſes upon other Parts of the Articles, as concerning Levies of Soldiers, and hiring of Ships of War, and of their Reſort into each others Ports, and ſome other Particulars wherein there was not much Debate, nor Diſagreement, but only upon the great Queſtions, which is before at large related; we came away.

To his Highneſs the Lord Protector of England, Scotland, and Ireland,

The Humble Petition of Jacob Momma of London, Merchant.

Copper Manufacture.

That your Petitioners not above nine Months laſt paſt hath uſed the Trade by himſelf and his Agents of making Latin Wire, and black Latin of all ſorts out of Copper; a Trade of much Advantage to this Commonwealth, whereby many hundreds of poor People may be ſet on work; and the Braſs which is tinned out of the Copper by melting is increaſed, above a third Part in Weight exceeding the Copper out of which it is made; the Improvement whereof is very uſeful in this Nation for caſting of Ordnance.

But ſo it is, May it pleaſe your Highneſs, That your Petitioner beginning his ſaid Trade, the King of Sweden, out of whoſe Dominions the Copper is brought, for Encouragement of the Makers of Braſs, Latin Wire, and all ſorts of black Latin, and for keeping the Management of that Trade within his own Country, hath lately raiſed his Cuſtoms there upon Copper from thence exported, from 7 s. to about 27 s. Sterling per hundred Weight; whereas not above 3 s. Sterling per hundred Weight is paid there for Latin Wire, and all ſorts of black Latin thence exported, which will not only be the Deſtruction of your Petitioner's ſaid Trade, but alſo the Ruin of ſeveral Families which have Dependance on your Petitioner in the managing thereof, if ſome ſpeedy Remedy be not taken therein.

Now for that your Petitioner's ſaid Trade is chiefly carried on by the Uſe of a native Commodity called Calamy, without which Copper cannot be turned into Braſs, which is altogether otherwiſe uſeleſs; and that the ſaid Calamy may prove a Staple Commodity in this Commonwealth, which will never be wanting therein.

His humble Suit therefore is, that your Highneſs would pleaſe to be a Means that the Cuſtom upon all ſorts of black Latin, and Latin Wire imported from any Parts into this Commonwealth, may be raiſed as in your Highneſs's Wiſdom ſhall be thought moſt fit, and proportionable to the late raiſed Rates in Sweden upon Copper exported thence, whereby your Petitioner may receive Encouragement to proceed in the Management of his ſaid Trade.

And he ſhall Pray, &c.

His Highneſs is pleaſed to refer this Petition to the Committee for Trade. April.

Jan. 15. 1655. Jo. Thurloe.

15. His Highneſs having referred this Petition to the Committee for Trade, they ordered me to attend them; and they enquired the Reaſon of the enhancing the Impoſitions upon Copper in Sweden, and what Courſe might be found out to reduce that Impoſition to the former Rate, and to keep up the Manufacture of Latin Wire here.

I told them that I ſuppoſed the Reaſon of enhancing the Impoſition by the King of Sweden upon his Copper, was his extraordinary Occaſions for Money, eſpecially in this time of his Wars; and that he was a free Prince, who might lay what Impoſitions he did think fit upon the Commodities of his own Country.

That for the Reducement of thoſe Impoſitions to the former, or any lower Rates than they were at now, I knew no way but either upon the preſent Treaty with the Swediſh Ambaſſador here to ſee what might be done by way of aſcertaining thoſe and other Impoſitions, or by buying up all the Copper at certain Rates to be agreed upon.

That it had been uſual in former times upon Treaties between England and Spain, and with France and other Nations, that the State here did agree what Impoſitions ſhould be paid by the Engliſh upon the Commodities which they brought from thoſe Countries, and thereby Trade was much encouraged, the Merchant was upon a Certainty for Payment of his Cuſtoms beyond Seas, and the State here, knowing what the Merchant was to pay beyond Seas, (as particularly for Wines) did thereupon uſe to ſet the Prices upon Wines here.

And concerning the buying up of the Copper of Sweden, I told them it would be, in my poor Judgment, of very great Advantage to England if it might be compaſſed upon reaſonable Terms; and that it might be compaſſed, I had the more Reaſon to believe, becauſe that my ſelf had ſome Conference about it when I was Ambaſſador in Sweden with ſome there; and ſince with ſome of the Swediſh Ambaſſador's Company here, and did perceive them inclinable to ſuch a Bargain, and they had heretofore made ſuch a Contract with the City of Lubeck in Germany, who gained great Wealth thereby; for they became ſole Merchants of the Copper, and had the Manufacture likewiſe within themſelves of making it into Braſs, and of the Commodities made thereof, which they vented at their own Prices in all Parts of Chriſtendom, and ſome of them they vended back again into Sweden it ſelf. That the late King Guſtavus Adolphus, finding the Inconvenience and Loſs to Sweden hereby, would not permit the Lubeckers to enlarge their time of that Contract, but got the Manufacture of Braſs within themſelves, and vended their own Copper to the ſeveral Merchants who reſorted thither for it.

That England hath a great Advantage herein more that other Countries, by reaſon of Lapis Calaminaris here, by which the Copper is turned into Braſs; and that there is not in any Country of Europe ſo great Store of that Mineral as here; that he knew of none but in Bohemia, which was ſo great a Journey by Land to any Port, that it would hardly quit the Coſt of the Carriage of it.

That

Anno 1656.

That in caſe England could have the ſole vending of Copper and Braſs, they might make their own Rates of it; they might furniſh themſelves and whom elſe they pleaſed, and none other with Braſs Ordnance, which are of far better uſe, eſpecially for Shipping, than thoſe of Iron; that it would bring the Manufacture of Latin Wire, and all other Manufactures of Braſs ſolely amongſt us, and be of great Conſequence, both as to matter of Profit, and of Security to us.

I told them further, that I had ſome Thoughts myſelf of being a Merchant for it, if I could have procured others of Value to have joined with me therein; but they found great Difficulties for particular Perſons to go through with ſuch a Buſineſs without the State, eſpecially in relation to the Caſting of Ordnance.

That I had acquainted ſome of the Council with this Buſineſs, as a Matter fit for my Lord Protector and the States Conſideration, but I found that their Leiſure would not admit them to think further upon it, and therefore having made known my own poor Judgment therein, as I perceived did become my duty, and nothing being thought fit to be done in it, I ſubmitted to the Judgment of others, who I ſuppoſed knew the Buſineſs, or the Reaſons of publick Matters better than myſelf; but now having received the Commands of this Committee to attend them in a Buſineſs which had relation to that Matter of the Copper, I thought it my duty to repreſent my Thoughts at large to them, to whoſe Conſideration I conceived it to be very proper.

Some of the Committee asked me what Quantity of Copper might belong to the King of Sweden and what to his Subjects; and what Payments might be expected for it, and what the Terms might be in a Contract for all their Copper.

I anſwered that the King of Sweden had the Propriety, in Right of his Crown, of the moſt part of the great Mountains where the Copper Mines were; that all the Copper digged out of thoſe Mountains, whereof the Soil or Royalty belonged unto him, was his Majeſty's particular Goods; that of all the Copper belonging to any of his Subjects, and digged out of their particular Mines, in their ſeveral Grounds and Soil, yet a Tenth of all that is paid unto the King; and by a late Compoſition for Cuſtoms, Impoſitions, and other Duties, they have agreed to pay a Fifteenth or thereabouts, of all the Remainder to the King; ſo that a very little Quantity remains but what is in his Majeſty's diſpoſe, and the Quantity of the whole I gueſſed might come to about 250000*l.* or 300000*l.* yearly in Value or thereabouts, as I could gueſs.

That the way there is to make their Carriages in Winter time by Sleds upon the Ice, the Summer being ſo hot that they cannot travail, nor their Cattle work, and the Froſt ſo ſtrong that the Ways are then beſt, and then they bring all the Copper to the Port-Towns, where it lies ready for the Ships by the Spring, when the Ice is gone, and that they can come into thoſe Seas; that I was told they would expect one half of the Money to be agreed upon before the Copper were taken into Ships when it was ready for them, and the other half of the Money at the Arrival of the Ships here; and would be contented to take Bills, or the Payment of the Money at Hamburgh or Lubeck, or ſome of thoſe Towns not far from the Baltick: But what Conditions they would now expect I knew not, the Buſineſs having ſlept for ſome time. The Committee generally expreſſed themſelves with great Approbation of the Propoſition of buying all the Copper, ſaying, They never heard any thing more to the Honour and Profit of the Nation than this ſeemed to be; they deſired me to write down both the Propoſitions, which I then did. April.

17. Biſhop Uſher the late Archbiſhop of Armagh was this Day buried in Weſtminſter Abbey; two hundred Pound was given by the Protector to bear the Charges of his Funeral. Uſher's Funeral.

18. The Committee of Trade ſat in the Morning, and unanimouſly voted the two Propoſitions, and that the ſame ſhould be drawn up in Form of a Report from the Committee to his Highneſs, to be preſented to him this Afternoon; and I was voted to preſent it to the Protector, and the Gentlemen of the Committee deſired to accompany me with the Vote to the Court in the Afternoon.

Accordingly I met at the Place appointed this Afternoon, and found there all the Members of the Committee, who had been preſent at the Debate, about fourteen or fifteen ready to go with me to the Protector, which was a greater Number than had been obſerved to attend the like Occaſion before.

When we were come to Whitehall, we were ſent for into the Protector's Bed-Chamber; after we were all entred, I told him that thoſe Gentlemen and myſelf, Members of his Highneſs's Committee of Trade, were commanded by that Committee humbly to preſent to his Highneſs a Report from them: Upon a Reference which he was pleaſed to make to that Committee of the Petition of one Momma, which was annexed to the Report, and I offered to read the Report; but my Lord Protector took it and read it himſelf, and then ſaid, My Lord Whitelocke, you are one of the Commiſſioners to treat with the Swediſh Ambaſſador, and therefore I hope you will take care of that Particular of your Report in the Treaty with the Ambaſſador; and as to the buying of the Swediſh Copper, the Council ſhall be acquainted with that Propoſition, who will take it into their Conſideration, and adviſe with ſome of the Committee of Trade about it, and do therein what they ſhall find to be convenient; that it ſeemed to be a Buſineſs of Concernment, and would require good Advice and Deliberation.

I took occaſion from the Protector's Words to acquaint him with the great Concernment of the Buſineſs in relation to this Nation, and to the Trade thereof, and to the Increaſe of Manufactures of Copper and Braſs, which by this Means would be ſolely in England, and alſo in relation to our Safety; for hereby we ſhould much increaſe our Braſs Ordnance, which were of great Conſideration as to his Highneſs's Navy, and as to the furniſhing of ſuch of our Neighbours only therewith, as we ſhould think fit.

As to Manufacture, that no Nation in Europe had ſuch Conveniences for it as England, by reaſon of the great Quantities of Lapis Calaminaris here, which was not found in other Parts of Europe, except ſome Quantity in Bohemia, which by reaſon of the long and chargeable Carriage of it by Land, did diſcourage the Merchants from meddling with it, but the tranſportation of the Copper by Sea was very convenient; and the Lapis Calaminaris at home made it very commodious for this Nation, more than for any other.

I likewiſe informed his Highneſs of the former Contract of the City of Lubeck, and the Paſſages thereof, with the other Particulars concern-

Anno 1656. ing this Matter, which had been before mentioned at the Committee.

His Highneſs ſeemed very much ſatisfied with this Diſcourſe, and ſaid again to me, that I ſhould take the Care of it in the Treaty, and himſelf would acquaint the Council with it, and ſo we came away.

The Copy of the Report here followeth.

April, 1656.

Friday, 18th of April 1656. At the Committee for Trade and Navigation.

In Purſuance of your Highneſs Reference of the 15th of January, 1655. whereby the humble Petition of Jacob Momma of London Merchant, is referred to this Committee, We having taken the ſaid Petition into our Conſideration, do humbly preſent and certify unto your Highneſs our Advice thereupon. viz.

Firſt, That in the preſent Treaty with the Swediſh Ambaſſador there may be Conſideration had of the Impoſition upon Copper in Sweden, and lately greatly enhanced there, viz. from 7 s. to about 27 s. in the hundred Weight (as we are informed) to the utter Deſtruction of the Manufacture of Latin Wire, and other Manufactures of Copper and Braſs here; and that in the preſent Treaty the Impoſition may be moderated, and aſcertained, which being likewiſe done for other Commodities in this and other Treaties will tend very much to the Advancement of the Trade of this Commonwealth.

Secondly, That his Highneſs be moved to take into Conſideration the buying up of all the Copper of Sweden at certain Rates, and upon certain Propoſitions to be agreed upon between his Highneſs and the King of Sweden, which was in Propoſition with the late Engliſh Ambaſſador there; and in caſe his Highneſs ſhall not think it expedient for the State to be engaged in that Bargain that he would be pleaſed to give Encouragement to particular Perſons or Companies to proceed therein, which may be a great Advantage to this Nation.

28. Letters of the King of Sweden's Death in Poland, but counterfeit, and afterwards confuted.

May, 1656.

May 3. This Day the Protector gave the Honour of Knighthood to Mynheer Coyett, the King of Sweden's Reſident here, who was now Sir Peter Coyett, and gave him a fair Jewel with his Highneſs's Picture, and a rich gold Chain; it coſt about 400 l,

The Lord General Fleetwood told me that I had ſome Enemies at Court, who were willing to keep me from being of the Council; the Objection they had againſt me were two: Firſt, That in the Treaty which I made with the Crown of Sweden I had conſented unto Paſſes for Ships, which the Council here ſaid would be very inconvenient for our Affairs, eſpecially now that we had War with Spain; and that I had conſented to the Specification of Contraband Goods, which would alſo be very inconvenient in relation to our War with Spain; and the other Objection againſt me was, That I was a Lawyer; and they would ſhow that the Counſels might be carried on without the the Wiſdom of Lawyers, which would but trouble and interrupt their Proceedings by telling them what was Law upon every Occaſion, and their Affairs would not permit to tie up themſelves to thoſe Rules of Law.

I anſwered that as to the Matter of Paſſes, it was in my Judgment reaſonable and fit, and ſuch as was between other Nations; and the Form left to the Council to be here agreed on, which they might make as ſtrict as they pleaſed; and though we had no War with Spain, yet we had none with them when this Article was made; nor could it be divined at Upſal that we ſhould have War with Spain two Years after this Article agreed on; but if it were thought inconvenient, why then was it confirmed amongſt the reſt by the Protector and his Council, and that not ſuddenly, but after a ſtrict and near Diſquiſition, and Examination by a Committee of the Council, of every Article of the Treaty, and comparing them with the Powers and Inſtructions given to me when I went Ambaſſador; and that Committee having made report to the Council, That they found nothing done by me contrary unto, but purſuant and according to the Inſtructions given me, and to the Advantage of the State. May.

The Council and the Protector confirmed unanimouſly the Treaty by me made at Upſal, and afterward his Highneſs ſent an expreſs Envoy, namely his own Kinſman Mr. Rolle, with the Ratification of this Treaty under the Great Seal of England to his Majeſty the King of Sweden; and now after two Years, there falls out a War between Spain and England begun by us, which was in our power to have forborn, and one or two Articles in the Treaty made ſo long before may prove inconvenient as to this War; this will not be found by indifferent Men any Objection of much Weight againſt the Treaty, nor Cauſe to lay blame upon the Ambaſſador who made it.

The Article of Contraband Goods is upon the ſame Grounds to be excuſed as that of Paſſes, alike left to the Council to ſpecify the Particulars; and after an Examination alike confirmed; with this, that ſeldom any Treaty is made without the Specification of them, and the late Council of State did give in a Paper unto Mynheer Boneale the Queen of Sweden's Commiſſioner here, ſpecifying Contraband Goods in the time of our War with the Low Countries, which was a Precedent and Warrant for me to do the like.

As to the ſecond Objection concerning my being a Lawyer, I ſaid I accounted my Profeſſion my greateſt Honour, and that it did not make me the leſs capable of ſerving my Country, as the late Long Parliament thought, by whom I was conſtantly elected to be of the Council; and former Ages had the like good Opinion of my Profeſſion; but if the preſent Age were wiſer than our Anceſtors, it was becauſe they had 200000 Men in Arms to prove them ſo; and if they diſliked the Profeſſion of the Law, it was becauſe the Law is the only Oppoſer of unlimited Will and Arbitrarineſs, which did not love to be curbed.

And I thought it was no great Unhappineſs to me to be out of thoſe publick Tranſactions of this time, which I conceived might not prove, in caſe of another Change, wholly free in themſelves from all Manner of Objections; and perhaps in ſome Particulars, wherein the Trouble of being informed, That they were contrary to the Law of England, would not have been to the Prejudice either of the Actors or of their Actions; but in time it will be underſtood that the Law was a good Bulwark for the Defence of the Rights of the People of England.

6. The

Anno 1656. Swediſh Ambaſſador.

6. The Swediſh Ambaſſador again complained of the Delays in his Buſineſs, and that when he had deſired to have the Articles of this Treaty put into Latin, according to the Cuſtom in Treaties, that it was fourteen days they made him ſtay for that Tranſlation, and ſent it to one Mr. Milton, a blind Man, to put them into Latin; who he ſaid, muſt uſe of an Amanuenſis to read it to him, and that Amanuenſis might publiſh the matter of the Articles as he pleaſed; and that it ſeemed ſtrange to him there ſhould be none but a blind Man capable of putting a few Articles into Latin: That the Chancellor with his own hand penn'd the Artieles made at Upſal, and ſo he heard the Ambaſſador Whitelocke did for thoſe on his part. The Employment of Mr. Milton was excuſed to him, becauſe ſeveral other Servants of the Council fit for that Employment were then abſent.

8. Upon Summons, the Lord Fiennes, Strickland, Secretary Thurloe and I, met at the Council-Chamber, and we ſpent about an hour in conſidering the ſeveral Particulars of the preſent Treaty with the Swediſh Ambaſſador, his Propoſals of Alteration in ſome Points formerly treated on with him, and the Council's Votes therein; we went from thence to the Ambaſſador all but the Secretary; and Compliments being paſſed we fell to our Buſineſs, and moſt of the Alterations propounded by the Ambaſſador, being but difference of Expreſſion only, were agreed.

Contraband.

The main things upon which they differ'd were, whether Pitch, Tar, Hemp, &c. ſhould be Contraband Goods, or not. The Ambaſſador was earneſt that they ſhould not, and remembred his former Arguments and Reaſons upon this Point, and ſaid, That his Maſter could not conſent unto it for example's ſake to others.

The Lord Fiennes urged the Vote and Reſolution of the Council upon great Debate and Reaſon, during the time only of our War with Spain, who could not ſubſiſt without the Commodity; and if we ſhould permit it to be no Contraband Goods with the Swedes, the like would be expected by the Dutch and other Nations, and thereby we ſhould give way to the furniſhing of our Enemies with that which they moſt wanted, and wherewith they could moſt offend us.

The Ambaſſador alledged 'the Inconvenience 'to their Trade, if it ſhould be admitted that it 'was their Native Commodity, and not of any 'other Nation; that the Swedes had little Traffick with Spain; that other Nations would ſupply them if the Swedes did not; that in the Liſt 'of Contraband Goods given in by the former 'Council of State to Mynheer Boneale, theſe Commodities were omitted, and ſo he hoped would 'be now, and the rather becauſe it was agreed 'at the Treaty at Upſal that they ſhould be ſpecify'd within four Months; and it was then 'taken for granted as the Lord Whitelocke knew 'well, that theſe Commodities ſhould not be 'taken for Contraband.

I anſwer'd, 'That at the Treaty at Upſal the 'General was only agreed, that there ſhould be 'a Specification within four Months, in which 'time none was here on the part of Sweden to 'agree to a Denomination of Particulars; that 'it was left to the future Agreement to ſpecify 'them, and no Particulars agreed upon at Upſal, 'that ſince that time there was a great Change 'both in our Affairs and in thoſe of the King 'of Sweden, which muſt neceſſarily be regarded 'in the Specification of Contraband Goods; and 'our War with Spain did require a ſpecial care 'not to ſuffer them to be furniſhed with ſuch 'Commodities with which they would moſt offend us, as the Lord Fiennes had declared; that 'if the Swedes had little Traffick to Spain, his 'Excellency might with the leſs Prejudice to 'them agree that theſe Commodities ſhould be 'Contraband; that the Paper given to Mynheer 'Boneale was when we had no War with Spain, 'or any other Nation, and perhaps the Commodities not then in debate.' Strickland mentioned the Low Countries prohibiting theſe Commodities to be brought to us in our War with them. May.

Mynheer Coyett ſaid, 'That was never ſubmitted unto by any Nation that could be ſtrong 'enough to withſtand it.

The Ambaſſador ſaid, He could tell them a pleaſant Story, which was nothing but of the Hollanders relieving with Proviſions and Powder a Town, while it was beſieged by the States; and ſo he ſaid, other Nations would ſupply the Spaniard, if they did not.

The Lord Fiennes propoſed the former Deſign of our Merchants to buy up at a certain Rate all thoſe Commodities from the Swedes.

The Ambaſſador ſaid, 'That would require a 'long time to alter the Factors, and Aſſignations, 'and Places of ſhipping, and the Price; and 'many other Particulars, which could not eaſily 'nor quickly be done; and that thoſe Goods were 'moſt in private hands of Merchants.

I ſaid, 'The ſame Goods at the ſame Places of 'Shipping, and at a certain Price all to be vended, I thought would be quickly agreed upon 'by private Men being for their Advantage.' Nothing was concluded upon this Point.

Then the Ambaſſador excepted againſt the words in the Specification of Contraband Goods, viz. (Inſtrumenta Bello inſervientia) ſaying, that this did take in all things whatſoever, for they might ſerve for War; and he deſired the words might be (Inſtrumenta Bellica) as words leſs capacious than the other; this to pleaſe him with his own Expreſſions, was conſented unto.

The next great Debate was upon the Point of Paſſes, which the Ambaſſador ſaid were neceſſary to be had and agreed upon, or otherwiſe the People of his Maſter muſt be ſtill great Sufferers, and be highly oppreſſed as they had been in the time of our War with the Dutch; and he grated much upon thoſe Injuries which could not be prevented, but by Paſſes; which were expreſly agreed upon by the Treaty of Upſal.

I ſaid, 'That in England and other Countries 'People were apt to loſe their Sight in their 'own Caſes, and that when both ſides were heard 'the ſame appear'd to be true; and he did believe 'the like would appear when both Parties came 'to be heard in thoſe Caſes, whereof ſo much 'Complaint had been made by one Party only to 'his Excellency; and that the Article for Commiſſioners on both ſides to be appointed both 'for paſſed Injuries, and for the future, to give 'a juſt Satisfaction, I did believe would prevent 'the like hereafter, and be of great Advantage 'to both Nations.

'That what was agreed at Upſal did appear in 'the Articles of that Treaty, which as to Paſſes 'did conſent that there ſhould be ſuch, and the 'Form only referr'd for a future Agreement; 'and there is nothing elſe but the Form to be 'agreed on; and that ſeems difficult enough to 'avoid the Deceits in counterfeiting of them, and 'under pretence of them to have other Nations 'carry prohibited Goods to our Enemies; and 'by reaſon of the Change of Affairs ſince that

'general

Anno 1656.

'general Agreement, there muſt of neceſſity be a 'greater care to avoid Inconveniences which 'may ariſe by thoſe Paſſes.

That the Propoſition of giving Power to the Commiſſioners on both ſides, to hear and determine all Differences upon the bringing in of any Ship ſuſpected juſtly to have a falſe Paſs, or prohibited Goods in her, will prevent the Delays and Injuries complained of, and be a means to preſerve the Amity of both Nations the better.

The Ambaſſador with ſome quickneſs reply'd, 'That by the Treaty of Upſal (and of neceſſity it 'muſt be ſo) a Ship ſhewing her Paſs was not 'to be troubled any farther, nor to be brought 'in at all, but permitted to proceed in her Voy-'age without any viſiting or examination.

I ſaid, 'That by the words of the Article of 'Paſſes in that Treaty, the Ship ſhewing a true 'Paſs was to be permitted to proceed in her Voy-'age; but if there were a juſt Suſpicion of a coun-'terfeit Paſs, or having prohibited Goods, no 'words of that Article did forbid the bringing 'in of ſuch a Ship, but provided that ſuch ſhould 'be puniſhed, which could not well be without 'an Examination; nor can the matter be exa-'min'd unleſs by bringing in the Parties con-'cerned before the Judges, which are to examine 'them; and it will be more for the Advantage 'of both Parties to be brought only to Dover, or 'Plymouth, or Hull, or other convenient Port-'Towns; and before Commiſſioners, whereof ſome 'are their own Countrymen, rather than to the 'Court of Admiralty, againſt whom they have 'made ſo many Complaints before.

'The Lord Fiennes ſeconded that Propoſal of 'Commiſſioners to determine all matters of this 'nature; and ſaid, that the Article of Paſſes in 'the Treaty of Upſal could not be underſtood 'that Ships ſhewing a Paſs although counterfeit, 'or having prohibited Goods, ſhould neverthe-'leſs be free from Examination; neither did the 'words of that Article import any ſuch Senſe, 'but agreed thoſe to be puniſhed, who ſhould do 'any thing contrary to that Article; and that 'having a counterfeit Paſs, or prohibited Goods, 'would be contrary to that Article.

The Ambaſſador ſaid, 'That if any Ship 'were brought in upon ſuch a Suſpicion, if it 'did not prove true, the Parties would ſuffer 'great Injuries by being brought up.

The Lord Fiennes and I ſaid, 'That the Com-'miſſioners in ſuch Caſes were to be impower'd 'to give Satisfaction out of the Party's Eſtate, 'who ſhould do the Wrong; and if that were 'not ſufficient, then the State to make it good.

The Ambaſſador went off from this Point, and mentioned the Forfeiture for having prohibited Goods, propoſed by the Council to be thoſe Goods, and the Ship alſo where they were found, which he ſaid, was unreaſonable, and would ruin their Trade if conſented unto; nor was it ever done in any Treaty that he had ſeen: but he propoſed, 'That the prohibited Goods only ſhould be for-'feited, and no other Goods in the Ship; nor 'the Ship in any Caſe.

The Lord Fiennes ſaid, 'That if the For-'feiture ſhould be ſo ſmall, as the prohibited 'Goods only, it would encourage People to ad-'venture to carry thoſe Goods; and that the 'Forfeiture of the Ship would cauſe the Maſter 'of it to take care that no prohibited Goods 'ſhould be taken aboard his Ship, and he might 'have Security of the Merchants, which would 'prevent any Damage to him, or to the Ship, or 'Trade.

Several other Matters were debated amongſt us; but it growing late we came to no Concluſion, but each inſiſted upon our own Opinions; and little was agreed, but only to meet again the next Tueſday. May.

13. Tueſday we went to the Ambaſſador of Sweden's Houſe about five of the Clock this Evening, where we had a long Debate with his Excellency upon the former Points not agreed on. Firſt about the enumerating amongſt the Contraband Goods, Pitch and Tar, and Hemp, &c. To which the Ambaſſador would in no wiſe yield; and dilated upon the ſame Arguments he had before urged on this matter; adding this, 'That it 'was known to the Lord Whitelocke that in Fin-'land it was their chief Commodity, which if 'they ſhould not vend yearly, having great quan-'tities of Pitch and Tar, the Country could not 'ſubſiſt, nor would the Commodity laſt above 'one year in the Veſſels; but by reaſon of the 'great Strength of it, being kept longer, it would 'break the Hoops of the Veſſels and be loſt, and 'if the leaſt Reſtraint ſhould be put upon the 'vending of it to any Place, the Inhabitants of 'Finland would think themſelves undone, and it 'would be a great Prejudice to their Trade; be-'ſides if it ſhould be forbidden to be carry'd to 'Spain, it would cauſe the Spaniard to ſeek out 'elſewhere for Pitch and Tar, and poſſibly it 'might be had in America; and if that ſhould 'come to paſs it would wholly overthrow the 'Trade of Finland.

Further he ſaid, 'That in caſe the Spaniard 'ſhould want their Pitch and Tar, that yet he 'had the Oil of a certain Fiſh which he could 'make uſe of inſtead of Pitch and Tar, which 'might turn to the great Prejudice of his Ma-'ſter's Subjects.

The Lord Fiennes anſwer'd as formerly theſe Arguments, and ſaid, 'That if the Swedes had 'ſo little Trade with Spain, the forbearing of it 'during our War would be the leſs Prejudice to 'them; that the Reſtraint would be only as to 'Spain, not as to any other Nation, and but for 'a time during our War with Spain.

I ſaid, 'That the Pitch and Tar from Finland 'was to be had in great Quantities, and better 'and at a lower rate than it would be had from 'America, and ſo long there would be no Danger 'to the Trade of that Country; and for the Oil 'of the Fiſh, which the Spaniard might make uſe 'of, it was perhaps in caſe of Neceſſity, when 'they could get no Pitch and Tar which was ſo 'much to be preferred before that Oil, that the 'Oil would never be made uſe of if they could 'get the other.

I alſo ſeconded a Propoſition made formerly by the Lord Fiennes, 'That ſome Declaration ſhould 'be agreed on, that Pitch and Tar was not de-'termined one way or other, as to Contraband 'Goods, but left to know the King's Pleaſure 'about it: and in the mean time it ſhould not 'be taken to be omitted as not Contraband Goods, 'which laſt part he thought might be left out of 'the Declaration;' This was thought worthy Conſideration by the Ambaſſador, and from thence we went to the Point of Paſſes;

Wherein the ſame Arguments were uſed as formerly on both Parts, the Ambaſſador much enlarging himſelf in the Repetition, affirming alſo that both this matter of Paſſes, and that of Contraband Goods, were once agreed upon as now he deſired, and as he could prove, though now the War between us and Spain had occaſioned us to ſtand upon theſe Alterations on our part.

The

Anno 1656.

The Lord Strickland miſtaking the Ambaſſador, and very ready to know any thing which might reflect upon me, demanded if theſe things were agreed in the Treaty of Upſal.

I anſwered, 'That he ſuppoſed that Treaty 'had been peruſed, and no ſuch matter would 'be found to be agreed in it, but the general only that there ſhould be a Specification of Con-'traband Goods, and a Form of Paſſes to be a-'greed upon here.

But I underſtood theſe Words of the Ambaſſador to reflect upon me; and upon a Letter which I by Direction here had written to Mr. Laggerfeldt, to this effect, That I had preſented the Form of Paſſes and the Liſt of Contraband Goods, which was delivered to me at Upſal, unto the Council here, and I did not doubt but that there would be a good Agreement upon them: But I not having any Copy of my Letter to Mr. Laggerfeldt, nor any Writing, or Order to warrant my Letter; and the Reflection upon it by the Ambaſſador not being plainly expreſſed, nor obſerved by my Fellow-Commiſſioners, I thought it beſt not to take notice of it myſelf, nor to draw it in queſtion, but inſiſted upon the Treaty of Upſal in the Anſwer to it; and again mentioned the former Propoſition of Commiſſioners to be appointed for Reſtitution, who might alſo have Power to determine the Difference upon the bringing in of any Swediſh Ship hereafter in a ſummary way, and to be reſident at convenient Ports near the Sea. But this the Ambaſſador did not think good to aſſent unto, and this brought in the Debate concerning theſe Commiſſioners: Wherein the Ambaſſador inſiſted to have Rules given to the Commiſſioners for Reſtitution, which he had ſet down in writing, and were to this effect, That theſe Commiſſioners ſhould give Damages to ſuch Swedes whoſe Ships had been brought in, and queſtioned here, during our War with the Low-Countries, if thoſe Swedes ſhould bring before the Commiſſioners Certificates from Port-Towns, or Governors of the King of Sweden's Territories, that thoſe Ships ſo brought in were then belonging to the King's Subjects.

The Lord Fiennes ſaid, 'That this ſeemed not 'to be reaſonable, to give Rules now, for that 'which was done before the Rules were given; 'That here and in other Places it was no diffi-'cult thing to obtain Certificates from Towns 'upon Miſinformations, or upon particular Af-'fection, and this might prove to the great Pre-'judice of England; That in our Treaties with 'France, Denmark, and Holland, we had an Ar-'ticle appointing Commiſſioners for Reſtitution, 'and in none of them were any ſuch Rules given; 'yet they proceeded to determination of the Dif-'ferences ſecundum æquum & bonum, and there 'was a very good Iſſue of it.

I ſaid, 'That Laws and Rules were not to be 'made to look back: that the particular Caſes 'which ſhould come before the Commiſſioners 'were to be conſidered according to ſuch Cir-'cumſtances only as were then in queſtion, when 'the Buſineſs was formerly under Examination; 'and to bring ſupplemental Proofs now, and to 'procure ſubſequent Paſſes and Certificates, might 'be a means not only to give Reſtitution to all 'Swedes, but to the Dutch alſo.

The Ambaſſador anſwered, 'That the Treaties 'with Denmark and Holland upon the Point of 'Reſtitution were in ſingle Matters, as that of 'ſeizing our Ships at one time in the Sound, and 'that of Amboyna; but in this Treaty it was up-'on many particulars.

We agreed it being very late to have a Declaration drawn up, as was moved concerning Contraband Goods, as to Pitch, and Tar, and Hemp, &c. and to meet again this Day Sevennight. May.

20. Tueſday. We according to the former Appointment met at the Swediſh Ambaſſador's Houſe this Evening, where the Lord Fiennes did acquaint his Excellency, 'That ſince the laſt Meet-'ing, thoſe Matters which remained yet in dif-'ference, and were not fully agreed upon, were 'tendred to the Council, who upon ſerious De-'bate and Conſideration thereof, were of Opi-'nion that they would in no wiſe depart from 'the former Reſolution: But thought it very 'reaſonable to be inſiſted on, that Pitch, and 'Tar, and Hemp, ſhould be accounted Contra-'band Goods during our War with Spain, and 'his Highneſs and the Council being of this Opi-'nion, and underſtanding that there was but 'little Trade between Sweden and Spain, and 'therefore the Inconvenience to have them Con-'traband Goods would be the leſs to the King 'of Sweden's Subjects; but on the other ſide it 'would be ſo great a Prejudice to England, to 'have the Spaniard at this time to be ſupplied 'with thoſe Commodities which they had need 'of, his Highneſs and the Council did hope that 'the Ambaſſador would conſent to have them 'ſpecified amongſt the Contraband Goods, and 'that the Declaration by way of Expedient drawn 'up and ſent by his Excellency to the Lord 'Fiennes, being conſidered by the Council, they 'were of opinion that the ſame did determine 'the Queſtion that they ſhould not be account-'ed prohibited Goods, and afterwards referred 'them to a future Determination; and in the 'mean time it might occaſion differences and 'quarrelling upon that Point between the People 'of both the Nations.

The Ambaſſador endeavoured to maintain the Reaſonableneſs of that Declaration, and ſaid, 'That he would not agree to have Pitch, &c. 'to be ſpecified among the Contraband Goods,' and repeated his former Reaſons and Arguments at large upon that Subject, and in the Concluſion ſaid, 'That it was once approved of here 'after the Lord Whitelocke's Return from Sweden, 'that they ſhould be left out of the number of 'Contraband Goods as he could make it appear.' And then called to his Secretary for a Paper; which being given him, I did imagine to be a Letter that I had written to Mr. Laggerfeldt, and thereupon thought fit to mention it firſt myſelf, and ſaid, 'That I had obſerved now, and 'at former Debates that the Ambaſſador did 'glance at a Letter which I had formerly writ 'to Mr. Laggerfeldt, and leſt more might be ap-'prehended of it than the Letter it ſelf would 'bear, I thought fit myſelf to acquaint what it 'was which I did imagine the Ambaſſador in-'tended by thoſe Expreſſions.

I told them, 'That after my Arrival in Eng-'land, and an Account given by me to his High-'neſs and the Council of my Negotiation in Swe-'den, and the ſame thoroughly looked into and 'approved, His Highneſs and the Council thought 'fit to confirm the Treaty made by me at Upſal; 'and there having been ſome Debate concerning 'the Articles of Paſſes, and of Contraband 'Goods, the ſame were alſo ratified with the 'reſt; That this being done, I thought fit to 'certify Mr. Laggerfeldt thereof, which I did 'by Letters not long after; and the Ambaſſador 'having before intimated ſomething of theſe Let-'ters, I thought good to look out the Copies of 'them

Anno 1656.

'them amongſt my Papers, and found nothing 'in them to this purpoſe; but only that his 'Highneſs and the Council had ratified the 'Treaty made by me at Upſal, and had agreed 'that there ſhould be a Liſt of Contraband Goods, 'and a Form of Paſſports which was part of 'that Treaty, but nothing was ſaid in that Let-'ter of the Form of Paſſports, or Liſt of Con-'traband Goods given in to him by the Queen's 'Commiſſioners at Upſal, nor that thoſe were by 'me delivered in here, or that thoſe were agreed 'upon by his Highneſs and the Council.

'That I had not the Honour to be of his 'Highneſs's Council, and that my Commiſſion 'of Ambaſſador was then ended, and that I 'wrote this Letter as a private Man; and if it 'had been as a publick Perſon, yet nothing of 'Weight as to this Matter, could be collected 'out of it, the Words being as I related.

To this the Ambaſſador made no Reply, but gave back the Paper again and ſaid, 'He believed 'that the Lord Whitelocke when he was at Upſal 'would not have inſiſted, that Pitch, and Tar, 'and Hemp, ſhould be accounted prohibited 'Goods.

The Lord Fiennes ſaid, 'He perceived that there 'was much Debate at Upſal concerning theſe 'Points, which occaſioned the Lord Whitelocke 'to refer the Determination of them to the Lord 'Protector and his Council to be determined by 'them here.

I ſaid, 'That indeed there was much Debate 'at Upſal concerning theſe Matters, eſpecially 'about Paſſes, and I thought fit to refer the De-'termination thereof to His Highneſs and the 'Council; and was glad I had done ſo, and the 'more becauſe of the Difficulty now made here 'about them, I did ingenuouſly confeſs that when 'I was in Sweden, England being then in War 'with the Dutch, my Judgment was not to inſiſt 'upon the having of Pitch, &c. to be Contra-'band Goods, but rather that they ſhould not 'be eſteemed ſo; and my Reaſon was becauſe the 'Dutch could have them notwithſtanding, by ſmall 'Veſſels, which ſhould take them in at Ham-'burgh, or have them brought from Lubeck 'moſt part of the way by Water (except about 'twenty Miles by Land) to Hamburgh, and from 'Hamburgh in thoſe Veſſels they could bring 'them down the Elbe, and from thence by the 'Flats which are ſhole Waters full of Sand, on 'the Coaſt of Bremen, and ſo along to Holland 'without going at all into the open Sea, or 'coming within the danger of our Ships which 'could not come among thoſe Flats, nor hinder 'the Dutch from having of thoſe Commodities. 'But on the other Side they could not be brought 'to England but through the wide Sea, where 'they were ſubject to the danger of being inter-'cepted by our Enemies, and if I ſhould then 'have agreed to have them Contraband Goods, 'I conceived the ſame would have hindred Eng-'land's being ſupplied, and not have hindred our 'Enemies having of them. But now, I ſaid, our 'War with Spain had made a great difference as 'to that Matter, becauſe they could not have 'them but through the wide Sea where they muſt 'be brought by us, and we ſhall watch the Con-'veyance of them.

The Lord Fiennes then fell upon the Point of Paſſports, and ſaid, 'That if his Excellency did 'not approve of the Propoſal for the Commiſſi-'oners for the Reſtitution to examine and deter-'mine all Differences upon the bringing in of 'Ships for the future, that then a Form of Paſſ-'ports ſhould within a few Days be ſent unto 'him,' which the Ambaſſador ſeemed to ac-'quieſce in. May.

Then the Lord Fiennes ſaid, 'That his High-'neſs and the Council had likewiſe conſidered the 'Rules which his Excellency had propoſed for 'the Commiſſioners for Reſtitution of Damages 'to walk by, and did apprehend the ſame to be 'very unequal, to make Rules now for Caſes 'that had been formerly adjudged, and to give 'ſuch regard to Certificates to be now procu-'red for Matters long ſince paſt,' and ſaid, 'That 'either from ſome Place in Sweden or Denmark, 'or ſome of thoſe Parts, a Counterfeit Paſs had 'been procured as was proved and confeſſed.

The Ambaſſador ſeemed to be nettled at the mention of a Counterfeit Paſs procured from his Country, and ſaid, 'They did ſo highly value 'their Honour, that if any ſhould do ſuch a thing 'he would not be received in any honeſt Compa-'ny afterwards; and ſaid, that in his Country they 'eſteemed Certificates from good Men, or from 'Magiſtrates of Towns far better Teſtimony than 'Witneſſes upon Oath, if they were not of great 'Quality who did teſtify upon Oath;' and he much inſiſted upon the having of thoſe Rules, and urged the ſame Arguments as formerly.

I ſaid, 'That to give theſe Rules to the Com-'miſſioners were to make a Law with a Retro-'ſpect, and to judge the Cauſe beforehand, but 'it would be more equal to leave the Commiſſi-'oners to judge upon all Circumſtances, and the 'whole Matter to be before them, which would 'not be if they were tied up by Rules, nor 'could they then proceed ſecundum æquum & 'bonum.

The Ambaſſador replied ſomewhat impatiently, 'That he ſhould be glad to know whether his 'Highneſs and the Council did intend, or not (as 'he hoped they did) that Reſtitution ſhould be 'made to thoſe who had ſuffered Damage be-'ing our Friends during our War with the Dutch, 'and that without ſome Rules to be given to the 'Commiſſioners for Reſtitution, it would be im-'poſſible ever to expect any Satisfaction for their 'Damages.

The Lord Fiennes ſaid, 'That it did appear 'that his Highneſs did really intend that a juſt Sa-'tisfaction ſhould be made for any Wrongs done, 'or elſe he would never have conſented to this 'extraordinary way of referring it to Commiſſi-'oners, whereof the one half were to be Swedes, 'to determine thoſe Matters, when he might 'have left thoſe Matters to the ordinary Judica-'tory of the Nation, the Admiralty Court for a 'final Determination.

I ſaid, 'That the Admiralty Court here did 'proceed according to the Law uſed amongſt 'moſt Nations in Europe in Maritime Affairs, 'and was the Judicatory, which both the Eng-'liſh themſelves, and their Friends were to ſub-'mit unto; if they had done any wrong the ſame 'would be now examinable before the Commiſſi-'oners, and the Lord Protector had ſhewed a 'very real Deſire to give Satisfaction to the King 'of Sweden, and to his Subjects, by conſenting to 'have Commiſſioners to determine theſe Matters 'which he might have left, if he had pleaſed, to 'the Ordinary Judicatory of his own People in 'the Court of Admiralty.

The Ambaſſador had ſome other Touches a-bout Contraband Goods, and the Lord Fiennes ſaid, 'That they were informed, that by the Ci-'vil Law, Pitch, and Tar, and Hemp, were ac-'counted Contraband Goods;' wherein White- locke was, not ſo fully ſatisfied as to ſecond him in this Point.

The Ambaſſador ſaid, 'That he wiſhed he 'might have had the Happineſs to have known 'the Mind of his Highneſs and the Council in 'theſe Matters four or five Months agone, that 'then he might have returned to his Maſter, and 'not to have ſtaid ſo long a time here to no 'purpoſe: That he could not now ſtay ſo long 'as to ſend to his Maſter (as the Lord Fiennes 'moved) and to have his Anſwer concerning 'theſe Commodities as to Contraband Goods.

'He likewiſe deſired to be excuſed that he 'could not conſent to a Propoſal on our Part, 'that Rebels Goods, and Prizes being brought 'into each others Harbours ſhould be ſeized up- 'on; and all taking Commiſſions from Charles 'Stuart, or from any Prince or Perſon who was 'not in poſſeſſion of any Territories ſhould be 'taken for Pirates.

I ſaid, 'That there was a clear Difference be- 'tween Enemies and Rebels agreed by Grotius, 'and the ancienter Civilians; that where there is 'an Allegiance, there to take up Arms is Rebel- 'lion; where there is no Allegiance, there they 'are Enemies.

The Lord Fiennes propoſed to leave out the Words Charles Stuart, and to let the Article go generally of taking Commiſſions from any who had no Territories, and agreed the Difference between Rebels and Enemies.

The Ambaſſador ſaid, 'They were all one that 'were in Arms againſt them, that he could not 'conſent to any part of this Article, that if he 'ſhould, it would make many to be their Ene- 'mies which now were not, and thoſe of Dun- 'kirk and Oſtend would fall upon their Ships; 'That Sweden had never meddled with the Dif- 'ferences amongſt us in England, that whatſoever 'was reaſonable in this kind was already ſuffici- 'ently provided for as againſt Rebels and Trai- 'tors, by the Treaty made by the Lord White- 'locke at Upſal.

We came away appointing to meet with the Ambaſſador again on Tueſday next.

June, 1656.

June 14. The Swediſh Ambaſſador was now in hopes that we ſhould agree, having had Audience of the Protector, and received much Kindneſs from him, and had ſome Diſcourſe with the Protector about the great Buſineſs of the Proteſtant Intereſt, and hoped that ſomething might be done in it.

Portugal. 19. Letters that the Peace between us and Portugal was now lately confirmed there; and the Money paid according to the Treaty.

July, 1656.

July 10. The full Ratification of the Treaty with Portugal was this Day preſented to his Highneſs.

Parliament. The Lords Commiſſioners of the Great Seal, ſitting at the Temple, ſealed the Writs of Summons for a Parliament to meet the 17th of September.

Mrs. Barlow. The Protector by Warrant to Sir John Barkſtead Lieutenant of the Tower diſcharged Mrs. Lucy Barlow from Impriſonment; ſhe had a young Son with her, which ſhe publickly declared to be King Charles's Son, and that ſhe was his Wife. The Officers found a Grant when ſhe was apprehended, ſigned Charles R. by which ſhe had an Annuity or yearly Penſion of 5000 Livres granted to her for her Life, with an Aſſurance to better the ſame when it ſhould pleaſe God to reſtore him to his Kingdoms; and it was ſubſcribed by his Majeſty's Command, Edward Nicholas.

17. The Lord Fiennes, Strickland, and I, met at the Swediſh Ambaſſador's Houſe, where we ſigned and ſealed the Treaty agreed on both Parts; and concerning the carrying of Pitch and Tar, &c. to Spain, during our War with them, there was a ſingle Article that the King of Sweden ſhould be moved to give Order for the prohibiting of it, and a kind of Undertaking that it ſhould be done. It was very late before we had done ſigning of them, The Protector gave a Commiſſion under the Great Seal to the Lord Fiennes, Strickland, and my ſelf, to treat and conclude with the Ambaſſador, which Commiſſion was then read at the ſigning of the Articles; as was the Commiſſion of the King of Sweden under the Great Seal of Sweden to the Ambaſſador, giving him Power to treat and conclude.

25. The Swediſh Ambaſſador having taken his leave of the Protector, received great Civilities and Reſpects from him, and afterwards dined with him at Hampton-Court, and hunted with him. The Protector beſtowed the Dignity of Knighthood upon one of his Gentlemen Sir Guſtavus Du Vale, the Mareſchal.

Auguſt, 1656.

Auguſt 13. The Ambaſſador of Sweden dined at Sir George Ayſcough's Houſe in Surrey, where they had very noble Entertainment: The Houſe ſtands environed with Ponds, Motes, and Water like a Ship at Sea, a Fancy the fitter for the Maſter's Humour, who is himſelf ſo great a Seaman; there he ſaid, he had caſt Anchor; and intended to ſpend the reſt of his Life in a private Retirement. Sir George Aſcue

The Ambaſſador underſtanding the Abilities of Sir George in Sea Affairs, did (according to his Cuſtom) endeavour to improve his own Knowledge by his Diſcourſes and Queſtions to the Company, according to their ſeveral Capacities and Abilities; he therefore found many Queſtions to demand of Sir George, and had much Diſcourſe with him about Sea Matters, and particularly concerning our Engliſh Frigats; he was very inquiſitive to know of Sir George, 'Whether he 'eſteemed them the beſt of any ſort of Ships for 'fight;' Sir George anſwered freely, 'That he 'did not eſteem them the beſt Ships for fight, 'but held the old faſhioned Engliſh Ships of the 'biggeſt Rate beſt for fight,' and being asked his Reaſon, ſaid 'Becauſe they were ſtronger 'than the Frigats, would endure the ſhaking of 'their own Guns, and the Blows of the Enemies 'Guns better than the Frigats could, and were 'firm, and like a Caſtle in the Sea, and not ſo 'eaſy to be boarded as the Frigats, being higher 'built.

The Ambaſſador replied, 'That they them- 'ſelves could not ſo eaſily board another Ship be- 'ing ſo high built;' Sir George anſwered, 'That 'when they came to boarding, they that aſſailed 'had not ſo great a trouble of going down their 'own Ship, as going up to the Enemy's, and the 'high building was no hindrance to their board- 'ing of another, but was the better defence for 'themſelves.

The Ambaſſador alſo objected, 'That they 'could not ſo eaſily come about, and fetch up 'another Ship as the Frigats could:' Sir George anſwered, 'That they could eaſily enough tack

Anno 1656. 'about upon any occaſion in fight, but confeſſed, that they could not ſo ſoon fetch up 'another Ship, nor take or leave as the Frigats 'could, which he ſaid, was rather an Inducement 'to Cowardiſe than Courage; and ſome Captains, 'when they knew they could leave an Enemy as 'they pleaſed, would engage in the fewer Blows; 'whereas the old built Ships muſt ſtand to it, 'and the Men knowing that there was no run-'ning away, would have the better mettle to 'fight it out.'

The Ambaſſador asked, 'Which would laſt 'longeſt, the Ships built after the old faſhion, 'or the Frigats.' Sir George anſwered, 'that the 'old Building was more ſtrong and ſubſtantial, 'than the Building of the Frigats, which were 'made long and light for Sailing, and therefore 'could not laſt ſo long as the other; and they 'carrying many Guns, and being thus made, 'their own Guns did much ſhake and wear them 'more than the Guns of the others did.'

They had much Diſcourſe of this nature, which added pleaſure to the Entertainment. In his return home, the Ambaſſador went into Hampton-Court to take his leave of the Lady Elizabeth Cleypoole and her Siſters, where he was received with much ſtate.

I received the following Letter.

Honoured Sir,

THE twentieth of Auguſt being appointed at Bucks for the electing of Members to ſerve in Parliament for our County, out of that long experience we have had of your ſuitable Qualifications for that purpoſe, are emboldened earneſtly to deſire that you would vouchſafe your Preſence at the George in Aylesbury the day before the Election, where we ſhall be ready to perform our due reſpects and ſervice, by which you will engage amongſt many others,

Sir, your moſt humble Servants.

This was Subſcribed at the Seſſions, by the Juſtices of Peace, and by the Grand Jury and many Gentlemen, and Freeholders of quality.

At the Election of the Knights of the Shire for Bucks, my Friends marched into Bucks one thouſand Horſe, and were in the Field above three thouſand; ſo that I was firſt and unanimouſly elected, and with me Colonel Ingoldsby, Sir Richard Piggott, Mr. Hambden and Mr. Granvill.

Sweden. 16. Letters came to the Swediſh Ambaſſador of his Maſter's great Victory, obtained againſt the King of Poland.

20. The Swediſh Ambaſſador deſigned to have gone away this Day, but his Jewel and other Preſent of twelve hundred Pounds worth of white Cloth which the Protector gave him, not being ready, he was well contented to ſtay for them; and they were now reſolved to be beſtowed on him, ſince the news of his Maſter's great Victory againſt the King of Poland.

23. The Ambaſſador having been yeſterday to take his laſt leave of the Protector, who gave him his Preſent, and Compliments ſufficient beſides, and an ample Paſs under his Highneſs's own Hand and Seal, than which nothing more could be demanded or expected, the Ambaſſador was this Day to go to Graveſend, and the Lord Strickland, and Sir Gilbert Pickering were appointed by the Council to accompany the Ambaſſador to the Water-ſide; the Protector's Coaches and many other Coaches were appointed to conduct him in State to the Tower Wharf, where the Protector's Barges were attending upon him. The Ambaſſador wore the rich Jewel which the Protector gave him, tied with a blue Ribbon to his Button-holes; the Jewel was his Highneſs's Picture in a caſe of Gold, about the bigneſs of a five Shillings Piece of Silver, ſet round the caſe with ſixteen fair Diamonds, each Diamond valued at ſixty Pounds, in all worth about one thouſand Pounds. Septemb.

September, 1656.

September 3. The Protector and his Council kept a ſolemn Day of Thankſgiving for the two Victories obtained at Dunbar, and Worceſter, on this day of the Month.

Letters from Bergenopzome, from Sir John Holland of good advice.

I kept Sir Thomas Cotton off from being Sheriff of Bedfordſhire, being obliged to him for the freedom of his excellent Library.

I received this Letter from Sir William Davenant.

My Lord,

WHEN I conſider the nicety of the Times, I fear it may draw a Curtain between your Lordſhip and our Opera; therefore I have preſumed to ſend your Lordſhip, hot from the Preſs, what we mean to repreſent; making your Lordſhip my ſupreme Judge, though I deſpair to have the Honour of inviting you to be a Spectator. I do not conceive the peruſal of it worthy any part of your Lordſhip's leiſure, unleſs your antient relation to the Muſes make you not unwilling to give a little entertainment to Poetry; though in ſo mean a dreſs as this and coming from, my Lord,

Your Lordſhip's,

moſt obedient Servant,

William Davenant.

17. This being the Day appointed for the meeting of the Parliament, the Protector and the Members of Parliament came to the Abbey Church at Weſtminſter, where they heard a Sermon preached by Dr. John Owen Vice-Chancellor of the Univerſity of Oxford; after Sermon his Highneſs and the Members went to the Painted-Chamber, where he made a Speech to them, and then they went to the Houſe; upon their going in, the Members received Certificates in this form. Parliament.

County of Bucks.

THESE are to Certify, that is returned by Indenture one of the Knights to ſerve in this preſent Parliament for the ſaid County, and approved by his Highneſs's Council.

17 Sept. 1656. Nath. Tayler Clerk of the Commonwealth in Chancery.

Sir Thomas Widdrington was choſen Speaker.

18. The Houſe reſolved to keep a Faſt-day on Wedneſday next, and they appointed a Committee to prepare a Declaration for a General Faſt throughout the three Nations.

They appointed Grand Committees, for Elections, Religion, Grievances, Courts of Juſtice, and for Trade. Committees.

A Bill was read for renouncing, and diſannulling the pretended Title of Charles Stuart.

19. The ſame Bill was read the ſecond time.

22. Some

Anno 1656.

22. Some Amendments to this Bill for renouncing, &c. were reported to the Houſe from the Committee, and agreed; and the Bill ordered to be ingroſſed.

A Report being made to the Houſe from the Council of the Reaſons why ſome Perſons returned for Members were not admitted into the Houſe; upon the Queſtion, it was Reſolved, That thoſe Perſons ſhould make their application to the Council for approbation.

Upon which ſeveral of the Members that were choſen to ſerve in Parliament, and not approved by the Council, publiſhed a Remonſtrance in theſe Words;

WHEN our worthy Anceſtors have been met in Parliament, and have found Oppreſſion and Tyranny ſupported by ſuch ſtrong hands, that they could not prevail to ſecure their Countries, Lives and Liberties by wholeſom Laws, they have often made their Proteſtations againſt the Injuſtice and Oppreſſion, and forewarn'd the People of their Danger. To omit other Inſtances, ſo did the Commons in Parliament in the third and fourth Year of the late King, when he challenged a Power to take Tonnage and Poundage without the Peoples conſent in Parliament, they made their Proteſtation, *That whoſoever ſhould counſel or adviſe the levying of Tonnage and Poundage for the King, not being granted him by the Parliament, or ſhould act or be an Inſtrument therein, ſhould be reputed a capital Enemy to the Kingdom and Commonwealth: And alſo that whatſoever Merchant or other Perſon ſhould voluntarily yield or pay Tonnage or Poundage, not being granted by Parliament, ſhould be reputed a Betrayer of the Liberties of England, and an Enemy to the ſame.

* See the Parliament's Journals on Monday March the 2*d.* 1628.

In like manner we who have been duly choſen by the People to be Members of the Parliament that ſhould now have met, and have an undoubted Right to meet, ſit, and vote in Parliament; although we are oppreſſed by force of Arms, and ſhut out of the uſual Place of Parliaments ſitting, yet having Hearts ſenſible of that higheſt Truſt repoſed in us, and being filled with Cares for the Church and Commonwealth, which with grief of heart we behold bleeding, we do hold our ſelves bound in duty to God and our Country, to declare unto the People of England their and our woful Condition, and the moſt evident danger of the utter ſubverſion of Religion, Liberty, Right, and Property.

We believe the Rumour is now gone through the Nation, that armed Men imployed by the Lord Protector have prevented the free Meeting and Sitting of the intended Parliament, and have forcibly ſhut out of Doors ſuch Members as he and his Council ſuppoſed would not be frighted, or flattered to betray their Country, and give up their Religion, Lives and Eſtates to be at his will, to ſerve his lawleſs Ambition. But we fear that the Slavery, Rapines, Oppreſſions, Cruelties, Murders and Confuſions that are comprehended in this one horrid Fact, are not ſo ſenſibly diſcerned, or ſo much laid to heart as the Caſe requires; And we doubt not but, as the common practice of the Man hath been, the name of God, and Religion, and formal Faſts and Prayers, will be made uſe of to colour over the blackneſs of the Fact, we do therefore in faithfulneſs unto God, and our Country hereby Remonſtrate;

Firſt, That whereas by the fundamental Laws of this Nation, the People ought not to be bound by any Laws but ſuch as are freely conſented unto by their choſen Deputies in Parliament, and it is a moſt wicked Uſurpation, even againſt the very Laws of Nature, for any Man to impoſe his will or diſcretion upon another as a Rule, unleſs there be ſome Pact, or Agreement between the Parties for that Intent. And whereas by the Mercy of God only in preſerving this fundamental Law and Liberty, the good People of England have beyond Memory of any Record preſerved their Eſtates, Families and Lives, which had otherwiſe been deſtroyed, at the will of every wicked Tyrant; and by keeping this only, as their undoubted Right, they have been kept from being brutiſh Slaves to the Luſts of their Kings, who would otherwiſe have deſpoiled them of their Perſons, Lives and Eſtates, by their Proclamations, and the Orders of themſelves, and their Courtiers as they pleaſed: and by Virtue of this their undoubted Right the People have commonly diſputed, reſiſted, and made void the Proclamations of their Kings, and the Orders of their Council Table, where they have croſſed the Laws unto which they have conſented in their Parliaments. Septemb.

Now the Lord Protector hath by force of Arms invaded this Fundamental Right and Liberty, and violently prevented the meeting of the People choſen Deputies in Parliament. And he and his Council boldly declare, That none of the Peoples Deputies ſhall meet in Parliament, unleſs they agree to the meaſure of their Phantaſies, Humours, or Luſts; They now render the People ſuch Fools or Beaſts, as know not who are fit to be truſted by them with their Lives, Eſtates, and Families. But he and his Council that daily devour their Eſtates, and Liberties, will judge who are fit to counſel and adviſe about Laws to preſerve their Eſtates and Liberties: thus doth he now openly aſſume a Power to pack an Aſſembly of his Confidents, Paraſites, and Confederates, and to call them a Parliament, that he may thence pretend that the People have conſented to become his Slaves, and to have their Perſons and Eſtates at his diſcretion. And if the People ſhall tamely ſubmit to ſuch a Power, who can doubt but he may pack ſuch a number as will obey all his Commands, and conſent to his taking of what part of our Eſtates he pleaſeth, and to impoſe what Yokes he thinks fit to make us draw in.

Secondly, And whereas the Parliament of England, conſiſting of the Peoples choſen Deputies, always have been, and ought to be the Ordainers, and Creators of Dignities, Offices, and Authorities in this Nation, and have always of right exerciſed the Power of diſpoſing even the Kingly Office, and authority of enlarging and reſtraining the Kingly Power, and of queſtioning, making void, or confirming all Commiſſions, Proclamations, Charters, and Patents of any of our former Kings; And have queſtioned, cenſured, and judged even the Perſons of our Kings for abuſing their Truſts, and invading the Peoples Laws, Rights and Liberties; and by this means the higheſt Officers, and the Kings themſelves have acknowledged their Power to be only truſted to them for the Peoples welfare; and they have always dreaded the Peoples Parliaments who could call them to an Account for any Injuſtice, or Violence done upon the Perſon, or Eſtate of any Man; and hereby the People were ſecured under the Laws from the Rapine, and Oppreſſion of the higheſt Grandees, and Courtiers; even the Kings themſelves, fearing the Peoples Complaints in their Parliaments, and well knowing the Peoples Cuſtom to chooſe for their Deputies the moſt known Champions for their Liberties, againſt the Arbitrary Powers, and Injuſtice of the Kings and their Courtiers; and none of the moſt wicked Kings in their higheſt hope to erect a Tyranny, ever daring ſince Members were ſent to Parliaments by Elections, to throw aſide by force as many of the choſen Members as they thought would not ſerve their Ends; they knowing it to be the undoubted Right of the People to truſt whom they think fit, and as much the Right of every Man duly choſen and truſted to meet and vote in Parliament without asking their leave or begging their Tickets. And although here hath been frequently ſecret Deſigns for many Years to ſubvert Religion, Liberty and Property in this Nation, and to that end the deſigns of Tyranny have attempted to deſtroy, ſometimes the Being, and ſometimes the Power, Privileges and Freedom of Parliaments, yet the Mercy of God hath almoſt miraculouſly preſerved the Being, Privileges, and Authority of Parliaments, and therein Religion, Liberty, and Property, until the time of the Lord Protector.

But now he hath aſſumed an abſolute Arbitrary Sovereignty (as if he came down from the Throne of God) to create in himſelf, and his Confederates ſuch Powers and Authorities, as muſt not be under the Cognizance of the Peoples Parliaments. His Proclamations he declares ſhall be binding Laws to Parliaments themſelves, he takes upon him to be above the whole Body of the People of England, and to judge and cenſure the whole Body, and every Member of it, by no other Rule or Law than his pleaſure, as if he were their abſolute Lord, and had bought all the People of England for his Slaves. Doubtleſs if he would pretend only to have conquered England at his own Expence, and were there as much Truth as there is Falſehood in that pretence, yet he could not but know that the Right of the Peoples Deputies in Parliament to their ancient Powers and Privileges would remain good againſt him, as againſt their publick capital Enemy, whom every Man ought to deſtroy, until by ſome Agreement with the Body of the People in Parliament, ſome ſort of governing Power in him were ſubmitted unto, that hereby he might ceaſe to be a publick Enemy and Deſtroyer, and become a King or Governor according to the Conditions accepted by the People, and if he would ſo pretend, he could not be ſo diſcharged from his publick Enmity by any Conditions or Agreement made with a part of the Peoples choſen Deputies, whilſt he ſhut out the other part; for no part of the Repreſentative body are truſted to conſent to any thing in the Nations behalf, if the whole have not their free Liberty of debating, and voting in the matters propounded. If he would pretend no higher than to be our Conqueror, who for Peace and his own Safety's ſake was content to ceaſe from being a publick Enemy, and to be admitted a Governor, he could not compaſs thoſe ends by forcibly excluding (as now he hath done) whom he pleaſed of the Repreſentative body of the People, who were to ſubmit to him in the Peoples behalf; therefore either takes upon him to be ſuch a Conqueror as ſcorns the Peoples acceptance of him by their Repreſentative as their Governor, and fears not to remain a publick Enemy, or elſe he takes himſelf to be ſuch an unheard of Sovereign that againſt him the People have no Claim of Right, or Property in themſelves, or any thing elſe; for he hath now declared that the Peoples choice cannot give any Man a Right to ſit in Parliament, but the Right muſt be derived from his gracious Will and Pleaſure, with that of his Counſellors; And his Clerks Ticket only muſt be their Evidence for it. Thus hath he exalted himſelf to a Throne like unto God's, as if he were of himſelf, and his Power from himſelf, and we were all made for him, to be commanded and diſpoſed of by him, to work for him, and ſerve his Pleaſure and Ambition.

Seeing therefore this total Subverſion of all Law and Right, and the Diſtractions, Miſeries, Blood and Confuſions, that will be the moſt certain Conſequences of it; And withal remembring the late Effuſion of Blood upon no other Account than to ſecure Religion, Liberty and Property, and the Freedom, Power and Privileges of Parliaments, as the Bulwarks thereof; and that by thoſe very Hands who now overturn the very Foundations of all Liberty, Right and Property, and of the beings of Parliaments; and our very Souls trembling at the loud Cries of that Sea of Blood, and at the horrid Clamours of the many falſified Oaths and Promiſes made upon the ſame Account.

Septemb.

For the acquitting of our own Souls, in the faithful diſcharge of our Duties to our Country, in ſuch manner as we are capable under the high Oppreſſion, we do hereby moſt ſolemnly remonſtrate and proteſt unto all the good People of England;

Firſt, That the violent Excluſion by any Governor, or pretended Governor of any of the Peoples choſen Deputies, from doing their Duties, and executing their Truſt freely in Parliaments, doth change the ſtate of the People from Freedom unto a meer Slavery: And that whoſoever hath adviſed, aſſiſted, or adhered unto the Lord Protector in ſo doing, is a capital Enemy to the Commonwealth; and our Anceſtors have ſo declared, and adjudged the Adviſers of ſome of our Kings to Attempts not ſo deſtructive, or dangerous, as this of his; In the 11th Year of Richard the ſecond, Chief Juſtice Treſilian and Juſtice Blake were condemned of High Treaſon by the Parliament, and executed at Tyburn, chiefly for adviſing the King that he might when he pleaſed diſſolve the Parliament, and command the Members to depart under the penalty of Treaſon. And we believe every Man can diſcern how much it is more miſchievous for a King, or any other to command 100, 200, or 300 of the Members to depart, and to call the reſt a Parliament, to give countenance to his Oppreſſion.

See and compare the 11th Rich. 2. with 21 of Rich. 2. chap. 12. And the 1 Hen. 4. chap. 3. 4.

If our Kings might have commanded away from the Parliaments, all ſuch Perſons of Conſcience, Wiſdom, and Honour, as could not be corrupted, frighted, nor cozened by them to betray their Country, our Anceſtors could not have left us either Liberties, or Eſtates to defend.

Secondly, We do farther likwiſe proteſt, that all ſuch choſen Members for a Parliament as ſhall take upon them to approve of the forcible Excluſion of other choſen Members, or ſhall ſit, vote and act by the name of the Parliament of England, while to their knowledge many of the choſen Members are ſo by force ſhut out, we ſay ſuch ought to be reputed Betrayers of the Liberties of England, and Adherents to the capital Enemies of the Commonwealth.

Thirdly, We do hereby farther proteſt, that the preſent Aſſembly at Weſtminſter is not the Repreſentative Body of England, and alſo that they ſit under the daily awe, and terror of the Lord Protector's armed Men, not daring to conſult, or debate freely the great Concernments of their Country; nor daring to oppoſe his Uſurpation, and Oppreſſion; and that therefore until there can be a free Parliament, we do proteſt againſt all ſuch Votes, Orders, Ordinances, or Laws as ſhall be pretended to be made, or enacted by the preſent Aſſembly at Weſtminſter, as being null, and void in themſelves, and of no legal effect, or power: Neither can any of them according to the Laws of God, or the fundamental Conſtitutions of our Country, be impoſed upon any Man; neither can Tax or Tallage be juſtly, or lawfully raiſed by them.

And to avoid all further vain Pretences of a Neceſſity at preſent to act in extraordinary Ways for preſent Safety, we do further declare, that a free Parliament is the only Judge of ſuch Dangers and Neceſſities of this Commonwealth, as may warrant any extraordinary acting beſides or againſt the Laws; and if the Kingly Power that was in England were lawfully ſettled in the Lord Protector, yet he had no colour of Right to judge of the Caſes of Neceſſity, that ſhould make it lawful for him to tranſgreſs

Anno 1656. the known Laws; but by the known Judgment of Parliaments, thoſe that ſhould ſo adviſe him were guilty of High-Treaſon.

We do therefore appeal unto God, and all the good People of England for Aſſiſtance, and Protection in their Service, hereby declaring our Readineſs and earneſt Deſires to attend upon our Country's Service, to expoſe our Lives and Eſtates to the uttermoſt Hazards therein, to prevent the Ruin and Confuſion that now threatens it; if it ſhall pleaſe God to enable them to redeem themſelves from the preſent Oppreſſion, that their choſen Deputies may meet and conſult how to advance the Glory of God, promote the true Religion, and provide for the Safety, Liberty, Peace and Happineſs of the Commonwealth; and in the Interim we ſhall endeavour to pour out our ſad Complaints before the Lord againſt our powerful Oppreſſors, humbly hoping that he will come forth ſpeedily to redeem his People out of the hands of wicked and deceitful Men.

2. Applications by the Doctors and other Civilians, for keeping up their Profeſſion.

4. The Earl of Abercorne ſolicited upon his Petition in Parliament.

James Naylor. 6. James Naylor was ſent for and heard at the Bar of the Houſe; it was thought by many that he was too fiercely proſecuted by ſome rigid Men.

8. The Houſe reſolved, That James Naylor is guilty of horrid Blaſphemy, and that he is a grand Impoſtor, and a great Seducer of the People.

The Bill to take away Purveyance, and another for Navigation were read.

13. Several Members ſpake to make an end of the Buſineſs of James Naylor, which had taken up too much of their time.

Mr. Speaker. 17. Mr. Speaker by order of the Houſe pronounced Judgment againſt James Naylor to ſtand in the Pillory two hours at Weſtminſter, to be Sentence. whipped by the Hangman through the Streets from Weſtminſter to the Old Exchange, and there to ſtand in the Pillory two hours more, and that his Tongue be bored through with a hot Iron, and that he be ſtigmatized in the Forehead with the Letter B. and that he be afterwards ſent to Briſtol, and conveyed through the City on a Horſe bare-ridged, and his Face backward, and there likewiſe whipped in the Market-place.

And that from thence he ſhould be brought to London, and committed to Priſon in Bridewell, and there to be reſtrained from all Company, and kept to hard Labour till he ſhall be releaſed by Parliament, and during that time to be debarred from the uſe of Pen, Ink and Paper; and to have no Relief but what he earns by his Labour.

23. The Houſe were debating how to provide Money for the War with Spain, whilſt ſome Members took Liberty of Abſence.

24. The Peace between this Commonwealth and Portugal proclaimed. Febr.

27. Mr. Speaker being come to the Houſe, and the Houſe taking notice of the Weakneſs of his Body, it was reſolved by the Parliament, that, in reſpect of Mr. Speaker's preſent Indiſpoſition of Body, the Lord Commiſſioner Whitelocke, be deſired to take the Chair to ſupply the Speaker's Place during his Abſence. Speaker.

I was brought to the Chair by Colonel Sydenham and Major General Howard, and being there ſet, deſired, ſince the Houſe was pleaſed to command my Service in that Place on this occaſion, that they would be pleaſed to conſtrue with all Candour my Words and Actions therein; and that they will give me a Freedom of minding them, and keeping them to the Orders of the Houſe, for the Service and Honour of the Houſe.

Reſolved, That thoſe Ceremonies and Reſpects that were uſed to the former Speaker, ſhall be uſed to the preſent Speaker; and that he have the Profits due to the Speaker. Reſolutions.

30. The Houſe reſolved that the Sum of 400000*l.* ſhall be raiſed for the carrying on the War with Spain.

February, 1656.

Letters from Mr. Talbot for my Opinion in matter of Antiquity, relating to that Family of Talbot.

6. There was a great meeting of learned Men at my Houſe at Cheliey, by an Order of the Houſe made before I was Speaker. The Order was thus.

Jan. 16. At the Grand Committee for Religion.

Ordered, That it be referred to a Sub-committee to ſend for and adviſe with Dr. Walton, Mr. Hughes, Mr. Caſtle, Mr. Clark, Mr. Poulk, Dr. Cudworth, and ſuch others as they ſhall think fit, and to conſider of the Tranſlations and Impreſſions of the Bible, and to offer their Opinions therein to this Committee; and that it be eſpecially commended to the Lord Commiſſioner Whitelocke to take care of this Buſineſs. Bible.

This Committee often met at my Houſe and had the moſt learned Men in the Oriental Tongues to conſult with in this great Buſineſs, and divers excellent, and learned Obſervations of ſome miſtakes in the Tranſlations of the Bible in Engliſh; which yet was agreed to be the beſt of any Tranſlation in the World; I took pains in it, but it became fruitleſs by the Parliament's Diſſolution.

7. Appointed for the reading of private Bills, in favour of me the preſent Speaker.

9. Syndercomb was tried at the Upper Bench Bar, found guilty, and condemned to be hanged, drawn, and quartered. The Court declared, that by the common Law, to compaſs or imagine the Death of the chief Magiſtrate, by what name ſoever he was called, whether Lord Protector, or otherwiſe, is High Treaſon, and that the Statute 25 Ed. III. was only declaratory of the Common Law. Synder-comb.

Application touching the Reformation of Cloathing.

12. Letter from Monſieur Dugard in Latin to me about the reforming of ſome Miſtakes in the Engliſh Tranſlation of the Bible.

16. Many private Bills were paſſed.

Dr. Walton publiſhed the Polyglot Bible. Polyglot.

18. Sir

Anno 1656.

18. Sir Thomas Widdrington being informed of the great favour of the Parliament to me their Speaker during his Abſence, and the Intereſt I had gained in the Houſe, and that ſeveral private Bills were ready to paſs, and particularly for naturalizing of many Strangers, and every one of them was to pay 5 l. to the Speaker for his Fee, which I would receive in caſe Sir Thomas Widdrington did not take his Place again before the paſſing of thoſe Bills; he being deſirous of the Money, though to the hazard of his Life, came again to the Houſe and took his Place, though very weak and feeble.

My Friends were apprehenſive of the hard meaſure I had in being thus defeated, and they were ſenſible of my Pains and Dexterity in managing the Buſineſs of the Houſe, wherein I had given them great Content, and ſaid, That in the ſhort time of my being Speaker, by my holding them to the Points in debate, They had diſpatched more Buſineſs than in all the time before of their ſitting; They moved the Houſe on the behalf of me, and theſe Votes were unanimouſly paſſed.

Votes. Reſolved upon the Queſtion by the Parliament, that the Lord Whitelocke have the Thanks of the Houſe for his great and faithful Service in the Buſineſs of this Houſe as Speaker during the Abſence of the preſent Speaker.

Then ſome of my Friends acquainted the Houſe that I had not yet received 500 l. part of the Arrears due to me upon my Ambaſſy to Sweden, nor any Reward at all for that great and hazardous Service, which was ſo much to the Benefit of this Commonwealth; whereupon theſe Votes were alſo unanimouſly paſſed;

Votes. Reſolved upon the Queſtion by the Parliament, That the Sum of 500 l. expended by the Lord Commiſſioner Whitelocke in his Ambaſſy into Sweden, over and above what he hath received, ſhall be forthwith paid unto him.

Reſolved upon the Queſtion by the Parliament, That the Sum of 2000 l. be paid unto the Lord Commiſſioner Whitelocke over and above the ſaid 500 l. in reſpect of his great and faithful Service to the Publick in that Ambaſſy.

Ordered by the Parliament, that the Lords Commiſſioners for the Treaſury be required to pay the ſaid ſeveral Sums accordingly.

Reſolved upon the Queſtion by the Parliament, That the Lord Commiſſioner Whitelocke have the Thanks of this Houſe for his great Service in that ambaſſy.

The Speaker by Command of the Houſe did give me (ſtanding in his Place) the Thanks of the Houſe for my great and faithful Service in that hazardous Voyage, undertaken by me as Ambaſſador to Sweden, and likewiſe for my readineſs and faithfulneſs in the Service of this Houſe as Speaker, in the Abſence of the preſent Speaker.

The Money was accordingly paid to me not long after, though when the ſame was voted by the former Parliament I received no part of it; but the Protector, and ſome of my Ill-willers about him were not pleaſed with this extraordinary Favour of the Parliament to me; yet I attended with the Speaker and the Members of the Parliament at Whitehall, upon his Highneſs after the Sermon, and was with the reſt nobly entertained by him at Dinner, upon the Day of Thankſgiving for his Highneſs's Deliverance from the intended Murther of him, by Syndercomb and his Aſſociates.

23. I endeavoured to promote the great Buſineſs of Settlement of the Nation; and a Faſt appointed to be kept within the Houſe.

March.

March, 1656.

March 1. Applications to me by Sir Francis Wortley in a Buſineſs in Parliament, and in the Buſineſs touching Recuſants, and about making of Salt, and in the Caſe of Mr. Hanſon a Merchant of London.

9. Applications to me about the Civilians, to be the Judges of the Admiralty, and for Probate of Wills.

10. Applications to me about the Church of the Walloons in Norwich.

12. Applications to me about Viſitors of the Univerſity of Oxford.

I furthered the Bill for ſettling the Company of Merchant-Adventurers. Bills.

13. I furthered a Bill for a Market in Lincolns-Inn Fields, and the Bill for mitigating the Foreſt Laws, and Preſervation of the Timber in the Foreſt of Dean.

14. I had an Account prepared for the Houſe of the whole Year's Diſburſements for the Land and Sea Forces, and Government.

15. Applications to me touching the Earl of Bedford's Buildings in Covent-Garden.

19. I was much imployed in the great Buſineſs of the Settlement of the Nation.

20. I aſſiſted to procure a Charter for the Town of Marleborough in the County of Wilts.

26. I furthered a Bill for Prices of Wines.

27. I aſſiſted for paſſing an Act of Indemnity.

31. I aſſiſted in paſſing a Bill to buy Impropriations to maintain Miniſters.

April, 1657.

April 2. Applications made to me in a Buſineſs in Parliament by the Lord Fitz-William.

3. I furthered a Bill for the Maintenance of Miniſters in Briſtol.

4. The Parliament had been long about the Settlement of the Nation, and had framed a Writing which they ſtiled, The humble Petition and Advice of the Parliament of England, Scotland, and Ireland to his Highneſs, The firſt Buſineſs of it was for the Protector to have the Title of King, This Petition and Advice was preſented to his Highneſs by the Houſe; and he deſired that a Committee might be appointed to confer with him about it; which was named, and I being one of the Committee, was made Chairman. When the Committee attended his Highneſs, I ſpake to him upon the point of the Title of King, giving Reaſons why he ſhould accept of that Title; The Protector urged his Reaſons againſt it, and I replied. The whole Debate is in Print. Title of King.

5. This Day I reported to the Houſe the Paſſages when our Committee attended his Highneſs.

6. Referred to a Committee to conſider what was fit further to offer to the Protector in the great Buſineſs; this was the former Committee; they attended his Highneſs, and he appointed the next Day for them to come again to him.

9. A Plot diſcovered by the Vigilancy of Thurloe, of an intended Inſurrection by Major-General Harriſon, and many of the Fifth-Monarchy-Men. Plot. Harriſon.

11. I reported to the Houſe the Committee's waiting upon the Protector, but that the new diſcover'd Plot hindred their Proceedings at that time.

12. Applications to me by the Officers in behalf of the Army in Ireland.

13. Appli-

Anno. 1657.

13. Applications to me in behalf of the Company of Vintners.

The Committee offered their Reaſons to the Protector in the great Buſineſs.

14. I acquainted the Houſe with the Paſſages yeſterday betwixt his Highneſs and the Committee about the Title of King.

16. I moved the Houſe for their Committee to meet again with his Highneſs, which was ordered; they attended, but the Protector being buſy in examining the new Plot, they were put off to another Day.

Title of King.

20. Upon my Motion the Committee were ordered again to attend his Highneſs. The Protector was ſatisfied in his private Judgment that it was fit for him to take upon him the Title of King, and Matters were prepared in order thereunto; but afterwards by Solicitation of the Commonwealth's Men, and fearing a Mutiny and Defection of a great part of the Army in caſe he ſhould aſſume that Title and Office, his Mind changed; and many of the Officers of the Army gave out high Threatnings againſt him in caſe he ſhould do it; he therefore thought beſt to attend ſome better Seaſon and Opportunity in this Buſineſs, and refuſed it at this time, with great ſeeming Earneſtneſs.

Title of King refuſed.

21. I acquainted the Houſe that his Highneſs had ſome things to offer to the Committee in a Paper, and deſired them to meet him this Afternoon; whereupon the Houſe adjourned till to-morrow, and the Committee met his Highneſs.

22. I reported to the Houſe the Committee's Attendance upon his Highneſs Yeſterday, who offered to us a Paper of Particulars touching ſeveral things in the humble Petition and Advice; and that the Committee are preparing a Report of the whole Buſineſs; thereupon the Houſe adjourned till to-morrow.

23. All the Members in Weſtminſter being ſent for into the Houſe, I made the Report of the whole Proceedings of the Committee with his Highneſs touching the Title of King, with the Protector's Anſwers, and Papers given in by him to the Committee; which I read, and afterwards the Clerk read them again, and the Debate of this great Buſineſs was adjourned.

27. The Houſe were buſy in debating the laſt Report made by me in the Buſineſs of the Title of King.

28. They proceeded in the ſame Debate.

29. They came to ſome Reſolutions in that Debate, which were not all pleaſing to his Highneſs.

May 1657.

Petition and Advice.

May 1. The Committee of Parliament where I had the Chair, according to the Order of the Houſe attended the Protector, and acquainted him, that the Houſe had now perfected their Anſwer to the Papers formerly delivered by his Highneſs to the Committee, who now attended him with the Parliament's Anſwer: His Highneſs told the Committee that he would take the Particulars of this Anſwer into conſideration, and as ſoon as might be, he would return his Anſwer.

I declined the firſt delivery of the Petition and Advice to the Parliament, not liking ſeveral things in it; but Sir Chriſtopher Packe, to gain Honour, preſented it firſt to the Houſe: and then the Lord Broghil, Glyn, I and others, put it forward.

Protector.

2. The Protector often adviſed about this and other great Buſineſſes with the Lord Broghil, Pierepoint, my ſelf, Sir Charles Wolſeley and Thurloe, and would be ſhut up three or four Hours together in private diſcourſe, and none were admitted to come in to him; he would ſometimes be very chearful with us, and laying aſide his Greatneſs, he would be exceeding familiar with us, and by way of diverſion, would make Verſes with us, and every one muſt try his Faney; he commonly called for Tobacco, Pipes, and a Candle, and would now and then take Tobacco himſelf; then he would fall again to his ſerious and great Buſineſs, and adviſe with us in thoſe Affairs; and this he did often with us, and our Counſel was accepted and followed by him, in moſt of his greateſt Affairs. May.

Queen of Sweden.

3. The Sieur Phillipi Paſſerini being ſent by the Queen of Sweden to the Protector with Letters Credential, and to inform his Highneſs of ſome ſecret Affairs; he by the Queen's Inſtructions addreſſed himſelf firſt to me, with Letters to me from the Queen, deſiring me to bring her Secretary (this Gentleman) to the Preſence of his Highneſs, and to promote his Buſineſs; I acquainted the Protector therewith, and read to him the Queen's Letters to me, which were in French; the Protector deſired me to read them again to him in Engliſh, which I did, and the Protector ſaid, he would conſider of the Buſineſs. Upon Advice with his Council about it, ſome of them to ſhew their extraordinary Care of his Perſon ſuggeſted, that this Meſſenger being an Italian, (who were skilful in the Art of Poiſoning, and ready to be hired for ſuch a Purpoſe) might bring Poiſon with his Letters to the danger of his Highneſs; and therefore diſſuaded him from receiving of this Meſſenger, or permitting him to come into his Highneſs's Preſence.

The Protector ſmiling acquainted me with this cautious Counſel, I convinced the Protector of the Folly of it, and the high Diſtaſte that would be taken by the Queen in caſe her Secretary ſhould be denied Audience; The Protector replied, That the Meſſenger deſired to deliver his Errand in private to the Protector, and none to be by but one more, whom the Protector ſhould appoint, and that Perſon, his Highneſs ſaid, he intended ſhould be me; I ſaid that if I were by when the Gentleman delivered his Letter, I would firſt receive it of the Gentleman, and hazard the danger of being poiſoned by it; at which the Protector laughed, and appointed a Day for the Gentleman's Audience.

At that time I only was preſent with the Protector, and the Gentleman offering to deliver the Letter to his Highneſs, I took it firſt from the Gentleman, and then he delivered his ſecret Meſſage to his Highneſs, which I interpreted from the French, and it was a particular Account of the Cauſes why ſhe ordered her Servant, the Italian Marquiſs, to be put to death in France; and I alſo propounded to his Highneſs ſeveral Matters in order to Alliances with foreign Princes, which were of great Conſequence, and probable Advantage to England; and the Protector ſeemed well pleaſed with it.

I procured a civil Treatment of the Gentleman whilſt he was here, and a reſpectful Anſwer to his Buſineſs, and Diſmiſſion of him; and I gave an Account of all by my Letters to the Queen, which this Meſſenger carried to her Majeſty, and ſhe had ſatisfaction in it, as well as her Secretary.

The Petition and Advice was in theſe Words,

To his Highneſs the Lord Protector of the Commonwealth of England, Scotland, and Ireland, and the Dominions thereto belonging;

The humble Petition and Advice of the Knights, Citizens and Burgeſſes now aſſembled in the Parliament of this Commonwealth.

'WE the Knights, Citizens, and Burgeſſes in this preſent Parliament aſſembled, taking into our moſt ſerious Conſideration the preſent State of theſe three Nations, joined and united under your Highneſs's Protection, cannot but in the firſt place with all Thankfulneſs acknowledge the wonderful Mercy of Almighty God, in delivering us from that Tyranny and Bondage, both in our Spiritual and Civil Concernments, which the late King and his Party deſigned to bring us under, and purſued the effecting thereof by a long and bloody War; And alſo that it hath pleaſed the ſame gracious God to preſerve your Perſon in many Battels, to make you an Inſtrument for preſerving our Peace, although environed with Enemies abroad, and filled with turbulent, reſtleſs and unquiet Spirits in our own Bowels; that as in the treading down the common Enemy, and reſtoring us to Peace and Tranquillity, the Lord hath uſed you ſo eminently, and the worthy Officers and Soldiers of the Army (whoſe Faithfulneſs to the common Cauſe, We and all good Men ſhall ever acknowledge, and put a juſt Value upon.) So alſo that he will uſe you and them in the ſettlement and ſecuring our Liberties as we are Men and Chriſtians, to us and our Poſterity after us, which are thoſe great and glorious Ends which the good People of theſe Nations have ſo freely, with the hazard of their Lives and Eſtates, ſo long and earneſtly contended for: We conſider likewiſe the continual Danger which your Life is in, from the bloody Practices both of the malignant and diſcontented Party (one whereof through the Goodneſs of God, you have been lately delivered from) it being a received Principle amongſt them, That no Order being ſettled in your Life-time for the Succeſſion in the Government, nothing is wanting to bring us into Blood and Confuſion, and them to their deſired ends, but the Deſtruction of your Perſon; And in caſe things ſhould thus remain at your Death, we are not able to expreſs what Calamities would in all human probability enſue thereupon, which we truſt your Highneſs (as well as we) do hold your ſelf obliged to provide againſt, and not to leave a People, whoſe common Peace and Intereſt you are intruſted with, in ſuch a Condition as may hazard both, eſpecially in this Conjuncture, when there ſeems to be an opportunity of coming to a Settlement upon juſt and legal Foundations: Upon theſe Conſiderations, we have judged it a Duty incumbent upon us, to preſent and declare theſe our moſt juſt and neceſſary Deſires to your Highneſs.

May.

I.

'That your Highneſs will be pleaſed by and under the Name and Stile of Lord Protector of the Commonwealth of England, Scotland and Ireland, and the Dominions and Territories thereunto belonging, to hold and exerciſe the Office of Chief Magiſtrate of theſe Nations, and to govern according to this Petition and Advice in all things therein contained, and in all other things according to the Laws of theſe Nations and not otherwiſe; that your Highneſs will be pleaſed during your Life-time, to appoint and declare the Perſon, who ſhall immediately after your Death ſucceed you in the Government of theſe Nations.

II.

'That your Highneſs will for the future be pleaſed to call Parliaments conſiſting of two Houſes (in ſuch Manner and Way as ſhall be more particularly afterwards agreed and declared in this Petition and Advice) once in three Years at fartheſt, or oftner, as the Affairs of the Nation ſhall require, that being your great Council, and in whoſe Affection and Advice, your ſelf and this People will be moſt ſafe and happy.

III.

'That the ancient and undoubted Liberties and Privileges of Parliament (which are the Birthright and Inheritance of the People, and wherein every Man is intereſted) be preſerved and maintained, and that you will not break or interupt the ſame, nor ſuffer them to be broken or interrupted; and particularly, that thoſe Perſons who are legally choſen by a free Election of the People to ſerve in Parliament, may not be excluded from ſitting in Parliament to do their Duties, but by Judgment and Conſent of that Houſe whereof they are Members.

Anno 1657.

IV.

'That thoſe who have adviſed, aſſiſted or abetted the Rebellion of Ireland, and thoſe who do or ſhall profeſs the popiſh Religion, be diſabled and made incapable for ever to be elected, or to give any Vote in the Election of any Member to ſit or ſerve in Parliament; and that all and every Perſon and Perſons who have aided, abetted, adviſed or aſſiſted in any War againſt the Parliament ſince the firſt Day of January, one thouſand ſix hundred forty one (unleſs he or they have ſince born Arms for the Parliament or your Highneſs, or otherwiſe given Signal Teſtimony of his or their good Affection to the Commonwealth, and continued faithful to the ſame) and all ſuch as have been actually engaged in any Plot, Conſpiracy or Deſign againſt the Perſon of your Highneſs, or in any Inſurrection or Rebellion in England or Wales ſince the ſixteenth Day of December, one thouſand ſix hundred fifty three, ſhall be for ever diſabled and made incapable to be elected, or give any Vote in the Election of any Member to ſit or ſerve in Parliament; that for Scotland none be capable to elect or be elected to ſit or ſerve in Parliament, who have been in Arms againſt the Parliament of England, or againſt the Parliament in Scotland before the firſt Day of April, one thouſand ſix hundred forty eight, (except ſuch as have ſince born Arms in the Service of the Parliament of England or your Highneſs, or given other ſignal Teſtimony of their good Affection) nor any that ſince the ſaid firſt Day of April, one thouſand ſix hundred forty eight, have been in Arms, or otherwiſe aided, abetted, adviſed, or aſſiſted in any War againſt the Parliament of England or your Highneſs, except ſuch as ſince the firſt Day of March, one thouſand ſix hundred fifty one (old Stile) have lived peaceably, and thereby given Teſtimony of their good Affection to the Parliament and your Highneſs.

'Provided, that nothing in this Article contained, ſhall extend to put any Incapacity upon any Engliſh or Scotch Proteſtants in Ireland, either to elect or be elected to ſerve in Parliament, who before the firſt Day of March, one thouſand ſix hundred forty nine, have born Arms for the Parliament or your Highneſs, or otherwiſe given ſignal Teſtimony of their good Affection to this Commonwealth, and continued faithful to the ſame; that all Votes and Elections, given or made contrary, or not according to the Qualifications aforeſaid, ſhall be void and of none effect; and that if any Perſon or Perſons ſo incapable as aforeſaid, ſhall give his or their Vote for Election of Members to ſerve in Parliament; all and every ſuch Perſon and Perſons ſo electing, ſhall loſe and forfeit one Year's Value of his and their reſpective real Eſtates, and one full third Part of his and their reſpective perſonal Eſtates; the one Moiety thereof to your Highneſs, and the other Moiety to him or them who ſhall ſue for the ſame in any Court of Record by Action of Debt, Bill, Plaint or Information, wherein no Eſſoign, Wager of Law, or Protection ſhall be allowed; and that the Perſons who ſhall be elected to ſerve in Parliament, be ſuch, and no other than ſuch, as are Perſons of known Integrity, fearing God and of good Converſation, and being of the Age of twenty one Years, and not ſuch as are diſabled by the Act of the ſeventeenth Year of the late King, entitled, An Act for diſenabling all Perſons in Holy Orders, to exerciſe any Temporal Juriſdiction or Authority, nor ſuch as are publick Miniſters or publick Preachers of the Goſpel. Nor ſuch as are guilty of any of the Offences mentioned in an Act of Parliament bearing Date the ninth of Auguſt, one thouſand ſix hundred and fifty, entitled, An Act againſt ſeveral atheiſtical, blaſphemous, and execrable Opinions, derogatory to the Honour of God, and deſtructive to humane Society: No common Scoffer nor Reviler of Religion, or of any Perſon or Perſons for profeſſing thereof, no Perſon that hath married or ſhall marry a Wife of the popiſh Religion, or hath trained or ſhall train up his Child or Children, or any other Child or Children under his Tuition or Government in the popiſh Religion, or that ſhall permit or ſuffer ſuch Child or Children to be trained up in the ſaid Religion, or that hath given or ſhall give his Conſent that his Son or Daughter ſhall marry any of that Religion; no Perſon that ſhall deny the Scriptures to be the Word of God, or the Sacraments, Prayer, Magiſtracy and Miniſtry to be the Ordinances of God; no common Prophaner of the Lord's Day, nor prophane Swearer or Curſer, no Drunkard or common Haunter of Taverns or Alehouſes: And that theſe Qualifications may be obſerved and yet the Privilege of Parliament maintained, we deſire that it may be by your Highneſs's Conſent ordained, that forty one Commiſſioners be appointed by Act of Parliament, who, or any fifteen or more of them ſhall be authorized to examine and try whether the Members to be elected for the Houſe of Commons in future Parliaments be capable to ſit, according to the Qualifications mentioned in this Petition and Advice; and in caſe they find them not qualified accordingly, then to ſuſpend them from ſitting until the Houſe of Commons ſhall upon hearing of their particular Caſes admit them to ſit; which Commiſſioners are to ſtand ſo authorized for that end, until the Houſe of Commons in any future Parliament ſhall nominate the like Number of other Commiſſioners in their Places; and thoſe other Commiſſioners ſo to be nominated in any future Parliament, to have the ſame Powers and Authorities; that the ſaid Commiſſioners ſhall certify in writing to the Houſe of Commons, on the firſt Day of their Meeting, the Cauſes and Grounds of their Suſpenſions of any Perſons ſo to be elected as aforeſaid; that the Accuſation ſhall be upon the Oath of the Informer, or of ſome other Perſon; that a Copy of the Accuſation ſhall be left by the Party accuſing, in writing under his Hand with the Party accuſed, or in his abſence at his Houſe, in the County, City or Town, for which he ſhall be choſen, if he have any ſuch Houſe; or if not, with the Sheriff of the County, if he be choſen for a County, or with the chief Magiſtrate of the City or Borough of which he is choſen; and that the Number of Perſons to be elected and choſen to ſit and ſerve in Parliament, for ENGLAND, SCOTLAND and IRELAND, and the Diſtribution of the Perſons ſo choſen within the Counties, Cities and Boroughs of them reſpectively, may be according to ſuch Proportions as ſhall be agreed upon and declared in this preſent Parliament.

V. That

Anno 1657.

V.

'That your Highneſs will conſent, That none 'be called to ſit and vote in the other Houſe, 'but ſuch as are not diſabled, but qualified ac- 'cording to the Qualifications mentioned in the 'former Article, being ſuch as ſhall be nomi- 'nated by your Highneſs and approved by this 'Houſe; and that they exceed not ſeventy in 'Number, nor be under the Number of forty '(whereof the Quorum to be one and twenty) 'who ſhall not give any Vote by Proxies; and 'that as any of them do die, or be legally re- 'moved, no new ones be admitted to ſit and 'vote in their rooms, but by Conſent of the 'the Houſe it ſelf: That the other Houſe do 'not proceed in any Civil Cauſes, except in 'Writs of Error, in Caſes adjourned from in- 'ferior Courts into the Parliament for Difficulty, 'in Caſes of Petitions againſt Proceedings in 'Courts of Equity, and in Caſes of the Privi- 'leges of their own Houſe; that they do not 'proceed in any criminal Cauſes whatſoever, a- 'gainſt any Perſon criminally, but upon an Im- 'peachment of the Commons aſſembled in Par- 'liament and by their Conſent; that they do 'not proceed in any Cauſe, either Civil or Cri- 'minal, but according to the known Laws of the 'Land, and the due Courſe and Cuſtom of Parlia- 'ment; that no final Determinations or Judgments 'be by any Members of that Houſe, in any Cauſe 'there depending, either Civil, Criminal or 'Mixt, as Commiſſioners or Delegates to be 'nominated by that Houſe; but all ſuch final 'Determinations and Judgments to be by the 'Houſe it ſelf, any Law or Uſage to the con- 'trary notwithſtanding.

VI.

'That in all other Particulars which concern 'the calling and holding of Parliaments, your 'Highneſs will be pleaſed, that the Laws and 'Statutes of the Land be obſerved and kept, 'and that no Laws be altered and ſuſpended, ab- 'rogated or repealed, or new Law made, but by 'Act of Parliament.

VII.

'And to the end there may be a conſtant Re- 'venue for Support of the Government, and 'for the Safety and Defence of theſe Nations by 'Sea and Land; we declare our Willingneſs to 'ſettle forthwith a yearly Revenue of thirteen 'hundred thouſand Pounds, whereof ten hun- 'dred thouſand Pounds for the Navy and 'Army, and three hundred thouſand Pounds 'for the Support of the Government, and no 'Part thereof to be raiſed by a Land Tax; and 'this not to be altered without the Conſent of 'the three Eſtates in Parliament; and to grant 'ſuch other temporary Supplies, according as 'the Commons aſſembled in Parliament ſhall 'from time to time adjudge the Neceſſities of 'theſe Nations to require; and do pray your 'Highneſs, that it be declared and enacted, that 'no Charge be laid, nor no Perſon be compel- 'led to contribute to any Gift, Loan, Benevo- 'lence, Tax, Tallage, Aid, or other like Charge 'without common Conſent by Act of Parliament, 'which is a Freedom the People of theſe Na- 'tions ought by the Laws to inherit.

VIII.

'That none may be added or admitted to the 'Privy-Council of your Highneſs or Succeſſors, 'but ſuch as are of known Piety and undoubted May. 'Affection to the Rights of theſe Nations, and 'a juſt Chriſtian Liberty in Matters of Religion, 'nor without Conſent of the Council to be af- 'terwards approved by both Houſes of Parlia- 'ment, and ſhall not afterwards be removed but by 'Conſent of Parliament, but may in the Inter- 'vals of Parliament be ſuſpended from the Ex- 'erciſe of his Place by your Highneſs or your 'Succeſſors and the Council for juſt Cauſe, and 'that the Number of the Council ſhall not be 'above one and twenty, whereof the Quorum to 'be ſeven, and not under; as alſo that after 'your Highneſs's Death, the Commander in 'Chief under your Succeſſors, of ſuch Army or 'Armies as ſhall be neceſſary to be kept in Eng- 'land, Scotland or Ireland, as alſo all ſuch Field- 'Officers at Land, or Generals at Sea, which 'after that time ſhall be newly made and con- 'ſtituted by your Succeſſors, be by Conſent of 'the Council and not otherwiſe; and that the 'ſtanding Forces of this Commonwealth ſhall 'be diſpoſed of by the chief Magiſtrate, by Con- 'ſent of both Houſes of Parliament, ſitting the 'Parliament; and in the Intervals of Parliament, 'by the chief Magiſtrate by the Advice of the 'Council; and alſo that your Highneſs and Suc- 'ceſſors will be pleaſed to exerciſe your Govern- 'ment over theſe Nations by the Advice of 'your Council.

IX.

'And that the Chancellor, Keeper or Com- 'miſſioners of the Great Seal of England, the 'Treaſurer or Commiſſioners of the Treaſury 'there, the Admiral, the chief Governor of 'Ireland, the Chancellor, Keeper or Commiſſi- 'oners of the Great Seal of Ireland, the Chief 'Juſtices of both the Benches, and the Chief 'Baron in England and Ireland, the Commander 'in Chief of the Forces in Scotland, and ſuch 'Officers of State there, as by Act of Parlia- 'ment in Scotland, are to be approved by Par- 'liament, and the Judges in Scotland hereafter to 'be made, ſhall be approved of by both Houſes 'of Parliament.

X.

'And whereas your Highneſs out of your 'Zeal to the Glory of God, and the Propaga- 'tion of the Goſpel of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, 'hath been pleaſed to encourage a godly Mi- 'niſtry in theſe Nations, we earneſtly deſire 'that ſuch as do openly revile them or their 'Aſſemblies, or diſturb them in the Worſhip or 'Service of God, to the Diſhonour of God, Scan- 'dal of good Men, or Breach of the Peace, 'may be puniſhed according to Law, and where 'the Laws are defective, that your Highneſs will 'give Conſent to ſuch Laws as ſhall be made in 'that behalf.

XI.

'That the true Proteſtant Chriſtian Religion, 'as it is contained in the the holy Scriptures of 'the Old and New Teſtament, and no other, 'be held forth and aſſerted for the publick Pro- 'feſſion of theſe Nations; and that a Confeſſion 'of Faith to be agreed by your Highneſs and 'the Parliament, according to the Rule and 'Warrant of the Scriptures, be aſſerted, held 'forth, and recommended to the People of theſe 'Nations, that none may be ſuffered or permit- 'ted by opprobrious Words or Writing, mali-

Anno 1657.

'ciouſly or contemptuouſly to revile or reproach 'the Confeſſion of Faith to be agreed upon as 'aforeſaid; and ſuch who profeſs Faith in God 'the Father, and in Jeſus Chriſt his eternal Son, 'the true God, and in the Holy Spirit, God co-'equal with the Father and the Son, one God 'bleſſed for ever, and do acknowledge the Holy 'Scriptures of the Old and New Teſtament to 'be the revealed Will and Word of God, and 'ſhall in other things differ in Doctrine, Wor-'ſhip or Diſcipline, from the publick Profeſſi-'on held forth, Endeavours ſhall be uſed to 'convince them by ſound Doctrine and the 'Example of a good Converſation: But that 'they may not be compelled thereto by Pe-'nalties nor reſtrained from their Profeſſion, 'but protected from all Injury and Moleſtation 'in the Profeſſion of the Faith and Exerciſe of 'their Religion, whilſt they abuſe not this Li-'berty to the civil Injury of others, or the Di-'ſturbance of the publick Peace; ſo that this 'Liberty be not extended to Popery or Prelacy, 'or to the countenancing ſuch, who publiſh 'horrible Blaſphemies, or practiſe or hold forth 'Licentiouſneſs or Profaneneſs under the Profeſſion 'of Chriſt; and that thoſe Miniſters or publick 'Preachers, who ſhall agree with the publick 'Profeſſion aforeſaid in matters of Faith, al-'though in their Judgment and Practice they 'differ in matters of Worſhip and Diſcipline, 'ſhall not only have Protection in the Way of 'their Churches and Worſhip reſpectively; but 'be eſteemed fit and capable, notwithſtanding 'ſuch difference (being otherwiſe duly qualified 'and duly approved) of any Truſt, Promotion 'or Employment whatſoever in theſe Nations, 'that any Miniſters who agree in Doctrine, 'Worſhip and Diſcipline with the publick Pro-'feſſion aforeſaid are capable of; and all others 'who agree with the publick Profeſſion in mat-'ters of Faith, although they differ in matters 'of Worſhip and Diſcipline as aforeſaid, ſhall 'not only have Protection as aforeſaid, but be 'eſteemed fit and capable (notwithſtanding ſuch 'Difference, being otherwiſe duly qualified) of 'any civil Truſt, Employment or Promotion in 'theſe Nations; but for ſuch Perſons who agree 'not in matters of Faith with the publick Pro-'feſſion aforeſaid, they ſhall not be capable of 'receiving the publick Maintenance appointed 'for the Miniſtry; provided, that this Clauſe 'ſhall not be conſtrued to extend to enable ſuch 'Miniſters or publick Preachers or Paſtors of 'Congregations, but that they be diſenabled, 'and they are hereby diſenabled to hold any civil 'Employment, which thoſe in Orders were or 'are diſenabled to hold, by an Act, entitled, An 'Act for diſenabling all Perſons in Holy Orders to exe-'erciſe any temporal Juriſdiction or Authority: And 'that your Highneſs will give your Conſent, 'that all Laws, Statutes, Ordinances and Clauſes 'in any Law, Statute or Ordinance, ſo far as 'they are contrary to the aforeſaid Liberty, be 'repealed,

XII.

'That all Acts and Ordinances of Parliament 'made for the aboliſhing of Archbiſhops and 'Biſhops; and for the aboliſhing of Deans, Deans 'and Chapters, Canons, Prebends, and other 'Officers and Tatles, of, or belonging to any Ca-'thedral, or Collegiate Church or Chapel; and 'for the ſale or other diſpoſition of the Lands, 'Rents, and Hereditaments, unto any or either 'of them belonging; or for the ſale or other 'diſpoſition of the Lands, Rents, and Heredita- May.
'ments of the late King, Queen, or Prince; or 'of the Lands of Delinquents, Fee-Farm, or o-'ther Rents, Foreſt-Lands, or any of them, or 'any other Lands, Tenements, Rents, or Here-'ditaments, lately belonging to the Common-'wealth, ſhall no way be impeached, but that 'they do remain good and firm. And that the 'ſecurity given by Act and Ordinance of Parlia-'ment, for any Sum or Sums of Monies, by any 'of the ſaid Lands, the Exciſe, or by any other 'Publick Revenue; and alſo the Securities given 'by the Publick Faith of the Nation, and the En-'gagement of the Publick Faith for ſatisfaction 'of Debts, may remain firm and good, and not 'be made void by any Pretence whatſoever.

XIII.

'That all and every Perſon and Perſons, who 'have aided, abetted, adviſed, or aſſiſted in any 'War againſt the Parliament, ſince the firſt Day 'of January, 1641. (unleſs he or they have ſince 'born Arms for the Parliament, or your Highneſs, 'or otherwiſe given ſignal Teſtimony of his or 'their good Affection to the Commonwealth, 'and continued faithful to the ſame) and all ſuch 'as have been actually engaged in any Plot, Con-'ſpiracy, or Deſign, againſt the Perſon of your 'Highneſs, or in any Inſurrection or Rebellion, 'in England or Wales, ſince the ſixteenth of De-'cember, 1653. And for Scotland, that all and 'every Perſon and Perſons, who have been in 'Arms againſt the Parliament of England, or a-'gainſt the Parliament in Scotland, before the 'firſt Day of April, 1648. (except ſuch as have 'ſince born Arms in the Service of the Parlia-'ment of England, or your Highneſs, or given 'other ſignal Teſtimony of their good Affection) 'and every Perſon or Perſons, that ſince the ſaid 'firſt Day of April, 1648. have been in Arms, or 'otherwiſe aided, abetted, adviſed, or aſſiſted in 'any War againſt the Parliament of England, or 'your Highneſs, (except ſuch Perſons who hav-'ing been in Arms, or otherwiſe abetted, ad-'viſed, or aſſiſted in any War againſt the Parlia-'ment of England, or your Highneſs) ſince the 'firſt Day of April, 1648, and were not in Arms 'againſt the Parliament of England, or againſt 'the Parliament of Scotland, before the firſt Day 'of April, 1648. and have ſince the firſt Day of 'March, 1651. (Old Stile) lived peaceably, and 'thereby given Teſtimony of their good Affec-'tion to the Parliament, and your Highneſs) be 'made incapable for ever, of holding or enjoy-'ing of any Office or Place of publick Truſt in 'theſe three Nations, or any of them.

'Provided, that nothing in this Article con-'tained, ſhall extend to put any Incapacity in 'this Article mentioned, upon any Engliſh or 'Scotiſh Proteſtants in Ireland, who, before the 'firſt day of March 1647. have born Arms for the 'Parliament, or your Highneſs, or otherwiſe gi-'ven ſignal Teſtimony of their good Affection to 'this Commonwealth, and continued faithful to 'the ſame.

XIV.

'And that your Highneſs will be pleaſed to 'conſent, that nothing in this Petition and Ad-'vice contained, nor your Highneſs's Aſſent 'thereto, ſhall be conſtrued to extend to the diſ-'ſolving of this preſent Parliament; but that the 'ſame ſhall continue and remain until ſuch time 'as your Highneſs ſhall think fit to diſſolve the 'ſame.

XVI. 'And

Anno 1657.

XVI.

'And that nothing contained in this Petition and Advice, nor your Highneſs's Conſent thereunto, ſhall be conſtrued to extend to the repealing or making void of any Act or Ordinance which is not contrary hereunto, or to the Matters herein contained; but that the ſaid Acts and Ordinances not contrary hereunto, ſhall continue and remain in force, in ſuch manner as if this preſent Petition and Advice had not at all been had or made, or your Highneſs's Conſent thereunto given.

XVII.

'And that all Writs iſſued out of the Chancery, and all Writs and Patents of the Juſtices of the one Bench, and of the other, Barons of the Exchequer, Commiſſions of Oyer and Terminer, Goal-delivery, and Juſtices of the Peace, and all other Commiſſions, Patents and Grants made and paſſed under the Great Seal of England, Scotland or Ireland, ſhall ſtand good and effectual in the Law, notwithſtanding this Petition and Advice, or your Highneſs's Aſſent thereunto, or any Law, Statute, or Cuſtom to the contrary; and that all Writs, and all Commiſſions, Indictments, or Informations, Proceſs, Actions, Suits, Bills, or Plaints, taken out, or now depending in any Court of Record at Weſtminſter, or any other Court of Record, in England, Scotland or Ireland, or in the Town of Berwick upon Tweed; and all Proceſs, Pleas, Demurrers, Continuances, and Proceedings in every ſuch Writs, Indictments, Informations, Actions, Suits, Bills, and Plaints ſhall be returnable, ſtand good and effectual, and be proſecuted and ſued forth, in ſuch manner and form, and in the ſame ſtate, condition and order, the Stile and Teſt of Proceedings, after paſſing of theſe Preſents, being made conformable thereunto, this preſent Petition and Advice, or your Highneſs's Aſſent thereunto, or any Law, Cuſtom, or Uſage to the contrary thereof in any wiſe notwithſtanding; and that any Variance that ſhall be occaſioned by reaſon thereof, touching any the ſaid Writs, Proceſs or Proceedings in the Name, Stile, Teſt, or otherwiſe, ſhall not be in any wiſe material as concerning any Default or Error to be alledged or objected thereunto.

XVIII.

'And that your Highneſs and your Succeſſors will be pleaſed to take an Oath in ſuch form as ſhall be agreed upon by your Highneſs and this preſent Parliament, to govern theſe Nations according to the Law.

'And in caſe your Highneſs ſhall not be ſatisfy'd to give your conſent to all the matters and things in this humble Petition and Advice, that then nothing in the ſame be deemed of force to oblige the People of theſe Nations in any the Particulars therein contained.

'And theſe our Deſires being granted by your Highneſs, we ſhall hope, (through the rich Mercy and Goodneſs of God) that it will prove ſome Remedy to thoſe Dangers, Diſtractions and Diſtempers which theſe Nations are now in, and be an effectual means to remove thoſe Jealouſies and Fears which remain in the Minds of many Men concerning the Government of this Commonwealth; and thereby we ſhall be enabled and encouraged with all Chearfulneſs, to the ſettling of ſuch things which ſhall be further neceſſary for the good of theſe Nations, and be moſt ready to join with you in promoting the work of Reformation, happily begun by your Highneſs, the regulating Courts of Juſtice, and abridging both the Delays and Charges of Law-Suits, and apply our ſelves to ſuch other Courſes and Counſels as may be moſt like to heal our Breaches and Diviſions, and to reſtore theſe poor Nations to a Union and Conſiſtence with themſelves, and to lay a Foundation of further Confidence between your Highneſs and them, to the rejoicing of the Hearts of our Friends and Terror of our Enemies.' Febr.

13. The humble additional and explanatory Petition and Advice debated in the Houſe.

19. I further'd a Bill for the ſurveying of ſome Foreſts, and a Bill for aſcertaining the publick Faith Debts.

20. Much Debate was upon the Bill for reſtraint of new Buildings in and about London.

Letters from the Protector to the Speaker for putting off the Adjournment of the Parliament for four or five Days.

22. I further'd the paſſing of a Bill for Importation of Bullion.

23. A Committee to prepare an Oath to be taken by the Lord Protector, and for the ſolemnization and publiſhing of his Highneſs's Acceptance of the Government, and touching the ſettling of his Highneſs's Council. Oath.

I further'd the paſſing of an Act of Indemnity.

24. Upon a Report from the Committee, and ſome Amendments, the Houſe agreed to the Form of an Oath to be taken by the Protector; and to another Oath to be taken by his Council; and an Oath was agreed to be taken by the Members of Parliament;

Anno 1657. Parliament; and they agreed to a Paper touching the ſummoning ſuch Perſons before the next meeting of Parliament; and who are to ſerve as Members in the other Houſe of Parliament, according to the humble Petition and Advice; and they agreed touching the Solemnities of his Inauguration.

Other Houſe.

A Committee appointed to acquaint the Protector with theſe Votes, and to ſhew him the Oaths, and to deſire him to appoint times for the Execution of them, and for his Conſent to the Bills paſſed the Houſe.

25. Sir Harbottle Grimſton publiſhed the Reports of Judge Crook.

Inauguration.

26. The Parliament order'd the Maſter of the Ceremonies to give notice to foreign Ambaſſadors and Miniſters of the Inauguration of the Protector.

Order for the Commiſſioners of the Seal with Advice of the Judges to prepare and frame a Writ for ſummoning the Members of the other Houſe of Parliament, to meet at ſuch time and place as ſhall be appointed by his Highneſs; and the Commiſſioners are to ſeal ſuch Writs, and to iſſue them out to ſuch Perſons as his Highneſs under his Sign Manual ſhall direct and appoint.

A Bill paſſed for adjourning the Parliament from this 26th of June, to the 20th of January next.

A Place being prepared at the upper end of Weſtminſter-Hall, in the midſt of it was a rich Cloth of State ſet up, and under it a Chair of State upon an Aſcent of two Degrees, cover'd with Carpets; before it a Table and a Chair by it for the Speaker; on each ſide of the Hall were Seats built one above another, and cover'd for the Members of the Parliament; below them Seats on the one ſide for the Judges, and on the other ſide for the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of London.

About two of the Clock in the Afternoon the Protector met the Parliament, and gave his Conſent to ſome Bills; then the Speaker and Members went to their Places in Weſtminſter-Hall, and the Judges and Aldermen took their Places: A little time after this his Highneſs came attended with his own Gentlemen, and with the Heralds, Serjeants at Arms: The Officers, Commiſſioners of the Seal, and of the Treaſury, and his Council: The Earl of Warwick carry'd the Sword before him, and the Lord Mayor of London carry'd the City Sword.

His Highneſs ſtanding under the Cloth of State, the Speaker in the Name of the Parliament preſented to him,

1. A Robe of Purple Velvet, lined with Ermin, which the Speaker aſſiſted by me and others, put upon his Highneſs; then he deliver'd to him the Bible richly gilt and boſſed; after that the Speaker girt the Sword about his Highneſs, and deliver'd into his hand the Scepter of maſſy Gold, and then made a Speech to him upon thoſe ſeveral things preſented to him, wiſhing him all Proſperity in his Government, and gave him the Oath; and Mr. Manton by Prayer recommended his Highneſs, the Parliament, the Council, the Forces by Land and Sea, and the whole Government, and People of the three Nations to the Bleſſing and Protection of God.

After this the People gave ſeveral great Shouts, and the Trumpets ſounding: the Protector ſat in the Chair of State, holding the Scepter in his hand; on his right ſide ſat the Ambaſſador of France, on the left ſide the Ambaſſador of the United Provinces: Near to his Highneſs ſtood his Son Richard, the Lord Deputy Fleetwood, Claypole Maſter of the Horſe, his Highneſs's Council and Officers of State; the Earl of Warwick held the Sword on the right ſide of the Chair, and the Lord Mayor of London held the City Sword on the left hand of the Chair; near the Earl of Warwick ſtood the Lord Viſcount Liſle, general Mountague, and I, each of us having a drawn Sword in our hands. Auguſt.

Then the Trumpets ſounded, and an Herald proclaimed his Highneſs's Title; and Proclamation was made, and loud Acclamations of the People, God ſave the Lord Protector: The Ceremonies being ended, his Highneſs having his Train carry'd by the Lord Sherwood, Mr. Rich, the Earl of Warwick's Grandchild, and by the Lord Roberts's Son, accompany'd by the Ambaſſadors, and attended as before, went in ſtate to Weſtminſter-Hall Gate, where he took his rich Coach.

In the upper end of it himſelf ſat in his Robes, in the other end ſat the Earl of Warwick, in one Boot ſat his Son Richard, and I with a drawn Sword in my hand; and in the other Boot ſat the Lord Viſcount Liſle and General Mountague, with Swords drawn in their hands, Claypole led the Horſe of Honour in rich Capariſons, the Lifeguard and other Guards attended the Coach, the Officers and the reſt followed in Coaches to Whitehall.

The Speaker and Members of Parliament went to the Houſe, where they paſſed ſome Votes, and order'd them to be preſented to his Highneſs. Then according to the Act of Parliament the Houſe adjourned it ſelf till the 20th of January next.

The Bills paſſed by his Highneſs this Parliament, beſides thoſe mentioned before were,

An Act, for the Adjournment of this preſent Parliament from the 26th of June 1657, unto the 20th of January next enſuing.

The humble additional and explanatory Petition and Advice, in theſe words:

To his Highneſs the Lord Protector of the Commonwealth of England, Scotland and Ireland, and the Dominions and Territories thereunto belonging.

The humble Additional and Explanatory Petition and Advice, of the Knights, Citizens, and Burgeſſes now aſſembled in the Parliament of this Commonwealth.

WHEREAS upon the humble Petition and Advice of the ſaid Knights, Citizens and Burgeſſes, now aſſembled in the Parliament of this Commonwealth, lately preſented and conſented unto by your Highneſs; certain Doubts and Queſtions have ariſen concerning ſome particulars therein comprized: for explanation whereof, May it pleaſe your Highneſs to declare and conſent unto the Additions and Explanations hereafter mentioned, and may it be declared with your Highneſs's Conſent.

In the fourth Article.

That ſuch Perſon and Perſons as invaded England, under Duke Hamilton, in the Year 1648; Or adviſed, conſented, aſſiſted, or voluntarily contributed unto that War; and were for that cauſe debarred from publick Truſt by the Parliament of Scotland, be incapable to elect, or be elected, to ſit and ſerve as Members of Parliament, or in any other place of publick Truſt, relating unto the fourth and thirteenth Articles in the Petition and Advice, excepting ſuch as ſince have born Arms for your Highneſs, or the Parliament, or have been admitted to ſit and ſerve in the Parliament of this Commonwealth, and are of good Life and Converſation, or ſuch as ſhall hereafter be declared by your Highneſs, with the advice of your Council, to have given ſome ſignal Teſtimony of their good affection and continuance in the ſame. June.

That the Proviſo in the ſaid fourth Article, be explain'd thus, viz. That ſuch Engliſh and Scotiſh Proteſtants, who (ſince the defection of the Earl of Ormond and the Lord Inchequin, and before the firſt day of March, 1649,) have born Arms for, and ever ſince continued faithful to the Parliament, or your Highneſs, or have otherwiſe (before the ſaid firſt day of March, 1649,) given ſignal Teſtimony of their good affection to this Commonwealth, and have ever ſince continued faithful to the ſame, ſhall not be debarred or deemed incapable of electing, or being elected to ſerve in Parliament.

And whereas in the ſaid fourth Article, publick Miniſters, or publick Preachers of the Goſpel, are diſabled to be elected to ſerve in Parliament; it is hereby explained and declared to extend to ſuch Miniſters and Preachers only, as have Maintenance for Preaching, or are Paſtors or Teachers of Congregations.

In the ſaid fourth Article.

That inſtead of Commiſſioners to be appointed by Act of Parliament to examine and try whether the Members to be elected for the Houſe of Commons in future Parliaments, be capable to ſit according to the Qualifications mentioned in the ſaid Petition and Advice, there ſhall be the Penalty and Fine of a 1000 Pounds laid and inflicted upon every ſuch unqualified Member (being ſo adjudged) by the ſaid Houſe of Commons, and Impriſonment of his Perſon until Payment thereof.

And that the enſuing Clauſes in the ſaid Article, viz. We deſire that it may by your Highneſs Conſent be Ordained, that forty and one Commiſſioners be appointed by Act of Parliament, who, or five, or more of them, ſhall be authorized to examine and try whether the Members to be elected for the Houſe of Commons in future Parliaments, be capable to ſit according to the Qualifications mentioned in this Petition and Advice, and in caſe they find them not qualified accordingly, then to ſuſpend them from ſitting, until the Houſe of Commons ſhall, upon hearing their particular Caſes, admit them to ſit; which Commiſſioners are to ſtand ſo authorized for that end, until the Houſe of Commons in any future Parliament, ſhall nominate the like number of other Commiſſioners in their places: and thoſe other Commiſſioners, ſo to be nominated in any future Parliament, to have the ſame Power and Authority. That the ſaid Commiſſioners ſhall certify in writing to the Houſe of Commons, on the firſt day of their meeting, the cauſe and grounds of their Suſpenſions of any Perſon ſo to be elected as aforeſaid; that the Accuſation ſhall be upon Oath of the Informant, or of ſome other Perſon. That a Copy of the Accuſation ſhall be left, by the Party accuſing, in writing under his hand, with the Party accuſed, or in his abſence, at his Houſe in the Country, City, or Town, for which he ſhall be choſen, if he have any ſuch Houſe, or if not, with the Sheriff of the County, if he be choſen for a County, or with the chief Magiſtrate of the City, or Burough, for which he is choſen; ſhall not be put in Execution, or made uſe of, but ſhall be void, fruſtrate, null and of none effect, and ſhall be ſo conſtrued and taken to all intents and purpoſes whatſoever, any thing contained in the ſaid Petition and Advice to the contrary notwithſtanding.

In

Anno 1657.

In the fifth Article.

That the Nomination of the Perſons to ſupply the Place of ſuch Members of the other Houſe as ſhall die, or be removed, ſhall be by your Highneſs and your Succeſſors.

In the ſeventh Article.

That the Monies directed to be for the Supply of the Sea and Land Forces, be iſſued by Advice of the Council, and that the Treaſurer or Commiſſioners of the Treaſury, ſhall give an Account of all the ſaid Money to every Parliament.

That the Officers of State and Judges, in the ninth Article of the ſaid Petition and Advice mentioned, ſhall be choſen, in the Intervals of Parliament, by the conſent of the Council, to be afterwards approved by Parliament.

That your Highneſs will be pleaſed, according to the uſage of former chief Magiſtrates in theſe Nations, and for the better ſatisfaction of the People thereof, to take an Oath in the form enſuing.

I do in the Preſence, and by the Name of God Almighty, promiſe and ſwear, That to the uttermoſt of my Power, I will uphold, and maintain the true Reformed Proteſtant Chriſtian Religion, in the Purity thereof, as it is contained in the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Teſtament, to the uttermoſt of my Power and Underſtanding, and encourage the Profeſſion, and Profeſſors of the ſame; and that to the utmoſt of my Power, I will endeavour, as chief Magiſtrate of theſe three Nations, the Maintenance and Preſervation of the Peace and Safety, and of the juſt Rights and Privileges of the People thereof; And ſhall in all things, according to my beſt Knowledge and Power, govern the People of theſe Nations according to Law.

That your Highneſs's Succeſſors do, before they take upon them the Government of theſe Nations, take an Oath in the Form aforeſaid.

That all ſuch Perſons who now are, or ſhall hereafter be of the Privy Council of your Highneſs or Succeſſors, before they, or either of them do act as Counſellors, ſhall reſpectively take an Oath, before Perſons to be authorized by your Highneſs and Succeſſors for that purpoſe; in the form following.

I A. B. do in the Preſence, and by the Name of God Almighty, promiſe and ſwear, That to the uttermoſt of my Power, in my Place, I will uphold, and maintain the true Reformed Proteſtant Chriſtian Religion, in the Purity thereof, as it is contained in the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Teſtament, and encourage the Profeſſion and Profeſſors of the ſame; and that I will be true and faithful to his Highneſs the Lord Protector of the Commonwealth of England, Scotland and Ireland, and the Dominions thereto belonging, as chief Magiſtrate thereof, and ſhall not contrive, deſign, or attempt any thing, againſt the Perſon or lawful Authority of his ſaid Highneſs, and ſhall keep ſecret, all Matters that ſhall be treated of in Council, and put under Secrecy, and not reveal them but by Command or Conſent of his Highneſs, the Parliament, or the Council, and ſhall in all things faithfully perform the Truſt committed to me as a Counſellor according to the beſt of my underſtanding, in order to the good Government, Peace and Welfare of theſe Nations.

That the ſame Oath be taken by the Members of your Highneſs's Council of Scotland and Ireland.

That every Perſon who now is, or hereafter ſhall be a Member of either Houſe of Parliament, before he ſit in Parliament, ſhall, from and after the firſt day of July, 1657, take an Oath before Perſons to be authorized and appointed by your Highneſs and Succeſſors for that purpoſe, in the form following. June.

I A. B. do in the Preſence, and by the Name of God Almighty, promiſe and ſwear, that to the uttermoſt of my Power in my Place, I will uphold and maintain the true Reformed Proteſtant Chriſtian Religion, in the Purity thereof, as it is contained in the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Teſtament, and encourage the Profeſſion and Profeſſors of the ſame, and that I will be true and faithful to the Lord Protector of the Commonwealth of England, Scotland and Ireland, and the Dominions and Territories thereunto belonging, as chief Magiſtrate thereof; and ſhall not contrive, deſign, or attempt any thing againſt the Perſon or lawful Authority of the Lord Protector, and ſhall endeavour as much as in me lies, as a Member of Parliament, the Preſervation of the Rights and Liberties of the People.

That your Highneſs would be pleaſed in convenient time, before the next meeting of this Parliament, to cauſe ſeveral Summons in due form of Law, to be iſſued forth to ſuch Perſons as your Highneſs ſhall think fit (being qualified according to the humble Petition and Advice of the Parliament, whereto your Highneſs hath conſented) to ſit and ſerve as Members in the other Houſe of Parliament; by which Summons the ſaid Perſons ſhall be reſpectively commanded to be, and perſonally to appear at a certain Place and Time, to be appointed by your Highneſs, to give their Advice and Aſſiſtance, and to do ſuch things concerning the great and weighty Affairs of this Commonwealth, as to the other Houſe of Parliament doth appertain, by the ſaid humble Petition and Advice.

That the Perſons ſo ſummoned and aſſembled together, ſhall be, and are hereby declared to be the other Houſe of Parliament; and ſhall, and may without farther Approbation of this Houſe, from ſuch time of their meeting, proceed, to do and perform all ſuch matters and things, as the other Houſe of Parliament ought to do and perform, and ſhall and may, have and exerciſe, all ſuch Privileges, Powers and Authorities, as the other Houſe of Parliament ought, by the aforeſaid humble Petition and Advice to have and exerciſe; the ſaid humble Petition and Advice, or any thing therein contained to the contrary thereof notwithſtanding.

Which Petition being preſented the twenty ſixth day of June, 1657, his Highneſs's Anſwer thereunto was read by the Clerk of the Parliament in theſe words,

The Lord Protector doth conſent.

July, 1657.

July 1. The Protector was proclaimed in the City, with great Solemnity.

Letters of the Victory obtained againſt the Muſcovites, by Grave Magnus de la Garde, in Liefland.

Auguſt, 1657.

Auguſt 10. News of the death of General Blake, on Shipboard, in his return from the Spaniſh Coaſt in Plymouth Sound, he was a Man of Anno 1657. of as much Gallantry and Sincerity, as any in his time, and as ſucceſsful.

Bodiley dies. 11. Vice-Admiral Bodiley died.

13. News of the War proclaimed by the King of Denmark, againſt the King of Sweden.

15. News of the Engagement between the Swedes and Danes in Schonen, and that the Swedes had the better.

Spirits. 18. Order of the Protector and Council for releaſing Children taken up and put on Shipboard, by ſuch as are called Spirits, and for Puniſhment of ſuch Perſons.

24. New Plots againſt the Protector, diſcovered.

28. Applications to me, about farming of the Cuſtoms and Exciſe, and Reaſons given againſt it.

Colonel Jephſon. 29. Colonel Jephſon was ſent by the Protector, as a publick Agent to the King of Sweden, and by him I ſent Compliments to the King, and to ſome of my Friends with the King.

31. Mr. Meadow, (one of Thurlow's Secretaries) went a publick Agent from his Highneſs, to the King of Denmark.

September, 1657.

September 2. The Portugal Ambaſſador had Audience.

4. The Funeral of General Blake, which was performed with great Solemnity.

14. The Protector adviſed with me about the beſieging of Dunkirk, by the Engliſh and French Forces, which were now drawn near to it.

16. The Lord Ambaſſador of France had Audience of the Protector.

Sweden. 17. News of the King of Sweden's driving the Daniſh Forces out of Jutland, and his advancing near Scagan.

Duke of Buckingham. 24. The Lord Fairfax's Daughter and Heir, was married to the Duke of Buckingham.

Mardike. 25. Letters of the taking of Mardike, by the Engliſh and French Forces.

29. The Protector diſcourſed with much pleaſure with me, about the taking of Mardike.

30. News of the Sea-fight, between the Swedes and Danes, and that the Swedes got the better of it.

October, 1657.

Scandalous Miniſtry. October 11. I was deſired to meet the Committee for ejecting ſcandalous and inſufficient Miniſters, but I liked not the work.

13. Warrants ſent to me to ſign, for one hundred thouſand Pounds per annum, for the Expences of his Highneſs's Houſhold, and for one thouſand Pounds for Mardike.

17. I conſtantly attended the Buſineſs of the Treaſury.

25. The Provoſt of Eaton College Mr. Rouſe being dead, I had ſome Thoughts, and was adviſed by ſome Friends to endeavour to have the place of Provoſt, a thing of good value, quiet and honourable, and fit for a Scholar, and I was not wholly uncapable of it; I therefore made applications to his Highneſs, concerning it, but found him engaged, or at leaſt ſeeming to be ſo for another; my Service was paſt, and therefore no neceſſity of a Recompenſe, but this was reſerved as a Bait for ſome others to be employed by his Highneſs.

30. The Protector adviſed with me about encouraging the Fiſhing Trade.

Mardike. News of the Enemies Attempt to regain Mardike, and how gallantly they were repulſed by Sir John Reynolds and the Engliſh in the Fort, and that the King of Scots was with them. Novemb.

November, 1657.

November 3. Applications to me from Sir Charles Wolſeley, for his Salary of one thouſand Pounds per annum, to be paid as a Counſellor.

I ſpake to his Highneſs in favour of the poor Lord Ruthen, and procured, that his Petition ſhould be referred from his Highneſs to the Council, for relief of the Lord.

I as a Commiſſioner of the Treaſury, with many Grandees, were preſent at the Trial of the Pixe in the Tower.

Mayern. 5. Mrs. Mayern, Daughter and Heir of Sir Theodore Mayern, the great and rich Doctor of Phyſick, made Applications to the Protector, about matters of her Eſtate. This young and wealthy Lady was afterwards married to a French Marquiſs of Mountpelion, who had hopes to make up his ſmall Fortune by this Lady's great Eſtate.

This Marquiſs came into England, with Letters from the King of France, and from the Marſhal Turene to the Protector, in favour of the Marquiſs, who earneſtly ſolicited the Protector about it; and Sir John Colladon Doctor of Phyſick, with all the Intereſt that he could make, as earneſtly oppoſed the Marquiſs, claiming a Title to part of the Eſtate, by Sir Theodore Mayern's Will, if his Daughter died without Iſſue.

The Protector would do nothing in this Buſineſs, without my advice, and often ſent for me when the Marquiſs came to his Highneſs, to be preſent to interpret what the Marquiſs ſaid, and to adviſe his Highneſs what to do in the Buſineſs; and I had many late and troubleſome Journies between Chelſey and Whitehall, upon this occaſion; and his Highneſs did very juſtly determine what belonged to him to do in it.

8. Soldiers were ſhipped for the Service of the King of Sweden, which was furthered by my advice to the Protector.

11. I attended my Buſineſs of the Treaſury and the Committee for the Exciſe.

20. The Commiſſioners of the Treaſury made ſeveral Reports to the Protector and Council of Arrears of Money due to the State; and upon advice with them, his Highneſs and the Council made ſeveral Orders for the collecting and bringing in of thoſe Arrears.

24. I and the reſt of the Commiſſioners of the Treaſury prepared the Buſineſs of the Contract, with Commiſſioners for the Exciſe and new Impoſt.

25. Some Congregations being met to obſerve this Day, according to former Solemnity, and the Protector being moved that Soldiers might be ſent to ſuppreſs them, I adviſed him againſt it, as that which was contrary to the Liberty of Conſcience ſo much owned and pleaded for by the Protector and his Friends; but it being contrary to Ordinances of Parliament (which I alſo oppoſed in the paſſing of them) that theſe Days ſhould be ſo ſolemnized, the Protector gave way to it, and thoſe Meetings were ſuppreſſed by the Soldiers.

January, 1657.

January 1. I having lent Mr. Ruſhworth ſome Manuſcripts, he attended me to ſhew me his Hiſtorical Collections, as his Highneſs had ordered.

3. A Meeting of the Gentlemen of the County of Bucks at Merchant-Tailors Hall, where they had a great Feaſt.

9. The Lord Willoughby petitioned the Protector for his Highneſs's Order, to go into the Country to diſpatch ſome neceſſary Buſineſs in relation to his Eſtate, and promiſing to return to Priſon; which Petition the Protector granted. Lord Willoughby.

12. The Protector reſolved to have a Collection for the poor perſecuted Proteſtants of Piedmont. Piedm

20. The Parliament met according to their Adjournment, and the Members of the other Houſe ſummoned by Writ met, and ſat in the Lords Houſe, as the Lords uſed to do formerly. The Protector came thither, and the Speaker with the Houſe of Commons being ſent for by the Black Rod, came to the Lords Houſe, where the Protector made a ſolemn Speech to them, but was ſhort by reaſon of his Indiſpoſition of Health; and after him the Lord Commiſſioner Fiennes ſpake to them more at large. Parliament.

My Lords and Gentlemen of both the moſt Honourable Houſes of Parliament.

Fiennes's Speech.

'AMongſt the manifold and various Diſpenſations of God's Providence of late Years 'this is one; and it is a ſignal and remarkable 'Providence that we ſee this Day in this Place, a 'chief Magiſtrate and two Houſes of Parliament. Jacob ſpeaking to his Son Joſeph, ſaid, 'I had not thought to have ſeen thy Face, and lo, 'God hath ſhewed me thy Seed alſo: Meaning his 'two Sons Ephraim and Manaſſeh. And many of 'many amongſt us well ſay ſome Years ſince; We 'had not thought to have ſeen a chief Magiſtrate 'again amongſt us; and lo, God hath ſhewn us 'a chief Magiſtrate in his two Houſes of Parliament.

'Now may the good God make them like 'Ephraim and Manaſſeh, that the three Nations 'may be bleſt in them, ſaying, God make thee 'like theſe two Houſes of Parliament, which two

'like '

Anno 1657.

'like Leah and Rachel, did build the Houſe of 'Iſrael.

'May you do worthily in Ephrata, and be famous in Bethlehem: May it be your great Buſineſs to procure the Peace, the Safety, and the Proſperity of theſe three Nations, and theſe things too; not for themſelves only, but in order yet to greater and higher ends, the Advancement of the Kingdom of Chriſt amongſt us, and the Glory of God in the Good of all Men, but eſpecially of the Churches of God amongſt Men; which as they are God's moſt precious Jewels and his chiefeſt Care, ſo muſt they alſo hold the choiceſt Place in the Eyes and in the Hearts of all thoſe that act under him, and are cloathed with his Power and Authority.

'In order to the great and glorious end, you may pleaſe in the firſt place, to reflect upon the Poſture that the three Nations at the preſent are in; a Poſture (God be praiſed) of Peace as within our ſelves, a quiet Poſture, a Poſture looking towards a Settlement, a perfect Settlement and the bleſſed Fruits thereof, Juſtice and Piety, Plenty and Proſperity. If we take care not to abuſe the latter to the Deſtruction of the former, ſurely we ought with all Thankfulneſs to own and acknowledge the outgoings of God for Good unto us: Hitherto we ought to conſider how far through the good Hand of God, upon the Endeavours of his Highneſs and the Parliament before its Adjournment, we are already advanced in this Way and Work.

'After you may pleaſe to foreſee and avoid the dangerous Rock which we may fall upon in our Courſe, which may not only ſtop it, but cut it ſhort; and totally diſappoint us of ever arriving at the deſired Port.

'In the next place, you may conſider the Opportunities and Advantages you have at this time in your Hands, by what the Parliament hath already done, that you may improve them.

'And laſtly, you may caſt your eyes upon the Difficulties we lie under, and the Impediments which lie in our way, that you may endeavour to remove them.

'Theſe things I can only ſpeak to curſorily and generally; the full and thorough Conſideration of them will be, the Work of your many and ſerious Debates and Conſultations, and will exerciſe not only your Wiſdom and Induſtry, but alſo your Faith and Patience, which it may pleaſe the Lord to accompany with his Preſence and Aſſiſtance, and in the end to crown with his Bleſſing and with Succeſs.

'Into what Condition the late Wars and Diſtractions had brought theſe Nations, and what a Cloud of Darkneſs had covered the whole face of the Government (being void and in a manner without Form) we all know, and the three Nations ſadly felt, and were ſenſible of thoſe further Confuſions that might have enſued. But it pleaſed God that Light ſprung up amongſt us, and things began to move towards ſomething of Order and Conſiſtency,

'But as yet the Earth and the Water were in one Maſs together: Then were the Waters beneath the Firmament divided from thoſe above the Firmament; there was conſtituted a chief Magiſtrate and a Parliament, the one diſtinct from the other, that each one from his proper place might the better put forth its Influence and Uſefulneſs for the good of the whole.

'After it pleaſed this Parliament, by their humble Petition and Advice, to diſtinguiſh the Parliament alſo into two Houſes; and that great and noble Body of the Waters retiring into their own Receptacle, the dry Land appeareth. January

'And what now remains, but that by the ſweet Influence of that powerful Spirit that moved upon the Waters, every Herb ſhould bring forth Seed according to its kind, and every Tree bring forth Fruit according to its kind; and that the Sun, Moon and Stars, the Ordinances of Magiſtracy and Miniſtry ſhould ſhine brightly in the Firmament of Heaven, in their greater and in their leſſer Lights, according to the Proportion that God hath diſpenſed to each one: And that Fiſh and Fowls ſhould multiply in the Waters and in the Air, and Beaſts and Cattel of all Sorts increaſe in the Earth; that all Trades, all Profeſſions, all Ranks and Degrees of Men, might be ſubſervient to that Sound, Adam and his Spouſe, Chriſt and his Church, that they may be formed and ſet up amongſt us, and placed in a Garden of Eden with all Freedom without Fear or Diſturbance, they may enjoy all ſpiritual Delights, and have Communion with one another and with God; which though laſt in Execution, I hope always was, and always ſhall be the firſt and chiefeſt in our Intentions.

'The Holy Angels of God, when the Foundations of the Earth were laid, did not ſay, here is a rude Maſs of Earth and Water, here is little Light, but where is Heaven, Sun, Moon, and Stars, nay, where is Man made after the Image of God? But on the contrary, as is witneſſed from the Mouth of God himſelf, when the Foundations of the World were faſtened, and only the Corner Stone thereof laid, the Morning Stars ſang all together, and all the Sons of God ſhouted for Joy. From whence we may diſcover one, and that a moſt dangerous Rock, which if not heeded we may ſplit upon, it is a Spirit of Diſcontent and Diſlike of the preſent Diſpenſations of God, becauſe all things are not perfect in an Inſtant, and ſuch as is to be wiſhed they were, and ſuch as poſſibly in God's due time they may be.

'If the preſent Parliament at their firſt Meeting, had given way to ſuch a Spirit as that, and had not (God aſſiſting them ſo to do) on the contrary, put on a Spirit of Patience, and Reſolution to rectify, as far as in them lay, what was amiſs, to improve what was good, and to make the beſt of what God laid before them, preſſing on to Settlement and Perfection, as God ſhould open them a way, without attending either to Rumours or Humours of any Sort, as there were enough of all kinds to have diſcouraged them and diverted them in their Work: I ſay, if they had given way to ſuch a Spirit as that, I know not where we might have been by this time. But now bleſſed be God, we know where we are in ſome meaſure, and that we are in a hopeful Way of Settlement, Safety and Proſperity. You did run well, let no Man hinder you; I do not know that it would be an uncharitable Wiſh, to wiſh them even cut off that ſhall trouble you, and trouble the Peace of the Nation? But I am ſure it is a Chriſtian Wiſh and Prayer to bid you God ſpeed in your Way and in your Work, for the further Settlement of theſe Nations; being confident that the Child unborn will have Cauſe to bleſs you for what

Anno 1657.

'you have already done, and what by God's 'Grace you may yet further do for their Good.

'Thoſe that create new Troubles in a Nation, 'ſeldom attain either the ends held forth in their 'goodly Pretenſions, or indeed aimed at in their 'good Intentions (if any ſuch they have) but 'uſually ſomething falleth out in the end of 'the Tragedy much contrary to their Expecta- 'tion; and ordinarily ſomething of greater Miſ- 'chief and Confuſion than ever they felt before. 'Thoſe that throw Fire upon a Houſe, cannot 'ſay when the Flame is once broken out, that 'it ſhall go ſo far, or ſo far, and no further; 'the Fire when once broken forth, will after 'take its own Courſe, or ſuch a way as boi- 'ſtrous and tempeſtuous Wind ſhall carry it. 'Thoſe that ſhall pluck up the Flood-Gates of 'the great Deep, and let in the ſurging and 'raging Waves of War into a Nation, cannot 'ſtop them, and bound them when and where 'they pleaſe; he only can do that, who firſt 'ſets Bounds and Doors unto them, and ſaid, 'hitherto ſhalt thou come and no further, and here 'ſhall thy proud Waves be ſtayed. Let us there- 'fore beware of the crafty Devices of that ſubtle 'and malicious Serpent, that he beguile us not, 'and that there ariſe not in any of us an evil 'Heart of unbelief, to depart from our Sted- 'faſtneſs, and from our fixed Reſolution to ſeek 'Peace and enſue it.

'There is an evil Root, and it is one and 'the ſame Root, though two different and con- 'trary Fruits ſpring from it, but both tending 'to one and the ſame end, which is to over- 'throw our great End, the Peace and Quiet of 'theſe Nations; and the bleſſed Fruits that grow 'upon them, more precious than the Peace it 'ſelf, though that be a great Bleſſing of, and 'in it ſelf.

'This Root is a Root of Bitterneſs and Diſ- 'content at the preſent Diſpenſations of God; 'the different Fruits thereof are a reſtive and a 'reſtleſs Spirit. The former cauſeth Men, be- 'cauſe that they cannot have all that they will, 'and when they will, to throw up all in a Diſ- 'content, and refuſe to go God's way, and God's 'pace, becauſe they cannot go their own; the 'other Spirit cauſeth Men to be always reſtleſs, 'to be always digging up Foundations, to be 'turning and overturning and diſliking all things.

'As to the firſt Sort, if they would but con- 'ſider the Example of the great Workman, and 'Creator of this bountiful Univerſe, in the Or- 'der and Manner of his Creation thereof, they 'might therein behold as in a Mirrour, the per- 'fect Idea of the Method and Manner of his 'working alſo, in the continual Courſe of his 'Providence, in the Preſervation and Govern- 'ment of the World, and might be taught how 'to order their thoughts and themſelves in re- 'lation to the gradual Diſpenſations of God, 'and learn their own Duty as they are called 'to act under the ſame, and in ſubſerviency 'thereunto. Not only God's Reſt, but alſo his 'Working was exemplary; as God reſted the 'ſeventh Day, ſo muſt Men, as God wrought 'the ſix Days, ſo muſt Men, as well thoſe which 'are to work with the Head, as with the Hand, 'as well rich as poor, as well high as low, none 'are too high to imitate the Moſt High, none 'muſt be idle, but every one muſt ſerve God 'and his Country according to his Calling; and 'that Call cannot but be warrantable which is 'neceſſary, and that is neceſſary which God by 'his Providence ſo orders, that a Man muſt act 'by it or not at all; and that he ſhould not act January 'at all, is neither agreeable to God's Com- 'mandment nor his Example.

'Thus as to the Subſtance of God's working, 'but the very Order and Manner of it hath alſo 'a Teaching in it.

'No doubt if it had ſeemed good to the Divine 'Wiſdom, that powerful Breath, which called 'ſomething out of nothing, could in the ſame 'Breath and in the ſame Inſtant, have given it its 'whole and entire Beauty and Perfection; but 'he was pleaſed to create it by Degrees, and to 'proceed from one Meaſure of Perfection to 'another: When he had drawn the firſt Line 'thereof, he did not diſlike his own Work and 'throw it up, though the Earth was void and 'without Form, and Darkneſs was upon the face 'of the Deep, but went on to create Light, and 'though it was ſtill mixed with Darkneſs, even 'before he had divided the Darkneſs from the 'Light, he ſaw it was good; and ſo at every Pe- 'riod of his Work, he owned the Good that 'was already in being, and then went on till 'he had perfected the Whole; and when he had 'viewed all his Works together, he then ſaw 'they were all very good. What ſhould this 'teach us, but that we ſhould thankfully own 'and receive every Degree of Good which God 'reacheth forth unto us; and with Faith and 'Patience wait upon his Footſteps, following 'him from one Step of Perfection to another, 'till we arrive at the end of his Works, and 'then as we found the Parts thereof good, we 'ſhall find them altogether very good; and 'if God who could have made his Works per- 'fect in an Inſtant, yet was pleaſed to perfect 'them by Degrees, ſurely he would have 'us learn, not to quarrel at the Works of Men, 'if they are not all perfect in a Day; nay, if 'we will take God for our Pattern (as all the 'Excellency that is in the Creature, is ſo far 'forth as there is found in it ſome Shadow and 'Reſemblance of its Creator) though there be 'not only Defects, but alſo real Evils in things; 'yet Men ought not to ſit ſtill and let them take 'their Courſe, but to endeavour to amend them if 'they can, or otherwiſe to draw Good out of 'them if they may, for although to do Evil that 'Good may come of it is a Doctrine of Devils, 'yet to draw Good out of Evil is an high Imi- 'tation of God.

'As to that other Sort of Spirit that is 'over-buſy, and is always turning up Foun- 'dations, I might have forborn to ſay any thing 'of it to you, unto whom I addreſs my 'Speech, as in relation to your ſelves; for 'that either you yourſelves have adviſed the 'Settling that Foundation we now ſtand up- 'on or elſe are laid upon it, or at leaſt are 'or ſhould be all ſworn to it; and as to others 'who would build upon contrary Foundations, 'or upon no certain Foundation, departing from 'and not perfecting that which is already ſo 'well laid, (which may be equally deſtructive to 'our great and good End of Settlement) I need 'not ſay much to them neither; for thoſe 'which conceit either Utopia's of I know not 'what kind of imaginary Commonwealths, or Day- 'dreams of the return of I know not what Gol- 'den Age with the old Line. Their Notions are 'rather bottomed in Conceit than in Reaſon, and 'muſt rather be worn out by Experience than 'argued down by Reaſon; for when they come 'to be put in practice, they preſently diſcover 'their Weakneſs and Inconſiſtency, and that

Anno 1657. January

'they are altogether unpracticable and infeasible, 'or of very short Durance and Continuance, 'as hath appeared so often as they have been 'assayed or attempted: Nay, as to the latter, 'there seemed to be τι θειον aliquid divini to the 'contrary, there having been so constant and 'strong a Current of Providences against it, 'that whosoever have attempted to stem that 'Tide, have not only been carried violently back 'again, but also driven upon Rocks, whereup-'on they have shipwrackt themselves in the At-'tempt, not unlike to those Jews, whom Julian 'the Apostate in despight of Christ, set to re-'build the Temple at Jerusalem upon its old 'Foundation; out of which Balls of Wild-fire issu-'ing forth, affrighted and destroyed the Work-'men, and made them desist from their Work. 'Indeed our Author (and that Party amongst us 'doth the like) being a Heathen and a great 'Friend of Julian, would not acknowledge the 'Hand of God in it, but imputed it to a strange 'Accident, to the Pertinacy of the Element, 'Pertinacia Elementi crebris insultibus terruit opera-'rios, but yet it made them desist from their 'Work; so will not that Party amongst us, no 'Demonstrations of God's Hand against them, 'will prevail with them, but surpassing in Obsti-'nacy the very Jews themselves, they will not 'leave off their Work, but are as hard at it, even 'at this Day as ever; what shall we do with 'these Men that will never be quiet? Æger in-'temperans crudelem facit medicum; & immedicabile 'vulnus ense recidendum.

'There is another Rock, and it is also a dan-'gerous one, it is a Rock upon which many have 'split themselves in our View, and it hath lying 'right over-against it a Quicksand no less dan-'gerous, which hath swallowed up many in our 'Sight. The Rock is a Spirit of imposing upon Mens 'Consciences, where God leaves them a Latitude, 'and would have them free; the Quicksand is 'an abominable Licentiousness to profess and 'practise any Sort of detestable Opinions and 'Principles. For the former, the Prelates and 'all their Adherents, nay, and their Master and 'Supporter too, with all his Posterity, have split 'themselves upon it. The bloody Rebels in Ire-'land, that would endure no Religion but their 'own amongst them, have split themselves upon 'it, and we doubt not but that the Prince of those 'Satanical Spirits, under whose Banner, being cast 'out from hence, they are now retired as unto 'their Beelzebub, will in God's good time, split 'himself also upon this Rock, and be brought 'down to the Ground, together with his bloody 'Inquisition, which therefore hath acquired the 'Sirname of the Spanish Inquisition.

'But as God is no Respecter of Persons, so 'neither is he any Respecter of Forms, but in 'what Form soever this Spirit appeareth, he hath, 'he will testify his displeasure against it, though 'it be not of so deep a dye, as that I have spoken 'of before. If Men, though otherwise good 'Men, will turn Ceremony into Substance, and 'make the Kingdom of Christ to consist in Cir-'cumstances, in Disciplines, in Forms (though 'these things also may have their use, as to 'Order and Decency, so they be strained no 'farther, and not carried beyond their line and 'measure) But I say, if Uniformity in these things 'shall dissolve Unity among Brethren, and espe-'cially if it grow to such a height of Animosity, 'and so high a degree of Asperity, that if one 'say but Siboleth instead of Shiboleth, it shall be 'accounted ground enough to cut his Throat, 'though one of his Brethren. If any Men shall 'account all as Heathens, and no Christians, 'that are not under such or such an Ordinance, 'all Men Devils that are out of such a Circle, 'such a Form, and all Men the Seed of the 'Serpent, that will not father such or such an 'Opinion (it may be but Fancies too when all is 'done) such Principles, such Practices, Men can-'not bear, God will not endure; and in vain do 'they protest against the Persecution of God's 'People, when as eagerly persecuting all others, 'they make the Definition of God's People so 'narrow, that their Persecution becometh as 'broad as any others; and usually more fierce, 'because ordinarily edged with a sharper temper 'of Spirit. It may be that many amongst these 'shall by God's Mercy meet together in Heaven, 'but certainly had they Power at will, they 'would not suffer one another to live upon the 'Earth. Therefore blessed be God, who in 'Mercy to us and them, hath placed the Power 'in such hands as make it their Business to keep 'Peace amongst them, and to hinder them from 'biting and devouring one another. Nay he is 'pleased sweetly to influence some amongst them-'selves of more moderate Spirits to balance the 'rest, and to keep them in Peace at present, and 'not without hopes, by God's Blessing upon their 'Persuasions and Examples, to bring them at 'length to a nearer Conjunction of Hearts and 'of Minds. And if those that are more earnest 'amongst them, would be but a little jealous 'over their own Spirits, would but observe the 'Rebukes of God upon all that have been tran-'sported unto those Extremes, and trace the 'Footsteps of his Indignation against them '(whereof he hath left several Prints in all the 'three Nations) it might be a good help to re-'duce them to that Golden-mean, which cer-'tainly is the right way, which undoubtedly is 'God's way. God was not in the Whirlwind 'nor in the Earthquake, nor in the Fire when 'he came to Elias on the Mount of God, but 'he was in the still and small Voice. There 'must be a Voice, but it must be a small and 'still Voice; enough to hold forth a certain and 'distinct Sound, but not to make so great a 'Noise as to drown all other Voices besides. 'It is good, it is useful to hold forth a certain 'Confession of the Truth, but not so as there-'by to exclude all those that cannot come up 'to it in all Points, from the Privileges which 'belong to them as Christians, much less which 'belong to them as Men.

'For that other Extreme, that Gulf and Quick-'sand, whereupon so many wretched Souls have 'made Shipwrack of Faith and a good Consci-'ence, abandoning themselves to all Looseness 'of Opinions, Principles and Practices, denying 'and blaspheming the Lord that bought us, and 'the Holy Spirit that sanctified us, making a 'mock of Scriptures, of Heaven and Hell, and 'of all the Fundamentals of our most Holy 'Faith; I need not speak more to it, there is 'Testimonium rei in the Case, the things them-'selves speak loud enough to all sober Consci-'ences that they are intolerable.

'Between these two, that Rock, and this 'Quicksand, the Parliament in their humble Pe-'tition and Advice, have most wisely and most 'christianly steered their Course; wherein if 'they shall constantly persevere, all good Men in 'City, in Country, in Army, and every where, 'nay God himself will stand by them, and own 'them in it; and not only in matters of Reli'gion,

Anno 1657.

'gion, but alſo in our civil Concerns and Liber-
'ties, we have a very fair way traced out unto us
'by the Parliament to ſettle and ſecure them
'both, and make the three Nations happy there-
'by, if ſome therein would but rectify their Opi-
'nions, and bring them to things as God would 'have them, and not ſtrive to bring things with
'ſo much hazard and difficulty to their Opini'ons; like one thing that being ſcorched with
'ſtanding too near the Fire rather than ſtir an 'Inch from the Place where he hath ſet down
'his Foot, caſts about for Maſons and Work-
'men to pull the Houſe down, that ſo he may
'ſet the Chimney farther off from him. Give 'me leave to ſpeak one word more in this fami-
'liar way of Expreſſion, in the Dialect, and to
'the Senſe and Experience of every plain Coun-
'tryman.

'The late Wars and Confuſions had ſo trod
'and trampled down the Quick-wood, whereby
'the Hedge was made to fence in our Laws and
'Liberties, that there is a Neceſſity of ſetting
'it over again.

'Now ſome will admit of no other way, but
'to ſet the very ſame old Planks in the very ſelf
'ſame old Bank, others run ſo far to the extreme
'on the other ſide, that they will have none of 'the old Sets, none of the old Bank, no Bank at
'all, but will have their fence ſet upon a Level,
'and upon the plain Ground.

'A third ſort like a middle way, as on the one
'ſide not to meddle with the old, dry, and dead
'Bank (for that upon often Eſſays and Treaties
'it hath been found the Sets will not take in it) ſo
'on the other ſide, not to ſet them upon the plain
'Ground, leſt the Beaſts, and the Herds and
'Flocks ſhould tread them down at every turn as
'they paſs to and fro, according as their Food or
'Fancy lead them; but to place the Sets in two
'Tables upon a Bank raiſed up as before, but of a
'freſh and live Mould, and to make uſe of all
'Plants both old and new, that will take to the
'freſh Ground and thrive in it; the Countryman
'finds this no ill Husbandry in his way, and we 'may find the like no ill Policy in our way; and
'truly if it pleaſe the Lord to water our new-ſet
'Plants with the Dews of Heaven, and that (by
'our own Diſcord among our ſelves falling one
'from another, and from the Bank we ſtand up-
'on) we do not open Gaps for them, who would
'make a Breach in our Mould: We have great
'Opportunities and Advantages by what the Par'liament hath already done, to ſettle a firm and
'laſting Fence about our Liberties, both Civil
'and Spiritual; and ſuch a one as no Beaſts of
'the Field, neither great nor ſmall, no Perſons
'whatſoever, neither high nor low, ſhall be able 'to paſs through it, or get over it, or tread it
'down.

'But then we muſt beware and take heed of
'the ſubtle Devices of ſuch, who deſigning to
'deſtroy it, judge (and not without reaſon) they 'have no ſuch time to compaſs their Purpoſe, as
'to diſturb and diſtract our Settlement in the 'Infancy thereof, before the two Rows of Sets
'have taken deep Root in the Bank, and before
'they be grown up together, and are interwea-
'ved and plaſhed one into the other; for then
'they fear it will be too late to do it: the Fence
'will be grown ſtrong like a triple Cord which 'cannot eaſily be broken, unleſs they can untwiſt
'it, and unravel it again; which after ſome time
'and continuance, and the mutual Intercourſes
'of Love and Experience of each others Uſeful-

4 'neſs

'neſs to one another, and to the Commonwealth, January
'it will not be eaſy for them to do.

'Therefore we muſt have an Eye not only to
'the wild Boars of the Foreſt, that they root not
'up our Fence, but alſo to the Foxes, thoſe lit-
'tle Foxes which ſpoil the Vines, for our Vine
'hath tender Grapes. Let the chief Magiſtrate
'and the two Houſes of Parliament eſteem each
'other as Bone of their Bone, and Fleſh of their
'Fleſh; let them be of one Heart, and like the 'form and figure of an Heart, which though
'triangular, is but one Heart. Let there be one
'Mind, one Soul, and one Spirit, that may act
'and animate the whole, and every part, and be 'whole in the whole, and whole in every part. Let
'one and the ſame good Blood run in and through
'them all, and by a perpetual Circulation pre-
'ſerve the whole and every part in perfect Unity,
'Strength and Vigour.

'This Conſtitution of a chief Magiſtrate and
'two Houſes of Parliament, is not Pageantry,
'but a real and well meaſured Advantage to it
'ſelf, and to the Commonwealth; and ſo conſo-
'nant to reaſon, that it is the very Emblem and
'Idea of Reaſon it ſelf, which, reaſoneth and
'diſcourſeth by a Medium between two Extremes.
'If there be two Extremes, and the one vary
'from the other, how ſhall they be reconciled
'if there be no Medium to bring them together?
'Where one cannot prevail with one, two may
'with a third. Where one Foot ſlippeth, indeed
'the other may help the Body from falling, but
'if both be tript up, and it fall, what ſhall re-
'tain it, if there be not a third to put forth
'the Hand to help it up again? If one be aſſault-
'ed, will not the other be concerned in it, and
'run to its defence? But if both be attempted
'and expoſed to Violence, will they not ſtand in 'need of a Protector? If ſome hazard muſt be 'run in popular Elections to preſerve the Peoples
'Freedoms, may there not be ſome help therein,
'by the Election of the chief Magiſtrate, that it
'turn not at any time to its own Prejudice? If 'any thing inconvenient ſhould chance to ſlip out
'at one Door, muſt it not paſs two more before
'it come abroad to the Detriment of the People?
'How exact and of how great Reſpect and Au-
'thority will be all your Acts, Laws and Reſolu-
'tions, when as after they have paſſed the Exa'mination of that great Body which ſees with the 'Eye of the three Nations, and is acquainted with
'the Condition, and ſenſible of the Neceſſities of 'every individual part thereof, they ſhall then
'paſs a ſecond Scrutiny and be poliſhed and re-
'fined by ſuch, as during Life ſhall make it their
'Buſineſs either to fit themſelves for, or to be 'exerciſed in things of that nature; being
'alſo aſſiſted by all the Reverend Judges of 'the Land, and other learned Perſons of that
'Robe, ſo oft as there ſhall be Occaſion to re-
'quire their Advice; and when as after all this
'they muſt paſs alſo the Judgment and Aſſent
'of the chief Magiſtrate, who is placed on high
'as upon a Watch-Tower, from whence he may
'behold at one View, and diſcover the State of 'the whole Body Politick and every Part there-
'of, and ſee not only near at hand but alſo afar
'off, how it ſtandeth in relation to foreign States
'as well as to its own Parts within it ſelf.

'I might enlarge much more upon this Sub'ject, and it is not to be forgotten, that each
'Houſe taking a more ſpecial Care of what is
'moſt proper for it, and it moſt proper for,
'whilſt the Repreſentative of the Commons pro-

'videth

Anno 1657. ‘ videth and ſtrengtheneth the Sinews of War, ‘ to preſerve the Commonwealth from the De- ‘ ſtruction in groſs, by publick Force and Vio- ‘ lence; the other Houſe will preſerve it from ‘ Deſtruction by Retail, through the due Admi- ‘ niſtration of Juſtice, ſuppreſſing particular ‘ Wrongs and Oppreſſions, which would ſoon ‘ break out into open Flames and publick Ra- ‘ pines, if they were not prevented by the Courts ‘ of Judicature, whereof the higheſt and laſt Re- ‘ ſort is there. But I ſhall leave what is omitted ‘ in this Point to Time and Experience, which I ‘ am confident will ſpeak more fully and more ef- ‘ fectually, and more convincingly than the ‘ Tongue of any Man can ſet forth.

‘ And ſo I paſs on to the laſt Point, and ſhall ‘ briefly touch upon ſome Difficulties and Impe- ‘ diments which we may meet with in our way. ‘ And the firſt that ſome may be in danger to ‘ ſtumble at, is the Apprehenſion of Novelty in ‘ this Conſtitution, becauſe it is not in every ‘ Point agreeable to what was before. For re- ‘ moval hereof, let us conſider, that neither is ‘ the Condition of the Nation at preſent, as it ‘ was before; and it may be, it is not good it ‘ ſhould be ſo, or at leaſt, that it is not God's ‘ Will it ſhall be ſo; it is rather little leſs than ‘ a Miracle, that after ſo great Shakings and Con- ‘ fuſions, it ſhould ſo ſoon come to that State ‘ that it is already in. And if we well and wiſely ‘ conſider how great variety of Humours and Judg- ‘ ments, and what different Intereſts and Powers ‘ theſe Wars have raiſed amongſt us, and how ‘ differently placed and lodged from that which ‘ was before, it is no wonder if every one cannot ‘ have what he thinks beſt in his Judgment to ‘ be done, but ought rather to content himſelf ‘ with what he may think next beſt, to that which ‘ is firſt in his Judgment, which probably may ‘ be beſt of all in it ſelf; for that every one is a ‘ partial Judge as to that thing which hath taken ‘ the firſt Impreſſion in his Mind, and ſo paſſed ‘ into a prejudicate Opinion. But above all, we ‘ muſt have the Peace and Settlement of the Na- ‘ tions, Quâcunque datâ viâ, as a Pole-ſtar be- ‘ fore our Eyes, ſteering our Courſe thereby, ‘ without giving ear to the inchanting Songs of ‘ any Sirens, and without giving way to any Sug- ‘ geſtions of Indignation which proud Fleſh may ‘ aſſault our Minds withal; but with generous ‘ Reſolutions preſs on to Settlement, conquering ‘ our Temptations, and ſubduing our own Spi- ‘ rits, if in any thing at any time they ſhall riſe ‘ againſt this Work, whereby we ſhall gain more ‘ true Honour before Men, and before God, than ‘ if we had ſubdued a City, than if we had con- ‘ quer'd a Nation; and indeed we ſhall do no leſs ‘ thereby than preſerve three Nations.

‘ Another Difficulty ariſeth unto us from the ‘ Diſſatisfaction of ſome of our ancient Friends, ‘ who have been, and might ſtill be uſeful to ‘ us in the Work which we have now in hand; ‘ which if it be not a greater Difficulty unto us, ‘ than that of our ſecret and open Enemies (of ‘ whom I ſhall ſpeak anon) it is a greater Trou- ‘ ble and Grief to us, becauſe that we love them ‘ ſo much, and fear the other ſo little; not that ‘ they are not a formidable Enemy, but now by ‘ the Conjunction of our late inbred Enemy, with ‘ that old Enemy of our Nation and Religion, ‘ and of God himſelf, who is our Hope and chief- ‘ eſt Help: We ſhall have God a greater and a ‘ cloſer Friend unto us, becauſe we have to do ‘ with his greateſt Enemies. But for thoſe of our ‘ Friends who content themſelves with their Pri- Januar. ‘ vacy and Country Retirement in theſe great ‘ Difficulties of the Commonwealth:’ For the Diviſions of Reuben there are great Thoughts of heart. Why abideſt thou among the Sheepfolds to hear the bleating of the Flocks? Surely for the Diviſions of Reuben there are great Searchings of heart. How ſhall we bind up the Wounds we re- ceive in the Houſe of our Friend? What ſhall we do for our Siſter that hath no Breaſts? That will afford no Milk? If ſhe be a Wall, we will build a Palace of Silver upon her; and if ſhe be a Door, we will incloſe her with Boards of Cedar. ‘ If ‘ they will give to us any Foundation to work upon, ‘ we will build upon it, we will improve it, we will ‘ multiply Obligations upon them; we will heap Coals ‘ of Fire upon their Heads: If they will not let us ‘ follow them, let them follow us, we will either lead ‘ or follow in the Work of God.

‘ And if our Words cannot convince them, we ‘ will endeavour that our Works may do it; and ‘ what we cannot do our ſelves, we will pray to ‘ God to do for us, and to find out ways which ‘ we cannot, to reunite our Hearts and Hands who ‘ have been engaged together in the ſame Cauſe, ‘ and are ſtill embarked in the ſame Bottom, and ‘ muſt ſink and ſwim, muſt run the ſame hazard ‘ and fortune together; I mean the ſame Iſſue and ‘ Event of God's Providence towards us, whether ‘ it be for good, or whether it be for evil. As to ‘ our Enemies both ſecret and open, they are con- ‘ tinually plotting and contriving to create us all ‘ the trouble that they can, and want not means ‘ for to effect it, our home-bred Enemies being ‘ now in conjunction with that our great foreign ‘ Enemy, who vaunt themſelves of their King, ‘ that he poſſeſſeth more Riches, more Crowns, ‘ and more Dominions than ever any Chriſtian ‘ Prince did, and that his Empire is ten times ‘ greater than that of the Great Turk, and larger ‘ than ever was that of the Romans; and that ‘ he might more juſtly than the Perſian King, ‘ ſtile himſelf King of Kings, Brother of the Sun ‘ and Moon; and that the Sun never ſets upon his ‘ Dominions, and the like. And yet to all theſe ‘ Riches, to all this Power, to all theſe Titles, ‘ we are not afraid to oppoſe the One ſingle ‘ Name of The Lord, our God; and if it do not ‘ diminiſh our Difficulty, yet it doth not a little ‘ eaſe our Minds, that all our Enemies are re- ‘ duced unto that Head which profeſſeth him- ‘ ſelf to be the Head of that Antichriſtian Facti- ‘ on which oppoſeth all the Chriſtian Churches ‘ in the World, and would keep them and bring ‘ them under the Iron Yoke of his bloody In- ‘ quiſition; and every Blow that we ſhall level ‘ at that Head in way of defence or offence, will ‘ in ſome proportion redound to the advantage ‘ of all good Chriſtians throughout the World.

‘ And now it would be very ſtrange if all good ‘ Men ſhould not ſee, and be convinced what ‘ Thread it was that run all along through our ‘ Quarrel in the late Wars; and though at firſt ‘ it was more finely ſpun, and more cloſely ‘ wrought, that it could not ſo eaſily be diſcerned, ‘ yet now that it is unravelled to its Bottom, it ‘ more clearly diſcovers its Riſe, by its Reſort: ‘ And if the Intereſt of that Party ſhall be again ‘ enthroned amongſt us, and brought in upon the ‘ Wings of that double-headed black Eagle, (or ‘ rather Vulture) What will become of the poor ‘ Lambs of Chriſt? What can we expect (but ‘ according to the Agreement between them) a ‘ Toleration of Popery in England and Scotland,

'and a Profeſſion and Protection of it in Ireland, 'with an Inundation of Looſeneſs and Prophaneneſs on the one ſide, and of Tyranny and Oppreſſion on the other.

'We ought then to believe, and we have good 'Ground to reſt our Faith upon. But cum Deo 'movenda eſt manus, we ought ſo to believe, as 'though we had made no Proviſion at all; and 'yet we ought ſo to make Proviſion, in ſubſerviency to God's Providence, as if we did not 'believe at all. And his Highneſs doth acknowledge the great Care and Proviſion of the 'Parliament for the carrying on of this War, 'in purſuance of their moſt Chriſtian and truly 'Engliſh Spirit and Reſolution, in owning that 'Quarrel againſt that old Enemy of their Religion, and of their Nation. Yet I muſt acquaint you, That the Supplies granted have 'fallen ſhort of the Commonwealth's Neceſſities, 'becauſe indeed they have fallen ſhort of the 'Parliament's own Expectations, according to the 'loweſt Eſtimate that they were reckoned at: 'Eſpecially that of the New Buildings, wherein 'what have been the particular Obſtructions, 'and what may be the proper Remedies; as alſo the full and perfect State of your Revenue, 'you will particularly underſtand from the Lords 'Commiſſioners of the Treaſury, and ſuch other 'Perſons as his Highneſs will appoint to inform 'you therein, which cannot be expected at this 'time from me, who have already held you too 'long, and ſpent too much of your time, and 'tired out your Patience, which you will have 'occaſion enough to make uſe of to better Purpoſes. This only I ſhall add before I conclude, 'That though I ſhall not, I muſt not, I dare not 'flatter Man in the Preſence of God (and his 'Preſence is more than ordinary in ſuch Aſſemblies as this) yet you all know, and the three 'Nations know, and all the Nations round about us know, that the Quiet, Peace, and Welfare of theſe Nations, doth at preſent in great 'meaſure, under God, depend upon his Highneſs's Life: And therefore with Hearts and Hands 'lifted up to Heaven, let us pray for the Continuance of it, and of the Influences of God's 'gracious Spirit upon his Mind and Heart, for 'the Weal and good Government of theſe Nations.

'And, Sir, whatever you are, or ſhall be, whatever you have done, or ſhall do, and whatever 'Abilities you are, or ſhall be endowed with, 'are not from, nor for your ſelf, but from and 'for God, and for the good of Men, and eſpecially of God's People amongſt Men. To 'which ends, that you may lay forth your ſelf 'and them, and improve all the Opportunities, 'and employ all the Power which God hath put 'into your Hands, is the Hope, is the Prayer 'of all good Men. And in ſo doing, you ſhall 'have Comfort, you ſhall have Honour, and we 'ſhall have Safety, and we ſhall have Happineſs; 'that Happineſs to ſee Truth and Peace, Juſtice 'and Mercy kiſs each other, and Chriſt ſet upon his Throne in theſe Lands; not in that literal and carnal way, which hath ſo much intoxicated the Brains and Minds of many in 'theſe our Days, but in Spirit and in Truth; and 'more conformable to that which Chriſt himſelf hath pronounced, That his Kingdom is not 'of this World. And yet muſt all the Kingdoms 'of the World be ſubſervient to that World 'which is to come, to that Kingdom which is 'above. Whereupon having our Eyes fixt, let 'us bend our courſe that way, with our Faces thi-

'therward, diſcharging every one his Duty in his Febr. 'Place diligently and faithfully, and finiſhing the 'Work which God hath appointed us to do in 'this Life, that in the Life to come we may hear 'that ſweet and bleſſed Voice directed unto us, 'Come good and faithful Servants, enter into your 'Maſter's Joy.

21. The Houſe of Lords appointed a Committee for Privileges, and a Committee for Petitions, and ſent to the Houſe of Commons for a Day of Humiliation to be appointed. The Meſſengers were two of the Judges, who all ſat Aſſiſtants as formerly in the Houſe of Lords. Committees.

25. Upon a Letter from the Protector to the Speaker of the Houſe of Commons, they met his Highneſs in the Banqueting-Houſe, and he exhorted them to Unity, and to the Obſervance of their own Rules in the Petition and Advice; and gave them a ſtate of the publick Accounts and good Counſel. Protector.

27. Both Houſes kept a Day of Humiliation within their own Walls.

28. The Houſe of Lords ſent a Meſſage to the Houſe of Commons three Days paſt, by Judge Windham and Baron Hill; the Houſe of Commons put off the Anſwer to that Meſſage: Sir Arthur Haſelrigge and ſome others not allowing the Houſe of Lords, and fomenting by their diſſatisfied Spirits a difference betwixt the two Houſes. This Day they again put off their Anſwer to the Meſſage, which cauſed Diſtaſte in the other Houſe and Protector, and was contrary to what themſelves had at their laſt Meeting aſſented unto. Diviſions.

30. The Houſe of Lords taking into Conſideration the State of Affairs relating to foreign Princes and States, and particularly to Sweden; I gave them a full Account of my Negotiation in Sweden, and of the Intereſt of this Nation in relating to Sweden; with which Account the Houſe ſeemed greatly ſatisfied.

The Houſe of Commons again put off their Anſwer to the Lords.

February, 1657.

2. The Debate of the Anſwer of the Houſe of Commons to the Meſſage of the Lords Houſe was again adjourned.

3. The Houſe of Lords ſent another Meſſage by two Judges, to the Houſe of Commons, who told them they would ſend an Anſwer by Meſſengers of their own: And then the Houſe of Commons (as formerly) took in Debate what Appellation they ſhould give to the other Houſe; many were againſt the calling of them the Houſe of Lords; ſome were againſt the having of ſuch another Houſe, perhaps becauſe they were not thought fit to be Members of it; and others were againſt it upon other Fancies, and upon a Spirit of Contradiction, and ſome ſpake reproachfully in the Houſe of Commons of the other Houſe. Other Houſe.

All theſe Paſſages tended to their own Deſtruction, which was not difficult to foreſee. The Protector looked upon himſelf as aimed at by them, though with a ſide-wind, and Teſtimonies of their Envy towards him; and he was the more incenſed, becauſe at this time the Fifth-Monarchy-men began again their Enterprizes to overthrow him, and his Government by force; whereof there were clear Diſcoveries: he therefore took a Reſolution ſuddenly to diſſolve this Parliament. Fifth-Monarchy-men. Parliament Diſſolution.

I diſſuaded him from it, and told him the danger of frequent diſſolving of Parliaments, the Straits it would bring him into for Money, which he

Anno 1658. he could not raiſe without the higheſt Diſcontent; except it were given by them: that a little time would cool theſe Heats, and bring the Parliament into a better Temper; but ſome fierce Men, and Flatterers to comply with him, adviſed the diſſolving of them.

4. The Protector came to the Houſe of Lords in the Morning, and cauſed the Uſher of the Black Rod to go to the Houſe of Commons and acquaint them, that his Highneſs was in the Lords Houſe, and there expected them. Thereupon the Speaker and the whole Houſe came to the Lords Houſe, where his Highneſs made a Speech to them, declaring ſeveral urgent and weighty Reaſons, making it neceſſary for him, in order to the publick Peace and Safety, to proceed to an immediate Diſſolution of this Parliament. And accordingly his Highneſs diſſolved the Parliament.

Some were troubled at this, others rejoiced at the Troubles, and were ſuſpected to be Aſſiſters of the new Deſigns of Inſurrection.

Plot. Divers were impriſoned upon the new Plot, and the Protector and his Council were buſy in the Examinations concerning it: and Thurloe did Harriſon. them good ſervice; Major General Harriſon was deep in it.

12. Divers ſeditious Books taken of the Conſpirators.

Sweden. News of the King of Sweden's Succeſs in Liefland againſt the Poles, and that by the Froſt he marched his Troops of Horſe over the Ice, croſs an Arm of the Sea, and got by that means into the Iſle of Fuenen, which he gained; that he loſt only one Troop which was ſunk by the breaking of the Ice, whilſt the Troop were marching upon it.

16. The Contract was confirmed by the Council, touching Tonnage and Poundage, and the Exciſe wherein the Commiſſioners of the Treaſury took pains.

19. I was much retired, and not ſatisfied with the publick Tranſactions.

March, 1657.

March 1. Applications from a Scotch Lord to the Protector, to reſtore this Lord to a Place in Scotland, from which he had been unjuſtly removed.

16. The Funeral of Alderman Wright.

Plots. 17. The Cavalier Party were again at work upon a new Deſign, whereof the Protector had Intelligence from abroad, and from ſome of the Actors here; about this he adviſed with me, and ſent for the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of London, and acquainted them with it, and deſired their Care to put the City into a Poſture of Defence.

18. A Petition and Repreſentation was delivered to his Highneſs from the City of London, of their Faithfulneſs and Duty to him.

Addreſſes. 19. Divers the like Addreſſes were made from General Monk's and other Regiments, and his Highneſs anſwered them with Thanks.

20. News of the Peace concluded between the Kings of Sweden and Denmark.

24. The Protector ordered 200 l. to be paid out of the Treaſury to Manaſſeh Ben Iſrael the Jewiſh Rabbi.

April, 1658.

Proteſtants April 11. I furthered a Collection for the perſecuted Proteſtants in Poland and in Bohemia.

12. The Protector by Letters Patents made four Baronets.

High Court of Juſtice. 17. The Protector adviſed with me about ſetting up a High Court of Juſtice, for Trial of the Conſpirators now in Priſon, but I adviſed rather to have them proceeded againſt in the ordinary courſe of Trials at the Common Law: but his Highneſs was too much in love with the new way, and thought it to be the more effectual, and would the more terrify the Offenders. June.

19. Several Addreſſes were made to the Protector from Regiments of the Army, and from the Forces in Mardike, with Profeſſions to adhere to him. The Protector in his Anſwer to ſome of them did impart to them, The preſent Deſigns of the Enemy, that Commiſſions were ſent over hither from the King of Scots, and that he had 4000 Men in Flanders ready to be embarked into England to join with his Party here, and Ships ready to tranſport them; and therefore it behoved all honeſt Men to provide for a Defence, and to join heartily together. Addreſſes.

22. Thus the Protector's Party were full of Unquietneſs and Alarms, and yet it pleaſed God to keep up their Spirits from being daunted.

24. I and the reſt of the Commiſſioners of the Treaſury, the Recorder of London, and the Maſters of the Requeſts, or any two of them appointed by the Council, a Committee to hear Appeals from Guernſey and Jerſey, and to report their Opinions therein to the Council.

27. The Commiſſioners of the Seal and of the Treaſury, the Judges and many others were nominated Commiſſioners under the Great Seal for the Trial of the preſent Conſpirators againſt the Protector and Governor; but I never ſat with them, it being againſt my Judgment. High Court of Juſtice.

May, 1658.

May 1. Sergeant Maynard was by Patent made his Highneſs's Sergeant at Law.

13. Sir Roger Moſtyn was ſecured, and a Priſoner to Colonel Carter at Conway.

15. I procured Sir Roger Moſtyn's Liberty upon his Parole, to be at his own Houſe at Moſtyn, engaging to do nothing prejudicial to the preſent Government.

17. Sir John Borlace, and ſeveral others were ſecured at this time.

20. News of the Progreſs of the Engliſh and French Forces before Dunkirk.

21. Thirty Apprentices Priſoners in the Tower upon the new Plot were examined: I adviſed that Lenity ſhould be uſed towards them.

25. The Trial of Dr. Hewet before the new Commiſſioners of the High Court of Juſtice, this Day; the Doctor did not carry himſelf prudently. Dr. Hewet

June, 1658.

June 3. I gave a Penſioner's Place in Sutton's Hoſpital to Mr. Quatermaine.

4. Applications to me about Penſions out of the Treaſury.

5. Mr. Mordaunt one of the great Actors in the new Conſpiracy, had favour from the Commiſſioners by my means.

6. News of the total Defeat given to the Spaniſh Army which came to relieve Dunkirk, and of the gallant Service performed by the Engliſh, wherein the Lord Ambaſſador Lockart gained much Honour; 1200 Spaniards were ſlain, and 2000 taken Priſoners; the Engliſh and French did gallantly. Dunkirk

8. Sir Henry Slingsby and Dr. Hewet were beheaded at Tower-hill.

9. Sir Humphry Bennet being to be tried for the new Conſpiracy, Applications were made by his Friends to the Commiſſioners of the High Court

Anno 1658. of Juſtice for favour to him, and his Life was ſaved; but the kindneſs of his Friends not remembred.

Duke of Crequi. 15. Audience to the Duke of Crequi and Monſieur Mancini, ſent from the King of France and from the Cardinal Mazarine to the Protector, to congratulate the Succeſs of the King's and the Protector's joint Forces, and to compliment his Highneſs, who anſwered their Compliments, and expreſſed like Affection to the Alliance with his Majeſty of France.

Dunkirk taken. 21. Intelligence of the Surrender of Dunkirk, and that the King of France, the Cardinal, and General Lockart entred the Town with their Forces, and Lockart was put into the poſſeſſion and command of it.

23. I having been formerly employed by the Protector, together with Mr. Bond, and no others, about a Propoſal for betraying this Town, by the then Spaniſh Governor of it, unto the Protector for Money, which the Protector then refuſed as a diſhonourable Action; ſome Overtures were made to me to be Governor of that Place, upon Lockart's Employment in other Services; but I was not ſatisfied to undertake it, though it was a Command very honourable and profitable: nor was I ambitious of that Preferment, or endeavouring to obtain it.

24. News of the taking of Bergen by the Engliſh and French.

26. Sir Thomas Widdrington was made Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer.

30. According to my former Advice to the Protector, wherein Thurloe agreed, divers others of the new Conſpirators were referred to be tried at the Upper-Bench Bar, after the courſe of the Common Law.

July, 1658.

July 2. Several of the new Conſpirators tried, and found guilty.

6. Several of them were executed in London, and at Tyburn.

8. Mr. Hugh Peters related the Paſſages of Mardike and Dunkirk, where he preached to the Soldiers.

14. Upon a Report from the Commiſſioners of the Treaſury, the Protector and Council made ſeveral Orders for bringing in Money in Arrear to the State.

Records. 17. Mr. Ryley the Herald, and Clerk of the Records in the Tower, promiſed great Service about the Calendring of the Records.

18. The Protector was at Hampton-Court, and his Council there with him.

21. The Protector kept a Day of Thankſgiving for the Succeſſes in Flanders.

24. News of the Siege of Graveling by the Engliſh and French Forces.

Auguſt, 1658.

Auguſt 6. A general Meeting of the Adventurers for Ireland.

Lady Clay-pole. 7. News of the Death of the Lady Elizabeth Claypole yeſterday at Hampton-Court; ſhe was a Lady of excellent Parts, dear to her Parents, and civil to all Perſons, and courteous, and friendly to all Gentlemen of her acquaintance; her Death did much grieve her Father.

12. The Protector was ill at Hampton-Court.

13. The Attorney Widdrington, and the Sollicitor General, were made Baronets. Septemb. Baronets.

16. Mr. Robinſon had a Project to raiſe Money for the Publick.

17. Sir John Winter had a Project of charking of Sea-Coal, whereby it became as ſweet Fuel as Wood or Charcoal, and he ſent ſome of it with a new faſhion'd Grate to ſeveral great Men for a Trial; but it came to nothing. Projects.

21. A Bill ſigned by his Highneſs for a Patent to make me a Viſcount, and in Secretary Thurloe's hand to be paſſed; but I did not think it convenient for me.

22. Graveling was deliver'd up to the French upon Articles.

24. The Duke of Buckingham was apprehended, and committed to the Tower. D. Bucks.

26. The Protector being ſick at Hampton-Court, as ſome thought of an Ague,

I went thither to viſit him, and was kindly entertained by his Highneſs at dinner; he diſcourſed privately with me about his great Buſineſſes.

28. The Earl of Mulgrave, one of his Highneſs's Council, died in the way as he was coming up to London. Earl Mulgrave dies.

September, 1658.

Sept. 3. This Day about two a Clock in the Afternoon, the Protector died at Hampton-Court, the ſame Day that he had before obtained the Victories at Dunbar, and at Worceſter, he now went to reſt in the Grave; after his many great Actions and Troubles, he now died quietly in his Bed: Some were of Opinion that he was poiſoned. Protector dies.

Immediately upon his Death the Council aſſembled, and being ſatisfy'd that the Protector in his Life-time, according to the Petition and Advice, had declared his Son Richard to be his Succeſſor, the Council cauſed the ſame to be proclaimed in a ſolemn manner in London and Weſtminſter; and they went the ſame day to Richard to acquaint him with it, and ſent a Committee of the Council into the City to inform them hereof. Richard proclaimed.

The Proclamation of Richard to be Lord Protector, was made in London in the following words:

Whereas it hath pleaſed the moſt wiſe God in his Providence to take out of this World the moſt ſerene and renowned Oliver, late Lord Protector of this Commonwealth: And his Highneſs having in his Life-time, according to the humble Petition and Advice, declared and appointed the moſt noble and illuſtrious the Lord Richard, eldeſt Son of his ſaid late Highneſs to ſucceed him in the Government of theſe Nations: We therefore of the Privy-Counſil, together with the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Citizens of London, the Officers of the Army, and numbers of other principal Gentlemen, do now hereby with one full Voice and conſent of Tongue and Heart, publiſh and declare the ſaid noble and illuſtrious Lord Richard to be rightful Protector of this Commonwealth of England, Scotland, and Ireland, and the Dominions and Territories thereunto belonging: To whom we do acknowledge all Fidelity and conſtant Obedience according to Law, and the ſaid humble Petition and Advice; with all hearty and humble Affections, beſeeching the Lord, by whom Princes rule, to bleſs him with long Life, and theſe Nations with Peace and Happineſs under his Government.

20. News of the Surrender of the Caſtle of Cronenberg, by the Danes, to the King of Sweden.

Addreſſes. 25. Several Addreſſes came to the new Protector, declaring Satisfaction in his Succeſſion, and Reſolution to adhere to him.

28. News of good Service performed in Liefland by General Douglas; and of the King of Sweden's Succeſſes in Denmark.

October, 1658.

October 2. An Addreſs from the Sea-Officers, acknowledging Richard, and proteſting to ſtand by him; and from General Monk and his Officers in Scotland.

4. News of the taking of Ypres by the Engliſh and French in Flanders.

5. Addreſſes to Richard from Portſmouth.

6. An Addreſs from the French, Dutch, and Italian Churches in London.

Richard. 7. The Gentlemen and Freeholders of Buckinghamſhire, having framed an Addreſs to Richard, wherein moſt of the principal Gentlemen were engaged: When they had got it ſigned, they pitched upon me to preſent it, whom a great number of them accompany'd to Richard with the Addreſs, and were quickly admitted to his Preſence: I with a ſhort Speech preſented it to him, and Richard made a very good prudent Anſwer, and thanked the Gentlemen for their Affections.

10. Letters from Bergen-op-Zome, of the News of thoſe Parts, and of their great Fleet, and aſſiſting the King of Denmark againſt the King of Sweden.

I was adviſed with about the Ceremonies of the Protector's Funeral. Novemb

11. Mr. Fell died, he was a good Lawyer and a good Man, he ſerved the Parliament as a Soldier, and they made him Commiſſioner of the Seal for Lancaſter, and ſecond Juſtice of Cheſter.

8. News of the Fight at Sea, betwixt the Swedes and the Dutch, who came to relieve Copenhagen, Admiral Wrangell behaved himſelf very gallantly; and the Swedes had much the better in the Fight: but whilſt the Swediſh Ships were engaged, the Merchant-men got by, and brought the deſired Relief to Copenhagen.

13. Guſtavus du Val, Emperor from the King of Sweden, had Audience, and took his leave of Richard.

16. Addreſſes to Richard from the Officers of the Army, preſented by Desborough.

18. I conſtantly attended the Buſineſs of the Treaſury, and the Lord chief Baron with me; but the Commiſſioners, General Mountague and Colonel Sydenham, were often abſent by reaſon of their Attendance upon the Council.

20. The Officers of the Army attended Richard, and made large Profeſſions to him of their Obedience and Faithfulneſs; and he courted them at a high rate.

23. The Funeral of the old Protector was celebrated with great Solemnity; the Officers of State, the Council, the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of London, the Houſe of Lords, the Officers of the Army, the Servants of the Protector, the Judges and Officers of Law, the Citizens of London, the Soldiers in their Troops and Companies, the ordinary Guards, and an infinite number of Spectators within the Rails of the Streets, and in the Windows. At this Solemnity were alſo preſent the foreign Miniſters and Ambaſſadors. Oliver's Funeral.

25. More Addreſſes were preſented to Richard from ſeveral Counties.

26. Richard knighted General Morgan a very gallant Perſon.

27. Sergeant Windham and Sergeant Nicholas were made Judges, and Mr. Archer was made a Sergeant.

29. Several Audiences were given by Richard to foreign Miniſters ſent to him from neighbouring Princes and States, to condole the Death of his Father, and to congratulate his Succeſſion to the Government.

Anno 1658.

December, 1658.

December 4. Richard by Advice of his Council reſolved to call a Parliament to meet on the 27th. day of January next.

6. Richard knighted Captain Beke.

9. More Addreſſes were made to Richard.

19. New Addreſſes to Richard.

30. My Son James was choſen a Burgeſs for the Town of Ailesbury.

January, 1658.

January 4. My Son William and Captain Thornhill were choſen Burgeſſes in Parliament for the Town of Reading.

6. My Son William was choſen one of the Burgeſſes of Weſtlow in Cornwal for this Parliament.

Oxford. 21. Letters from the Mayor and Aldermen of Oxford, for Aſſiſtance to ſuppreſs ſome unruly Perſons in the City.

27. The Parliament met.

Great Seal. 30. I met about the Buſineſs of the Great Seal, whereof I was now again made a Commiſſioner. Richard had a particular Reſpect for me, and upon the 22d Day of this Month, by Advice of ſome near to him, without any ſeeking for it by me, I was ſent for to Whitehall, where I met the two Lords Commiſſioners of the Seal, Fiennes and Liſle, and they together being called in to the Council-Chamber, the Great Seal was deliver'd to his Highneſs ſitting in Council, and his Highneſs preſently deliver'd it to Fiennes, Liſle, and me, as Keepers of the Great Seal of England.

This Paſſage was wondred at by many, and ſome thought that Fiennes deſired it, finding Liſle not ſo capable of executing that Place as was expected, and his want of Experience in that Buſineſs, and multitude of other Occaſions, and his Attendance on Richard and the Council, made him willing to have my help in the Buſineſs of the Seal.

Parliament. Speaker. 31. Mr. Chancellor Chute was choſen Speaker of this Parliament, an excellent Orator, a Man of great Parts and Generoſity, whom many doubted that he would not join with the Protector's Party, but he did heartily.

The Members of the Houſe of Lords took their Places, being ſummoned by the like Writ as they had before, according to the Petition and Advice.

February, 1658.

February 3. Order for the Commiſſioners of the Treaſury to give an Account to the Houſe of the State of the publick Treaſure.

4. A Faſt-Day kept in both Houſes.

Recognition. 8. The Houſe of Commons debated the Bill of Recognition of his Highneſs to be Lord Protector; and ſome were very croſs in that Buſineſs, which cauſed Doubts of the good Iſſue of this Parliament.

9. The Members returned for Scotland and Ireland to ſerve in this Parliament appeared very full.

10. The Houſe voted ſeveral Members uncapable to ſit, becauſe they had been in Arms againſt the Parliament.

11. Mr. Fuſſel an Attorney, was ſhot into the Head with a Brace of Bullets from the other ſide of the Street, as he ſat in his Chamber, and died preſently; who did it, was not known.

14. Letters from the Earl of Stamford to me, March. complaining of his being put out of Commiſſion of the Peace, and the like done to other Perſons of Quality, and of mean Men being put into Commiſſion, who inſult over their Betters; and deſiring me, now being reſtored to the Cuſtody of the Seal (for which all good Men rejoiced) to conſider of, and amend ſuch things.

16. The Houſe were buſy in debate upon the Act of Recognition, Mr. Sherwyn, who was a Member of the Houſe was order'd to bring in the State of the Account of the publick Treaſure, deliver'd to him by the Commiſſioners of the Treaſury.

17. Mr. Sherwyn deliver'd in this Account, which was very exact; the Commiſſioners of the Treaſury, and Mr. Sherwyn having taken great pains about it.

19. Vote of the Houſe of Commons to take into Conſideration the Conſtitution of the Parliament in two Houſes.

This cauſed much Diſcourſe and Doubts of Diviſions. many, leſt a Diſagreement ſhould follow; and ſome of the Court and Relations of Richard were not backward to promote a Difference.

22. The Bounds and Limits of the other Houſe Other Houſe. were debated, and the Debate adjourned.

25. I had a fair Quarter with Fiennes and Liſle in the Buſineſs of the Seal; but the greateſt Burden of the Place lay upon me.

26. Several Addreſſes were made to Richard from ſeveral Towns and Places during the ſitting of the Parliament.

March, 1658.

March 1. The Commons voted the Queſtion to tranſact with the Perſons now ſitting in the other Houſe, as an Houſe of Parliament, ſhould be debated.

4. Debate touching the other Houſe.

8. The Commons voted that their Debate about tranſacting with the other Houſe, ſhould be no bar to ſuch Peers as have faithfully ſerved the Parliament.

9. The Speaker Mr. Chute being ill, Sir Lillis- Speaker. bone Long was choſen to ſupply his Place in his Abſence.

10. Several Addreſſes to Richard from Regiments of the Army.

16. Sir Lillisbone Long the Speaker pro tempore not being well, Mr. Bamfield was choſen Speaker pro tempore.

Sir Lillishone Long died, a very ſober diſcreet Gentleman, and a good Lawyer.

19. Some Members of the Houſe by order went from the Houſe to viſit their Speaker Mr. Chute, which was a great Honour to him; and he had ſo much gained the Affection of the Houſe, that he ſwayed much with them.

23. Letters of the Peace betwixt the Kings of Sweden and Denmark.

26. Letters that in the Country the News was, that the Parliament ſhould be diſſolved, and that Troops of Horſe were met marching to London.

Vote of the Commons to reſtore Major General Browne to his Places in London.

28. The Commons voted to tranſact with the Perſons ſitting in the other Houſe, as an Houſe of Parliament, ſaving the Right of the Peers, who had been faithful to the Parliament; this gave hopes to ſome of an Agreement, againſt which many laboured.

Anno 1659.

29. A Bill for taking away the Exciſe, and Tonnage and Poundage, after the Protector's Death, which ſtumbled his Friends.

30. The Commons voted a Day of Humiliation to be kept in the three Nations.

April, 1659.

Title.

April 5. The Title of the Declaration for the Faſt was voted to be of the Protector and both Houſes of Parliament.

Haſlerigge, and Henry Nevil, and their Flock were a great cauſe of diſturbance in this Parliament.

Other Houſe.

The Commons voted, That in all Meſſages to, and Conferences with the other Houſe, equal Ceremonies ſhould be uſed, and no other Reſpect obſerved by the Members of this Houſe, than what is obſerved by the Members ſitting in the other Houſe.

6. The Dutch aſſiſted the King of Denmark, and the Engliſh aſſiſted the King of Sweden.

Army.

14. On the ſixth of this Month, a Repreſentation was ſigned by all the Officers of the Army, and afterwards preſented to his Highneſs, ſetting forth their want of Pay, the Inſolences of the Enemies, and their Deſigns, together with ſome in power, to ruin the Army, and the good old Cauſe, and to bring in the Enemies thereof; to prevent which, and to provide againſt free quarter, they deſire his Highneſs to adviſe with the Parliament, and to provide effectual Remedy. Now there being yet nothing done hereupon, the Soldiers began to ſpeak high and threatning.

Richard.

This was the beginning of Richard's Fall, and ſet on foot by his Relations; Desborough who married his Aunt, and Fleetwood who married his Siſter, and others of their Party; and the Parliament diſputed about the other Houſe, but took no courſe to provide Money, but exaſperated the Army, and all thoſe named of the other Houſe.

The Commons ſent up the Declaration for a publick Faſt to the other Houſe; who anſwer'd, That they would take it into further Conſideration; and the Lord Commiſſioner Fiennes and the reſt, went to the Bar to receive the Meſſage.

The Speaker Mr. Chute died, an eminent Man in his Profeſſion: Mr. Bamfield was choſen Speaker.

Chute dies.

Quakers.

The Quakers deliver'd a Paper to the Speaker, ſeconding the Repreſentation of the Army, and adding to it; and the Houſe's Anſwer was, That they diſliked the Scandals therein caſt upon the Magiſtracy and Miniſtry, and order'd them to reſort to their Habitations, and apply themſelves to their Callings, and ſubmit to the Laws and Magiſtracy of the Nation.

17. His Highneſs ſent for the Officers of the Army, and had Conference with them.

The Commons ſent up to the other Houſe ſeveral Votes derogatory to that Houſe, and diſtaſteful to the Army.

20. A Repreſentation from the Officers of the Trained-Bands of London to his Highneſs, of the Danger from the publick Enemy, and ſeconding the Repreſentation of the Army.

21. The Parliament grew into Heats, Haſlerigge and Nevil, and their Party labour'd to overthrow the Government by a Protector and two Houſes of Parliament, and pretended to have a free Commonwealth; divers Officers of the Army joined with them; Desborough, Fleetwood, Sir Henry Vane, Berry and others, endeavour'd to leſſen Richard's Power, and ſome of them were for altering the Government; and Lambert, who had been diſcontented, cloſely wrought for that end.

Richard adviſed with the Lord Broghill, Fiennes, Thurloe, Wolſey, myſelf, and ſome others, whether it were not fit to diſſolve the preſent Parliament; moſt of them were for it, I doubted the Succeſs of it, and wiſhed a little longer Permiſſion of their ſitting, eſpecially now they had begun to conſider of raiſing Money, whereby they would engage the Soldiery; but moſt were for the diſſolving of the Parliament, in regard of the preſent great Dangers from them, and from the Cavaliers who now flock'd to London, and underhand fomented the Diviſions.

January. Diſſolution Parliament.

22. By Commiſſion under the Great Seal to Fiennes and others, this Parliament was diſſolved; and a Proclamation iſſued to declare it diſſolved; which cauſed much Trouble in the Minds of many honeſt Men; the Cavaliers and Republicans rejoiced at it.

Richard and his Council ſat cloſe to conſult what was fit to be done, and among them were many Enemies to Richard and his Government.

23. Many were much troubled at theſe changes and unſettledneſs.

24. A Proclamation for all Papiſts and Cavaliers to depart twenty Miles from London.

Lambert.

27. Lambert and other Officers of the Army, conſulted how they might again bring in the old Members of the Parliament, whom themſelves had before thruſt out.

May, 1659.

May 3. Richard was abuſed and betrayed by his near Relations, and thoſe of his Council; I was wary what to adviſe in this matter, but declared my Judgment honeſtly, and for the good of Richard, when my advice was required.

Army.

4. The Soldiers and their Party grew ſo high in their imagined Deſigns, that ſome could not forbear their Scoffs, that the preſent Proceedings would only pull down the Father and ſet up the Son, and that the Son might wear ſilk Stockings and the Father worſted.

5. News of Sir George Ayſcough's Favour with the King of Sweden.

Money.

All Matters were at a ſtand, the Army had thoughts of raiſing Money without a Parliament, but upon advice, they durſt not adventure upon it; they thought it a ſafer way to reſtore the Members of the Long Parliament.

Long Parliament.

The great Officers of the Army were adviſed to conſider better of their Deſign, of bringing in the Members of the Old Parliament, who were moſt of them diſcontented for their being formerly broken up by Cromwell, and did diſtaſte the Proceedings of the Army; and whether this would not probably more increaſe the Diviſions, and end in bringing in of the King; but the Officers had reſolved on it.

Fleetwood

6. Fleetwood, and the General Council of the Officers of the Army publiſhed a Declaration, inviting the Members of the Long Parliament, who continued ſitting till April 20th, 1653, to return to the exerciſe, and diſcharge of their Truſt.

The Declaration was as followeth.

Declaration.

THE publick concernments of this Commonwealth being, through a viciſſitude of Dangers, Deliverances and backſlidings of many, brought into that ſtate and poſture wherein they now ſtand, and our ſelves alſo contributing thereunto, by wandring divers ways, from righteous and equal Paths; and although there have been many Eſſays to obviate the Dangers, and Anno 1659. and to ſettle theſe Nations in Peace and Proſperity, yet all have proved ineffectual; the only wiſe God in the courſe of his Providence diſappointing all endeavours therein.

And alſo obſerving to our great grief, that the good Spirit which formerly appeared amongſt us, in the carrying on of this great work, did daily decline, ſo as the good old Cauſe it ſelf became a reproach; We have been led to look back and examine the cauſe of the Lord's withdrawing his wonted preſence from us, and where we turned out of the way, that through Mercy we might return and give him the Glory.

And among other things call to mind, that the Long Parliament conſiſting of the Members which continued there ſitting until the 20th of April, 1653, were eminent Aſſerters of that Cauſe, and had a ſpecial preſence of God with them, and were ſignally bleſſed in that work, (the deſires of many good People concurring with ours therein) we judge it our duty to invite the aforeſaid Members to return to the exerciſe and diſcharge of their Truſt, as before the ſaid twentieth day of April, 1653.

And therefore we do hereby moſt earneſtly deſire the Parliament conſiſting of thoſe Members who continued to ſit ſince the Year 1648, until the twentieth of April 1653, to return to the exerciſe and diſcharge of their Truſt, and we ſhall be ready in our Places to yield them, as becomes us, our utmoſt Aſſiſtance to ſit in ſafety; for the improving preſent opportunity, for ſettling and ſecuring the Peace and Freedom of this Commonwealth, praying for the Preſence and Bleſſing of God upon their endeavours.

May 6, 1659. Signed by direction of the Lord Fleetwood, and the Council of Officers of the Army.

Tho. Sandford Secretary.

Lambert, Berry, Cooper, Haſlerigge, Lilburn, Aſhfield, Salmon, Zanchey, Kelſey, Okey Blackwell, Haynes, Allen, Packer and Pierſon, went to the old Speaker Lenthal with this Declaration to the Rolls, and preſented it to him; and divers of the Members of the Long Parliament came thither afterwards to adviſe with the Speaker, and declared their willingneſs to meet again; which they appointed to-morrow morning in the Painted-Chamber.

Lenthal.

Long Parliament. 7. They met accordingly, and in a Body went together to the Houſe, Lambert guarding them with Soldiers. Then they paſſed a Declaration touching their Meeting, and their purpoſe to ſecure the Property and Liberty of the People, both as Men, and as Chriſtians, and that without a ſingle Perſon, Kingſhip, or Houſe of Peers, and to uphold Magiſtracy and Miniſtry.

Declaration.

8. A Sermon was preached in the Houſe by Dr. Owen.

Committee of Safety. 9. The Houſe appointed a Committee of Safety, moſt of them Soldiers, except Vane and Scot; and ordered, that all Officers ſhould be ſuch as feared God, and were faithful to the Cauſe.

Monk. Letters of General Monk to Fleetwood, of the Concurrence of the Army in Scotland, with the Army at London.

Letters ordered to be ſent to the particular Members of this Parliament to come and diſcharge their duty.

11. An Act paſſed for the continuing of Sheriffs, Juſtices of Peace, &c. in England, and in Scotland, and Ireland.

Addreſſes. 12. An Addreſs to the Parliament, with their Deſires in it, from many in and about London, and their Proteſtation to ſtand by this Parliament. May.

The like Addreſs to this Parliament from the Officers of the Army.

Theſe Paſſages gave the more hopes to many, that this Parliament thus reſtored, might be bleſſed of God, for ſettling the Peace and Liberty of the Nation; and the more becauſe they were upon the firſt right and foundation of that Long Parliament, which had done ſo great things: and therefore divers were the better ſatisfied to go on with them.

Council of State. 13. The Parliament named a Council of State, and ſeveral Gentlemen, not Members of the Houſe, were alſo of it: their Names were as follow.

Thomas Lord Fairfax, Major General Lambert, Colonel J. Desborough, Colonel James Bury, John Bradſhaw Sergeant at Law, Sir Anthony Aſhley Cooper, Sir Horatio Townſhend, Sir Arthur Haſlerigge, Sir Henry Vane, Lieutenant General Ludlow, Lieutenant General Fleetwood, Major Salwey, Colonel Morley, Mr. Scot, Mr. Wallop, Sir James Harrington, Colonel Wanton, Colonel Jo. Jones, Colonel Sydenham, Colonel Sidney, Mr. Nevil, Mr. Thomas Chaloner, Colonel Downes, Lord Chief Juſtice St. John, Colonel Thompſon, Lord Commiſſioner Whitelocke, Colonel Dixwell, Mr. Reynolds, Joſiah Barners, Sir Archibald Johnſon, Sir Robert Honewood.

Great Seal. 14. An Act for a new Great Seal, different from that whereof Fiennes, Liſle, and I, were Commiſſioners; and ſo our Office ceaſed.

15. Newdigate, Atkins, Archer and Parker, were made Judges, and Eaſter-Term was continued.

Acts. 16. An Act paſſed appointing Judges for Probate of Wills. Applications to me from Mr. Nathaniel Bacon and his Brother, about the Payment of their Salary, as Maſters of the Requeſts to the Protector; and Sergeant Lynne about his Arrears of his Salary.

Votes. Votes paſſed for Pay of the Army and Navy, and for ſale of Whitehall and Somerſet-houſe.

17. Addreſs to the Parliament from the Army in Scotland.

Right Honourable,

THAT a Nation may be born in a day, is a truth which this day's experience witneſſeth unto us againſt all the dictates of human Reaſon; and that a glorious Cauſe, whoſe Intereſt was laid low (even in the duſt) ſhould be in one day reſtored to its Life and Luſtre, when almoſt all the Aſſerters of it had ſo manifeſtly declined it by a defection of many Years, cannot be imputed to leſs than the greateſt and moſt powerful manifeſtation of the Arm of God, that ever this, or former Generations ſaw, or heard of.

In the ſenſe of this (the greateſt of our Temporal Mercies) we now come to addreſs to your Honours, as thoſe whoſe preſence we have ſo long wanted, that had you ſtaid but a little longer, it might have been left to be inquired what England was; we mean, what was become of that People, by whom God for ſo many Years filled the World with ſo much admiration and terror. But though this great Work be (as moſt juſtly it ought to be) wonderful in our Eyes, yet when we conſider its Author, who calls things that are not, as if they were, bringeth down to the Pit, and raiſeth up again; we ſee that nothing is difficult to Faith, and the Promiſes of God are ſure and ſtable, even then, when in the Eye of Man no leſs than impoſſible.

We cannot but acknowledge to our exceeding great Sorrow and Shame, that our ſelves (though we hope moſt most of us, through weakneſs and frailty not out of deſign) have very much contributed to thoſe Provocations, which have cauſed God to depart from our Iſrael; and we could heartily wiſh that even amongſt thoſe that help to make up your own number, there had not been an helping hand to this ſad and deplorable work: But we ſee when God's hour is come, and the time of his People's deliverance (even the ſet time is at hand) he cometh skipping over all the Mountains of ſin and unworthineſs that we daily caſt in the way.

We are not willing to detain your Honours too long upon this ſubject; and therefore beſeeching the God of all our Mercies, to heal the backſlidings of his People, and not to charge unto their account, in this his day of their deliverance, their miſcarriages, whilſt they were wandering in dark and ſlippery Places, after the imaginations of their own Hearts: we with all humility and affection in the firſt place congratulate you in this your happy Reſtauration to the Government of theſe Nations, which God was pleaſed once ſo to own in your hands, as to make you both the praiſe and wonder of the Earth, the glory and rejoicing of his People, and the terror of your Adverſaries; and we acknowledge it a ſingular condeſcenſion in you, in this day of ſo great difficulties, to take upon you ſo heavy a burthen. And ſeeing his late Highneſs hath been pleaſed to manifeſt ſo much ſelf-denial and love to his Country, in appearing for the Intereſt thereof againſt his own; we humbly intreat that ſome ſpeedy care may be taken for him and his Family, (together with her Highneſs Dowager) that there may be ſuch an honourable Proviſion ſettled upon them, and ſuch other Dignities as are ſuitable to the former great Services of that Family to theſe Nations.

And in the next place we cannot but humbly beſeech you, now you have an Opportunity, than which a fitter your Hearts did never pray for, to finiſh the work of Reformation that hath been ſo long upon the wheel, and met with ſo great Obſtructions; that you would not heal the wound of the Daughter of God's People ſlightly, but make ſo ſure and laſting Proviſion for both their Chriſtian and Civil Rights, as that both this and future Generations may have cauſe to riſe up, and call you Bleſſed, and the blackeſt of Deſigns may never be able to caſt dirt in your Faces any more; and as helpful to theſe two great Concernments, Religion and Liberty, we humbly propoſe unto your mature conſideration theſe two Deſires.

Firſt, That you would be pleaſed to countenance Godlineſs, and all the ſincere Profeſſors thereof, encourage an able and laborious Miniſtry, and ſuffer no other Yoke to be impoſed upon the Conſciences of God's People, than what may be agreeable to the word of God; and that you would be a terror to all impious, prophane, and licentious People whatſoever.

Secondly, That you would ſo vindicate and aſſert the Native Rights and Liberties of theſe Nations, in and by the Government of a Free State, that there may not be the voice of an oppreſſed one in our Land, but that all may enjoy the bleſſed fruits of your righteous and peaceable Government. And for the prevention of all poſſibility for ambitious Spirits ever to work their ends againſt you; we humbly deſire you to be very careful, as well what Perſons you intruſt with the management of the Armies and Navies of this Commonwealth, as of the meaſure of that Power and Authority you depart with to them, or ſubſtitute in them. Touching the qualifications of the Perſons, we deſire they may be truly godly and conſcientious. Touching the meaſure of their Authority, that it may be adequate to the nature and being of a Commonwealth. And whilſt you are thus pleading and aſſerting the Intereſt of God and his People, you may reſt aſſured with greateſt confidence, that we ſhall appear in your defence, and the vindication of your Authority, againſt the oppoſition of all Arbitrary Powers whatſoever. May.

And to that Bleſſed and All-powerful God, who is able to ſpirit you for this great work, you are, and ſhall daily be recommended in the Prayers of,

Your moſt loyal and moſt obedient Servants,

18. Order to refer it to the Members of the Houſe of the Council of State, or any five of them, to conſider of the Union between Scotland and England, and to prepare an Act for it. I was by the Council particularly deſired to take care of this Buſineſs. Scotland. Union.

I had private Intimation from Fleetwood, that Scot had Intelligence that I kept a Correſpondence with the King of Scots, or ſome of his Miniſters; and that Scot intended to charge me with it at the Council: and therefore Fleetwood did adviſe me, that if it were ſo, that I ſhould forbear coming to the Council, and Fleetwood would take care that nothing ſhould be farther done againſt me; but if that I were innocent, I might uſe my diſcretion. Scot.

I wondered at this, knowing my own Innocence, and therefore I did not abſent myſelf from the Council; but Scot in a cunning way repreſented his Intelligence to the Council, from one of his Spies beyond Sea, who wrote him word, That Sir Anthony Aſhley Cooper and I, had Correſpondence with Sir Edward Hyde beyond Seas: And this Intelligencer was a beggerly Iriſh Friar. Intelligence Sir Anth. Cooper.

Sir Anthony Aſhley Cooper made the higheſt profeſſions that could be of his Innocence, and the higheſt imprecations of God's Judgments upon him and his Poſterity, if ever he had any Correſpondence with the King, or with Sir Edward Hyde, or any of the King's Miniſters or Friends; and his Expreſſions were ſo high, that they bred in ſome the more ſuſpicion of him; but at this time he was believed, and what followed afterwards is known.

I poſitively denied any Correſpondence with the King, or with Hyde, or any of the King's Party, and deſired no favour, if they could prove any ſuch thing againſt me, and moved to know my Accuſer; but that was waved, and I admitted in my Employment of one of the Council of State.

19. The Houſe appointed Judges of the Admiralty for ſix Weeks.

20. Order for a Day to be kept of publick Humiliation.

Letters that the Jews were deſtructive to our Trade.

21. Votes of the Parliament for a free Commonwealth, without a ſingle Perſon, Kingſhip, or Houſe of Peers: And for maintaining Magiſtracy and Miniſtry, and regulating of Law and Equity: Votes.

23. Vote for the Speaker Lenthal to be Keeper of the Great Seal for eight Days. Great Seal.

24. Vote

Anno 1659. Richard.

24. An Ambaſſador had publick Audience in the Houſe in great Solemnity.

25. The Houſe having ſent a Committee to Richard to know, Whether he would aquieſce in the preſent Proceedings; and that they would provide for the Payment of his Debts, and an honourable Subſiſtence for himſelf and his Family. They returned with this Anſwer under his Hand, That he would aquieſce; and ſent a Liſt of his Debts.

Addreſſes. 26. Several Addreſſes were made to the Houſe, and they referred Matters touching the Forces and the Navy, and the Prize Goods to the Council of State.

27. Reference to the Council of State to proceed in the Treaty with the Dutch.

28. An Addreſs to the Parliament from Bucks.

Army. The Houſe conſidered of ſettling the Officers of Fleetwood's Regiment; this began to give ſome diſtaſte to the Officers of the Army, that the Parliament ſhould not truſt them in this Buſineſs, but do it themſelves.

A Committee named to prepare an Act of Indemnity and Oblivion.

Ireland. 29. Letters of the preſent State of Affairs in Ireland from the Lord Broghill, and of my Lord's joining with this Parliament.

30. Addreſſes from the North to Fleetwood and the Army.

The Houſe proceeded upon the Act of Indemnity.

31. Votes for Addition of Pay to the Soldiers about London.

Great Seal. Order for ſequeſtring the Profits of the Keeper of the Great Seal for the uſe of the Commonwealth; and that the Chancery be truly reformed and regulated.

June, 1659.

June 1. The Council of State ordered me to draw a Letter to General Mountague about the Buſineſs of the Navy.

The Houſe proceeded about the Act of Indemnity.

London Addreſs. 2. An Addreſs from the Common-Council of London to the Parliament, who gave them Thanks for their good Affections.

Great Seal. 3. Bradſhaw, Tyrell and Fountain, were voted to be Commiſſioners of the Great Seal for five Months.

4. An Addreſs from the County of Kent anſwered with Thanks.

An Act paſſed for conſtituting of Bradſhaw, Tyrell and Fountain, Commiſſioners of the Great Seal; and the Oath was adminiſtred, and the Great Seal delivered to them in the Houſe.

I was told by ſome of the Houſe that I, Fiennes and Liſle, were not continued Commiſſioners of the Seal, becauſe the Houſe reſolved, That the Commiſſioners ſhould not be Members of the Houſe.

Fleetwood Vote for Fleetwood to be Lieutenant General of the Forces.

Sound. Sweden and Denmark. 5. At the Council of State I and Colonel Sidney, and Sir Robert Honywood, were named to go Commiſſioners to the Sound, to mediate a Peace between the Kings of Sweden and Denmark; I was not willing to undertake this Service, eſpecially to be joined with thoſe who would expect Precedency of me, who had been formerly Ambaſſador Extraordinary to Sweden alone, and I knew well the over-ruling Temper and Height of Colonel Sidney, I therefore endeavoured to excuſe myſelf by reaſon of my old Age and Infirmities, but the Council preſſed it upon me. June.

6. Vote, That all Commiſſions to Officers of the Army be ſigned by the Speaker, and this diſtaſted the Army; the like for the Officers of the Navy. Army. Votes.

Vote, That this Parliament ſhall not continue longer than May 7. 1660.

7. Referred to the Council of State to take care for the next Circuits.

Votes for Commiſſioners for Ireland, and recalling of Colonel Henry Cromwell.

venues; and these were such as Haſlerigge, Morley, and their Party had to declare for the Parliament, and to be Guards to them.

Evelyn who commanded the Lifeguards of the Parliament, marching forth with his Troop to do his Service, was met by Lambert at Scotland-Yard Gate; and Lambert commanded Evelyn to diſmount, who thought it ſafeſt to obey; and though Lambert were on foot, and none with him, yet Evelyn at the head of his Troop, diſmounted at his Command, and his Troop alſo obeyed Lambert; who drew together ſome other Forces, and placed them along in Kings-Street, and near the Abbey Church and Yard; and when the Speaker came by in his Coach, they ſtopped him, and cauſed him to return back; and ſo the Houſe did not ſit.

Council of State. The Council of State ſat, where were both Parties of the oppoſite Soldiers, Lambert, Desborough, and Haſlerigge, Morley, and others; and they had a long and ſmart Debate. Some of the Members had got into the Houſe, but the Speaker was kept from them, and moſt part of their Members. Thoſe in the Houſe were ſent to from the Council of State, and conſulted with about an Accommodation; and in the mean time, the ſeveral Parties of the Soldiers kept their Stations, expecting Orders to fall on.

But the Council of State ſo managed the Buſineſs, and ſo perſuaded with all Parties, that at the laſt they came to an Accommodation, to ſave the Effuſion of Blood; and the Parliament was not to ſit, but the Council of Officers undertook to provide for the Preſervation of the Peace, and to have a Form of Government to be drawn up for a new Parliament to be ſhortly ſummoned, and ſo to ſettle all things.

This being agreed upon (and it could not be obtained otherwiſe) the Council of State in the Evening ſent their Orders, requiring all the Soldiers of each Party to draw off, and to depart to their ſeveral Quarters; which was obeyed by them.

Army. 14. The Officers of the Army met, and had many Debates about a Settlement: They declared Fleetwood to be their Commander in chief.

Haſlerigge On the other ſide, Haſlerigge and his Friends conſulted what to do to reſtore themſelves, and to curb the oppoſite Officers of the Army who had thus affronted them and the Parliament; and they had ſome Hopes of Monk to be their Champion.

Monk. 15. The Council of State ſeldom met, but ſome few of them in private.

17. The Council of Officers ſent one of their Company to Monk, and another into Ireland, to acquaint the Officers of thoſe Forces, of the Proceedings here, and to deſire their Concurrence therein.

They ſuſpended from their Commands the Officers of the Army who appeared againſt them.

Committee of ten. They nominated a Committee of ten of the Council of State, Fleetwood, Lambert, Whitelocke, Vane, Desborough, Harrington, Sydenham, Berry, Salwey, and Wareſton, to conſider of fit ways to carry on the Affairs and Government.

Fleetwood At a General Council of Officers, they agreed upon Articles of War; they declared Fleetwood to be Commander in chief of all the Forces, and Lambert to be Major General of the Forces in England and Scotland; and this diſcontented Monk.

Lambert. They appointed Fleetwood, Lambert, Vane, Deſborough, Ludlow and Berry, to be a Committee to nominate Officers of the Army: and they kept a Day of Humiliation in Whitehall Chapel.

Sound. 19. Letters from the Sound that the Dutch and Danes Fleet were retreated.

21. I had notice that I was named among the Officers of the Army to be one of that Council which they intended to ſet up to carry on the great Affairs of the Commonwealth; but I was not deſirous of that Employment, eſpecially at ſuch a time as this. October.

22. The Council of Officers agreed upon the Names of twenty three Perſons to be of this Council. Council of Officers.

26. The General Council of Officers agreed upon theſe Perſons to be intruſted with the management of publick Affairs; Fleetwood, Lambert, Desborough, Steel, Whitelocke, Vane, Ludlow, Sydenham, Salwey, Strickland, Berry, Laurence, Harrington, Wareſton, Lord Mayor Ireton, Tichburn, Brandrith, Thomſon, Hewſon, Clerk, Lilburn, Bennet, Holland; and gave them the ſame Powers that the Council of State had, and more. New Council.

A printed Letter was publiſhed, as ſent from General Monk, ſignifying his diſſatisfaction with the Proceedings of the Forces in England. Monk.

And another Letter was publiſhed as from divers of Monk's Officers, ſignifying their Concurrence with the Officers in England.

Care was taken for Government of the Army in England, and to prevent Inſurrections.

27. The General Council of Officers agreed to call the new Council, The Committee of Safety; and that Letters ſhould be ſent to the ſeveral Members of it, to undertake the Truſt. Committee of Safety.

The Letter to me was this.

For our honoured Friend Bulſtrode Lord Whitelocke.

Sir,

UPon conſideration of the preſent Poſture of Affairs of this Commonwealth, the General Council of Officers of the Army, have thought fit to appoint a Committee of Safety for the Preſervation of the Peace, and Management of the preſent Government thereof; As alſo for the preparing of a Form of a future Government for theſe Nations, upon the Foundation of a Commonwealth or free State: And your ſelf being one of the Perſons nominated for that purpoſe, we do by their direction, hereby give you notice thereof, and deſire you to repair to-morrow morning at Ten of the Clock, to the Horſe-Chamber in Whitehall, in order to the Service aforeſaid. We reſt,

Whitehall, 27. Octob. 1659.

Your faithful Friends, and Servants

Zanchey,	Kelſey,
Packer,	Biſcoe,
Salmon,	Creed,
Milles,	Clerk,
Allen,	Gough,
Aſhfield,	King,

I was in ſome Perplexity what to do upon this Letter, and had much Diſcourſe with my Friends about it; Desborough and ſome other great Officers of the Army, and Actors in this Buſineſs, came to me, and made it their earneſt Requeſt to me to undertake this Truſt, and told me, That ſome of this Committee, as Vane, Salwey, and others, had a Deſign to overthrow Magiſtracy, Miniſtry, and the Law; and that to be a Balance to them, they had choſen me and ſome others, to oppoſe this Deſign, and to ſupport and preſerve the Laws, Magiſtracy, and Miniſtry in theſe Nations. Desbo-rough.

That they knew their Abilities to do it, and depended much upon them; and that if I ſhould deny to undertake this Charge, it would much trouble the General Council of Officers, and be of great prejudice

to

Anno 1659. to the intended Settlement; and therefore they moſt earneſtly deſire me to accept of this Employment; and Fleetwood perſuaded me to the ſame purpoſe, and many other Friends were of the ſame Opinion, and earneſt with me not to decline it.

28. The Committee of Safety were to meet, I had revolved in my mind the preſent State of Affairs, that there was no viſible Authority or Power for Government at this time, but that of the Army; that if ſome legal Authority were not agreed upon and ſettled, the Army would probably take it into their hands, and govern by the Sword, or ſet up ſome Form prejudicial to the Rights and Liberties of the People, and for the particular Advantage and Intereſt of the Soldiery more than would be convenient.

That I knowing the Purpoſe of Vane and others to be ſuch, as to the leſſening of the Power of the Laws, and ſo to change them, and the Magiſtracy, Miniſtry, and Government of the Nation, as might be of dangerous Conſequence to the Peace and Rights of my Country: To prevent which, and to keep things in a better Order and Form, I might be inſtrumental in this Employment. Upon theſe and the like Grounds, as alſo by the Engagement of divers of the Committee to join with me therein, I was perſuaded to undertake it, and did meet with them at the Place appointed; where I was receiv'd by them with all Reſpect and Civility.

The Inſtructions of the Committee of Safety were preſented to them.

29. The Committee ſat all day.

Declaration. The Army's Declaration was publiſhed of the Grounds of their late Proceedings.

Monk. A Letter came from General Monk to the Officers of the Army here, of the Diſſatisfaction of himſelf, and ſome of his Officers in the late Proceedings of the Army here.

Perſons were ſent to him for his better Information.

He ſecured Berwick for himſelf.

Lambert. Lambert was appointed to command the Forces in the North, and to have more Regiments with him.

Bradſhaw dies. 31. Bradſhaw died of a Quartan Ague, which had held him a year, a ſtout Man and learned in his Profeſſion: No Friend of Monarchy.

November, 1659.

1. The Committee of Safety appointed Fleetwood, Vane, Ludlow, Salwey, and Tichburn, a Committee to conſider of a Form of Government for the three Nations, as a Commonwealth, and to preſent it to the Committee of Safety.

Form of Governm.

Monk. Whaley and Goffe, and Caryl, and Barker, Miniſters, were ſent to Monk to perſuade him to a right Underſtanding of Things, and to prevent Effuſion of Blood.

This Order was made at the Committee of Safety, Thurſday, Novemb. 1. 1659.

At the Committee of Safety at Whitehall.

Gr. Seal. The Committee of Safety taking into Conſideration the neceſſity of diſpoſing of the Great Seal, ſo as the ſame may be made uſe of for the publick Service, and the Adminiſtration of Juſtice.

Order'd, That the Cuſtody of the Great Seal of England be committed to the Lord Whitelocke as Commiſſioner and Keeper of the ſaid Great Seal until further Order. And the ſame was accordingly deliver'd to his hands by the Lord Preſident. Novemb.

And order'd, That an Entry of the Delivery of the Great Seal to the ſaid Lord Whitelocke, as Commiſſioner and Keeper of the ſaid Great Seal, be made in the cloſe Roll in Chancery, and in the Office of Petty Bag.

William Robinſon,

Clerk of the Committee of Safety.

2. A new Letter was ſent to General Monk from the Officers here.

The Lords Northampton, Falkland, Caſtleton, Herbert, Howard, and Bellaſis, were diſcharged from Impriſonment upon Security to live peaceably; and this was to ingratiate with the Cavaliers. Lords re-leaſed.

Letters from Edinburgh, that General Monk and many of his Officers had declared for the Parliament, againſt the Officers of the Army in England, and that General Monk had impriſoned ſome of his Officers, who were of different Judgment, and put others out of their Command; and was preparing all things in order to reſtore the Parliament. Monk.

Letters from Colonel Pearſon who diſſented from Monk; and that many of his Officers and Soldiers would not join with him againſt the Army in England. Col. Pearſon.

3. The Commiſſioners of the Militia of London wrote to Monk to perſuade him to an Accommodation. London.

Lambert went towards the North. Lambert.

4. Letters from Ireland of the Forces there concurring with thoſe here.

An Anſwer agreed upon to a Letter from Monk.

Fleetwood, Whitelocke, Desborough, and Tichburn, went to the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen in London, and acquainted them with the Proceedings of Monk, and with the Danger of a new Civil War to the City and Kingdom; and adviſed them to take ſpecial care for the prevention of it, and for ſecuring the City. London.

5. New Commiſſions order'd for raiſing of new Forces, to Vane, for a Regiment of Horſe, and another to me for a Regiment of Horſe, and other Commiſſions to others. New Commiſſions.

The General Council of Officers kept this Day a Day of Faſting. Faſt.

Letters from Scotland, that Monk had ſecured ſeveral of his Officers, and reſolved to march into England: That divers of his Officers and Soldiers were diſcontented. Monk.

Other Letters that Monk was entred England with ſome Regiments, but retreated.

An Addreſs to Fleetwood from the Officers of the Northern Forces, of their Reſolution to join with the Forces here. Addreſs.

7. The General Council of Officers met, and received Letters from the North.

8. An Anſwer to Monk's Letter agreed upon by the General Council of Officers.

Fleetwood, Whitelocke, Desborough, and divers principal Officers of the Army went to the Common-Council in London, and I repreſented to them the Proceedings of Monk; and that the bottom of his Deſign was to bring in the King upon a new Civil War: I ſhewed the Danger of it to the City and Nation; and counſelled them to provide for their own Safety, and to join for the Safety of the whole Nation, and for Preſervation of the Peace. The Common-Council return'd Thanks to us, and reſolved to follow our Advice. London.

9. Letters

Anno 1659. Fleet.

9. Letters from Scotland of the Probability of a friendly Accommodation: The like from ſeveral Perſons in the North.

Letters from the Officers of the Fleet to Monk and his Officers, to incline them to an Accommodation; to this effect.

'THE deep Senſe we have of the Duty incumbent on us, in this Day of England's Fears, Trials, and Temptations, puts us upon this Application to your Honour, unto whom not long ſince, moſt of us had a more immediate Relation; and the Experience we had then of your readineſs to receive and grant our juſt Deſires, gives us Encouragement to believe the preſent Tender will have the like Reſentment.

'As private Members of this Commonwealth, we cannot but take notice of, and in ſecret bewail before the Lord, the inteſtine Diviſions that are amongſt us at this day, and the dreadful Conſequences likely to enſue thereupon, when duly pondred, do exceedingly afflict and even break our Hearts.

'All the Force that the common Enemy, (whilſt in his ſtrength) was able to muſter up againſt the good People of this Nation, either at home or from abroad, could never raiſe ſuch Clouds of Fears, nor impreſs thoſe Terrors on our Hearts, as we now lie under from the Apprehenſion of that Evil, which attends that diſtance which is between you and the Army in England; which being manifeſted to us by a Declaration lately ſent from Scotland, and publiſhed by your Command and Reſolutions therein expreſſed, of your vindicating the late Parliament, in oppoſition to the general Proceeding of the General Council of Officers here; we have taken the boldneſs, not only as private Chriſtians, but in our publick Capacity, as Officers of the Fleet, to beſeech you (in the Bowels of Mercy and Compaſſion to this your Native Country, and eſpecially to all the Lord's People therein, whoſe Intereſt we remember hath formerly been precious to you) ſeriouſly to conſider:

1. 'Whether the Undertaking you are engaged in will not make the Hearts of the Righteous ſad, whom the Lord hath not made ſad, and ſtrengthen the hands of the Wicked that he ſhould not return from his wicked Way. It being obvious to us wherever we come, that few or none take pleaſure in your Proceedings, but the Cavaliers, who make their boaſt of you, and place their Confidence in you; which as it is irkſome to us to hear, ſo we truſt, and ſhall pray, that the Lord will preſerve you from ſuch a Defection, as knowing that never any proſpered that helped them.

'2. Whether this ſudden Reſolution againſt your Brethren of the Army, on account of their late Tranſactions, have not ſome Proportion with what the Iſraelites intended againſt the Tribes of Reuben, Gad, and the half Tribe of Manaſſeh, when they had built an Altar of Memorial on this ſide Jordan; and whether the ſame means (if uſed by you for Information of matter of Fact as by them) might not through the Lord's Bleſſing have the ſame effect, and thereby not only Bloodſhed be prevented, but the Work of Reformation carry'd on.

'And truly, though we ſhall not undertake to juſtify the Army in their late Actions, as being very unable to judge of ſuch important Affairs (not having been of the Council) yet we hope that in the integrity of their Heart, and innocency of their Hands, they have done this thing which we apprehend to be the ground of your Diſſatisfaction; and on this occaſion we crave leave to remind you, That as you were ſatisfied with the former Diſſolution of this very Parliament, in the Year 1653. and were pleaſed to continue your Command at Sea in that Juncture (when as the Undertaking of the late Lord General Cromwell was not ſo clear to others) and through the bleſſing of God obtained two ſignal Victories againſt the Dutch, even in that Interregnum; ſo we earneſtly deſire you will hearken unto, and receive Satisfaction from the Officers of the Army in what they have to offer in this Particular. Novemb.

3. 'We humbly offer to Conſideration, whether in your own Obſervation, it be not apparent that this Army have in their Actings hitherto cordially deſigned the advancement of God's Glory, and the promoting and encouragement of Godlineſs and Virtue, though in Perſons of different Judgments and Perſuaſions? And whether the Cauſe of God and his People hath not hereby been preſerved and maintained againſt all Oppoſition?

4. 'Whether by ſuch Undertaking (if proſecuted) the common Enemy in Scotland will not ſoon recover Strength, and become as obnoxious to England as in former times; though of late through your ſingular Prudence, Induſtry, and Care, they have been kept under?

'And whether the eſpouſing of an Intereſt (diſtinct from your Brethren of the Army in England, as is reported) contrary to thoſe righteous Principles that have hitherto been contended for, will not (inſtead of purchaſing our deſired Liberties) render the good People of theſe Nations to a Condition of perfect Thraldom and Bondage.

'The State of Affairs being ſuch in our weak Apprehenſions, we have taken this freedom to unboſom our Hearts to your Honour; and ſhall earneſtly pray they may take ſome place with you, in order to the begetting of a good Underſtanding and Agreement beeween your ſelf and your Brethren here, that both you and they, as alſo our ſelves, in our ſeveral Stations by Land and Sea, may with one Heart and Conſent, be found doing the Lord's Work in this preſent Generation, in oppoſition to all corrupt Intereſts whatſoever: In attending whereunto, a Bleſſing may be expected from the Lord. In him we are,

Your Honours

Commiſſioners granted to raiſe Volunteers.

10. Letters to Monk and his Officers to the ſame purpoſe from the Forces in Ireland. Ireland.

Anno 1659. It was agreed that three Commiſſioners of Monk's part ſhould treat with three Commiſſioners on Fleetwood's part.

Treaty. 11. Monk's three Commiſſioners coming to York, diſcourſed there with Lambert, and ſo far ſatisfied him of the Reality of Monk's Intentions for Peace, that Lambert ſent Orders to ſtop his Forces from marching further Northward: This being informed to the Committee of Safety, I was moved to write to Lambert to advance with all his Forces ſpeedily to Monk to endeavour to attack him before he ſhould be better provided; and it was ſaid by ſome that I ſuſpected the Reality of Monk*'s Intentions for Peace, but believed rather that he ſought Delays.*

Monk ſuſpected.

This Advice was not taken.

The Committee of Safety made this Order.

Treaſury. Whereas this Committee have thought it neceſſary for the better Management of the publick Revenue of this Commonwealth, to appoint ſeveral Perſons to be Commiſſioners of the Treaſury; and have directed a Commiſſion, giving them Powers in that behalf to be engroſſed to paſs the Great Seal of England; theſe are therefore to authorize you to paſs the ſaid Commiſſion under the ſaid Great Seal accordingly: For doing whereof this ſhall be your Warrant: Given at the Committee of Safety at Whitehall, the 11*th of* November 1659.

Signed in the Name and by Order of the Committee of Safety.

A. Johnſon, Preſident.

To Bulſtrode Lord Whitelocke, Keeper of the Great Seal of England.

I ſealed this Commiſſion and other Commiſſions, and the ordinary Writs in my Dining-Room in my Lodgings at Whitehall in Scotland-Yard, where I alſo heard Motions and Cauſes, and the Council and Clients came thither very willingly to attend upon their Buſineſs.

They alſo made this Order;

Whereas this Committee have found it neceſſary for Preſervation of the Peace and Safety of the City of London, to appoint ſeveral Perſons to be Commiſſioners for the Militia of the ſaid City and Liberty thereof, and have directed a Commiſſion in that behalf to be engroſſed to paſs the Great Seal of England: Theſe are therefore to authorize you to paſs the ſaid Commiſſion under the ſaid Great Seal accordingly; for doing whereof this ſhall be your Warrant: Given at the Committee of Safety at Whitehall, this 11th Day of November, 1659.

Militia.

Signed and directed as the other.

12. An Account of their Forces given by the Militia of London, and other Militias to the Committee of Safety.

Monk's three Commiſſioners arrived to treat.

Treaty. 16. The Treaty proceeded with the three Commiſſioners of Monk, and three of Fleetwood's; and they agreed upon ſome Articles.

Committee of 19. They agreed that a Committee of nineteen ſhould be appointed; five for England not Members of the Army, which were Whitelocke, Vane, Ludlow, Salway, and Berry; and five for Scotland, St. John, Wareſton, Harrington, Scot, and Thomſon; the reſt for England, Scotland, and Ireland, to be Members of the Army: They to determine of the Qualifications of Members of the Parliament. Novemb.

That two Field Officers of every Regiment, and one commiſſioned Officer of every Garriſon, and ten Officers of the Fleet, ſhall meet as a General Council, to adviſe touching the Form of Government.

This Agreement was concluded.

Letters from the Commiſſioners in Ireland of the quiet Poſture there. Ireland.

17. Monk gave more cauſe of the Suſpicion of his Deſign.

18. I adviſed Fleetwood not to be too credulous of Monk's Pretences.

19. Monk's Commiſſioners ſent away to him the Agreement made here by them, according to the Powers which he gave them; and expected his Confirmation thereof. Monk.

Letters that Grave Rantzow was to come Ambaſſador hither from the King of Denmark.

That General Monk had ſummoned a Convention in Scotland of two Perſons for each Shire, and one for each Borough.

I received this Order,

Wedneſday, 16 Nov. 1659.

At the Committee of Safety at Whitehall.

THIS Committee holding it convenient and neceſſary for divers weighty Reaſons to adjourn the remaining part of the preſent Term from and after Saturday the 19*th of this Inſtant* November; It is therefore ordered that the remaining part of the aforeſaid preſent Term, upon and from the Day aforeſaid, be adjourned until the firſt Day of the next Term: And to prevent the Diſcontinuance of any Proceſs, Suits or Cauſes now depending, or any Inconvenience to the People thereby; It is alſo order'd that Writs of adjournment of the ſaid Term ſhall be iſſued and paſſed under the Great Seal of England in uſual form for this purpoſe; and the Lord Keeper Whitelocke Keeper of the Great Seal is authorized to iſſue forth Writs accordingly.

Signed in the Name and by the Order of the Committee of Safety.

A. Johnſton, Preſident.

I cauſed theſe Writs to be framed, ſealed, and iſſued forth in time.

20. Letters that when Captain Pool moved to ſend into England to be truly informed of the Proceedings here, Monk clapt him up in Priſon, where he yet continues: And that many of Monk's Soldiers were diſſatisfy'd. Mr. Barker and Mr. Caryl, Miniſters, ſent to Monk, could perſuade nothing with him; nor have any but general and uncertain Anſwers from him. Monk.

I received this Order.

Friday the 18th of Nov. 1659.

At the Committee of Safety at Whitehall.

Ordered,

THE Clauſe of general Pardon being read, conſider'd, and approved; it is referr'd to the Lord Whitelocke to take into Conſideration what further Particulars

Anno 1659. Particulars are fit to be added thereunto, and preſent the ſame to this Committee of Safety this Afternoon.

William Robinſon, Clerk of the Committee of Safety.

This was further'd by me.

21. Letters that many of Monk's Men were diſſatisfied, and that Mr. Collins his Chaplain had left him.

Qualifications. 22. The General Council of Officers of the Army made choice of Commiſſioners to agree upon the Qualifications of the Members for the next Parliament, or ſupreme delegated Authority; and deſired them to meet in the Horſe-Chamber at Whitehall.

23. Letters from the North, of Lambert's being at Newcaſtle; and that many of Monk's Officers and Soldiers came in to him.

A Letter from Monk was delivered to the Common-Council of London, which was not reliſhed well by them.

25. Monk's three Commiſſioners here, were very confident that he would approve what they had agreed; which was fully according to his Inſtructions.

Council of State, Some Members of the former Council of State gave out Commiſſions ſealed by them for raiſing of Forces. Morley, Walton, Reynolds, Scot, Haſlerigge, Nevil, and others of them met often.

Monk had a Convention in Scotland, to whom he propounded;

Propoſals. 1. That he having a Call from God and Man to march into England to ſettle the Peace there, that in his Abſence they would preſerve the Peace in Scotland.

To this they anſwered, That they could not engage for it, wanting Arms, but they would endeavour it.

2. That if Troubles did ariſe, they would aſſiſt him to ſuppreſs them.

To this they anſwered, That they were incapable to do it, and it would be imprudent in them to engage in theſe new Troubles.

3. He required Money of them, which they promiſed to levy.

Morgan. Monk cauſed an Engagement to be ſigned by the Horſe; and Major General Morgan was forward to aſſiſt Monk.

Form of Government, 26. The Committee proceeded in preparing a Form of Government, wherein Vane was hard to be ſatisfied, but did much ſtick to his own Apprehenſions.

28. Letters of Monk's March from Edinburgh towards England with Bag and Baggage.

29. Order for me to ſeal a Commiſſion to Mr. Sadler, Mr. Taylor, and others for Probate of Wills.

Monk. 30. Letters from Monk to Fleetwood full of Compliments and Expreſſions, of his earneſt Deſire of a ſpeedy Settlement of the preſent Differences: And becauſe he perceived in the Agreement ſigned by Fleetwood, that there are ſome things remain there untreated of and unagreed upon; it was the Reſolution of him and his Officers to add two more to their Number, to have Conference with the like Number to be appointed here, to put a final End to the Buſineſs, which he deſired might be as ſoon as poſſible.

Upon Conſideration of this Letter I declared my Opinion, That this was only a Delay in Monk to gain time, and be the better prepared for his Deſign to bring in the King, and to bring the Army here, and their Party into more Straits for Want of Pay, which he had got for his Forces; and therefore I adviſed to fall upon Monk preſently to bring the matter to an Iſſue, before his Soldiers were more confirmed, and Fleetwood's Party diſcouraged. But this Advice was not taken, but a new Treaty conſented to by Commiſſioners on each Part to be at Newcaſtle. Decemb.

Petitions. The Committee of Safety ſet forth a Proclamation, prohibiting the ſubſcribing of Papers under colour of Petitions, for the promoting of Deſigns dangerous to the Peace of the Commonwealth.

Downing. Ordered, That there be a Committee appointed to receive an Account of Mr. Downing's Tranſactions, as a publick Miniſter for this Commonwealth, with the States General of the United Provinces of the Netherlands; and what other things he hath to offer in relation to this Affair, That the Lord Whitelocke, Mr. Strickland, Alderman Ireton, General Desborough, Colonel Berry, and Mr. Holland, or any two of them, be a Committee to receive the ſaid Account from Mr. Downing to-morrow.

December, 1659.

December 1. The Lord Fanſhaw was releaſed from his Impriſonment.

3. Several Commiſſions of the Militia were ſealed for Weſtminſter and Eſſex.

Order of the Lord Mayor for Preſervation of the Peace of the City.

An Addreſs to Fleetwood from the Officers under Lambert, for expediting the Treaty with Monk.

Army. 4. Some of the Forces about London began to be diſcontented for want of Pay, and to favour the Proceedings of Monk for reſtoring the Parliament, an enchanting Word; and the Forces in the North were not well ſettled.

Tumult. 5. Upon ſome Diſturbances in London, ſome Forces marched into the City to keep the Peace, and were there affronted by the Multitude; whereupon two of the Rabble were killed, and the reſt were diſperſed.

Portſmouth. Intelligence that Colonel Whetham Governor of Portſmouth, and the Garriſon there, had declared for the reſtoring of the Parliament, and that Colonel Morley a Parliament-man, was there with them to encourage them therein; whereupon the Committee order a Party of Horſe and Foot to march thither to reduce them.

Form of Government. 6. The General Council of the Armies of the three Nations met at Whitehall, to conſider of a Form of Government.

London. A Committee of Aldermen of London came to the Committee of Safety, and excuſed the late Tumult in the City, and that they had no hand in it.

7. The General Council of the Officers, conſidered of the Government; the Committee of Safety took care about the Militia.

Iriſh Brigade. Intelligence that Colonel Zanchey with his Iriſh Brigade, obeyed the Orders of Monk, and that Berwick was his head Quarters.

8. I diſpatched ſome Buſineſs of the Seal, but was full of Perplexity about the publick Affairs.

Booth. 9. Sir George Booth was releaſed upon Security.

Petition. A Petition was delivered to the Common-Council from many Citizens, Deſiring to have ſuch a Parliament as was, 1642. The Petition was laid aſide, as a Deſign to bring in the common Enemy; and they ſent a Committee to Fleetwood to confer with him, who met at Whitehall.

Anno 1659.

10. Intelligence that Haſlerigge, Morley, and Walton, were in Portſmouth; that Colonel Norton refuſed to engage them, and that the Army's Forces ſtraiten the Town.

Parliament. The General Council of Officers of the Armies and Fleet of the three Nations ſat daily; they voted, That a Parliament be called before February next, to ſit and act according to ſuch Qualifications, as are or ſhall be agreed upon, and may beſt ſecure the juſt Rights, Liberties and Privileges, both Civil and Religious, of the People of this Commonwealth.

Intelligence of Attempts of Inſurrections in Suſſex, but defeated: So was a Deſign to ſurprize the Tower.

A Commiſſion was ſealed to me and ſeveral other Gentlemen of Bucks, for the Militia of that County.

12. Intelligence that Monk was come to Berwick, and that he wrote to Lambert for a Paſs for his three Commiſſioners to come thither to him, which cauſed Suſpicion of his further Delay.

13. The General Council of the Officers agreed upon ſeven Articles.

Articles.

1. That there be no King ſhip.
2. No ſingle Perſon as Chief Magiſtrate.
3. That an Army be continued.
4. No Impoſition upon Conſcience.
5. No Houſe of Peers.
6. The Legiſlative, and Executive Powers to be in diſtinct Hands.
7. Parliaments to be elected by the People.

The Reſolves were communicated to a Committee of the Common-Council.

Officers. 14. The Council of Officers ſignified their Opinions to the Committee of Safety, That the beſt way to ſatisfy and appeaſe the preſent Diſtractions, would be to have a Parliament forthwith ſummoned, without a King or Houſe of Peers. Thereupon the Committee agreed upon a Proclamation to be iſſued, declaring that a Parliament

Parliament. ſhould be ſummoned to meet January next, according to Qualifications: And I ſealed the Proclamation, which gave Satisfaction to many.

Orders by the Common-Council of London for preſerving the Peace.

Monk. Intelligence of Alarms taken by Monk's Forces, and that he had taken many Scots into his Army; and that Newcaſtle was reſolute for Fleetwood's Party; That they ſuſpected Monk's Deſign to be to bring in the King.

15. The Proclamation for a Parliament was ſolemnly publiſhed; I did much further it.

White-locke. At the General Council of Officers of the Armies, when they conſidered of Qualifications of the Members, and way of electing them, I informed them that ſome things propounded were expreſly contrary to the Law, and to the Oath which I had taken as Keeper of the Seal; and therefore if thoſe things ſhould be inſiſted upon, I could not without Breach of my Oath and Duty, ſeal Writs for a Parliament after that manner. Some of the Officers ſaid, That if I would not do it, they would ſeal the Writs themſelves. I replied, that I was ready to deliver up the Seal to them, and that it was there ready for them, if they pleaſed to take it from me.

An Officer ſaid, That it could not be well, when in ſuch a time as this, a Lawyer ſhould be intruſted with ſo great a Charge as the keeping of the Great Seal; and that it were more proper for ſome who had endured the Dangers of the War, and adventured their Lives for the Service of the Commonwealth to have the keeping of the Seal, than for a Lawyer to have it, who had not undergone Dangers as others had. I replied again, that the Gentleman who diſparaged Lawyers, might remember the Services done by Ireton, Reynolds, Jones, and other Lawyers in this War, and that I had been in ſuch Dangers in the Service of the Commonwealth, particularly in my Swediſh Journey, as the Colonel had never been in; and therefore deſired that ſuch reproachful Language might be forborn. Fleetwood and others juſtified me and my Profeſſion, and ſilenced the Colonel. Decemb.

16. The General Council of Officers of the Armies deſired the Committee of Safety, that Writs might be iſſued out for Election of Parliament-men.

17. Lawſon and his Officers ſet forth a Declaration that the Long Parliament ſhould ſit again; whereupon Vane and others were ſent to him, to inform him better. Lawſon.

Inſurrections. The Forces lay ſtill about Portſmouth; ſome Deſigns of an Inſurrection at Briſtol, were prevented.

18. The like Deſigns of the King's Party at Colcheſter, were prevented.

Diſtractions. 19. No Quiet was enjoyed by any Party, all were at work, and the King's Party very active, and every Man was guided by his own Fancy and Intereſt; thoſe in Employment were moſt obnoxious to Trouble.

20. I wiſhed myſelf out of theſe daily Hazards, but knew not how to get free of them; the Diſtractions were ſtrangely high, and daily increaſing.

A Deſign of a Riſing in London laid by the King's Party, but diſcovered and prevented, and many of the Conſpirators taken.

21. Letters that ſeveral of the Forces which Fleetwood ſent to reduce Portſmouth, were gone into the Town and joined with them, ſome of Colonel Rich's Men and others.

22. That the Iſle of Wight was come in to the Parliament Party.

Letters from Vice-Admiral Lawſon and his Officers to the City, and others to the Militia of London, declaring for reſtoring the Parliament; Lawſon.

And from Haſlelrigge, Walton and Morley, from Portſmouth to the City, acquainting them with their Succeſs there.

Soldiers. Moſt of the Soldiery about London, declared their Judgment to have the Parliament ſit again, in Honour, Freedom and Safety; and now thoſe who formerly were moſt eager for Fleetwood's Party, became as violent againſt them, and for the Parliament to ſit again.

Theſe Paſſages perplexed me as well as others, if not more; I all along ſuſpecting Monk's Deſign. The Lord Willoughby, and Alderman Robinſon, Major General Browne, Mr. Loe and others came to me, and confirmed my Suſpicion in this Particular; and propounded to me to go to Fleetwood, and to adviſe him to ſend forthwith to the King at Breda, to offer to bring him in upon good Terms, and thereby to get beforehand with Monk, who queſtionleſs did intend to bring in the King: I upon ſerious Thoughts of this went to Fleetwood, and we had a long private Diſcourſe together, wherein I told him, White-locke and Fleetwood. That by the Deſire of his Brother, Sir William Fleetwood, and of the Lord Willoughby, Major General Browne, Alderman Robinſon, Mr. Loe and others, I was come to diſcourſe freely with him about our preſent Condition, and what was fit to be done in ſuch an Exigency as our Affairs were now in.

Anno 1659.

in. That it was more than evident, that Monk's Deſign was to bring it the King, and that without any Terms for the Parliament Party; whereby all our Lives and Fortunes would be at the Mercy of the King and his Party, who were ſufficiently enraged againſt us, and in need of repairing their broken Fortunes.

That the Inclinations of the Presbyterian Party generally, and of many others, and of the City, and moſt of the Parliament's old Friends were the ſame way, and a great Part of the Soldiery.

And that theſe here were revolted from Fleetwood, as thoſe in the North under Lambert, and thoſe at Portſmouth and other Places.

That Monk would eaſily delude Haſlerigge and the reſt of the old Parliament-men, and that all the incenſed Lords and ſecluded Members, would be and were active in this Deſign, ſo that I ſaid the coming in of the King was unavoidable, and that I thought (being that muſt be) that it was more Prudence for Fleetwood and his Friends to be the Inſtruments of bringing him in, than to leave it to Monk.

That by this Means, Fleetwood might make Terms with the King for Preſervation of himſelf and his Friends, and of that Cauſe in a good meaſure, in which they had been engaged; but if it were left to Monk, they and all that had been done, would be left to the Danger of Deſtruction.

I therefore propounded to Fleetwood to do one of theſe two things, Either to give Order for all his Forces to draw together, and himſelf and his Friends to appear in the Head of them, and ſee what Strength they could make that would ſtand by them; and accordingly to take further Reſolutions, if they found their Strength but ſmall (as I doubted) then with thoſe few he had to go to the Tower and take poſſeſſion of it; and to ſend to the Mayor and Common-Council of London, that they would join with them to declare for a free Parliament, which I thought, the City would willingly do, and furniſh him with Money for his Soldiers, which would increaſe their Numbers.

Fleetwood asked me, If I would go with him into the Field and to the Tower, I ſaid, I would. Fleetwood then asked, What was the other way that I had to propound to him in this Exigency? I anſwered, It was this;

That Fleetwood ſhould immediately ſend away ſome Perſon of Truſt to the King to Breda, to offer to him his and his Friends Service to the reſtoring of the King to his Right, and that upon ſuch Terms as the King ſhould agree upon. And for this Purpoſe to give Inſtructions to the Party, whom Fleetwood ſhould ſend upon this Affair.

Fleetwood then asked me, If I would be willing to go my ſelf upon this Employment? I anſwered, that I would go, if Fleetwood thought good to ſend me. And after much other Diſcourſe to this Effect, Fleetwood ſeemed fully ſatisfied to ſend me to the King, and deſired me to go and prepare myſelf forthwith for the Journey; and that in the mean time Fleetwood and his Friends would prepare the Inſtructions for me, ſo that I might begin my Journey this Evening, or to-morrow Morning early.

I going away from Fleetwood, met Vane, Desborough, and Berry in the next Room coming to ſpeak with Fleetwood; who thereupon deſired me to ſtay a little; and I ſuſpected what would be the Iſſue of their Conſultation; and within a Quarter of an Hour, Fleetwood came to me, and in much Paſſion ſaid to me, I cannot do it, I cannot do it. I deſired his Reaſons why he could not do it? He anſwered, Theſe Gentlemen have remembred me; and it is true, that I am engaged not to do any ſuch thing without my Lord Lambert's Conſent.

I replied, That Lambert was at too great a Diſtance to have his Conſent to this Buſineſs, which muſt be inſtantly acted. Decemb

Fleetwood again ſaid, I cannot do it without him: Then I ſaid, You will ruin your ſelf and your Friends: He ſaid, I cannot help it. Then I told him, I muſt take my Leave, and ſo we parted.

23. I ſealed ſome Writs for the ſummoning of a new Parliament, and ſent one to the Lord Mayor, and another to the Sheriffs of London.

Colonel Ingoldsby, and his Son in Law Mr. Lee, and Colonel Howard came to me, and diſcourſed of the Change like to be; and intimated my Condition to require my going to the King with the Great Seal; but I not conſenting to their Overtures, they left me and provided for themſelves. Ingoldsby

Some of the Members of the old Council of State then in Town, together with the old Speaker Lenthal, by Advice together, finding the Revolt of the Soldiers from Fleetwood, gave out Orders for the Forces about the Town, to rendezvous to-morrow in Lincoln's-Inn Fields, under Colonel Okey and Alured.

Intelligence that Haſlerigge and the Forces at Portſmouth intended ſpeedily to come to London.

24. The Soldiers were drawn out, and marching through Chancery-Lane, made a ſtand at the Speaker's Houſe, who came to them in the Street, and the Officers ſpake to him in the Name of the Soldiery, being ſorry for the late Defection; and reſolving for the future to adhere to the Parliament. The Soldiers gave loud Shouts, and the Speaker gave out Orders for their Diſpoſal, and gave them the Word.

The Speaker with Cooper, Reynolds, Weaver, and Berners, went to the Lord Mayor, and diſcourſed with him and the Sheriffs, touching the Parliament's meeting again ſpeedily, and found them to like well of it; from him they went to the Tower and ſecured that. Parliament.

News from Ireland that the Forces there had declared for the Parliament, who a little before had declared for Fleetwood, and Jones and Corbet were ſecured there. Ireland.

Lawſon wrote to the City and to the Militia of London, and declared for the Parliament; ſo did the Regiment of Desborough, who was ſo active againſt the Parliament; and the like was done by Zanchey's Brigade; and Orders were ſent to the Forces under Lambert to obey the Parliament. Lawſon. Desborough. Zanchey.

Letters from Newcaſtle that there was no Hopes of any further Treaty with Monk.

25. More Letters from Lawſon to the ſame Effect with the former, and yet againſt the King.

26. The Speaker and Members of Parliament then in Town, met at Whitehall, and from thence walked together to the Parliament-Houſe in the Evening; the Soldiers ſhouted as they paſſed by, who not long before by Force kept them from ſitting. Parliament.

They paſſed ſome Votes for Pay of the Army; and appointed Colonel Popham, Thomſon, Scot, Okey, Cooper, and others, to direct and order the Forces.

27. I ſaw how things paſſed, and that the old Parliament were now met again, who I knew would be ſevere againſt me for acting in the Committee of Safety; and being informed that Scot and Nevil, and others, had threatned to take away my Life; and Scot ſaid, That I ſhould be hanged with the Great Seal about my Neck: And I knew Scot's Malice to me upon ſome former Conteſts White-locke.

Anno 1659. about Elections to Parliament, this made me to conſider how to provide for my own Safety.

Chaloner. The Parliament releaſed Mr. Chaloner and others committed by Fleetwood, and made ſeveral Committees.

They appointed the 5th of January next to conſider the Caſes of abſent Members.

Whitelocke. The Speaker ſent a Letter to me, requiring my Attendance in the Houſe; whereupon I went to the Speaker, and made my Objections, that ſome in the Houſe ſeeing me there, might move againſt me, and get me ſent to Priſon. The Speaker ſaid, He believed no ſuch thing would be moved, but they would take it as an owning of their Authority, if I ſat with them.

Upon this I went to the Houſe, and found many of my old Acquaintance, as Reynolds, Nevil, and others very reſerved to me: and ſome of my Friends adviſed me not to be in the Houſe at the Day when they had appointed to conſider of the abſent Members.

Order for Letters of Thanks to be ſent to Monk, Lawſon, and the Commiſſioners at Portſmouth.

Monk. Letters from Monk, of an Obſtruction in the Treaty, for that Haſlerigge, Walton and Morley, acted at Portſmouth by the ſame Authority, and as equal Commiſſioners with Monk: And that Lambert had denied a Paſs for Monk's Meſſenger to go to them; but this was not now thought to be of much effect.

Windſor Caſtle. 28. Colonel H. Ingoldsby reported to the Parliament, that he and Major Wildman, with three hundred volunteer Horſe came before Windſor Caſtle, and the Governor Colonel Whitchcoat, ſurrendred to them for the uſe of the Parliament.

Whitelocke. I doubted leſt this might bring my name in Queſtion, I being Conſtable of that Caſtle; and Wildman. Wildman having been employed with me by Fleetwood, to conſider of a Form of Government of a free State, wherein we two, and none elſe, had gone far: I now doubted leſt Wildman had diſcovered this; and the more, becauſe Wildman had before offered to bring three thouſand Horſe to me to be commanded by me, if I would keep Windſor Caſtle, and declare for a free Commonwealth: But I ſaw no likelihood of effect in this; and Wildman carried himſelf prudently and faithfully, and nothing was ſaid of me. And Ingoldsby had the Thanks of the Houſe for his good Service.

Several Votes for Money; and for an Act of Indemnity.

Desborough. 29. Desborough ſent an humble Letter to the Houſe, acknowledging his Fault, and asking their Pardon, and promiſing to be obedient to them.

Militia. The Militia Soldiers of Weſtminſter drew together and met the Speaker, and with ſhouts declared their adherence to the Parliament.

Haſlerigge Sir Arthur Haſlerigge, Walton and Morley, came into the Houſe in their riding Habits; and Haſlerigge was very jocund and high. The Houſe ordered Thanks to be given them; and to Wallop, Love and Nevil, for their good Service at Portſmouth.

Monk. The Houſe approved of the placing and diſplacing of Officers by Monk; and ordered a Letter of Thanks under the Seal of the Parliament to be ſent to him for his Fidelity and great Services.

They alſo approved what had been done by the Members of the Council of State, during the Interruption; and Thanks to the Speaker; and to Lawſon and his Officers; and to Colonel Whetham and his Officers.

A Day of Humiliation appointed. January.

Thanks to Colonel Rich and Mr. Bremen, and their Officers.

The Houſe began to name a Council of State.

Haſlerigge I went to viſit Haſlerigge at his Lodgings in Whitehall, and to bid him welcome to Town, and to find how his Inclinations ſtood: I found with him H. Nevil, and they were both very reſerved to me, and ranted high againſt the Committee of Safety.

30. Orders about Moneys, and for managing of the Army.

A great ſharpneſs in the Houſe towards all thoſe who had acted during the Interruption, was obſerved by me: and I being informed of a deſign of ſome in the Houſe to queſtion me, and to have me ſent to the Tower; to be out of the way, I retired to a Friend's Houſe in the Country.

31. The Houſe agreed upon the Members of Parliament to be of the Council of State.

Parliament. They read an Act of Indemnity for Officers and Soldiers; appointed a Committee to confer with the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, about the Peace of London; appointed Haſlerigge, Walton and Morley, for the preſent to name Officers of the Regiments, and Colonel Dixwell Governor of Dover. Colonel Dixwell.

January, 1659.

January 2. An Act paſt for the Council of State.

Order for a Bill to renounce the Title of Charles Stuart, and of the Line of King James, to be taken by all Members of Parliament.

Indemnity An Act of Indemnity paſt for the Officers and Soldiers of the Army, who ſhould ſubmit to the Parliament by a Day; and Lambert to be included in it.

Lockart. 3. Several Letters to the Parliament, one from Colonel Lockart, of his Concurrence with the Parliament, and Reſolution to obey them. He had Thanks ordered to be ſent to him, and Proviſions for his Garriſon of Dunkirk.

Order for Writs to fill up the Parliament.

Great Seal Before my going out of Town, I had left order with my Wife to carry the Great Seal to the Speaker, which ſhe did, lockt up in a Desk, and gave the Key of it to him.

My Wife alſo burnt many of my Papers relating to the publick Affairs, which makes the preſent Relations the leſs perfect.

4. The Houſe kept a Day of Humiliation, and afterwards read ſome Letters, and made ſome References.

Monk. Letters from Monk in Scotland, of the good condition of his Army, and reſolution to adhere to this Parliament, and to march to reduce Lambert's Forces, in caſe they did not conform to the Parliament.

Lambert. The Meſſenger related that he met Lambert with about fifty Horſe at North-Allerton; that all his Forces and himſelf, and the Lord Fairfax and his Forces, and York, had all ſubmitted to this Parliament.

Ludlow. 5. Order to ſend for Ludlow and the Commiſſioners out of Ireland; and referred to the Council of State to conſider of ſettling the Civil Power, and the Army there.

The Speaker met him in the Strand, and Monk alighted, and the Speaker came out of his Coach, and they embraced each other with extraordinary ſigns of Kindneſs.

This Evening Monk was at the Council, and viſited by all the Members of Parliament, againſt whom he was come, and by the Grandees in Town.

Cockeram's Regiment at Graveſend in a Mutiny; Monk ſent ſome Troops of Horſe to reduce them. Mutiny.

6. Divers

Anno 1659.

6. Divers of the King's Party came from beyond Sea into England, and talked very high, and that they were ſure that the King would be in England very ſhortly.

Orders. Orders for the Lent Circuits, and about the Admiralty, and for the Profits of the Office of Cuſtos Brevium to be for the Navy: And ſo for the Profits of the Court of Admiralty, and of Probate of Wills; and Orders about the Engagement, and the Government of Scotland, and for Money for the Army.

Commiſſions delivered to Officers.

Monk in Parliament. Scot reported that Monk was come to attend the Houſe, and was in the Court of Wards. The Sergeant at Arms was ſent for him; and brought him into the Houſe accompanied with Scot and Robinſon; after his obeiſance, a Chair of Velvet being ſet for him on the left Hand within the Speaker. Bar, the Speaker deſired him to ſit down; but he deſired to be excuſed, and ſtood behind the Chair, whilſt the Speaker made a Speech to him, magnifying his Service and Merits, and giving him the hearty Thanks of the Houſe.

Anſwer. Monk anſwered him, extolling the Mercy of their reſtitution, and acknowledging the goodneſs of God to him, in making him inſtrumental therein, which was but his Duty, and deſerved not the Honour they had done him. He told them of the many Addreſſes to him in his Journey for a free and full Parliament, and that this Parliament would determine their ſitting.

That as to the ſecluded Members, he anſwered them, that this Parliament had already given their judgment, in which all ought to acquieſce; and that no Parliament had admitted new Members to ſit without a previous Oath or Engagement, and he now ſaith it to the Parliament, that the leſs Oaths and Engagements are impoſed, the Settlement will be the ſooner attained; and he hoped the Parliament would be careful that neither the Cavalier, nor Fanatick Party have yet a ſhare in the Civil or Military Power.

Then he ſpake of Ireland, and of Scotland, who feared nothing more than to be over-run with Fanatick Notions; and he deſired a ſettlement there, and their favour to that Nation.

Part of his Speech troubled and amuſed ſome of his Maſters of the Parliament; and how himſelf purſued what he pretended, will afterwards appear.

7. Orders for a Great Seal for Scotland, and another for Ireland.

Commiſſions delivered by the Speaker.

An Additional Act of Sequeſtrations paſſed.

And an Order to take into Conſideration on Friday next, the Caſes of the Members of Parliament againſt whom Matters have been objected.

The Mutineers of Colonel Cockram's Regiment at Graveſend reduced, and ſome of them taken.

The Dutch Ambaſſador had Audience at the Council of State.

London. 9. The Council of State finding the City of London generally inclined to the bringing in of the King; or to have forthwith a free Parliament for that end, and ſuſpecting that they might diſown the Parliament's Authority, and ſet up for themſelves, and that the Presbyterians there, and in the Countries joined with the Cavaliers herein; the Council made ſome Reſolutions, which they reported to the Parliament, and were approved by them, and Votes paſſed;

That the Commiſſioners for government of the Army, do appoint Forces to be in London, for preſerving the Peace thereof, and of the Commonwealth, and for reducing of the City to the Obedience of Parliament: And that the Commiſſioners take care that the Poſts and Chains in London be taken away, and that the Gates of the City be forthwith deſtroyed. Febr. Votes. Poſts and Chains.

And that the Commiſſioners of the Army do ſeize ſome Officers who have not confined themſelves according to former Order; and they approved what they had done in ſecuring divers Citizens.

An Addreſs of Divers Citizens, preſented by Mr. Praiſe God Barebones, of adhering to this Parliament. Barebones.

Upon a Letter from Monk the Parliament ordered to ſend to him the Reſolves of the Houſe, That the Gates of the City of London and the Portcullices be deſtroyed, and that he be ordered to put the ſaid Votes in Execution.

Monk was not well ſatisfied, that this Order was before directed to the Commiſſioners for Government of the Army, and himſelf not named therein, but left out as a Cypher; but upon advice with his Friends, he this Day executed their Order, and in ſight of the Citizens, took down their Portcullices and Gates, and took away their Poſts and Chains; many lookers on admired at it, but none offered any Oppoſition. And this Night Monk and his Forces quartered in the City, where he had many Viſitants of the chief Citizens and of the ſecluded Members, and others. Poſts and Chains.

To theſe he minced and excuſed this Action; and aſſured his Confidents that it was ſtill in order to his and their great Deſign, and hardly gave the ſame account to two Men; but the thing was done, and many amazed that he did it.

The Parliament finding the Common-Council of London to be againſt them, ordered that it ſhould be diſcontinued, and an Act brought in to conſtitute a new Common-Council; they ſent Thanks to the Lord Mayor for his diſcreet carriage in this Buſineſs. Common Council.

They debate the Qualifications.

10. Commiſſions delivered to Officers, and Liſts approved.

Upon a Letter from Monk and his Officers, the Houſe ordered Thanks to him for ſecuring the City; and in anſwer to their deſire for filling up the Houſe, they ſaid they were upon the Qualifications. Scot and Robinſon ordered to carry this Anſwer to him; and they much boaſted of their Intimacy and Favour with him. Scot and Robinſon.

They paſſed an Act to appoint Monk, Haſlerigge, Walton, Morley, and Alured, Commiſſioners for Government of the Army; at which Monk was noted to be diſcontented, and many judged it an Act of no great preſent Policy; but Haſlerigge eſpecially did drive on furiouſly. The Houſe adjourned till Monday. Commiſſioners of the Army.

12. Monk drew up his Forces in Finsbury, dined with the Lord Mayor, had conference with him and the Court of Aldermen, retired to the Bull- Monk.

head

Anno 1659. head in Cheapſide, and quartered at the Glaſs-houſe in Broadſtreet; Multitudes of People followed him, congratulating his coming into the City, making loud Shouts, and Bonfires, and ringing the Bells; he heard a Sermon at Pauls, with the Lord Mayor: Okey was ſent with his Regiment to quiet Briſtol.

York. 13. Intelligence from York, of an Addreſs from the City and the Country to the Parliament, for the ſecluded Members, and a free Parliament.

Secluded Members. Some Members of the Parliament now ſitting, and about twelve of the ſecluded Members met at Monk's Quarters by appointment, and had Conference about readmitting the ſecluded Members. Febr.

And here began the great turn, and the deſign of Monk to take place, to the regret of Haſlerigge, Scot, &c.

A Tumult at Bury appeaſed.

It pleaſed Monk that the ſecluded Members ſhould ſit again; and neither Scot or Robinſon, nor Haſlerigge, nor Nevil, nor any of that Party could prevail with him to the contrary, nor durſt any to oppoſe him; and the Spirit of the People generally, eſpecially of the Presbyterians, ran that way, and the Cavaliers agreed to it, as the way to bring in the King. Monk.

19. Other meetings of the ſecluded Members being had, it was agreed, That they ſhould take their Places in the Parliament on Tueſday next.

21. The ſecluded Members came into the Houſe, ſeveral of the old Members abſented themſelves. Secluded Members reſtored.

The Houſe being thus changed, made a great Change in the publick Affairs.

Several Votes were now paſſed without much Debate, to vacate all the Votes made by the Houſe, 1648, and 1649, againſt the ſecluded Members, and to ſet all Matters right again in relation to them; and a Committee made to conſider what other Votes were fit to be vacated. Votes.

Officers of the Militia approved by the Council.

Colonel Ingoldsby. Colonel Ingoldsby being ſent out with a Party againſt Lambert, and having his own Regiment and three other Troops of Horſe, and Lambert having but four Troops of Horſe in all, they met about two Miles from Daventry, where Captain Haſlerigge, Son to Sir Arthur Haſlerigge, led his Troop towards Ingoldsby's Forlorn, and was taken Priſoner (as ſome ſaid) willingly, and was diſmiſt again upon his Parole and Promiſe to bring over his Troop to Ingoldsby, which was preſently done.

This and Barker's Troop coming over to Ingoldsby, did much diſhearten Lambert and his Party, yet one of his Officers deſired leave of him to charge Ingoldsby, aſſuring himſelf that thereupon many of Ingoldsby's Men would come over to Lambert, who would not permit it, but deſired a Parley, and moved that Richard might be reſtored to the Protectorſhip, and ſome Conditions agreed upon.

Lambert was anſwer'd, That he himſelf was one of thoſe who pulled down Richard, and now would ſet him up again; and that they had no Commiſſion to diſpute, but to reduce him and his Party. Yet Lambert would not fight, nor permit his Officers that deſired it, to fire a Piſtol, and himſelf prayed Ingoldsby to let him eſcape.

One of Lambert's Troopers fired a Piſtol at Ingoldsby, but there was no fighting. Alured's Troop came in alſo to Ingoldsby, and Lambert's wonted Courage failed him, neither could he eſcape, but Ingoldsby took him Priſoner. Others took Cobbet, Creed, and others of his Party Priſoners; Oakey, Axtell, and others eſcaped, and ſome Troopers with them.

Several Addreſſes from ſeveral Officers of the Army to the ſame effect as the former.

25. Several diſaffected Officers of the Army ſecured.

Anno 1660.

Letters from Mountague, that the Fleet joined with thoſe of the Army, and reſolved to obey the Parliament. This Gentleman one of the Generals at Sea had engaged the Officers of the Fleet, and had made his own Terms with the King by a Kinſman of his, who was in the Fleet with him for that purpoſe; Mr. Edward Mountague, eldeſt Son of the Lord Mountague of Buſhton.

Mountague Fleet.

This Gentleman went often to the King, and made Terms for General Mountague and others, which were honourably perform'd, but he himſelf was not ſo well requited for his Services, as thoſe for whom he acted.

Soldiers.

The Soldiers generally and the Seamen were quite alter'd from their former Principles and Maſters; and where any were ſuſpected to be wavering from, or diſaffected to the preſent Intentions, they were forthwith ſecured and prevented; and the appointment of their Meetings and Riſings were diligently diſcover'd, and Forces ſent to hinder them.

The City Focres muſtered in Hyde Park, and made a gallant ſhew, the Lord Mayor and Aldermen were preſent, many Tents were in the Field, and much good Cheer and Wine.

The ſame Day Lambert, Cobbet, and Creed, were brought up Priſoners to London; and after Examination by the Council, were committed cloſe Priſoners to the Tower.

Lord Falconbridge.

The Lord Falconbridge made Colonel of Haſlerigge's Regiment by Monk.

Parliament.

Both Houſes Lords and Commons met at St. Margaret's, Weſtminſter, where Dr. Reynolds preached to them, and after Sermon they went to their ſeveral Houſes; the Commons choſe Sir Harbottle Grimſtone for their Speaker.

A Day of publick Humiliation moved by the Lords, and agreed by the Commons.

Many Members of Parliament came to viſit and conſult Monk.

20. Committee of Privileges named.

Thankſgiving.

Order for a Day of Thankſgiving for raiſing up Monk and other Inſtruments in delivery of this Nation from Thraldom and Miſery.

Order for Thanks to Monk for his eminent and unparrallel'd Services, and for Thanks to Colonel Ingoldsby.

27. Orders about Returns of Elections.

Colonel Aſhfield and Lieutenant Colonel Miller diſcharged upon their Engagement, not to act any thing againſt the preſent Power.

Major General Harriſon and others ſecured.

Priſoners of Lambert's Party brought to London.

Divers diſaffected Soldiers ſecured.

28. Divers Soldiers and Agitators apprehended in ſeveral Places.

May, 1660.

Letter from Breda.

1. Sir John Granville, of the Bed-Chamber to the King, brought from Breda his Majeſty's Letter and Declaration to the Houſe of Lords; His Meſſage and Declaration to the Honſe of Commons; His Letter and Declaration to Monk to be communicated to his Officers; and his Majeſty's Letter and Declaration to the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council of London.

Declaration.

By the Declaration, The King grants a free general Pardon to all that ſhall lay hold of it within forty days, except ſuch as the Parliament ſhall except, and a Liberty to tender Conſciences, and that none be queſtioned for difference of Opinion in matters of Religion, which do not diſturb the Peace of the Kingdom.

That Differences and all things relating to Grants, Sales and Purchaſes ſhall be determined in Parliament; and he will conſent to Acts for that purpoſe, and for Satisfaction of the Arrears to Monk's Officers and Soldiers, and they to be received into his Majeſty's Service and Pay. May.

Theſe things being read in the Houſe of Commons, Mr. Luke Robinſon, formerly a moſt fierce Man againſt the King, did now firſt magnify his Grace and Goodneſs. Luke Robinſon.

The Lord's Houſe gave Thanks to Sir John Granville, and declared, That according to the antient and fundamental Laws of this Kingdom, the Government is and ought to be by King, Lords and Commons: And the Lords deſired that ſome way may be conſider'd how to make up the Breaches, and to obtain the King's Return again to his People. Lords Houſe.

They voted a Committee to join with a Committee of the Houſe of Commons, to conſider of an Anſwer to his Majeſty's gracious Letter and Declaration, and to prepare ſomething in order to this Buſineſs.

The King's Letter and Declaration to the Houſe of Commons was read, and his Letter to Monk; and they named a Committee to prepare an Anſwer to the King's Letters, expreſſing the joyful Senſe of the Houſe of his gracious Offers, and their humble Thanks for them, with profeſſion of their Loyalty and Duty to his Majeſty, and that they will give a ſpeedy Anſwer to his gracious Propoſals. Commons.

The Houſe reſolved to preſent 50000 l. to the King, and the Committee order'd to go to the City to advance it upon Security and Intereſt, and to treat about raiſing a further Sum for the Army.

Order for Monk to communicate his Letter from the King to the Officers and Soldiers, and to return an Anſwer to the King; which Monk did accordingly, and it was received with great Joy. Order to enter the King's Letter in the Journal-Book.

The Commons agreed with the Lords Vote of Government, by King, Lords and Commons, and appointed a Committee to ſearch the Journals, what Acts or Orders there had been made inconſiſtent herewith.

An Aſſeſſment agreed of 70000 l. per menſem for three Months.

Bonfires and ringing of Bells, and great Guns fired in joy of theſe Reſolves. Bonfires.

2. An Addreſs to Monk from the Officers of the Army, rejoicing in his Majeſty's Offers of Indemnity, of Liberty of Conſcience, Satisfaction of Arrears, and Confirmation of Purchaſes, read in Parliament.

Dr. Clarges a Member of the Houſe, had leave to go to the King from Monk.

Sir John Granville, that brought the King's Letter, had the Thanks of the Houſe, and 500 l. ordered for him to buy him a Jewel.

The City had leave to ſend an Anſwer to the King's Letter to them. City.

Letters that Lambert's Party were all diſcharged and diſperſed.

The City agreed to lend 50000 l. to the Houſe of Commons.

3. Orders touching Returns of Elections.

The Lords agreed upon ſome of their Members, ſix to be ſent to the King, and the Common Council of London did the like, and gave 300 l. to the Lord Mordant, and Sir John Granville, who brought the Letters from the King, to buy each of them a Ring.

4. The Commons agreed to an Order of the Lords for favour to the Duke of Bucks, for reſtoring his Eſtate. Duke of Bucks.

The Houſe gave leave to the Members of the Common-Council named by them, to go to the Anno 1660. King; and resolved to send twelve of their own Members to His Majesty.

Dr. Clarges. Dr. Clarges, with others, went to the King with Monk's Answer to the King's Letters to him; and the Address of the Army.

5. Orders touching returning of Elections.

Disputes An Opinion being discoursed abroad, That the Long Parliament could not be dissolved but by themselves, and the King's and Lords Consent, which was not had for their dissolving, and another Opinion being given out, That if the Long Parliament were dissolved, then the Triennial Parliament was to take place, and no other, by that Act of Parliament.

Great Seal. The Commons thereupon passed a Bill for removing of Disputes touching the sitting of this Parliament: And they passed a Declaration for adjourning part of next Easter-Term; to which the Lords concurred, and the Commons agreed, that the Earl of Manchester be one of the Lords Commissioners for the Great Seal.

General Mountague General Mountague at Sea, to whom the Letter to Monk was also directed from the King, upon the Receipt of it and of the Declaration, he called together the Officers of the several Ships, and communicated the Letter and Declaration to them, who expressed great Joy and Satisfaction therein, and desired Mountague to represent the same with their humble Thanks to his Majesty.

Then Montague fired the first Gun himself, and all his Ships answered it round, with loud Acclamations as their General had done, crying God bless the King; and the General gave two Pipes of Canary to his Men.

7. Order of the Common-Council, that at his Majesty's Return, the new Park which Oliver had given them should be presented to the King; and he assured that the City had only kept it as Stewards for his Majesty.

The Commons gave Leave to General Mountague, to return an Answer to the King's Letter to him.

Proclamation. Resolved by both Houses, that the King be proclaimed to-morrow, King of England, Scotland, France and Ireland; and a Committee of both Houses to consider of the Manner of it.

A Declaration against Tumults, and to continue Justices of Peace, and other Officers in their Places.

King's Arms. The King's Statue again set up in Guild-Hall, and the States Arms taken down, and the King's Arms set up in their Place.

Monk removed his Guards out of the City; Colonel Salmon discharged upon Security; new Flags, and Standards, and Paintings ordered for the Ships.

8. Resolved by the Commons, That the King be desired to make a speedy Return to his Parliament, and to the Exercise of his Kingly Office.

A Committee appointed to consider of the Manner of his Majesty's Return, and to prepare things necessary for his Reception.

King Proclaimed. The King was solemnly proclaimed at Westminster-Hall Gate, the Lords and Commons standing bare by the Heralds whilst the Proclamation was made. Then he was proclaimed in the several usual Places in the City, the Lord Mayor, Recorder and Officers, being present in their Formalities, and the Militia Forces being there also; and the People gave loud Acclamations and Shouts, the Bells rang, the great Guns and small Shot gave many Vollies, and the City was full of Bonfires and Joys.

Bonfires.

9. Several Addresses to Monk from Officers of the Army, and from those of Dunkirk, of their Submission to the King and his Government. May.

Prayers. Order for all Ministers to pray for the King and the Duke of York publickly, and to give Thanks to God for the King's Letters and Declaration.

10. The Day of Thanksgiving solemnly kept; Common-Prayer was read before the Lords.

After Sermon both Houses sat, and the Commons voted 5000 l. to the Duke of York, and 5000 l. to the Duke of Gloucester as a Present from them.

Order to stop felling Woods, and committing Waste in the King's Lands.

One committed for speaking treasonable Words against the King.

Ireland. The Commissioners for Ireland desired, That in regard his Majesty in his Declarations, had taken no Notice of Ireland, almost destroyed by the Rebellion, that the Parliament would give their Assistance for the calling of a Parliament there; which both Houses agreed to offer to his Majesty.

The Commons voted 5000 l. more, in all 10000 l. for a Present to the Duke of York.

Both Houses declared the Continuance of all Officers of the Revenue, and of the Navy.

Order about the Monies collected for the Protestants of Piedmont and Poland.

Order for all Lodgers in Whitehall to quit their Lodgings, except Monk and his Family.

An Act of Oblivion under Consideration by the Commons, who heard the Proceedings at the King's Trial read.

The Earl of Winchelsea made by Monk, Governor of Dover.

Major Holmes committed.

Col. Norton. Some Fanaticks near Portsmouth, quelled by Colonel Norton.
